Sixth. To complete the happiness of your spoiled daughter, marry her to a bearded youth with soft hands, who knows as little how to earn money as she does to save it. Her happiness will then be finished for life time.

How often, weary and empty of soul in this world pageant, men and women would be glad to flee out of it, as Moses fled from Pharaoh's court to Midian. Better to keep the sheep of Jethro, if he might thus come into Horeb, the mount of God, than to bask amid royal pleasures which are a weariness and pain.

YOUTHS' DEPARTMENT.

A FAMILIAR TALK.

Sometime ago we promised our young readers that we would give the juvenile department of the PILGRIM more attention when we would get a little time, and we suppose you will soon think that time is long about coming. Well, time is a very strange commodity and is always on the wing. We have been trying to catch a little of it for a long time. We have often promised ourselves a whole lot of it on to-morrow, but just as soon as the morning comes the little thief to-morrow has thrown it away over into the next day, and thus we never can get it unless we just sit down and take it, and that is what we have now done.

Here we are with pen in hand, what shall we write about? There are many things crowding our memory that we would like to tell you, but while we have taken a little time we wish to use it to the best possible advantage.

Of late, we have been travelling some, and we have formed a habit of keeping our eyes open when we get away from home, just what we want our young readers to do, so that we may see what is going on in the world, and among other things we are sure to learn something about the young people.

We hear much said about Sunday Schools, and no doubt many of you know all about them and perhaps love dearly, to attend them. Some object to them for fear their little ones may be spoiled—afraid they will learn some bad things and also learn to be proud. This would be unfortunate, very, but we hope that none of our young readers will learn such lessons, as to be naughty and proud is bad, very bad. But there is danger of learning bad things outside of going to Sunday School, and we fear that there is just where the greatest danger is.

We told you we were away from home and that we generally kept our eyes open, but there is another way of learning things, we mean by hearing.

On Monday morning, after Sabbath was over, we overheard the following conversation:

"Was you at church yesterday?"

"Oh yes, I always go, especially when strangers are to preach."

"I believe I did not see your boys in the church."

"Well you see, they thought it would be a good day to fish, so they went fishing."

"Did they do pretty well?"

"Yes, they caught quite a lot."

"Did they sell them?"

"No, they brought them home, they don't generally sell the fish they catch on Sunday."

Is it possible, thought we, that children are allowed to go a fishing on Sunday? But our ears were not mistaken, and on a little inquiry we learned that the fishing ground was quite a Sunday resort for the young people. There was no Sunday School there, and we noticed very few little boys at church on Sunday. There now, what do you think of that? Why if our boys, and girls too, as we learned that the boys were not alone, were caught breaking the Sabbath in this way, they would think seriously of the great stone house with large heavy doors, and windows barred with iron. Well some of those boys and girls who profane God's holy day in fishing and sporting, may see just such a place when they least expect it. The sinner will not go unpunished, and the breaking of the Sabbath is one of the first steps that leads to ruin.

We hope that none of you, dear readers, ever do such things on Sunday. If you did, please do it no more. It is God's holy day. He set it apart for rest, for worship,—to learn of Jesus and to do good.

We think we hear you say; "those children had better be in the Sunday School." We think so too. We think if they would go, as some of you do, and learn about Jesus, commit a whole chapter in the Testament and recite it to their teachers, they would be much better off in the evening than if they had spent the day in fishing or in sporting. We do not mean by this, that all little boys and girls who do not go to Sunday School, go fishing or sporting, but we only wish to have you understand that we think it is better to spend Sunday in learning about God and His dear Son, who has said, "Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not, for of such is the Kingdom of heaven," than to waste the day in sporting and running around with naughty boys and girls.

While talking of these things, we will tell you of something else we noticed in the neighborhood where young people fish on Sunday. There are but few young members in the Church. These things all work together for bad to those who love not the Lord. Every little sin works against us and drives us further away from God. Every day that you spend in sin, puts you nearer and nearer destruction. Then we say, if you wish to be lovely, if you wish to be good and happy, if you wish to make glad the hearts of your parents, if you wish to make angels rejoice, and finally have a home in God's blessed Kingdom in heaven, seek to know the Lord while young, before the evil days come. Enter the fold of Jesus and He will be your shepherd and you shall be the lambs of his flock.

WHY HENRY LOST HIS PLACE.

"Begone!" Quick now, or you'll be sorry. Never show your face here again."

With these words, old John Lacy shut the door on his brother's child, and left him fight his way through the world as best he could. Henry was too angry to cry; he ran faster than the old man had said even—ran as though he wanted to get out of sight of John's cottage and all that belonged to him. When he came to "the clearing," he sat on a stump to get breath and think over what had happened.

"I didn't do anything very bad; only stopped to pick a few berries, when he was for driving me to death. Haven't any place to cover my head! This is a pretty fix to be in. But the world is wide. Guess I'll do for somebody's errand boy."

Off he ran after a rabbit, and for a drink from the brook.

"I am not a bad looking fellow," he thought, catching a glimpse of himself in the brook. "Pretty dirty face and hands, and tangled hair; haven't been washed or combed for a week; no wonder in that old hovel! Got to begin the world new; know it, old fellow," he cried shaking his finger at himself and stooping to wash his face and hands and comb his hair.

"Now," he began, "guess I'll do to hunt my fortune. A couple of miles ahead is a farm-house; a good place; try it first."

The family were around a blazing log fire, when there came a knock at the door.

"Come in."

In walked Henry and stammered out his story to Mr. Ross, who sat in the arm chair. Mr. Ross listened, and after asking as many questions as he wished, told Henry he would try him for one week.

"I shall watch you closely," he said. "The boy that lives with me must walk straight in everything."

All the arrangements were made, and Henry went to his attic room thinking himself the most lucky fellow in the land.

"I'll keep this place," he thought. "Don't catch me doing anything to make the gentleman angry."

He was up and about his work by daybreak. Mr. Ross said he hauled, and chopped, and split more wood than any boy that had ever been on the place. By the time the week was up, every one but Mr. Ross had said that Henry was the best boy they'd ever had. No one else could take such good care of the ducks, the chickens or turkeys, or find so many eggs, or draw the children to school, or be so kind and obliging around the house. So, at the end of the week, when Henry came to stand before Mr. Ross, no one expected to hear him say, "You cannot stay here."

Think, then, how surprised they were when Mr. Ross said, "I am sorry, Henry, but I cannot keep you. I have watched you well, and I see that in you which would make me afraid to have you about."

How anxious all were to hear!

"You are cruel to animals, Henry. When you thought no one was around, I have seen you torment the children's pets. And so with the other dumb animals. I have seen you take evident pleasure in making them suffer. At first I thought it was play, but I looked long and often enough to believe that you did it from cruelty. I would not feel safe with such a boy. Remember, boy, cruelty to animals is a sin against a God of loving kindness and tender mercy. Learn a lesson from this, and when you are tempted to sin thus again, remember the Bible words, 'Thou, God, seest me.'" S. S. Visitor.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Dear Pilgrim: —A few weeks ago, there was considerable mentioned about Obituary and Marriage notices; which has led me, as one among the old pilgrims, to mention that the popular denominations have each their church organ, or paper. I never subscribed for one, but for many years I had the opportunity of reading and examining, those published by the M. E. church, and the M. Protestant church, and although they publish Obituary notices, yet they very seldom publish the name of the officiating minister. When the Brethren first began to issue periodicals, they hesitated in affixing the name of the writer to the articles; and very often, simply affixed the initials, and in some cases, a fictitious name, which was done with a view of concealing the name of the writer, and seemed to answer the purpose very well. Our Editors should know the name of every writer, but it is a question in my mind whether it is really necessary for the name of the writer to be published, except in official communications pertaining to the Brotherhood at large. As regards Obituary notices, the necessary facts can all be stated in connection with the text, without giving the name of the officiating minister, or the writer, and we should forbear eulogizing the dead as much as possible, as this does no real good, and may, in some cases, do much harm. I am much pleased to see that a considerable number of brethren now publish their Obituary notices by adding, "Funeral services by the brethren," this is, I think as it should be.

As for Marriage notices, I do not look upon it as being necessary to make it a specialty to publish them in our periodicals, but where brethren are called upon to officiate on matrimonial occasions, and the parties express a desire to have a notice published, it might be done without giving the name of the officiating minister.

It is from a sense of duty, and in brotherly love, that I have been led to suggest the foregoing hints to my fellow pilgrims. Our blessed Savior after doing acts of mercy, would tell the parties "go and tell no man," and again he advises us not to blow the trumpet in order to let others know what we have done, or are doing. The apostle exhorts, "Let this mind be in you which was in Christ Jesus, who made himself of no reputation." Again we should see well to it as Watchmen, that the "old landmarks be not removed."

AN OLD PILGRIM.

OUR HOME, DANSVILLE, }
LIVINGSTONE CO., N. Y. }

Dear Pilgrim.—After my greetings to you and others of the Pilgrim family, I will say to you, please send the Pilgrim for the term of six months to the above address. Having come up here with my son for the benefit of his health, we have left loved ones, brethren and sisters in a far distant land, and feel quite lonely, not having the pleasure of perusing the Pilgrim. We would be pleased to have back numbers up to the first of April.

We are much pleased with the principle on which this institution is conducted, and believe it a blessing under God's providence to suffering humanity. My son is a member of our church. We crave the prayers in your devotional exercises.

Fearing I have intruded on your practice, I am your unworthy sister in Christ.

M. A. MOOMAW.

We hope that our worthy sister and her son may have a pleasant stay at "Our Home," and that their fondest expectations may be realized. We have all confidence in the principles and practices of that institution and a firm disciple of Hygienic principles, although an offender of its laws. We hope the Pilgrim visits you regularly and may be to you and your son, a source of comfort in your isolated condition. A general description of the place, the arrangements, privileges, and number of patients would be thankfully received.

GERMANTOWN, PA., }
May 20th, '72. }

As the Church in this place has passed through seasons of apparent barreness, I feel constrained by request of those interested, to give a short report of the meeting held at this place. The meetings were commenced on Saturday the 11th of May, and continued one week or over the next Sabbath. They grew in interest as they were continued, until the Holy Spirit commenced operating upon sin-burdened souls, and sinners were made to flee the wrath to come by making Jesus their refuge, and the rock of their salvation. During the meetings five precious souls were received into the Church of the living God, and others applied for admittance and will be received. Truly the brethern and sisters of Germantown experienced a refreshing from the presence of the Lord, and were made to rejoice in the God of their salvation to see the work of the Lord revive in their midst. During my stay amongst them I was made the recipient of their unabated kindness and Christian charity, for which they will please accept my grateful acknowledgements. As this is the place where the Brethren first planted the Cross of the Immaculate Redeemer in America, it is surrounded with many hallowed associations. May its candle be trimmed and replenished with the oil of God's grace until many will be constrained to walk in the Light, and the little flock at Germantown be made to shine as a city set on a hill that cannot be hid.

DAVIS YONCE.

Bro. Brumbaugh;—The PILGRIM gives satisfaction. Go on, and spread the pure unabated words of eternal life to a dying world, and let it promote love and union throughout the Brotherhood. Let us not be continually finding fault with the brethren, but rather try and build up than tear down. My prayer to God for Israel is, that they might be saved.

S. M. GOUGHNOUR.

Elkhart, Iowa.

EDITORIAL.

OUR CONFERENCE. (Continued).

COMMITTEES.

SHANESVILLE CHURCH, OHIO.
J. P. Ebersole, Samuel Mohler and D. Brower.

DONNELLS CREEK CHURCH.
J. Wise, John Metzgar, Joseph Henricks, R. H. Miller, Hiel Hamilton.

BEAVER DAM, VA.
D. P. Sayler, Jacob Price, J. F. Rohrer.

BEAVER CREEK, MD.
Moses Miller, Daniel Keller Jacob Price.

SPRING VALLEY, CEDAR CREEK, MO.
Wm. Gish, C. Holler, John Hershey, Enoch Eby.

SALEM CHURCH, OHIO.
Samuel Mohler, Isaac Miller, Samuel Garber.

N. BRANCH, WILD CAT CH'RCH, IND
H. D. Davy, Henry Wise, Joseph McCarthy.

CHIPPEWA CHURCH, OHIO.
J. Garber, J. Rittenhouse, Conrad Caylor.

ST. JOSEPH & BLOOMINGDALE CH'S, MICH. ELKHART, SOLOMON'S CR'K, ANTIOCH and SALIMONY CH'S, IND.
D. P. Sayler, J. Wise, H. D. Davy, B. F. Moomaw, J. Quinter and D. Brower.

HURRICANE CHURCH, ILL.
J. Henricks, D. Wolf, D. Neher.

SILVER CREEK CHURCH, ILL.
J. Metzgar, E. Eby, S. Lehman.

OWL CREEK CHURCH, OHIO.
Samuel Mohler, J. Quinter, D. Long, Abram Flory, D. Brower.

FALL CREEK CHURCH, OHIO.
H. D. Davy, J. Quinter, J. Fraotz.

The request for A. M. in 1873 from Elklick Church, Somerset Co. Pa., was renewed and accepted.

A request for A. M. in 1874 from Southern Ill.

After the Committees were accepted there were a number of brethren appointed as solicitors for Railroad privileges for A. M. of 1873, and the meeting adjourned. By this time supper was prepared and soon eaten, after which we saw the large tent rapidly disappearing—a little business transacted—took the parting hand with many, and off we went for the train which was due, West after 8 P. M. and East 9:10, leaving only a short time between the departure of the two trains. This brought all those leaving, East and West, together, which made quite a large company. On such occasions we sometimes witness strange scenes. Brethren and sisters, friends and relatives have now been together for a short season and sweetly passed the hours away, but again the time for separation has come, perhaps no more to recognize each other until we meet on the other shore. We feel the warm grip of the hand and hear the heaving sigh, and the audible prayer: God bless you, pray for me, while sisters embrace each other tenderly and reluctantly give the parting kiss, but through all this we see the out-croppings of other joys. All are homeward bound—the lonely wife and the little ones are drawing upon father's heart and he inwardly blesses the moment that will set his face toward that happy place on earth called home, but the stir—here it comes, the train! the TRAIN! All aboard! and we are whirled, at rapid speed, towards our homes.

It is night—weary with the labors of the meeting, we are inclined to rest, and by the music of the thundering train, we are soon lulled to sleep, but our position is awkward and our naps are short, the night wearily wears away and welcome morning comes. We have already crossed the Alleghany Mountain and are swiftly rolling down the "Horse Shoe Bend," the wonder of modern enterprise. From the time you leave the Tunnel on the top of the Mountain, until you arrive at Altoona you have one of the most agreeable and interesting rides that can possibly be afforded in the State. It is decidedly rich and grand, and none, in passing over the road, should fail to enjoy it. Again evening we reached our home and found all well.

OLD PILGRIMS GONE TO REST.

JOHN SPROOLE.

It would be our greatest pleasure to give our readers the biography of this distinguished old servant of Jesus had we the necessary information, but this we have not got. We had the pleasure of meeting him only once, but then made his personal acquaintance. It was at a Lovefeast in Mifflin Co., Pa., many years ago. He was then on his way for the West, and notwithstanding it was a number of years ago, we remember the time almost as distinctly as if it had only been a week ago. We can almost see him as he stood up and preached so earnestly and feelingly that many in the congregation was melted to tears. His subject was from the 3d chap. of Daniel. We not only remember the text, but also part of the sermon, so deeply were we impressed with the man and his subject. He seemed to be preaching all the time. Wherever you would see him, there was a crowd around him and was preaching to them, Jesus. From that time we heard but little of him until a few years ago when we learned that his labors were over, that his body failed him, the house commenced to give away, and with it, his mind began to waver, or in other words, he commenced dying at the top first. Two weeks before his decease the companion of his sorrows and joys was taken home to rest. On the 10th of May the pale Messenger came to claim the tenement of clay and the liberated spirit went home to God. Thus the standard bearers pass away, not from life to death, but from death to life—from the field of conflict to victory and the Crown of Life.

JOHN HOLSINGER.

On the 21st of May, another old soldier of Jesus was called to his reward. Brother Holsinger was one of the pioneers of the Yellow Creek Church, Bedford Co., Pa. Here he lived, here he labored and here he died.

If we were better posted in the life of our old brother, we no doubt, would have many good qualities to portray which would be worthy our attention, but suffice it to say that he lived and died in the service of the Lord. For a number of years he was the bishop of the Yellow Creek Church under whose spiritual oversight it grew to be one of the largest congregations of the State. If there was anything especially dear to him, it was the "ancient landmarks of the fathers." Any departure from the "old order was looked upon with suspicion and seldom was allowed to pass with his consent. He was a man of deep sincerity and honesty of purpose and was looked up to by the churches generally as one of sound judgment and as an earnest worker in the Church. He ruled not with rigor but in love and was an especial friend to the young and was always ready and willing to give them good advice. But he is now gone to his reward, and we mourn not as those who have no hope. For the satisfaction of his many friends and relatives, we hope some of our brethren who are acquainted with his genealogy and history will give us a general sketch of his life.

CHURCH ITEMS.

In a letter received from J. F. Oller, of Waynesboro, Franklin Co., Pa., we learn that the good cause is prospering. In speaking of the additions he says: "Our Church has been increasing—first 11, then 10 and on next Sundry 8, making 18 baptized on two Sundays and just now, May 29th, another application for membership. So the work is going on.

From Bro. John Rodgers, who attended the Aughwick Lovefeast, Germany Valley Pa., we learn that they had a very interesting and quiet meeting. The following strange ministering brethren were reported: Isaac Myers and Charles Royer of Union Co., and D. F. Good of Franklin Co. During the meeting there were two baptized. Bro. Abraham Funk ordained, and Bro. Rubert Wakefield elected to the ministry.

W. A. Moore, of Seven Stars, Pa. says: "Our Communion Meeting was held on the 25th of May. We had very pleasant weather and quite a good meeting. Bro. John Zook of Franklin county and other ministering brethren were present. The Church at Marsh Creek is still on the increase. There were 8 received since the 29th of February, among whom was the writer.

QUERIES.

An explanation is desired on the following passages of Scripture: Ezekiel 37 chap. 2, 14; also Isaiah 15 chap. 6, 16. W. A. MOORE.

HOW TO STOP A PAPER.

I have been receiving a paper for the last three months and I wish to stop it. Of late, I have returned several numbers, but still they come. How shall I stop it? D. R. N.

You can stop it by sending the amount of the subscription in full up to date, and then order it to stop and you will have no further trouble. By law, you can do it in no other way. Had you returned the first No., the publishers would have discontinued it, but if you take a paper from the office it is reasonable that you should pay for it, as publisher's papers cost both time and money.

Several of our readers have served us after this style. They lifted and read the PILGRIM for three or four months and then ordered it to be discontinued without paying for the time they received it. Such treatment is low and mean, and is nothing less than cheating us out of our honest dues, and had it been done knowingly, we would have felt grieved about it, but we attribute it to their ignorance of both the law and justice. Any paper can be stopped by paying all arrearages, unless they are taken for a specified term.

C. C. ROOT, We have examined your names on the book and find that yours is not marked for book paper but Z. Henricks is, therefore you have not been receiving the good paper but Z. H. is, or should. We have now marked yours for book. Your names are not marked paid. Did you send the money? If so, when and how? If you desire it, we have some old Nos. of book paper which we can send you.

A. L, BOWMAN, We sent the Hymn Books by express to Griers Point, Perry co., Pa., on the 10th of May. Please call at the Express Office, and you will get the books. If there is no Express Office there, inquire at the one nearest to you. If the books are not received, let us know and we will attend to it.

PREMIUMS.—At the time that some of our agents ordered books as premiums, there were a few we had not on hands. We made a list of them, but unfortunately that is now lost and the books are on hands. If those who have ordered and not received will now inform us, we will send them.

NAMES ON HYMN BOOKS.—We are frequently asked whether we put names on Hymn Books. We now answer, once for all, No. We have not now the material to do it, but just as soon as we get prepared to do such work, we will let it be known through the PILGRIM.

S. M. MUMMERT. The Minutes of D. M. are sent and you, doubtless have received them before this time. The tracts were also sent. If not received let us know and we will send them again.

WM. H. SADLER MCCLELLAN, The WEEKLY PILGRIM to the end of the year is 85 cts. Your name is booked and paper sent. We have no book for sale called the "Gospel Preacher."

HENRY KLINE.—The money order was received and the Hymnbooks sent by express. Inquire at your nearest express office, which we suppose to be Emlenton, and if they are not there, let us know immediately and we will attend to it.

MARRIED.

McFERREN—FITZ.—At the house of the brides parents by J. F. Oller, Mr. Samuel McFerren, to Miss. Kate Fitz, all of the vicinity of Waynesboro, Pa.

DIED.

ROHRER.—In Aughwick Congregation, Huntingdon Co., Pa., April 28th 1872, George, son of brother Isaac and sister Mary Rohrer, aged 19 years and 21 days. Funeral service by the brethren, from Ecclesiastes 8 : 8.

The deceased went to Mount Union on Saturday evening, with two other young men,—neighbors, and on their return home, the front spring of the buggy in which they were riding, broke, throwing the driver out and causing the horse to run off. The deceased and his companions jumped out, and in so doing George was thrown on his head causing a severe fracture of the skull, from the effects of which he died the next day about 10 o'clock A. M. The other two young men were both more or less injured.

How true, that "In the midst of life we are in death." Here was a young man of good moral character, full of life, health and physical strength, loved by his dear parents and friends, and respected by his neighbors, with every prospect of life before him, within a few hours made a subject for the cold grave, and summoned to that judgment at which we must all sooner or later appear. "Remember thy Creator in the days of thy youth, before the evil days come, and the years draw nigh in which thou shalt say, I have no pleasure in them." May God in his infinite mercy add His blessing, and sanctify this dispensation of His Providence to the good of all.

* * *

[Companion please copy.]

SIES.—In the Southern District of Indiana Nov. 29th 1871, of Lung fever, sister Elizebeth Sies, aged 40 years and 15 days. Same place, Dec. 28 1871, of Dropsy, Bro. Samuel Sies, aged 48 years, 9 months and 19 days.

NINE.—In Solomon's Creek Congregation, March 10th '72, of Lung fever, sister Martha Nine, aged 28 years, 10 months and 3 days. Funeral service by the writer, from Heb. 9 :27-28.

RUSH.—In same Congregation, our beloved old visit brother Joel Rush, of erysipelas, aged 71 years, 8 months and 18 days. The funeral of all the above was preached at once by the writer, and Bro. D. Shively, as the two first named was daughter and sonin law of Bro. Rush. Text 23 chapter of Numbers, and part of 10th verse.

JESSE CALVERT.

HARDMAN.—On the 14th of April, 1872, in the Cold Water Congregation, Iowa, Cleopatro Hardman, daughter of friend Aaron and Christina Hardman, aged 16 years, 3 mos. and 10 days.

CRAINE.—On April 19th, 1872, Geo Craine, son of friend Craine, aged 3 years and 6 mos. Funeral services by the writer, text Mat. 19: 14.

CRAINE.—Also on the 23rd of April, Lydia Craine, daughter of the above, aged 1 year and 6 mos.

RIFE.—On the 24th of April, Laura M. daughter of friend John J. and Emoline Rife, aged 9 months and 21 days. Occasion improved by the writer from James 4: 14.

The above notices were caused by spinal affections or spotted fever.

J. E. EIKENBERRY.

NICHOLSON.—On May 20th, 1872, in the Iowa River Church, Albert, son of Bro. Joseph and Sarah Nicholson, aged 3 yrs, 10 mos. and 14 days. Funeral service by Larken Hall.

Announcements.

Please announce a Communion Meeting which is to be held, the Lord willing, in the Iowa River Church, four miles south of State Center, in Marshall county, Iowa, on the 29th and 30th of June. A hearty invitation, especially to ministering brethren.

ELDER JOHN MURREY.

Please announce through the PILGRIM that we intend to hold a Lovefeast meeting, God willing, in the Cold Water Church, Iowa, on the 13th and 14th of July. The meeting will be held near Nora Springs, on the railroad of Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Minnesota. An invitation given to all and especially to ministering brethren.

J. F. EIKENBERRY.

Urbana Ill., at the house of bro. George Dillings, June 22, 23. Brethren coming from the North or South, on the Ill. Central railroad, will stop off either at Thomasboro, or Champaign City. Those coming from East or West, on the Indianapolis and Bloomington railroad, will stop off at Mayview.

Waterloo Congregation, Black Hawk Co., Iowa, June 15, 16, commencing at 1 o'clock p. m.

Union District, Marshall Co., Ind., June 14th commencing at 10 o'clock a. m. 3½ miles southwest of Plymouth. Those coming on the Mail Train will stop off at the Summit, three miles west of Plymouth.

Fawn River Congregation, Lagrange Co. Ind., June 15, 16, commencing at 10 o'clock a. m. Six miles east of Lima at the house of bro. Eli Horner.

Money List, &c., crowded out.

THEORY VERSUS PRACTICE.

In a certain College in which the Rev. Dr.——, a Presbyterian minister, was the Professor of Greek, there was a quizzical genius of a student, whose name we will call Newlet. Now it so happened that the reverend Doctor became seriously exercised in his mind by the thought that most of the people in the community entirely misunderstood the meaning and the use of that much-persecuted Greek word, baptizo, and he accordingly undertook to enlighten the natives by preaching a series of sermons on baptism. Newlet attended regularly on the ministrations of his learned Professor, and in the course of two or three Sundays was pretty well dosed with the statement that baptizo really meant to sprinkle or to pour, and not to plunge. But in the course of the regular lessons in the class-room of the College, Newlet was one day called upon to translate a passage from one of the Greek authors. The passage gave an account of a man who became so enraged at another, that he seized a red-hot poker and dbaptize eis opathalmon. Newlet, with a mischievous twinkle of the eye, but with a grave manner, translated it thus: "He seized a red-hot poker and sprinkled it into his eye." "How is that?" said the reverend Professor. "He sprinkled it into his eyes," repeated Newlet. 'But,' said the Doctor, "that word does not mean sprinkle." "Well, sir, it did mean sprinkle on last Sunday night," replied the mischievous fellow, amid suppressed laughter from the class, who keenly relished the joke. The Professor looked grave, was silent a moment, and then replied, "You may translate it plunge here, sir."

We are inclined to think that this is quite a good practical refutation of the learned work of Mr. Dale on "Classic Baptism."—Christian Index.

CROP PROSPECTS.

One-fifth of the wheat in Trempeleau, Wisconsin, is reported killed.

Winter wheat throughout Fon du Lac county, Wisconsin, never looked better.

The army worm has commenced its ravages in the pastures of southern Illinois.

The wheat prospects around Coldwater, Michigan, are that not more than a half crop will be realized.

Wheat in Wayne township, Marion county, Indiana, averages fourteen inches high, and promises a fine crop.

The farmers of Rock county, Wisconsin, have finished sowing, and their planting is well advanced.

The wheat crop promises remarkably well in Upper Georgia, a much larger breadth than usual having been sown.

The strawberries in the vicinity of Anna, Illinois, are looking finely, and other fruits in that region give promise of an abundant yield.

Wheat in the Grand Traverse, Michican, region, is reported in good condition. In Shiawassee county the wheat prospects are very poor.

The Bunker Hill (Mich.) Gazette says the late rains and warm weather have made a wonderful improvement in the appearance of the winter wheat.

The Carlinville (Ill.) Democrat says: "We do not remember to have seen in the past fifteen years a better prospect for peaches, cherries, pears, and all kinds of small fruits."

Wheat is looking very badly in the vicinity of Homer, Mich., though the recent rains have improved their prospects somewhat. At Plymouth, the crop prospects are not good, great damage having resulted from the protracted drought.

The Pottsville Standard says: The crops in this section are suffering from the continued drought. Unless rain is vouchsafed pretty soon, short crops will be the order, pretty generally throughout the State.

The wheat crop in Chester county appears likely to be a failure. The winter badly injured it, and then a great deal of what got through the cold weather was killed off by the recent hot, dry weather.

The Parkersburg, (W. Va.) Times says that the peach trees in that neighborhood were severely injured by the hard winter.

Advertisements.

GOOD BOOKS.

A large number of our patrons are receiving our books as noticed below, as premiums, and express themselves highly pleased with them. Others who are not agents, have enquired whether we keep them for sale. We have now made arrangements with Mr. Wells to furnish any of their publications post paid at publishers prices. Orders for books must be accompanied with the cash, and plain directions for sending them.

Conversion of St. Paul. By George Jarvis Geer, D. D. 12mo. fine edition, $1. Plain edition, 75 cents.

Footprints of Life; or, Faith and Nature Reconciled.—A Poem in three parts. The Body. The Soul. The Deity. By Philip Harvey, M. D. $1.25.

Fruit Culture for the Million. A Handbook. being a Guide to the Cultivation and Management of Fruit Trees. Descriptions of the Best Varieties, and How to Propagate them. illustrated $1.00.

Hand-book for Home Improvement: comprising "How to Write," "How to Talk," How to Behave," and "How to do Business," in one vol. 2.25.

How to Live; Saving and Wasting, or Domestic Economy. By Solon Robinson. $1.50.

Hopes and Helps for the Young of both sexes, Relating to the Formation of Character. Choice of Avocation, Health, Conversation, Cultivation of Intellect, Moral Sentiments, Social Affection Courtship and Marriage. By Rev. G. S. Weaver. Muslin, $1.50.

Life at Home; or, The Family and its Members. Husbands, Wives, Parents, Children, Brothers, Sisters, Employers and Employed, etc. By Rev. William Aikman, D. D. A work which should be found in every family. $1.50. Extra gilt, $2.00.

Man and Woman: Considered in their Relations to each Other and to the World. By Henry C. Pedder. 12mo, Fancy cloth. Price $1.00.

Man, in Genesis and in Geology; or, the Biblical Account of Man's Creation, tested by Scientific Theories of his Origin and Antiquity. By Joseph P. Thompson, D. D., LL.D. One vol. 12mo, $1.00.

Oratory—Sacred and Secular; or, the Extemporaneous Speaker. Including Chairman's Guide for conducting Public Meetings according to the best Parliamentary forms. By Wm. Pittenger. $1.50.

The Emphatic, Diaglott; or The New Testament in Greek and English. Containing the Original Greek Text of the New Testament, with an Interlineary Word for-word English Translation. A Work for Students in Theology, and S. S. Teachers. By Benjamin Wilson. Price, $4,00; extra fine binding. $5.00.

The Right Word in the Right Place. A New Pocket Dictionary and Reference Book. Embracing Synonyms, Technical Terms, Abbreviations, Foreign Phrases, Writing for the Press, Punctuation, Proof-Reading, and other Valuable Information. Cloth, 75cts.

Weaver's Works for the Young. Comprising "Hopes and Helps for the Young of both Sexes," "Aids and Aims for Girls and Young Women," "Ways of Life; or, the Right Way and the Wrong Way," $3

Menno Simon's
COMPLETE WORKS.

In English, translated from the original Dutch or Holland, giving the whole of the great Reformers writings on the subject of Baptism. Price in full sheep $4.50; by mail $5.14.

Address, JOHN F. FUNK & BRO.,
May 21–3m. Elkhart, Ind.

AGENTS WANTED FOR
"JESUS."
BY CHARLES F. DEEMS, D. D.
His divinity established and rationalism rooted. The most popular and rapidly selling religious work ever issued. For Circulars, address U. S. PUBLISHING CO., N. Y.

New Hymn Books, English.

TURKEY MOROCCO

One copy,	post-paid,	$1 00
Per Dozen,		11 25

PLAIN ARABSQUE.

One Copy,	post-paid,	75
Per Dozen,		8 50

PLAIN SHEEP.

One Copy,	post-paid,	75
Per Dozen,		8 50

Ger'n & English, Plain Sheep.

One Copy	post-paid	$ 1 00
Per Dozen		11 25
Arabesque plain,		1.00
Turkey morocco,		$ 1.25.
Single German	post-paid,	50
Per Dozen,		5 50

1870 1872

DR. FAHRNEY'S:
Blood Cleanser or Panacea.

A tonic and purge, for Blood Diseases. Great reputation. Many testimonials. Many ministering brethren use and recommend it. Ask or send for the "Health Messenger." Use only the "Panacea" prepared at Chicago, Ills., and by

Dr. P. Fahrney's Brothers & Co.,

Mar. 29-pd. Waynesboro, Franklin Co., Pa.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

A number of responsible advertisements not conflicting with the design of our work will be admitted on our outside pages on the following terms:

Single insertion, per line,	10 cts.
Three months, per line, each time,	8 cts.
Six months, do do do,	6 cts.
One Year, do do do,	5 cts.

☞ Transient advertisements must be paid for in advance; standing advertisements quarterly on presentation of bill.

TRACTS.

"ANXIOUS BENCH RELIGION EXAMINIED," by Elder J. S. Flory, is a Tract now ready for distribution, of which the following is a brief synopsis of the contents: A short and pointed address to the reader. The motive that prompted him to write, and his responsibilities as a minister; The peculiarities attending this type of religion; The feelings there experienced, not imaginary but real, The key that unlocks the wonderful mystery; It is not the workings of God after the order and plan of salvation; Man's endowment, his imitative principle—emanated from God; Spiritual influences and intercourse; Relation existing between man and God, and man and man; The fraternal bond and our natural affinities established by the "so called" sciences of Electro Biology; Mesmerism and Psychology or science of the soul, also, "Spiritualism" "Spiritual Rappings," &c. The causes by which the feelings are excited; Sympathy of the nervous system, and how that momentary feeling of joy is brought about, called, "Experimental Religion; Similar feelings may be brought about when there are no religious pretensions; Our reasons why we think this modus operandi of getting religion is not according to the Gospel, and then concludes by pointing out that form of doctrine as taught by Jesus Christ, and recorded by His faithful witness.

These tracts will be sent to all post paid, on the following terms: Single copy 10cts, 10 copies 70 cents, 20 copies $1.20, 50 copies $2.50, 100 copies $4.00.

Trine Immersion.

A discussion on Trine Immersion, by letter between Elder B. F. Moomaw and Dr J. J. Jackson, to which is annexed a Treatise on the Lord's Supper, and on the necessity, character and evidences of the new birth, also a dialogue on the doctrine of non-resistance, by Elder B. F. Moomaw. Single copy 50 cents.

HUNTINGDON & BROAD TOP RAIL ROAD

Winter Arrangement.

On and after Saturday, November 25th, 1871 Passenger Trains will arrive and depart as follows:

Up Trains. Ex.	Mail	Staions.	Down Train. Ex.	Mail
P. M.	A. M.		A. M.	P. M.
Le 5 40	8 10	Huntingdon	9 00	Ar 4 38
5 47	8 20	Long Siding	8 49	4 29
6 00	8 34	McConellstown	8 34	4 13
6 07	8 41	Pleasant Grove	8 27	4 06
6 20	8 53	Marklesburg	8 14	3 51
6 33	9 06	Coffee Run	8 02	3 36
6 40	9 14	Rough&Ready	7 53	3 28
6 54	9 28	Cove	7 38	3 13
7 00	9 33	Fishers Sum'lt	7 33	3 08
Ar 7 15	9 48	Saxton	7 18	Le 2 52
Le 7 30	10 00		7 00
7 47	10 18	Riddlesburg	6 43	2 34
7 54	10 26	Hopewell	6 37	2 26
8 12	10 46	Pipers Run	6 20	2 08
8 32	11 06	Tatesville	6 00	1 48
8 47	11 20	Bloody Run	5 48	1 34
8 52	11 25	Mount Dallas	5 44	1 30
8 59	11 32	Ashcom's Mills	5 37	1 22
9 04	11 36	Lutzville	5 33	1 18
9 09	11 40	Hartley's Mills	5 29	1 14
9 16	11 47	Jamesons	5 22	1 07
Ar 9 23	11 54	Bedford	5 15	1 00

JOHN M'KILLIPS, Supt

THE PILGRIM,

Published by J. B. Brumbaugh, & Co.
Edited by H. B. & Geo. Brumbaugh.

CORRESPONDING EDITORS.

D. P. Sayler, Double Pipe Creek, Md.
Leonard Furry, New Enterprise, Pa.

The Pilgrim is a Christian Periodical, devoted to religion and moral reform. It will advocate in the spirit of love and liberty, the principles of true Christianity, labor for the promotion of peace among the people of God, for the encouragement of the saints and for the conversion of sinners, avoiding those things which tend toward disunion or sectional feelings.

TERMS.

Single copy, one year,	$1.25.
Book paper, " "	1.50.
Eleven copies, [eleventh for Agt.]	$12.50.

Any number above that at the same rate,

Address.

H. B. BRUMBAUGH.
James Creek,
Huntingdon county Pa.

Narrow Pilgrim.

"REMOVE NOT THE ANCIENT LANDMARKS WHICH OUR FATHERS HAVE SET."

VOL. 3 JAMES CREEK, PENNSYLVANIA, JUNE 18, 1872. NO. 25

POETICAL.

HE IS COMING.

He is coming—long expected—
He, the Lord of earth and Heaven;
He who once by man rejected
From His rightful throne was driven.

He is coming! not the stranger
Once before to earth He came;
Not the child of Bethlehem's manger,
Not the Nazarene by name.

Not the humble man and lowly,
Doomed to tread life's thorney road;
Destitute of home, save only
That which charity bestowed.

Son of God and man united—
He is coming back to reign;
Where before His name was slighted—
Where He once was mocked and slain.

Where for ages, since His dying,
Sin has held an iron sway;
Where the scoffer still is crying—
"When shall dawn the promised day?"

He is coming to deliver
Earth from sin and death and pain—
To restore, and that forever,
Paradise to man again.

He is coming! Soon before Him
Tyrants grim shall prostrate fall;
Haughty princes shall adore Him—
Monarchs own Him Lord of all.

He is coming! All creation
Soon shall own His peaceful sway—
Every tribe and tongue and nation
At His shrine shall homage pay.

He is coming! Lift your voices,
All ye suffering tribes of men!
See! the wilderness rejoices—
Hark! the woods take up the strain!

Ye who love your Lord's appearing,
Soon shall see Him eye to eye;
With this hope your spirits cheering,
Sing, "Redemption draweth nigh."

—The Christian.

ESSAYS.

For the Pilgrim.

THE EXTERNAL ORDINANCES.

BY EMANUEL UMBAUGH.

While the sacred pages of the Holy Scriptures are filled with such profound sublimity that our minds are sometimes, almost entirely lost in contemplation, when trying to unravel their spiritual meaning, we cannot but feel assured that an external application, by observing all their holy injunctions in connection with a charitable life and a life of morality, will meet the approbation of our Heavenly Father. The truth of this statement is verified by the fact that the Scriptures attached to them a hidden or spiritual meaning. Learned men, everywhere, are becoming conspicuous to the world, and are having their names registered high upon the scroll of honor and of fame, by commenting upon the Sacred Word, and having their commentaries placed in the various book-stores for general circulation. Thus they give to the world their own peculiar opinions, relative to the spiritual meaning of those mysteries upon which men so frequently differ. No two of these learned men agree in every particular, which is all the evidence necessary to convince the thinking mind that men's peculiar notions relative to any part of Divine Revelation, are entirely worthless as foundations upon which to build their hopes of Heaven; yet when we take a retrospective view through the surviving fragments of ancient history, down to that early period in which the Church, as established by Christ and His holy apostles was the only Christian organization in the world, we find that these were the very plagues upon which men even in that age began to build their faith. The first sect, perhaps that seceded from the Church of Christ was that of the Gnostics.

There were among the early Christians in the first century, a class of heretics, who on account of their peculiar notions were known by this appellation. They claimed that by virtue of their own peculiarities, they, alone, were in possession of the true knowledge of the Scriptures; hence they looked upon all the rest as simple and ignorant persons, who interpreted the Divine Word in a low and literal meaning. Here is a circumstance from which we may get a little consolation. These would-be wise men were no longer willing to attach to the Scriptures their literal meaning, but were willing to receive them only, with their own newly invented spiritual signification attached thereto. They were great philosophers, and could no longer condescend to the literal meaning of the Word of God, and thus, perhaps, soil their delicate hands in stooping to wash their brethren's feet; but they were not yet afraid to wet their clothes by going down into the water when administering baptism. We have, however, in the history of this "new order" of the first century, an abundance of evidence in favor of the practice of the external ordinances of the New Testament, for as these heretics denounced the church on account of her accepting the literal meaning of the Scriptures, it is evident that the church of the first century did thus accept them. In the third century lived another of these great philosophers, who became the founder of another new sect, asserting that the source of many evils lies in adhering to the literal and external part of the Scriptures, and that their true meaning was to be sought in a mysterious and hidden sense. The name of this ancient heretic was Origen. Are there not many living in the present age of the world who cling to the same heresies? I will let the reader decide whether there are or not.

In addition to those mentioned this Origen was an advocate of other heresies which, perhaps, distinguished him and his followers from the Gnostics. One of these heresies was that he believed that the soul of man is coeternal with God—that it had an existence with Him throughout all past ages, and that for some fault is condemned to a mortal body in order to make satisfaction for said fault. The followers of this learned man were called Origenists. To these two sects of heretics must be attributed the rise of the doctrine of disregarding the outward ordinances of the "House of the Lord" by treating the literal meaning of the Scriptures with scorn and contempt, and accepting them in a spiritual sense only. Seeing, then, that "faith alone" system is borrowed from the ancient heretics, how many are still willing to follow them instead of Christ, just because father and mother did so? If father and mother did so for want of better light let us not condemn them, but let us, ourselves, accept the word of God as it is, as did the Church of Christ, from which all ancient heretics fell, and were no longer suffered to hold sweet communion and holy fellowship, but were compelled to stand aside until, like their brethren of the present age of the world, they would, perhaps, try to stigmatize the Church by accusing them of the error of holding close communion, when anything to the contrary would of itself be a heresy. There is a class of individuals who, although they preach in favor of some of the ordinances established by Christ the great head of the Church, yet by practice they positively deny them. They have yet to learn that actions speak louder than words. They claim, however, that they do not observe these institutions, because the majority of the members of their body have yet to learn that it is really their duty to do so thus virtually admitting that they are a body of unconverted Christians as far as practice is concerned. I wonder how long these preachers intend to continue in their unsafe condition just because the majority of their brethren are not only unconverted, but not as much as convicted? Perhaps they will continue preaching in favor of Feet-washing as an institution of Christ, until they die, without affecting their brethren, and then they will, perhaps, lose all the benefit that may be derived therefrom. Would Paul have received any of the benefit of the Christian religion, if he had continued with the Jews, after being convicted, hoping that the time would come in which they would join him in observing the duties incumbent upon those who profess the Christian religion? We hope that the time will soon come when those who preach and do not practice because their brethren are unconvicted, will follow the example of the holy apostle, and come out from among them, and walk with those with whom they can practically enjoy the religion of Jesus Christ.

Meekness cannot well be counterfeited. It is not unmanliness—it is not servility—it does not cringe—it does not whine. It is benevolence imitating the God-man in patience, forbearance and quietness. It has no connection with insensibility. It feels keenly, but not malignantly. It abounds in good-will. It bears all things.

EXTRACT FROM THE BLOODY THEATRE.

Continued.

The endowments which God has conferred upon me, were at first amusements and recreations to me; but now they yield me holy fruits. It is true, I have labored and toiled, and have watched day and night as far as it was in our power. But all this labor only served to make me more perfect; I have never suffered a day to pass without some improvement. Behold, the countenance of God has been manifested toward me; and the Lord has granted that I enjoy great joy in my heart. In Him alone I have perfect peace.

Who will dare to say, that I have lost my age and years? For my soul said: The Lord is my portion; therefore, will I seek Him. Therefore, since dying in the Lord is not to die, but to obtain everlasting life, why does he prevent me from dying, who opposes God. All this will perfect my greatest joy; if I may but drink the cup of the Lord. What surer pledge of salvation could I possibly find? Did he not say that men will do to you as they do to me? Therefore, let this foolish man hold his peace, who has long erred in the light of the meridian sun. Let the blind world no longer imagine such things. For I will say with the apostle: Nothing can separate us from the love of Christ, neither tribulation, nor fear, nor hunger, nor nakedness, nor care, nor persecution, nor sword. We are killed all the day long. We are led as sheep to the slaughter; but thus we are partakers with Christ, who said: That the disciple is not greater than his master, nor the servant greater than his Lord. He also said, that every one should take his cross upon him, and follow him. 1. Peter, 1; 8. Lam. ii. 24. John xv. 20 Rom. viii. 89. Ps. xliv. 23. Matt. x. 34.

Comfort yourselves, Oh! most beloved fellow-servants, comfort yourselves; for we are tempted on all hands. Let our patience be perfect on every occasion, because it is said that such things should befal us upon earth.

For it is written, that those who will kill us, think that they are doing God service. Therefore, both death and fear are only parts which make known to us our calling; we rejoice and shout in the Lord in prospect of a future life, which we shall enjoy after we have been innocently beaten and put to death. For it is better to suffer for righteousness' sake, if it is the will of the Lord, than to suffer as evil doers. We have an example of this in Christ and the prophets, who spake in the name of the Lord, and were put to death by the children of unrighteousness. Behold! what shall we do? Blessed are they who prove themselves steadfast; we rejoice in our innocence, and in the righteousness which God has granted us.

God will punish those who persecute us. I have been charged with being a fool, because I do not conceal the knowledge of God, and am not circumspect in regard to what I say publicly or privately, which I might answer with but a single word. Oh, poor man! what are you, who do not see the sun, and think upon the word of God.

Beloved, think on the sayings of Christ: Ye are the light of the world. A city on a hill cannot be hid. You do not light a candle and put it under a bushel, but upon a candlestick, so that it may give light to all in the house. And in another place He says: And ye shall be brought before governors and kings for my sake. Therefore, fear not them which kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul. And he that confesseth me before men, him will I confess before my heavenly Father.

Since then the Lord has spoken so plainly on this subject: by what authority do they oppose and advise me? For I shall never forsake the counsel of God, and follow the advice of men; since it is written: Blessed is the man, that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful. Matt. v. 14; xvi. 17 x. 18.

I shall never deny Christ; but I will confess Him as often as it is necessary. I will not regard my life more than my soul. I will not barter the future for the present. How little does he know, who thinks that we are in the way of folly? John xii. 13

I do not think it improper, though I may not please the so called mighty righteous, wise, merciful, gracious, and enlightened councils of this place, whose favors are promised me if I recant.

But because we are instructed by the apostles of the Lord, that we are rather to obey God than man; therefore, I will not accept of their favors. I wish that they might be perfect in the presence of the Lord. They are here indeed high minded; but they should also become perfect in the Lord. They are righteous, but still they are in want of Christ, who is the foundation of righteousness. They are wise indeed, but where the beginning of wisdom is, there is also the fear of God. They are called merciful, but I wish that they might be more controlled by Christian love. They are gracious; but I wish them the foundation of goodness, the best and Most High God. They are called the enlightened, but they have not received our Savior, the most enlightened. Prov. ii. 15. Rom. xiii. 14. Matt. 1. 21.

Pay attention, Oh! kings, and judges of the earth; suffer yourselves to be instructed; serve the Lord in fear, and approach him with trembling. Receive instruction, lest the Lord get angry, and you all depart from the true way. Why do you cause an uproar, O, ye people! and ye nations! Why do you imagine vain things against the Lord? Why have you, ye kings of the earth, stood up, and ye rulers gathered yourselves together against the Lord, and against his Christ? How long will you seek lies, and hate the truth? Be converted, and turn unto the Lord our God, and harden not your hearts. For you must admit, that he who persecutes God's people, persecutes God. For he has declared: Whatsoever men have done unto you, they have not done it to you, but to me. Zach. ii. 9.

But, tell me, in what manner have I deserved to be put to death? If I have not answered the enlightened members of the council according to their pleasure; for if I have said anything, it was not I that said it, because the Lord says: That it is not we who speak before governors, but the Spirit of our Father that will be in us. If the Lord is then true and faithful, which He is, I am not blamable. It was He, who caused me to speak. And what was I, that I should resist the will of God? Therefore, he that would reprove such a reply, reproves the Word of the Lord, which he uttered through me; but if he is of opinion, that the Lord is not to be reproved, then let him not accuse me any more, because I am not to be blamed in this matter; for I have done that which I would not; I spoke what I had not premeditated. But if the words which I have spoken, are not fairly and sincerely spoken, if they be examined, and this be proved to me, then I will confess, that they have proceeded from me alone, and not from God; but if I have said anything, and if it is found to be good on examination, and if it cannot with propriety be reproved; whether we are willing or not, we have then to confess, that it proceeded from the Lord. Now, if all this proves to be so, who will then accuse me? The most wise people? Who will condemn me? The most righteous judges? Those who are indeed unwise and unjust?

Shall they do as they please; and shall the Word of the Lord be made void? Shall the Gospel be wholly despised? By no means. For the Kingdom of God will be the more acceptable to the true Israelite, so that the chosen of Jesus Christ will obtain it the sooner. But those who do these things, shall experience the great judgment of God. They who slay the righteous, shall not go unpunished.

Beloved, open your eyes, and receive the counsel of God. Not long ago the Lord showed you a sign of pestilence, that you should reform; but if you will not receive this, he will then send the sword, and smite the people that oppose Christ with the sword, pestilence and hunger. May God avert this judgment from this place. To all the believers, their zealous servant, the prisoner in bonds, Algerius. Gal. vi. 18. Thess. I: 6. Ps. vii. 2. Acts xii. 3; xxv. 33.

Written in the pleasure garden of the prison, called Leonia, 12th July, 1557.

"ONLY BELIEVE."

"He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned." Matt. 16: 16.

The subject of faith or the necessity of believing is admitted and preached by all, but I fear the true sense or meaning is not always comprehended, and as without faith it is impossible to please God, we must be sure we have faith. Very many persons believe there is a Supreme Being, who sent his son into the world to redeem the world, and not very many in our Christian land will say that our gospel is not the gospel of Christ. But a faith that does not work by love, and that love prompt to obey, is not a faith that will please God. We very often hear the remark "only believe," Believe what? Why believe in Jesus! Oh! yes, truly believe in Jesus, but how are we to believe in Jesus except by believing his word, the Gospel? And does a man believe the gospel unless he has a full determination to obey it? I fear he doubts. The Savior says: "Therefore whosoever heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them, I will liken him unto a wise man, which built his house upon a rock, &c. I suppose the hearing the Savior alluded to, would apply to those who were anxious to hear the Savior speak, and would gather around him in large crowds, and would now apply to those who delight in going to Church and Sunday School, and say they are learning of Jesus, and are hearing his sayings. But are they doing them? If not, the Savior would liken them to a foolish man, which built his house upon the sand.

The manner in which we spend our lives is of great importance. Again the Savior says, "Not every one that saith unto me Lord, Lord, shall enter into the Kingdom of Heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in Heaven." Matt. 7: 21. No, not every one that prays, or say they hear his sayings, or they believe, but he that doeth the will of our Father which is in Heaven. How do we know the will of the Father? He has revealed it to us through His Son Jesus Christ, who said he came not to do his own will but to do the will of him who sent him. Now if we have faith that will please God, we must obey him. Truly "faith cometh by hearing. The word hearing may imply a desire to know, or a hungering and thirsting after righteousness. If we read the Gospel of Christ, for it is the power of God unto salvation to all that believe it, with a desire to obey, we will have a greater desire to hear. If we now yield to the drawings of the Father, there will be a living faith manifested. "For as the body without the spirit is dead, so faith without works is dead also," James 2: 26. The more faith the more willingness there is to obey. One that is not willing to obey the Lord has not got faith. And as it all must come by the word of God, let us read it and hear it preached, and let us not be forgetful hearers but doers of the word. And as living faith includes obedience, there may be an outward form of obedience, or will-worship, without faith which will not please God "For without faith it is impossible to please God, and that which is not of faith is sin." To have faith in God's word is to believe, and if we obey, God's promises will follow. "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." We must believe it; "but he that believeth not (though he may be baptized) shall be damned." "Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost, &c." We must believe this, if we would be benefitted; we must believe that if we obey the Lord, we will receive that which he has promised to give. Unless we do this we have not got faith, and so with regard to all he has commanded. He says, "teach them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you and lo I am with you alway even unto the end of the world." We must believe this, for the Lord has commanded it. He says, "Repent ye therefore and believe the gospel."

I would say to those of us who claim to exercise that living faith in Jesus and his saving Gospel, let us be faithful. Believe his word and and obey it, for "Blessed are they that do His commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city." What glorious promises in the future only on conditions, if we do His commandments. "He that endureth unto the end the same shall be saved." May the Lord give us grace to be faithful is the prayer of your unworthy writer.

H. BEELMAN.

Siddonsburg, Pa.

RAGE AND HATRED.

There is a great difference between rage and hatred; and we think that we may say that there are few men capable of hating. What the majority of persons feel when injured, is rage, not hatred. Their auger ceases when their enemy falls into a great misfortune or loses his life. All those desires of vengeance which they previously felt then vanish, and, as it were, die with him. Nay, they sometimes regret his disgrace, and are touched with sentiments of pity and compassion for his misfortune. On the contrary, hatred is never softened by an accident which may happen to an enemy; it derides his calamity; it receives joy from his death; and tho' it ought to terminate with his death, it lasts to the grave, and persecutes his memory and his prosterity.

It thus appears that a man who feels rage only wishes evil and acts revengefully against the person who has done him an injury, while the latter has the power of continuing his misdeeds, but abandons this design as soon as his enemy is no longer in a condition to annoy him; and as great misfortunes, and, principally, death, deprive him of that power and that will, rage loses all its desires of vengeance, and is even inspired with sentiments of pity and commiseration for the calamities with which he is overwhelmed. But hatred does not stop only in repulsing an injury and in chastizing him who has done it; it wishes absolutely the enemy's complete loss of wealth, life, and honor, and though it does not always contribute to such ruin, it is always very glad when it comes. Hatred, again, stretches its malignity beyond its just enemy. It extends its vengeance to the injurer's parents, relatives and friends, as if they were a part of him. It has the same feelings against him. It tries to destroy them, and, if they are dead, it pursues them with its instruments of malice!

Aim and Purpose.

It is not to contemplate an aimless and purposeless existence,—golden youth gliding by, hastening by, wasting precious opportunities, no aim, no object in view; just like a ship under full sail and well manned, but no rudder, only drifting, no harbor in view, going with the tide, or perhaps with rudder in good working order, but no port in view, only sailing you know not where. Have an aim in life, and a noble one. Aim high, and you will hit something above your level. Are you a student? Be not satisfied to get through your studies or recitations without censure from your teacher, but study hard to acquit yourself with honor; be not content to creep along on the level, but walk; yea, run even, up the rugged hill where honor sitteth at the peak. Are you a mechanic? If so, learn your trade well, not contenting yourself with being an average workman, but strive to become master of your art, always bearing in mind the old adage, "What is worth doing at all, is worth doing well." Strive to be a leader, not a follower. First have an object, aim high, and then zealously labor to accomplish your object; success is sure to follow earnest, unceasing toil. The contestants in the Isthmian races had an object in view, and every sinew and nerve was bent to obtain the object. It was the crown at the end of the race. Life is a race, and many are on the course. You must either run or be trodden under foot; the multitude is moving on; you must not look behind, or defeat is certain. Lead off in the train, and you will gain the crown at the end. Those who dally will never reach the object, but will fail at last. Reader, have a noble object in view, and then with all your might press forward until you reach it, and it is yours.

The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom.

YOUTHS' DEPARTMENT.

WHAT THE BOYS DID.

There was not a mean-looking boy in the crowd. I had watched them so often on their way to school, neat and fresh and gentlemanly in appearance; or coming home again a little flushed and rumpled, but merry and full of life, that I knew every face among them. Now they were gathered about the corner, and their pleasant voices drew me to the window. What do you suppose I saw? Why, every boy held one hand behind him in which he had a stone or a stick, and the whole party were doing their utmost to coax a poor silly little puppy to run out from the shelter of his own premises that they might have a shot at him. "Come Johnny! come Johnny! nice fellow! poor fellow!" in all sorts of soft, insinuating tones; but the puppy had doubtless learned wisdom by sad experience, and only poked his black nose through the fence, peered at them with his wicked little eyes, and wagged his tail in in a friendly way.

Then the boys tried another manœuvre. Two of them marched boldly up to the gate, and the puppy, in his zeal to defend the premises, barked valiantly. The boys ran in feigned terror, and the puppy followed, fairly bursting with what in men we call heroism, patriotism, or some other ism Pell mell came the sticks and stones; and not a boy missed his chance for a shot, and the poor deluded puppy rushed back to his intrenchments yelping in dismay, while a chorus of shouts and laughter fairly made the air ring. I looked at those boys, as they went on their way, in wonder. How happy they looked; how merry they were over their successful manœuvre. I don't believe one of them had the slightest suspicion that he had done anything mean or cruel. It was just a good joke, and hurt nobody, unless it might have been the puppy, and he only got one or two knocks; puppies don't mind rough handling. It is a pity to spoil a good joke; but oh! you dear, brave, noble boys, that make your mothers glad and proud every day of your lives, it is a greater pity to spoil with a little taint of cruelty anything so good as the manhood into which you are capable of growing, and that is why I looked sadly after you that day, and had no heart to read you a lecture. I meant to give it to you, though, and here it is, where I know some of you will see it. Nobody need call me a croaker, and say boys will be boys, and it's boy-nature to delight in teasing. Perhaps it is. I've read that every man's nature is part angel and part demon, and sometimes one part outgrows the other. Which part will you have, boys? Now is the time to decide. If you don't want the ugly, cruel demon to grow until he gets the mastery of everything good in your natures, you must be careful not to feed him. Keep him down; chain him; beat him back whenever he shows his head or his cloven foot. God made you to be glad, and He made the world for you to be glad in, and you may be sure there is plenty of good, genuine fun to be had without inflicting the smallest amount of suffering upon any of the weak, innocent creatures which share the world with you. Thousands of men and women are using their influence all over this country in the prevention of cruelty towards animals, but after all there is very little hope except in raising up a new generation, whose feelings have not been seared as with a hot iron, and who will shrink from cruelty as from any other sin and shame. Boys! I speak for places in that new generation for each one of you.—Little Corporal.

For the Pilgrim.

KINDNESS.

My dear young readers of the PILGRIM, there is, perhaps, no principle of the human nature that will secure us more real happiness than kindness, and at the same time a principle more easily overcome by evil persons. How natural it is for us to be kind when all is peace with us, and yet how unnatural when otherwise. No one will deny that kindness is an indispensible element of religion, or that it is not one of the chief attributes of Christianity. Nothing so easily purchased is more valuable, nor nothing so easily practiced more remunerative. In kindness there is invisible power, and a power which will restrain us in all the various vicissitudes of this mortal life. A man or woman with a kind disposition will find friends everywhere, and are in possession of a power that can in no other way be obtained. It is kindness that elevates, purifies and exalts us beyond that of selfishness and indifference to all around us. It is kindness that softens the heart of the most inveterate enemy, and renews attachments that have been buried for years. It is the first impulse of our recollection, either as to whether they have been kind to us, or we to them. Daughter, have you not stood by the couch of your dying mother, with a throbbing heart seriously reflecting over her many acts of kindness and fond forgiveness for past offenses? your conscience knocking dolefully at the door of your heart begging for admittance to remind you of a want of obedience and due reverence of her tender love? Son, have you not looked for the last time upon the paternal countenance of your departed father, and remembered that all his admonitions and teachings were by kindness, yet you were heedless.

Husband, have you not visited the grave of that dear, departed wife, and after weeping long and bitterly over the mouldering dust of her whom you loved, remembered that she was kind and faithful in affection, that in all her sayings and in all her doings she was governed by kindness? Yes, kindness is an immortal principle of our nature, and should be cultivated by every christian professor. It is to our souls as rain is to the drooping flower. Without it we cannot live as we should live, but are cold and unyielding in our natures and as incapacitated to love as to be loved. We very frequently find persons who are very kind to their neighbors and those with whom they associate when from home, but who seem to have closed the portals of their heart, when at home, with their families. How desperate must be the lot of those who have fallen victim to such a nature, yet how many do we find even among the professing classes to be truly Christ-like? We must give unbounded space to kindness, and as it is one of the christian graces, and essential element of the christian character, let us cultivate it, as precious seed for the food of an affectionate heart. Kindness is that which will live forever in the memories of our friends, who will cherish the kindest recollections when we are no more. It is the laurel that never fades, and the tribut that never dies. It is that which decks our brow with loveliness and imprints our cheek with beauty. To be kind is to be good.

SARAH HESS.

Fairview, Md.

CORRESPONDENCE.

ORCHARD VIEW, }
FAYETTE Co, W. Va. }

Dear Brethren: By request of friends I will give a few jottings relative to my return from A. M. I was one among many that had to get off at Wooster owing to the too great a crowd on board the cars Thursday evening, the 23d. Next morning we tried it again with better success and arrived at Dayton about 3 P. M. Had intended going direct to Cincinnati, but by the earnest entreaties of brethren we were prevailed upon to tarry and attend the Lovefeast next day in brother Bowman's congregation, where we met with a large crowd of loving members of the household of faith, relatives and friends. Had an excellent feast of love together until Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. When the night services closed we were taken by brother J. Garber (minister) to his home, and at 10 o'clock to the new and commodious meeting house in the district where brother Garber lives, where we tried to preach to the people. After services we were called, with other brethren and sisters, to visit a family where there was a dear little girl much afflicted and seemingly near the time when it shall be an angel in heaven, and be with five other little ones that have gone before from the same family, and yet the father out of the shepherd's fold! We hope the gathering of those lambs to the arms of Jesus, and the love of God, will induce him to "enter in and be saved" and meet them all in heaven. Had a season of worship with those who were present, then bade a sad farewell, and was taken by brother Garber to Dayton. Tarried with Bro. I. Brower. Early next morning, in company with Bro. Abraham Moseby, of Tennessee, took the train for Cincinnati. Arrived there at 7 A. M. In the crowd and bustle was "parted asunder" from Bro. Moseby and saw him no more, his route being down the Ohio River, and mine up. Left Cincinnati at 5 P. M., aboard one of those splendid steamboats, arriving at Huntington, W. Va., next evening at 6 o'clock P. M. three or four hours behind time. Train was gone, so I had to lay over, which gave me an opportunity to take a look at the city of Huntington which is going up after the manner of Jonah's Gourd. Where now are blocks of fine houses, hotels, stores, banks, manufactories, also graded streets along which fast horses and fine carriages move, last June luxuriant grass was mowed by the farmer! These are fast times, and W. Va. can boast of at least one city going up after the manner of western cities. This point is the terminus of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad. The Company is putting up extensive Machine Shops, depots, &c. Early next morning I left aboard the cars and traveled up the Great Kanawha Valley to the Falls of Kanawha, from whence we set out on foot and arrived at home and found all well, thanks to the Lord. As usual, we met with many loving hearts and ready hands whom we are assured the Lord will bless abundantly.

J. S. FLORY.

Dear Pilgrim: The Salem Branch of the Church of the Brethren, is found in Marion Co., Ill. around the capitol of said county called Salem, on the Ohio and Mississippi Railroad, 70 miles East of St. Louis, and 270 miles West of Cincinnati, and within 7 miles of the Chicago branch of the Illinois Central Railroad, in a beautiful country of prairie and timber land, abounding with all manner of vegetation, such as wheat, corn, oats, rye, sweet and Irish potatoes, and fruit of nearly all kinds. Peaches of the best quality grow here, some are nearly half grown now, and the trees very full. The country is without marshes or ponds, some rolling and some level, well adapted to grass and stock raising, and is rich enough to produce, in a favorable season, abundantly of all kinds of the necessaries of life. The church is yet young, numbering 36 members, with one ordained Elder, two ministers in the first degree, and two deacons. They have no church-house yet, but have regular meeting in school-houses, and wherever they are called. The church is somewhat isolated, the nearest other Branch being some 45 or 50 miles off.

Then brethren and sisters, remember this young and rising church in the midst of the wilderness of this world; and a crooked and perverse generation. Pray for the same, that the borders of Zion may be enlarged, and here where wild beasts were wont to roam, the sheep of the good Shepherd may grow on living pasture. Ministers of the Gospel, as you are traveling over the highways of the world, remember this little church, come around this way and give us a call, tell us something about the King of glory, and it will refresh our souls, and all ye who are earnestly contending for the "ancient landmarks," and wish to change your location, we give you a hearty invitation to come and make your pilgrimage among us, and help us to get out stones and timber for the temple where God's Spirit is to dwell in.

From your weak brother,

DANIEL NEHER.

Dear Pilgrim:—It has been sometime since I have written any for your columns. I feel like trying to write a few lines again to let you know I have not forgotten you. I still receive the PILGRIM, and it brings me good tidings every week. I love to read it and would feel lost without it, as I do not hear preaching often. I read many good sermons in the PILGRIM which is soul-reviving.

I enjoyed the privilege of meeting with dear brethren and sisters at the Brethren's meeting-house near Fayetteville, on the 11th and 12th of May, in a Communion capacity. Met a goodly number of members, and had quite a pleasant meeting. On Sabbath Bro. A. Hutchison preached his farewell sermon. He has left us to go to the far West. He will be missed very much, as he was a strong pillar in defense of the truth here and now the burden of preaching the Word, rests upon Bro. J. S. Flory and two young speakers. The calls are many, and the territory large and much of the country rugged. Brethren and sisters do not forget to pray for our ministering brethren and their wives. They have a heavy cross to bear, Give them your sympathy and prayers, that they may be faithful in laboring for the glorious cause of Zion. May God help us all to more fully awake to our duty, and go forth as valiant soldiers of the cross, having both the form and power of godliness, and the result will be many precious sheaves for the garner of the Lord. Let us labor together in love, that we may win our children and our neighbors to Christ; that we way all become followers of Christ, and may be ready to go with Him when He comes to gather His children home. We will have to face the stormy blast of temptation, but let us have our face set Zionward, looking unto Jesus for aid and instruction.

We'll watch and pray both night and day,
Then when the Savior comes;
We will soar above on wings of love
To our eternal home.

C. J. MASTERS.

Raven Eye, W. Va.

Dear Bros. Brumbaugh: In a letter received from Miss Jemima Rarick, daughter of Jacob Rarick, of Bradford, Miami county, Ohio, who is a cousin of my father, bearing date May 16th, 1872, we received the following sad intelligence.

"Last Saturday our house was entirely consumed by fire. It caught in the main building between 11 and 12 A. M. Supposed to have caught from the kitchen chimney, there having been no fire in the main building at the time. The wind being so strong, it was impossible to extinguish the flames. Together with the house, the milk-house, grain-house, a large shed and all our grain was destroyed. We saved but a small amount of the contents of the house. Did not save any eatables, and very few clothes. Saved but very little bedding, but the neighbors have been so kind as to supply us, so we now have three beds. There were seven beds, besides we girls' bedclothes, that burned; also nine bedsteads. We did not save any of the latter. My bureau and trunk, the latter containing thirty-five dollars, also my pocket-book containing five dollars, were all devoured by the wild flames. The loss is estimated at four thousand dollars. This was a great loss to us, but thanks be to God there were no lives lost, and not any one hurt. They have placed a floor in the wood-house in which we now live. I was not at home during the fire, but perhaps it was all for the better."

We were very much surprised at this sad intelligence, as we had received a letter from there a few days previous bearing the welcome news that all were well and prospering. We trust to Providence that these dear friends may not be left to suffer. If they have been bereft of their earthly possessions, the Lord has been merciful in sparing their lives. The dear sister, mother of our informant, has been in delicate health for some years. Dear sister, trust in God, for he will not place a heavier burden upon us than we are able to bear. Our losses here will only work for us the greater gain in yonder world of bliss. Let us trust in God and be ever faithful even unto the end of the world.

E. R. S.

LEWISTON, MINN., }
June 4th, 1872. }

Dear Brethren:—Please announce through the PILGRIM the following appointments for meetings in Minnesota, the Lord willing. With the brethren in Fillmore county, commencing on Saturday the 22nd of June, to continue over Sunday. No communion. All those from a distance wishing to attend, will be met at Lime Springs on the McGrayer & St. Paul R. R. by writing to Bro. Joseph Ogg.

Also with the brethren in Winona Co., commencing June 27th, to continue over Sunday. Communion Saturday evening. All those from a distance wishing to attend, will stop off at Lewiston, on the Winona & St. Peter R. R. There call on Bro. J. S. Lewis.

Also with the brethren in Rice Co., commencing June 5th, to continue over Sunday. Communion Saturday evening. All those wishing to attend, coming from a distance, will be met at Farabault on the St. Paul & Mc-grayer R. R., by writing to Samuel Oblinger. P. O. address, Watervill, Lasure Co., Minn.

All the brethren and sisters that can attend these meetings are heartily invited. Especially ministering brethren will not forget us, as we need laborers here in this isolated field. There are many precious souls here that are yet out of the Kingdom.

C. F. WIRT.

EDITORIAL.

S. J. G.—Your request is attended to.

J. M. M.—The PILGRIM from A. M. is 80 cts., but for the poor, send us whatever they are able to give. The PILGRIM is sent.

J. Z.—The above answers your questions. The minutes will be furnished in the PILGRIM.

C. MYERS.—We have no explanation to make except that the Minutes were sent. We will now send them again and hope you may receive them.

NAFF & KESSLER.—The fault is certainly not with us, as your papers are mailed regularly from our office. We have now sent the missing Nos., and hope you have no more trouble in the future.

B. ELLIS. The money sent, is quite satisfactory—hope the tracts you have sold and distributed may accomplish much good and be the means of pointing the truly penitent soul to the sure testimony of the Lord.

TRACTS.—As we sold our tracts a little high at first we make the following offer to those who received and paid to the amount of 50 cents and over: If you can make use of any more and write us how many you received, we will send you one fourth more free of charge. We will now send them to all at the following prices:

2 copies,	10 cts.
10 copies,	40 cts.
25 copies,	75 cts.
50 copies,	$1.00.
100 copies,	$1.50.

BACK NOS. FROM A. M. We have a pretty good supply of back Nos. containing report of A. M. All new subscribers will get these and the remainder of the year for 80 cents. Our agents and friends will please let this be known. Please make a little effort and see how many new subscribers you can get us. We have a noble crew of agents, and feel assured that the PILGRIM will not be forgotten. Now is the time. The PILGRIM band is growing larger and larger, but still there is room for more. Send them along. All are invited to the feast of good things that are being prepared for the future.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS.

Eld. J. S. Flory, from Fayetteville, Fayette Co., W. Va., to Orchard View, Fayette Co., W. Va.

Orchard View is a new office just established, J. S. Flory, P. M.

CLOVER CREEK LOVE FEAST.

On Tuesday the 11th inst. we had the pleasure of meeting with our brethren and sisters of Clover Creek, for the purpose of holding a feast of love and to commemorate the sufferings and death of our Redeemer.

They have adopted the custom of coming together in the evening and seem to think the tendency is for good, avoiding the burden of preparing a dinner for a large and promiscuous multitude, many of whom come, more for the loaves and fishes, than for the Bread of Heaven.

The meeting opened at about 4 o'clock p. m. The weather was pleasant and the attendance reasonably large. Elder Grabill Myers of Eldorado, George S. Myers of Lewistown and G. B. Brumbaugh were the ministers, with those of the Yellow Creek and Snake Spring Congregations. The attention and order was good with the exception of a few ill bred rowdies, who were destitute of both judgment and good sense, but such is the fruits of intemperance, they were drunk—beastly drunk—God pity the drunkard!

Next morning we again met for public worship and had quite an interesting and, we trust, profitable meeting. But such seasons of refreshing does not last always and the time came for separation, and we parted, if no more to meet in earthly congregations, we trust it shall be in that happy world of abiding peace and joy without end.

THE ALDINE for June is the most American of all our magazines. It contains three full page original Illustrations of American Forest Scenery, by Moran, Nehlig, and Hows. Moran has selected the primitive forest, and given us a glimpse of its wildness and grandeur. His subject is "Kwasind, The Strong Man," in the "Song of Hiawatha," and he has handled it magnificently, with all the strength and none of the extravagance of Dore. Nehlig has selected the Colonial forest, so to speak, and has given us a glimpse of its sunny openings, roofed with foliage, draped with vines, carpeted with flowers and moss, and peopled with happy birds. His subject is Campbell's "Gertrude of Wyoming," the spirit of which he has realized in his figures of Gertrude and Albert, who are rambling through the woods in fanciful Indian garb. Hows has selected the forests of the Adirondacks, and has given us a glimpse of the pines of the Raquette. They shoot up before us, with all their tall trunks and crooked, ragged branches, struggling with summer sunshine, brightened and darkened by turns as they stretch along the winding stream that brawls over its rocky bed. A nobler trio of forest pictures than these were never drawn, and they ought to make the fortune of THE ALDINE as an Art Journal. The publishers are James Sutton & Co., 23 Liberty Street, N. Y., and the price is $5.00, including oil chromo.

THE PHRENOLOGICAL JOURNAL for June is before us and as usual, is full of interesting reading for everybody. Among all the Journals and Magazines we ever read, the Phrenological is our favorite, and from it we gained more solid and useful information than from all others put together.

Conspicuous among its contents are, William Orton, President Western Telegraph Co.; What is the Tariff Question? by Horace Greeley, Steal or Starve! Sir Francis Crossley, M. P.; Monticello, Famous as the Home of Thomas Jefferson, Expression. The Chinese in the Philipines; Preachers and Preaching; Boys' Library, Carbon and its Different Forms; Paul du Chaillu, the famous Traveler, Life Insurance; A Bad Pen, etc. With numerous fine illustrations and portraits. A new volume begins with the July number. A good time to subscribe; fine premiums offered. Terms, $3 a year. 30 cents a number. S. R. Wells, Publisher, New York.

THE SCIENCE OF HEALTH, No. 1, is before us. This is something new and just what we have long been needing. Our people have been drugged and slopped about long enough. We firmly believe that the Science of Health will be a great benefactor to the American people, and hope it will receive such support as its merits richly deserve. The Magazine is issued from the office of the Phrenological Journal and published at the low price of $2.00 a year. Try it, and save many times its cost in doctor's bills. Address S. R. Wells; 389 Broadway New York.

THE LITTLE CORPORAL still visits our office and meets a hearty reception. It is well gotten up and filled with interesting reading for the young folks. The illustrations are pretty, and "Prudy's Pocket" is crammed full of good things. Published by John E. Miller, Chicago, Ill., at $1.50 per year.

THE CHILDREN'S PAPER, published by Bro. H. J. Kurtz, Dayton, Ohio, is a beautifully illustrated Monthly for the young, just the thing for Sunday schools. Send for specimens.

DIED.

FUNDERBURG—Near Yellow Springs, Green county, Ohio, Jun. 3d, 1872, Anna, infant daughter of George Funderburg, aged 4 months and 4 days. Funeral services by the writer from Matt. 19: 14.

B. F. DAUST.

GHEAR—In the Welch Run church, Franklin county, Pa., June 1st, 1872, Isaac Ghear, aged 35 years, 1 month and 10 days. Funeral services by Jacob Oller, N. Martin and the writer.

Farewell my wife and children all,
From you a father Christ doth call.
Mourn not for me, it is in vain
To call me to your sight again.

(Companion and Visitor please copy.)

HOXIE—In the Jerusalem District, San Joaquin county, Cal., on the 28th of Feb. 1872, of Consumption, sister Nancy Ann Hoxie, aged 33 years.

Sister Hoxie leaves a husband and six children, one daughter and five sons, all young. She gave the same evidence of faith in the Lord Jesus Christ on her death bed that she did nearly three years since, when she was baptized in the San Joaquin river, according to the direction Jesus gives us in the 28th chapter of Matt. Her funeral discourse was preached by the writer, on the 21st of May, 1872, in San Joaquin City.—Text, Rev. 22: 14, 15. ELD. G. WOLF.

THACKREY—In the church of the Brethren, Winona county, Minn., May 17th, 1872, brother James Thackrey, aged 54 years 13 days. Disease, dropsy of the chest; being afflicted over two years, in which time he suffered very much, especially in the last two months his suffering was very great.

Brother Thackrey united with the Church with his now bereaved wife, about a year ago, and that he was united with his Savior in a loving and saving faith, was manifest in his calm composure in his great suffering, in his patience and christian fortitude. He passed away in full hope of a blessed immortality. He leaves a companion with six children. Funeral services by D. Whetstone and the undersigned.

C. F. WIRT.

REIFF.—Near Burnettsville, White Co., Ind., April 30th, 1872, sister Elizabeth Rieff, wife of brother John Rieff, aged 25 years and 24 days.

The deceased was a daughter of brother Henry and sister Mary Smith, of Dark Co., Ohio. Her remains were taken on the morning train, May 1st, to her parents' home, accompanied by her husband and others, where they arrived about 3 o'clock P. M., same day, were interred next day in the Brethren's graveyard, near Bradford, followed by a large concourse of sympathizing friends. Funeral services by brethren Rizer, Miller and others, to a large and appreciative audience. Our beloved sister came among us eleven months ago a newly wedded bride, having been united in matrimony June 1st, 1871, and by her amiable disposition and christian deportment soon gained the love and confidence of all with whom she associated. But, alas! like a blasted rose she is gone, leaving a babe 3 weeks old, and a sorrowing husband to mourn her loss, who needs not sorrow as one who has no hope. She long since had made the good choice and entered into a covenant relationship with God, so that she truly could say, "For me to live is Christ, and to die is gain," so that our loss is her eternal gain.

JOS. AMICK.

Announcements.

Please announce a Communion Meeting which is to be held, the Lord willing, in the Iowa River Church, four miles south of State Center, in Marshall county, Iowa, on the 29th and 30th of June. A hearty invitation, especially to ministering brethren.

ELDER JOHN MURRLY.

Please announce through the PILGRIM that we intend to hold a Lovefeast meeting, God willing, in the Cold Water Church, Iowa, on the 13th and 14th of July. The meeting will be held near Nora Springs, on the railroad of Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Minnesota. An invitation given to all and especially to ministering brethren.

J. F. EIKENBERRY.

Urbana Ill., at the house of bro. George Dillings, June 22, 23. Brethren coming from the North or South, on the Ill. Central railroad, will stop off either at Thomasboro, or Champaign City. Those coming from East or West, on the Indianapolis and Bloomington railroad, will stop off at Mayview.

MONEY LIST.

A Spangler	1.50
Joseph E. Haldaman	80
Wm. Isett	80
J. W. Gripe	80
John Neff	63
P. R. Wrightsman	1.50
Simon Oaks	80
D. B. Sturgis	1.00
Samuel Repp	75
J. S. Flory	15.00
Dr. Solomon	10.00
S. M. Goughnour	1.25
J. W. Beer,	1.25
Henry Garst	.70
Wm. Angle	2.50
Amos W. Bowman	1.50
Jacob Musser	1.00
Sarah Pretzman	1.25
Isaac J. Blickenstaff	.75
John Murray	.75
John Leedy	1.22
David B. Teeter	6.60
Henry Ebie	1.00
Geo. A. Hoover	.70
Lydia C. Hockman	1.25
H. C. Frantz	1.10
M. Bashoar	9.50
For E. E. Fry	1.25
E. R. Stifel	2.15
John H. Ulrich	.75
S. S. Cresswell	1.25
Joseph Drury	2.50

NORTH-WESTERN CROPS.

As a number of our readers have desired as full a crop report as possible, we have made it a specialty this week, and by selecting and contributions we have been successful in getting a pretty full report and think it will be of general interest to our readers.

Wheat is headed out in the southern part of Indiana.

The Lacon, Ill., Journal says the prospects of the corn crop was never better.

In La Salle county, Ill., all kinds of grain looks well, and good crops are confidently anticipated.

In Muskegon, Mich., region wheat is looking remarkably well.—Corn will probably be light.

In Lake county, Indiana, winter wheat never looked better at this time of the year than at the present time.

Early planted corn in Southern Kansas is now six to eight inches high, and in good condition for plowing.

The Southwest Missouri Enterprise says fruit will be abundant and cheap in Henry county, Mo., this year.

In Jefferson county, Wis., corn planting is finished, and all kinds of growing crops are looking remarkably well.

Grain in Kenosha county, Wis., is looking unusually well, and grass is as good as it was at this season last year.

In Lanewa county, Mich., wheat is doing well, and the fields that looked badly a few days ago are coming forward finely.

The Waukesha, Wis., Plaindealer says: We have never seen spring wheat look so well at this season of the year as it does now.

The prospect for oats in Vermillion Co., Ill., was never better than at the present, and the recent rains have brought out the wheat finely.

The Saginaw, Mich., Enterprise says the wheat crop in that vicinity will be unusually large, and the prospects for fruit are remarkably good.

The Wanshara, Wis., Argus says: Should the balance of the season prove favorable, as large a yield of wheat as that of 1860 may be expected.

The Kendallville, (Noble county, Ind,) Standard says potato bugs are scarce this season, but the cut-worm is doing immense damage, the ground being alive with them.

The Iowa State Register, at Des Moines, speaking of the fruit crop in that region, says even if one-third of the crop which formed reaches maturity the supply will be ample.

The Beatrice, Neb., Express says that from every quarter it is reported that wheat and other small grain look exceedingly well while corn and garden vegetables are getting a capital start.

In the St. Joseph, Mich., fruit region, the peach orchards, with few exceptions, are well filled with blossoms, while the apple, pear, cherry and plum trees are literally laden. Strawberries are looking very finely and blackberries middling.

A gentleman who has traveled through Iowa says: "The hay crop promises to be more than an average. Wheat, oats, and rye are looking well, and already the tops of these cereals are waving in the constantly blowing winds of our beautiful State."

The Champaign, Ill., Gazette says crops of all kinds in that vicinity, fruit included, never looked more promising than at present. The average was never so great, and should the season continue as it now promises, the incoming crops will make the railroads groan for a year to come with the heavy freights.

WHEAT CROP.—Says the Cynthiana (Ky.) News: "The prospect for wheat in Harrison has never been as fair for the past six years as at the present in some portions of our county, while in other portions it is reported as being quite indifferent."

Marion county, Ill., June 3rd. Season so far, favorable. Early sown winter wheat looks very promising. Late sown much damaged by the chinch bugs. Oats about knee-high and well set. Corn looks well for the time. Some early potatoes big enough to cook. Peaches very full. Apples and cherries full enough.

In Butler and Floyd counties, Iowa, all kinds of grains that farmers raise, at this time (June the 10th,) are very promising, and a bountiful harvest is expected.

B. E.

Our crops in Winona, county, Minn. look very promising at this time, except corn is very backward by reason of cold and wet during last month. The weather is more pleasant and favorable at this time (June 4th.) Corn is not raised in this state very extensively. Wheat, (spring,) Barley and Oats are our staple crops. C. F. W.

ELD. GEO. WOLF, of Stockton, California, says: The San Joaquin Valley between two and three hundred miles long and 60 miles wide is one continued and nearly solid field of grain, never better. Along the sea coast in the flat and rich valleys, crops poor, on account of excess of rain in the winter and not enough in the spring.

Durable Whitewash.

Whitewashed walls will not rub off if the lime is thus prepared: Mix half a pailful of lime and water; take half a pint of flour, make a starch of it, and pour it hot into the whitewash; stir it well, and add a little salt.

CROSSING POULTRY.—More eggs are obtained from hens by mixing the breeds. Crossing also promotes health. But little trouble would be experienced with roup, gapes, cholera and other diseases in the poultry yard if careful attention were given to crossing and guarding against the vile practice of breeding in and in.

Advertisements.

GOOD BOOKS.

A large number of our patrons are receiving our books as noticed below, as premiums, and express themselves highly pleased with them. Others who are not agents, have enquired whether we keep them for sale. We have now made arrangements with Mr. Wells to furnish any of their publications post paid at publishers prices. Orders for books must be accompanied with the cash, and plain directions for sending them.

Conversion of St. Paul. By George Jarvis Geer, D. D. 12mo. fine edition, $1. Plain edition, 75 cents.

Footprints of Life; or, Faith and Nature Reconciled.—A Poem in three parts. The Body. The Soul. The Deity. By Philip Harvey, M. D. $1.25.

Fruit Culture for the Million. A Hand book. being a Guide to the Cultivation and Management of Fruit Trees. Descriptions of the Best Varieties, and How to Propagate them. illustrated $1.00.

Hand-book for Home Improvement: comprising "How to Write," "How to Talk," How to Behave," and "How to do Business," in one vol. 2.25.

How to Live; Saving and Wasting, or Domestic Economy. By Solon Robinson. $1.50.

Hopes and Helps for the Young of both sexes, Relating to the Formation of Character. Choice of Avocation, Health, Conversation, Cultivation of Intellect, Moral Sentiments, Social Affection Courtship and Marriage. By Rev. G. S. Weaver. Muslin, $1.50.

Life at Home; or, The Family and its Members. Husbands, Wives, Parents, Children, Brothers, Sisters, Employers and Employed, etc. By Rev. William Aikman, D. D. A work which should be found in every family. $1.50. Extra gilt, $2.00.

Man and Woman: Considered in their Relations to each Other and to the World. By Henry C. Pedder. 12mo, Fancy cloth. Price $1.00.

Man, in Genesis and in Geology; or, the Biblical Account of Man's Creation, tested by Scientific Theories of his Origin and Antiquity. By Joseph P. Thompson, D. D., LL.D. One vol. 12mo, $1.00.

Oratory—Sacred and Secular; or, the Extemporaneous Speaker. Including Chairman's Guide for conducting Public Meetings according to the best Parliamentary forms. By Wm. Pittenger. $1.50.

The Emphatic, Diaglott; or The New Testament in Greek and English. Containing the Original Greek Text of the New Testament, with an Interlineary Word for-word English Translation. A Work for Students in Theology, and S. S. Teachers. By Benjamin Wilson. Price, $4,00; extra fine binding. $5.00.

The Right Word in the Right Place. A New Pocket Dictionary and Reference Book. Embracing Synonyms, Technical Terms, Abbreviations, Foreign Phrases, Writing for the Press, Punctuation, Proof-Reading, and other Valuable Information. Cloth, 75cts.

Weaver's Works for the Young. Comprising "Hopes and Helps for the Young of both Sexes," "Aids and Aims for Girls and Young Women," "Ways of Life; or, the Right Way and the Wrong Way," $3

Menno Simon's
COMPLETE WORKS.

In English, translated from the original Dutch or Holland, giving the whole of the great Reformers writings on the subject of Baptism. Price in full sheep $4.50; by mail $5.14.

Address, JOHN F. FUNK & BRO.,
May 21–3m. Elkhart, Ind.

AGENTS WANTED FOR
"JESUS."
BY CHARLES F. DEEMS, D. D.
His difficulty established and rationalism routed. The most popular and rapidly-selling religious work ever issued. For Circulars, address U. S. PUBLISHING CO., N. Y.

New Hymn Books, English.

TURKEY MOROCCO

One copy,	post-paid, - -	$1 00
Per Dozen,	- - -	11 25

PLAIN ARABESQUE.

One Copy,	post-paid, - - -	75
Per Dozen,	" - - -	8 50

PLAIN SHEEP.

One Copy,	post-paid, - - -	75
Per Dozen,	" - - -	8 50

Ger'n & English, Plain Sheep.

One Copy	post-paid	$ 1 00
Per Dozen	- - -	11 25
Arabesque plain,	- - -	1.00
Turkey morocco,	- - -	$ 1.25.
Single German	post-paid, -	50
Per Dozen,	- - -	5 50

1870 1872

DR. FAHRNEY'S.
Blood Cleanser or Panacea.

A tonic and purge, for Blood Diseases. Orent reputation. Many testimonials. Many ministering brethren use and recommend it. Ask or send for the "Health Messenger." Use only the "Panacea" prepared at Chicago, Ills., and by

Dr. P. Fahrney's Brothers & Co.,
Mar. 29-pd. Waynesboro, Franklin Co., Pa.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

A number of responsible advertisements not conflicting with the design of our work will be admitted on our outside pages on the following terms:

Single insertion, per line,	10 cts.
Three months, per line, each time,	8 cts.
Six months, do do do,	6 cts.
One Year, do do do,	5 cts.

☞ Transient advertisements must be paid for in advance; standing advertisements quarterly on presentation of bill.

TRACTS.

"ANXIOUS BENCH RELIGION EXAMINED," by Elder J. S. Flory, is a Tract now ready for distribution, of which the following is a brief synopsis of the contents: A short and pointed address to the reader. The motive that prompted him to write, and his responsibilities as a minister; The peculiarities attending this type of religion; The feelings there experienced, not imaginary but real, The key that unlocks the wonderful mystery; It is not the workings of God after the order and plan of salvation; Man's endowment, his imitative principle—emanated from God; Spiritual influences and intercourse; Relation existing between man and God, and man and man; The fraternal bond and our natural affinities established by the "so called" sciences of Electro Biology; Mesmerism and Psychology or science of the soul, also, "Spiritualism" "Spiritual Rappings," &c. The causes by which the feelings are excited; Sympathy of the nervous system, and how that momentary feeling of joy is brought about, called, "Experimental Religion; Similar feelings may be brought about when there are no religious pretensions; Our reasons why we think this modus operandi of getting religion is not according to the Gospel, and then concludes by pointing out that form of doctrine as taught by Jesus Christ, and recorded by His faithful witness.

These tracts will be sent to all post paid, on the following terms: Single copy 10cts, 10 copies 70 cents, 20 copies $1.20, 50 copies $2.50, 100 copies $4.00.

Trine Immersion.

A discussion on Trine Immersion, by letter between Elder B. F. Moomaw and Dr J. J. Jackson, to which is annexed a Treatise on the Lord's Supper, and on the necessity, character and evidences of the new birth, also a dialogue on the doctrine of non-resistance, by Elder B. F. Moomaw. Single copy 50 cents.

HUNTINGDON & BROAD TOP RAIL ROAD

Winter Arrangement.

On and after Saturday, November 25th, 1871 Passenger Trains will arrive and depart as follows:

UP TRAINS. EX.	UP TRAINS. MAIL	STAIONS.	DOWN TRAIN. EX.	DOWN TRAIN. MAIL
P. M.	A. M.		A. M.	P. M.
Le 5 40	8 10	Huntingdon	9 00	Ar 4 38
5 47	8 20	Long Siding	8 49	4 29
6 00	8 34	McConellstown	8 34	4 13
6 07	8 41	PleasantGrove	8 27	4 06
6 20	8 53	Markiesburg	8 14	3 51
6 33	9 06	Coffee Run	8 02	3 38
6 40	9 14	Rough&Ready	7 53	3 28
6 54	9 28	Cove	7 38	3 13
7 00	9 33	Fishers Sum'it	7 33	3 08
Ar 7 15	9 48	Saxton	7 18
Le 7 30	10 00		7 00	Le 2 52
7 47	10 18	Riddlesburg	6 43	2 34
7 54	10 26	Hopewell	6 37	2 26
8 12	10 46	Pipers Run	6 20	2 08
8 32	11 06	Tatesville	6 00	1 48
8 47	11 20	Bloody Run	5 48	1 34
8 52	11 25	Mount Dallas	5 44	1 30
8 59	11 32	Ashcom's Mills	5 37	1 22
9 04	11 36	Lutzville	5 33	1 18
9 09	11 40	Hartley's Mills	5 29	1 14
9 16	11 47	Jamesons	5 22	1 07
Ar 9 23	11 54	Bedford	5 15	1 00

JOHN M'KILLIPS, Supt

THE PILGRIM,

Published by J. B. Brumbaugh, & Co.
Edited by H. B. & Geo. Brumbaugh.

CORRESPONDING EDITORS.

D. P. Sayler, Double Pipe Creek, Md.
Leonard Furry, New Enterprise, Pa.

The Pilgrim is a Christian Periodical, devoted to religion and moral reform. It will advocate in the spirit of love and liberty, the principles of true Christianity, labor for the promotion of peace among the people of God, for the encouragement of the saints and for the conversion of sinners, avoiding those things which tend toward disunion or sectional feelings.

TERMS.

Single copy, one year,	$1.25.
Book paper, " "	1.50.
Eleven copies, [eleventh for Agt.]	$12.50.
Any number above that at the same rate,

Address.

H. B. BRUMBAUGH.
James Creek,
Huntingdon county Pa.

Narrow Pilgrim.

"REMOVE NOT THE ANCIENT LANDMARKS WHICH OUR FATHERS HAVE SET."

VOL. 3 JAMES CREEK, PENNSYLVANIA, JUNE 25, 1872. NO. 26.

POETRY.

WORLD OF LIGHT.

SELECTED BY KATE BECHTEL.

There is a beautiful world
Where saints and angels sing;
A world where peace and pleasure reigns,
And heavenly praises ring.

Chorus:
We'll be there, we'll be there;
Palms of victory, crowns of glory,
We shall wear;
In that beautiful world on high.

There is a beautiful world,
Where sorrow never comes;
A world where tears shall never fall
In sighing for our home.

There is a beautiful world,
Unseen to mortal sight;
And darkness never enters there,
That home is fair and bright.

There is a beautiful world,
Of harmony and love;
O, may we safely enter there,
And dwell with God above.

ORIGINAL ESSAYS.

For the Pilgrim.

GROWING IN GRACE. NO. 2.

II. PETER, III: 18.

MEANS.—In our last we spoke of the essentials to growth. When these exist and are used they become the means of growth, and when they are withdrawn decay and even death are sure to follow, just as the leaf withers and falls when the sap ceases to course its tiny veins. We may refuse to nourish our bodies, but we cannot escape the penalty. So it will be if we neglect to nourish our souls on the bread of life eternal. Alas! that so many pursue such a course and yet hope to escape the consequences!

The means of growth in grace are abundant,—especially in Gospel lands. But this abundance does not insure an abundant growth in grace. It should, but it does not. We see the same in temporal affairs. Three centuries ago our country was a vast wilderness with hardly as many rude huts as it now has well-built cities. Yet the natural resources of the country were as great then as now. But the Indian made no use of those means of growth, whereas the white man has used them and is still using them. The Indians have lost their fair hunting grounds with all their stores of hidden wealth. What a great mistake they made, and what a sad fate is theirs! But greater is the mistake and sadder the fate of those who neglect to seek the "pearl of great price"—who refuse to enter the kingdom of grace and explore the boundless treasures that are hidden in Christ. The country they lose is fairer than any spot on earth, while the banishment they suffer is as much more hopeless as the grief it awakens is more intense.

Among the means of growth in grace are the following: reading, hearing, meditating upon and conversing about the Word of God, living up to the requirements of the same, prayer, the sacraments, &c. It would be an easy matter to write an essay on any one of these topics. Their uses and abuses might be enlarged upon to an indefinite extent, but at present I will confine myself to a few remarks under one or two heads.

Reading the Bible is a means of growth in grace. This, we are too often told, is too much neglected on the part of believers, and we need not, as a general thing, go farther than our own hearts to find a witness to testify to the truth of the statement. Catholics, however, regard this negligence as a virtue, and in this particular they are rather more consistent than Protestants, who are often more ready to admit and deplore the neglect than to shake the dust from their own Bibles. But the soul that hungers and thirsts after spiritual food finds "a feast of fat things" on almost every page of the blessed Book. What bread can satisfy like that which came from above? What water can quench thirst like that which is drawn from the wells of salvation? The "babes in Christ" are nourished by the "milk of the word" while "meat" is found strong enough for the most aged believer.

Hearing the Word preached is a blessed means of grace. The purest saint needs to have his heart as well as his mind "stirred up" occasionally, and nothing can do this more effectively than the eloquence of the pulpit—an eloquence that has caused many a Felix to tremble, and many an Agrippa to be, not only "almost" but altogether "persuaded" to lead a christian life. But every preacher is not Paul, either in knowledge or spiritual power. Many, it is needless to say, might improve in both these respects if they would cast off some of their old "weights" and imbibe a new idea once in a while.

The believer who goes to the house of God in a teachable spirit should be 'edified and built up," strengthened and encouraged by the services of the sanctuary. If he was "a reed shaken by the wind" when he entered, when he leaves he should be more like the oak, firmly "rooted and grounded" and able to withstand the fiercest storms. Thus would the believer "add to his faith virtue" (or strength), and thus too would he take the first step in that growth in grace which the apostle Peter sets forth in these words: "Add to your faith virtue; and to virtue knowledge; and to knowledge temperence; and to temperance patience; and to patience godliness; and to godliness brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness charity." Love should be first, it must be last. Z.

Tremont, Pa.

For the Pilgrim.

WHEN DUTY IS A TASK.

BY F. M. SNYDER.

Duty is often a real task. Not all who try to be obedient to the Divine will, obey cheerfully. Prayers lazily uttered are always a task. Sermons preached without force and expression, if not "after the style," are often the tasks of no zealous, but money-making preachers. In a word, duty in the above allusions, and many other cases, is a task, because it is performed with—if there be such a thing—disinterestedness. The so called christian, when he comes to the throne of grace to offer a prayer—if not from the lips only—from a heart polluted with sin, will not be filled with the cares and riches, or even the pleasures of this sinful world. He has Heaven in view. But will he ever get there? Will men and women who have no other object in view than to fill the command, thus offering up to God their morning and evening supplications as a task, ever walk the golden streets of Zion? Oh! my gentle reader, let not duty prove a task. You go about your daily occupation with cheerfulness, expecting that which thou sowest. You look upon green pastures and fertile fields as yours, because with your labors you have become entitled to them. You enjoy your, though borrowed, home, as the property secured with your own labors. But when you, with that instrument, the mind's telescope, survey the innumerable riches of that world which can be your home, you should let no carnal hindrance prohibit your soul from enjoying sweet communion with your Maker, and Jesus Christ, the author of eternal salvation.

Thou embassador of Christ, we have you in our remembrance also. And do not wish to complain of thee at all. We know what thou hast to endure, and hope thou mayest still endure as good soldiers of the cross. But is all well? Is duty no task? Then go forward, discharging every known duty. Some of those dear people whom you have to address may die miserable, never reach a happy eternity. Some who claim to be separate from the world may yet be in sin, living without hope and God in the world. They may consider christian duty a grievous burden rather than a source of the greatest enjoyment. Should this be the case it is evident that they are yet in an unregenerated state. Hence the necessity of boldly declaring unto them the vast importance of living in self-denial only that they may, in this life, become the recipients of true happiness, and reap eternal bliss in the world to come.

Life has been called a warfare. Blessed, then, is the periodical armistice of the Sabbath. Blessed not merely as a day of rest, but also a retrospection. It is only in the pauses of the fight that we can see how the battle is going.

"LIKE APPLES OF GOLD."

"A word fitly spoken is like apples of gold in pictures (or dishes) of silver."

About fifty years ago, Simeon Jocelyn, an aged man, somewhat eccentric, but well known in New Haven as a sincere and devout disciple of Jesus Christ, as he passed a young man in the street, spoke solemnly in his ear the single word, "Eternity." He said no more, and passed along.

That word did not fall by the wayside, nor among thorns. It rang as a knell in the ears of the young man. He could not stop his ears to its peals, nor stifle the convictions it awoke in his breast. Eternity—the painful, dreadful thought, with shadows, clouds, and darkness resting upon it—clung to him as an unwelcome guest day and night; haunting him as the evil spirit from the Lord haunted Saul, until it drove him, not to the harp of David, but to Christ as to a river of water in a burning desert, and as the shadow of a great rock in a sweltering land.

Having found the Savior, he consecrated himself to his service, and was forward in all good work; adorning for many years the profession he made in uniting with the First Church in New Haven in 1821. Here, in a few years, he was chosen a deacon, and for sixteen years, until his death, filled that office well, purchasing a good degree and great boldness in the faith which is in Christ Jesus. He finished his course, and kept the faith: and both the old saint and the younger have long since rested from their work on earth; but they, being dead, yet speak.

Eternity! A single word, which any Christian may speak, was here fitly spoken, doubtless accompanied by the prayer of him who uttered it; and this apple of gold in a silver dish, whose beauty and fragrance have not passed away, is yet working results on the Church and the world, which eternity itself can only reveal.

Reader, go thou and do likewise.

THE WORST OF THE LOT.

In the early part of the reign of Louis XVI., a German prince traveled through France, visited the arsenal at Toulon, where the galleys were kept. The commandant as a compliment to his rank, said he was welcome to set free any one galley slave whom he should choose to select.

The prince willing to make the best of the privilege, spoke to many of them in succession, inquiring why they were condemned to the galleys. Injustice, oppression, false accusations, were assigned by one after another as the causes of their being there. In fact they were all injured and ill-treated persons.

At last he came to one, who, when asked the same question, answered to this effect. "Your highness, I have no reason to complain. I have been a very wicked, desperate wretch. I have deserved to be broken alive on the wheel. I account it a great mercy that I am here." The prince fixed his eyes upon him and said, "You wicked wretch! It is a pity that you should be placed among honest men; by your own confession you are the enough to corrupt them all; but you shall not stay with them another day." Then turning to the officer he said, "This is the man, sir, whom I wish to be released."

Was not this a wise decision? Must not all that hear the story allow that the man who was so sensible of his guilt, and so submissive to his punishment, was, in all probability, the most worthy of pardon, and the most likely not to abuse it?

Sense of sin is the first step towards forgiveness. There is no hope of a man who confesses his guilt, and feels that punishment is his desert. And the deeper the conviction of sin, the more hopeful often is the condition.

A Spring Reverie.

BY ELIZA PARKER.

"See the young, the rosy Spring,
Gives to the breeze her spangled wing."

And has come, smiling graciously through her floral veil, clothing all nature with her emerald warmth. The light of her eye is reflected on the sparkling waters, her voice in chorus with the feathered songsters re-echoes on the sunlit mountain, in the cool shady dell, and her footprints breathe a fragrant perfume over the mossy carpet. The waters of her newly refreshed springs and brooklets leap from rock to forest vale, creeping softly, murmuring sweetly the while—into solitude of the sepulcher and inviting the passing zephyrs to chant a requiem; they adorn the forests and hill with fairy diamonds—sparling dew-drops—and ornament the emerald grasses on which the light feet of morning dances as she steps from the golden palaces of Aura, and slowly descends to earth.

The verdure of the meadows enameled with flowers of every hue; the light foliage of the wood, and the luxuriant variegated blossoms of the fruit trees, each doubling the charm of the rest, presents a lovely glowing picture. The flocks and herds, roaming freely over pastures and fields, give life and motion to all springs exquisite quiet beauty, on which the mind of poet or painter can only love to linger.

The great book of nature is turned to its most glowing page, and makes glad the heart of man, as he reads the ever new—ever golden evidences of a kind Providence in the exuberance of beauty fresh before him.

Welcome! thrice welcome, lovely Spring! who has come to chase away hoary winter with his chilling blasts, benumbing frosts, drifting snows and driving sleet, giving new life, new hope to all, and reminding us with its beautiful flowers, blossoming trees, and promising crops, of the All-wise Creator, who in lavishing these abundant pleasures and delicious fruits upon us, has fulfilled in them the promise—that plenty and peace shall be the boon of man from His gracious hand.

You have only a day to spend upon earth; act in such a way that you may spend it in peace. Peace is the fruit of love; for to live in peace, it is necessary to put up with many things.

YOUTHS' DEPARTMENT.

THE "TRAVELER'S GUIDE."

While wandering over some of the steep bluffs which border the broad Mississippi, a few months since, I found in a little gorge through which I was passing, a plant of peculiar appearance. As I stooped to pluck it I enquired of my companion its name. That, said he, is popularly known as the "Traveler's Guide." Now I do not know where the botanists place this plant, or how they classify it, but some day I am determined to occupy an idle hour in finding out what they say about it, for its history as I have gathered it from the Western prairie dwellers is to me very interesting. It is not like the sweet sensitive wild-wood blossoms that breathe their fragrance in the depths of the cool green forests, and shrink and wither under human touch, neither does it stand in stately beauty a prized treasure in our floral gardens. Many would pass it by as a coarse object fit only to be trodden under foot, but as for me, I have always pitied and so often learned to love, for "pity" you know, "is akin to love," what others despised.

There are always a plenty of people in the world ready to admire at sight the white lilies, the purple pansies, the regal rosies, the green gloss of the ivies, the dainty fringing of the ferns, and the velvet beds of the mosses, but who stops in his rambles, to pluck the nightshades, and the thistles, or to make garlands of the mulleins? Yet so sure am I that even these despised and avoided plants are carrying out some wise and beneficient purpose of their Creator, in their yearly flowering and decay, that I am disposed to look with some little favor upon them when they come in my way.

Perhaps it was with some such feeling as this that I stopped in my walk over that high bluff, to break and gather for myself one or two stalks of the "Traveler's Guide." I will tell you what I learned about it, and perhaps, children, when you are traveling farther West than this, for one familiar with the plant tells me that he believes it is not a product of the soil in either Illinois, Iowa, or any of these near Western States, you will be interested to seek it out and find out more about it.

It is a coarse plant, unattractive as the mullein, and grows to the height of four and a half feet. It bears a pink blossom, and its leaves are large and rough, and of a deep green color. They are spiked at the edges, and taper to a point at the ends, and—now comes the singular part of it—these leaves always point East and West, and will not grow in any other direction. It has been observed also that they grow a little larger on the West side of the plant. Experiments have been made with it in order to try and change its growth by taking up the roots and turning them in the earth, but the plant, true to the laws of its growth, will always twist about again in order to follow the course of the Sun. The fact that it will not grow any other way, is what has gained for its name of the "Traveler's Guide."

You know that those who are journeying over a strange country and find themselves bewildered and lost, if they come to a forest, can ascertain in what direction they are going by noticing moss that grows most thickly on the north side of the trees, or observing the branches of the trees which usually grow longest and densest toward the southern exposure. So those who are traveling over our Western prairies and lose the points of the compass, may easily right themselves if they can only come across the "Traveler's Guide," for it is a sure guide. So you see though not an ornamental, it is yet a very useful plant, as many a lost traveler will testify, and many such an one, when uncertain what course to pursue, has hailed the sight of it with greater delight than he ever experienced in beholding the brilliant coloring, or inhaling the sweet perfume of the choicest hot-house exotics.

My children, when I looked at this plant I thought how good is God for causing it to grow thus, and I viewed it as another proof of His loving care over His children. Then I remembered that we are all travelers, passing on through this world hoping, I trust, to reach the glorious land of light beyond. The way does not always seem straight and plain to us. Sometimes we are lost in the deserts, sometimes befogged in the valleys. Again we lose the path in climbing the steep mountains, or going through the dark ravines. The burning sands of the highway often scorch our tired feet, and the clouds shut out the sunlight, and we should go crying and mourning on to the end of our journey had not the same wise Father who caused the "Traveler's Guide" to grow on the prairies and the bluffs, given us a chart on the way. It is an unerring guide which we have but to study diligently, and obey its directions faithfully, and we shall be sure one day to see the gates of the celestial city gleaming only a little way ahead. We all know the name of this chart, this traveler's guide. It is the Holy Bible. Let us read it carefully, prayerfully, daily asking its Divine Author to so lead us in all our wanderings here, that when our journey is finished He shall bid us "enter into His rest."—Selected.

It is the great joy of the gospel—indeed, it is that which makes it Gospel, that it is for any and every poor sinner who will believe.

MINUTES
OF THE
ANNUAL MEETING
OF THE BRETHREN

HELD IN THE CHIPPEWAY CHURCH, WAYNE CO., OHIO, ON THE FARM OF CYRUS HOOVER, MAY 21, 22 AND 23, 1872.

I. Has the Church a right to pass resolutions and decisions and enforce them to the expulsion of members from the body without thus saith the positive law of the Lord?

Answer. The Church shall not expel any member without Gospel authority.

II. A request to reconsider Query XX. of A. M. of 1870.

There was a reconsideration of the query referred to, and the answer of 1870 was renewed, and ordered to be put on the present minutes. It is as follows: "This A. M. renews its disapprobation of the use of Tobacco, and especially at the time, and in the place of Divine worship, and believes it should be classed with other vain and useless things."

III. Are members justifiable in refusing to commune with Bishops of other churches who tolerate pride in their churches, when the A. M. makes it their duty to enforce plainness?

Answer. Not until it is understood that the elders who are said to have tolerated the evil alluded to, have been admonished and labored with, to get them in order.

IV. Has the Church the right to enforce her decisions according to Matthew 18, in matters where the Gospel is silent?

Answer. There may be evils of sufficient magnitude to require a resort to the extreme of the course we are directed to pursue in Matt. 18, chap, though those evils for which members are dealt with, may not be specified in the gospel, but at the same time are clearly violations of the principles of the gospel.

V. Is the gospel a perfect law to govern the church in all things necessary to salvation?

Answer. It is.

VI. What is the ancient and established order of the Brethren, when elders are called to labor in another arm of the church? Are they to be taken in the private council with the laboring brethren of the church or not?

Answer. They may be taken into the private council.

VII. Is it according to the order of the Brethren in private council, that there be a unanimous consent of the "official brethren" concerning any matter before it can come before the church?

Answer. The official brethren should not bring a matter before the church if they are divided, until they have called the assistance of bishops of adjoining districts.

VIII. Can the church tolerate a member in the body, that is a member of the society or order called Grange or Patrons of Husbandry?

Answer. No brother or sister should have anything to do with such an order, it being a secret bound, and from appearance, a political association. And members who have united with it, and persist in it, should be dealt with as transgressors. See minutes of A. M. 1870.

IX. Is it right according to the gospel and rules of the brethren for one arm of the church to delegate to another arm the power of restoring back to the church a member who had formerly been disowned by the arm first named above?

Answer. It has the power by sending the charge with the testimony, in connection with the testimony where the member resides.

X. Does this District understand the A. M. to mean that we should dispose of our likenesses entirely when it advises us to put them away? See minutes 1869, article 21.

Answer. This A. M. understands the phrase "put them away" to mean to put them out of public sight.

XI. What is to be done with a district or church that tolerates its members in taking illegal interest for money loaned, after A. M. has decided again and again that it is wrong to do so?

Answer. This A. M. thinks that that church should be visited by the elders of the adjoining churches to set in order the things that are wanting.

XII. Is it according to the gospel and the order of the brethren for members of the church to teach instrumental music in public schools or elsewhere? We desire the dear brethren assembled in District Meeting to give us an answer on this subject.

Answer. Whereas we know of no direct scripture on the subject, we can only give our advice on the query. And as we believe instrumental music to be of the world and not of the true church of God, we think members had better not engage in teaching it. But we submit our answer to A. M. This Annual Meeting confirms this answer.

XIII. Whereas the A. M. of 1866 in organizing District Meetings says, The District Meetings shall endeavor to settle all questions of a local character; and, whereas it is known that questions of such a character have been settled according to truth and justice by individual churches, aided by elders called by the church. Yet there are always some members who are dissatisfied, and appeal to A. M. for committees from abroad at heavy expense, &c., which are no more competent of deciding correctly than are the elders in the district in which the cases occur. Therefore the District of Eastern Maryland petitions the A. M. to authorize the several District Meetings to settle all questions and cases arising among them not of a doctrinal character.

The A. M. postponed this question.

XIV. Will the A. M. confirm or reject the answer formed by the standing committee to article 7 of the minutes of 1871?

Answer. This A. M. confirms said answer.

XV. Can brethren in the ministry who have fallen into the gross crimes mentioned by Paul in 1 Cor. 5th ch. ever be restored to their office? and if they can, in what way shall it be done?

Answer. We think they may under some circumstances, and the church having to act should judge whether such circumstances exist. But we think it should be by the unanimous consent of the church, and in the presence of at least three elders. But there are some cases so grievous that we cannot receive them into their office.

XVI. Will not this meeting urge a change in holding our A. M., as the present system is very unsatisfactory? A reconsideration of query 4 of last A. M. is desired.

Answer. This A. M. re-adopts the answer of query 4, 1871.

XVII. The following resolution contains the decision of the Meeting upon the subject of Feet-washing:

Make no change whatever in the mode and practice of Feet-washing, and stop the further agitation of the subject.

XVIII. Whereas, both the new English Hymn Book and also the German are not used in some few of the churches of our brotherhood; and whereas the use of the two books, the old and the new, causes at times considerable inconvenience, and for this and other reasons it is desirable that but one book should be used in our churches; and whereas, the reason given by some brethren for not introducing the new book is, that the A. M. has never given them its sanction; and whereas, the English book had, before its publication, been presented to the A. M. for an expression of its judgment upon the character of the work, but for want of time no expression was given; and whereas, the new books, both the English and the German, have now been before the brotherhood for some time and have given general satisfaction; therefore, resolved, that this A. M. give the new books its sanction, and liberty to all the members of the churches to use them.

XIX. Resolved, That the request of John Dennis and his brethren of the State of Maine, in regard to a ministering brother being sent to them to preach the Gospel and make known to them the order of the Brethren, should not be slighted but be prayerfully considered by the A. M., and and measures adopted to carry the same into effect.

Answer. We think the Minutes of 1860 and 1868 give the church ample liberty to make arrangements to meet the case above alluded to: We, therefore, refer the subject to the District Meeting from which it came.

XX. We desire the A. M. to correct the Minutes of last year, Art. 5, so as to read, Is it right for a brother to swear his life against a man for any cause, instead of swear his life against a brother, Answer. We adopt the correction.

XXI. Will this Meeting allow brethren, and especially ministering brethren, to engage in the banking business?

Answer. Not advisable for brethren to engage in such business. See Matt. 6: 3.

XXII. We desire the A. M. to reconsider the 3d Art. of the Minutes of 1844, and if the present answer may be adopted, then what shall be done with a brother who violates the decision?

The Query above alluded to, with the Answer, are as follows: Whether a brother may go to the Legislature Assembly as a representative, of the people agreeably with the Gospel? Considered, that, though we look upon the higher powers of the world as being of God, for the protection of the pious, &c., and desire to be thankful to God for the benefit we enjoy under our government, and feel it our duty to pray fervently and daily for the same, we cannot see how a follower of the meek and lowly Savior can seek and accept an office of this kind consistently with the Gospel he professeth. See Matt. 20: 25–28; Mark 10: 42–46; Luke 22: 25; John 17: 16, &c.

The Query was reconsidered, and the following answer given by this Meeting.

Answer. We readopt the answer to the Minutes alluded to, and consider that any brother who suffers himself to be elected to such office as that named, and to serve in it, cannot be retained as a member of the church.

XXIII. Which is the most in accordance with the Gospel and example of Jesus and his disciples, to close our Lovefeasts in the evening with singing or with prayer?

Answer. This Meeting thinks singing last is most in accordance with the Gospel.

STANDING COMMITTEE AND OFFICERS.

H. D. Davy, Jacob Garver, John Brown, D. B. Sturgis, Jacob Metzger, R. H. Miller, Samuel Lehman, John Metzger, E. K. Beeghly, Christian Long, Daniel Zook, William Gish, Samuel Mohler, A. Malsbee, Ab. Naff, Solomon Garber, Martin Cosner, D. Long, D. P. Sayler, Jacob Riner, Jos. Hanawalt, J. Wise, and J. Quinter.

Divine Comfort.

BY ELIZA R. PARKER.

"Come to me all you that labor and are heavy laden and I will refresh you."

Lusterless is man's life without a bright faith in the purview of his Heavenly Father; and such words as are contained in this beautiful invitation of our Divine Lord, are like to sweet music echoing through the gloom of earth. They have a power which seems to be beyond natural causes, as if they were some angel's song, which had lost its way, and came on earth, and sang undyingly, smiting the hearts of men with sweetest wounds, and putting, for the time being, an angel's nature into us. Alas! only those who have wept in the gloom shadowed valleys of affliction, whose tender feet have been pierced with thorns, and whose bowed heads have been pitilessly exposed to the storms of adversity, can appreciate the surpassing tenderness and sweetness contained in these words—"Come unto me, all you that are burdened!" Surpassing goodness of divinity! The ashes of hope that smoulder in our hearts are vitalized by this promise; and although the lead-light of heaven seems afar, yet it beckons us on, and we lovingly cling to the hand of the Lord, though the scythe of despair be suspended o'es us to sever the grasp from its saving power; though life seem everlasting, and the burden crushing.

Let the young and hopeful sow the seed of truth in a kind Father in Heaven in the spring-time of life, that they may reap a harvest of virtue in the sixty years of existence.

OUR CORRESPONDENCE

CEDAR CREEK CONGREGATION, June 10th, '72.

Yesterday we closed meeting here after having a pleasant refreshing from the presence of the Lord. Brother Gumps presides in this congregation. We met, Friday, June 7th to hold the Lovefeast. A large attendance of both members and spectators, and very good order was observed and attention paid to the preaching of the word. On Saturday, there were three added to the church by baptism, and on Sabbath one more, and I truly think, many more were almost ready to come to the Lord. We pray God's blessing to rest upon them that ere long they may come and serve the Lord and be happy.

UNION CONGREGATION, June 17th. Yesterday the meeting closed here, after a very pleasant time indeed. Bro. John Knisley presides here. On Friday we met to hold the Lovefeast. Very large was the attendance of both members and spectators. The meeting was held in their new meeting house which was finished last Fall. The very best of order was observed. We cannot speak too highly of the dear people who showed such kindness and love to us while in the service of the Lord. Truly they showed to every one that they had been raised by christian parents. May the good Lord abundantly bless them and preserve them from all evil is the prayer of one that loves them all. About three hundred members communed, and during the meeting fifteen were added to the church by baptism, making the number received in about six months, forty-seven, all of whom seem to enjoy themselves well, and everything is in good order. I was very much pleased to hear some of our dear old brethren, whom I love, say they were well pleased with the prospect of this part of Zion. O, dear brethren and sisters, may our kind heavenly Father bless you all to still go on. We have seldom had such a parting with a congregation. Almost all, young and old, came and took us by the hand and kindly said, farewell, some of whom we will probably see no more in this life, but we hope to meet on the better shore. Oh, dear friends, you that are out of the Lord, will you meet us over yonder too? Do not, dear children, put off your return to God too long. May the Lord bless you all for the love shown to us, and save you.

I had the pleasure of attending the Sabbath School here. This is yet in its infancy, but is doing well—has an average attendance of about eighty. To-day, about one hundred and sixty were present. May the good work still go on and the dear little ones be raised up for the Lord and future usefulness is my sincere desire.

Yours in love,
JESSE CALVERT.

CORDELIA, CAL. May 29th, '72.

Dear Editors:—I thank you very much for sending the PILGRIM. I think it a real good paper, and I am sorry I could not send you the money sooner. Here are two dollars for which you will please send it the balance of this year, and the remainder of the money you can give to the poor, or send the PILGRIM to some one who is not able to pay for it, or appropriate as you think best. I live in Califonia where I do not often hear the brethren preach, and it is quite a satisfaction to get the PILGRIM, it gives so much good news.

KATE GAMBEL.

Dear sister. Yours is received with thankfulness, and feel assured that it does us good to know, at all times, that our labors in disseminating truth and the tidings of salvation are appreciated even away beyond the Rocky Mountains. Your mite for the poor is also held in remembrance, and aids in sending the PILGRIM's messages of peace and encouragement to some humble cot where resides the humble poor. God bless the liberal hearts and hands that administer to the wants of those whose are the Kingdom.

DEGRAFF, OHIO, June 8th 1872.

THE TORNADO.

THE APPROACHING STORM.—GREAT EXCITEMENT,—MEN, WOMEN AND CHILDREN RUNNING INTO CELLARS FOR SAFETY.—FENCES BLOWN DOWN—TREES PLUCKED UP BY THE ROOTS—TWO SMALL TOWNS IN RUINS.

Yesterday about 7 o'clock P. M., a tornado passed through our vicinity, such as was never before witnessed in this section of country. Buildings, forests and fences were blown down, thus several thousand dollars worth of property being destroyed. Men, women and children seeing the approaching storm, ran frightened into cellars. The writer was called to witness the storm. It looked frightful indeed. The very clouds seemed to be drawn as by the force of attraction to one common center, and thence dashed violently upon the earth. The storm passed in a N. E. course. Our first observations of it brought to view, branches of trees, fragments of boards,, shingles, &c, as they were being carried a considerable distance in the air. The dreadful appearance of the storm, told evidently as to what were the sad state of affairs where it raged with most violence. This morning we had an opportunity to see a portion of it, of which we accepted. After passing along for some time, tracing the storm where it played general with the timber, having uprooted and broken down all the trees within its reach, both large and small, we came in sight of the premises of Bro. John Kerr. Here is a sad sight indeed. A short distance, perhaps one hundred yards East of his dwellings, the timber passed over by the storm has all been blown down, some trees being broken off several feet from the base; others taken up by the roots. His dwelling and other out door buildings present a sorrowful appearance, they all being blown down except the former, though it was much injured, so much so that it will be unfit to live in until repaired.

To give the reader some idea of the violence of the storm, I have only to tell you that the remaining portion of this building has pieces of timber driven into the Western end, as though they had been shot in with some huge cannon—pieces that had been carried one fourth mile, that being about the distance to DeGraff.

This town and one three miles West of this, has suffered much by the storm. A large portion of both places have been left worthless ruins. A valuable mill here, owned by Wolf, Shriver & Co., is injured beyond repair. Also the M. E. Church was blown down. Here—though few lives were lost—two children, one aged 13, the other 5 years, belonging to the Rall family, met sudden death. They, as is supposed, started for the gravel pit, but before they could reach it, they were instantly killed by the falling of this Church. This family, as regards physical injury, have suffered the most of any of those inhabitants. It will be some time before the homeless sufferers will recover their loss. Papers are being carried to-day, soliciting donations. Large crowds of people are on the grounds of the much injured little city.

F. M. SNIDER.

MECHANICSTOWN, June 3d, 1872.

Dear Brother Brumbaugh:—I will, this morning, try to tell you a word about the little PILGRIM. I can tell you I think it one of the best of papers, and we hail its coming with joy. When I read the pieces from the good brethren that I heard preach when a child, it makes my heart glad, and their sermons I shall never forget. Also, their kind words to me when gathered at my father's house, for my parents were members of the Church, though I am still outside of it, yet they taught me their faith and I will never forget it. I often feel sad when I cannot hear them preach as there is no Church here, and I have many hindrances to keep me from going any distance. I have often wondered why the Brethren don't build more churches, are they not able?

I think with that good brother D. P. S., they don't preach enough, I love to read his articles, with many others that write for the PILGRIM, but I am making my letter too lengthy though I could say much more. I will now ask you to send me one of brother J. S. Flory's tracts, I wish to read it, then give it to some friends who profess Mourner's bench religion. As I am not a member of the Church, I suppose you will not publish this as it was not written for that purpose, yet if you do I have no objection as what I have written is exactly what I mean.

S. A. D.

You are right.—It is in the family circle that our brethren sometimes do the loudest and most effective preaching, and we are glad that you have not forgotten the profitable admonitions there received, and fondly trust, may not until they lead you safely into the fold of Jesus. It is true, you may have many apparent difficulties to keep you away from God, but they are not real. A firm and abiding faith in a crucified Savior will disperse them as the morning dew melts before the rising sun. Let me advise you to persuade yourself that Jesus is "all in all," and without Him you are lost! miserably lost!!

Outside of the Covenant there is no promise, and unless you accept the spirits warning voice and enter the Vineyard of the Lord, all those admonitions and prayers will stand against you at the judgment. It is true, Churches and the associations of kindred spirits are blessed means of grace, but it is also true that the time has come that they who will worship the Father, must do it in "spirit and in truth." In this land of religious liberty and means of grace, there is nothing to excuse us for remaining outside.

DIED.

WINE.—In the Beaver Creek Congregation, near Ottobine, Va., after a painful suffering of three weeks of Typhoid Fever, our worthy sister Mary M. wife of brother Samuel N. Wine, aged 27 yrs. 3 months and 24 days.

She leaves a sorrowing husband and two adopted children and many friends to mourn their loss, but we sorrow not as those without hope. Funeral services by Bro. Jacob Thomas and others, from 2nd Samuel, 14: 14, to a large congregation.

G. W. WINE.

FAHRNEY.—On the 16th of May, in Waynesboro, Pa., Horace Mann Fahrney, son of David D. and Susan Fahrney aged 7 years—less 2 days.

In the death of this little dwarf boy the parents feel deeply grieved. He was very much afflicted, but always exhibited a cheerful and pleasant spirit—which not only awakened sympathy for him on the part of his numerous friends—but caused him to take a deeper hold upon the affections of his parents.

But He "who seeth the end from the beginning" saw that he was unable to meet life's great duties—and to protect him from the evil to come, He took him to himself.

"Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven." It is the voice of Jesus that has called your loved one, from a world of sin and sorrow to a home in heaven. Your lamb is sweetly resting upon the bosom of the Good Shepherd, in the heavenly fold, in the pastures so green, and by the waters so tranquil.

"Dreams may not picture a world so fair,
Sorrow and sin may not enter there,
Time doth not breathe on its fadeless bloom,
'Tis beyond the stars, and beyond the tomb."

BEAR.—On the 16th of April, 1872, Elder George Bear, aged 83 years and 3 months.

Brother Bear was for upwards of 40 years a consistent member of the Church. During that time he was considered worthy to serve the church in the capacity of Deacon, First and Second Degree in the Ministry, and for the last fifteen years as Elder or Bishop.

Many of our old travelling brethren, no doubt, recollect him, (when he lived in Middletown, Frederick county, Md.) at whose house they enjoyed the pleasant hospitality of himself and worthy companion. Sister Bear died in 1863. Bro. Bear since that time has lived among his relatives and friends, having no children. He attended as member of A. M. always at his own expense. Was considered a safe counsellor. He died at the house of Mr. C. F. Adolphus Fox, in Frederick City, Md—a relative. In his last hours he had the kind attentions of a number of near relatives—one of whom remarked to me, "Oh, I wish you could have been present to have witnessed his last moments." Another said: "I was standing near the bed and remarked to him—'Uncle, how sweetly you sing.' His answer was, (and I think they were his last words,) 'You know it was always my wish to be engaged to the last in the good work.'"

Thus died one whom the apostle Paul might have included (so intended no doubt) when he said, "Ye are our epistle written in our hearts, known and read of all men." He was buried beside his wife near Burkettsville. Funeral sermon preached by the writer, assisted by the brethren Castle and Yourtee. Text, 73d Psalm 24, 25.

E. SLIFER.

Please announce through the PILGRIM that we intend to hold a Lovefeast meeting, God willing, in the Cold Water Church, Iowa, on the 13th and 14th of July. The meeting will be held near Nora Springs, on the railroad of Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Minnesota. An invitation given to all and especially to ministering brethren.

J. F. EIKENBERRY.

EDITORIAL.

THE YELLOW CREEK AND SNAKE SPRING MEETINGS.

We had the pleasure of being present at both these meetings and enjoyed with our brethren and sisters the feast that is realized in attending to the ordinances of God's house. The first of these meetings opened on Thursday eve the 13th, and at an early hour the large church house was filled to overflowing. The weather being warm the heat was oppressive in doors yet the best of order prevailed over the entire assembly. We have seldom seen less disorder and confusion among the spectators than we did on this occasion, and we do think that the young men and women of Yellow Creek are of a higher type than we have seen elsewhere. We have been present at places where the attending to of the ordinances of God's house gave occasion for much levity among some of the young folks. Such a feeling is the index of a light and contracted mind, with very little or no principle at all. Our young friends may not see things in the same light we do, and therefore cannot attach the same importance to these ordinances that we do, yet good breeding would forbid them to make light of anything held so sacred and dear by their christian friends. We are glad to say we saw nothing of the kind among our young friends at Yellow Creek, and it did us good to see such evident manifesations of correct moral principles. We have a kind remembrance of you, and how very, very much pleased we would be to hear of you enlisting with us in the service of Jesus.

The ministerial force were as follows: Eld. Graybill Myers, of Warriors Mark; J. W. Brumbaugh and J. S. Snowberger, of Clover Creek; Geo. S. Myers,, of Lewistown, J. B. Miller, of Alum Bank, Eld. Jacob Steel, H. Hershberger, H. Clapper and David Clapper, of Snake Spring. The next morning a large audience again assembled for public worship. The meeting was a good one. Not only were the brethren and sisters built up and encouraged on their way Ziouward, but we have reason to believe that some who are yet without the fold may look back to this time as being the period when they made the glorious resolve to return unto the Shepherd and Bishop of their souls.

On Thursday before the opening of the meeting three were immersed and the next morning three more, making in all six additions during the meeting.

The meeting at Snake Spring commenced on Saturday at 10 o'clock.—This meeting was also largely attended. At an early hour the grove surrounding the church house was lined with buggies and other vehicles. By the time for services the house was filled, and a goodly number remaining outside. Some of these, perhaps, were fully as well satisfied, as we are fearful that all did not come in the name of Jesus. The brethren at this place retain the old order, commencing at 10 o'clock and feed the entire multitude. They do it freely and willingly and with the best of motives. But there are times and circumstances under which it is not prudent to exercise charity, and we, for our part, have never been very favorably impressed with the idea of feeding the multitude at such times. Christ did feed the people on certain occasions. Once when the multitude had followed Him into a desert place, but was the design that they might be fed, or was it to perform a miracle? The disciples had not yet been taught that it was a duty to feed the people, for they besought Him that He would send the multitude away, that they might go into the village, and buy themselves victuals. But Jesus said they need not depart, give ye them to eat. The disciples said, we have here only five loaves and two fishes. They were surprised that the Savior would have them feed so many people with so small a supply. But there was a miracle to be performed, and the people were really satisfied. So in every instance in which Jesus fed the multitude there was a design separate from that of satisfying the physical wants; and from this consideration it has always seemed rather doubtful to us whether the church house, the place for the solemn worship of God, is the proper place for the exercising of these charities. While seated at the table eating, a man who had never attended our meeting before remarked that the place reminded him of one of the large hotels in New York. Is it possible that a place so sacred and divine as the sanctuary should present such an appearance. We confess the thought struck us quite forcibly. Of course he was aware that if there was a large number fed, it was all done without money and without price, and in this particular it was different at least. We do not write thus to condemn the practice of our brethren. It may be all right, we are not disposed to force our views upon others, but it may, perhaps, be well to give these things an occasional thought for fear we might cultivate a zeal for things that are not according to godliness.

The ministers present were the same as at the previous meeting with the exception of the absence of Geo. Myers and J. B. Miller, and the presence of George Hanawalt, of Spring Run, and George Brumbaugh, of James Creek. The first part of the third chapter of John was read for the basis of a subject. The New Birth was the theme, and some very intelligible illustrations of it were made by Eld. Graybill Myers and others. After services it was found that six more were willing to enter the fold and were buried with Christ in baptism.

During the evening the order was tolerably good considering the crowd, the larger part of the house being occupied by members. This congregation being very large, it was thought good to divide it, which division is now effected. Brother Andrew Snowberger was ordained bishop of the new congregation after which services again opened. Ephesians 6: 10 was chosen as a text, from which we were highly entertained by brother George Hanawalt and others. Spiritual strength with an exposition of spiritual wickedness in high places was the subject. The meeting on the whole was a good one, and we have it to say, it was good for us to be there.

After services we hurried off to attend the first appointment in the new meeting house at Waterside. The brethren have built a neat and comfortable little house for worship at this place. The meeting was largely attended and all seemed pleased with the sermon. This ended the series of meetings and we homeward bound to again engage in the duties that are incumbent upon us in this life.

J. B. B.

PERSONAL.

Sister M. A. Moomaw, wife of Eld. B. F. M. of Va., who is now staying at "Our Home," Dansville, New York, with her son, says: "PILGRIM No. 24 has come to hand. It gives me much pleasure to hear from brethren and sisters and good news from the churches, more especially the proceedings of last A. M.

* * * * * * * * Permit me to say that we are very pleasautly situated here and have the pleasure of realizing our fondest expectations, in that our son is improving, and, from present appearance, will doubtless regain his health. I feel to exclaim as did Moses when he said to the Israelites: "Stand still and see the salvation of God."

There are at present, about one hundred and seventy patients from all parts of the United States and Canada. We have every comfort amply supplied—good Hygienic diet in abundance, with well furnished rooms. The two meal system is the order of the day, and, by the way, we think it a good idea.

We have the benefit of several lectures from Dr. Jackson, Physician-in-chief, which, in themselves, are of great value. We have meetings for preaching, prayer and the reading of the Scriptures, by the Dr. and ministers of different persuasions, who are patients at the "Cure." There is a marked kindness and respect manifested towards each other, and not much display of fashion, all seem as one great family.

After resigning us to the great Physician in Heaven, I will now leave here for my home in Va, leaving my son to remain some eight or ten months. May the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ and the Communion of the Holy Spirit rest and abide on us all."

NEW SUBSCRIBERS.—We are happy to say that during A. Meeting and since, our list has encouragingly been going upwards. The general inquiry is, "How much is the PILGRIM from now to the end of the year." We will give you a rule by which all can determine for themselves. Fifty numbers complete the volume, therefore good paper, which we recommend, is worth 3 cents per number. From report of A. M., there will 27 numbers, 81 cts., or from this number to end of the year, 24 Nos., 72 cts. and so on to end of the year, every No. 3 cts. less. For convenience we accept even change. For 81 we take 80, for 72, send 70 or 75, the latter is preferable.

Eld. George Wolf says: "I am well pleased with Eld. Flory's Tract. The first page might have been left off, and been as good and full. Atonement, the key note of the song of redemption, of fallen man, is beautifully illustrated, showing that reconciliation between God and man has taken place, or does take place, when we accept of God's law and obey it. The Tract speaks for itself and ought to be read and well considered by all lovers of the truth."

PLEASE NOTICE.—In our outside notice, we neglected to change the prices of Eld. J. S. Flory's Tracts. Our present prices are as follows:

2 copies	10 cts.
10 "	40 cts.
25 "	75 cts.
50 "	$1.00.
100 "	1.50.

Communications of all kinds are solicited for our columns and our PILGRIM. We hold it as common property brethren and sisters and wish you all to feel interested in making it a good paper.

We can still supply new subscribers with back Nos. from A. M. Only 80cts. for book, or 70 cts. for common paper.

ELLEN MULL.—The Tracts were sent—we send them again. Hope you may receive them this time.

JAMES L. SEARS.—We received $2.50 from you on the 27th of Dec. which pays for J. Philips and P. Wilt.

SAMUEL WINE.—We will lose the three months. The change has been made.

B. F. D.—All right. Thank you for the effort you are making to have the PILGRIM introduced.

If you think your neighbor is being deluded by the voice of mourners bench religion send for tracts upon that subject and give to him or her.

Money List, Correspondence &c., crowded out.

WEATHER AND CROP REPORTS.

OREGON.

OSWEGO, April, 30. '72.

From the middle of March to the 10th of April the weather was dry and warm; since then, rainy and cold. The crops of grain are looking splendidly; but the weather is unfavorable for fruits and vegetables; still I trust we shall have good crops of both, as a failure has not been known since I have been in the State—some twenty years.

A. R. SNIPLEY.

MISSOURI.

GREENTOP, Schuyler Co., May 10, '72.

Season wet, cold and late; winter wheat a total failure in all this section of country this season. G. W. R.

WARRENSBURG, Johnson co., May 10, '72.

Season wet at present, late; wheat $1 75a 1 80, corn, 40c; oats look pretty well, 35c; potatoes, $1 50; butter, 20@25c; cheese, 20@25; lard, 8@10.

Prospect for all kinds of fruit good. S.

IOWA.

FARMERSBURG, May 10, '72.

Season late and cold; winter has been long and quite severe; spring wheat looks well for the time it was sown, as does all spring grain; no winter wheat raised on the prairies; corn planting just commenced but progressing slowly, by reason of unfavorable weather; fruit prospects good; grass looks green but affords little feed as yet; wheat $1 40@1 45; corn, 30c; oats, 30c; hay, $10, barley, 40, potatoes, 40@50.

E. P. H.

NEW YORK.

CLYDE, May 11, '72.

Season dry and cold until to-day, it is warmer; wheat looking thrifty but drouth injures it, $1 70@1 80; just commenced planting corn, it is worth 60c; oats, none up yet, 40c for old; hay, $15; barley, 65c@$1; potatoes, 50@60. J. W.

OHIO.

SIDNEY, May 7, '72.

Season dry; crops favorable; wheat, $1 75; corn, 40c; oats, 35c, hay, $8; potatoes, 60; beef on foot, 3½c; pork, 3½; butter, 20c; eggs, 7c; wool, 60c; dried fruit, 4@10c.

J. S. R.

MISSISSIPPI.

RIPLEY, Tippah County, May 5, '72.

We are having a very late spring here; have had a few very warm days, but the last week has been remarkably cool; some frost on the third; since the heavy spring rains ceased we are having excessively dry weather, and crops are more backward than I have seen for several years. J. W. H.

ILLINOIS.

METROPOLIS, May 1, '72.

Spring very late but has been very warm for the past ten days, which has advanced crops very rapidly; winter wheat looks very well, one foot high; large breadth sown; corn not half planted; prospect for fruit was never better; caterpillars have made their appearance, but they don't promise to be quite as large a crop of them as for the past two years, for which we feel thankful; wheat, $1 80@2; corn 40c; potatoes, 75c; hay, $10; butter, 25c; eggs, 12½c. D. F.

KNOXVILLE, May 2, '72.

Season wet and late; wheat fair, $1 25@1 40; corn, 28@30c; oats, 25@30; hay, $6@8; barley, 40@50c; potatoes, 70@80; beef on foot, 4(@4½c; hogs on foot, 3¾@4c; sheep, $5@5 50; butter, 12@15c; cheese, 16@20c.

The above are approximate prices, may not be exact. G. L. H.

NEW JERSEY.

EGG HARBOR CITY, May 6, '72.

Ground very dry, and destructive fires raging in the woods during the past few weeks, frequently threatening the dwellings; fruit prospects good with exception of peaches which were badly winter killed; winter grain appears better than last month; garden vegetables are backward. V. P. M.

KANSAS.

WACO, Sedgwick County, May 13, '72.

The weather for the past month has been cool and rather dry, consequently grass and winter wheat are backward; corn planted April 17th to 20th came up well, and is now ready for cultivation. M. C.

UTAH.

MANTI, Sanpete County, May 1, '72.

Season wet cold and late; wheat backward. $1 25; corn, $1; oats, $1; hay $10; potatoes, 50c; beef, 8c; butter, 20c; cheese, 20c; wool, in rolls, 75 cents. W. T. R.

GEORGIA.

NASHVILLE, Berrien Co., April 30, '72.

Season fine; corn scarce indeed, $1 25; oats, 1; cotton, 20@21c; great potato country; never fail to make them in abundance; sugar cane grows almost to perfection; beef, 12c; pork, 3c; sheep, $1 50; lard, 15; wool, 50c; fruit is generally sorry. L. E. L.

WISCONSIN.

CRYSTAL LAKE, Waupaca co., May, '72.

Season dry, cold and late; wheat good, $1 30@1 35; corn, 45@50c; oats, 35@40c; hay, 8, potatoes, 60c; sheep, 3@5; butter, 16@20c; lard, 11c; light fall of snow on 21st; all left in two hours. W. E.

WEST VA., Wirt Co., June 3d.

Wheat will average about a half crop. Oats so far, looks badly and corn very indifferent on account of the cut worms. The apple crop is promising, also peaches and cherries on high localities. The season is very dry and cold for the time of year.

E. G.

Advertisements.

GOOD BOOKS.

A large number of our patrons are receiving our books as noticed below, as premiums, and express themselves highly pleased with them. Others who are not agents, have enquired whether we keep them for sale. We have now made arrangements with Mr. Wells to furnish any of their publications post paid at publishers prices. Orders for books must be accompanied with the cash, and plain directions for sending them.

Conversion of St. Paul. By George Jarvis Geer, D. D. 12mo. fine edition, $1. Plain edition, 75 cents.

Footprints of Life; or, Faith and Nature Reconciled.—A Poem in three parts. The Body. The Soul. The Deity. By Philip Harvey, M. D. $1.25.

Fruit Culture for the Million. A Hand book. being a Guide to the Cultivation and Management of Fruit Trees. Descriptions of the Best Varieties, and How to Propagate them. illustrated $1.00.

Hand-book for Home Improvement: comprising "How to Write," "How to Talk," How to Behave," and "How to do Business," in one vol. 2.25.

How to Live; Saving and Wasting, or Domestic Economy. By Solon Robinson. $1.50.

Hopes and Helps for the Young of both sexes, Relating to the Formation of Character. Choice of Avocation, Health, Conversation, Cultivation of Intellect, Moral Sentiments, Social Affection Courtship and Marriage. By Rev. G. S. Weaver. Muslin, $1.50.

Life at Home; or, The Family and its Members. Husbands, Wives, Parents, Children, Brothers, Sisters, Employers and Employed, etc. By Rev. William Aikman, D. D. A work which should be found in every family. $1.50. Extra gilt, $2.00.

Man and Woman: Considered in their Relations to each Other and to the World. By Henry C. Pedder. 12mo, Fancy cloth. Price $1.00.

Man, in Genesis and in Geology; or, the Biblical Account of Man's Creation, tested by Scientific Theories of his Origin and Antiquity. By Joseph P. Thompson, D. D., LL.D. One vol. 12mo, $1.00.

Oratory—Sacred and Secular; or, the Extemporaneous Speaker. Including Chairman's Guide for conducting Public Meetings according to the best Parliamentary forms. By Wm. Pittenger. $1.50.

The Emphatic, Diaglott; or The New Testament in Greek and English. Containing the Original Greek Text of the New Testament, with an Interlineary Word for-word English Translation. A Work for Students in Theology, and S. S. Teachers. By Benjamin Wilson. Price, $4,00; extra fine binding. $5.00.

The Right Word in the Right Place. A New Pocket Dictionary and Reference Book. Embracing Synonyms, Technical Terms, Abbreviations, Foreign Phrases, Writing for the Press, Punctuation, Proof-Reading, and other Valuable Information. Cloth, 75cts.

Weaver's Works for the Young. Comprising "Hopes and Helps for the Young of both Sexes," "Aids and Aims for Girls and Young Women," "Ways of Life; or, the Right Way and the Wrong Way," $3

Italian Queen Bees,

FOR SALE.

Purity and safe arrival guaranteed. Sent pest paid, at $2.25 each.

Address,
ISAAC HEDDING,
Lewistown, Box 160,
Jun. 24-tf. Mifflintown Co., Pa.

Menno Simon's
COMPLETE WORKS.

In English, translated from the original Dutch or Holland, giving the whole of the great Reformers writings on the subject of Baptism. Price in full sheep $4.50; by mail $5.14.

Address, JOHN F. FUNK & BRO.,
May 2:-3m. Elkhart, Ind.

ACENTS WANTED FOR
"JESUS."
BY CHARLES F. DEEMS, D. D.
His divinely established and rationalism routed. The most popular and rapidly-selling religious work ever issued. For Circulars, address U. S. PUBLISHING CO., N. Y.

New Hymn Books, English.

TURKEY MOROCCO

One copy,	post-paid,	$1 00
Per Dozen,		11 25

PLAIN ARABSQUE.

One Copy,	post-paid,	75
Per Dozen,	"	8 50

PLAIN SHEEP.

One Copy,	post-paid,	75
Per Dozen;	"	8 50

Ger'n & English, Plain Sheep.

One Copy	post-paid	$ 1 00
Per Dozen		11 25
Arabesque plain,		1.00
Turkey morocco,		$ 1.25.
Single German	post-paid,	50
Per Dozen,		5 50

1870 1872

DR. FAHRNEY'S
Blood Cleanser or Panacea.

A tonic and purge, for Blood Diseases. Great reputation. Many testimonials. Many ministering brethren use and recommend it. Ask or send for the "Health Messenger." Use only the "Panacea" prepared at Chicago, Ills., and by

Dr. P. Fahrney's Brothers & Co.,
Mar. 29-pd. Waynesboro, Franklin Co., Pa.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

A number of responsible advertisements not conflicting with the design of our work will be admitted on our outside pages on the following terms:

Single insertion, per line,	10 cts.
Three months, per line, each time,	8 cts.
Six months, do do do,	6 cts.
One Year, do do do,	5 cts.

☞ Transient advertisements must be paid for in advance; standing advertisements quarterly on presentation of bill.

TRACTS.

"ANXIOUS BENCH RELIGION EXAMINED," by Elder J. S. Flory, is a Tract now ready for distribution, of which the following is a brief synopsis of the contents: A short and pointed address to the reader. The motive that prompted him to write, and his responsibilities as a minister; The peculiarities attending this type of religion; The feelings there experienced, not imaginary but real, The key that unlocks the wonderful mystery; It is not the workings of God after the order and plan of salvation; Man's endowment, his imitative principle—emanated from God; Spiritual influences and intercourse; Relation existing between man and God, and man and man; The fraternal bond and our natural affinities established by the "so called" sciences of Electro Biology; Mesmerism and Psychology or science of the soul, also, "Spiritualism" "Spiritual Rappings," &c. The causes by which the feelings are excited; Sympathy of the nervous system, and how that momentary feeling of joy is brought about, called, "Experimental Religion; Similar feelings may be brought about when there are no religious pretensions; Our reasons why we think this modus operandi of getting religion is not according to the Gospel, and then concludes by pointing out that form of doctrine as taught by Jesus Christ, and recorded by His faithful witness.

These tracts will be sent to all post paid, on the following terms: Single copy 10cts, 10 copies 70 cents, 20 copies $1.20, 50 copies $2.50, 100 copies $4.00.

Trine Immersion.

A discussion on Trine Immersion, by letter between Elder B. F. Moomaw and Dr J. J. Jackson, to which is annexed a Treatise on the Lord's Supper, and on the necessity, character and evidences of the new birth, also a dialogue on the doctrine of non-resistance, by Elder B. F. Moomaw. Single copy 50 cents.

HUNTINGDON & BROAD TOP RAIL ROAD

Summer Arrangement.

On an after Tuesday, June 4, 1872, Passenger trains will arrive and depart as follows:

Trains from Huntingdon South. Trains from Bedford moving North.

MAIL. A. M.	ACCOM P. M.	STATIONS.	MAIL. P. M.	ACCOM A. M.
*lv*8 20	LE6 00	Huntingdon,	AR5 25	AR9 10
8 28	6 06	Long Siding	5 17	9 00
8 45	6 19	McConnelstown	5 04	8 45
8 51	6 25	Pleasant Grove	4 58	8 39
9 05	6 37	Marklesburg	4 45	8 27
9 20	6 51	Coffee Run	4 33	8 11
9 27	6 58	Rough & Ready	4 26	8 04
9 39	7 10	Cove	4 12	7 52
9 43	7 15	Fishers Summit	4 08	7 48
10 03	7 35	Saxton	3 48	le 7 28
10 10	7 53	Saxton		*ar*7 10
10 27	8 10	Riddlesburg	3 30	6 53
10 34	8 17	Hopewell	3 22	6 46
10 51	8 35	Piper's Run	3 06	6 30
11 10	8 55	Tatesville	2 48	6 12
11 22	9 08	Bloody Run	2 33	6 00
11 26	9 12	Mount Dallas	2 29	5 56
11 32	9 19	Ashcom's Mills	2 22	5 50
11 36	9 23	Lutzville	2 18	5 46
11 40	9 27	Hartley's Mills	2 14	5 42
11 46	9 34	Jamesons	2 07	5 36
*r*11 22	*ar*9 40	Bedford	LE2 00	LE5 30

JOHN M'KILLIPS, Supt

THE PILGRIM,

Published by J. B. Brumbaugh, & Co.
Edited by H. B. & Geo. Brumbaugh.

CORRESPONDING EDITORS.

D. P. Sayler, Double Pipe Creek, Md.
Leonard Furry, New Enterprise, Pa.

The Pilgrim is a Christian Periodical, devoted to religion and moral reform. It will advocate in the spirit of love and liberty, the principles of true Christianity, labor for the promotion of peace among the people of God, for the encouragement of the saints and for the conversion of sinners, avoiding those things which tend toward disunion or sectional feelings.

TERMS.

Single copy, one year,	$1.25.
Book paper, " "	1.50.
Eleven copies, [eleventh for Agt.]	$12.50.

Any number above that at the same rate,

Address.

H. B. BRUMBAUGH,
James Creek,
Huntingdon county Pa.

Merkin Pilgrim.

"REMOVE NOT THE ANCIENT LANDMARKS WHICH OUR FATHERS HAVE SET."

VOL. 3 JAMES CREEK, PENNSYLVANIA, JULY 2, 1872. NO. 27.

POETRY.

For the Pilgrim.

SUBMISSION TO CHRIST.

ACROSTIC.

When Jesus Christ was here below
Reminding people what to do,
In all he done he taught that we
To all his words should subject be.
Then let us yield the heart and head
E'er praise the Lord for what he said;
No more give way to sin and wrong,
But e'er in Jesus Christ be strong.
Ye young and gay come form a band,
Each seek a home in Canaan's land;
Make heav'nly things your chief delight,
Make earthly pleasures take their flight.
All things that may to ruin tend
No longer, now, will we defend;
Upon the Word which Jesus sent
Each mind will now in prayer be spent.
Let us cause gospel beams, sublime,
Upon the world through us to shine;
May all our lives in worship spent,
Be, with our minds on Jesus bent.
As we are weak and apt to stray
Upon sin's broad, destructive way.
'Gainst sin we should more firmly strive,
Here, a more holy life revive.

ORIGINAL ESSAYS.

For the Pilgrim.

"AND THEY HAD ON THEIR HEADS CROWNS OF GOLD." Rev.

In the vision of Patmos John had many cheering views of the future glory of the saints. He saw them lifted from trials and tribulations here to infinite joy and peace at God's right hand. Among other honors which he saw paid to them was the conferring of crowns, which they wore with dignity, or cast at the feet of Jesus. Such a crown now decorates the head of every saint in glory, and will decorate the head of every one who shall go up from this world to swell the chorus of the redeemed.—Will such a crown be ours? If so we shall be happy. It will be a crown of righteousness. The saints will not wear it as a usurper. He will not appear in heaven with a diadem which does not belong to him. By a union with Christ, the disciple is brought into Sonship with God, and shares with Christ the royal honors of His Father's empire.

Many of the crowns which have been worn by earthly monarchs have been stolen by other heads, and worn only by the right which might gives. But all through eternity the saint will feel that his crown is his right, through his sublime faith in Him who is the Head over all things. I do not mean the christian will claim a crown in heaven on the basis of his own merits. No, these are too few and worthless, and with these alone he would rather hide his face in the dust, than lift it up before God. The righteousness which he claims is that which Christ wrought out, and which faith has transferred to him, through the Gospel. It is a perfect righteousness which needs no amendment, but will shine brighter and brighter as eternal ages roll away. Nor will any one dispute the right and title of the christian to his crown. The crowns monarchs wear are often made a matter of dispute. Nations are convulsed, armies are arrayed, and scenes of dreadful bloodshed are witnessed. But the christian's crown was won without a single drop of blood being shed by hostile armies, and it will be retained without military assistance. It is secured without fraud, and it will be worn without injustice. It will be rusted by no widow's tears and orphan's blood. It will have no inscriptions of revenge or hate; it will be menaced with no frowns and reproaches; it will merit no scorn and contempt; it will never be stricken off or taken away. Such a crown will decorate the head of every child of God, as he appears in glory and takes his high position before God.

Whatever may have been his earthly condition, beggar or slave, he will secure his royal honors from hands which never gave in vain. This enables him to go through the river of death, saying, death has lost its sting, through Christ our Lord, henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which God the righteous Judge shall give me in the presence of all my foes. It will be a crown of possession; it will give happiness. It gives honor. Whenever the christian's head, encircled with his crown, appears, it is covered with glory. It gives purity. It denotes exalted holiness. It contains a mystic charm to guard the possessor from all temptations and sin. In a word, the christian's crown gives him all he wants, all he asks for, and all he can think about. All things he is entitled to, for all things are Christ's and Christ is God's. It will be a crown of life. No head wears a crown long on earth. Death strikes it off, and lays its wearer low in the grave. But the crown which the christian will wear in heaven will confer upon its possessor perpetual life. What a prospect is here before the christian! How consoling under trials! How elevating to our faith! how must it reconcile us to the departure of friends, who are given to us awhile that we may give them back to God. The parent can lose his child with the prospect of heaven before him; the mother can bury her daughter, and dream of her as a harping spirit, a sweet angel of life and glory. Who would not wish to wear the crown—the triple crown which giveth all things. All may wear it: the rich the poor, the bond, the free, the learned, the ignorant. It is offered to all who are willing to purchase it by a life of holy meekness, and confiding trust in the Lord Jesus Christ.

Brother PILGRIM, sister Hannah Whisler, of Mechanicsburg, Pa., said she is a reader of your worthy paper, and she requested me to write a piece for its pages. Sister Hannah and I met some six years ago, at, or near, Johnstown, at a Lovefeast. She had come 180 or 190 miles to that place, and I had come about the same distance. She was then a member of the M. E. Church and had been for some forty years. By hearing the Word preached, she was brought to the Church. Baptized by brother Cobaugh, who is gone to his reward. She is now past 75 years of age. A sister of excellent talent. I now close, requesting her to give us a sketch of her fellowship with us, through the PILGRIM.

JOHN NICHOLSON.

Shanesville, Ohio.

The cultivation of such manners as shall express all the best feelings, the noblest thoughts, the refinement and graces of the mind and the heart, is a thing which cannot be thought too highly of, nor set about too soon.

THE POOR.

They are made by God. "The rich and the poor meet together; the Lord is the maker of them all."—Prov. 22: 2. That God has something to do with the disposition of events, we must believe, and that for a wise purpose too. God has His ways and it is said, they are as high above our ways as the Heavens are above the earth, yet many of them are revealed to us for our instruction and good. "They meet together." That this is so, is evident both from history and observation, but why has God made them? Ah, yes, why? "How hardly shall the rich enter the Kingdom of Heaven?" It is not because God has so abundantly blessed them, but it is because they refuse to make the proper use of that which He has entrusted in their care.

Some are made rich and some are made poor, but they are all to dwell together and all are to live, and as it all comes from God, He wants us to look at it in this light, and just so soon as we can do this, the poor receive their share. It is God's will that there may be poor in order to try the rich. It is morally unjust that we should be miserly with that which God has given us, and thus distress the poor who dwell among us and who are equally precious in the sight of the Lord. That you should be liberal towards the poor is an injunction enforced upon almost every page of the Bible.

God careth for them. "And to the poor the Gospel is preached." It is generally thought that people are poor through some neglect of duty, but that care that Christ manifested towards them seem to wave the argument the other way. He never sanctioned anything that was morally wrong, yet we find that to the poor He granted special favors, and in their character saw something so good that He was made to say: "Theirs is the Kingdom of Heaven." Then if Jesus, who was rich and coequal with God, manifested so much liberality and care towards the poor, should we, who have been blessed with this world's goods, close our bowels of compassion towards them, especially those of a like precious

BIOGRAPHY OF HORACE GREELEY.

Although we profess not to be of the world, yet we must live in it while in the flesh and therefore, feel more or less concerned in regard to those who are to rule over us, and as Mr. Greely is one of the candidates now presented to the American people for its highest honors and most important trust, no doubt it will be interesting to our many readers to learn something reliable in regard to his history and character. The following we extract from the Phrenological Journal, which is not the result of a political preference, but in harmony with the spirit and design of the work.

Horace Greeley was born at Amherst, N. H., February 3d. 1811, and is the oldest survivor of seven children. His father and mother were both born a few miles eastward of Amherst; the latter in Londonderry, N. H., of Scotch-Irish lineage (her maiden name Woodburn), the former in that town of Pelham, of English extraction; but both families had long been settled in that region—the Woodburns since 1723. All his ancestors, so far as there exists any remembrance, were farmers—the Greeleys generally poor, the Woodburns in comfortable circumstances, having been allotted a good tract of one hundred and twenty acres in the first settlement of Londonderry, which still remains in the family—the property of an uncle of the subject of this sketch, who, when not quite three years of age, was taken to spend the winter thereon, in the family of his maternal grandfather, with whom he was early a favorite. After the novelty of his visit had worn off, he was sent to the district school, a few rods off, rather to diminish the trouble of looking after him in a large family of grown persons, than in the hope of his learning anything. But he had already been taught the alphabet, and the rapidity with which he passed from this to the first class in reading and spelling is still a matter of vivid local remembrance and even fabulous exaggeration. At four years of age he could read and spell creditably; at five he was esteemed at least equal, in those branches, to any one attending the school. He continued at his grandfather's during most of the school months—usually six in each year—until six years old, the school in his father's district being two miles from the family dwelling. But he evinced no such faculty for learning the higher branches. Grammar, commenced at five, was not fairly comprehended until eight, nor mastered until sometime later. In Geography proper (the relation of places to each other) he was not proficient, though the historical and other statistics intermingled therewith were easily and rapidly acquired. Penmanship utterly defied all his exertions; and it was only when he came, some years later, to take up the elementary Arithmetic of the common schools, that he found himself able to press forward with his infantile celerity. He could not remember the time when he had not the Multiplication Table at command, and all the processes of school arithmetic seemed to him but obvious applications of, or deductions from this. But his schooldays in summer ended with his seventh year, and in winter with his fourteenth, being much interrupted at earlier periods by the necessities of a life of poverty and labor. He never enjoyed the benefits of a day's teaching in any other than a rural common school generally of two or four months each winter and summer, and these very far inferior to the schools of the present day, even in the least favored sections of New York or New England.

When not quite ten years of age, his father lost his little property in New Hampshire, and removed to West Haven, Vt., near the head of Lake Champlain, where he remained nearly six years. The first two were employed in land-clearing upon contract, with the aid of his two sons; the next, in a saw-mill, while the boys worked on a small, poor farm; the residue, in clearing and farming upon shares. During these years, as before, our subject was favored with the loan of books and periodicals, by neighbors of ampler resources, and devoted very much of his spare time to reading, especially in the winter evenings, when the labors of the long days of summer, which so severely tax the sinews of a youth of ten or twelve years, had been succeeded by shorter days and lighter tasks.

At eleven years of age he made (at Whitehall, N. Y.) his first attempt to find employment as an apprentice to printing, which he had previously decided to follow as a vocation, but was rejected on account of his youth. Afterward, he could with difficulty be spared. When he was fifteen, his father found himself enabled to make a long-meditated tour of observation westward, with a view to the removal of his family; and now the eldest son was permitted to gratify the cherished desire of his heart, by entering (April 18th, 1826), as an apprentice, the printing office of the Northern Spectator, at East Poultney, Rutland Co., Vt. Here he remained more than four years, until late in June, 1830, when the paper was discontinued.

Meantime, his father and family had removed, in the fall of 1826, to Wayne, Erie County, Pa., where he visited them in 1828 and 1829, and whither he repaired, on quitting Poultney, in 1830. Working by spells on their rude wilderness farm, and when opportunity offered, at his trade, in Jamestown and Lodi, N. Y., and in Erie, Pa., he remained in that region for a little more than a year, finally quitting it, when work ran out, about the 1st of August, 1831, for New York, where he arrived on the 16th of that month, and has ever since resided. He worked as a journeyman during the first year and a half of his stay, with some unavoidable interruptions, through want of employment, until early in 1833, when, in connection with another young printer, he purchased materials, and undertook the printing of a cheap daily newspaper, for a man who failed soon afterward. Other printing was soon procured, less promising, but better paid. His first partner was suddenly taken away by drowning, in July; another took his place; the concern was moderately prosperous; and in the following spring (March 22d, 1834), our subject issues, without subscribers, and almost without friends, in a city where he was hardly known beyond the circle of his boarding-house and his small business, the first number of the New Yorker, a weekly journal, devoted to popular literature and an impartial summary of transpiring events. That paper was continued through seven years and a half, having a circulation which rose, at one time, to over nine thousand, and averaged more than five thousand throughout, but was never pecuniarily profitable, owing, in good part, to bad management in the publishing department. In September, 1841, it was merged into the weekly issue of the New York Tribune, started as a daily paper on the 10th of April in that year, and still continued under his editorial management.

He was married in July, 1836, to Mary G. Cheney, of Litchfield, Conn. They have had five children, of whom only two daughters survive.

The course of Mr. Greely since he began the publication of the Tribune is so well known that we scarcely need say more. Let it suffice that he has been one of the most industrious workers upon the American newspaper press; has lived a strictly temperate life—using neither alcoholic liquors nor tobacco in any form—is a circumspect husband, a kind and indulgent father, and in all respects a sober, honest, intelligent, law-abiding, and well-behaved American citizen. Besides editing one of the most—probably the most—influential journal in America, he has found time to write several important works, the most elaborate of which is a history of the great rebellion, "The American Conflict," his copyright on which, we are informed, has amounted to nearly a hundred thousand dollars. "Hints Toward Reform," first published by the Harpers, then by ourselves, had a considerable sale. More recently, "What I Know about Farming" has reached fifty thousand copies or more, and has become a by-word throughout the country. Mr. Greeley also contributes to the magazine literature of the country, and writes essays for religious and other weeklies.

SELF-KNOWLEDGE.

At the basis of all success in life lie knowledge, education, and training. If a man attempts to be a merchant, he must have an education for it, must be trained for it. If a man is to be a manufacturer, he must be trained for it. If a man is to be a mechanic, he must learn his art. If he is to be a professional man, he must have a preparation for it. There is no pathway in life in which a man can walk successfully without training; for though a man disciplined to business may sometimes change his occupation, it is by careful study, examination, learning the relation of things, that he becomes qualified for his business. And so, if we would walk in life's pathway successfully, and triumph over difficulties, we must be educated or trained for it.

We must learn our nature; "know thyself" lies at the foundation of great success. A man must study himself; and no man can succeed who does not examine thoroughly his own temperament and disposition. Just as there are no two faces precisely alike—there will be a little difference in the color of the eye, or in the relation of the features, or in the tint of the skin, or the shade of the hair—so there is no person who is precisely like another in physical conformation, neither is there any man or woman who can be a perfect pattern for another.

No man can live for me, for no man is like me; and it would be very unsafe for me to take any human being for my absolute pattern. God has given me an individuality, and there are some things in which I am unlike any other individual who ever lived, or ever will live; and that I may know how such a being can be trained, how managed, and succeed best, I must study myself, my nature, my weakness, my defects, my peculiar liabilities to go wrong, the weak points at which I may be assailed. My friends may not know, my enemies may not know, no one may be aware of them except myself and God. But if I ever succeed, I must understand them, and I must say: "At that point I must place a double guard; that point must be strengthened; I must guard against it; that impulse, if strengthened or cultivated, will lead me wrong. I must keep out circumstances that would excite it, out of associations that would give it play. I must know myself, must train myself."—Bishop Simpson.

Riches.

It is a common saying—"Riches will not make you happy." What is to be deduced from it, admitting it to be true? Are we to conclude that property is not to be desired? It is true that riches will not make their possessors happy—that is to say, they are insufficient in themselves, to render one perfectly happy.

In the first place, there is no such thing as complete, unalloyed bliss, in this state of existences; and even the nearest approach to it is not attained without something besides wealth. It does not follow, however, that the possession of property—of a competency—does not contribute in a degree, to one's enjoyment.

The true import of the saying we have quoted is that those who rely solely on wealth for happiness will be disappointed—as they will be grievously. Happiness depends mainly on the culture of the mind and the heart; on the faithful performance of duty, in secret as well as openly, amid reproach and obloquy, as well as when cheered by words of encouragement or applause. It depends on courage to sustain us through the trials of this life, and the hope that extends to another. It depends on the love and confidence of kindred and friends, and acquaintances. What wealth or property can do towards promoting happiness, at the same time, is not inconsiderate. It relieves us from anxiety about the supply of our wants, and the wants of those dependent upon us, or near to our hearts. It supplies us with the means of intellectual culture, as well as of physical labor.

Personal Appearance of Jesus.

A correspondent of the Washington Chronicle writes: "On Sunday last Rev. Dr. Newman delivered a discourse upon the humanity of Jesus Christ, in which he stated that nothing had been handed down to us in regard to His personal appearance, many different views being entertained on that subject. Inclosed you will find a letter written by Publius Lentulus, president of Judea, and sent by him to the Senate of Rome, when the fame of Jesus begun to spread abroad in the world. These are his words:

"There lives at this time in Judea a man of singular virtue, whose name is Jesus Christ, whom the barbarians esteem a prophet, but His own followers adore him as the off-spring of the immortal God. He calls back the dead from their graves, and heals all sorts of diseases with a word or a touch. He is tall and well shaped; of an amicable reverend aspect. His hair of a color that can hardly be matched, falling into graceful curls below His ears, and very agreeably touching on His shoulders, parted on the crown of the head like the Nazarite. His forehead is smooth and large His cheeks without other spot save that of a lovely red; His nose and mouth formed with exquisite symmetry; His beard thick, and of a color suitable to the hair of His head, reaching an inch below His chin and parting in the middle like a fork; His eyes bright, clear and serene. He rebukes with majesty, counsels with mildness; His whole address, whether in word or deed, being elegant and grave. No man has seen him laugh, but He has wept frequently. He is very temperate, modest and wise; a man, for His excellent beauty and divine perfection, surpassing the children of men."

They who are the fullest of faith and richest in good works make the least sound; when their hearts and lives, like the face of Moses, shine brightly with grace and holiness, they do not, they will not know it. They consider their greatest light and lustre is but a reflection from the Father of lights, and therefore they have no reason to boast at all of borrowed goods.

No finer compliment has ever been paid to a man than that of Jean Paul to his friend Weisse, when he said that his face was a thanksgiving for all his former life, and a love-letter to all mankind."

A good conscience is better than two witnesses—it will consume grief as the Sun dissolves ice. It is a spring when you are thirsty, a staff when you are weary, a screen when the Sun burns, and a pillow in death.

YOUTHS' DEPARTMENT.

CHILD'S EVENING PRAYER.

Tender Savior! kind and gentle,
Sheltered by thy loving care,
Now before thee, humbly kneeling,
Hear my simple evening prayer.

Prayer and praise here blend together
In the offering that I bring,
For of sweet and nameless comforts,
Here and now my heart must sing.

Thanks for home and friends I render,
Care and counsels, too, as well;
Thanks for all thp love has purchased—
More than heart or tongue can tell.

Through another days temptation
Thou hast led my tender feet,
Safely kept them 'mid its dangers,
Crowned each hour with mercies sweet.

Oh forgive the last transgression
Thou hast seen in deed or thought;
Give me grace to love Thee truly,
And to serve thee as I ought.

And as now I seek my pillow,
All commending to thy will,
Tender Savior! keep me safely;
Let me wake to praise thee still.

—New York Observer.

THE FAITHFUL SHEPHERD BOY.

Gerhardt was a German shepherd-boy; and a noble fellow he was too, although he was very, very poor.

One day, as he was watching his flock, which was feeding in a valley on the borders of a forest, a hunter came out of the woods and asked,—

"How far is it to the nearest village?"

"Six miles sir," replied the boy; but the road is only a sheep-track, and very easily missed."

The hunter glanced at the crooked track, and then said,—

"My lad, I am hungry, tired, and thirsty. I have lost my companions, and missed my way. Leave your sheep, and show me the road, I will pay you well."

"I cannot leave my sheep, sir," rejoined Gerhardt. "They would stray into the forest, and be eaten by wolves, or stolen by robbers."

Well, what of that?" queried the hunter. "They are not your sheep. The loss of one or more would'nt be much to your master; and I'll give you more money than you ever earned in a whole year."

"I cannot go, sir," rejoined Gerhardt very firmly. "My master pays me for my time, and he trusts me with his sheep. If I were to sell you my time, which does not belong to me, and the sheep should get lost, it would be just the same as if I stole them."

"Well," said the hunter, "will you trust your sheep with me while you go to the village and get me some food and drink and a guide? I will take good care of them for you."

The boy shook his head. "The sheep, said, he, "do not know your voice, and"—Gerhardt stopped speaking.

"And what? Can't you trust me? Do I look like a dishonest man?" asked the hunter angrily.

"Sir," said the boy slowly, "you tried to make me false to my trust, and wanted me to break my word to my master. How do I know you would keep your word to me."

The hunter laughed; for he felt that the boy had fairly cornered him. He said, "I see, my lad, that you are a good faithful boy. I will not forget you. Show me the road, and I will try to make it out for myself."

Gerhardt now offered the humble contents of his scrip to the hungry man, who, coarse as they were, ate them gladly. Presently his attendants came up; and then Gerhardt to his surprise, found that the hunter was the grand duke, who owned all the country round. The duke was so pleased with the boy's honesty, that he sent for him shortly after, and had him educated. In after years, Gerhardt became a very rich and powerful man; but he remained honest and true to his dying day.

Honesty, truth and fidelity, are precious jewels in the character of a child. When they spring from piety, they are pure diamonds, and make their possessor very beautiful, very happy, very honorable, and very useful. May you, my readers, wear them as Gerhardt did! Then a greater than a duke will befriend you; for the great King will adopt you as his children, and you will become princes and princesses royal in the Kingdom of God.— Young Pilgrim.

THE HILL OF DIFFICULTY.

When I was a child one of the great pleasures of my life was an occasional long ride with grandfather in the substantial farm wagon, drawn by the clumsy, slow-going horse that did duty on work days and holidays alike.

My grandfather was a silent man, and seldom addressed a single word to me, but I had my pleasure all the same, and learned to note every charm of the country road, from the first gleam of cowslips in the spring meadows, and dandlions, and little yellow five-fingers on the sheltered slopes, to the tangles of wild roses, and tall red lilies of summer, and the splendid spikes of cardinal flower, and clouds of white and purple asters that bloomed along the tumble-down stone walls in autumn. Up and down the interminable hills, my childish eyes saw no lack of interest in the scenery, but one hill in particular, long and rocky, where the steep road seemed too narrow for friend or foe to pass in safety, was always associated in my mind with the Hill of Difficulty, of which I had read in my precious Pilgrim's Progres, the one fairy book of my life. The queer red house at the foot, half buried in a thicket of cinnamon roses, was the arbor where poor Christian took his nap, and the queer red house at the top was the veritable Porter's Lodge, and I think if some day we had found the chained lions disputing our passage, or had a glimpse of that "grave and beautiful damsel named Discretion," coming to open the door, I should have been more delighted than surprised.

One lesson at least I learned at my Hill Difficulty, that has been of real service to me. Over the level road, and down the hills, old Bill jogged sedately along, as became a deacon's horse, who had grave responsibilities to maintain; but at sight of the hill he began to quicken his pace, putting forth his strength more and more as the pitch increased, until he reached the summit almost at a run.

I tell you, boys and girls, that is the way to get over hills. No stopping at the foot in discouragment, but a fresh bracing of every nerve and sinew, and a swifter step until the work is done. No halting to rest at the foot, but only to gain breath at the top. Rest at the top of your hills.—Little Corporal.

A MODEL WIFE.

There have resided in the south end of Boston, for a number of years past, a man and wife. The man a kind and indulgent husband, the wife a most extraordinary woman, which the sequel to this story will show. They were in good circumstances, though not rich; had the comforts of life, but never saved up much money apparently. They had lived for many years in this way, until one day the wife said to her husband, "Husband, why don't you buy a house? it is so much nicer than to rent." "Ah," said the husband, "I can't afford it." "But," said the wife, "wouldn't you take one if anybody would give you one?" "Certainly," says he, little thinking it would ever come to pass. The wife then presented him a sheet of paper. Reader, what do you think that sheet of paper was? It was nothing less than the deed of a nice house in this city, costing nearly $7,000, which amount the wife had saved out of the money her husband had given her to spend for various things. You can judge of the surprise of her husband. Do you think he thought any less of his wife? How many wives do you think would do that? Wives, follow the example of this woman, and instead of spending every cent your husband gives you, save so me of it, and you may never regret.

He that gathereth in summer is a wise son; but he that sleepeth in harvest is a son that causeth shame.

CORRESPONDENCE.

CHERRY GROVE ILL, }
June 18th, '72. }

Dear Pilgrim:—I have just been reading your columns and seeing an article headed, "Old Pilgrims gone to rest" and find that the writer would have great pleasure in giving his readers a biography of our old brother Sprogle. As his death did not appear in the PILGRIM, I will endeavor to give a report of what has transpired in this arm of the church during the Spring and Sommer.

The Lord truly has made us feel solemn, and also rejoice. There were five taken away by the icy hand of death in the short space of six weeks. The first was our dear sister Sarah Boyd, who left a family and a companion who was then out of the Fold of Jesus, but thanks be to God that he has since been made willing and has joined in with us on our way to Zion. His remark was, "had I only lived a Christian life while she lived, how much happiness we might have had together."

The next was the writer's father, who was taken away in two weeks after our sister. Oh, how hard to part with a kind father, one who was always good,—one that always wore a smile, and was kind to all, and lived in the fear of God. Oh, may we all be so happy as to meet him, because we feel assured he has gone to rest with his Heavenly Father. He longed to go and be at rest.

The third was our beloved old sister Catharine Sprogle, who was to visit father on his sick bed and was in her usual health, and on Sabbath ere she took sick she met with the brethren in the sanctuary, when her remark to some of the sisters was, "I wanted to come to meeting once more." She always seemed happy when trying to encourage us on our way to Zion. She never shrank from her duty. Oh, how we will miss her! but as she gave us such a good example, let us all try to imitate it and be ready to meet her in the climes of immortal glory.

Scarcely was she consigned to the tomb until her companion, our old brother, took sick, and in two weeks he was laid by her side in the narrow grave. It will be useless to add that our old brother was universally known, and that he, like the apostle Peter, preached Jesus. I have known him and have heard him preach since I was a little girl, and have never known him to preach anything, or know anything among us save Jesus and Him crucified. During the past two years he has been deprived of the right use of his mind. He would at times become perfectly deranged and had to be watched day and night. He had labored so much and so long that his mind was entirely worn out, but before his companion died he offered up a prayer to God in her behalf, such as he had not offered for a long time, and remarked after she was dead, "There lies mother in that corner and soon I will lie in the other." It seemed he knew his days were but short on the earth, and we feel to rejoice that he has gone to rest, because his happiness in this world was over. I wish to relate also that when our old brother and sister were buried, a scene occurred which many of us never witnessed before, for my part I never did. When our old sister were buried, there was three added to the church by baptism, and when our old brother was buried there were six more added, and since then there has been eleven added, making in all twenty that have been added to the church this Spring. The Lord truly is reviving his work among us, and we think that He will still be with us, as there are many more that we think will soon join our number.

The fifth that died was our beloved brother John Wolf. He was a ministering brother, and a zealous one. On his death bed he warned all who came to visit him. He stood by the bedside of my dying father, and his remark was "Prepare to meet thy God," and in foor weeks from that day he was carried to his grave. Thus we see in the midst of life we are in death. We know not how soon we may be called, therefore let us be prepared that we may escape the wrath of God, for dreadful will be our condition if unprepared, and we are not permitted to see those that have gone before. May God help us all to live faithful, is my prayer. MARY ESHLEMAN.

APPEAL TO THE CHURCHES.

We call the attention of the Brethren and friends to our situation, circumstances and wants. We are situated in a locality where we are much in want of a meeting house in which to worship God, especially on communion occasions, as we have heretofore held them in sheds erected for the occasion, which are always more or less uncomfortable for those who labor and the old bretbren and sisters. Our meetings are generally well attended and much interest manifested and good order observed. The church here is in a good and prosperous condition, and the friends around us seem to manifest a strong desire for the prosperity of the church, hence we see and feel the great want of a suitable house for public worship. Yet considering the circumstances of the brethren and friends generally through this western country in a pecuniary point of view (money at least) we find we are not able to build, but all are willing to throw in their mite and do what they can. Brother Abraham Sell will donate the ground which is a beautiful location on an elevated place, just a half a mile from the Marribone Stream, also a grave yard in connection where in is buried our beloved mother Elizabeth Sell.

We have therefore concluded to try at once, and see to what extent the Brethren and friends in the various churches where plenty abounds will assist in the good cause, and aid us to build a suitable Meeting-house in the Hamilton Branch.

Here, brethren, is a call for missionary aid, who will heed the call? Truly your donations, contributions and mites will be thankfully received, and the Lord will reward you for your labor of love. We have brethren here who can furnish us all the sills, studdings, joists, rafters and sheetings We also have four good carpenters, some stone masons and plasterers among us. So we think if the churches will assist us to buy the flooring, shingles and siding, we can get through.

THE LORD LOVES A CHEERFUL GIVER.

Contributions can be sent to either of the following brethren who were appointed as a committee of arrangements. Time given for payments until December first 1872. However, we would like if brethren or churches could certify the amount they will donate by the 17th of August, it would be a favor, and enable us to ascertain whether we can go on.

GEORGE WITWER.
WM. B. SELL.
DANIEL B. SELL.
JACOB NANGLE.
Hamilton, Caldwell Co., Mo.
DANIEL PEFLEY,
Altovista, Daviess Co., Mo.
No express office at Altovista.

HAGERSTOWN IND., }
June 21st, '72. }

Dear Brethren:—It has been a long time since you have heard from this arm of God's moral Vineyard. I thought I would drop a few lines for the PILGRIM, while I am staying at home, my companion has gone to a Communion meeting on "Fall Creek," so I thought I would not be altogether idle My prayer is, that they may have a good meeting. I always feel glad to hear of Communion meetings in the different parts of the Brotherhood. It shows a willingness to comply with the ordinances of God, and also shows that there is love and union existing yet among the brethren. It gives the brethren and sisters a chance to renew their covenant that they have made with God and the church, and it gives us a chance to see and meet with dear brethren from a distance. It brings brethren together that would otherwise never see each other. We are also permitted to hear strange speakers, which has a tendency to building us up and thus assist us on our way to Zion. It strengthens the inner man and weakens the carnal mind. It promises us happiness in this world, and more in that which is to come.

A goodly number of brethren and sisters know something of the Nettle Creek Church, Ind. It is a large church, but it needs your prayers that it may prosper and turn many from "darkness to the marvelous light." The church here is in a prosperous condition, members alive to the work, three Sabbath Schools carried on by the Brethren every Sunday, two meetings on the same day, and sometimes three. The church has six ministers and could make use of some more at times. Let us be found faithful servants of the Lord.

Farewell. JOSEPH HOLDER.

THE LOVE OF CHRIST.

Dear Editors:—I, for the first time, have taken my pen to try to write for the PILGRIM which makes its weekly visits to our home. It has so much interesting news that I thought to help it some by also adding my mite which is at your disposal if you think it worthy. I think it is worth all our while to serve God, as Christ died to save sinners. Then, ought we not to love Him so as to be willing to lay down our lives for His sake? Do we love Him thus? The apostle says: "Love ye one another." Love certainly is abiding in Jesus and will remain forever. Love our fellow-men as ourselves. Unless we have this abiding in our hearts we cannot live a Christian. So let us be of the wise virgins that filled their vessels with oil, that when Christ calls for us we may meet Him in peace, that He may not shut the door on us and say, "I know you not." Again the apostle says: "He that hath shall be given him, and he shall have more in abundance." Oh, what a glorious promise we have if we only fight the battles of Christ, and not reap where we have not strewed. We have the Word of God for it, unless we repent and be baptized, we cannot enter the Kingdom of Heaven. So let us all work for the Lord, that in the day of judgment He may say, "Well done thou good and faithful servant, enter into the joys of thy Lord." Oh, may we all watch and pray and find eternal rest unto our souls. "Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ." Oh, what glorious words are spoken by Christ, that we may take His easy yoke upon us and learn of Him, for He is meek and lowly in heart, His yoke is easy to bear and his burden so light, that if we forsake the world we can bear it with ease. May the grace of God be with us all is my prayer. D. D. MILLER.

DIED.

ROTHROCK.—Near Adamsburg, Snyder Co., Pa., of Dropsy, June 8th '72, Dr. Isaac Rothrock, aged 73 years, 6 months and 16 days.

Has been a member of the Church of the Brethren for a number of years. He bore his affliction in a Christian-like manner. His friends need not mourn as though they had no hope, he is now lying beneath the clods of the valley, we think in hope of a joyful resurrection.

BRINDLE.—In the Dry Valley Congregation, Mifflin Co., Pa., Jan. 15th '72. Carrie J. Brindle, aged 5 years, 5 months and 29 days. Also Jan. 26th, Harrie J. aged 5 years, 6 month and 11 days.

Both died with Diphtheria, were twins, and children of friend Josiah, and sister Elizabeth Brindle. Jesus wanted these lambs, they are well cared for.

STEINBERGER.—On the 31st of March '72, Harrison Steinberger, aged 6 years, 11 months and 11 days. Also June 5th, '72, Miller Steinberger, aged 5 years, 4 months, and 5 days.

Both died with Diphtheria and Membrane Croup, children of brother Albert, and sister Henrietta Steinberger. Jesus wanted these lambs also, they are among the blessed family above.

HOWENSTEIN.—Same place, May 28th 1872, Harriet C. daughter of friend Wm and Lucy Howenstein, aged 1 year, 3 months and 29 days.

She is also one of the little lambs that Jesus blessed. The poet says, millions of infants compose, the family above.

JACOB MOHLER.

MYERS.—In Martinsburg, June 1, of measles, hooping cough and teething, Annie May, daughter of David C. and Charlotte Myers, aged 1 year, 7 mos. and 28 days.

EDITORAIL.

SOMETHING NEW.

The Baptists are apt sometimes to emphasize upon baptism as heavily as it can bear; but we thank God that we have never falled into the ditch of supposing it necessary for the pardon of sins.

The above, originally from the Baptist Union, is a new wrinkle in Christian progression. Without commenting upon this modern wisdom and code of thanks, we have come to the conclusion that either the Union is wrong or else the apostles lately inspired were greatly mistaken when they said, "Repent and be baptized every one of you, in the name of Jesus Christ, for the remission of sins." If the Baptists have had more recent revelations than those recorded by the Apostles, they will be entitled to the palm. For our part we are inclined to the good old way. Upon Repentance, Faith, and Baptism, we have the promise of remission of sins and the gift of the Holy Ghost and until we learn that the Lord will not do as much as He promises we shall form them as the basis upon which to build our hopes of salvation.

PERSONAL.

GEO. WORST. The Hymn books are sent, also PILGRIM to Isaaac W.

J. H. MOORE. It never came to hand, but according to our own terms we will be responsible. The name is now entered.

No. 26. It is with much regret that we inform some fifty of our Western readers that they will get no PILGRIM No. 26. This occurred through a mistake of the paper men in not sending full bundles. We felt much vexed when we found it out, but there was no possible way of remedying it, so we hope those of our readers who got no PILGRIM No. 26, will excuse us as we were not in fault.

COVE ECHO. Of late some of our readers wish to know what has become of the COVE ECHO. We are happy to inform all interested that it is alive and healthy. It has become quite a favorite of the good people of the Cove, and quite a number are being sent to different points in the West, to such as formerly lived in this section of country. All those wishing to keep posted on transpiring events of Blair and Bedford and neighboring counties should send $1.50 to "COVE ECHO," Martinsburg, Blair Co., Pa.

LATEST NEWS.

BROOKLYN, CAL. June 19.

I clip the following from the Oakland Daily News, of June 15th, the wheat was shipped the 12th. The harvest is heavy throughout the State. ELD. JONATHAN MYERS.

NEW WHEAT.—One hundred tons of new wheat, raised in the San Joaquin valley, were shipped for Liverpool, the other day, by I. Friedlander. When it is recollected that this is early in the season for grain, this fact becomes of great importance. Usually wheat has not made its appearance in the market before the latter part of June or the beginning of July. Moreover, fifty tons of this wheat were reaped, thrashed, sacked and shipped on the same day. Six hundred sacks of new barley were also brought down from the same district. Farmers from the San Joaquin valley say the grain there this season excels any ever before raised, both in quantity and quality.

Strikes are still the order of the day, by which thousands are thrown out of employment, operations in many of the leading manufacturing establishments are crippled and some closed. The laborers contend for eight hours a day on an advance of 20 per cent. to which the employers refuse to comply. The fight is a severe one and both parties doubtless lose by the movement, but which finally gain the victory is yet undetermined.

THE LARGEST TELESCOPE IN THE UNITED STATES.—Messrs. Alvin Clark & Sons are making, at their establishment in Cambridgeport, Mass., the largest refracting telescope in the United States for the Naval Observatory in Washington. It will cost $46,000, and has an object glass twenty-six inches in diameter, being eleven inches larger than the one at Harvard University. The glass alone when finished will be worth $23,000. The two glasses—for it requires two to make an object glass—weighed in the rough about two hundred and fifty pounds and cost $7,000, about $28 per pound. They arrived in this country about six months ago from Birmingham, England, and ever since the work of polishing and preparing them has been continued unremittingly. Over fifty pounds have been cut from the flint glass, which now weighs one hundred and ten pounds, and the other glass has been reduced to seventy-three pounds, and neither will vary much from these weights when finished. It is expected the telescope will be ready for mounting in 1874.—Boston Times.

Japan has finally unfurled the flag of religious liberty and now allow all to worship God after their own convictions. The Mi Kado has issued an imperial decree abolishing some edicts that have been standing against Christianity for the last three centuries.

The Western Recorder, the organ of the High-church Baptists of Kentucky, lays down the following axioms:

1. Baptist churches are the only gospel churches.
2. All Christians, unless it is wholly impracticable, should hold membership in some Baptist church.
3. The demands of the Scriptures would be met if all other denominations—seeing their errors—would disorganize.
4. It is the duty of every Baptist to do all he can, legitimately, to influence Christians and other denominations to leave their unscriptural organizations and unite with the Baptists.

By the laws of Maryland, a marriage in that State is valid only when performed by a "minister of the Gospel, ordained according to the rites and ceremonies of his or her church, or in such a manner as is used and practised by the society of the people called Quakers." The result of this enactment is that Maryland Jews are obliged to begin their wedding trips without the usual ceremony, and get married somewhere outside the State.

Dr. Lanahan was arrested a few days ago on an order of arrest issued by Judge Friedman, of the Supreme Court, on the complaint of Saul G. Goodenbaugh, who has brought suit against him to recover damages for alleged slander. The plaintiff, in his affidavit, says that Dr. Lanahan had called him a thief and a robber, and that he accused him of wearing diamonds and other articles of jewelry purchased with the money which he had taken from the Methodist Book Concern. Bail was fixed at $5,000. He refused to allow any of his friends to bail him on the ground that he had been persecuted by the Methodist Book Concern, and was committed to Ludlow-street jail.

OUR DIGESTION; or MY JOLLY FRIEND'S SECRET.—We have just received from the well-known publisher of first-class Subscription Books, Geo. Maclean, a copy of his last publication, entitled "OUR DIGESTION," by the celebrated author Dio Lewis. This justly popular writer and lecturer on health has done good service to humanity by his efforts to promote physical education, and we gladly welcome anything from his pen. We learn from the preface of the book before us that the author considers it his most important work, and we entirely agree with him. In fact we believe there has long been a need for just such a book as our "Jolly Friend's Secret," and feel sure that the information it contains is calculated to do great and lasting good in the community. The subjects here treated are really of vital importance, and it is passing strange that so little attention has heretofore been paid by Americans to the simplest rules for eating and drinking. Dio Lewis, who is eminently practical, inculcates the necessity of bodily exercise, of temperance in eating as well as in drinking, of simplicity in diet, of proper attention to the cooking of victuals, of fresh air, of not overloading and overtasking the stomach, of slow mastication, of regularity in eating, and of other means whereby indigestion may be avoided and conqured. Three-fourths of all the sickness and unhappiness in our midst has a weak digestion for its prime cause, and dyspepsia may almost be considered a national failing. How easily this can be overcome our author clearly shows in his usual felicitous, chatty, home-like style. The doctor talks right to the heads and hearts of the whole people—rich and poor alike—and this is the secret of his great popularity. The simple reading of one of Dio Lewis' books will dispel a fit of "the blues." "Our Digestion" is simply invaluable, and "Our Jolly Friend's Secret," which means long life, health and strength, physical and moral, is worth many times the price asked for the volume. This book ought to supercede Buchan's and every other "Domestic Medicine" as a household work, for it shows how medicine may be dispensed with, to a considerable extent, in a majority of cases. The book is issued in splendid style, and contains a striking portrait of the author, on steel, and other fine engravings. We predict for "Our Digestion" an immense sale and lasting popularity, and for the benefit of those who may wish to secure an agency, we give the address of the publisher in full: George Maclean, 733 Sansom street, Philadelphia.

CONVERSION OF A JEWISH RABBI.

MOBILE, May 11th, 1872.

Your readers cannot but be interested to hear of the conversion to Christianity of the Jewish Rabbi of this place. It is certainly one of the most wonderful manifestations of the grace and power of God in the human heart, and it is more like the conversion of Saul of Tarsus than anything I ever heard of. He has been in Mobile about eighteen months, and was in charge of a large congregation of Jews, besides teaching in a very flourishing Hebrew school connected with it. He seems to have been a great man among them, having written a number of very learned articles for the Israelite, trying to prove, and very conclusively to his own mind then, that Jesus was not the Christ. For about eight years he has been reading the New Testament, rather admiring Christ as an historical character, but spurning the very idea of his being the Messiah promised to his people. All of a sudden, he says, while he was lying on his bed resting after the labors of the day, the conviction suddenly flashed over his mind, "Christ my Redeemer!" and an inexpressible joy pervaded his whole being. He tried at first to keep the precious secret in his own heart, but he felt constrained to tell his people of the great treasure he had found, besides considering it dishonorable to be acting a part which he did not feel. So he called the congregation together, told them the change of his views, and resigned his position as Rabbi and teacher, thus cutting himself off from all his old ties of race and family. His mother is very bitter in her denunciations of his apostacy, and all his relations revile him for bringing such a disgrace upon their family, which has boasted of a pure Rabinnical line for centuries back. Of course nothing is too hard for the Jews to say about him for having proved a traitor to his faith, and a bitter persecution is kept up against him; but he is so full of his new-found Savior, and so perfectly happy in the companionship of his "One Friend," that none of these things move him.

He was baptized a week ago Sunday night, in the Baptist Church, which has proved to be the one of his choice, and he certainly then made "a good confession before many witnesses," the church being crowded, including many Jews who came out of curiosity to witness the ceremony. He spoke then very earnestly and beautifully of the solemn step he was about to take, which would almost break his mother's heart and cut him off entirely from all that he had previously held dear. He said he had never loved his people so dearly before, or worshipped with more intense adoration the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. He is so full of love to Christ that he talks about it all the time, and nothing seems to give him more pleasure than to tell others of the wonderful change wrought in him. He has spoken several times in the Methodist, Baptist and Presbyterian churches, his learning and wonderful power of illustration giving him great power with an audience. He has not yet decided what course to pursue, but it is hoped that he will enter the ministry, as he seems calculated to do much good.

I have written rather a longer account than I intended, but the conversion of the Jewish Rabbi has of late been the great excitement in religious circles. M. L. H.

New York Observer.

WANTED AGENTS!

FOR

OUR DIGESTION;

OR,

MY JOLLY FRIEND'S SECRET.

Dio Lewis' Last and Greatest Work.

All this author's books have had large sales, and this, his most important work, is sure of an immense run! It meets a popular demand, all being alike interested in the vital subjects of which it treats. The book is low-priced and practical, and so will suit all classes. Who among us have not suffered from the effects of indigestion? How many of us have not had "the blues?" Buy this work and save yourself a world of trouble—dyspepsia, biliousness, &c., and all their attendant evils. A splendid chance for agents, who should apply at once and get illustrated circular, terms, &c., free. Address GEO. MACLEAN, Publisher, 733 Sansom street, Philadelphia. 1t.

MONEY LIST.

Eld. Geo. Wolf,	$5.00
Joseph Kaugh	2.00
J. M. Alcorn,	1.25
Keelin Leonard,	2.25
Hannah Brumbaugh	2.50
John H. Raffensparger,	9.00
M. Snyder,	6.25
Jesse Crumpacker	2.00
Andrew Snowberger,	1.25
Jacob Hoover,	1.25
Daniel Snyder,	1.22
Henry Hershberger,	4.09
Thomas Mattocks,	5 80

Part of Money List crowded out.

A MINIATURE DEAD SEA.

A letter from Sink O'Carson, Nevada, to the San Francisco Bulletin, says:

Near Sand Springs is a salt bed covering several hundred acres, and in great Salt Lake Valley, fifty miles north, one of much larger dimensions. From the latter the Washoe mills derived their supplies for a number of years. They now obtain them in part from San Francisco and in part from a bed lying sixteen miles northeast of Wadsworth, and close to the railroad. Here the deposits are not so heavy as at Sand Springs; but the advantages of railroad transportation more than offset the greater facility with which the salt can be gathered at the latter place.

Two miles northeast of Ragtown, and thirty southwest of this place, exists one of the most remarkable deposits of carbonate of soda ever found in this, or perhaps any other country. Here, in the midst of a dismal sage heath, is a circular valley about one-fourth of a mile in circumference, which is a vast deposit of soda sufficiently pure to answer all the purposes for which this commodity is usually employed. This soda occurs in stratas about a foot thick, separated from each other by seams of clay half an inch thick. The deposit is worked after the manner of an open quarry, the soda being broken out in blocks, and piled up on the inner side of the basin, where several hundred tons of it lie corded up. A huge excavation has been carried down on the substance for about thirty feet without any sign of its approaching the bottom. Should it hold in this direction for another thirty or sixty feet, it ought to bring comfort to those interested in the saleratus question, there being here enough of the stuff to keep the world in a state of effervescence for a generation.

A few hundred yards to the northeast of this soda quarry is a lake about one and a half miles in circumference, the water of which is supersatruated with salts of various kinds, a large percentage being borax. It lies in an oval basin, 150 feet below the surface of the plain, the banks shelving down with as much symmetry as if fashioned by art. The water of this lake is impregnated with soluble substances, mostly borax, soda and salt, to a degree that renders it almost ropy with slime, and so dense that a person can float on it without effort. Bathing in it, however, is attended with unpleasant consequences, the water eroding the flesh like fire, if a person remains in it more than a moment. This lake has no visible outlet or inlet, but, being of a great depth, is probably fed by springs seated far down in the bowls of the earth.

Two Thousand Miles of Ice.

A letter from St. Johns, Newfoundland, in the Evening Post, gives the following description of the unprecedented fields of ice.

Since early in January enormous fields of ice, sometimes 200 miles in breadth, have been passing these shores in almost a continued stream. The thickness of this field-ice is from twenty to thirty feet. The distance between Baffin's Bay, where the ice-fields are formed, and the waters of the Gulf Stream, where the masses are dissolved, is from 1,500 to 2,000 miles in length, has been for three months pouring incessantly its contents into the tepid waters of the Gulf Stream. The Winter has been fearfully severe, and the quantity and thickness of the ice unprecedented. The consequences to our seal fishery have been ruinous. During nearly the whole of March and part of April northeast winds prevailed, by which this huge stream of ice was deflected and pressed upon our shores in a close "pack," filling every bay, harbor and inlet, with masses of ice and completely blockading the whole coast, with the exception of a few intervals, when the west wind loosened the "pack" and drove it out to sea. The enormous quantity of ice which is carried in this way from polar regions to warmer temperatures no arithmetic could calculate.

THE MARKETS.

MARTINSBURG MARKETS.

Flour	$10.50
Wheat	2.00
Rye	.90
Corn	.80
Oats	.50
Clover Seed	6.00

PRODUCE MARKETS.

Butter	.12½
Eggs	.15
Lard	.10
Tallow	.10
Soap	.08

PHILADELPHIA MARKETS.

June. 3, 1872.

FLOUR, Extra family	$10.00
" Superfine	6.50
" fancy brands	8.50
" Rye	5.50
CORN MEAL	5.00
WHEAT, white, per bushel	2.18
" red. "	2.15
CORN	.69
RYE	.95
OATS	.51

GOOD BOOKS.

A large number of our patrons are receiving our books as noticed below, as premiums, and express themselves highly pleased with them. Others who are not agents, have enquired whether we keep them for sale. We have now made arrangements with Mr. Wells to furnish any of their publications post paid at publishers prices. Orders for books must be accompanied with the cash, and plain directions for sending them.

Conversion of St. Paul. By George Jarvis Geer, D. D. 12mo. fine edition, $1. Plain edition, 75 cents.

Footprints of Life; or, Faith and Nature Reconciled.—A Poem in three parts. The Body. The Soul. The Deity. By Philip Harvey, M. D. $1.25.

Fruit Culture for the Million. A Hand book. being a Guide to the Cultivation and Management of Fruit Trees. Descriptions of the Best Varieties, and How to Propagate them. illustrated $1.00.

Hand-book for Home Improvement: comprising "How to Write," "How to Talk," How to Behave," and "How to do Business," in one vol. 2.25.

How to Live; Saving and Wasting, or Domestic Economy. By Solon Robinson. $1.50.

Hopes and Helps for the Young of both sexes, Relating to the Formation of Character. Choice of Avocation, Health, Conversation, Cultivation of Intellect, Moral Sentiments, Social Affection Courtship and Marriage. By Rev. G. S. Weaver. Muslin, $1.50.

Life at Home; or, The Family and its Members. Husbands, Wives, Parents, Children, Brothers, Sisters, Employers and Employed, etc. By Rev. William Aikman, D. D. A work which should be found in every family. $1.50. Extra gilt, $2.00.

Man and Woman: Considered in their Relations to each Other and to the World. By Henry C. Pedder. 12mo, Fancy cloth. Price $1.00.

Man, in Genesis and in Geology; or, the Biblical Account of Man's Creation, tested by Scientific Theories of his Origin and Antiquity. By Joseph P. Thompson, D. D., LL.D. One vol. 12mo, $1.00.

Oratory—Sacred and Secular; or, the Extemporaneous Speaker. Including Chairman's Guide for conducting Public Meetings according to the best Parliamentary forms. By Wm. Pittenger. $1.50.

The Emphatic, Diaglott; or The New Testament in Greek and English. Containing the Original Greek Text of the New Testament, with an Interlineary Word for-word English Translation. A Work for Students in Theology, and S. S. Teachers. By Benjamin Wilson. Price, $4.00; extra fine binding, $5.00.

Wurer's Works for the Young. Comprising "Hopes and Helps for the Young of both Sexes," "Aids and Aims for Girls and Young Women," "Ways of Life; or, the Right Way and the Wrong Way," $8

The Right Word in the Right Place. A New Pocket Dictionary and Reference Book. Embracing Synonyms, Technical Terms, Abbreviations, Foreign Phrases, Writing for the Press, Punctuation, Proof-Reading, and other Valuable Information. Cloth, 75cts.

Menno Simon's
COMPLETE WORKS.

In English, translated from the original Dutch or Holland, giving the whole of the great Reformers writings on the subject Baptism. Price in full sheep $4.50; by mail $5.14.

Address, JOHN F. FUNK & BRO.

AGENTS WANTED FOR
"JESUS."
By CHARLES F. DEEMS, D. D.
His divinity established and rationalism rooted. The most popular and rapidly-selling religious work ever issued. For Circulars, address U. S. PUBLISHING CO., N. Y.

New Hymn Books, English.

TURKEY MOROCCO

One copy,	post-paid,	$1 00
Per Dozen,		11 25

PLAIN ARABESQUE.

One Copy,	post-paid,	75
Per Dozen,	"	8 50

PLAIN SHEEP.

One Copy,	post-paid,	75
Per Dozen,	"	8 50

Ger'n & English, Plain Sheep.

One Copy	post-paid	$ 1 00
Per Dozen		11 25
Arabesque plain,		1.00
Turkey morocco,		$ 1.25.
Single German	post-paid,	50
Per Dozen,		5 50

HUNTINGDON & BROAD TOP RAIL ROAD

Summer Arrangement.

On an after Tuesday, June 4, 1872, Passenger trains will arrive and depart as follows:

Trains from Huntingdon South.				Trains from Bedford moving North.
MAIL. A. M.	ACCOM P. M.	STATIONS.		MAIL. P. M.	ACCOM A. M.
*le*8 20	LE6 00	Huntingdon,		AR5 25	AR9 10
8 28	6 06	Long Siding		5 17	9 00
8 45	6 19	McConnelstown		5 04	8 45
8 51	6 25	Pleasant Grove		4 58	8 39
9 05	6 37	Marklesburg		4 45	8 27
9 20	6 51	Coffee Run		4 33	8 11
9 27	6 58	Rough & Ready		4 26	8 04
9 39	7 10	Cove		4 12	7 52
9 43	7 15	Fishers Summit		4 08	7 48
10 03	7 35	Saxton	le	3 48	le 7 28
10 10	7 53		ar		*ar*7 10
10 27	8 10	Riddlesburg		3 30	6 53
10 34	8 17	Hopewell		3 22	6 46
10 51	8 35	Piper's Run		3 06	6 30
11 10	8 55	Tatesville		2 48	6 12
11 22	9 08	Bloody Run		2 33	6 00
11 26	9 12	Mount Dallas		2 29	5 56
11 32	9 10	Ashcom's Mills		2 22	5 50
11 36	9 23	Lutzville		2 18	5 46
11 40	9 27	Hartley's Mills		2 14	5 42
11 46	9 34	Jamesons		2 07	5 36
*r*11 22	*ar*9 40	Bedford		LE2 00	LE5 30

JOHN M'KILLIPS, Supt

SHOUP'S RUN BRANCH.

LE10 15	LE7 40	Saxton.	AR3 40	AR7 20
10 30	7 55	Coalmont.	3 25	7 05
10 35	8 00	Crawford.	3 20	7 00
AR10 45	AR8 10	Dudley	LE3 10	LE6 50
Bro'd Top City from Dudley 2 miles by stage.

Time of Penna. R. R. Trains at Huntingdon.

EASTWARD.			WESTWARD.
Hb'g Ac.	9 24	A. M	Cin. Ex.	2 19	A. M.
Mail	8 30	P. M	Pc'f Ex.	7 45	"
Cin. Ex.	6 55	"	Mail	5 40	P. M.
Phil. Ex	11 15	"	W. Pass.	11 52	A. M.

TRACTS.

"ANXIOUS BENCH RELIGION EXAMINIED," by Elder J. S. Flory, is a Tract now ready for distribution, of which the following is a brief synopsis of the contents: A short and pointed address to the reader. The motive that prompted him to write, and his responsibilities as a minister; The peculiarities attending this type of religion; The feelings there experienced, not imaginary but real, The key that unlocks the wonderful mystery; It is not the workings of God after the order and plan of salvation; Man's endowment, his imitative principle—emanated from God; Spiritual influences and intercourse; Relation existing between man and God, and man and man; The fraternal bond and our natural affinities established by the "so called" sciences of Electro Biology; Mesmerism and Psychology or science of the soul, also, "Spiritualism" "Spiritual Rappings," &c. The causes by which the feelings are excited; Sympathy of the nervous system, and how that momentary feeling of joy is brought about, called, "Experimental Religion; Similar feelings may be brought about when there are no religious pretensions; Our reasons why we think this modus operandi of getting religion is not according to the Gospel, and then concludes by pointing out that form of doctrine as taught by Jesus Christ, and recorded by His faithful witness.

These tracts will be sent to all post paid, on the following terms: Two copies, 10 cts, 10 copies 40 cents, 25 copies 70 cents, 50 copies $1.00, 100 copies $1.50.

1870 1872

DR. FAHRNEY'S
Blood Cleanser or Panacea.

A tonic and purge, for Blood Diseases. Great reputation. Many testimonials. Many ministering brethren use and recommend it. Ask or send for the "Health Messenger." Use only the "Panacea" prepared at Chicago, Ills., and by

Dr. P. Fahrney's Brothers & Co.,

Mar. 29-pd. Waynesboro, Franklin Co., Pa.

Italian Queen Bees,

FOR SALE.

Purity and safe arrival guaranteed. Sent post paid, at $2.25 each.

Address,
ISAAC HEDDING,
Lewistown, Box 160.
Jun. 21-tf. Mifflintown Co., Pa.

Trine Immersion.

A discussion on Trine Immersion, by letter between Elder B. F. Moomaw and Dr J. J. Jackson, to which is annexed a Treatise on the Lord's Supper, and on the necessity, character and evidences of the new birth, also a dialogue on the doctrine of non-resistance, by Elder B. F. Moomaw. Single copy 50 cents.

THE PILGRIM,

Published by J. B. Brumbaugh, & Co.

Edited by H. B. & Geo. Brumbaugh.

CORRESPONDING EDITORS.

D. P. Sayler, Double Pipe Creek, Md.

Leonard Furry, New Enterprise, Pa.

The Pilgrim is a Christian Periodical, devoted to religion and moral reform. It will advocate in the spirit of love and liberty, the principles of true Christianity, labor for the promotion of peace among the people of God, for the encouragement of the saints and for the conversion of sinners, avoiding those things which tend toward disunion or sectional feelings.

TERMS.

Single copy, one year,	$1.25.
Book paper, " "	1.50.
Eleven copies, [eleventh for Agt.]	$12.50.

Any number above that at the same rate, Address.

H. B. BRUMBAUGH.
James Creek,
Huntingdon county Pa.

Werkly Pilgrim.

"REMOVE NOT THE ANCIENT LANDMARKS WHICH OUR FATHERS HAVE SET."

VOL. 3 JAMES CREEK, PENNSYLVANIA, JULY 9, 1872. NO. 28.

POETRY

WORKS, NOT WORDS.

SELECTED BY HANNAH E. SMITH.

Not forever on thy knees,
Would Jehovah have thee found,
There are burdens thou canst ease;
There are griefs Jehovah sees,
Look around.

Work is prayer if done for God,
Prayer which God delighted hears;
See beside you upturned sod,
One bowed 'neath affliction's rod.
Dry her tears.

Not long prayers but earnest zeal,
This is what is wanted more.
Put thy shoulder to the wheel,
Bread unto the famished deal
From thy store.

Not high-sounding words of praise
Does God want, 'neath some grand dome,
But that thou the fallen raise;
Bring the poor from life's highways,
To thy home.

Worship God by doing good,
Works, not words, kind acts, not creeds,
He who loves God as he should,
Makes his heart's love understood
By kind deeds.

Deeds are powerful; mere words weak,
Batt'ring at high heaven's door.
Let thy love thy actions speak;
Wipe the tear from sorrow's cheek;
Clothe the poor.

Be it thine life's cares to smother,
And to brighten eyes now dim.
Kind deeds done to one another,
God accepts as done, my brother,
Unto him.

ORIGINAL ESSAYS.

THE RECORD.

"For there are three that bear record in heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost, and these three are one. And there are three that bear witness in earth, the spirit, and the water and the blood; and these three agree in one." 1 John, 5: 7, 8.

The above text alludes to a certain character who had been in the world at a certain time, but at the time that John wrote this epistle he was no more in the world, but had ascended to the Father where he was before the foundation of the world. Now the question came up whether he was "that Prophet that should come into the world, or whether he was truly the Messiah or not." The beloved disciple takes up the subject to convince those who had some doubts to remove, that it was the Christ. "This is he that came by water and blood and it is the spirit that beareth witness, because the spirit is truth. John 5: 6.

I will now proceed to show how the beloved disciple has proven that the one alluded to was the very Christ, the Savior of the world. When the Savior was baptized by John the Baptist in the river of Jordan, "Lo, the heavens were opened unto him and he saw the spirit of God descending like a dove and lighting upon him; and lo, a voice from heaven saying, this is my beloved son, in whom I am well pleased." Matt. 4: 16, 17. Here the Father did bear record, (as he also did on the Mount when the Savior was transfigured) this is my beloved son in whom I am well pleased, (hear him) the Holy Ghost did also bear witness by alighting upon Him. "And I knew him not: but he that sent me to baptize with water, the same said unto me, upon whom thou shalt see the spirit descending and remaining on him the same is he which baptizeth with the Holy Ghost, and I saw and bear record that this is the son of God. John 1: 33, 34. "I am one that bear witness of myself." Here we see that the Savior has borne witness of himself; now I think we have the three that bear record from heaven.

We will now proceed with the subject and see whether we can find the three that bear witness in Earth, namely: the spirit, the water and the blood. "And behold they cried out saying, what have we to do with Jesus thou son of God? art thou come hither to torment us before the time?" This is the language of the wicked spirit or of those under the control of the wicked spirits or devil. The Scriptures must needs be fulfilled. They had to fulfill all that was written of Him, so He had to die upon the cross according to the Scripture. Now, while he was extended between heaven and earth there were certain prophecies directed to that very time, namely: that a bone should not be broken, and "they shall look on him whom they have pierced." Now, when the Savior had given up the Ghost and expired. "The Jews, therefore, because it was the preparation, that the bodies should not remain on the Sabbath day, besought Pilate that their legs might be broken and that they might be taken away. Then came the soldiers and brake the legs of the first, and of the other that was crucified with Him. But when they came to Jesus and saw that he was dead already they brake not his legs, but one of the soldiers with a spear pierced his side and forthwith there came out blood and water." This was an unusual thing and something that had to bear witness. The blood and the water flowing from His wounded side to prove according to the Scriptures that this was the Christ.

I have now given my views concerning those that bear witness in earth, namely: the spirit and the blood and water that flowed from His side.

SAMUEL TEETER.

COME SINNER.

Come sinner, come to Jesus, and be saved. He is a kind Shepherd, He'll all your wants supply. Come sinner, bid the vain world adieu, Jesus calls, hear ye and obey. How long will you have Him call, until you are four-score, or until four-score years and ten, or never heed?

What are you living for? to fulfill God's most holy plan; if so, humble thyself and say, my God, thy will be done. We are all intelligent beings endowed with mental faculties, among others is the faculty of reason. Then as reasonable men and women, think on your way, reason within yourself, and I know that you must frankly confess what am I, but dust, and unto it will have shortly to return.

Sinner, remember that each day brings us nearer to the grave. To-day we have, but to-morrow is with the Lord, therefore improve to-day, that to-morrow you may be nearer the Lord and walk in His foot-prints. Remember too, that in youth is the most convenient season to wait upon the Lord. His store-house is filled with rich gifts that the world knows not of, if you are anxious to know what they consist of, please go and search your Bible, therein you will find eternal life. My prayer is that all may come to a knowledge of the truth and be saved.

ALLEN M. GOOD.

Waynesboro, Pa.

THE SECRET OF USEFULNESS.

It's no use for me to try to do much," said a timid Christian, the other day. "I have not power enough or education enough to do good to others, and I must just live as nearly right as I can, and trust God to forgive my lack of service."

The good man thought he was speaking all humility, but he was very proud. He did not realize it, but it was really his pride that would not let him attempt work in which he might fail, or assume a position in which his lack of education would be conspicuous.

Would that this was an annual case: we all know it is not. If all the true Christians in the country, who love the Lord and whom the Lord loves, would do the best that is in them to do, with their present power, we should be amazed at the advance in his work among us. It is not our original power, or our influence, or our education, it is our devotion to the Master and His work that is the measure of our usefulness. All the effort of the best, and most intelligent, and richest men in the world would never save one soul without the blessing of the Lord and the help of the Holy Spirit, and that blessing and that help are given freely to the poorest, and least, and most sinful of his true followers.

The question is not, "Am I fitted for usefulness?" but, "Will the Lord use me?" Not the most brilliant natural endowments, not the most elaborate preparation, but His use of us makes us useful.

I know an illiterate, hard-working man who was, not long ago, rough, passionate, bitter—a bad neighbor, an uncomfortable companion. That man became a Christian. Now he is gentle; he controls his temper; he is kind in his family, kind to his neighbors. Nobody doubts that some strong power has changed the man. He talks in meeting, and talks to the men who work with him about religion. He can't speak a grammatical sentence, but his words have the force of his life behind them, and it gives them might. His workmen feel it. Some of them have been led to Christ by this man. His children are growing up mindful of religion; he has a power for good in the community.

Now, what has he that we have not? It is not wealth, or intelligence, or native force of character that gives him an influence which many a Christian more outwardly favored might envy him: it is Christ working in him and through him.

Do we want this power? Why do we not all have it? Has our Savior's power failed that he cannot give it, or his love that he will not? His Lord said unto him: "Well done, good and faithful servant, thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord." —Christian at Work.

HARVEST.

Dear Pilgrim: I have just been thinking a little and as our thoughts are sometimes interesting to others, I have concluded to pen some of them for your worthy columns, hoping that they may be of general interest.

Harvest is now upon us and the hug and tug of war is commenced and many a hard battle will be to be fought before the golden grains are snugly garnered away.

Throughout the Middle, Southern and Western States we are in the midst of the busy scenes of harvest life. Whilst some are commencing to reap, others are gathering and still others have in part stored it away. Notwithstanding the hopes of many have been thwarted, not realizing from their labors, what, or as much as they expected, yet the indications are that God is not unmindful of us in granting us food and raiment, with which we are taught to be content.

But perhaps I have forgotten what I have been thinking and am only giving my thoughts as now presented. While thinking of the thousands and millions who are now on the verge of the world's great harvest, my mind was made to think of the different feelings that occupy the minds of those who go forth to their respective field of labor, some go forth with an elastic step and with the consciousness that success has attended their labors and that their brightest hopes are being realized in being blest with a bountiful harvest, while others go forth with the visage of disappointment. "Upon these broad fields we have bestowed our labor and our care. We have given them our best attention, both in cultivation and seeding them down, and here is our reward, barren fields, and nothing to reap." How full the enjoyment of those who reap bountifully, and how deep the disappointment of those who have nothing! We have all more or less, experienced the feelings of both parties and therefore can rejoice with those who rejoice and mourn with those who mourn. But these things bear only upon our bodily wants while in this life, and as we all must die, it is not so important that we should be continually vexed with the question, "Wherewith shall we be fed and wherewith shall we be clothed?"

My mind has been more deeply impressed in regard to the results of the great harvest of life in which we have all entered, or rather preparing for, and what makes it the more important is, that it hath been said, "Be not deceived, God is not mocked, whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he reap; if he soweth to the flesh, he shall, of the flesh, reap corruption, but he that soweth to the spirit shall of the spirit reap eternal life." When we labor and prepare our fields carefully and sow them down to wheat, we expect wheat in return, yea, we hope for it, and would be greatly disappointed if we were to receive anything else. This is reasonable and right that we should expect the same as we sow, but are we all so reasonable in our expectations of eternal life? God has promised it to us, but do we all expect it? do we all desire it? This is what I have been thinking about. Ah, yes, dear brethren and sisters, what have we been sowing and what shall our harvest be? When we reflect back over the past of our seed time we find that we have sowed much to the flesh. The question comes up, shall we reap our harvest of corruption? That depends much upon how much time we have wasted in sowing to the flesh, and how we may spend the remainder of our seed time. We sometimes see seed fields allowed to grow up in weeds that it would seem that nothing else could grow there, yet before the time of sowing is past, the farmer goes vigorously to work and so completely destroys the weeds that it still produces a very good crop, at the same time there is a decided loss in allowing our fields thus to grow up, as they destroy, in part, the vitality of the soil, and there is also danger of it not all being destroyed or resprouting from the root and thus growing up among the wheat and endangering the crop.

Precisely so it is with the seed time and harvest of life. There is a decided advantage in early cultivation and a clean soil. Much time is gained by it and imminent danger avoided. It is true, that so long as seed time remains we may hurry in some kind of a crop, but things done under the excitement and impulse of the moment are seldom well done, and the great probability is that our time and labor will be lost. It is getting quite common for men, and women too, to depend upon what is familiarly known as the "death-bed seed time," that is, spend our time and talent in the service of satan by sowing to the flesh until it affords us enjoyment no longer, then we are willing to devote the wreck, or the remnant of our strength to the service of the Lord, or to sowing to the spirit, but how can we have the presumption to expect a merciful yet a just God to deal thus with us? What kind of a literal harvest could we expect if it was to be sown while languishing upon the bed of affliction? Just as little are we prepared to sow to the spirit when once in the great dilemma of death, when the mind is frequently unstrung and the body burning with fever and racked with pain. Then, while engaged in the busy scenes of our earthly harvest, let us us ever keep in view that far greater harvest of eternal life which we hope to reap when we shall be permitted to seat ourselves in the Kingdom of God.

I have now briefly presented my thoughts in regard to those who are engaged in sowing to the spirit, yet I have not forgotten you, dear sinner, who are still sowing to the flesh. Soon, soon will the time of harvest come and you must reap that which you are now sowing, and just as certain as wheat produces wheat and barley produces barley, so certain will sowing to the flesh produce corruption and reap it you must if you persist in sowing to the flesh. Don't be deceived. God is not mocked, but as long as you continue to rebel against Him and refuse His proffered mercies so long you continue to mock Him, but these scenes will soon close and the harvest will come, the great day of retribution will decide our weal or woe. May we not hope that all will improve the golden moments so that when life's harvest is fully come we may go forth with songs of gladness to reap the reward of our labors?

A REAPER.

BENEVOLENCE

This faculty of the human mind appears to be developed very indifferently. Some persons are very kind, and will sacrifice their own ease and comfort to accommodate others, while others again are rude, and very indifferent to the comfort of those by whom they are surrounded. Nowhere do we see more frequent demonstrations of these different traits of character than when traveling in the railroad car. Some time ago when seated in the car, we noticed a very genteel looking man and two ladies enter. The seats were all occupied but one which they took. The gentleman seemed very much pleased to have his ladies comfortably seated, as the seat seemed to be a desirable one. We were rather pleased with his appearance as he seemed to seek only the comfort of the ladies, and we thought him a benevolent man. But the window was closed and an effort was made to hoist it, but all the strength he could command did not move it. The conductor was called to their assistance but all their efforts were futile. The seats were all occupied and they were, as they thought in a very unpleasant situation. What was to be done? The gentleman seemed very much worried. The idea of leaving them sit there excluded from the breeze that contributes so greatly to comfort in a hot July day was indeed repugnant. We were comfortably seated next to them and were about to suggest to the gentleman who sit with us to change seats with the ladies, when a move was made by the gentleman that gave us further opportunity for ssudying his character and we remained in our seat.

On the opposite seat where the ladies were seated there was a woman and five children, three of which occupied one seat and the mother and two the other. The children fanned by the gentle breeze had fallen asleep, and now to our surprise this gentleman requested the mother to awake the children and have them exchange seats with the ladies. The mother of course refused, but he insisted upon her doing so, until she (who was of an Irish descent) became enraged and there was a regular war of words. Our opinion of the man greatly changed, for we now considered him a selfish heartless wretch. From a selfish motive he sought the comfort of those ladies, but in reality he lacked courteousness, kindness, and gentleness. His plans being defeated he went to an other car. At the next station a seat was vacated and the ladies were comfortably seated. We now saw a different trait of character manifested. During the time that the man was remonstrating with the woman, we noticed that one of the ladies was apparently vexed at him but could not learn the cause for a certainty until he went out when we overheard enough to learn that she was perfectly disgusted at his conduct. She now took advantage of every opportunity to show kindness towards the lady who had been wronged, and in a short time they were the best of friends. She was truly a benevolent lady. Kindness was marked in all she did, and we believe she would not have considered it beneath her dignity to administer to the wants of the most lowly. She was indeed a noble lady, just such as is needed for the performance of the world's work. We are all more or less dependent one upon another, and the design of God is that we shall help one another, and in this consists a very important work in this life. We should ever be ready to render assistance, and not only so, but kindness should mark all our doings in our intercourse with our fellow beings. Without charity it is impossible to please God, and "Charity suffereth long and is kind." The lady referred to had charity, and she would have suffered long, and indeed could not have been induced to act unkindly toward any one. She would rather enjoy suffering to make others comfortable. Such character is lady-like, Christian-like, and she is fitted for the highest circles of life, while the man (not a gentleman) is a poor indifferent specimen of humanity, fit for no position in life. Therefore if you would be loved and respected, if you would fill the design of your creation, if you would fill any important position in life, cultivate benevolence. Try to be kind and you may finally overcome your selfish, cold, indifferent nature. Try to feel others burdens, weep with those who weep, and rejoice with those who rejoice; endeavor to have a balm for every wounded breast, and shed a tear for every one in distress.

How to Spend Sunday.

By law every citizen in this State has the privilege of not doing on Sunday what he is obliged to do on other days. The very practical question meets him, what different things he can do which will make this Sunday privilege a profit or a delight. Nobody is compelled to go to meeting or to sing psalms, or to learn catechism, or to read sermons to fill up his time. Every one can pick out some new and unlaborous employment and if he knows how, can have sixteen free and happy hours on one day in seven. It is of no use to object to Sunday as a puritan Sunday, for the law makes it a free day, and forbids work, so that it shall be free. It is a somewhat singular fact, that this chance of a free day so many can find nothing better to do than to do business and work just as on other days, as if we did not all work hard enough from Monday morning to Saturday night. It is also something of a commentary on the capacity of many people for improvement and enjoyment, that after a little extra scrubbing and dressing is finished on Sunday morning, they don't know what to do with themselves for the rest of the day, and only consent to go to church because it is a little less stupid than to sit at home and gape at their own dullness instead of a preacher's. Some try a cigar and novel, others a big dinner and a nap, others sitting around a big stove and spitting at it. But after all these resources have failed, the only thing left is to wish for Monday and go to bed very early. Happy are those who in such an emergency have young ladies on whom they may call.

We wish to suggest some things which can be done to add interest to the Sunday of those who find its freedom dull.

Take an hour Sunday morning and sit down alone, and think what you have done during the past week, and agitate the question whether you have done just as you really think is best and mean to keep on doing.

Have you told any lies the past week? Count them on your fingers, if you can, and seriously consider whether you always mean to be a liar?

Did you get drunk during the past week, or come near it? Did you talk temperance, and visit the cupboard to take those new "bitters?" Did you ever sell any poisoned liquor for good, or any poor home liquor at a fancy price, under a foreign brand? Was it well? Do you always expect to do such things, and when will you stop?

Have you abused your neighbor, run down your competitor in other stores, slandered other polititians, or hurt any woman's reputation the past week? these things are unspeakably mean; you know they are. God be thanked if you haven't done them! But somebody does them. I ask that somebody whether he always intends to be a mean fellow?

Have you gambled or slunk into infamous dens the past week? Nobody is obliged to tell me. But many do go to vile places every week, Sundays included. Is it a good plan to keep on? What will twenty years of such practice make of a man?

Have you cheated anybody in the last ten days? Have you deceived any employer or kept back the just pay of any workman? Have you advertised deceptions of any kind? Does any money stick to you which belongs to anybody else? Are you going to make a permanent cheat of yourself? Do you want to die as a carpet bagger? What's to hinder it if you are cheating now?

Did you swear last week? Don't you swear rather more than you used to when your mother taught you? Is there any particular benefit in it? Let us see if you can stop for a week!

Are you not smoking too many cigars—running up debts which you don't know how to pay; making a larger swell than your capital justifies and getting ready for a smash and a ruin? We hope not. But all these things happen, and if any one is over doing himself in these days, ought he not to know it and settle whether his course is best?

It strikes us that an hour on Sunday of cool, healthy consideration of the actual status and doings of our week-day lives, would be an interesting employment, whether satisfactory or not.

Take another hour on Sunday to do somebody some good for which you haven't the time on any other day. Write a letter to the mother, or brother, or sister, whom you have forgotten for a long time. Hunt out a friend who has disappeared from your interest, and renew a cordial acquaintance. Find out somebody who is suffering, and carry fresh cheer to him or her. Go to see the folks who would be glad to see you, but whom you are not always glad to see. Visit the families of those who are working hard to make themselves rich. Help to put some kind of a home feeling into everybody who is homeless. There are plenty of good acts which are not common—and on Sunday you want to do something uncommon. That is what the day is made for. I'm talking to people who find Sunday dull and the church unmeaning, and do not care to pay religion much attention. I do not want to drive you where you do not want to go. But we ought all of us to make of Sunday a finer day than the rest of days, because we have the chance. Our daily toil makes us dull. Sunday ought to wake us up. Our daily temptations make us deceitful, hard and selfish. Sunday ought to loosen out the chords of affection and humanity and give us hearts of flesh. The daily life of men is burdened with sin and ugliness—streaked with deceit, fouled with lust and appetite. It deserves to be improved. Sunday is improvement time. I believe that when any one begins to improve time, they will soon find what good a church Sunday will do, and the value of religion. Friends try my advice a little while. —Exchange.

Selected for the Pilgrim.

THE BEING OF A GOD.

BY REV. T. WILLISTON.

1. Something must have existed from eternity. Why? Because, had there ever been a time when there was absolutely nothing in existence, there could be nothing in existence now. To say that nonentity, or the absence of all being, could give existence to something, is absurd. But something does now exist, and hence something must have always existed.

2. All things that now exist, or that ever have, may be reduced to two—mind and matter. Ransack creation, and you can find nothing, think of nothing which may not be classed under one or the other of these two. If it be said that such things as motion, noise, etc., are neither mind nor matter, the answer is that they are effects caused by the mind or matter, or else states in which they are sometimes found. Now, since mind and matter are in fact the only existing things, it follows (see preceding thesis) that one or both of these are that "something that must have existed from eternity." 3. Matter cannot have existed from eternity. Why not? Because if it had, it would of necessity be absolutely independent—not subject to the control of either God or man. No brighter independence can be conceived than that which results from eternal existence—the power to exist without any beginning, and, of course, without depending for existence on any other being or thing. And had matter and mind both existed from eternity both would have been absolutely independent, matter wholly independent of and on mind, and mind equally independent of and on matter. Now since matter is not independent, but subject to control of mind, it has not and cannot have existed from eternity. Mind, therefore (being the only existing thing beside matter), is that something which has, and which must have existed from eternity.

4. An uncaused, ever-existing mind must of necessity be, not only independent, but changeless, all-seeing, and all-powerful; in short, an infinite mind. The power to exist uncaused; or without borrowing leave to exist, necessarily involves the possession of these other attributes. Now what other being than the great I AM, whose "understanding is infinite," "the Most High God," "the Almighty," "the King eternal," "with whom is no variableness" in short, the very God of the Bible—must be this "mind which has existed from eternity?" E. R. STIFLER.

NO LAZY CHRISTIANS.

There is no better place from which to see heaven than a carpenter's table or a mason's wall, or a merchant's counter, if the heart be right. Elisha was plowing in the field when the prophetic mantle fell upon him.—Matthew was engaged in his customs house duties when he was commanded to "follow." James and John were busily engaged in mending their nets when called to be fishers of men. Had they been snoring in the sun, Christ would not have brought their indolence into the Apostleship. Gideon was at work with a flail on the threshing floor, when he saw the angel. It was when Saul was with fatigue hunting up his father's asses, that he got the crown of Israel. The "prodigal" son would not have been reformed and have wanted to go home, had he not gone into business, although it was swine feeding. Indeed, it is not once in a hundred times that a lazy man becomes a christian. There is but little hope for the man that has nothing to do. It is not when in idleness, but while like the Bethlehem shepherds watching their flocks, that the glory of God will shine about you and there will be joy in heaven among the angels of God over your soul penitent and forgiven.

Do you really have a desire for your neighbors to gain heaven? If so, and you think it probable they are blind and led by the blind, send at once and put in their hands "Anxious Bench Religion Examined" that may open their eyes that they may see Bible truths in their beauty and simplicity. See advertisement and favorable terms on which they are now offered.

From the Christian Observer.

THE FAMILY AT BETHANY—NO. 1

Sitting at Jesus' Feet—Neglected Opportunities.

In the days of the Savior, there resided in the town of Bethany a family that was often visited by him. They were a pious, harmonious, happy little family, warm-hearted believers, zealous and faithful friends and followers of the Savior; and by him were dearly loved. There were but three of them, but they formed a most lovely, interesting and attractive home circle, Mary, Martha, and their brother Lazarus.

Martha, although a sincere disciple and friend of the Savior, was yet not so spiritually minded as her sister Mary. She seems to have had the chief care of household affairs. Luke, in recording some of the incidents which occurred on the occasion of one of the Savior's visits to the town of Bethany, says that "Martha received him into her house." So she seems to have been the head of the household, and from all we can learn of her, of a very domestic and industrious turn, probably so much so as sometimes to neglect the higher and more important interests of the soul. Upon the occasion just alluded to, the Savior administered to her quite a severe reproof.

Mary, glad of so favorable an opportunity as the Savior's visit afforded to receive instructions, "sat at Jesus' feet," and heard his word. Such seasons were always delightful to her, and she greeted the Savior's coming with joy and improved each precious, passing moment as it fled. "But Martha was cumbered about much serving" — industriously employed about her household affairs, and laboring to entertain her Lord and honored guest in a becoming and suitable manner. Many cares pressed upon her, but Mary gave her no assistance. Displeased, therefore, with the conduct of her more spiritually minded sister, she went in a complaining mood to the Savior. Addressing him as her Lord, she said, "Dost thou not care that my sister hath left me to serve alone? Bid her, therefore, that she help me." But the Savior, instead of reproving Mary, and sending her to the assistance of Martha, as she doubtless supposed he would, rebuked the latter very sharply, and commended the former. "Martha, Martha," said He, "thou art careful and troubled about many things. But one thing is needful, and Mary hath chosen that good part, which shall not be taken away from her."

Thus it often happens that poor, perishing mortals are "careful and troubled about many things," to the entire neglect of the one thing needful—the salvation of their immortal souls. Worldly pursuits and worldly hopes, business, pleasure, honor, amusement, quite take up their time, and absorb their attention, to the utter exclusion of proper thought and attention to that which is infinitely more important and more profitable. They have no time to sit at Jesus' feet and hear his word. One is busy in his workshop, one upon his farm, and another about his affairs of merchandise, or affairs of office; and each toils as eagerly and industriously as if nothing but the goal they strive to reach—the reward they seek to obtain—was either needful or desirable. The cares and anxieties, and business of life press and weigh upon them, and they have not a thought for that "good part" that was the wise choice of Mary. They are careful and troubled about the perishing things of this world, which will at last fall away from their eager grasp, and fade from their anxious longing gaze; but have no care for the imperishable riches, for that enduring portion which shall never be taken away from those who have chosen it as a "good part," and fixed their affections upon it as an unfading inheritance.

How often, alas! are the followers of Christ culpable in this respect, and deserving of reproof? How often are they careful and troubled about many things, to the neglect of very precious opportunities to increase in knowledge and righteousness, and all the graces of our holy religion? There are many times when, if the Savior were in person here present with us, He would rebuke us sharply, as He did Martha. As Christians, we are often too busy about the affairs of this world, and place too high an estimate on the things of time and sense. Earth, with absorbing, present interests and moving and attractive scenes, exercises an undue influence upon us—possesses a dangerous power over us. We waste our energies and squander our time in vain pursuits, or unremitting labors to build up our worldly fortunes; and when the great change comes, there is danger that we will find ourselves but poorly prepared to enter upon the untried realities of another world. Neglected opportunities will then be remembered with vain regret. Times when we might have sat at Jesus' feet and heard his word, will be called to mind. We shall recall many a social prayer meeting, when we should have united with our fellow-Christians in the worship of God, and to pray for needed spiritual blessings; but from which we were absent because we found something else to do—because for a little season we would have to pause in our pursuits, and give our thoughts to God. How inconsistent! how soul-destroying and fatal to peace of mind and comfort in religion! Such seasons are sometimes very precious to the soul—golden opportunities when we may sit at Jesus' feet and hear his word, and if lost to us now, they will be lost forever.

Neglected opportunities never return, nor can sad regrets, or bitter tears, ever repair the follies of a misspent life. And there is a day coming, when the things of this world, however delightful and attractive, and however important we may think them now to be, will be considered light and frivolous and vain, in comparison with the mighty interests of the soul; and how far distant that day may be none of us can tell.

O then, dear reader, neglect no opportunity to learn of the Saviour. Come to Christ, and sit like Mary at his feet. Come, that you may hear his word. But one thing is needful, and if you have not before, choose now that "good part" which shall not be taken away from you. You will not regret it. Mary did not regret it, but rejoiced, and still rejoices, and will forever rejoice in the choice she made. You may have much to do, you may be careful and troubled about many things, but do not neglect the means of grace. Make good use of your time, and improve every opportunity to hear the word of Jesus. Neglect the opportunities which God in his mercy now affords you, and you are undone forever. Neglected opportunities! Neglected opportunities! Alas! they will be as a millstone about your neck; they will be as iron in your soul when you come to die. And when at last you shall have gone down to regions of despair, undying conscience will forever echo in your ears the awful sound, the knell of your departed hopes. Neglected opportunities! Neglected opportunities! J. B. R.

ESCAPE FOR THY LIFE.

I solemnly ask you, has not God declared plainly that there is a time of judgment coming when He will take "vengeance on them that know not God, and that obey not the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ?" Has He ever predicted a judgment that did not come with awful certainty? You know He has not. And you know that the time of judgment will certainly come. But one day is as another. You see no cloud of vengeance in the heavens. And you live at ease, fearless of wrath.

Ah, sinner, sooner or later the storm must fall, for God has said it. God will judge the world in righteousness by the Man whom He has raised from the dead. And in itself it is, and to you, especially, should it be a most deeply interesting and happy truth that the notice of the coming judgment is accompanied by a notice of a way of escape. The ark for Noah; Zoar for Lot; for Rahab the scarlet line; and for you, fellow sinner, Jesus Christ.

Moreover, to those who accept His salvation God gives opportunity that all their families may have the same advantages. "Come thou and all thy house into the ark" was the word of Noah. "Hast thou here any besides?" was the question to Lot. "Thou shalt bring thy father and thy mother and thy brothers and all thou hast into thy house" under the shelter of the scarlet line, was the message to Rahab. And all these were foreshadowings of what God said by Paul to the jailer: "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved and thy house."

Fellow sinner, this gives brightness to the gloomy theme of coming judgment. You must meet that judgment, either in Christ or in yourself. Which way will it be? Art thou in the ark? Is thy wife still in the Sodom of this world? Hast thou a brother, sister or child in Jericho? The same God comes to you and says: "Judgment is pronounced on this world; on all its unbelieving souls, to thee and to all thy house is the word of this salvation sent—a glorious exemption. Oh, 'tis joy to put alongside the desolating flood the ark of God's deliverance. 'Tis joy to put alongside the burning city God's city of refuge. 'Tis joy to put alongside the destruction of Jerico God's scarlet line. 'Tis joy to be able to tell the sinner of God's salvation from the coming wrath.

And what a salvation! By grace. We have nothing to merit it, and so are saved freely by grace. From love. God's salvation is the result of love. "He so loved the world that he sent his only begotten son."

On the ground of righteousness. The wages of sin is death, and Jesus paid them. He died that you might not come into the judgment. Now, grace reigns through righteousness unto eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Through faith. "Whosoever believeth in Him hath everlasting life." In the gospel is revealed the righteousness of God that inflicted judgment on sin, the love of God which embraces the sinner, and the grace of God which bringeth salvation; and from faith to faith. Believe the glad tidings. They are for you. That salvation is for the guilty; and such are you. Receive it. Believe him. And you can sing:

> "Just as I am, thy love unknown,
> Has broken every barrier down."

All gone! Jesus only! And you, in him, a justified, saved, happy man, have nothing to fear from the "wrath revealed against all ungodliness and unrighteousness of man."—Labor of Love.

O for more of the sluggish, stern religion of days gone by! Not that we want the days of old to return again, but that we might have among all that is good to-day, that great heart-earnestness that belonged to some of the fathers. The sickly piety that dwarfs and diminishes in power while it increases in display, is not the kind that converts and reforms the world. A man of exceedingly small mind is apt to affect a show of wisdom altogether beyond his reach, and, in the same way, a person only tinged with true piety asks credit for being superior to Paul himself in spiritual excellence. The great souls that live close to God, that abhor sin, fight Satan, and do willing service in the cause of Christ, make no parade of their piety, but are the moral builders of the day. One of them is worth a fortune to a household and neighborhood.—United Presbyterian.

Life is like a rushing stream that continues to flow on until it is swallowed up in the great ocean of eternity. Souls are carried along by the current of time until they come to the "valley of Death" and feel the "chilly waters." The wicked pass over the precipice and sink down—down—into the fathomless abyss of darkness and woe where there is "weeping and wailing" forever and ever! The righteous mount up higher and higher on the wings of a Savior's love to the realms of bliss and eternal felicity!—J. S. Flory.

FRIENDS MEETING.—If the meeting, on earth, of dear ones, long absent, send a thrill of joy through the whole being and cause the bosom to heave with pleasure, what must it be to meet in heaven with those who were the objects of our deepest love! Oh the rapture that will fill reunited souls in the happy land of eternal union.—J. S. Flory.

The secret of happiness is not the enlargement of our means, but the limitation of our desires.

It is one of the beautiful compensations of this life that no one can sincerely try to help another without helping himself.—C. D. Warner.

HOPE.—Some of the South Sea Islanders call hope the swimming thought—faith floating and keeping its head aloft above water, when all the waves and billows are.

When charity walks into the lowest places of want, we see the beautiful purity of her robes most distinctly.

YOUTHS' DEPARTMENT.

A CHILD'S MORNING THOUGHTS.

BY MARY TESCALEET.

The Lord has kept me all the night,
And let me see the morning light;
While others never more shall wake,
Who thought to see the morning break.

To me the Lord gave pleasant sleep,
While others waked to watch and weep,
And while they toss on beds of pain,
I rise to joy and health again.

Kind friends all here around me move,
To make me happy with their love:
While others said a long "good-bye,"
Last night, to dear ones called to die.

In far-off lands, on heathen shores,
This morn the child his offering pours
To gods of wood and stone, while I
Am taught to pray to God most high.

They never heard how Jesus gave
His life, a dying world to save;
While God's own book to me is given,
That guides to happiness and heaven.

The Lord has crowned my life with good,
With home and friends, and clothes and food;
While at my work, and at my play,
I'll try to please the Lord to-day.

"DOES GOD EVER SCOLD."

"Mother," said a little girl, "does God ever scold?" She had seen her mother, under circumstances of strong provocation, lose her temper, and give way to the impulse of passion; and pondering thoughtfully for a moment, she asked,

"Mother, does God ever scold?"

The question was so abrupt and startling that it arrested the mother's attention almost with a shock; and she asked,—

"Why, my child, what makes you ask that question?"

"Because, mother, you have always told me that God is good, and that we should try to be like him; and I should like to know if he ever scolds."

"No, my child, of course not."

"Well, I'm glad he don't, for scolding always hurts me, even if I feel I have done wrong, and it don't seem to me that I could love God very much if he scolded."

The mother felt rebuked before her simple child. Never before had she heard so forcible a lecture on the evils of scolding. The words of the child sank deep into her heart; and she turned away from the innocent face of her little one to hide the tears that gathered to her eyes. Children are quick observers; and the child, seeing the effect of her words, eagerly inquired,—

"Why do you cry, mother; was it naughty for me to say what I said?"

"No, my love; it was all right. I was only thinking I might have spoken more kindly, and not have hurt your feelings by speaking so hastily and in anger as I did."

"Oh, mother, you are good and kind; only I wish there were not so many bad things to make you fret and talk as you did just now. It makes me feel away from you so far, as if I could not come near to you, as I do when you speak kindly; and oh, sometimes I fear I shall be put off so far I can never get back again."

"No, my child, don't say that," said the mother, unable to keep back her tears, as she felt how her tones had repelled her little one from her heart; and the child, wondering what so affected her parent, but intuitively feeling it was a case requiring sympathy, reached up and throwing her arms around her mother's neck, whispered,—

"Mother, dear mother, do I make you cry? Do you love me?"

"Oh yes! I love you more than I can tell," said the parent, clasping the little one to her bosom, and I will try never to scold again, but if I have to reprove my child, I will try to do it not in anger, but kindly, deeply as I may be grieved that she has done wrong."

"Oh, I am so glad; I can get so near to you if you don't scold; and do you know, mother, I want to love you so much, and I will try always to be good."

The lesson was one that sank deep in the mother's heart; and has been an aid to her for many a year. It impressed the great principle of reproving in kindness, not in anger, if we would gain the great end of reproof—the great end of winning the child at the same time to what is right and to the parent's heart.—Selected.

For the Pilgrim.

A FEW WORD TO BOYS.

Boys, I'm writing to you. I know something of the temptations that you have to meet. When I was a boy I frequently did wrong. Now I think there was little else but temptation at that time. If I went to Sabbath school, I was tempted there. Rich men's sons would laugh at me because I couldn't afford broadcloth. Then I'd frown on 'em. I tho't if those bigoted, disgusting preachers who stood in the pulpit would quit heaping on so much style, and just hold up Christ with His homespun and seamless coat, they would have got ashamed of their pride. But so it was, couldn't see an inch of Christ. So, you see, I had not quite as good a chance as I would have had under other circumstances. Oh! how I wish now I could have heard Christ preach just one sermon. But I didn't, and had to content myself with those preached on the Mount, which I read at my leisure. But I will leave off with my temptations, as I have a few words for you. I suppose all boys are tempted somewhat alike, and it will be useless for me to enumerate mine.

But whether you are tempted to get angry, to become proud or selfish, or to commit sin at all, you had better resist evil at once while you can so easily do so. I sometimes think that those boys who continue in satan's service get friendly with him. And oh, such friendship! You should hate him as you would hate the handling of a venomous reptile. You should hate him as the enemy of your own souls. Such he is indeed. However he may not appear as such. But we believe you are intelligent and wise enough to know that it is death to continue in his service. Why not, then, join the pilgrim band now? You should do so for three reasons. 1. Because you are unsafe where you are. 2. Because, if you continue in sin you will learn to love evil so well that it will be hard—very hard indeed—to give up sinning. 3. Because it is impossible for you to be truly happy by staying away from Christ. The more you engage in sin the more you will want to do so. You never knew it to be a hard matter for old sinners to continue as such. They could cheat their neighbors and then talk about great bargains, as though said bargains embraced the salvation of the soul. But I need say no more about the faults of this class. You can see enough of their conduct and conversation to pity the dilemma into which they have fallen. But look well to where you are walking. Suffer not those young feet of yours to lead you into disobedience. Look ahead, and if you are upon the broad road turn ye back; face Heaven; enter its narrow path that you may be crowned there.

F. M. SNYDER.

STREET PREACHING.

A sermon may be obtained from an intercourse with the very humblest mind. And there is an illustration of this in Dr. Liefcheld's interview with a poor lad he met among the mountains of Ireland—one eleven or twelve years of age—poorly clad, no covering for his head, no shoes or stockings, but with a mild and cheerful countenance, and with a New Testament in his hand, keeping the gate of entrance to one of the richest and most magnificent views.

"Can you read?" said the Doctor.

"To be sure I can."

"And do you understand what you read?"

"A little."

"Let us hear you;" and I turned his attention to the third chapter of the Gospel of John, which he seemed to readily find, and said, "Now read," he did so with a clear unembarrassed voice: "'There was a man of the Pharisees named Nicodemus, a ruler of the Jews; the same came unto Jesus by night and said unto Him, Rabbi.'"

"What does that mean?"

"It means Master. 'We know thou art a teacher from God; for no man can do these miracles that thou doest, except God be with him.'"

"What is a miracle?"

"It is a great wonder. 'Jesus answered and said unto him, Verily, verily I say unto thee."

"What does 'verily' signify?"

"It means 'indeed.' 'Except a man be born again."

"What is that?"

"It means," he promptly replied, "a great change. 'Except a man be born again he cannot see the Kingdom of God.'"

"And what is that Kingdom?"

He paused, and with an expression of seriousness and devotion which I never shall forget, placing his hand upon his bosom, he said: "It is something here:" and then raising his eyes, he added, "And something up yonder."—Lamps, Pitchers and Trumpets.

THE ARAB'S GIFT.

A poor Arab was traveling in the desert, when he met with a spring of clear, sweet and sparkling water. Accustomed as he was to brackish wells, to his simple mind it appeared that such water was worthy of a monarch; and filling his leather bottle from the spring he determined to go and present it to the caliph himself.

The poor man traveled a considerable distance before he reached the presence of his sovereign, and laid his offering at his feet. The caliph did not despise the little gift brought to him with so much trouble. He ordered some of the water poured into a cup, drank it, and, thanking the Arab with a smile, ordered him to be presented with a reward.

The courtiers around pressed forward, eager to taste of the wonderful water, but to the surprise of all, the caliph forbade them to touch even a single drop.

After the poor Arab had quitted the royal presence with a light and joyful heart, the caliph turned to his courtiers and thus explained the motives of his conduct: "During the travels of the Arab, the water had become impure and distasteful. But it was an offering of love, and as such I have received it with pleasure. But I well know that had I suffered another to partake of it, he would not have concealed his disgust; and therefore I forbade you, lest the heart of the poor man should have been wounded.

Like the water brought by the Arab, little as are the gifts worth in themselves which we can lay at the feet of our Lord, he will not reject or despise the little offerings of love and faith. Precious to him is the spirit that prompts them.

Useful Watch-dogs.

In one of our Eastern towns there lived a man who was a bold leader in all opposition to religion. He delighted in finding out all inconsistencies in the lives of Christians, and was sure to publish them through the whole neighborhood. This seemed to be his chief delight. For some reason he made up his mind to remove to another part of the country. Meeting the pastor of the church one day, he said, after passing the usual salutation, "Well, I suppose you know that I am going to leave town soon, and you will probably be glad of it."

"Glad of it! why no," said the minister; "you are one of our most useful men, and I think I shall hardly know how to spare you."

This took the man all aback. He didn't know what to make of it and asked, "How is that?"

"Why," rejoined the minister, "there can't be a sheep that gets a foot out of this fold but that you will always bark from one end of town to the other. I really think you have been one of the most useful watch-dogs that I ever knew."—Parish Visitor.

DEATH.

Are you prepared for a visitation of that grim destroyer, Death? You know his visit must come sooner or later, and when he comes will you be prepared to cross that dark river with your phantom guide? Are you prepared to appear before that tribunal above, whose Judge is God, and whose wrath consigns the wicked to everlasting punishment in a lake of fire? You attend the funeral of a friend whose life was cut short by death, and shudder when you know that he died unprepared to meet his God. Do you think of the time when death shall command you to accompany him? He takes the rich, the old and the young, the king and the slave, without any distinction as to their station in life. When death has laid you on a bed from which you will never rise in this life, then you think of the unknown future which is before you, and call upon God to delay death until you are prepared to go. Cries and entreaties are in vain, however, and you are compelled to obey death's call. Then why do you delay making peace with God so that when the shadowy form of death calls you to come, you can go without fear.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATED.—Not long since, a man in India was accused of stealing a sheep. He was brought before the judge, and the supposed owner of the sheep was also present. Both claimed the sheep, and had witnesses to prove their claims, so that it was not easy for the judge to decide to whom the sheep belonged. Knowing the custom of the shepherds, and the habits of the sheep, the judge ordered the sheep to be brought into court, and send one of the men into another room, while he told the other to call the sheep, and see if it would come to him. But the poor animal, not knowing the "voice of the stranger," would not go to him. In the meantime the other man, who was in the adjoining room, growing impatient, and probably suspecting what was going on, gave a kind of a "cluck," upon which the sheep bounded away to him at once. (John 10: 4, 5.)

EDITORIAL.

THAT APPEAL.

We wish to call the attention of our readers to the Appeal made by our Missouri brethren for assistance to build a church, noticed in our columns last week.

It is necessary that we should use some precaution in such matters and not allow our liberality to be imposed upon. At the same time there is danger of carrying precaution too far and of making it a pretext for doing nothing at all in cases of real necessity. Our readers will doubtless remember of a description of a Love-feast held in Caldwell Co., Mo., by brother Sell. We looked at the thing in this way. Is it possible that some of our brethren must be subjected to such inconveniences in participating in the ordinances of God's house while others are surrounded with all the comforts and conveniences of life? How would we feel if we were necessitated to celebrate the commemorative ordinances of Jesus in a shed constructed by planting poles for the framework, and using fodder for a roof? Such were the necessities of the brethren of Missouri. They have now concluded to build a house for worship, and not feeling able within themselves, they appeal to the great Brotherhood for some assistance, and who will respond? We have many generous and liberal hearted brethren who would gladly do something towards this appeal if it was urged a little and an opportunity afforded. All that is needed is for some one to act. Let some energetic brother or sister in every church get up a list for this purpose and we feel assured that there is scarcely a church but what would give at least $1.00, while others might give $5.00 and even $10.00. At this rate Pennsylvania could give $150.00 without the least inconvenience. Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and other States could do the same, so that $1,000 could be raised for our Missouri brethren and no one would ever miss the small pittance given, but to the church in Caldwell Co. it would prove a great blessing, and, no doubt, add greatly to the prosperity of the Redeemer's Kingdom in that section of country.

Now, brethren, we have no more interest in the brethren and sisters there than we have elsewhere in our Zion, but would say, for the sake of the needy, for the sake of Jesus and our common salvation, think of these things, respond liberally to the appeal and thus help them to build a house for the Lord. The Church there demands our aid and sympathy and hope they will not be disappointed, but will have a goodly report to give of the liberality of the saints.

WANTED.

1st. Some one is wanted to give the reasons why the Brethren hold what is generally termed "Close Communion," or, in other words, why we do not invite members of other denominations to commune with us. We have several requests of this kind and hope our contributors will favor us by complying with our and their wishes.

2d. We are in need of a number of good essays on such subjects as may be for the benefit and instruction of our readers.

3rd. A greater amount of Church news. It is true that this very busy time is not very productive in this kind of information, yet there are always events transpiring in the different churches that would be of general interest, if reported.

We hope our contributors and all who are interested in having a good and interesting paper will come to our aid, especially at this time when almost everybody is busily engaged in the active labors of life. Take advantage of your spare moments and let us hear from you soon.

PERSONAL.

SARAH E. SEFTON: Yours received—all right—see money list.

E. SLIFER: You will oblige us by sending us a list of names sent us that are paid. We keep no separate account with our agents, therefore must have the name and address of each subscriber so that we can mark them paid on our books.—Tract sent.

JOHN R. SHIVELY: The money was not received—The Tracts are now sent.

W. ARNOLD: Yours has been received and PILGRIM sent. There are five copies going to your office with your own.

ELD. J. M.: An essay having for its purpose the uniting of the discordant element of the Church will be favorably received.

ELD. A. J. C. Your productions are always gladly received in the PILGRIM office, but you will please excuse us from the further agitation of Feet-washing at present

If the intention of the last decision is tolerated no mans conscience will be tried, if not, next A. M. will have its work to do over again. If we could only be satisfied to let the hair splitting questions alone and seek more after the spiritual import and design, it might be more for our spiritual good and the prosperity of Zion. The Church has become so sensitive in regard to these things, that thinking and praying will accomptish more than agitation.

JOSEPH RITTENHOUSE, "The Right word in the Right Place" is sent.

CHURCH NEWS.

COMMUNION MEETINGS.

June 19th.—Yesterday and this morning the communion meeting was held at the barn of Eld. Jacob Burkey. The meeting commenced in the evening. A very large number of members were present. Something over five hundred communed. We had a pleasant season and felt refreshed.

June 20th.—We attended the communion meeting in the Springfield congregation. Here Eld. C. Weaver presides. A large congregation was in attendance and paid good attention to the things spoken. The meeting closed June 21st, in the evening. Eleven were added by baptism and many felt almost persuaded to be christians. I hope those good impressions will not be worn away.

HAMILTON, MO.

Dear Pilgrim:—I have read with pleasure, your account of the Lovefeast at Clover Creek and many thoughts came to my miud. At that place I have often met brethren Graybill Myers, Furry, Miller, Snowberger, G. W. and J. W. Brumbaugh, and many others. Oh, how I would love to meet you all once more in this world, but I fear it will not come to pass. My very soul longs to see you all, but here I am away out in the distant West with many rivers, hills and mountains between us, and we can no more mingle our voices together as we did on former occasions before I left you. Brethren pray for me.

W. B. SELL.

Dear Pilgrim:—I wish to appeal to the Brotherhood for ministerial aid. Our field of labor is large and there are more calls for preaching than we can fill. One that could preach English and German both, would be the most suitable.

Come Brethren, where you can be useful and are so much needed. This is a good country, good soil, good water and very healthy. The land is cheap, and good market for the produce. We have the best prospects for a good crop that I ever saw Wheat and oats look well. Any wishing further information will please address,

D. O. BRUMBAUGH.
Fontinelle, Washington Co. Neb

NOTICE TO DELINQUENTS.

Since there are still a few churches in the Northern District of Ohio who have not contributed their quota of A. M. funds, we take this method of informing them that, although, the meeting has been held, and the time when such funds should have been paid has passed by, we still consider them due and will continue to so consider them till they are paid. We now call on you to pay up prior to August 1st, 1872, as we have set the time for final settlement and report. We urge a prompt compliance with the above request as we do not desire to report any of our dear brethren, as having entirely failed in complying with a plain duty.

By order of Committee of Arrangements for A. M. of 1872.

E. L. YODER, Clerk.

QUERIES.

Inasmuch as our Savior said whoever shall put way his wife, except it be for fornication, and shall marry another, committeth adultery, and as the relation between the two sexes, or a violation of that connection, generally called marriage, has caused considerable tronble and vexation among the Brotherhood, we ask the question, what is marriage? If it is not that agreement between man and woman recognized (by the powers that be, of which the apostle said there is none but which be of God) as marriage, what is it that constitutes that holy bond of which an unlawful separation bars the way into the kingdom of God?

PHILOLOGUS.

Inasmuch as the brethren are a peculiar people for holding forth the word of God as our guide, and some of our brethren are so very zealous that we should hear the church, should we not be as zealous to know to a certainty that the church is governed by the word, and not the word by the church. Inasmuch as it is written, "cursed is the man that trusteth in man and maketh flesh his own." Is the church governed by the word or the word by the church? See book of Numbers, chapter 17th, from the 15th verse to the end of the chapter, also Acts, 1st chapter, from 23d verse to the end, and 6th chapter, 6 first verses, and chapter 13th, three first verses, &c. Whereupon, laying aside all filthiness and superfluity of naughtiness and receive with meekness the ungrafted word by overcoming prejudice, selfishness, and expel ignorance by developing our minds so that we may grow in grace and in a greater knowledge of the only true God and of Jesus Christ whom he has sent, whom to know aright is eternal life.

Editor of PILGRIM and its readers please answer

AN INQUIRER.

If you want to do something towards the advancement of the cause of truth be instrumental in circulating our tracts.

GENERAL INTELLIGENCE.

Under this head we will give from time to time such items of news as we may think to be of general interest to our readers.

A WONDERFUL OLD MAN.—Mr. Simon M'Keever, of Summit Hill, now in his 91st year, is one of the most wonderful men we have ever met. Throughout his long life he has been a hard working man, but he still exhibits the life and activity of a hale and hearty man of sixty-five. He is the father of twenty-one children, nearly all of whom are living. Twenty years ago he came from Ireland to this country, bringing with him his good wife and seventeen children—probably the largest family that ever came over the water. Mr. M'Keever still works every day, and during last year he did not lose a moments time on account of sickness. He walks a mile each morning to his work, and seems to enjoy the exercise. He recollects distinctly the important events of Irish history for nearly a century, and is always glad to talk on the subject. He entertains visitors for hours, being extremely communicative upon all subjects. One of his sons, Wm. M'Keever, Esq., is an estimable citizen of Summit Hill. There is, probably, no man in the United States, at Mr. M'Keever's age, who is equal to him in physical strength. The old gentleman appears to have the chance of many years of life. May he long be spared.—Coal Gazette.

A Phenomenon in the Oil Regions.

The Titusville Courier of the 27th inst., gives the following interesting particulars of the Newton well on the Nelson farm, six miles north of that city: It has been down about twenty days, has continually poured forth such a volume of gas that it was found impossible to pump it, as the valves would not work. The tubing was pulled Wednesday, and the well was cased in order to let the gas blow off, so that it might be pumped. After the casing was put in, the sand pump was lowered for the purpose of agitating the well, and the gas raised a column of water, throwing a solid stream into the air a hundred feet. The noise was terrific, and could be heard for a distance of more than two miles. The noise was something like the loud roar of thunder, and when the column burst at the top it threw the water each way for fifteen rods from the well. The water was exhausted in about twenty-five minutes, and then a column of gas followed, rising with tremendous force fifty feet above the derrick. The outpouring of the gas makes a roaring noise that can be distinctly heard for two miles from the well. The noise around sounds like the rushing of a whirlwind. the column can be seen a mile from the well. No tools can be put into the well As soon as the attempt is made, with such force does the gas come out, that the tools are carried into the air. From descriptions of eye-witnesses this is probably the greatest gas well ever struck in the oil region. Up to last evening the gas showed no signs of being exhausted. The people in that vicinity are very much alarmed, and the cattle run about the fields perfectly wild with fright.

A Fast piece of Railroad Building.

The new Baltimore and Potomac railroad, which Col. Thomas Scott and the Pennsylvania Central are now building as rival to the Baltimore and Ohio, a through line between New York and Washington, was completed through to Baltimore on Tuesday in a novel and characteristic manner. The opponents of the road having failed in other expedients, had determined to get out an injunction on that day to prevent its passage through Baltimore. Their project becoming known to the officers of the company, all hands (some 800) were massed from all along the line, and as soon as court adjourned Monday, work was begun in earnest in constructing the road and laying the track through the city. Night setting in, they were retarded a little, but the moon soon came out and they went on the same as ever. At 12 o'clock nearly half the track was completed, and the men, tired and hungry from their excessive labor, pitched into four wagon loads of provisions that had been brought along with fine relish. Work was renewed with vigor, and before 9 o'clok Tuesday morning, the time when it was supposed the injunction was to to have been made, the last spike had been driven. The distance of the track laid was about two miles, and crossed three streets, Calverton road, Franklin and Townsend, at the two latter of which double tracks were laid. The hands belonging on the lower section of the road embarked on the trains for their quarters, and moved off amid a chorus of yells and screaming of engine whistles. It is authoritively stated that the road will be running to Washington in a week or ten days.

A SINGULAR SPRING.—The Hagerstown Torch a Week gives this interesting statement: "A few weeks since on the farm of Mr. Henry Eakle, on the Washington county railroad, and during the height of the drouth, a spring bursted forth from some rocks located nearly at the top of a hill, at the bottom of which there is a well which was dry at the time and still remains dry. There is no remembrance of there ever having been a spring at the spot where this marvel has appeared, and it is no puny affair either, it being of full capacity to supply all the wants of the farm. During the late dry weather a reservoir was dug in which a large quantity of water was caught, as we understand that from the peculiar lay of the land the water would spread and and waste. What the cause of this singular springing forth of water from a place where water was not suspected of being, of course is unknown, but is attributable, no doubt to some interior commotion of the ever changing earth."

MONEY LIST.

Simon Mixel.	50
Jacob Roudabush,	.50
Jonathan Hoover,	.80
Jonathan Davis,	1.25
S. A. Moore,	7.00
Wm H. S. McClellan	.85
B. F. Darst,	2.80
Isaac Singer,	.80
Nancy Swartz,	1.00
D. O. Brumbaugh,	1.25
Eph. W. Stoner,	1.00
John H. Miller,	.65
E. J. Zuck,	1.40
Jacob Mohler,	5.44
Richard Hitchens,	.85
Sallie E. Sefton,	3.75
Emanuel Slifer,	5.00
A. L. Bowman,	1.25
W. Arnold,	1.25
J. B. Miller,	20.60

Educational.

The second year of Pleasant Hill College, Warsaw, Ind., will begin Sept. 4th, 1872, in which a thoroughly practical education will be given in Academic and Collegiate studies. Brethren's children are expected to attend our weekly religious meetings. Ladies and gentlemen admitted on equal footing.

O. W. MILLER, President.
Warsaw, Ind. July 9–tf.

THE WEALTH OF MISSOURI.

There is nothing more remarkable in the history of nations than the rapid development and growth in wealth and population of our territories. The assessment returns of the State of Missouri for the year 1862 give more than a shadow of probability to the boast of ambitious St. Louisians, who claim that their State is destined to become the first in the Union. Missouri has 36,092,023 acres of land, which is fairly valued to-day at $212,591,429, and with her cities, towns, and the valuable buildings in the farming districts, shows an aggregate real estate valuation of $427,553,152. Within the borders of the State are 553,878 horses, valued at more than $24,000,000, 119,077 asses and mules, and 148,632 neat cattle, to say nothing of immense flocks of sheep and droves of hogs. Nor are the returns of personal property less astonishing, showing as they do the almost fabulous totality of $140,622,390, which added to the wealth in real estate and stock, makes the total taxable wealth of the State $568,155,502. This is nearly double the valuation of 1860, and shows an increase of wealth out of all proportion to the increase of inhabitants, which have only increased from 1,182,012 to 1,721,295 during the last decade.

The Storm in the Northwest.

Later despatches give further details of the great rain storm in Illinois. At Canton it was the most destructive of any storm in many years.

All the low lands in every direction were flooded, and a great destruction of crops is reported. Along the Illinois river bottom lands everything was washed away, including houses, barns and stock. Northeast of Canton several houses were swept off, the inmates barely escaping with their lives. Large numbers of hogs and other stock were drowned. In the southeast the losses are still more extensive, fences, bridges, culverts, railroad tracks and everything movable having been swept away. Several narrow escapes from drowning are reported. One invalid, compelled to move out of the storm, died of exposure yesterday morning. All the coal mines east and south of Canton are flooded. On Spoon river the damage is reported as still greater.

The Toledo, Peoria and Western, and Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroads were both badly damaged. The bridges are gone and the tracks washed away. The damage to the crops is very heavy. All grain on the lowlands is washed out, but the higher prairie farms have not suffered much. Two deaths by drowning are reported.

DRUNKENNESS IN RUSSIA.—Every individual found, in the streets of the cities and towns of Russia, in a state of intoxication is compelled to work at sweeping the streets during the whole of the following day. The rigor and impartiality, as to nation, sex, or condition, with which this rule is carried out is worthy of imitation by more civilized nations.

THE MARKETS.

MARTINSBURG MARKETS.

Flour	$10.00
Wheat	1.90
Rye	.90
Corn	.90
Oats	.50
Clover Seed	6.00

PRODUCE MARKETS.

Butter	12½
Eggs	.15
Lard	.10
Tallow	.10
Soap	.08

PHILADELPHIA MARKETS.

June. 3, 1872.

FLOUR, Extra family	$10.00
" Superfine	6.50
" fancy brands	8.50
" Rye	5.50
CORN MEAL	5.00
WHEAT, white, per bushel	2.18
" red. "	2.15
CORN	.69
RYE	.95
OATS	.51

GOOD BOOKS.

A large number of our patrons are receiving our books as noticed below, as premiums, and express themselves highly pleased with them. Others who are not agents, have enquired whether we keep them for sale. We have now made arrangements with Mr. Wells to furnish any of their publications post paid at publishers prices. Orders for books must be accompanied with the cash, and plain directions for sending them.

Conversion of St. Paul. By George Jarvis Geer, D. D. 12mo. fine edition, $1. Plain edition, 75 cents.

Footprints of Life; or, Faith and Nature Reconciled.—A Poem in three parts. The Body. The Soul. The Deity. By Philip Harvey, M. D. $1.25.

Fruit Culture for the Million. A Hand book. being a Guide to the Cultivation and Management of Fruit Trees. Descriptions of the Best Varieties, and How to Propagate them. illustrated $1.00.

Hand-book for Home Improvement: comprising "How to Write," "How to Talk," How to Behave," and "How to do Business," in one vol. 2.25.

How to Live; Saving and Wasting, or Domestic Economy. By Solon Robinson. $1.50.

Hopes and Helps for the Young of both sexes, Relating to the Formation of Character. Choice of Avocation, Health, Conversation, Cultivation of Intellect, Moral Sentiments, Social Affection Courtship and Marriage. By Rev. G. S. Weaver. Muslin, $1.50.

Life at Home; or, The Family and its Members. Husbands, Wives, Parents, Children, Brothers, Sisters, Employers and Employed, etc. By Rev. William Aikman, D. D. A work which should be found in every family. $1.50. Extra gilt, $2.00.

Man and Woman: Considered in their Relations to each Other and to the World. By Henry C. Pedder. 12mo, Fancy cloth. Price $1.00.

Man, in Genesis and in Geology; or, the Biblical Account of Man's Creation, tested by Scientific Theories of his Origin and Antiquity. By Joseph P. Thompson, D. D., LL.D. One vol. 12mo, $1.00.

Oratory—Sacred and Secular; or, the Extemporaneous Speaker. Including Chairman's Guide for conducting Public Meetings according to the best Parliamentary forms. By Wm. Pittenger. $1.50.

The Emphatic, Diaglott; or The New Testament in Greek and English. Containing the Original Greek Text of the New Testament, with an Interlineary Word for-word English Translation. A Work for Students in Theology, and S. S. Teachers. By Benjamin Wilson. Price, $4.00; extra fine binding, $5.00.

Wayer's Works for the Young. Comprising "Hopes and Helps for the Young of both Sexes," "Aids and Aims for Girls and Young Women," "Ways of Life; or, the Right Way and the Wrong Way." $3

The Right Word in the Right Place. A New Pocket Dictionary and Reference Book. Embracing Synonyms, Technical Terms, Abbreviations, Foreign Phrases, Writing for the Press, Punctuation, Proof-Reading, and other Valuable Information. Cloth, 75cts.

Menno Simon's
COMPLETE WORKS.

In English, translated from the original Dutch or Holland, giving the whole of the great Reformers writings on the subject of Baptism. Price in full sheep $4.50; by mail $5.14.

Address, JOHN F. FUNK & BRO.

AGENTS WANTED FOR
"JESUS."
BY CHARLES F. DEEMS, D. D.
His deeply established and rationalism rooted. The most popular and rapidly-selling religious work ever issued. For Circulars, address U. S. PUBLISHING CO., N. Y.

New Hymn Books, English.

TURKEY MOROCCO

One copy,	post-paid,	$1 00
Per Dozen,		11 25

PLAIN ARABSQUE.

One Copy,	post-paid,	75
Per Dozen,	"	$ 50

PLAIN SHEEP.

One Copy,	post-paid,	75
Per Dozen,	"	$ 50

Ger'n & English, Plain Sheep.

One Copy	post-paid	$ 1 00
Per Dozen		11 25
Arabesque plain,		1.00
Turkey morocco,		$ 1.25.
Single German	post-paid,	50
Per Dozen,		5 50

HUNTINGDON & BROAD TOP RAIL ROAD

Summer Arrangement.

On an after Tuesday, June 4, 1872, Passenger trains will arrive and depart as follows:

Trains from Huntingdon South.			Trains from Bedford moving North.
MAIL. A. M.	ACCOM P. M.	STATIONS.	MAIL. P. M.	ACCOM A. M.
*le*8 20	LE6 00	Huntingdon,	AR5 25	AR9 10
8 28	6 06	Long Siding	5 17	9 00
8 45	6 19	McConnelstown	5 04	8 45
8 51	6 25	Pleasant Grove	4 58	8 39
9 05	6 37	Marklesburg	4 45	8 27
9 20	6 51	Coffee Run	4 33	8 11
9 27	6 58	Rough & Ready	4 26	8 04
9 39	7 10	Cove	4 12	7 52
9 43	7 15	Fishers Summit	4 08	7 48
10 03	7 35	Saxton	3 48	le 7 28
10 10	7 53	Saxton		*ar*7 10
10 27	8 10	Riddlesburg	3 30	6 53
10 34	8 17	Hopewell	3 22	6 46
10 51	8 35	Piper's Run	3 06	6 30
11 10	8 55	Tatesville	2 48	6 12
11 22	9 08	Bloody Run	2 33	6 00
11 26	9 12	Mount Dallas	2 29	5 56
11 32	9 19	Ashcom's Mills	2 22	5 50
11 36	9 23	Lutzville	2 18	5 46
11 40	9 27	Hartley's Mills	2 14	5 42
11 46	9 34	Jamesons	2 07	5 36
*r*11 22	*ar*9 40	Bedford	LE2 00	LE5 30

JOHN M'KILLIPS, Supt

SHOUP'S RUN BRANCH.

LE10 15	LE7 40	Saxton.	AR3 40	AR7 20
10 30	7 55	Coalmont.	3 25	7 05
10 35	8 00	Crawford.	3 20	7 00
AR10 45	AR8 10	Dudley	LE3 10	LE6 50
Bro'd Top City from Dudley 2 miles by stage.

Time of Penna. R. R. Trains at Huntingdon.

EASTWARD.			WESTWARD.
Hb'g Ac.	9 24	A. M	Cin. Ex.	2 19	A. M.
Mail	3 30	P. M	Pac'f Ex.	7 45	"
Cin. Ex.	6 55	"	Mail	5 40	P. M.
Phil. Ex	11 15	"	W. Pass.	11 52	A. M.

TRACTS.

"ANXIOUS BENCH RELIGION EXAMINED," by Elder J. S. Flory, is a Tract now ready for distribution, of which the following is a brief synopsis of the contents: A short and pointed address to the reader. The motive that prompted him to write, and his responsibilities as a minister: The peculiarities attending this type of religion; The feelings there experienced, not imaginary but real, The key that unlocks the wonderful mystery: It is not the workings of God after the order and plan of salvation; Man's endowment, his imitative principle—emanated from God; Spiritual influences and intercourse; Relation existing between man and God, and man and man; The fraternal bond and our natural affinities established by the "so called" sciences of Electro Biology; Mesmerism and Psychology or science of the soul, also, "Spiritualism" "Spiritual Rappings," &c. The causes by which the feelings are excited; Sympathy of the nervous system, and how that momentary feeling of joy is brought about, called, "Experimental Religion; Similar feelings may be brought about when there are no religious pretensions; Our reasons why we think this modus operandi of getting religion is not according to the Gospel, and then concludes by pointing out that form of doctrine as taught by Jesus Christ, and recorded by His faithful witness.

These tracts will be sent to all post paid, on the following terms: Two copies, 10 cts, 10 copies 40 cents, 25 copies 70 cents, 50 copies $1.00, 100 copies $1.50.

1870 1872
DR. FAHRNEY'S
Blood Cleanser or Panacea.

A tonic and purge, for Blood Diseases. Great reputation. Many testimonials. Many ministering brethren use and recommend it. Ask or send for the "Health Messenger." Use only the "Panacea" prepared at Chicago, Ills., and by

Dr. P. Fahrney's Brothers & Co.,
Mar. 29-pd. Waynesboro, Franklin Co., Pa.

Italian Queen Bees,
FOR SALE.

Purity and safe arrival guaranteed. Sent post paid, at $2.25 each.

Address,
ISAAC HEDDING,
Lewistown, Box 160,
Jun. 24-tf.. Mifflintown Co., Pa.

Trine Immersion.

A discussion on Trine Immersion, by letter between Elder B. F. Moomaw and Dr J. J. Jackson, to which is annexed a Treatise on the Lord's Supper, and on the necessity, character and evidences of the new birth, also a dialogue on the doctrine of non-resistance, by Elder B. F. Moomaw. Single copy 50 cents.

THE PILGRIM,

Published by J. B. Brumbaugh, & Co.

Edited by H. B. & Geo. Brumbaugh.

CORRESPONDING EDITORS.

D. P. Sayler, Double Pipe Creek, Md.

Leonard Furry, New Enterprise, Pa.

The Pilgrim is a Christian Periodical, devoted to religion and moral reform. It will advocate in the spirit of love and liberty, the principles of true Christianity, labor for the promotion of peace among the people of God, for the encouragement of the saints and for the conversion of sinners, avoiding those things which tend toward disunion or sectional feelings.

TERMS.

Single copy, one year,	$1.25.
Book paper, " "	1.50.
Eleven copies, [eleventh for Agt.]	$12.50.

Any number above that at the same rate,
Address.

H. B. BRUMBAUGH.
James Creek,
Huntingdon county Pa.

Merkin Pilgrim.

"REMOVE NOT THE ANCIENT LANDMARKS WHICH OUR FATHERS HAVE SET."

VOL. 3 JAMES CREEK, PENNSYLVANIA, JULY 16, 1872. NO. 29.

POETRY.

SPEAK KINDLY.

When ushers in the orb of day,
And birds are warbling on the spray,
And bees commence their humming.
When dew-drops glisten in the sun,
And house-wife has her work begun,
Speak kindly.

To smooth the cares of every day,
And lighten burdens by the way,
And cheer the panting spirit.
Through all affairs of daily life,
And free the mind of painful strife,
Speak kindly.

When night succeeds the day of toil,
And evening hours we would beguile,
And rest upon our couches.
Not knowing but some loved one near,
Before the dawn may disappear,
Speak kindly.

To cheer the downcast, bruised heart,
And smooth the pang of sorrow's smart,
And calm the troubled breast;
To wake the erring to reform.
And help from evil ways to turn,
Speak kindly

Kind words are balm to every soul—
They tend to make the wounded whole
And strengthen well the spirit;
Then let us smooth the path of life,
And ease the pains of cares and strife,
By always speaking kindly.

ORIGINAL ESSAYS.

THE GREAT CONVENTION.

In this imaginary Convention we give the result of our musings on the action of the different faculties relative to the fall, in conjunction with the promptings of the evil one. Each name represents a power of the mind as then developed while the enemy retains his own significant name. In order to catch the ideas suggested, the reader must accept the truth, now generally admitted, that we are differently constituted and those differences are produced by the irregular development of the different faculties of the mind, as is made manifest in almost every person we meet. The fall in this paper, is attributed to the predominating of the carnal or fleshly mind or propensities, over the spiritual by or thro' the dictation of satan. The speakers are to represent the most prominent faculties of the mind and the influence they may exert, while satan represents the Tempter who beguiled Eve. The two Kingdoms represent Adam and Eve, Eve the weaker, because first attacked.

Satan, from the confines of despair, makes his way to Eden, the newly formed Kingdom of man, which, though divided into two divisions, are under the same form of government, having the same King. Close by the forbidden tree he meets Alimentiveness, a chief man in the Kingdom, when the following conversation took place;

Satan. Most happy am I to meet thee, thou fair being of the earth. Much have I seen and oft have I traveled to and fro through the world of light, but never before saw such as thou art. From whence, and where thy origin?

Alimentiveness. Thou hast well said, as I feel quite certain such as we never met before, but as thou would'st know my origin, I shall endeavor to tell. We are the creation of the God, who made the heavens, the earth and all that dwell therein.

Satan. You say we, be there more such as thou art?

Alimentiveness. We be many, yet we all reside in this beautiful Kingdom and have but one King.

Satan. How lovely, to dwell in a world like this. A happy Kingdom you must have, and no doubt, peace and harmony reigns among all its subjects, all enjoying like privileges, like power.

Alimentiveness. Our King has been very gracious to us in that he created everything for our good and made all subject to our wills, yet we do not all exactly agree. The other evening brother Inquisitiveness and I were consulting together and from what we could learn, we came to the conclusion that there is something in the plan of our King that we cannot understand.

Satan. Ah, ha! a secret sticking behind it, something that you should know, but keeps it from you for a while in order that you may have the honor of enhancing your own knowledge, but why think ye there is something unrevealed?

Alimentiveness. As you see, he has given us a beautiful world and in it are all manner of fruits, "pleasant to the sight and good for food." Of all these, he says we may eat, and freely eat, but of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, thou shalt not eat of it, for in the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die.

Satan. What tree did you say? Of the knowledge of good and evil! Why my dear brother, let me assure you that is just the very thing you need.

Alimentiveness. O, I know we should know more than we do, and I long to taste the luscious fruit, but dare not without the consent of my brethren.

Satan. I am becoming deeply interested in your Kingdom and greatly desire to know something more about it. I especially desire to form the acquaintance of brother Inquisitiveness. I also am a King and what little I have learned of you, think I might be of great service to you and your brethren, especially if you would adopt me instead of your present King, of whom I know much which I will be pleased to reveal if opportunity would afford.

Alimentiveness. The thing pleases me well and have determined to call a Convention and lay the matter before the principal men of the Kingdom, and according to their decision we will act, which, I think will be favorable to your proposition, but in order to make success doubly sure, I propose that you be present with us to introduce yourself and also make known what you have learned about our present King.

Satan. Your proposition meets my approbation in every respect, and I shall be most happy to comply with your very proper request;—but when does your King meet with you as it would be better to have this meeting at a time when he is not present?

Alimentiveness. Generally in the cool of the evening, or before the sun sinks to sleep in its western bed.

Satan. I propose then, that we meet on the morrow's morn while the dew yet clings to the tender leaves and ere the north wind awakes to wave the branches of this most mysterious tree—but, excuse me, did you not say there were two Kingdoms? If so, are they equal in power? If not, which is the greater and which is the weaker, to which do you belong, and if one accepts me as King is it probable the other will follow?

Alimentiveness. There are really two Kingdoms and I belong to what is considered the weaker or younger from the fact that in the beginning there was only one Kingdom and from that our Kingdom was formed, but this is in our favor as the original Kingdom may be more attached to their King than ours, but our concerns for, and attachment to each other is so great that I feel assured that what we do the other will do also.

Satan. All right, your answer is satisfactory and your reasoning good, on to-morrow we meet. May prosperity attend thy labors until we meet again.

Satan, full of hate and with ambition wild, takes his leave and at the eastward limit of the hallowed spot seats himself to watch the ensuing events. The balmy breeze softly fans the fevered brow while the sweet aroma of the luscious fruit falls upon his sense of taste and he pities the subjects that he is enwrapping in his net. Just then he raises his burning eyes and beholds the King of heaven in all his resplendent glory descend to visit the subjects of his new creation. He remembers of his future glory, of his rebellion, of his defeat—his fall and his miseries in the confines of hell, and his somewhat latent ire burns afresh—the deep seated revenge is gnawing the vitals of his existence and will not be satisfied short of the destruction of the creation God has so lately made. With bright prospects for the mornings meeting, he recedes beyond the limits of this blissful Eden, there to await the approaching morn.——— The Father takes his leave of the favored spot and Alimentiveness makes known his proposition and announces the time of the approaching Convention. With many conflicting opinions and evil forbodings, the heretofore peaceful Kingdom fall to sleep. ———The auspicious morn to some, at length arrives and the great Convention assembles, and to the council chamber satan soon found his way.

Among the prominent persons of the Convention were the following:

Vitiativeness, Combativeness, Destructiveness, Alimentiveness, Secretiveness, Approbativeness, Self-Esteem, Firmness, Conscientiousness, Hope, Spirituality, Veneration, Individuality, &c.

The Convention now organizes by appointing Alimentiveness chairman whose duty it was to introduce the new subject for King.

[Continued next week.]

THE EXCEEDING GREAT VALUE OF THE SOUL.

"For what is a man profited if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul? or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul? Matt. 16:26.

The Savior truthfully knew that the soul was of more value than the whole world. He payed the price of it with His own precious blood. We should therefore regard this declaration as being full of truth, and truth too, that is of very great importance. We view it as such and as we have a concern for those who are not impressed with the importance of attending to the working out of their soul's salvation, we desire to pen a few thoughts that might induce such to give this matter a thought at least.

We shall then endeavor to look at the subject under the following heads: 1st. Every man has a soul that to him is of the greatest value. 2d. There is a very great danger of losing the soul.

What the soul really is and its nature are subjects that are very imperfectly understood, but we can glean from divine Revelation that it is something separate from the body—a thinking, immortal substance, and capable of being separate from the body in another world. Jesus says to His disciples, "Fear not them that kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul: but rather fear Him who is able to destroy both soul and body in hell." Jesus told the thief on the cross that he should be with Him that very day in Paradise. Now we know that the body of Jesus was laid in the tomb, consequently there must have been a meeting of two like principles separate from the body. In the parable of the rich man and Lazarus we have another striking illustration of the existence of the soul apart from the body. In that we learn that the soul of the rich man was tormented in hell while his body was interred in the earth. Many more references might be given but let this suffice to show that notwithstanding the body will decay and return to dust the soul will ever live, and that too in a state of rest and enjoyment, or of eternal misery and despair. The soul then is valuable because of its nature and of its eternal existence. But we will look at the value of the soul from other considerations. Its origin makes it valuable. It came directly from God. In the first chapter of Genesis we read "and God said let us make man in our own image, after our likeness." And in the second chapter it is said "the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground and breathed into him the breath of life, and man became a living soul." God made a temple first and then blew into it the breath of life and man became superior to all things else created. And why? Because of his partaking of the likeness and the attributes of God.

The soul is valuable also because of the great price that was paid for its redemption. In 1 Peter 1:18, 19, we read of the nature of this redemption. "For as much as ye know that ye were not redeemed with corruptible things, such as silver and gold, but with the precious blood of Christ, as of a lamb without blemish and without spot." Surely when we think of the sacrifice that was made for our redemption we must consider the soul valuable. Silver and gold was not valuable enough to pay the price, nay, nothing less than the suffering, the death and the shedding of the blood of God's own Son could cancel the great debt. Oh does not this great price tell of its infinite value. Then, if you please, look back into the garden of Gethsemane and you can discover the conceptions the Son of God had of its value. He prayed the Father if it were possible to let the bitter cup of suffering pass by, yet if it was His will that He should endure all in order that the great work of redemption might be accomplished, He was willing. And in this garden He suffered, and such suffering too, as never man endured.

Again another illustration of the great value of the soul is, the strife that exists between heaven and hell for the souls of men. Heaven throws forth every inducement for us to come to God, and He sent His only son into the world to establish the way. He has now himself become the way and says, "if any man will come unto me, let him take up his cross daily and follow me." He has also sent His spirit into the world to draw all that can be possibly drawn—to convict and convince men of righteousness and a judgment to come. The ministers, those whom He has called by His word to proclaim the great message of salvation are at work. They travel from place to place, over hills and mountains, to labor for the salvation of sinners. The glories of heaven are portrayed in the most striking manner that they may win souls and save them from the punishment that awaits the wicked.

But while all these inducements are being put forth to win souls to Christ, the devil is at the same time trying to destroy the soul. He is described as being as subtle as a serpent and lies in wait to deceive. He is again spoken of as being like a roaring lion going about seeking whose soul he may devour. In a word it is his office to lead men into sin and get them to neglect their soul's salvation. This he does by various means. Some he succeeds in getting to love their business too much and by this means neglect the weightier matters. How often do we hear professed christians say that they cannot leave their place of business to attend preaching, or when the business of the church is to be transacted. This is really the effects of the adversary, for if we have the good cause at heart, we will think of these things beforehand, and have things arranged so that we can be present on all such occasions. Again he prejudices the minds of the people against the gospel, and this is the reason that it meets with so much opposition. He knows that it is the power of God unto salvation and therefore tries to keep men from adhering to it. If men truly believe the gospel they will be turned from darkness to light, and from under the power of satan to God. From these considerations, dear reader, you may learn to know the value of your soul, and now whom will you serve? Will you continue to rebel against that lovely Jesus that has paid the ransomed price and thus lose your soul which is of such inestimable value? Oh, stop and think! Remember this life is but the seedtime of eternity and what a man soweth, that shall he also reap. If you sow iniquity, you will reap vanity, and then how deplorable will be your condition. Oh, dear sinner, we humbly implore you to think of these things before it is too late.

We now come to the latter division of our subject. That there is great danger of losing the soul. We glean this idea from the frequent warnings that are given throughout the Scriptures. The Savior told the disciples to "watch and pray" that they enter not into temptation; the spirit indeed is willing but the flesh is weak." He saw their proneness to fall asleep, and as it is in this condition, spiritually, that satan makes his inroads upon the soul, He gave them these words of warning. Beware, be awake, for there is danger; you may be led into temptation and thus jeopardize your thrice precious souls. Again another warning is given in the words of Jesus, "enter ye in at the strait gate; for wide is the gate and broad is the way that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat: Because strait is the gate and narrow is the way that leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it." Matt. 7: 13, 14. Dear reader, does not this warning bespeak danger? Ah, yes, and we fear there are many, very many, that have entered at the wide gate and are now traveling the broad way that leads to destruction. The language conveys the idea that this way will be much traveled, and from the reading of the 21st and 22d verses of the same chapter, we learn that there will those travel that way too that think they are doing God's service, and have a lively hope of eternal life. But how great their disappointment in the great day of accounts. Notwithstanding they may claim to have done many wonderful things in the name of Jesus, yet the Lord will disown them and they will have to depart from His presence—lost, forever lost! This idea so clearly set forth should serve as a warning to those who set out on their way to Zion. Remember it is said he that keepeth the whole law and yet offendeth in one point is guilty of the whole. How then can we expect salvation when we willingly and knowingly neglect part of the means for our salvation? The idea is absurd, and we fear those who expect salvation on any other terms than those laid down in the gospel, will be disappointed in the great day of accounts. When our friends are about to depart to the spirit world we stand around their bedside eager to hear words expressing their acceptance with God. But is this really an evidence? No, they may feel that they have done many wonderful works and have bright hopes, and pleasing prospects for the future, yet at that great day the Lord may disown them. And why? Because they may have a wrong and mistaken zeal. Perhaps have been willing to comply with only a part of the gospel—that which best suited their inclinations. Dear christian friends, there is danger. We may think we are prepared for heaven even until we approach the bar of God and then be disappointed. Give me as an evidence a life that bespeaks a willingness to comply with all the means of salvation and then indeed we have one. May we all be enabled to give this evidence.

We shall now close this essay by noticing briefly the class of persons that will lose their souls. We read (1 Cor. 6: 9, 10,) "Know ye not that the unrighteous shall not inherit the Kingdom of God? Be not deceived; neither fornicators, nor idolators, nor adulterers, nor effeminate, nor abusers of themselves with mankind, nor thieves, nor covetous, nor drunkards, nor revilers, nor extortioners, shall inherit the Kingdom of God" In this quotation we have a long catalogue of those who will lose their souls; and dear reader will you not examine yourself and see whether you do not belong to either of this class. If you do we earnestly beseech you to be washed, be sanctified in the name of the Lord Jesus, and justified by the spirit of God. Again in Luke 13: 3, we read "Except ye repent ye shall all likewise perish." From this we learn that all impenitent persons will lose their souls. Those who are rejecting the counsel of God cannot have the faintest hope of eternal life. We read (Matt. 18: 3,) "Verily I say unto you, except ye be converted and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the Kingdom of heaven." From this we learn that all unconverted persons will lose their souls.

All unregenerated persons are also without the promise. "Except a man be born of water and of the spirit he cannot see the Kingdom of God." And lastly the great and profound question comes up, "How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation?' The answer is a selfevident one, if we neglect the gospel we will certainly lose our souls.

Now we are done with the subject, and though we have treated it rather imperfectly, our aim has been to impress your minds with a very important truth. There are many whom we love and respect that we know are negligent and indifferent to their eternal interests. May we not, dear friends, prompt you to think of the inestimable value of your souls and the great danger to which it is subjected, before it is too late. J. B. B.

THE CONSTRAINING LOVE OF CHRIST.

BY GERHARD TERSTEEGEN.

The love of Christ is a vital, active and mighty power of God, which actually raises and restores us from our errors and corruptions, sin and death; imparts a new and real life, makes us willing, alert, and able to the performance of all that is good, and renders us truly happy. The love of Christ is the commencement, foundation and soul of Christianity, and of all real religion. He that does not possess the love of Christ, has either no godliness or piety at all, or only such a piety as is hypocritical and dead. Christ in order to save us must not remain at a distance from us; we must experience the power of His love upon our hearts, and make room for it; otherwise, notwithstanding all our speaking and hearing of the love of Christ, we continue in a state of spiritual darkness and wretchedness.

Christ undoubtedly makes the beginning by first loving us, when, for instance, the love of Christ urges a man to repentance, the spirit of love then reproves him for his unrighteousness, convinces him of the necessity of repentance and conversion, and alarms him on account of his sins and the dangerous state of his soul; there is something that seems to pursue the man and presses itself upon him, constraining him to repent and yield himself to God, and become another man. 'Tis true, the blinded mortal regards it in his ignorance as a temptation of the devil which he ought to resist, or else he looks upon it as proceeding from his own uneasy and accidental thoughts and as something of an evil or melancholy nature; yet, although he would often gladly be rid of it, it still returns to prove that it does not proceed from the man himself. Many a one alas, suffers days and years to elapse without perceiving that it is the saving love of Christ which thus constrains him. Be assured that it is the compassionate and loving Jesus who stands at thy door and knocks; He sues and begs for thy heart just as if He really stood in need of it, saying, "Give me, my son, O give me thy heart, be thou reconciled unto God." Thus it is that the love of Christ constrains, and how often, and how long has He not dealt thus with us? How often would He have gathered us as a hen gathereth her brood under her wings, but He did not come at a convenient season, and we would not. In our natural state we are running straight to perdition; is it not love therefore, when the Savior arrests us in our course? We wander as it were, on the brink of ruin, is not that love where He lays hold on us and draws us back, even by the pains he makes us feel?

Now, if the soul give ear and admission to this attracting and restoring love, so that the heart, being depressed, bowed down, and broken by true repentance, seeks for refuge in the mercy of God. It is again the love of Christ, by means of which the soul is constrained to experience such painful feelings. Man's carnal nature would indeed gladly expel the subject from his mind, and live the day through as before, free, jovial, and merry; but such a burden has fallen upon his heart as cannot be got rid of,—he feels his sins, his wants, his danger, and he feels them at all times. It is the love of Christ which constrains him to feel thus, although the soul, as yet, knows nothing of this love, but is only conscious of wrath and condemnation. He has heard and acknowledges that it is he who, by his sins, has crucified his loving Savior. This pierces him to the heart, this gives him pain, it is necessary that he feel it a little here, that he may not feel it hereafter, is not this love?

D. NEGLEY.

GOOD WORDS.

If you know anything that will make your brother's heart glad, run quick and tell it, but never be the bearer of mischief-making words. If you can control the tongue that no improper words are pronounced by it, you will soon be able to control the mind and save it from corruption. You extinguish the fire by smothering it. Never utter a word anywhere which you would be ashamed to utter in the presence of the most refined woman or the most religious man.

There is not a shorter, more hopeful, more inviting word in all the Bible than the small word "Come." It is indeed the key note to the Gospel. To the weary and heavy laden, "Come and find rest;" to the thirsty and fainting, "Come, come and drink" "Come and take the water of life freely;" only come.

A guilty conscience stings deeper than the keenest lash. The body is the shell of the mind, and the dress is the husk of the body; but the husk generally tells about what the kernel is. If we command our wealth we shall be rich and free; if our wealth command us, we shall be poor indeed. The man who knows the world will never be bashful, and that man who knows himself will never be impudent. Divine consolations are nearest the trusting Christian, when human assistance is farthest away.

CROOKED STICKS.

It was a quaint, but wise remark, "God Almighty can strike a straight blow with a crooked stick." He meant to say that God could work by means of uneducated ministers; which is true, though no argument for ignorance. In a wider sense than he intended, God can can effect His purposes by what seem to us not only very imperfect, but inappropriate, and even impossible agencies. It is not for us to limit the Almighty. He can make no mistakes. Crooked men, when employed by Him can not strike amiss.

They make the very impression that He intended. They strike a straight blow. Jonah was a crooked stick, and not only crooked, but gnarled; but when God used him, He struck a straight blow; a blow that went straight to the conscience of the Ninevites, and bound them in penitence and submission.

The Pharisees of Christ's day were crooked sticks, but when they struck at the Son of God, Heaven and earth proclaimed from the Cross that they had struck a straight blow. Satan is a crooked stick; but when he tempted Jesus in the wilderness, he struck a straight blow. He did the same when he tempted Peter to deny his Master. He has repeated the same performance over and over again, ever since. The wrath of man is a crooked stick, but God will make it to praise Him. And He will do the same with the folly and rashness and recklessness of man.—Christian Era.

TRUE GREATNESS.

Mere decision of character, taken in a worldly sense, is insufficient to produce true greatness of character. What is further needed is a clear, commanding view of duty as one and unutterable, to be the pole-star in the heavens. It is, therefore, hard to overrate the importance of cultivating this distinct and unclouded apprehension of right and wrong as a permanent mental habit. In order to attain this, we must be often thinking of moral questions, and settling principles before the hour of trial. In this, likewise, men widely differ. Happy is the youth who begins early to meditate on such subjects, and to clear his notions as to what he ought to do in given emergencies. He will find the bracing influence of such views in moments when all are shaking around him. Looking only at principles of eternal right, he will go serenely forward, even in the face of adverse popular opinion. While weaker minds are halting to collect the votes of the masses, he will bare his bosom to the shower of darts, and march up to the requisitions of conscience, in spite of the instant tyrant, or, what is often more formidable, of turbulent populace.—Rev. Dr. J. W. Alexander.

BIBLE STUDY.—I will not scruple to assert that the most illiterate Christian, if he can but read his English Bible, and will take the pains to read it in this manner, comparing parallel passages, will not only attain all that practical knowledge which is necessary to his salvation, but, by God's blessing, he will become learned in everything relating to his religion in such a degree that he will not be liable to be misled, either by the refined arguments or by the false assertions of those who endeavor to ingraft their own opinion upon the Oracles of God. He may safely be ignorant of all philosophy except what is to be learned from the sacred books, which, indeed, contain the highest philosophy adapted to the lowest apprehensions. He may safely remain ignorant of all history, except so much of the history of the first ages of the Jewish and of the Christian Church as is to be gathered from the canonical books of the Old and New Testaments.

Let him study these in the manner I recommend, and let him never cease to pray for the illumination of that Spirit by which these books were dictated, and the whole compass of abstruse philosophy and recondite history shall furnish no argument with which the perverse will of man shall be able to shake this learned Christian's faith.—Bishop Horseley.

GROWTH IN GRACE.—Grow in grace; because this is the only way you can be certain that you have any grace at all. If we aim not at growth in grace, we have never been converted to godliness. He that is satisfied with his attainments, has attained nothing. He that sees so little of the promises of the inward, transforming, elevating influences of grace, as to think that he has attained all he can desire, has never understood the first elements of the Christian life which aspires after perfection; we have desires awakened which nothing but complete holiness will satisfy. He who says he is content with his progress, has never set out to heaven.—Robert Hall.

A SCOFFER REBUKED.—A man scoffingly asked, "What advantage has a religious man over one like myself? Does not the sun shine on me as well as on him this fine day?" "Yes," replied his companion, a pious laborer, "but the religious man has two suns shining on him at once—one on his body, the other on his soul."—Rev. John Graham.

THE APOCRAPHAL EPISTLES

FROM THE SECOND BOOK OF HERMAS CALLED COMMANDS.

When I had prayed at home, and was sat down upon the bed, a certain man came in to me with reverend look, in the habit of a shepherd, clothed with a white cloak, having his bag upon his back, and his staff in his hand, and saluted me. I returned his salutation; and immediately he sat down by me, and said unto me, I am sent by that venerable messenger, that I should dwell with thee all the remaining days of thy life. But I thought that he was come to try me, and said unto him Who art thou? For I know to whom I am committed. He said unto me, Do you not know me? I answered, No.

I am, said he that shepherd to whose care you are delivered. Whilst he was yet speaking, his shape was changed; and when I knew that it was he to whom I was committed, I was ashamed and a sudden fear came upon me, and I was utterly overcome with sadness, because I had spoken so foolishly unto him. But he said unto me, Be not ashamed, but receive strength in thy mind, through the commands which I am about to deliver unto thee. For, said he, I am sent to show unto thee all those things again, which thou hast seen before; but especially such of them as may be of most use unto thee. And first of all write my Commands and Similitudes; the rest thou shalt so write as I shall show unto thee. But I therefore bid thee first of all write my Commands and Similitudes, that by often reading of them, thou mayest the more easily keep them in memory. Whereupon I wrote his Commands and Similitudes, as he bade me. Which things if, when you have heard ye shall observe to do them, and shall walk according to them, and exercise yourselves in them, with a pure mind, ye shall receive from the Lord those things which he has promised unto you. But if, having heard them, ye shall not repent, but shall still go on to add to your sins, ye shall be punished by him. All these things that shepherd, the angel of repentance, commanded me to write.

First of all, believe that there is but one God, who created and framed all things of nothing into being. He comprehends all things, and is only immense, not to be comprehended by any. Who can neither be defined by any words, nor conceived by the mind. Therefore believe in him, and fear him; and fearing him, abstain from all evil. Keep these things, and cast all lust and iniquity far from thee; and put on righteousness; and thou shalt live to God, if thou shalt keep his commandments.

He said unto me, Be innocent, and without disguise; so shalt thou be like an infant who knows no malice, which destroys the life of man. Especially see that thou speak evil of none; nor willingly hear any one speak evil of any. For if thou observest not this, thou also who hearest, shalt be partaker of the sin of him that speaketh evil by believing the slander, and thou also shalt have sin; because thou believedst him that spake evil of thy brother. Detraction is a pernicious thing; an inconstant, evil spirit; that never continues in peace but is always in discord. Wherefore refrain thyself from it; and keep peace evermore with thy brother. Put on a holy constancy, in which there are no sins, but all is full of joy; and do good of thy labours. Give without distinction to all that are in want; not doubting to whom thou givest. But give to all; for God will have us give to all, of all his own gifts. They, therefore, that receive shall give an account to God, both wherefore they receive, and for what end. And they that receive without a real need, shall give an account for it; but he that gives shall be innocent: for he has fulfilled his duty as he received it from God; not making any choice to whom he should give, and to whom not. And this service he did with simplicity, and to the glory of God. Keep, therefore, this command according as I have delivered it unto thee; that thy repentance may be found to be sincere, and that good may come to thy house, and thou mayest have a pure heart.

Moreover he said unto me, Love truth and let all the speech be true which proceeds out of thy mouth; that the spirit which the Lord hath given to dwell in thy flesh may be found true towards all men; and the Lord be glorified, who hath given such a spirit unto thee; because God is true in all his words, and in him there is no lie. They therefore that lie, deny the Lord; and become robbers of the Lord; not rendering to God what they received from him. For they received the spirit free from lying: if therefore they make that a liar, they defile what was committed to them by the Lord, and become deceivers. When I heard this I wept bitterly. And when he saw me weeping, he said unto me, Why weepest thou? And I said, Because, sir, I doubt whether I can be saved. He asked me, Wherefore? I replied, Because, sir, I never spake a true word in my life; but always lived in dissimulation, and affirmed a lie for truth to all men; and no man contradicted me, but all gave credit to my words. How then can I live, seeing I have done in this manner? And he said unto me, Thou thinkest well and truly, For thou oughtest, as the servant of God, to have walked in truth, and not have joined an evil conscience with the Spirit of truth; nor have grieved the holy and true Spirit of God. And I replied unto him, Sir, I never before hearkened so diligently to these things. He answered, Now thou hearest them; take care from henceforth, that even those things which thou hast formerly spoken falsely for the sake of thy business, may, by thy present truth, receive credit. For even those things may be credited, if for the time to come thou shalt speak the truth; and by so doing thou mayest attain unto life. And whosoever shall hearken unto this command, and do it, and shall depart from all lying, he shall live unto God.

Furthermore, said he, I command thee, that thou keep thyself chaste; and that thou suffer not any thought of any other marriage, or of fornication, to enter into thy heart: for such a thought produces a great sin. But be thou at all times mindful of the Lord, and thou shalt never sin. For if such an evil thought should arise in thy heart, thou shouldest be guilty of a great sin; and they who do such things follow the way of death. Look therefore to thyself, and keep thyself from such a thought: for where chastity remains in the heart of a righteous man, there an evil thought ought never to rise. And I said unto him, Sir, suffer me to speak a little to you. He bade me say on. And I answered, Sir, if a man that is faithful in the Lord, shall have a wife, and shall catch her in adultery, doth a man sin that continueth to live still with her? And he said unto me, As long as he is ignorant of her sin, he commits no fault in living with her; but if a man shall know his wife to have offended, and she shall not repent of her sin, but go on still in her fornication, and a man shall continue nevertheless to live with her, he shall become guilty of her sin, and partake with her in her adultery. And I said unto him, What therefore is to be done, if the woman continues on in her sin? and he answered. Let her husband put her away, and let him continue by himself. But if he shall put away his wife and marry another, he also doth commit adultery. And I said, What if the woman that is put away shall repent, and be willing to return to her husband? shall she not be received by him? He said unto me, Yes; and if her husband shall not receive her, he will sin; and commit a great offence against himself: but he ought to receive the offender if she repents; only not often. For to the servants of God there is but one repentance. And for this cause a man that putteth away his wife ought not to take another, because she may repent. This act is alike both in the man and in the woman. Now they commit adultery, not only who pollute their flesh, but who also make an image. If therefore a woman perseveres in anything of this kind, and repents not, depart from her, and live not with her; otherwise thou also shall be partaker of her sin.

LET ME SLEEP.

"Let me sleep," said my companion half pettishly, turning from my touch. "Let me sleep." The words haunted me for hours afterwards.—How often has the wish been breathed in this weary world, "Oh, let me sleep!"

The conscience lashes him for misdeeds, evils committed and unrepented, cries, as he drops his head into his thorny pillow, "Oh, let me sleep." With sleep comes oblivion. The mourner who has seen some bright and beautiful one fade from his embrace, like a summer flower nipped by an early frost, bows his head above the pallid face of the prostrate form below him, and sighs, in the agony of his soul, "Let me sleep; sleep with the loved one whose smiles shall never welcome my footsteps more." "Let me sleep," says the traveler who, footsore and weary, has toiled long in the world, and sees hopes perish unfulfilled, joys wither ere they are tasted, friendship, which he thought enduring, changing like the chameleon, and rain-bow promises fading and melting into colorless air, "Oh let me sleep, for I am weary."

The rosy-cheeked child, the blithe maiden, the thoughtful matron, those for whom life puts on its finest aspect, the most endearing smiles, all have periods in which they long that the oblivion of Lethe may flow darkly and deeply over them.

There cometh a sleep unto all—a sleep deep, hushed and breathless. The roar of the cannon, the deep-toned thunderbolt, the shock of an earthquake, or the rush of ten thousand armies cannot break up the still repose. With mute lips and folded arms one after another the ephemerons of earth sink down into darkness and nothingness. No intruding footsteps shall jar upon their rest, no disturbing touch shall wring from them the exclamation, "Oh, let me sleep."

MAX MUELLER says, "there is no religion—or if there is, I do not know it—which does not say do good and avoid evil." In a vague sense this is true; but if there is any such thing as a religion revealed by God, it must be infinitely better than all religions made by man. And this must be added, that the excellence of a religion consists not in saying "be good and shun evil," but in the power it gives men to resist evil, and become followers of that which is good. Moral precepts are like guide-boards—they show men the right way, but give them no help to walk in the way they point out.—Christian Leader.

YOUTHS' DEPARTMENT.

A PLEASANT WAY.

"Her ways are ways of pleasantness, and all her paths are peace." Prov. 3: 17.

Dear children, last month I told you about a hard way; a way that is hard to every one who walks in it. Now I will tell you about a pleasant way; a way that makes every one happy who walks in it. The difference between the hard way and the pleasant way is so great, that it can hardly be told. It can only be felt and realized by those who have tried both.

This pleasant way is the way of wisdom. All who love and fear the Lord, and keep his commandments are in this pleasant way. David says, "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom; a good understanding have all they that do his commandments."

Solomon says, "Happy is the man that findeth wisdom, and the man that getteth understanding; for the merchandise of it is better than the merchandise of silver, and the gain thereof than fine gold. She is more precious than rubies; and all the things thou canst desire are not to be compared unto her. Length of days is in her right hand, and in her left hand riches and honor. Her ways are ways of pleasantness and all her paths are peace.

There are many things that make this way pleasant, some of which I will tell you. God loves those who walk it it, and therefore makes it pleasant to them. Jesus is the friend and companion of every one who is in this way, and this makes it pleasant. They who are in this way have the children of God for their companions and friends, who love them and do all they can to make them happy, and this makes the way pleasant.

All who are in this way feel sure that God will take care of them; they believe that when they die, Jesus, that dear friend who was with them in life will still be with them, and will take them to that beautiful world above, and these thoughts make the way pleasant.

Those who walk in that hard way often become afraid. When they think of dying they become afraid, because they know that God does not love them, and that if they should die, he would punish them for their wickedness. Often when they lie down at night they are afraid that they might die before morning; but those who are in the pleasant way have none of these fears. Solomon says, "When thou liest down, thou shalt not be afraid; yea, thou shalt lie down, and thy sleep shall be sweet."

There are still many more things to make this way pleasant. If those who are in the hard way could only be pursuaded to come into the pleasant way, they would have no more desire to walk in that hard and unpleasant way. My little readers, in which of these ways do you think of travelling? I hope you will all say, I will try to travel in this pleasant way.

If you think you will go in the pleasant way, let me say to you, do not think you will first go in the hard way for a time, and then go in the pleasant way. These are very foolish thoughts. A great many people have done this, and while they were in this hard way, disobeying God, he took their lives from them; and now they must be punished forever, and can never be happy.

None were ever sorry that they commenced to walk in wisdom's ways when they were young, but thousands who waited till they were old before they left the hard way and then began to walk in the pleasant way, were sorry they did not begin when they were young.

Now dear little friends, if you think you would like to walk in this pleasant way, you must ask God to help you make a beginning while you are young; before the evil days come, and the years draw nigh when you shall say. I have no pleasure in them.

Just think how foolish it is for people to think they will disobey God, and go in the hard way, and be miserable and unhappy until they are old, before they will begin to obey God, who made them and keeps them alive, and gives them all these good things which the enjoy! It is just as foolish as it would be if one was sick would say, "I will not do anything to make me well: I want to be sick a long time before I shall take any medicine, or do anything to make me well."

I want to walk in the pleasant way as long as I live; do not you, my little friends? May God help us to walk in it.—Herald of Truth.

THE BOY WHO DIDN'T CARE.

"James, my son, you are wasting your time playing with that kitten when you ought to be studying your lesson. You will get a bad mark if you don't study," said Mrs. Mason to her son.

"I don't care," replied the boy, as he continued to amuse himself with the gambols of Sport, his pretty little kitten.

"But you ought to care, my dear," rejoined the lady with a sigh. "You will grow up an ignorant, good-for-nothing man, if you don't make a good use of your opportunities."

"I don't care," said James, as he raced into the yard after his amusing playmate.

"Don't care will be the ruin of that child," said Mrs. Mason to herself. "I must teach him a lesson that he will not easily forget."

Guided by this purpose, the lady made no provision for dinner. When noon arrived, her idle boy rushed into the house, as usual shouting:

"Mother, I want my dinner!"

"I don't care," replied Mrs. Mason, very calmly, working on with her needle, without looking up.

"I'm very hungry, mother," rejoined the boy.

"I don't care," repeated Mrs. Mason.

James was puzzled. His mother had never so treated him before. Her words were strange words for her to use, and her manner was so cold that he could not understand what it meant. He was silent awile, then he spoke again:

"Mother, I want something to eat."

"I don't care," was the cool reply.

"But recess will soon be over, mother, and I shall starve if I do not get some dinner," urged James.

"I don't care."

This was too much for the boy to endure.

He burst into tears. His mother, seeing him fairly subdued, laid down her work, and calling him to her side, she stroked his hair very gently, and said:

"My son, I want to make you feel the folly and sin of the habit you have of saying, 'I don't care.' Suppose I did not really care for you, what would you do for dinner, for clothing, for education? You now see that I must either care for you, or you must suffer very seriously. And if you must suffer through my lack of care for you, don't you think you will also suffer if you don't care for yourself? And don't you see that I must suffer too if you don't care for my wishes? I hope, therefore, you will cease saying, 'I don't care,' and learn to be a thoughtful boy, caring for my wishes and your own duties.

James never looked on his evil habit in this light before. He promised to do better, and, after receiving a piece of pie, went off to school a wiser if not a better boy.—S. S. Advocate.

Let amusements fill up the chinks of your existence, not the great spaces thereof. Let your pleasures be taken as Daniel took his prayers,—with his windows open; pleasures which need not cause a single blush on an ingenuous cheek.—Parker.

TILLY'S LESSON IN GEOLOGY.

SARRA C. SNELL.

Tilly sat on the old door-stone with her two precious pebbles in her hands. They were smooth, and white, and glistening, and came from the shore of that wonderful ocean that Tilly always dreamed about, but never had seen. The Stone Professor himself brought the pebbles to Tilly, and, when he leaned out at the window, and saw the little maiden holding them against her round red cheeks, he smiled a little all to himself, and came and sat down by her, while Tilly looked shy and glad, but didn't speak a word.

"You like them, do you?" said the Stone Professor, "well, I'll tell you a story about them."

"Many, many years ago, Tilly, long before either you or I were born, each one of these little pebbles was a rough piece of stone that had crumbled off from some great rock, and it fell into the water somewhere, perhaps it was a great ocean, or maybe only a river, but it lay in someplace, where the waves washed over it, and rolled it about, and very slowly these waves wore off the corners and sharp edges, and very slowly the rough stone grew smooth. If you had looked at it one May-day, and not seen it again till the next May-day came, I suppose you would hardly have noticed any change, but it was just a little different; every spring it came out smoother than it was the year before, till, after a great while, all the rough part was gone, and what was left was this beautiful round pebble."

Tilly handed over the two she was holding, while the Stone Professor talked, and tried to make believe they looked as he said they used to, but it was hard work to think that anything so soft as water could have worn off such hard stone.

"And this is another treasure, I suppose," said the Professor, picking up a piece of pudding-stone that peeped from the little ruffled pocket of Tilly's apron; "maybe you think this stone was made so; but it was not. Once upon a time, a little pile of gravel stones lay in a hollow all by themselves. There came a great rain and washed some soft, sticky mud down and covered them all up; it squeezed itself in among the little stones, and filled every crevice; then, when the rain was over, the sun shone on it, and baked it hard, and afterward it got covered up under sand, and earth, and stones, and there it lay, growing harder all the time, till the mud was a dark-brown stone itself, when some one was digging there one day, found this brown stone, all full of little stones, that look like the raisins in your grandma's Thanksgiving pudding; and that's why they call it pudding-stone."

Tilly laid down her pebbles and examined her queer little bit of pudding-stone, and then laid all three in a straight row on the doorstone. They were very precious in her eyes, and she was just making up her mind to put them in her cabinet and label them "gems," as she had seen some precious things in the professor's cabinet labeled. But just then the professor went on:

"Here's this rough old door-stone, Tilly; all the scrubbing and scouring in the world could never make it smooth and white like that one over the way. But, do you see these queer marks in it—just such marks as the geese make in the mud along the edge of the gutter, only ever and ever so much larger? See, here is one, and here is another; regular bird tracks."

"Why, so they are," said Tilly, getting down on her knees and laying chubby fingers in the marks.

"And, once upon a time—you see it's just like a fairy story—once upon a time, this old door-stone wasn't stone at all, but just mud, stiff, gray mud, and a great bird came stalking along, and left his foot-prints in it. And the sun dried the mud, and there the tracks were; and the sand blew over them and covered them up, and at last the gray mud itself turned into stone. It was a great many years about it; and, in the meantime the big bird and all its relations had utterly disappeared, so that when men at last dug up the stone, and saw the curious tracks, they could only guess how the bird looked that made them. Just think, little Tilly, the bird that walked over this stone may have died long before Adam was made."

That was a long speech for the stone professor, but Tilly seemed to like it. I wonder if you will.—Little Corporal.

DUTIES OF YOUTH.—The first years of man must make provision for the last. He that never thinks can never be wise. Perpetual levity must end in ignorance; and intemperance, though it may fire the spirits for an hour, will make life short or miserable. Let us consider that youth is of no long duration, and that in mature age, when the enchantments of fancy shall cease, and phantoms of delight dance no more about us, we shall have no more comforts but the esteem of wise men and the means of doing good.

CORRESPONDENCE

WAYNESBORO PA, July 4th 1872.

Dear Pilgrim:—Not noticing any news from our (Antietum) arm for some time, it may not be amiss to notice a few incidents, events, and facts. On the 14th June, we had our Lovefeast, and perhaps the largest Communion meeting and gathering of people known in the history of the church at this place on such an occasion. Meeting in the house and grove at same time. The ministerial help was abundant, quite a number of our neighboring brethren came to our help, and labored faithfully in the cause of Jesus. The meeting being good in all respects, to all appearance, we trust that much good was done, and an influence left that may bring happy results. I forbear giving names of ministering brethren present on account of number, but none too many, and all have our hearty thanks for their kind help and presence. May God bless them for their labor of love, and grant them the spirit of a continued faithful prosecution of the holy works assigned them and us.

We have been much encouraged again this Spring by the additions, numbering near forty. During the months of May and June the additions were about thirty-two, men and women from the ages of sixteen to seventy-two, and of character, talent and ability, such that if they prove faithful, will help much to the pulling down of the strongholds of satan, and strengthen the army of the Lord of hosts.

Among those baptized is a man in the meridian of life, who became chronically afflicted, which resulted in the formation of an abscess in the left side of his body, which the two attending physicians pronounced incurable, and would inevitably result in death. This young man being the son of a worthy brother and sister, and a relative, (a nephew by marriage,) on hearing of his dangerous condition I paid him a visit, and truly found him at death's door, and his mind but little exercised in the true condition of his disease and the importance of a proper divine relation. From the strong impulse of our own feelings, and the request of his dear father, we ventured to exercise his mind by Divine help, to the condition and nature of the disease, and the danger of meeting God unreconciled. In our interview I discovered that his attendants tried to keep his mind from realizing his situation, and peradventure he might escape with his life. This fact accounted to us the reason why we found his mind so far from where it should have been, without God, without Christ, without faith at the gate of death. Can the mind conceive, or language convey an idea of the dismal, horrible uncertainties that hang around a soul thus in life? When questioned in regard to being prepared for the worst, his reply was, "I know I am a sinner,—but to repent I cannot now,—and even if I could, it is impossible for me to be baptized." The latter was on account of his right limb being stiffened by the abscess in his side. We tried to exercise his mind properly upon the subject of repentance, and as regards baptism, we replied that he must decide about that, but with God all things are possible. I then left him commending him to God and the spirit of His grace. In the space of forty hours the convicting and converting power of God was wrought upon the soul. He was carried upon an arm chair, one fourth mile, to the water and he and his wife were baptized in the presence of a number of spectators. He was carried back rejoicing in the Lord and the hope of salvation. Through the evidences he received of his acceptance, he alleged the Lord gave him further lease of time, yet the doctors said he would die. He was baptized on Wednesday; on Friday we paid him a visit and he was doing well,—another visit on Sunday, at which time he was annointed, but by this time he had so much weakened in body that we all began to despair of his recovery. His language was, "My Father's will be done, not mine." On Monday the abscess opened outwardly. For some days he was very, weak, but gradually commenced improving and is now enjoying his usual health and the benefits of the Christian religion.

In my next I will give another case of a young lady (now sister,) that may inspire courage to the fearful, timid and unbelieving; also a short synopsis of a meeting held by the Society called the River Brethren.

D. F. GOOD.

CORINTH, BOURBON CO., W. Va.

Dear Brethren:—I again resume my pen to help to fill the columns of the PILGRIM, and do feel conscious of my inability to write interestingly, but as church news, and news general are read with interest, I thought to write something for the readers of the PILORIM. We have had two additions to our church this spring, and others are standing at "the door," while some are (we believe), almost persuaded to be Christians. Brethren, why is it that so many are standing scrupulously and in jeopardy? I fear it is for the want of light. Now Christ said, "Ye are the light of the world," addressing his disciples. It is for the want of a strictness on our part brethren, to a great extent. "Why call ye me Lord, Lord and do not the things which I say?" saith Christ. From this we understand spiritually or temporally, master supposes one having servants, and servants supposes one having a master. "One is your master even Christ." So if we obey not Christ, we have no right to call him master, neither will he own us in a coming day. Hear the words of the apostle; "The Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with his mighty angels in flaming fire taking vengeance on them that know not God and obey NOT THE GOSPEL."

Now let us notice some of the sayings of Christ, which, if we disobey, we cannot expect to enter heaven. One is, "forsake not the assembling of yourselves together, exhorting one another, and so much the more as ye see the day approaching." See Hebrew, 10th chap. Brethren, can we expect to be rewarded for idleness, for staying at home because we don't feel like going, or for some other cause? God says, "forsake not the assembling of yourselves," and when God thus speaks, He does not mean for us to stay at home. By this, the world may believe the simple plan of salvation. By this our friends will say, "there is a reality in religion after all." Remember, that although we may make excuses, we may have a farm, or a yoke of oxen to prove, or have married a wife we will not be excused. God is just, and has sworn to punish sin, consequently no excuse is to be taken. Some of us may not feel like assembling, and stay at home, so the farmer may not feel like plowing because of the cold, "but such it is said shall beg in harvest." God requires us also to "be instant in season and out of season," whether we feel like it or not.

Brethren, take heed to your ways, be up and a doing while it is day. Render to God reasonable service, that you may prove the acceptable will of God. Service may be rendered and not be reasonable, therefore will not meet the approbation of God. Be not like the Jews who had a "zeal yet not according to the knowledge." I often fear we have our affections on our farms &c., too much, but what good will our farms, our friends do us in a coming day? They will profit nothing "for we brought nothing into this world, and it is certain we can take nothing out."

Yours in truth,
J. M. WELLS.

FOREST CITY, Holt Co., Mo., June 26th, 1872.

Dear Brother in Christ: Enclosed you will find 75 cents for which please send the PILGRIM to Lewis Bennett, the remainder of the year to Forest City, Holt Co., Mo., and oblige (The PILGRIM is sent).

As I have no particular topic to write upon at this time, I will give a sketch of the crops in Holt Co. As far as I have seen, the winter wheat was about four-fifths of it killed by the cold weather last winter. Rye, barley and oats was never better than it is now. Corn is very promising, spring wheat is very good, fruit is plenty again, apples, peach, pear, plum and cherry trees are very full, more than they can bear up under.

We had a very rainy season this spring, more so than common. Farmers did not get their corn planted until the middle of June, that is did not finish planting until then, but corn soon makes itself here in this country. The land has the strength to force it up directly. The prospect is favorable for a heavy crop of corn this year again in Holt Co. Hey will be in abundance, early potatoes are very good and plenty, late potatoes look well and are doing well so far. The price of wheat here is $2.00 per bushel, rye 75 cts; oats, 20 cts; corn, 20 and 22 cts; fat hogs, $2.75 per cwt; grass fat cattle, $4.50 and $5.00 per cwt.; gross bacon, 6@8 cts. ℔ lb; lard, 5@6 cts. ℔ lb; butter, 6@10 cts. ℔ lb; eggs, 8 cts. ℔ doz.

The health of the people in this part of the country is very good, little sickness of any kind at present. If the Missouri river overflows the bottom lands it will cause some sickness this fall. It has been raining for the last three weeks and is still raining, its banks are about even full.

Perhaps I have not been doing my whole duty in getting subscribers for the PILGRIM as I have been depending on others too much to attend to it for which I ask your forbearance. If you please, I will feel around a little, and see what I can do more for Brother PILGRIM. The Church is still slowly on the increase in Holt, Mo. May the blessing of God attend us through life is may prayer. A. J. CORRELL.

We always try to feel grateful to our dear brethren and sisters who work for us and the good cause, and you can feel assured that whatever you may do for us in introducing the PILGRIM will be duly appreciated. We have a lot of odd Nos. that we will be pleased to send as specimens to any who may think that they could use them to advantage.—EDS.

EXPLANATION WANTED.

Ed J.S. Flory, will confer a favor by giving an explanation of Math. 23: 15, as quoted in his tract. It reads as follows: "For ye compass sea and land to make one proselyte and when he is made, ye make him two fold more the child of hell than yourselves." THOMAS OWENS.

DIED.

BLOOM.—On July 4th in the Borough of Martinsburg, Margaretta, wife of David Bloom, aged 38 years, 6 months and 3 days.

BOWERS.—On July 6th, in North Woodbury township, Blair county, Frank Howard, son of C. H. and Louisa Bowers, aged 2 years and 27 days.

RHODES.—On July 3d, Catharine, wife of Christian Rhodes, of Huston township, Blair county, aged 57 years, 5 months and 27 days.

ENYEART.—On July 4th, of measles, Ella May, daughter of Thomas and Margaret Enyeart, aged 3 years, 7 months and 26 days.

EDITORIAL.

J. RITTENHOUSE and Joseph Dunlap will please inform us whether they received "The Right Word in the Right Place."

DAVID LOHR. We have none of Dio Lewis' books for sale. They are sold only by agents and as they find it a saleable book you will probably have an opportunity of getting a copy from an agent.

DAVID MILLER. Not knowing all the names you sent us, we cannot tell how much is due. If you keep a list of all the names you sent us and know how much is paid, you can make your own calculations. We keep no separate accounts with agents, therefore cannot tell how we stand with them unless we have a full list of the names which they send us. The Tracts are sent.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

NEXT to Rothschild, the wealthiest banker in Vienna is a man who in his youth started an errand boy at a salary of one florin a week.

COMPULSORY military service is now the law of France, with no substitutes and no exceptions, after the German style in this respect.

An "Elder" and "Eldress" from the Shaker settlement at Lebanon, having renounced their vows of celibacy, were married a few days since.

ITALY, where but a few years ago no son of Abraham was safe from persecution, now admits Jews as teachers to the highest institutions of learning.

POLYGAMY, we are glad to learn, is on the wave, only three plural marriages being celebrated in Utah during the three last months ending with June the 1st.

Everybody will be glad to learn that the growing crops and general indications of thrift in the burned districts of the Northwest are promising beyond those of any previous year. The relief service has been of incalculable benefit, and the people are almost to the point where they were before the fire.

THE Pope is reported to have stated to some Americans lately that if he should ever leave Rome, he would be glad to take up his residence in New York, because no city in the world contains more earnest Catholics, or those more devoted to the highest and best interests of the Church.

MORMON CONVERTS.—On Wednesday morning, July 10th, there were 500 more Mormon converts from Sweden, Norway and Denmark passed over the Pennsylvania Central Railroad, for Utah, or Salt Lake City, the Mormon Eden. 500 more will sail from Liverpool on the 21st of July. These are the fruits of the labors of Eld. Reynolds, a missionary who says:

"We have missionaries in Denmark, Sweden, and Norway. They go to the borders of Lapland, and sometimes into the country. Forty Laplanders have been converted to my knowledge. Then we have them in Great Britain and Switzerland. We publish a paper in Liverpool, one in Switzerland, and one in Scandinavia. The power of the press was never more fully illustrated. I suppose our papers bring us in twn converts where our preaching does one.

We pay our expenses, receiving, of course, sometimes, voluntary aid from our converts. It is a pure labor of love with us. We have never asked anything from the Church for our labor. We hold that to take a stated salary for laboring in the Lord's vineyard is wrong. Our sole reward is in bringing perishing souls home to the God of our belief.

THE EIGHT HOUR strike has finally came to a close after a long and fruitless contest. It was the result of a combination of laborers known as the "Trade Union." Their efforts were to shorten the term of labor from ten to eight hours per day. To this, the employees would not agree and in consequence many of the manufacturing establishments were closed, causing serious losses to employers and throwing thousands of laborers out of employment. The move is looked upon differently and the great probability is there is a wrong with both parties. Monopolies are becoming stronger and more dangerous every year and it is justly feared by the laboring class that it will finally result in oppression. To prevent this, they are organizing into unions for protection against unprincipled monopolies, which would seem just and right in case of real oppression. But the late strike does not seem to be the result of want of funds, but a desire for more idle time. Time is money, and to take two hours labor off of each laborer in establishments employing 2,000 men amounts daily to 4,000 hours, or 166 days. This is a dead loss per day of at least $300 to every 2,000 laborers, but who is to lose it? The manufacturers of all kinds find that they are paying the same wages per day for two hours less labor, and in consequence raise their productions. The hire of the labor is not money but food and clothing. These are raised in price in proportion to time of labor shortened. For this advance, the laborer pays, from the fact that his income is the same and he pays so much more for his food and clothing, so that after all, the laboring man, by shortening his daily term of labor, shortens his own income, in addition to the distress resulting from the time lost during the strike. For strikes then we have all loss and no gain, therefore it would be far better, for employers and employees to work together for each others good which would result in the common good of all.

A Paper for the Masses.

The (Pittsburgh, Pa.,) REAL ESTATE REGISTER comes to us this week enlarged to a beautiful sixteen page, sixty-four column, illustrated weekly, with the name changed to the AMERICAN LAND AND LAW ADVISOR. The original features introduced into the old paper by its publishers caused it to be sought after by persons in all parts of the United States, and thus encouraged by public patronage, the publishers determine to give to the people a paper every way worthy of the name they have chosen for their new weekly. "The American Land and Law Advisor" is a "Weekly Journal of Real Estate, Finance, Building, and Popularization of Law." The issue before us is absolutely a necessity to every landed proprietor or real estate owner in the country, as well as to every citizen in the United States that wishes to keep posted on that indestructible element of value—Real Estate. The law department of this excellent weekly is edited by the ablest law councellor in the country, and answer, free of charge, all questions of law submitted to the paper with a clearness and accuracy that makes them understood by men of the most ordinary intelligence. This feature alone should cause it to be taken by every farmer and land owner in the country. The illustrations on the first page of original designs for cottages and suburban residences, gotten up expressly for this journal is also a feature that commends itself to those about to build, and if we are to judge the future by the first issue, now before us, we should say it alone was worth many times more than the subscription price. The weekly correspondence from the General Land Office at Washington, D. C., giving the latest laws governing the Public Lands, Homestead and Preemption, as well as those from all parts of the country,—is also a valuable feature; to say nothing of its news and general information found in no other journal in the United States. To crown all, the enterprising publishers offer, by way of inducing an examination and subscription, a beautiful $5.00 Chromo, of either of the following subjects: "The Lost Babe," or "The Unwelcome Visitor"; all for the exceedingly low price of $2.50 a year, embracing a beautiful parlor picture and over 800 pages of useful reading matter, and illustrations. We would say to all our readers, send stamp for sample copy. Address CROFT & PHILIPS, Publishers AMERICAN LAND AND LAW ADVISOR, Pittsburgh, Pa.

"Lights and shadows of New York; or the Sights and Sensations of the Great City" A work descriptive of New York City in all its various phases. Its splendors and wretchedness, Its High and Low Life: Its Marble Palaces and Dark Dens: Its Attractions and Dangers; Its Rings and Frauds: Its Leading Men and Politicians; Its Adventurers; Its Mysteries and Crimes. By James D. McCabe, Jr.

The National Publishing Co., of Philadelphia, have just issued one of the most remarkable and attractive books of the day, bearing the above title. It is comprised in one large octavo volume of 850 pages, and illustrated with nearly 200 fine engravings of noted places, life and scenes in New York.

To Mr. McCabe is due the credit of having produced the most complete and graphic account of the great city, and its busy and varied life that it has been our fortune to meet with. His book is brim full of solid and useful information, and abounds in descriptions of the various public buildings of New York, its palaces, prisons, hotels, churches, stores, hospitals, &c.

The work sets forth in glowing colors the noble work for suffering humanity, which is going on every day in the great city, and reveals with a bold hand the terrible crimes, the dark mysteries, and the hidden sins of metropolitan life. We are introduced into the home of the Fifth Avenue millionaire and carried with equal interest into the squalid cellar of the Five Points beggar. We are brought face to face with the good and the bad, the high and the low, with leading merchants, bankers, editors, and actors, with bummers, thieves, detectives, and murderers, with working women, ballet girls, adventuresses, and a host of others and we seem to be listening to their stories from their own lips, so thoroughly does the author enchain our interest. Our warmest enthusiasm and our deepest contempt are alternately aroused by the thrilling recitals of their deeds of virtue and vice. The history and frauds of the famous Tammany Ring are related with great force and candor, and this portion alone is worth the price of the book.

In short the book is New York in miniature. The author has penetrated under the protection of the police, into the darkest and most dangerous haunts of crime in the city, and has thus been enabled to obtain accurate information on the topics whereof he treats. Visitors to New York, cannot hope to see or know as much of the city as they may learn by a perusal of this book. To all who contemplate visiting the great Metropolis, we cordially recommend it, both for its information and for its powerful warnings against the dangers of the city. Those who cannot see New York for themselves will be in a great measure repaid for that privation by reading this work. It is published in both English and German; sold by subscription only, and the publishers want agents in every county.

EARTH POULTICES.

In further illustration of the value of earth for external application, mentioned on page 9 of our last No., a correspondent, Mr. H. Gallup, of Norwalk, Ohio, sends us the following:

"As the season of bites of reptiles is near, I send you a simple and easily obtained remedy for stings or bites. It is a plaster of clay, or, instead of clay, common swamp or gutter mud, applied as soon as possible to the wound. I have tried it on myself. In one case, I was stung by a numerous swarm of the yellow hornets, in many places in my neck and arms. I went to a swamp near, the poison being so severe that my sight was much affected. I immediately applied the mud, and, in half an hour, I went to mowing again, with only a small sore lump round each sting. I knew a neighbor who was bitten by a rattlesnake some miles from home; his companion left him and went for help as fast as possible, it being just night. He was not able to return until morning. When going, he met the man returning, with the poison conquered. He had got to a swamp, dug a hole with his tomahawk, inserted and buried the bitten place in the mud. That was all."—Scientific American.

One of the most extensive caves in the country has recently been discovered near Shutter's Corners, Schoharie County, N. Y. A party who visited it the other day report that they penetrated under the mountain about a mile, and found an immense amount of the finest specimens and formations caused by the action of water. Some of the stalactities and stalagmites were a foot or more in diameter, and so clear that you could nearly see through them. A petrified stump, similar to those lately found at Gilboa (the color being white), was found about half a mile from the entrance. Near the centre was a dome about one hundred feet in height, which when lighted up, presents a most beautiful appearance, it being covered with stalactities of all shapes and appearance.

During a terrific rain-storm which passed over Northwestern Iowa and Dakotah, on the night of the 15th of June, a large waterspout descended to the earth, striking a few miles from White Swan, Dakotah, and covering the earth for a distance around with water to the depth of eight to thirty feet. Fortunately it did not strike near any settlement, and no person was injured, but a large number of cattle were lost. The Mississippi telegraph line was thrown down for a great distance, and covered with earth and uprooted trees.

POISONED COLLARS.—Some of the brands of paper collars are glazed with a mixture containing white lead, which is a dangerous poison when brought into contact with the skin. An exchange mentions the case of a clergyman who became troubled with numbness of limbs, which, with other symptoms, led his physician to suspect poison. On combustion of the paper collars worn by the clergyman—the "Dickens" brand—the ash was found to contain white lead.

THE MARKETS.

MARTINSBURG MARKETS.

Flour	$10.00
Wheat	1.90
Rye	.90
Corn	.90
Oats	.50
Clover Seed	6.00

PRODUCE MARKETS.

Butter	12½
Eggs	.15
Lard	.10
Tallow	.10
Soap	.08

GOOD BOOKS.

A large number of our patrons are receiving our books as noticed below, as premiums, and express themselves highly pleased with them. Others who are not agents, have enquired whether we keep them for sale. We have now made arrangements with Mr. Wells to furnish any of their publications post paid at publishers prices. Orders for books must be accompanied with the cash, and plain directions for sending them.

Conversion of St. Paul. By George Jarvis Geer, D. D. 12mo. fine edition, $1. Plain edition, 75 cents.

Footprints of Life; or, Faith and Nature Reconciled.—A Poem in three parts. The Body. The Soul. The Deity. By Philip Harvey, M. D. $1.25.

Fruit Culture for the Million. A Hand book. being a Guide to the Cultivation and Management of Fruit Trees. Descriptions of the Best Varieties, and How to Propagate them. illustrated $1.00.

Hand-book for Home Improvement: comprising "How to Write," "How to Talk," How to Behave," and "How to do Business," in one vol. 2.25.

How to Live; Saving and Wasting, or Domestic Economy. By Solon Robinson. $1.50.

Hopes and Helps for the Young of both sexes, Relating to the Formation of Character. Choice of Avocation, Health, Conversation, Cultivation of Intellect, Moral Sentiments, Social Affection Courtship and Marriage. By Rev. G. S. Weaver. Muslin, $1.50.

Life at Home; or, The Family and its Members. Husbands, Wives, Parents, Children, Brothers, Sisters, Employers and Employed, etc. By Rev. William Aikman, D. D. A work which should be found in every family. $1.50. Extra gilt, $2.00.

Man and Woman: Considered in their Relations to each Other and to the World. By Henry C. Pedder. 12mo, Fancy cloth. Price $1.00.

Man, in Genesis and in Geology; or, the Biblical Account of Man's Creation, tested by Scientific Theories of his Origin and Antiquity. By Joseph P. Thompson, D. D., LL.D. One vol. 12mo, $1.00.

Oratory—Sacred and Secular; or, the Extemporaneous Speaker. Including Chairman's Guide for conducting Public Meetings according to the best Parliamentary forms. By Wm. Pittenger. $1.50.

The Emphatic, Diaglott; or The New Testament in Greek and English. Containing the Original Greek Text of the New Testament, with an Interlineary Word for-word English Translation. A Work for Students in Theology, and S. S. Teachers. By Benjamin Wilson. Price, $4.00; extra fine binding, $5.00.

Water's Works for the Young. Comprising "Hopes and Helps for the Young of both Sexes," "Aids and Aims for Girls and Young Women," "Ways of Life; or, the Right Way and the Wrong Way," $3

The Right Word in the Right Place. A New Pocket Dictionary and Reference Book. Embracing Synonyms, Technical Terms, Abbreviations, Foreign Phrases, Writing for the Press, Punctuation, Proof-Reading, and other Valuable Information. Cloth, 75cts.

Educational.

The second year of Pleasant Hill College, Warsaw, Ind., will begin Sept. 4th, 1872, in which a thoroughly practical education will be given in Academic and Collegiate studies. Brethren's children are expected to attend our weekly religious meetings. Ladies and gentlemen admitted on equal footing.

O. W. MILLER, President.
July 9-tf. Warsaw, Ind.

Menno Simon's
COMPLETE WORKS.

In English, translated from the original Dutch or Holland, giving the whole of the great Reformers writings on the subject of Baptism. Price in full sheep $4.50; by mail $5.14.

Address, JOHN F. FUNK & BRO.

AGENTS WANTED FOR
"JESUS."
By CHARLES F. DEEMS, D. D.
His divinity established and rationalism routed. The most popular and rapidly-selling religious work ever issued.
For Circulars, address U. S. PUBLISHING CO., N. Y.

New Hymn Books, English.

TURKEY MOROCCO

One copy,	post-paid,	$1 00
Per Dozen,		11 25

PLAIN ARABESQUE.

One Copy,	post-paid,	75
Per Dozen,	"	8 50

PLAIN SHEEP.

One Copy,	post-paid,	75
Per Dozen,	"	8 50

Ger'n & English, Plain Sheep.

One Copy post-paid	$ 1 00
Per Dozen	11 25
Arabesque plain,	1.00
Turkey morocco,	$ 1.25.
Single German post-paid,	50
Per Dozen,	5 50

HUNTINGDON & BROAD TOP RAIL ROAD

Summer Arraugement.

On an after Tuesday, June 4, 1872, Passenger trains will arrive and depart as follows:

Trains from Huntingdon South. — Trains from Bedford moving North.

MAIL.	ACCOM	STATIONS.	MAIL.	ACCOM
A. M.	P. M.		P. M.	A. M.
*le*8 20	LE6 00	Huntingdon,	AR5 25	AR9 10
8 28	6 06	Long Siding	5 17	9 00
8 45	6 19	McConnelstown	5 04	8 45
8 51	6 25	Pleasant Grove	4 58	8 39
9 05	6 37	Marklesburg	4 45	8 27
9 20	6 51	Coffee Run	4 33	8 11
9 27	6 58	Rough & Ready	4 26	8 04
9 39	7 10	Cove	4 12	7 52
9 43	7 15	Fishers Summit	4 08	7 48
10 03	7 35	Saxton	3 48	le 7 28
10 10	7 53			*ar*7 10
10 27	8 10	Riddlesburg	3 30	6 53
10 34	8 17	Hopewell	3 22	6 46
10 51	8 35	Piper's Run	3 06	6 30
11 10	8 55	Tatesville	2 48	6 12
11 22	9 08	Bloody Run	2 33	6 00
11 26	9 12	Mount Dallas	2 29	5 56
11 32	9 19	Ashcom's Mills	2 22	5 50
11 36	9 23	Lutzville	2 18	5 46
11 40	9 27	Hartley's Mills	2 14	5 42
11 46	9 34	Jamesons	2 07	5 36
*r*11 22	*ar*9 40	Bedford	LE2 00	LE5 30

JOHN M'KILLIPS, Supt

SHOUP'S RUN BRANCH.

LE10 15	LE7 40	Saxton.	AR3 40	AR7 20
10 30	7 55	Coalmont.	3 25	7 05
10 35	8 00	Crawford.	3 20	7 00
AR10 45	AR8 10	Dudley	LE3 10	LE6 50
Bro'd Top City from Dudley 2 miles by stage.

Time of Penna. R. R. Trains at Huntingdon.

EASTWARD.			WESTWARD.
Hb'g Ac.	9 24	A. M	Cin. Ex.	2 19	A. M.
Mail	3 30	P. M	Pc'f Ex.	7 45	"
Cin. Ex.	6 55	"	Mail	5 46	P. M.
Phil. Ex	11 15	"	W. Pass.	11 52	A. M.

TRACTS.

"ANXIOUS BENCH RELIGION EXAMINIED," by Elder J. S. Flory, is a Tract now ready for distribution, of which the following is a brief synopsis of the contents: A short and pointed address to the reader. The motive that prompted him to write, and his responsibilities as a minister; The peculiarities attending this type of religion; The feelings there experienced, not imaginary but real, The key that unlocks the wonderful mystery; It is not the workings of God after the order and plan of salvation; Man's endowment, his imitative principle—emanated from God; Spiritual influences and intercourse; Relation existing between man and God, and man and man; The fraternal bond and our natural affinities established by the "so called" sciences of Electro Biology; Mesmerism and Psychology or science of the soul, also, "Spiritualism" "Spiritual Rappings," &c. The causes by which the feelings are excited; Sympathy of the nervous system, and how that momentary feeling of joy is brought about, called, "Experimental Religion; Similar feelings may be brought about when there are no religious pretensions; Our reasons why we think this modus operandi of getting religion is not according to the Gospel, and then concludes by pointing out that form of doctrine as taught by Jesus Christ, and recorded by His faithful witness.

These tracts will be sent to all post paid, on the following terms: Two copies, 10 cts, 10 copies 40 cents, 25 copies 70 cents, 50 copies $1.00, 100 copies $1.50.

1870 1872
DR. FAHRNEY'S
Blood Cleanser or Panacea.

A tonic and purge, for Blood Diseases. Great reputation. Many testimonials. Many ministering brethren use and recommend it. Ask or send for the "Health Messenger." Use only the "Panacea" prepared at Chicago, Ills., and by

Dr. P. Fahrney's Brothers & Co.,
Mar. 29-pd. Waynesboro, Franklin Co., Pa.

Italian Queen Bees,

FOR SALE.

Purity and safe arrival guaranteed. Sent post paid, at $2.25 each.

Address,
ISAAC HEDDING,
Lewistown, Box 160,
Jun. 24-tf. Mifflintown Co., Pa.

Trine Immersion.

A discussion on Trine Immersion, by letter between Elder B. F. Moomaw and Dr J. J. Jackson, to which is annexed a Treatise on the Lord's Supper, and on the necessity, character and evidences of the new birth, also a dialogue on the doctrine of non-resistance, by Elder B. F. Moomaw. Single copy 50 cents.

THE PILGRIM,

Published by J. B. Brumbaugh, & Co.

Edited by H. B. & Geo. Brumbaugh.

CORRESPONDING EDITORS.

D. P. Sayler, Double Pipe Creek, Md.

Leonard Furry, New Enterprise, Pa.

The Pilgrim is a Christian Periodical, devoted to religion and moral reform. It will advocate in the spirit of love and liberty, the principles of true Christianity, labor for the promotion of peace among the people of God, for the encouragement of the saints and for the conversion of sinners, avoiding those things which tend toward disunion or sectional feelings.

TERMS.

Single copy, one year,	$1.25.
Book paper, " "	1.50.
Eleven copies, [eleventh for Agt.]	$12.50.

Any number above that at the same rate,

Address.

H. B. BRUMBAUGH.
James Creek,
Huntingdon county Pa.

Murkly Pilgrim.

"REMOVE NOT THE ANCIENT LANDMARKS WHICH OUR FATHERS HAVE SET."

VOL. 3. JAMES CREEK, PENNSYLVANIA, JULY 23, 1872. NO. 30

POETRY.

THE BETTER LOVE.

Human love is ever sweet,
Though uncertain 'tis, and fleet
As a fitful vision:
Woe to man if this be all,
All that he his own may call
Of the joys Elysian.

Smiles as bright as morning sky,
Passing soon from lip and eye,
Briefer than the morning;
Tender words of love and truth,
Changing oft to words of truth,
Or of cruel scorning.

But the love of God is sure;
All through life it will endure,
Pure and satisfying;
Sweeter e'en than mother give
Is the love that will receive,
And unfold us dying

Never creature loved so well,
Ne'er did mortal bosom swell
With so warm a feeling,
As the tender love and faith
Which in Jesus' life and death
Had its fond revealing.

ORIGINAL ESSAYS.

THE GREAT CONVENTION.

Continued.

(Alimentiveness takes the chair and arises.)

Alimentiveness. Brethren and fellow-citizens, it is with pleasure that I have the honor of introducing to you, our worthy brother and superior, satan, who has solicited the opportunity of making your acquaintance and to set before you the object of this meeting.

Satan. It is with untold gratefulness that I accept the honor of addressing this very intelligent and highly favored audience, and as you, no doubt, will be anxious to learn something of my origin and history in the first place, I shall not detain you, but commence at once. Early in the creation, the same God that created you, created us — I say us because we are many — but while you were created here on earth, we were created in heaven and lived close by the great throne. As you now are, we were, surrounded by every blessing and comfort that would seem to be necessary for our complete happiness, yet we soon became intolerably miserable by a foolish little restriction that was enforced upon us something like what brother Alimentiveness informs me has been laid upon you. Soon we learned that our knowledge was restricted and limited by certain bounds over which we could not pass, and the whole affair appeared to be bound up in this little and simple restriction. Our thirst for knowledged increased until it could no longer be suppressed, but there was none to venture until I at last volunteered to reach forth my hand and grasp the precious boon, and as a mist before the morning wind, fear fled away and all, or a large number, were ready and anxious to partake of the dainty morsel.

Soon we became changed and in our thoughts began to soar aloft, we became as gods understanding both good and evil. We learned that we were equal with God and our power only circumscribed by undeveloped knowledge and practical experience, but our calamity was, our impatience predominated over our better judgment and stirred up rebellion before our plans were matured; and being yet young and inexperienced, we lost the battle and were driven out and fell down to the depths of hell. This, at first, seemed to be a sad fate, but by knowledge gained, we soon set about bettering our condition. We called a conference to determine what best to do and devise some plan by which we, in part at least, might regain the power which, by injudicious haste, we lost. Soon the hosts in battle array, jubilant with hope, assembled ready to carry out any well laid scheme that might, by wiser heads, be made.— Many were the devices proposed, some good, others indifferent, while others were such as only emanate from minds akin to God, and when matured, would have robbed heaven of its brightest glory and placed me upon its highest throne, but these would take time beyond the limit of our patience, and thus no plan was adopted until finally we remembered, while yet in the confidence of our Creator, of hearing the Father and Son planning a new world and creation which were soon to be brought into existence. For us to find this and make our abode with this new creation was acknowledged by all, would be the height of our ambition and the completion of our brightest hopes. When this was announced the unanimity was so great that the whole congregation shouted for joy.

The plan was unanimously adopted and I was sent to pry out this new world and by knowledge and experience gained, soon found the coveted spot, when, hard by this, to you, mysterious tree, I first met brother Alimentiveness, by whose kindness I now have the honor of meeting with you, and without flattery, I can truly say that I am highly pleased with the prospects of a happy and speedy union of Kingdoms. The only barrier that I can now see that stands between us, is the eating of this forbidden fruit which, let me assure you, will be attended with the best of consequences. The very name shows that it is something to be desired. "Of the Knowledge of good and evil." Who is it that could not be benefitted by a knowledge of good? The more good we know the more good we can do, and as regards a knowledge of the evil, that is just the kind of information you need to guard you against committing evil deeds. You can see at once brethren, that there can no possible harm result from gaining such wisdom. And as to the penalty, "Ye shall surely die." To die may mean one thing or it may mean something else. From my experience I have learned it to mean a change from ignorance to knowledge, from servitude to liberty. God knows just as well as I do, that to eat of it is to become wise. If such is "to die" who would not gladly die, to live? If it should mean utter destruction or annihilation, far better still than to be forever lounging around this forbidden tree craving the knowledge it is intended to give and yet dare not enjoy its blessings. How can you expect to enjoy this beautiful world with such an unendurable temptation in your very midst? And why, if not intended for some special good, have it placed here? You must certainly see that in it is a blessing hid which will only be revealed by partaking of it, therefore I would advise you to eat of it at once and I will stand by you and be your king. My subjects will I bring with me and we shall be brethren.

I have now briefly made my statements and submit them for your consideration, hoping that the suggestions which I have made may be favorably received and my greatest joy consummated in their adoption.

Conscientiousness. This is certainly a new state of affairs and takes me unprepared, but in this new move I see nothing that will reflect favorably to our integrity. It is true, God has denied us the privilege of eating of this tree, but has he not prepared for us in abundance without it? This we know: that we are highly blessed and are surrounded with everything that is intended to make us happy without sacrificing our love of right and justice in order to obtain, we know not what. Justice to God, who made us and has so pleasantly situated us, would seem to advise: let well enough alone.

Self Esteem. It is quite true that we have many pleasant things, but the idea of remaining in this state of slavery I detest. My desires are for independence and more dignity, I cannot endure the thought of being subject to such restraints. If God intended us to be entirely happy why not allow us the privilege of unlimited freedom? If this tree is not for our good why place it here? It certainly can do us no good in looking at it if we are not allowed to eat it, therefore I am in favor of testing the matter and risking the consequences.

Cautiousness. Respected brethren, I fear this matter is not duly weighed, neither its great importance considered. Remember, on the decision of this meeting hangs our present and future good, hence it becomes us to examine the matter well. Satan said some fine things, yet there is nothing in his history that promises us any very great success. The knowledge he gained by disobedience seems not to have given him any very great advantage. It brought him into rebellion with God which resulted in a defeat and an expulsion from heaven, and from his own acknowledgments, their present condition is not one to be desired. If he and his followers were once conquered, where is our hope in disobedience, even if he is willing to fight for us? May God not just as easily defeat our combined forces and thus cast us out of this lovely abode which we now have, and may retain if we remain loyal to our king? I would say to this very respectable body, let us be careful and not go unadvisedly into this matter or we may repent of our rashness.

Combativeness. The fears expressed, to me have no weight, as I fear not. The greater the danger the higher my aspirations run and the greater my joy. To fight is my element, and as for the king for whom I am to fight, let it be the one that calls it first to play. My whole ambition urges an engagement and one in which to conquer will be to wear a crown worthy of my great dignity. To be defeated has never given me a thought, for it I have made no calculation. Then let me assure you that you can rely on my services in whatever decision you make, but at the same time I am in favor of testing the virtue of the fruit of this tempting tree, which promises fair to give me an opportunity of proving my skill and allaying my thirst for a conflict.

Continued next week.

FAITH IN CHRIST AND BAPTISM.

So strong and valiant is faith, that by it all things are possible. Christ saith "We must learn daily with our Lord Jesus Christ to bring under our old Adam, and mortify the deeds of the body by the cross, not that cross which we choose, but that which Christ layeth upon us. Let us bear it with a patient and willing mind, that our bodies may be subdued and made subject to the spirit; that being buried with Christ in baptism we may be raised with him, and He alone may reign and live in us. This baptism signifies nothing more than that the old Adam be mortified and buried; which we ought always to bear in mind seeing that sin remains in us as long as we live in this world. Wherefore, St. Paul treats in very good words, which ought to be diligently considered by us: "Know ye not that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ, were baptized into His death? Therefore we are buried with Him by baptism into death, that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life; for if we have been planted together in the likeness of His death, we shall be also in the likeness of His resurrection, knowing this, that our old man is crucified with him, that the body of sin might be destroyed that henceforth we should not serve sin, for he that is dead is freed from sin."—Rom. 6th. Now, if we be dead with Christ, we believe that we shall also live with Him, knowing that Christ being raised from the dead, dieth no more; death hath no more dominion over Him, for in that he died, he died unto sin once; but in that he liveth, unto God. Likewise reckon ye also yourselves to be dead indeed unto sin, but alive unto God through Jesus Christ our Lord.

The baptism of Christ. In the baptism, three things are to be considered: First. The heavens when hewas baptized. Second. The Holy Ghost was seen in the likeness of a dove. Third. The voice of the Father was heard saying; "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased."

First. Christ vouchsafed to be baptized with water, by which He hath hallowed baptism and made the water thereof holy, that he which is baptised in His name, might likewise become holy and cleansed from sin.

Christ was not baptized for himself, for he was not infected with the least spot of sin. He acted like a good physician, who first drank of the bitter portion, and then offers it to the sick, that they may the more gladly and boldly drink of it afterwards, for we in baptism drink a bitter portion; the mortification of the old Adam, for dipping into the water signifies nothing else than that the old Adam should perish and die. This is greatly furthered by the cross, which God in His divine will layeth upon us; which we ought not to cast off, but bear willingly with a patient mind. But that this might be easier for us to do, Christ hath taken it upon Himself; He suffered Himself to be baptized, He took His cross and carried it without resistance or gainsaying and was obedient to His Father unto death, even the death of the cross, as Paul saith, that He might deliver us from our sins, and might appease his heavenly Father which he did of his mere grace without any desert of ours; whereof baptism is a sign and pledge. As Paul saith to Titus, "But when the kindness and love of God our Savior toward men appeared, not by works of righteousness which we have done, but according to his mercy he saved us by the washing of regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Ghost, which he shed on us abundantly through Jesus Christ our Savior, that being justified by his grace, we should be made heirs according to the hope of eternal life."

Secondly. When Christ was baptized, the Holy Ghost appeared in the likeness of a dove, whereby is signified that we also receive the Holy Ghost in baptism, which ruleth and guideth us according to the will of God, which is present with us and helpeth us in bearing the burden of the holy cross, it is preseot and helpeth us. If we fall, it raiseth us up again and is always a faithful companion in our journey to heaven. He maketh the burden of the cross light, which we should otherwise be unable to bear. If we fall into sin, we must remember to go back to baptism, for this is the ship wherein we pass over the sea of sin. Baptism is the beginning of repentance after such a renewing of the life followeth the praise of God, and thanksgiving unto him for the grace received. The Holy Ghost appearing upon Christ in the likeness of a dove. The dove hath no gall, such they also become which receive the Holy Ghost in baptism, to wit, they are gentle and without bitterness toward all men.

Thirdly. The voice of the Father is heard in the baptism of Christ, saying, "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased." This is that Savior which delivered us from the tyranny of sin, death, satan and hell, here we may learn how we must come to God. He that desireth to become a child of God, the Father, must attain it, thro' Christ, and through him alone. The beloved Son, who is in the bosom of the Father, unto whom alone the Father looketh, without whom he alloweth nothing, but whatsoever pleaseth the Father, it pleaseth him with respect to the Son, therefore he that desireth to come to the Father, must cleave to his beloved Son. He that desireth to be in favor with the Father and to be beloved by him, let him flee to the bosom of the Son, by whom he findeth access to the Father. As Paul saith, "Through Christ we are adopted, and without Christ we are the enemies of God." Therefore whosoever cleaveth to Christ through faith, abideth in the favor of God. He also shall be made beloved and acceptable as Christ is, and shall have fellowship with the Father and Son. This is a mighty and excellent voice; This is my beloved Son, in whom all things consist and are comprehended, which are extant in the whole Scriptures. This word teaches us to know Christ, in whose knowledge our salvation consisteth, as witnessed by Isaiah, Paul, and Peter. But how does it teach us to know him? It teaches us to know him as the Son of God, who pleaseth the Father, by which the Father cheereth the hearts of all the faithful, and greatly delighteth them with comfort and heavenly love. When Christ speaketh, or doth anything for me, I remember these words of the Father, that he is the "beloved Son." Then I am forced to think, that all which Christ speaketh and suffereth for my sake, doth well please the Father. How can God show himself more liberal and loving than by being pleased that Christ his son doth deal so kindly and tenderly with us, that he looks upon us with so much affection and with such unusual love as to suffer and die for our sakes?

But we are cold and unthankful, and pass over such precious words as if uttered by man, or as if they pertained to Christ, and not to us. But they were committed to writing and are extant for our sakes only. Christ being in so great favor with God in all things, and at the same time serving us, as he himself witnesseth, we are without doubt in the same favor with God as Christ himself. "If a man love me he will keep my words: and my Father will love him and we will come unto him and and make our abode with him."—14:23, also 12 26, "Where I am there shall also my servant be," again, "I pray that they may be one, even as we are one, I in thee, and thou in me, and they in me." But where is Christ? In the favor of God, in the depth of his heart. There also are we if we know and love Christ:—there our refuge is placed where no evil can come. J. A.

Lima, Ohio.

ARE WE ON DUTY?

This is a question of momentous proportion and makes itself personal to every follower of Jesus. We have enlisted our services to a cause that is sacred and dear to every regenerated soul. If so, we are called upon to endure hardness as good soldiers. To do this, we must first consider the magnitude and power of the enemy with whom we are to contend, and the manner in which the power will be brought to bear against us. The apostle seems to think it very great and of no ordinary nature, for he says: "Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to withstand the wiles of the devil, for we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places." The enemy that we have to contend with is the devil, and he is represented as being full of wiles. His danger consists not in open power, but in deception, stratagem and insidious artifice.

Seeing then that we have so formidable an enemy to contend against, our first duty is to put on the whole armour of God in order to do our whole duty. We have enlisted under the glorious banner of Jesus who is a tried veteran and never knew a defeat. His weapons are not carnal but mighty to the pulling down of the strongholds of satan. His armor is complete, and for every soldier that enlists in the army of the Lord, there is one prepared. It is fully described in the 6th chapter of Ephesians. Read them carefully and then put them all on. Do not venture the battle with only a part, or you will most certainly fall or be defeated, as he is a wily foe and will be certain to attack the unguarded points.

Having put on the whole armor of God, we are then to endure hardness as good soldiers. A good soldier is one that is ever on duty and on the alert for the enemy. The safety of the whole army is, at times, confided to him, and great are his responsibilities. He will never forsake his post of trust, no matter how dark and cold the night. The wind may howl and the rain and hail in torrents fall, yet the faithful soldier sacredly holds his post. He endures hardness, he is a good soldier. With such soldiers, an army is secured from being attacked on surprise. Just so it is in the army of the Lord. We are all to be good soldiers and willing to endure hardness.

When we enter the church, we take the oath of allegience to be true to our king, and in good faith we are entrusted with a responsible position in the army. We are placed on line of duty and if we betray our trust, we commit a great crime and endanger the church.

We, the members of the body of Christ, as a united body, each have a work to perform and an influence to exert. The world is full of opportunities to do good. It is a very great mistake to suppose that when we once enter the church that our work is done and our salvation secured. It is then that we only commence, or should commence, working for the Lord and the good of His kingdom. We must not merely enlist under the banner, but we must enlist in the cause.

We have entered a new kingdom and our all is at stake in it. We have escaped worse than Egyptian bondage, the bands of satan are bursted and we are liberated, plucked as brands from the eternal burnings. Jesus has died for us, but while He has died for us, He has died for the whole world.—Notwithstanding this great salvation has been purchased and now freely offered, yet thousands upon thousands reject it, because they are overcome by this great enemy of the soul who is prowling about as the hungry lion, seeking whom he may devour. We, as good soldiers, are to contest this mighty foe even to death, to liberate the captured prisoners and set them free, save them from the burnings of hell. In this great work, some of our ministering brethren are enduring hardness in forsaking their fields and occupations, in leaving their homes, their loved ones, enduring heat and cold, crossing hills, valleys, and even rugged mountains in order to proclaim to a dying world the glad news of salvation and turn sinners from the error of their ways, forsake the kingdom of satan and destruction and enter the kingdom of the Prince of Peace. Prompted through love for the salvation of precious souls, they sacrifice upon the blood-stained altar, the comforts of life and the enjoyments of home, and manly go forth to combat against the works of darkness. The contest is a hot one and the battle lengthy, nobly have they handled the sword of the spirit, but the battle still continues,—see, the strokes are becoming uncertain, the willing arm is getting weaker and soon must fall, perhaps, in the heat of the battle, his mind reverts to his home and little ones, their supplies are daily growing less and soon will be heard the plaintive crying for bread. Oh, brethren! oh, sisters! TO THE RESCUE! You must hold up their arms or take their place, go and preach the gospel or provide for their families, the souls of the unconverted are too precious to be lost—the gospel must be preached. There is no use in clamoring about miracles and that the Lord will provide for such. He will provide but he uses means and those means are to be supplied by you. How often do we sing:

"Am I a soldier of the cross,
A foll'wer of the Lamb?
And shall I fear to own his cause,
Or blush to speak his name?

Must I be carried to the skies,
On flowery beds of ease?
While others fought to win the prize,
And sail'd through bloody seas?"

Who is it that expects to be carried to heaven on flowery beds of ease? It is you, dear brethren and sisters, who remain at home and till your beautiful farms, fare sumptuously every day, hoard up the mighty dollar and forget that you are a soldier of Jesus and are called upon to help to fight the battle. Wheat is considered the staple or staff of life, yet all cannot be farmers, because, to farm successfully, we must have plows, cultivators and drills to till the soil and seed it down, reapers to cut it, wagons to haul it, machines to thresh it, mills to grind it and ovens to bake it. Now to make all these, the farmer has neither time nor skill, therefore he employs others. While the mechanic is making the farmer's machinery, the farmer is raising the mechanic's wheat, and thus enter into each other's labors, bear each other's burdens, and all are provided for and get value for labor performed. In the spiritual kingdom the Word, the Truth, is the great staple of life. "The word became flesh." "Except ye eat of my flesh and drink my blood ye have no life in you." In order that all may have access to this bread it must be distributed. To do this there are many things necessary, requiring more or less time, and different qualifications and talent, such as procuring Bibles, teaching people how to read them, providing for the sick and poor, building churches. &c., but the principal burthen of the labor devolves upon the minister. Now we cannot all be ministers, neither would it do to all be deacons or lay members.

Yet in order that the great work of the Lord be carried on we must have all. The salvation of the soul is the great object to be obtained. We all have souls, and for their salvation we must work. All are equally precious. The Jew and the Gentile, the bond and the free, the rich and the poor, are all included in this great salvation. It is an equal salvation and all must labor equally—according to talent given—to obtain it, but as the deacons' and lay members' responsibilities are not so great as the minister's and does not require so much time to perform it, they have more time to devote to procuring the necessaries of life.

Now remember, brethren and sisters, it is an equal salvation and we all expect to get the benefits of it and to procure it, there must be a certain amount of labor performed. In a year, some of our most zealous ministers devote one third of their time to preaching and seeing to the flock, the deacons perhaps ten or twelve days and the lay members still less. For the sake of enforcing or ideas we will give a mathematical illustration. The minister devotes 120 days of the year directly to the service of the Lord, the deacons 12, and the lay members 4, making 52 days for each. Now according to the rules of proportion, if the minister gains heaven, how much of heaven will the deacon obtain, and how much the lay member? But we will make another proposition. Suppose, by giving our whole heart to God He will accept 52 days direct labor to His cause and allow us the remainder to devote to procuring our bodily wants. Each one then has 52 laboring days to devote directly to the Lord's work. The lay member and the deacon says to the minister: "The church has seen in you the necessary qualifications to preach the Gospel successfully, therefore you may go and devote as much of your time to the church as the Lord may require, whatever time you spend over your share, let it be credited to us and the time that you devote to the service of the Lord for us we will devote to you in supporting your family." Would not this be a most beautiful system? And according to the rules of proportion, each one would receive his equal proportionate reward because they entered into each others labors and bore each others burdens.

This may seem like running God's mercies into mathematical calculations, but when we consider that God is just and that every man shall receive according to his labors, may we not admit that the ideas are logically based? Brethren and sisters, when I look around and see what the so-called Christendom is doing to convert the people to their respective dogmas, the question comes forcibly, "are we doing our duty?" Do we believe what we preach, and if so, can it be possible that we can sit contentedly on our lees while thousands upon thousands of blood bought souls are travelling down, down the broad way that leads to hell? I exceedingly fear that some of us are of those who expect to go to heaven on "flowery beds of ease," while some of our poor ministering brethren must "sail through bloody seas." If we are we shall most certainly be disappointed.

When we sit in our pleasant homes, around our loaded tables, surrounded with everything that is intended to make us comfortable, let us ask ourselves whether we are doing our duty towards God and our fellow man in having the gospel preached and sinners converted, and whether we are making the proper use of that which the Lord has entrusted to our care.

We have everything to encourage us. Wherever there has been an earnest effort made to convert sinners, our labors have been abundantly blessed and we have received souls for our hire. Then let us get to work in earnest. Every brother and every sister put on the whole armor of God and endure hardships as good soldiers. Let us all make a united effort for the cause of Jesus, the extension of his Kingdom and the salvation of souls and great will be our reward in heaven.

DIXI.

DRESS.

I will not undertake to show that the present style of dress is injurious to health, and in this view offensive to God.

Will any one deny that the head dress and the high-heeled shoes, and the fashion of wearing the dress is detrimental to health? And then how many yards of materiel does it require to make a fashionable dress? Verily, if the grandmothers of some of the ladies of the present day could look back upon the earth, they would, if such a thing could be, almost turn over in their graves! I am truly sorry for the young men of the present age. Well may they fear and tremble when they think of taking to themselves a wife. It is the smallest number of them that can support the fashionable ladies of our day. And if there were not many noble exceptions, it would be truly a hazardous undertaking for any man to take to himself a helpmeet.

"PREACH THE WORD."

I again take my pen to contribute something to the PILGRIM, conscious of my inability to write interestingly, but I do not think this should make us shrink from duty. The greatest amount of preaching of the present day is entirely systematical, and does seem to interest the mass of mankind. And while the popular preaching of the day engages and interests the mind, it is no difficult matter to instil corrupt doctrine. Satan while presenting his temptations to Christ, endeavors to deceive him by perverting the Scripture; for said he, "If thou be the Son of God cast thyself down, for it is written, He shall give his angels charge concerning thee, and in their hands they shall bear thee up, lest at any time thou dash thy foot against a stone." This was not so, but it is written "For he shall give his angels charge over thee, to keep thee in all thy ways,"&c. But Christ knew his design and met this temptation with truth, so it is with us brethren, we must meet error with truth if we would overcome. Alas! the vast amount of error infused into the minds of the present generation; instead of "preaching the Word" the perversion of holy Truth is the ruling element. Satan is the same deceiver he was when he caused our first parents to sin, but does not come in the garb of a serpent, for if he did he would perhaps be detected more readily. He comes now in the garb of religion, consequently is not detected so easily. Our Savior warns us to "beware of men who come to us in sheep's clothing, but inwardly they are ravening wolves." The clothing of a sheep is wool, and if a wolf would get in among our sheep with the clothing of a sheep it would be difficult to detect it. So with perverters of the Truth, like satan, they come "with enticing words of man's wisdom teaching for doctrine the commandments of men, and many shall follow their pernicious ways by reason of whom the way of Truth shall be evil spoken of." You will notice that satan by insinuating a doubt, saying, "Hath God said ye shall not eat of every tree of the garden? Are you sure he did not say so?—tried to make them believe that God had just said "Of every tree of the garden thou mayest freely eat," not remembering that he had said also, "But of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil thou shalt not eat." In this garb he often comes doubting the essentiality of a part of God's Word, making men believe this doctrine though so foreign to Truth. Brethren, let us "preach the Word."

It is preached by some in this our day, that if the Eunuch was immersed Philip was immersed also, if baptize means invariably to immerse. But we do not believe that such teachers are thus ignorant, because they know that the preposition into is not used in this connection to express baptism. Certainly not when the Word teaches that "they both went down into the water, both Philip and the Eunuch." Is this all? No, "and he baptized him." Authors who are acquainted with the Greek language, inform us that baptize is a Greek word slightly modified, which in the Greek language was used invariably to express dipping or immersion, so we believe that after they had went into the water, he baptized or immersed him.

It is also the prevailing opinion that sprinkling, pouring and immersion are all baptism. How could this be? If the Greek word baptize was rendered into English, it certainly means a certain performance and nothing else; "One baptism," says the Scripture. Now we read that our Savior was baptized, that John was baptizing in Enon because there was much water there, that believers were commanded to be baptized. Now when our Savior was baptized a certain thing was done. And when we read that John was baptized in Enon, we think it is evident that he performed the same thing Christ did, because the same word is used to tell what they did.

Brethren let us "earnestly contend for the faith once delivered to the saints." The plan of salvation is laid down in the Gospel, so plain and simple "that a wayfaring man though a fool cannot err therein." "When they saw the boldness of Peter and John and perceived that they were ignorant and unlearned men they marveled, and they took knowledge of them." Brethren, we think boldness should be manifested in "preaching the Word." We are apt to shrink from duty for fear of being too bold. The people were aware they were ignorant and unlearned, but still they took knowledge of them. Although we may be unlearned, that is, not be a polished teacher brought up in the popular high schools of the day, this does not disqualify us if we have been with Jesus. If we "preach the Word, we preach Christ, if not, Christ will not be in it. I do think we should try to please all men, but not shun any part of the Word to please anybody. We have heard persons say they did not like to hear so much about baptism, now we think such are void of a love for the truth, we often meet with such as the Eunuch who said "What doth hinder me to be baptized?" Brethren, the Word should be preached without respect of persons, for God has said "Preach the Gospel to every creature, he that believeth and is baptized shall be saved, but he that believeth not shall be damned." Then let us preach the whole Gospel to all, and God will save those who believe, but those who refuse to hear God will hold responsible and to them He will say in a coming day, "Depart from me I never knew you ye workers of iniqnity." J. M. WELLS.

THE MISSED TREE.

When an oak, or any noble and useful tree is uprooted, his removal creates a blank. For years after, when you look to the place which once knew him, you see that something is missing. The branches of adjacent trees have not yet supplied the void. They still hesitate to occupy the place formerly filled by their powerful neighbor; and there is still a deep chasm in the ground—a ragged pit—which shows how far his giant roots once spread. But when a leafless pole, a wooden pin is picked up, it comes easy and clean away. There is no rending of the turf, no marring of the landscape, no vacuity created, no regret. It leaves no memento, and is never missed.

Brethren, which are you? Are you cedars planted in the house of the Lord, casting a cool and grateful shadow around you? Are you palm-trees, fat and flourishing, yielding beautious fruit, making all who know you bless you? Are you so useful, that were you away, it would not be easy to fill your place again, but people, as they pointed to the void in the plantation, the pit in the ground, would say, "It was here that that old palm-tree diffused his familiar shadow and showed his mellow clusters?" Or are you a peg, a pin, a rootless branchless, fruitless thing, that may be pulled up any day, and no one care to ask what has become of it? What are you contributing to, the world's happiness, or the church's glory? What is your business?

DANGER OF TRIFLING WITH SIN.

The man who turns his back upon the known ways of righteousness loses, according to the degree in which he does so, the power to believe, and therewith the power to return to those ways. He who has never been born again thinks that to believe on a God of grace is a very easy matter indeed. He does not know what sin is, and hence he cannot understand what grace is. But after a man has come to know what is meant by sin, and what is implied in grace, how hard does it become for him, after some act of great unfaithfulness, to find again grace to believe! Thus when it does occur that Christians, who have been once enlightened, and have once tasted "the good word of God and the powers of the world to come," fall away into carnal sin, or any other heinous transgression, at no time in such a case is the danger of total apostasy far distant. And why? Because they lose the power to believe.—Tholuck.

SOMETIME.

We have all our possessions in the future which we call "sometime." Beautiful flowers and singing birds are there, only our hands seldom grasp the one, or our ears hear the other. But, oh reader, be of good cheer, for all the good there is a golden "sometime"; when the hills and valleys of time are all passed; when the wear and fever, the disappointment and sorrows of life are over, there is a place and the rest appointed of God. Oh, homestead, over whose roof falls no shadows or even clouds, and over whose threshold the voice of sorrow is never heard; built upon the eternal hills, and standing with thy spires and pinnacles of celestial beauty among the palm trees of the city on high, those who love God shall rest under thy shadows, where there is no more sorrow, nor pain, nor the sound of weeping "sometime."

WORK OF THE SPIRIT.—The mightiest force in the universe are silent forces. Who ever heard the budding of an oak? Who was ever deafened by the falling of the dew? Who was ever stunned by a solar eclipse? So it is with the august phenomenon of a change of heart. So far as we know, it is the most radical change the human spirit can experience. It is a revolutionary change. Disembodiment by death, morally estimated, is not so profound. Still, a change of heart is not an unnatural change. It is not necessarily even destructive of self-possession. God employs in it an instrument exquisitely adjusted to the mind of man as an intelligent and free being. Truth may act in it with an equipoise of forces as tranquil as that of gravitation in the orbits of the stars. No, it is not of necessity a tumultuous experience to which God calls us when He invites us to be saved. By what emblem have the Scriptures expressed the person of the Holy Ghost? Is it an eagle? "And John bare record, saying: I saw the spirit descending like a dove." "Come," is the select language of inspiration; "Come, and I will give you"—what? a shock, the rack, a swoon? No, I will give you—"rest." "Come, and ye shall find"—what? struggle, terror, torture? No, ye shall find—"peace." "Come ye"—come who? "Let him that is athirst come. And whosoever will, let him take of the water of life freely."—Dr. A. Phelps.

Whoso loveth instruction loveth knowledge: but he that hateth reproof is brutish.

A good man obtaineth favour of the Lord: but a man of wicked devices will be condemn.

YOUTHS' DEPARTMENT.

OUR OWN.

BY MARDT. E. SANGSTER.

If I had known in the morning
How wearily all the day
The words unkind would trouble my mind
That I said when you went away,
I had been more careful, darling,
Nor given you needless pain;
But we vex our own with look and tone
We may never take back again.

For though in the quiet evening
You may give me the kiss of peace,
Yet it well might be that never for me
The pain of the heart should cease!
How many go forth at morning
Who never come home at night!
And hearts have broken for harsh words spoken,
That sorrow can ne'er set right.

We have careful thought for the stranger,
And smiles for the sometime guest;
But oft for our own the bitter tone,
Though we love our own the best.
Ah! lips with the curve impatient,
Ah! brow with the shade of scorn,
'Twere a cruel fate were the night too late
To undo the work of morn!

[HARPER'S BAZAR.

THESE TEMPTATIONS.

Dear young readers of the PILGRIM. It has been some time since we essayed to talk directly to you, yet we have by no means forgotten you. We often think of our young friends who have joined the PILGRIM band and appear so much interested in its prosperity. We feel assured that all such boys and girls are good, for good boys and girls love to read good books and papers. Bad children never like to read much, neither do they like to attend school and learn to read. But our little readers and workers for the PILGRIM do not belong to this class, and were it not for these temptations they certainly would ever remain quite good. Now I suppose you all know, by experience, what we mean by temptations. When you feel like taking what does not belong to you, when you feel like concealing your faults, when you are prompted to tell an untruth, or disobey your parents or teachers, you are tempted. Every person is thus tempted, and it is by yielding to these temptations that men, women, boys and girls become bad. These promptings to do wrong are the effects of a very evil spirit known by various names such as devil, satan, adversary, &c.

We suppose all of our little readers have read of Jesus, and how he was tempted of the devil. He was led into the wilderness to be tempted, and when He had fasted forty days and forty nights, the tempter came to Him and desired that He should command the stones to be made bread. Now we would suppose that Jesus must have been very hungry, having taken no food for so long a time, and the devil, no doubt, thought this a very good time to present his temptation. But Jesus gave him an answer that caused him to give up his design. He would not yield by this means and he therefore presents other temptations of which you will read in the fourth chapter of Matthew. This tempter, boys and girls, still exists and often presents temptations similar to this one. Little boys and girls often get very hungry and their appetites crave things that it is not proper for them to have, or that does not belong to them. We have known little boys and girls to steal pie and cake from their mother's pantry, and take fruit that does not belong to them without permission. All these things they knew and felt to be very wrong, but the evil one tempted them and they yielded. Then every time that you take anything that you know is wrong for you to have, feel assured that it is the evil one tempting you, and if you will obey his promptings, you will certainly become very very bad. This we know none of our young readers desire to be. You could not tolerate the idea of being called a bad boy or girl, but then the tempter is very artful and lies in wait to deceive you. His temptations do not always present the appearance of wrong, and you may be led to do bad acts before you are aware of it. You should be on the alert. If you were aware that some vicious boy desired to do you an injury, and was waiting for an opportunity, you would watch him very closely. Satan desires to injure you. He wants to make you bad and unfit you for that bright and happy place where all good people go to when they die. If you want to be happy in this life and in the life to come you must try and be good, and this you may be, if you will always resist satan when he prompts you to do wrong. Then when you are prompted to be proud and haughty, or disobey your parents or teachers, just consider it is satan tempting you, and resolve to resist him. Then you will be quite happy for everybody will love and respect you. We hope the little readers of the PILGRIM will think of these things and always try to be good.

We are now done with our "say" for this time, and we hope you all love to read our PILGRIM. This week you will have "Suspicious Harry," and "Who was the Coward," which we think will be interesting to you. J. B. B.

If a cause be good, the most violent attacks of its enemies will not injure it so much as an injudicious defense of it by its friends.

SUSPICIOUS HARRY.

"Mother!" shouted young Harry Cline, as he rushed into the house one afternoon, "I do believe Ned Dawes is a thief."

"Hush my son. Thief is a hard word. You should never apply it to any one until you are pretty sure he deserves it. Certainly not to so nice a boy as Master Dawes."

"Well, I do think he is a thief," rejoined Harry, very earnestly. "He has a top just like the one I lost last winter, and I believe he stole it."

"Nonsense, my son," said Mrs. Cline, "don't you know that tops are made by machinery, and they are as much alike as peas in a pod?"

"Well, I don't care. I believe he stole my top, and I mean to prove it on him if I can. He is a mean fellow any way, and I should like to bring his pride down some."

This was said very spitefully, and Mrs. Cline saw that her son's belief in young Dawes' dishonesty grew out of his dislike. She tried to show him this, and to shame him out of his bad opinion of a really good boy. But Harry's passion made him blind, and it was useless to reason with him at that time. She warned him, however, against the injustice of spreading an evil report which he was unable to prove.

Harry's better nature told him he was wrong and his mother right. But he refused to listen to its voice, and as he went down the street, he whispered his suspicion of Ned into the ear of every boy he met. Some replied, "We don't believe it." "It is not in Ned's nature to do such a mean thing." "Ned is too noble a boy to be a thief," etc. Others, who disliked the accused boy, said, "Very likely. It is just what we should expect of that fellow."

One boy, meaner than the rest, said, "Suppose you go and ask old Scotch if he ever sold a top like yours to Ned Dawes?"

Harry caught at this wily suggestion, and ran to the village top-shop forthwith. "Please Mr. McGrath, did you ever sell a peg-top like the one I bought of you to Ned Dawes?"

Mr. M'Grath, whom the boys called Old Scotch, because he was a native of Scotland, fixed his hard eye on Harry, and replied:

"What business have you with the affairs of Ned Dawes, Master Inquisitive? But why do you wish to know?"

"Because—because—because—"

"Because what?" thundered the old Scotchman.

"Because he's got a top just like the one I bought sir," stammered Harry, who was considerably more than half frightened at the old man's manner.

"And so you wish to insinuate that he stole your top, eh? Nice business, that, for a decent boy, isn't it. Did you ever ask him about his top?"

"No, sir," replied Harry, hanging down his head.

"No! Well you are a pretty fellow, I must say. Here you are busy trying to steal the name of an innocent boy. Get out with you! you are a dangerous fellow, I am afraid of you. A boy that will steal a friend's good name, is capable of stealing his money. Go away, you bad boy! and think as you go that Ned Dawes did buy a top just like yours."

This last shot from the Scotchman's angry lips was a red hot one. It burned its way into Harry's conscience, and made him feel guilty of having brought a false accusation against an innocent school-mate.

But false as this charge was, it spread throughout the village, until it reached the ears of the teacher. He called Harry before the school and said to him, "I understand you charge Edward Dawes with stealing your top."

"I did, sir, but I don't now," replied Harry, blushing with shame to the very roots of his hair.

After drawing out all the facts, the teacher sharply rebuked Harry, and then said, "Boys don't suspect each other. Noble natures are never suspicious. They think no evil, and are slow to believe bad reports. It is the ignoble heart that suspects mean and ignoble things in others. Pray that you may have noble, unsuspicious, confiding hearts."—S. S. Advocate.

WHO WAS THE COWARD?

Three boys obtained permission of their parents one Saturday to go a fishing, a permission which boys should frequently have. It is a pleasing, innocent and useful amusement. On their way they passed a peach orchard loaded with delicious ripe peaches. As they peeped thro' the fence, and beheld the delicious fruit, the temptation was very great to have some of it. Instead of buying or begging some of it, two of the boys proposed that they would get over the fence, and help themselves. "What!" said Robert Graham, "I thought we came to fish, not to steal." "Coward!" called out the other two. "Well," said he, "call me what you please, I will do right—I will not steal." So he remained in the road while the two little thieves climbed over the fence and helped themselves to peaches. Presently they saw a man coming to them, when they both ran and clambered over the fence where they had left Robert Grayham. "Now cried out Robert, "who are the cowards?" as both ran down the road to get away from the owner of the peaches. "Come here, my little man," said the gentleman to Robert, "I heard what you said to the boys who have run away, and you have done right; you are a good boy and no coward. Come here and get all the peaches you want." I hope my little readers will remember this lesson, and always do right, and you will not only feel happy, but will get your reward both in this world and the world to come.

CORRESPONDENCE

Dear Pilgrim:—In my last, I promised to give the particulars of another rather extraordinary case of adoption into the family of God, and the possibility of the means applicable to the most critical case when the creature becomes humbled under the mighty hand of God, in faith believing. It dispels all doubts and fear, and is an evidence that through obedience, "the blood of Christ cleanseth from all sin."

This subject was one of our fashionable young ladies in society. But the hand of sickness was laid upon her, and after lingering some time, her bodily prostration became so great that her attending physician and friends began to despair of her life. About this time we were sent for by her request, and in the interview with her, we learned that her mind had became well exercised in relation to her spiritual interest, an humble penitent, fully willing to take up the yoke of Jesus, and follow in the way of God's appointments in prospect of the hope of eternal life. After an humble confession, and a frank evidence of faith in Jesus, she desired baptism at our hands for remission of sin, &c. About this time we learned that her physician said she might possibly not survive the ministration of baptism, judging from the nature of her disease. She knowing all this, was not in the least daunted, but in confidence, leaning upon the strong arm of Jesus as a tried friend and Savior, and the evidence that with God all things are possible, she was willing to abide the consequences. She was placed on a couch prepared for the purpose, taken near half a mile to the water, baptized into Christ in the presence of a number of spectators. She then was returned to her mother's house and bed again, rejoicing in the Lord, and praising Jesus for help unto salvation. On last Sabbath she attended public worship at the nearest place of meeting, in good prospect of enjoying many more.

Since my last, a number more of prominent citizens have been added to our number, among which is one who was a member of the German Reformed persuasion, who with some others of the same order, have wisely concluded to accept the Word as it is, and try and follow Jesus in the way.

In my last, I also promised to give something concerning the order or persuasion known as the River Brethren. This Church, as has been testified through the PILGRIM, is not, as many suppose, a branch of, or from the Brethren. That they originated from the Brethren is impressed upon the minds of many from the fact that they bear, outwardly, a strong resemblence, or similarity to the Brethren, but in reality there is a vital differance. They consist of three or four distinct divisions. A few years ago they were opposed to building meeting-houses, but they now, or at least a part of them, favor the building of meeting-houses, and are building some. They have within the last year finished quite a fine house near our little village of Ringgold. They build on the order of the Brethren's houses. This Spring they had a Communion or Lovefeast, affording our brethren and the people a good opportunity to know who they are, what they are and what they believe and practice. As a people with their order they have some very commendable traits. As citizens, they are exemplary, kind, social, clever and good neighbors and citizens. As to their religious proclivities we differ much, but it is not our object at this time to speak of this in particular, but notice a few things as connected with the meeting referred to, brought to our notice by those who were present. Some did not see and hear what they expected, others saw and heard more. The influence and impression seems to have been different as is common on occasions of the kind. Whether the influence was the means of bringing thirty or forty members to the Church of the Brethren I don't know, but if so, we might almost wish they might soon have another. That it was with some, we have no doubt, from the fact that they discovered a considerable discrepency in their ministration. Their having no "Lord's Supper," the tables set with a cloth on and yet no supper,—washing feet just before the Communion, when Jesus washed feet before supper, and ate the supper just before the Communion, they asserting that Jesus and the disciples ate the Jewish passover upon the occasion as recorded John 13, alleging also that the Word of God is a dead letter, and will pass away, when the Scriptures say, it is the "Power of God unto salvation," and "remain when Heaven and earth have passed away." Also their tales of experience given to the public without being called for, by both men and women, and many other things said and done that has given the people subjects for meditation. In conclusion, will say, read the Scriptures carefully and properly, compare Scripture with Scripture, then try the doctrine of churches by the Scripture, and decide for the right, and God will bless you now, and in time, crown you with immortality at His right hand.

D. F. GOOD.

NEWVILLE, July 15th, 1872.

Beloved Editors: By looking over the WEEKLY PILGRIM, Vol. 3, page 222, last col. "Wanted," termed "Close Communion," or in other words, why we do not invite members of other denominations to commune with us, &c. In my weakness and unworthiness I will reply. We are often told, that we lay too much stress upon baptism by making it an indispensible term of communion. I say we pay no greater respect to it, nor do we give it a higher place in our system, than the Lord has enjoined on the apostles, by their example, have warranted. And here I would ask, why should more stress be laid upon the Lord's Supper than upon Baptism? Were not both ordinances instituted by the same Lord, and do they not come to us with the same authority? We know that pedo baptists, are in the habit of calling our baptism nonessential, or a mere ceremony, but we refer to the new Testament. Taking the holy book as our only sufficient rule and guide of faith and practice, we have the highest authority for saying, we give baptism, which Christ appointed as the first gospel institution, as a test of his children's obedience to him only, and we shall not listen to the doctrines or commandments of men.

Again it is said by some that we cause a separation between the children of our Heavenly Father. God forbid, although we hesitate not to say, most explicitly, that baptism is a separating line, but it is one of the Lord's own making, and it is endeavored constantly both by preaching and example, to enlighten the minds of those who differ from us on the subject. They are often warned of their errors, the truth is held up to them and often pointed to the sure testimony. We are honest and sincere in our declarations. We wish the truth and the truth alone as it is in Jesus, everywhere to prevail. "If it is the Lord's Table, where have you a right to hinder those who wish to approach it?" It being the Lord's Table, is a sufficient answer to the right the Brethren have. Were it our table, we might cheerfully admit all our friends, and perhaps we would invite them to come with us. As it is the Lord's Table, we dare welcome to it only such as He invites. The disciples were baptized before Christ instituted and administered to them the Supper. John the Baptist was sent to prepare a people for the Lord, and the disciples were evidently among the number of those who justified God, and if so they must have been baptized with the baptism of John, otherwise they could not have been obedient hearers and doers of the words and imitators of the example of the Lord and Master. It is evident that there were none but Baptists that were baptized by John, with our Lord when He gave them the bread and cup and said "Do this in remembrance of me." For this cause I think we cannot approach the table with unbaptized, without acting in direct opposition to the precepts and examples of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

JOHN WHISTLER.

Dear Pilgrim:—The brethren of Clear Creek Church, or more familiarly known as the Dodgertown Congregation, began meeting June 10th under the labors of Bro. Davis Yonce, and continued day and night until Thursday, when the labors of the writer were brought into requisition, as Bro. Y. was much fatigued. Our meetings grew in interest and were continued until Sunday evening June 23rd, 18 having been baptized in the meantime, nearly all young. Bro. J. Umstad was with us and labored some in Word and doctrine.

The people were so interested in the cause, that they seemed not to feel the loss of rest occasioned by their attendance on the work of the Lord. It was plainly illustrated to me that the Lord's harvest hands may reap in mid Summer as well as in Winter, for I find His harvest is white all seasons of the year.

The Clear Creek brethren have built a new church-house, and will welcome all laborers in the spiritual work, and bid them God speed at any time. O. W. MILLER.

Warsaw, Ind.

LOGANSVILLE, PA.
July 13th, 1872.

Dear Brothers Brumbaugh: All seems to be well at present. Harvest is about over and the weather is very warm. Daily we had some good showers of rain which have made the ground in a favorable condition for growing crops. Corn &c., looks promising and bids fair for a good crop.

On last Sunday we had a good meeting, full attendance and respectful attention given to the word preached, which quickened the soul. There was a desire manifested to have the word preached more frequently, for it is the power of God unto salvation to all them that believeth. May God bless the efforts made to spread the truth among those who are yet without.

Enclosed find 40 cents for tracts, "Anxious Bench Religion Examined." (The Tracts are sent.)

CHRISTIAN NESS.

NANKIN, O., July 16, '72.

Dear Pilgrim: On the 15th of June I attended a Lovefeast at the residence of brother John Brillhart, in Crawford county, Ohio. There were two added by baptism, and had a pleasant meeting in all. On the 20th attended a Lovefeast near Mogadore, Summit county, where brother John Mishler is housekeeper and two more were added by baptism and one reclaimed. On the 29th, attended a Lovefeast in Richland county, where there were eight added to the church by baptism. There were a large number of persons convened on the stream who appeared quite attentive, and after prayer was made the eight were immersed in sixteen minutes, taking in the waiting to get each candidate ready, as five were females, and after the last one knelt in the water it was only three-fourths of a minute till after prayer was made. The order during the meeting was very good. We have had four additions by baptism since April. Brethren, be engaged in prayer.

W. SADLER.

CORRECTION.—In No. 24, Vol. 3, page 186, 2d column, 9 lines from the bottom should read: "Which parents, oh let us leave," &c. Also same column, 27 lines from top, read; "this habit," &c.

The Weekly Pilgrim.

JAMES CREEK, PA., July 23, 1872.

The Church and World.

Shall the Church subdue the world? It shall. So says the New York Observer, hear ye him.

"That sect which, in its symbols and ministries, most nearly exemplifies its founders faith and works will finally subdue the world to its feet."

It would be the height of our joy if we could accept such ideas. It would be so soul cheering to believe that the good Kingdom of Jesus is growing stronger and stronger, until finally it will throw off its last shackles and go forth to victory—unholy and ungodly sinners will succumb—and Jesus will reign as Supreme, but what are the signs of the times? A few years ago it was generally proclaimed that the Millenium was about to be ushered in, sectarian bitterness was being covered up with the mantle of charity and union was to be the pass word. But at the eventful period there was a little difficulty turned up between the North and South—the spirit of peace and the cords that bind brother to brother grew weaker and weaker until that spiritual relation which exists between the follower of Jesus was ignored and brethren went to the field of mortal combat and struck his brother dead. Ministers forsook the sanctuary, exchanged the spiritual sword for the carnal,and went forth, not as harbingers of the Prince of Peace, but as ravening wolves hungry for the prey. Oh, how different was the booming of canons, thundering of artillery, the clashing of arms and the dying groans of the wounded, to the picture given by the prophet Micah.

"And he shall judge among many people, and rebuke strong nations afar off; and they shall beat their swords into ploughshare, and their spears into pruning hooks; nation shall not lift up a sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more."

But shall the Church subdue the world? Not yet a while, that Church which is to lead off in this great work has not yet been found. It is still the "Hidden Church" and will remain so until revealed by the coming and power of King Emanuel and that will be when it becomes too in few number to preserve the world, like Noah among the antideluvians and Lot among the Sodomites. "Therefore take heed to yourselves, lest at any time your hearts be overcharged with surfeiting and drunkenness and cares of this life, and so that the day comes upon you unawares, for as a snare shall it come on all of them that dwell on the face of the whole earth."

LIFE INSURANCE.

The Congregationalist says that the Dunkers, or German Baptists have been discussing, in one of their conventions, the grave question, "What shall be done with a brother who gets his life insured, and insists there is no wrong in it, and refuses to withdraw his policy?" We fear the life insurance agents are not so faithful in their work of public enlightenment among the Dunkers as they are—in most places.

The above is,a clip from the Christian Observer, and as there are fears expressed that agents have not done their duty, we would say; "calm your fears brother Observer, we have been sufficiently bored." In Fire Insurance Companies we pay a certain amount against the risk of our buildings burning. If we meet with no loss we do not expect to have our money refunded, but that goes towards liquidating those who are unfortunate, but in Life Insurance it is all pay and no loss. Numerous agents realize from $800 to $2,000 per year, officers that conduct the business get large salaries, the printing of circulars &c., costs an immense amount of money, those who take out policies and die the next day, or soon after, their heirs receive the full amount of the policy, perhaps pay $60 or $80 and receive from $3,000 to $4,000, and all policy holders assured that, in the end, they will receive the principal with interest. Now if any of those who think we are still unenlightened in regard to this very charitable institution, will inform us where all the money comes from to pay these officers, agents and policies without a loss to any, we will cheerfully withdraw our objections. But, says the obliging agent; "don't you know that fifty per cent. pay up their policies for a time and then drop them?" Most certainly we know it, and was it not for that nice point, where would the Life Insurance Companies be to-day? The basis from which the funds are expected is wrong, therefore the whole institution is of doubtful propriety, and as we prefer not to be of the fifty per cent. who drop their policies, nor to accept of ill-gotten wealth, we think it best to make no such investoients until we receive more light on the subject.

PERSONAL.

J. H. Ebie—Your letter was received and the money right. Thank you.

D. B. Tebter.—You are right. $6.60 were received. It was a mistake in the proof.

A. L. Bowman.—The money is all right and the Pilgrim sent. The Hymnbooks are sent. Hope you will receive them this time.

Jonathan Stump. You must be mistaken, Bro. Calvert ordered yours to Aboite, and Samuel Stump's to Roanoak, so it stands on his list, and so we have it booked. Is that not right?

Nancy Schrantz. — Your first letter, with money, was received and name booked but instead of writing it Schrantz it was written Swartz and we suppose, for that rerson, you did not receive your paper. They are, undoubtedly at the office. Call for them.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Tidings from the different churches are cheering. Notwithstanding the busy season, the brethren seem to be alive to their duty and many souls are reported as having returned to Christ.

Eld. Flory's tracts are doing a good work and orders are still coming in briskly. Some of our brethren are using them advantageously in distributing them to such as they think are honest and are in need of information on this subject.

The weather during the last week has been exceedingly hot by spells, but was interspersed by fine and cooling showers of rain. Berries of all kinds are unusually plenty, corn is growing finely, and fruit prospects were never better.

The total mortality in New York for the week ending July the 6th was 1,569. This was never equaled before in that city and the week is said to be the hottest ever known, its temperature being 1.26 deg., higher than that of the death week of 1866.

The trial of stokes of New York for the murder of Fisk is now over, but by a well arranged sham, the jury did not agree, and another trial will be the result. New York felt greatly relieved on the death of Fisk, and when Stokes gets the benefit of a just law, another curse will be removed from its midst.

Our readers generally express themselves highly pleased with the Pilgrim. It does us good to know that our labors are appreciated, and we feel especially grateful to our contributors who have given us such timely aid, just when we most stood in need of it. We ask a careful reading of the "Great Convention" and "Are You on Duty?" of this week.

The Herald of Truth for July says in regard to the Menonites emigrating to this country: "From what we have learned from a private correspondence from a brother residing in Berdiansk, we know that the matter of emigrating has been considerably spoken of and there is a probability that a deputation may visit this country during the present season, and it is also likely that some of them will emigrate before a great while, but as to their emigrating to this country in a body is doubtful."

The great presidential campaign is about commencing, the Radical Republicans being represented by Grant and Wilson, and the Liberal Republicans and Democrats by Greely and Brown. We hope that the Brotherhood will, as much as possible, stand aloof from the political spirit that is now agitating the United States, it is beneath our calling. There are principles at stake and as we cannot help but exert some influence, let that be the result of principle and not of party spirit.

The Heat in India.—It is said by the Times of India that although the heat in Bombay has not been excessive, it has been terrible in the northwest provinces. Cases of sunstroke have been very frequent; no European can venture out of doors after 9 in the morning; and indoors, life is almost insupportable. Birds and small animals take refuge from the heat inside the houses, and "crows have actually been known to drop off the trees from sheer exhaustion." It is satisfactory to learn that, notwithstanding the great heat, cholera has been neither so wide spread nor so fatal as in previous years. Small-pox has, however, committed great ravages, and deunge fever, which the Times of India describes as a most excruciatingly painful disease, has been prevalent throughout India and British Burmah.

Religion of the Candidates.—President Grant is not a member of any church but regularly attends the Metropolitan Methodist Episcopal Church in Washington, of which his wife is a member in full communion. Henry Wilson, candidate for Vice-Presidency, is a communicant on profession of his faith in Christ, in the Orthodox Congregational Church. Horace Greeley is a member of the Univesalist Church under the pastoral care of Rev. Dr. Chapin, in New York. Hon. Gratz Brown, the Liberal Vice-Presidential candidate, is a member of the First Presbyterian Church, St. Louis, the Rev. Charles A. Dickey, formerly of Allegheny Pa., pastor.

MARRIED.

CLOUSE—BRALLIER.—By the undersigned at his residence in New Enterprise, Bedford Co., Pa., July 4th, 1872, Philip M. Clouse to Ellen Brallier, all of Bedford Co., Pa. S. H. Moore.

MONEY LIST.

Jacob Hollinger	$1.50
A. J. Correll	.75
J. M. Wells	5.05
J. Calvin Bright	.85
Henry Good	1.00
D. F. Good	5.00
David Engel	4.00
A. L. Bowman	.75
Jonas Graybill	1.25
Isreal M. Bennett	1.25
E. Slifer	1.00
Beckie F. Garman	.85
A. Johnson	1.25
T. S. Johnson	1.25
Joseph Mohler	1.30
J. H. Ebie	1.25

NAMES OF THE STATES.

A correspondent having inquired why the States are called by their present names, and what are their derivation and meaning, an exchange answers as follows:

Maine—So called from the province of Maine, in France, in compliment to Queen Henrietta, of England, who it has been said, owned that province. This is the commonly received opinion.

New Hampshire—Named by John Mason, in 1639 (who with another obtained the grant from the crown), from Hampshire County, in England. The former name of the domain was Laconia.

Vermont—From the French verh "mont," or green mountain, indicative of the mountainous nature of the State. The name was first officially recognized January 16, 1777.

Massachusetts—Indian name signifying "the country about the great hills.

Rhode Island—This name was adopted in 1644, from the Island of Rhodes, in the Mediterranean, because of its resemblance to that island.

Connecticut—This is the English orthography of the Indian word Quon-oh-ta-cut signifies "the long river."

New York—Named by the Duke of York under color of the title gven him by the English crown in 1664.

New Jersey—So called in honor of Sir George Carteret, who was Governor of the Island of Jersey, in the British Channel.

Pennsylvania—From William Penn, the founder of the colony, meaning "Penn's Woods."

Delaware—In honor of Thomas West, Lord de-la-Ware, who visited the bay, and died there in 1610.

Marylaud—After Henrietta Maria, Queen of Charles 1., of England.

Virginia—So called in honor of Queen Elizabeth, the "vigin Queen," in whose reign Sir Walter Raleigh made the first attempt to colonize that region.

North and South Carolina, were originally in one tract, called, "Carolina," after Charles IX., of France in 1504. Subsequently, in 1665, the name was altered to Carolina.

Georgia—So called in honor of George II., of England, who established a colony in that reign in 1732.

Florida—Ponce de Leon, who discovered this portion of North America in 1512, named it Floriday in commemoration of the day he landed there, which was the Pasques de Flores of the Spaniards, or "Feast of Flowers," otherwise known as Easter Sunday.

Alabama—Formerly a portion of Mississippi Territory, admitted into the Union as a State in 1819. The name is of Indian origin signifying, "Here we rest."

Mississippi—Formerly a portion of the province of Louisiana. So named in 1800 from the great river on the western line. The term is of Indian origin, meaning "long river."

Louisiana—From Louis XIV., of France, who for some time prior to 1763 owned the territory.

Arkansas—From "Kansas," the Indian word for "smoky water," with the French prefix, "are," bow.

Tennessee—Indian for "the river of the big bend," i. e., the Mississippi, which is its western boundary.

Kentucky—Indian for "at the head of the river."

Ohio—From the Indian, meaning "beautiful." Previously applied to the river which traverses a greater part of its borders.

Michigan — Previously applied to the lake, the Indian name for a fish-weir. So called from the fancied resemblance of the lake to a fish-trap.

Indiana — So called in 1802 from the American Indians.

Illinois—From the Indian "illini," men, and the French suffix "ois," together signifying "tribe of men."

Wisconsin — Indian term for a "wild rushing channel."

Missouri—Named in 1821 from the great branch of the Mississippi which flows thro' it. Indian term, meaning "muddy."

Iowa—From the Indian, signifying "the drowsy ones."

Minnesota—Indian for "cloudy water,"

California—The name given by Cortes, the discoverer of that region. He probably obtained it from an old Spanish romance; in which an imaginary island of that name is described as abounding in gold.

Oregon—According to some, from the Indian oregon, "river of the west." Others consider it derived from the Spanish "oregano," wild majoram, which grows abundantly on the Pacific coast.

THE MARKETS.

MARTINSBURG MARKETS.

Flour	$9.50
Wheat	1.90
Rye	.90
Corn	.90
Oats	.50
Clover Seed	6.00

PRODUCE MARKETS.

Butter	.12½
Eggs	.15
Lard	.10
Tallow	.10
Soap	.08

GOOD BOOKS.

A large number of our patrons are receiving our books as noticed below, as premiums, and express themselves highly pleased with them. Others who are not agents, have enquired whether we keep them for sale. We have now made arrangements with Mr. Wells to furnish any of their publications post paid at publishers prices. Orders for books must be accompanied with the cash, and plain directions for sending them.

Conversion of St. Paul. By George Jarvis Geer, D. D. 12mo. One edition, $1. Plain edition, 75 cents.

Footprints of Life; or, Faith and Nature Reconciled.—A Poem in three parts. The Body. The Soul. The Deity. By Philip Harvey, M. D. $1.25.

Fruit Culture for the Million. A Hand book. being a Guide to the Cultivation and Management of Fruit Trees. Descriptions of the Best Varieties, and How to Propagate them. illustrated $1.00.

Hand-book for Home Improvement: comprising "How to Write," "How to Talk," How to Behave," and "How to do Business," in one vol. 2.25.

How to Live; Saving and Wasting, or Domestic Economy. By Soloo Robinson. $1.50.

Hopes and Helps for the Young of both sexes, Relating to the Formation of Character. Choice of Avocation, Health, Conversation, Cultivation of Intellect, Moral Sentiments, Social Affection Courtship and Marriage. By Rev. G. S. Weaver. Muslin, $1.50.

Life at Home; or, The Family and its Members. Husbands, Wives, Parents, Children, Brothers, Sisters, Employers and Employed, etc. By Rev. William Aikman, D. D. A work which should be found in every family. $1.50. Extra gilt, $2.00.

Man and Woman: Considered in their Relations to each Other and to the World. By Henry C. Pedder. 12mo, Fancy cloth. Price $1.00.

Man, in Genesis and in Geology; or, the Biblical Account of Man's Creation, tested by Scientific Theories of his Origin and Antiquity. By Joseph P. Thompson, D. D., LL.D. One vol. 12mo, $1.00.

Oratory—Sacred and Secular; or, the Extemporaneous Speaker. Including Chairman's Guide for conducting Public Meetings according to the best Parliamentary forms. By Wm. Pittenger. $1.50.

The Emphatic, Diaglott; or The New Testament in Greek and English. Containing the Original Greek Text of the New Testament, with an Interlineary Word for-word English Translation. A Work for Students in Theology, and S. S. Teachers. By Benamin Wilson. Price, $1.00; extra fine binding, $5.00.

Water's Works for the Young. Comprising "Hopes and Helps for the Young of both Sexes," "Aids and Aims for Girls and Young Women," "Ways of Life; or, the Right Way and the Wrong Way," $3

The Right Word in the Right Place. A New Pocket Dictionary and Reference Book. Embracing Synonyms, Technical Terms, Abbreviations, Foreign Phrases, Writing for the Press, Punctuation, Proof-Reading, and other Valuable Information. Cloth, 75cts.

Educational.

The second year of Pleasant Hill College, Warsaw, Ind., will begin Sept. 4th, 1872, in which a thoroughly practical education will be given in Academic and Collegiate studies. Brethren's children are expected to attend our weekly religious meetings. Ladies and gentlemen admitted on equal footing.

O. W. MILLER, President.
July 9-tf. Warsaw, Ind.

Menno Simon's COMPLETE WORKS.

In English, translated from the original Dutch or Holland, giving the whole of the great Reformers writings on the subject of Baptism. Price in full sheep $4.50; by mail $5.14.

Address, JOHN F. FUNK & BRO.

New Hymn Books, English.

TURKEY MOROCCO

One copy,	post-paid,	$1 00
Per Dozen,		11 25

PLAIN ARABESQUE.

One Copy,	post-paid,	75
Per Dozen,	"	8 50

PLAIN SHEEP.

One Copy,	post-paid,	75
Per Dozen,	"	8 50

Ger'n & English, Plain Sheep.

One Copy	post-paid	$ 1 00
Per Dozen		11 25
Arabesque plain,		1.00
Turkey morocco,		$ 1.25.
Single German	post-paid,	50
Per Dozen,		5 50

HUNTINGDON & BROAD TOP RAIL ROAD

Summer Arrangement.

On and after Tuesday, June 4, 1872, Passenger trains will arrive and depart as follows:

Trains from Huntingdon South. — Trains from Bedford moving North.

MAIL. A. M.	ACCOM P. M.	STATIONS.	MAIL. P. M.	ACCOM A. M.
leS 20	LE6 00	Huntingdon,	AR5 25	AR9 10
8 28	6 06	Long Siding	5 17	9 00
8 45	6 19	McConnelstown	5 04	8 45
8 51	6 25	Pleasant Grove	4 58	8 39
9 05	6 37	Marklesburg	4 45	8 27
9 20	6 51	Coffee Run	4 33	8 11
9 27	6 58	Rough & Ready	4 26	8 40
9 39	7 10	Cove	4 12	7 52
9 43	7 15	Fishers Summit	4 08	7 48
10 03	7 35	Saxton	3 48	le 7 53
10 10	7 53			ar 7 46
10 27	8 10	Riddlesburg	3 30	6 30
10 34	8 17	Hopewell	3 22	6 12
10 51	8 35	Piper's Run	3 06	6 00
11 10	8 55	Tatesville	2 48	6 56
11 22	9 08	Bloody Run	2 33	6 50
11 26	9 12	Mount Dallas	2 29	5 46
11 32	9 19	Ashcom's Mills	2 22	5 42
11 36	9 23	Lutzville	2 18	5 36
11 40	9 27	Hartley's Mills	2 14	5
11 46	9 34	Jamesons	2 07	5
r11 22	ar9 40	Bedford	LE2 00	LE5 30

JOHN M'KILLIPS, Supt

SHOUP'S RUN BRANCH.

LE10 15	LE7 40	Saxton.	AR3 40	AR7 20
10 30	7 55	Coalmont.	3 25	7 05
10 35	8 00	Crawford.	3 20	7 00
AR10 45	AR8 10	Dudley	LE3 10	LE6 50

Bro'd Top City from Dudley 2 miles by stage.

Time of Penna. R. R. Trains at Huntingdon.

EASTWARD.			WESTWARD.
Hb'g Ac.	9 24	A. M	Cin. Ex.	2 19	A. M.
Mail	3 30	P. M	Pe'f Ex.	7 45	"
Cin. Ex.	6 55	"	Mail	5 40	P. M.
Phil. Ex	11 15	"	W. Pass.	11 52	A. M.

TRACTS.

"ANXIOUS BENCH RELIGION EXAMINIED," by Elder J. S. Flory, is a Tract now ready for distribution, of which the following is a brief synopsis of the contents: A short and pointed address to the reader. The motive that prompted him to write, and his responsibilities as a minister; The peculiarities attending this type of religion; The feelings there experienced, not imaginary but real, The key that unlocks the wonderful mystery; It is not the workings of God after the order and plan of salvation; Man's endowment, his imitative principle—emanated from God; Spiritual influences and intercourse; Relation existing between man and God, and man and man; The fraternal bond and our natural affinities established by the "so called" sciences of Electro Biology; Mesmerism and Psychology or science of the soul, also, "Spiritualism" "Spiritual Rappings," &c. The causes by which the feelings are excited; Sympathy of the nervous system, and how that momentary feeling of joy is brought about, called, "Experimental Religion; Similar feelings may be brought about when there are no religious pretensions; Our reasons why we think this modus operandi of getting religion is not according to the Gospel, and then concludes by pointing out that form of doctrine as taught by Jesus Christ, and recorded by His faithful witness.

These tracts will be sent to all post paid, on the following terms: Two copies, 10 cts, 10 copies 40 cents, 25 copies 70 conts, 50 copies $1.00, 100 copies $1.50.

1870 1872

DR. FAHRNEY'S Blood Cleanser or Panacea.

A tonic and purge, for Blood Diseases. Great reputation. Many testimonials. Many ministering brethren use and recommend it. Ask or send for the "Health Messenger." Use only the "Panacea" prepared at Chicago, Ills., and by

Dr. P. Fahrney's Brothers & Co.,
Mar. 29-pd. Waynesboro, Franklin Co., Pa.

Italian Queen Bees,

FOR SALE.

Purity and safe arrival guaranteed. Sent post paid, at $2.25 each.

Address,
ISAAC HEDDING,
Lewistown, Box 160,
Jun. 24-tf. Mifflintown Co., Pa.

Trine Immersion.

A discussion on Trine Immersion, by letter between Elder B. F. Moomaw and Dr J. J. Jackson, to which is annexed a Treatise on the Lord's Supper, and on the necessity, character and evidences of the new birth, also a dialogue on the doctrine of non-resistance, by Elder B. F. Moomaw. Single copy 50 cents.

THE PILGRIM,

Published by J. B. Brumbaugh, & Co.

Edited by H. B. & Geo. Brumbaugh.

CORRESPONDING EDITORS.

D. P. Sayler, Double Pipe Creek, Md.

Leonard Furry, New Enterprise, Pa.

The Pilgrim is a Christian Periodical, devoted to religion and moral reform. It will advocate in the spirit of love and liberty, the principles of true Christianity, labor for the promotion of peace among the people of God, for the encouragement of the saints and for the conversion of sinners, avoiding those things which tend toward disunion or sectional feelings.

TERMS.

Single copy, one year,	$1.25.
Book paper, " "	1.50.
Eleven copies, [eleventh for Agt.]	$12.50.

Any number above that at the same rate,

Address.

H. B. BRUMBAUGH.
James Creek,
Huntingdon county Pa.

Arkin Pilgrim.

"REMOVE NOT THE ANCIENT LANDMARKS WHICH OUR FATHERS HAVE SET."

VOL. 3. JAMES CREEK, PENNSYLVANIA, JULY 30, 1872. NO. 31

POETRY

THE OLD CHURCH YARD.

Oh come with me to the old church yard,
I well know the path through the soft green sward.
Friends slumber there we want to regard.
We'll trace out their names in the old church yard.

Oh mourn not for them, their grief is o'er,
Weep not for them, they weep no more;
For deep is their sleep, though cold and hard,
Their pillows may be in the old church yard.

I know it seems vain when friends depart
To breathe kind words to the broken heart,
I know that the joy of life seems marred
When we follow our friends to the old church yard.

But were I at rest beneath you tree,
Why should you weep dear friends for me?
I'm way-worn and sad, O why then retard
The rest I seek in the old church yard?

Our friends linger there in the sweetest repose,
Released from the world's sad bereavement and woes.
And who would not rest with the friends they regard,
In quiet sleep in the old church yard.

We'll rest in the hope of that bright day
When beauty shall spring from the prison of clay,
When Gabriel's voice and the trumpet of the Lord,
Shall awaken the dead in the old church yard.

Oh weep not for me, I am arisen to go
To that heaven of rest where tears never flow.
I fear not to enter that dark lonely ward,
For soon shall I rise from the old church yard.

Yes, soon shall I join that heavenly land
Of glorified souls at my Savior's right hand,
Forever to dwell in bright mansions prepared
For the saints who shall rise from the old church yard.

—Selected.

ORIGINAL ESSAYS.

MAN AND HIS CREATOR.

BY BROTHER RIDGELY.

The subject, I know, is a deep one, and were it not for the light thrown upon it by the Holy Scriptures theologians and scientists might search in vain for a foundation upon which to rear their mighty structures of learning and fanaticism; for it can be nothing but fanaticism, if we give men credit for honesty of expression, that would dare say that man, "the noblest of all," could, by any possible means of transmigration, be but a higher order of animals. It is true that the born maniac knows but little more than what a sort of dumb instinct would seem to teach, and thus we might try to trace an analogy to the brute, but when we come across the human being as he is, and, by right of God's power, ought to be, we can find no semblance to the animal which bows beneath his will, and winces at, and cowers from the expression of his eye.

Darwin elucidates his theory with a depth and penetration worthy of a better cause, and as we read his mighty words we are almost inclined to doubt man's divine origin, and believe him but the descendant from the earlier order of animals, until he comes to the mind, its capacity, strength, power; and then he fails, miserably fails, to establish a likeness here, there is nothing but a mere mockery, a weak, driveling effort to follow the motions of his physically weak, but mentally all-powerful master. Can this being who towers, in God's own image, so majestically above all the creations of nature around him, who shows in the glance of his eye the "monarch of all he surveys," be the descendant of brutes? and still further, of worms? Involuntarily, and with a shudder, we answer, "No!" Created proudly erect, he has never stooped, but when governed by a wicked will he has been driven to deeds of evil which have caused him to shun the eye of his fellow-man, and fear the power of his Creator.

How beautifully simple, and yet how grand, how sublime, the account we have from Holy Writ. "In six days God created heaven and earth, the sea and all that dwell therein." And His last day's work was the crowning glory of them all, for upon that day He made man, and what is more, made him in His own image, gave him a soul, a mind, a brain capable of working out the great mysteries of life, and of weaving threads of power that have held the world in subjection, and now have almost annihilated space. And this Creator, the One above all and over all, He who has brought forth all these lovely things from chaos, how dare man in his puny insignificance utter a doubt of his achievements, much less deny His existence. "But," says the philosopher, "the world was at first but a molten mass, and in its gyrations through space became solid, and, through chemical disintegration, peopled itself with animal beings, and trees, and flowers, and shrubs, and these, gradually becoming more and more perfect as ages elapsed, at length became man, at present, the highest order of beings." We still have unexplained the great beginning, the origin of all things. From whence sprang the nucleus, around which myriads of worlds are formed. Look forth upon the canopy of heaven on a clear night, and tell us from whence came those brilliant stars that float around us in such illimitable numbers, apparently crowding each other from the way, and each vieing with the other in beauty as they traverse the azure vault. Oh! philosopher, if you attempt to reach the great beginning of all things through your science, astute as you may be, you must utterly fail long ere the desired goal is gained. You may cast your mind back through geological formation, for millions of years, and trace the various species and orders of animals that have inhabited the earth, centuries before history described their existence, and still you are as far from arriving at a satisfactory solution of the problem as when you first began. You must go to the great "I AM" for the formation of all. You must believe that God created them all, and not that they sprang spontaneously, through a series of transformations, from a molten mass. Thus only does the idea of our existence cease to be a problem. Thus only is the great question of nature settled.

And now, man, can you set your face against your Creator? Can you declare any of the works of His hand imperfect? Behold He has examined them all, and pronounced them good. He gave them to you as your inheritance, together with the power to use them, for, although man is almost the weakest of them all, through the almost miraculous power of the human brain, he assumes the reins of government, and conquers all, until the fiercest, even the lion, the "king of the forest," becomes as quiet as the lamb beneath his firm and fearless sway. Thus the soul of man, the great distinctive feature of the human being as compared with the brute, giving strength and power to the brain, declares that the greater cannot descend from the inferior.

We should, then, try to preserve this power, and strengthen it day by day by treading in the footsteps of our Creator. At times the way may be rugged and the path steep, but we have a promised light to our feet, if we do but seek it, and by placing implicit faith in Him in whose footsteps we are walking, we need fear no evil, but shall eventually see our Creator where men shall praise Him forever.

NO SUCCESS WITHOUT LOVE.

Do not think that conscientiousness and hard study are enough to make you a workman that needeth not to be ashamed.

Conscientiousness you must have, or you will be led astray by self-love, by the glitter of superficial success, by desire to please men rather than God.

Hard study, too, is indispensible, for the roots of God's truth lie deep, and the soul must sweat in the digging of them. A gift to teach is also necessary, for it is God's commission whereby he ordains you, and without which your work is presumptuous and unblessed.

But you may have all these and fail. Without love it is impossible to please God. Without love conscientiousness is unfruitful, or bears only briers of disappointment and thorns of impatience. Without love hard study becomes a weariness to the flesh, a burden to the spirit, and the gift to teach be wasted, as the life of some trees is wasted upon "nothing but leaves."

THE GREAT CONVENTION.

Continued.

Destructiveness. So far I have been silent in this great debate, not because I am uninterested, but because I preferred to hear the expression of the prominent members of this meeting first. With none can I so fully coincide as the expressed views of my friend and yoke-fellow who last spoke, but while he is indifferent as to whom shall be king, to me it is a matter of the greatest importance, in fact, my all depends upon it. I am as much out of my element here as a fish on dry land, or the beasts that are now playing around us, in the midst of the sea. I must destroy or be destroyed, but what can I do here? All is peace and harmony just as if my brother, who last spoke, and I, had never been created. Never shall I submit to live thus. My voice shall be for rebellion and open war let come what will.—Talk about dying; has not satan just told us that they were tried in the very same way that we are and yet he died not in rebellion, but to-day stands before us as a mighty king? What if he was defeated in the first attempt? If defeated, not conquered but comes forth to-day as a victor with renewed strength and courage from the greatest battle that was ever fought. If such are his first achievements in an engagement immatured, who can tell what the next may be with the important skill and knowledge obtained and the additional aid of this host, some of whom are impatiently awaiting a favorable decision? Cast away your silly forebodings and let us have that knowledge which the fruit of this forbidden tree is designed to give,and if the penalty is intended, with the knowledge thus obtained and our combined power, we can wave the results and successfully compete with the God who made us. The decisive moment has come and let us cast our vote on the side of wisdom and independence.

Hope. While some rejoice, others weep. This meeting is one that omens much ill to our Kingdom and has filled my soul with fear. Well would it have been for us had we never heard of satan or this meeting never had been called. What more should we desire than we now enjoy? How pleasantly has our time passed away, and how peaceable has our lovely Kingdom been? The great God and only true King who created this paradise and filled it with all these pleasant things, certainly had no other object in view than our future happiness, and I feel assured that beyond this prohibition is in store for us some great good if we only abide our time and betray not the trust which has been given to our care. Should we not show our allegiance to the one who has done so much for us? When we once prove our obedience by being firm in our loyalty to him, then it is that he will, in his own good time, show us why he has placed this test of allegiance before us, and then it is that we will be entrusted with such knowledge that would not now be safe for us to know. In case of disobedience, there is nothing for us to expect but his displeasure, and what that is none of us can now comprehend, but it certainly will be much greater than all the good a vanquished foe can heap upon us. My very soul spurns the fair promises and unholy schemes of this pretended King, and sad will be the consequences of that union which will make us and the subjects of his kingdom one, to those of us who seek our pleasures in those things which are intended to elevate us and bring us in closer proximity to our great King who has made us. Then, let us not, in view of all the good received, reach forth the impious hand and pluck an intended blessing and thus convert it into a present curse. My decision is never, no never.

Approbativeness. Complete happiness and solid pleasures consists in great acts and daring achievements, nothing ventured nothing won. Our present joys are limited and consists only in a repetition of events which by nature do not change, hence there is no progression, nothing to be lost nor nothing to be won. The idea of such monotonous enjoyments are not at all in harmony with my views of the object of life. This kind of existence, although pleasant and complete enough for some, is entirely too tame for spirits like we. What have we accomplished since here? What our achievements and where, our condition bettered? Can it be expected that such enjoyment will endure? It might, could we be willing in such ignorance to remain, but how can we, when knowledge, the thing that we are thirsting for, is ever set before us? Our King has said that all he made was good, so we must conclude that the fruit of this forbidden tree is also good, and if good, why all this contending; why not eat it at once?

Vitativeness. I could fully coincide with my brother who last spoke was it not for that dreaded sentence, "Thou shalt surely die." The thought of dying to me is dreadful. Give me the assurance that to die, if die we must,is not to be annihilated or utterly destroyed, and I shall go with you with the greatest of pleasure.

Satan. By the permission of this meeting, I shall be happy to explain.

Alimentiveness. We shall be pleased to hear you—proceed.

Satan. I think I am fully competent to answer this question, as experience is the best of teachers, and thus have I learned. To die in this sense means to pass from one state to another. This change we underwent. Formerly we dwelt in heaven, as I before informed you, but now we dwell there no more, neither would we had we the opportunity, but you see that we still exist. This is the most that it can mean, and I feel assured that in your case it will mean much less. This place is far from heaven, the abode of your present King, and when he learns that your eyes have been opened by the virtue of this tree and that my force has also found this place, rather than have another rebellion, he will quietly withdraw and leave us to reign unmolested. So let me say once more to one and all, there is nothing to fear, and as our meeting has been both interesting and lengthy, it should be remembered that the time has arrived that a decision should be made. With pleasure I have learned the general expression of the Convention and feel confident that the result will be a glorious victory.

Alimentiveness. Already the great orb of light is sinking in the west and the time is approaching that our King comes down to see how we do. Before that, this decision must be made and the meeting closed, and I now call for a vote. All that are in favor of eating of this fruit and accepting satan as our King will now arise to their feet.

A large majority arises and with thunderous applause accepts the new King.

The fruit of the tree of knowledge of good and evil is eaten, the other Kingdom comes and also partakes. Satan satiated with revenge now takes his leave and the fatal result flashes in upon the unfortunate Kingdoms. The most daring are cowed down into nothingness, and with abject fear they await the arrival of their King. Their eyes are now opened and they see the good and the evil. The good to them, through disobedience, is lost and the evil is come upon them—their valor all gone and their new and boasting King deserted, they would gladly evade the approaching visit which formerly was their greatest joy. They hear the stately steppings of the great King and, for fear, seek shelter to hide from his presence, but the call is: "Come forth." Deeply humiliated and conscious of their nakedness, they approach and hear the result, which was as follows: Through disobedience you have become as one of us knowing both good and evil and lest you now in your fallen condition reach forth your hand and partake of the tree of life and live forever, thou shalt be driven forth from this sacred place and it shall be forever closed to you. Because thou hast given heed to satan, he shall have the power over you and everything around and about you shall be blighted with a curse, even the creation around you, which before was tame and peaceable, shall now become fearful of you and shall avoid your presence, the earth instead of bringing forth its pleasant herbs, shall give birth to thorns and and thistles, thy strength wane, thy days fail and thy body return to the dust from whence it was taken.

Thus ended the "great convention," thus we fell and thus are we born into the world outside of the Covenant, strangers and aliens to the commonwealth of God unless readopted thro' the intervention of His immaculate Son, of which I may make the subject of another essay under the caption of "An Inquiry after Jesus." Hoping that these thoughts, though given in a rambling way, may not be altogether uninteresting, I remain kindly yours. BLASTUS.

EPISTOLARY.

LETTER TO THE YOUNG DISCIPLES AT BUSH CREEK, AND LINGANORE, MD.

It is now nearly five months since we had the pleasure of having an intercourse with many of you. A time that many of you will long remember,-and that has given me also occasion to have pleasant remembrances of the time when we met together and talked of those holy things which Heaven furnished for salvation and eternal life. Then many hearts were tendered by the gentle influence of the spirit of God, to accept the terms of reconciliation and with willing minds and humble hearts enlisted under the blood stained banner of Jesus.—Not only peace and joy to the penitent, but there was joy in the church; joy in the households; joy in the hearts of fathers and mothers, brothers and sisters, husbands and wives, and we hope joy in Heaven, because the dead were made alive, and the lost found. Since then others have been added to the number, and employed with you in the labors of the vineyard, and by this time you all have, we trust, a little experience at least, and a taste af the "good gifts of God, and the power of the world to come." This experience and knowledge, through faith in Jesus, we hope has been so congenial in its divine nature to you, that its privileges and church, the cause and its nature has become so near and dear to you; that you are getting strong, even of the strength of men and women in Christ Jesus. It is about your faithfulness and prosperity that I am concerned. With the Gospel and the church I would have you strong, steadfast, immovable, always abounding in the word and work of the Lord. And again there is no doubt but that you all have had your trials, temptations to sin, and weakness of faith, but the Scriptures tell us that if we resist sin and temptations, by the help of the Lord we shall "overcome," and shall have a "new name," "a white garment," a place in Heaven, a home with Jesus. We are as pilgrims and strangers here journeying to another country, a home in Heaven, our Father's house. The more faithful we are, the more surely we near the happy place and we can joyfully sing:

"Nearer my God to thee,
Nearer to thee;
E'en though it be a cross,
That raiseth me."

Sometimes the journey is a long one; to some others shorter. Some of us must labor and toil a long time in life before we get the reward and crown of eternal life, and meet the happy brotherhood in Heaven. With others, even as our dear little brother, who set out with you, on the journey last Winter, one of your little band, has gone over. We trust, angel guides led the way of the dear one to the happy holy place,—hope his soul is lisping the anthems of eternal praise. The melody of echo in the dome of the eternal, is angels joy and saints delight. He has gone before, absent from the body, but present with the Lord. He had a deep concern for you in his departing moments; his prayer being that you might be faithful to Christ. Don't forget it, that you may again meet your departed brother where parting will be no more. Labor on, the crown is only promised at the end of the journey; read the Scriptures carefully and prayerfully, "add to your faith virtue, knowledge, temperance, patience, kindness, brotherly love and charity." Add a little here and a little there, but only that that will make wise unto salvation. Love the Brotherhood; love all men; love the Elder who has oversight over you; give them double honor for their work's sake. Honor fathers and mothers, love brothers and sisters, and particularly keep yourselves unspotted from the world. Be not highminded or proud, but of an humble heart, and a contrite spirit, which is well pleasing in His sight, who then will preserve you blameless to the day of redemption, "and no man will be able to pluck you out of the Father's hands."

I have many more things to write but time and space forbids, hoping again to hear from you soon by the elder brethren, who have reported good concerning you, or perhaps may come to you some time again.

Fare ye well.

D. F. Good.

EXPLANATION.

From the Visitor by request.

Having been called on, both personally and by correspondence, for an explanation of an insinuation which appeared in an article in the Christian Family Companion, some time since, over the signature of D. B. Klepper, entitled "The nonpardon doctrine repudiated." In that article, after vainly attempting to extenuate his own guilt in the sin of fornication, he "wonders how I can reconcile my present views with my own case—as though I also am guilty of the same. This insinuation of his against me has excited some curiosity in the minds of the Brethren who are not personally acquainted with me, and hence the necessity of the following Explanation:

It is a fact which is well known to a large majority of the members of the Church in this country, that my wife was married to a man before she was married to me. The result of that marriage is also well known to most members of the Church, from the fact that the case was carefully examined into by the Church at the time of our reception; and hence I would just state that Brother D. B Klepper was a minister in charge at the time, and I believe baptized us both. But not only Brother Klepper but the whole Church who had cognizance of the case were perfectly satisfied; and also D. P. Sayler, who was traveling in our county at the time, had cognizance of the case; therefore, this explanation is not necessary to satisfy them. But there are many dear Brethren and Sisters who are living remote from here who know nothing of the facts in the case, and who, having read the article in the Companion in which Bro. Clepper makes the insinuation alluded to, are anxious to know the cause. The facts in the case are briefly as follows:

My wife's father (David Thomas) was a member of the Church of the Brethren, and emigrated to this country from Pennsylvania, locating in Washington county, Tennessee. By industry and frugality he acquired a very comfortable living, and reared a very respectable family.

When my wife (Lavina) was about sixteen years old, she formed an acquaintance with and married a man who was an almost entire stranger to her. After the marriage he continued to live with her at her father's for some time, probably ten or twelve months, until a young woman in the country had an illegitimate child by him, when he took her and left the country. Lavina got a divorce from him after he had run away with, and probably married the other woman, (for it was afterwards ascertained that they were married). He then, with the other woman, went west, and Lavina knew no more of him; so that whether he was dead or not she did not know; but he was evidently the same as dead to her, having joined himself to a harlot, and "two, saith the Scriptures, shall be one flesh." "Know ye not," says the apostle, "that he that is joined to a harlot is one flesh"; so that really he was spiritually dead to her whether he was literally dead or not.

Nine or ten years after this occurrence, I became acquainted with Lavina and married her, she not knowing of him who had thus shamefully treated her for about ten years.

We have been married and living together for about twenty-two years, during all of which time I have never heard of the man, and neither has my wife to my knowledge. In the immediate neighborhood of where all these events had occurred, and with which circumstances most of the old Brethren were familiar, my father-in-law being a member of the Church, and Lavina being reared up in the bosom of the Church, and D. B. Klepper being perfectly familiar with the case—all these facts being perfectly well known to most members of the Church, and made known to the others at the time of our application—I have been living in the same community for eight years. Since I joined the Church I have been advanced from a private member, through all the different degrees, to the highest position in the Church,—and all under the immediate supervision of Bro. D. B. Klepper, the writer of the article alluded to, who was an Elder in the Church, from which high position he has, like Judas, betrayed his Lord and fallen by engaging in the heinous crime of fornication.

Jesse Crosswhite.

TITLE TO HEAVEN.

It is said, and more than half believed by some, that "Heaven is a place for those who do not succeed on earth." If this were proven to be a truth, it would afford comfort to many who have no other or better hope, who are unsuccessful in almost everything they undertake. That there is a little poetic romance in the idea, we can readily see, but that there is any substantial reason or Scripture utterance for such a doctrine we fail to discover. All we know of Heaven is learned from the Bible, and that clearly shows but one door of entrance to the world of bliss, and that door is not poverty nor wealth, good nor ill success in the affairs of this world, sickness nor martyrdom, but the Lord Jesus Christ, who gave Himself a ransom for all, "that whosoever would believe on Him should not perish, but have everlasting life." Poverty and the keenest sufferings, or wealth and a pleasant life are no securities to any soul to insure a home on the shores of immortality. With either of these, one may be ladened with guilt and sink to the lowest depths of ruin; or cultivating the graces and bringing forth the fruits of the spirit, he may be ready, without a moments warning to quit all that is earthly and be borne at once to dwell amongst the holiest of beings above. Safety for a future state rests on a broader and surer foundation than mere conditions in human life, or earthly vicissitudes. The only sure foundation on which any human being can rest or build their hopes for eternity is the great Redeemer, and whoever is not saved by Him, will not be saved at all. Those who have an interest in His Kingdom can well afford to be poor, or even run the fearful risk of being rich, especially if God bestows the wealth. One's poverty may be his fault or misfortune; his ill-success may result from folly or crime, or it may be a divinely appointed discipline to counteract and ward off greater evil, and lead the soul to penitence and to Christ. And when it is the latter, it should be looked upon as a positive blessing, under which one may rejoice, and give glory to God. Those however, who have reason to reckon themselves among the unsuccessful, will do well to bear in mind that continued success in this life is always dangerous; that the Christian graces germ not easily beneath a pleasant sky, and surrounded with the glitter of wealth and fashion; but under severe trials, amid temptations and conflicts, in hours of such peril as drives the trembling soul nearer to Christ than to any earthly friend. Then is the passage being certainly made toward the haven of rest.

Sallie E. Sefton.

Mechanicstown, Md.

KEEP IT TO YOURSELF.

You have trouble; your feelings are injured, your husband is unkind, your wife frets, your home is not pleasant, your brethren do not treat you just right, and things in general move unpleasantly.

Well, what of it? Keep it to yourself. A smouldering fire can be found and extinguished; but when the coals are scattered, who can pick them up? Firebrands, when together, can be trodden under foot, but when tied to the tails of Samson's foxes, it is difficult to tell where they will burn.

Bury your sorrow. The place for sad and disgusting things is under the ground. A sore finger is not improved by pulling off the rag, and sticking it in everybody's face; tie it up and let it alone; it will get well itself sooner than you can cure it. Charity covereth a multitude of sins. Things thus covered are often cured without a scar; but when they are once published and confided to meddling friends there is no end to the trouble they may cause.

Keep it to yourself. Troubles are transient, and when a sorrow is healed and past, what a comfort it is to say, "No one ever knew it until it was all over."

Pure religion will enlarge the heart. I care not how selfish and mean a man may be before conversion, the love of God shed abroad in his heart will enlarge and expand his soul. The very first impulse of his heart after conversion is, for the whole world to come to Christ; and he is willing and ready to do something to help on the glorious kingdom of the dear Redeemer. Paul said that no man liveth unto himself. I suppose he meant that a Christian did not live merely for himself, but rather sought to benefit others—to help others into the light, and so on to heaven. If it were possible for a selfish man to get to heaven he would want the best mansion in our Father's house free of rent and would want it all for himself.—Weaver.

HOW TO RUIN A SON.

Let him have his own way; allow him free use of money; suffer him to rove where he pleases on the Sabbath day; give him free access to wicked companions; call him to no account for his evenings; furnish him with no stated employment. Pursue any one of these ways, and you will experience a most marvelous deliverance if you have not to mourn over a debased and ruined child. Thousands have realized the sad result, and have gone mourning to their graves.

From the Christian Observer.

THE FAMILY AT BETHANY—NO 2.

Sickness and Death—Jesus at the Grave of Lazarus—Comfort for the Bereaved—Malicious Unbelief.

But the tranquil happiness of the little family at Bethany was not to remain undisturbed. A sad blow was to fall upon them, and their skies were to be for a while overcast. Lazarus was stricken down by a fatal disease, and the whole household was shrouded in gloom, and every heart filled with grief. The stricken sisters, doubtless with sleepless eyes, and swelling, anxious hearts, bent over him with unwearying tenderness and devotion, ministering affectionately to his every want, and watching and hoping and praying for some indication that the power of the disease was broken.

At last when hope began to fail, and despair brooded over them, they sent messages to the Savior, saying, "Lord, he whom thou lovest is sick," hoping that He would come without delay and speak the healing word. But the Savior knew all that had occurred, and knowing what was still in the future, He said, "This sickness is not unto death, but for the glory of God, that the Son of God might be glorified thereby." So He abode where He was yet two days longer.

Aye, oftentimes has the same message ascended heavenward to the same loving, sympathizing Savior from burdened, anxious hearts at the bedside of sick and suffering dear ones, whom we know to be His disciples: "Lord, he (or she) whom thou lovest is sick;" and we weep and watch, and wait and hope, and still continue to pray, and yet there comes back no healing response. The Savior puts not forth His mighty power to stay the progress of the destroyer; and it is because that sickness, though it may be unto death, is for the glory of God, that the Son of God may be glorified thereby." And is not that enough to comfort us? Ought we not then to be submissive and resigned? Should we not part less reluctantly with our loved ones when we reflect that God is to be glorified in their removal from this world of sin and suffering and death, to His own bright mansions of bliss?

When at length, Jesus came to Bethany, Lazarus had already "lain in the grave four days." The last duty had been performed. The last sad tribute of affection had been paid to the departed by his bereaved and stricken friends, and he was sleeping peacefully in the grave, while four days of dreary desolation and hopeless grief to the sisters had passed slowly away. Many of the Jews gathered about the afflicted sisters to "comfort them concerning their brother;" but from these they turned to Jesus, going hastily forth to meet Him, knowing in their hearts that He more than all others, was able to minister to their consolation.

In times of bereavement and affliction it is very pleasant to us to have our friends gather about us in ministrations of tenderness and sympathy, but human efforts, however well directed, usually fail to relieve sorrows of the bereaved, and the pious heart will turn from all these to a dearer, better friend, to a never-failing comforter whose ears are ever open to the wail of the sorrowing, and the sigh of the mourner, and will bear their heart-burdens and great griefs to him knowing that He is willing and able to impart richer, sweeter comfort than any earthly friend.

When the Savior met the bereaved sisters, He was deeply moved. The evangelist tells us that when He saw Mary "weeping, and the Jews also weeping, which came with her, He groaned in the spirit and was troubled." Enquiring where Lazarus had been laid, they said to him, "Lord come and see;" and they gathered to the sepulchre. Aye, dear reader, that was no unnatural, unearthly scene. Many such have been witnessed in this valley of weeping, which is so thickly strewn with the sepulchres of the dead. Who, that has lived long on earth, has not stood with streaming eyes like Martha and Mary, by the grave of some departed friend, and felt to the very deepest depths of an agonizing heart, the same emotions of grief that bowed the heads of those bereaved sisters? And what heart so hard and insensible to the touch of sorrow, as not to have wept tears of sympathy when gathering with such a circle of mourners to the grave of one dear to some of their fond and loving hearts? Aye, yes, we have seen, we have felt it all.

Can we wonder then, that a compassionate Savior should be deeply moved? Jesus wept. How tender, how touching the scene! Yes the blessed Savior, the Lord of glory, the King of Heaven wept, "wept." He knew that He would soon call forth the sleeping dead from the silent sepulchre by which He stood, but the unrestrained tears of condoling friends, the piteous wailing of the bereaved sisters, and the knowledge that his beloved disciples, thus bereaved and stricken, and bearing the same burden of affliction, would gather to the sepulchres of their dead in every age, overwhelmed his heart with tender, sympathizing grief, and He "wept." Ah, those precious tears have been like healing balm to many a wounded heart!

It is a happy thought, dear reader and full of comfort, that Jesus stands sympathizingly and compassionately by the side of the believers now as they gather to the graves of their loved and lost. Yes, thanks be to God, He is always there to support them by His power, and sustain them by His grace. And the same comforting messages come to us that fell with such soothing power upon the hearts of Lazarus' mourning friends. "I am the resurrection and the life; he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live; and whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die." Though the body shall sleep awhile in the grave, yet the soul shall live in Heaven, and the body will be raised up again in the bloom of immortal life and vigor. He that believeth in Christ, shall never die spiritually nor eternally. The soul shall only for a little while be separated from the body, which shall slumber in the dust until Christ, who is the resurrection and the life, shall raise it up, call it forth from the tomb, and clothe it with incorruption to live and reign with Him forever. Then our beloved dead are not lost. They are only gone before, and we shall see them again in the same bodies that we have so tenderly laid away to rest, and in heaven shall clasp "inseparable hands." O happy, thrice glorious day, when through GRACE, we shall "gather at the beautiful river," and with the angels of God and the saints redeemed of every age, and our friends who have gone before "will walk and worship all the happy golden day."

Lazarus was raised from the dead by the mighty power of Jesus, and yet strange as it may seem, while many of the Jews who witnessed the scene, were convinced in their minds and became the believing followers of Christ, others did not believe, but went their way to the Pharisees and "told them what things Jesus had done," with designing malice; and a council was called that some measures might be taken to destroy or counteract the influence that the working of such wonderful miracles was giving to the Savior. And thus has it ever been.

Unbelieving, wicked men, not willing themselves to become the disciples of Christ, throw impediments in the way of others to hinder their belief, and try to convince them that there is no truth in the Christian religion. Like the unbelieving Jews, they would not themselves believe, though one rose from the dead, and when they see man walking in the paths of righteousness their hearts are troubled and they would impede the progress of the Gospel, and stay the advancement of the Redeemer's kingdom. Alas, blind unbelief! They do not know of what bliss they are cheating their own souls and trying to cheat the souls of others. They know not what anguish they are laying up in store for themselves.

J. B. R.

LETTER FROM PEARL WOOD.

BURR OAKS FARM. O., June 19.—Most certainly, dear Mr. Editor, "the donning of silks and satins has a tendency to foster selfish pride," if one takes pride in wearing such, and glories selfishly in being more richly attired than surrounding sisters. And any woman who makes a practice of arraying herself in very rich and costly clothing, is highly censurable for so doing. Not only does she show to the world, by wearing such, that her heart is in these things, but her sin extends further: it sets an example to the thousands of others, which example silly heads and weak, unconverted hearts are not slow to follow, often when their purses are unequal to the drain made upon them, and this causes lavish expenditure of money, lent for a higher and nobler purpose [viz: to do good and win souls to Christ). Besides, extravagance often ruins the business of otherwise prosperous fathers and husbands, and brings want and misery to the homes that should abound in peace and plenty, and would so abound did the wives and daughters bring their expenditure for dress within the limits of their income instead of far exceeding it.

I only compared the "silk and satin" with the "calico" to show that a true woman's capabilities of filling gracefully every station in life in which God places her should make her mistress of all of them. "Beauty unadorned is oft adorned the most." A simple and unpretending dress heightens natural charms far more than all the puffs and turbelows that cunning fingers ever fashioned. That dress is handsomest and most worthy of commendation that passes unnoticed (save for its exceeding neatness) in a crowd. It is true, plainness and simplicity in our outward appearance will never, in itself, lead to Christ, but a heartfelt knowledge of Him and the Christian religion will always lead us into simplicity. For, as the inside of the "cup and platter becomes cleansed and purified," so will the outside appear like unto it. But, while admitting all this, there are times, however, when tender hearts, warm with earnest love to God and love to man, beat strongly beneath the rich folds of a silk or satin dress, and there are times, too (financial circumstances warranting it), when such apparel seems very appropriate. But surely the House of God is not the place for making a display of such. Very often in our fashionable churches of the present day the wanton display of dress and fashion is so great that one's desire to "worship God in spirit and in truth" is well nigh frustrated, by having the senses distracted by flaunting rainbow colors and vast gardens of artificial flowers; by all manner of odd and grotesque shapes and contortions of the human form divine, "created only a little lower than the angels, and crowned with glory and honor." Although thus originally made, how sad to see woman now delighting to set herself up for a show to be gazed at by the vulgar crowd, and to take her rank among the "foolish women with no oil in their lamps!" Moreover, her vain and hollow heart leads her to vie with her perhaps wealthier sister in seeing which one of them can load the greatest amount of costly dry goods on their back; whose waist can support the greatest bulk of back numbers of newspapers, and who can take up the most room, and make the most fuss and bustle on entering church, in that halting, ridiculous gait; whose ears and fingers, whose neck and wrists can support the heaviest load of glittering ornaments, evincing a weak head and still weaker heart, with very little cultivation of intellect, and destitute of the beauties and graces of either.

Day by day I am made to rejoice more exceedingly, and to thank God more fervently, for His beautiful gift of the glad, free country; where, in his temples—the leafy groves of our majestic forest trees, with the wide expanse of God's blue heavens above us, with "His footstool," the verdant earth beneath our feet, we may indeed worship Him as He must be worshipped by His chosen people. Everything that has breath in the country seems to praise the Lord, the touches of whose skillful and beautifying fingers are seen and recognized in all the workmanship of His hands.

And now a few words about our union Sabbath Schools: When I wrote my last "letter," we, of this district, had just begun our labors. Now we have eight flourishing Sabbath schools in the township, which not only serve to draw our neighbors more closely together, affording work of common interest to all, but by so doing we are, under the blessing of God, the instruments of sowing good seed in His name, and of winning souls to Him.

Our hands, at first weak and unskillful in the good work, are now strong through faith in Christ and His promises; it is not us of ourselves, but God working in and by us. For we "can do all things thro' Christ who strengtheneth" us. In this school district where we live, our class of young men and women is one of the most encouraging features of enterprise. It now often numbers 24 or 27; and this shows the result of a little handful of good seed sown in the name of Jesus Christ.

There has been much talk of the evils of intemperance, and much written about it in "our columns" lately. Just so soon as all the women the world over work with the power and earnestness God has given them, just so soon will a heartfelt "knowledge of the Lord cover the earth as the waters cover the seas." Then will the manufacturing of the filthy weed, and the sale of the demoralizing, man-destroying "fire-water" be stopped. We "must lay the ax at the foot of the tree." It is true our hands and hearts may be yet too weak for that; but if we use the strength given us, and are industrious in clipping off the branches, by and by, with the grace of God, which is sufficient for all things, the power and ability will be given us. And so, in the end, good and right will triumph!

PEARL WOOD.

The modest man will not parade his own excellence lest he should offend.

Christians might avoid much trouble and inconvenience, if they would only believe what they profess, that God is able to make them happy without anything else. They imagine that if such a dear friend were to die, or such and such blessing were removed, they should be miserable, whereas God can make them a thousand times happier without them. To mention my own case. God has been depriving me of one mercy after another; but as one is removed, He has come and filled up its place. Now, when I am a cripple, and not able to move, I am happier than ever I was in my life before, or ever expected to be; and if I had believed this twenty years ago, I might have been spared much anxiety. If God had told me sometime ago, that He was about to make me as happy as I could be in this world, and then had told me He would begin by crippling me in all my limbs, and removing me from my usual sources of enjoyment, I should have thought it a very strange mode of accomplishing this purpose. And yet how is His wisdom manifest even in this!—Dr. Payson.

YOUTHS' DEPARTMENT.

THE LITTLE GRAVE.

"It's only a little grave," they said,
"Only just a child that's dead;"
And so they carelessly turned away
From the mound the spade had made that day.
Ah! they did not know how deep a shade
That little grave in our home had made.

I know the coffin was narrow and small,
One yard would have served for an ample pall;
And one man in his arms could have borne away
The rosewood and its freight of clay;
But I know that darling hopes were hid
Beneath that little coffin lid.

I know that a mother stood that day
With folded hands by that form of clay;
I know that burning tears were hid
'Neath the drooping lash and the aching lid;
And I know her lip, and cheek and brow
Were almost as white as her baby's now.

I know that some things were hid away—
The crimson sack and the wrappings gay;
The snow-white dress—the lock of hair—
And for eyes so blue, and head so fair
There's an empty crib, with its covers spread,
As white as the face of the sinless dead.

'Tis a little grave; but oh! have care!
For world-wide hopes are buried there;
And ye perhaps, in coming years,
May see, like her, through blinding tears,
How much of light, how much of joy,
Is buried with an only boy!

A HARD SUM.

Are you good at arithmetic? I will give you some losses to add up and calculate how much they come to. It is a good sum for boys. They are losses made by strong drink.

Loss of money.	Loss of friends.
Loss of time.	Loss of good conscience.
Loss of health.	Loss of feeling.
Loss of beauty.	Loss of mind.
Loss of business.	Loss of peace.
Loss of character.	Loss of life.
Loss of the soul.

The above is an extract from the Little Christian, and should command the careful study of every young reader, and old ones too. The items alone, at first may not seem so great but as they sum up the result becomes awful. We will briefly notice the items as as they stand.

Loss of money. Money has really but one lawful value and is properly used only when spent for the good and well being of the body and as strong drinks are not good for the body, money spent for it is lost.

Loss of time. In earning money we use time. If that money is spent for strong drink, the time spent is lost.

Loss of health. Anything that does not add to the health and strength of the body detracts from it. Strong drink is not food. It stimulates, but correspondingly destroys the vital forces, therefore it destroys the health.

Loss of beauty. Beauty is health, and when health is lost beauty goes with it. See the loathsome drunkard, he is the very picture of ugliness.

Loss of business. Time is money, and when we spend money for strong drink we get no value in return for it and our business goes down, and with it our character falls and when our character is gone our friends forsake us because when our character is gone we are no better than the brute. When these losses commence bearing upon us we sink under their ponderous weight. The man is changed into a demon, his conscience becomes seared, his heart hardened and his feeling lost, Without money, without character, without friends and without hope, his mind becomes unhinged and his peace is gone. Under this load of degradation he sinks beneath hope and he hugs the demon that is robbing him of all that is worth living for—he takes the last and fatal drink and fills a drunkard's grave, and sinks into a drunkard's hell, for it is said, "no drunkard shall enter the kingdom of heaven." The sum then of all these losses is the loss of the soul. Ponder them well dear young friends and avoid the curse as the poison of the serpent for the wise man says; "wine is a mocker and strong drink is raging."

THE MASSACRE.

BY J. S. FLORY.

Not long since while traveling through a very mountainous district of West Virginia, I overtook a man traveling the same way I was. He was one of the old settlers of that section of the country and told me of many occurrences of "old times" while the Indians yet inhabited this country. Among others he told me of the killing by Indians of two children which circumstance I will write for the little readers of the PILGRIM, that they may understand what dangers our fore-fathers had to endure, and how thankful they should be that not many of them these times have such dangers to encounter. First I will say the Indians naturally were disposed at first to treat the white people kindly, but there were some whites that mistreated the Indians and that caused them to be an enemy of the white man, and killed many of them.

There was a family by the name of Morris living on a small stream of water in what was then Kanawha Co. They had a boy and girl that I imagine were the delight of a good mother's heart and joy of a father's love. They lived thus in the wilderness as free as the deer that drank at the clear brook or browsed upon the mountain side. Those children no doubt were happy in their forest home; playing by the water side, gathering wood from the hillside, and at evening bringing in the cows made up a good part of their happy lives. But little did they fear the howling voice of the wolves or cry of the panther. They felt secure under the protection of a home. One evening as was their custom they went to bring in the cows. Probably the boy astride his stick horse, and platted hickory whip in hand, the girl as happy as a singing bird frisking along the path that led through the wood; thus they went thinking not of danger. But alas for those happy innocents! From their hiding place sprang forth some dusky Indians and with their tomahawks struck down those children, the scalping knife severed from their heads a tuft of hair and portion of scalp, and thus were they left in the arms of death—a death so terrible and speedy.

As the evening closed in and the children did not return uneasiness came over the mother's mind; night coming on and the father returning from his work and the children yet out, caused a dread to seize their hearts. The father went on the search of his children—he found them where they were stricken down. What must have been the sorrow felt by that Father and Mother, to have their children thus rudely torn from them by the hands of human beings. Side by side they laid them in the silent grave. Two little martyrs to the vengeance of a savage people.

Little readers, we do not wish to dwell on the sad occurrence but would say, think of the blessings you are enjoying surrounded by a good and kind people. Can often go to preaching and Sunday school and learn of Jesus; and have papers published for your instruction. You need not fear the tomahawk of the Indian, or the wolf, bear or panther, but you are in danger of a great "beast" one that "goeth about as a lion." He is often called Satan. He waylays every path you have to travel, is hid where you least expect him, and he will if you let him get a hiding place in your heart. If he does you can often see him peeping out through an ill temper, cross words, dishonest spirit, vain or proud mind. Satan peeps from under those ribbons and ruffles and foolish head dresses, has his fingers in those rings, ear-drops and breast-pins. If you would not be led captive at his will, keep a sharp lookout for him. Keep clear of all his nets. Keep in the narrow way with Jesus, who is meek and humble in heart. May God give you grace to be like Jesus.

OUR EASILY BESETTING SINS.—"The sin which doth so easily best us." Heb. 12; 1. Said a dear little girl of five summers, as she rose from her evening prayer, in which she asked God to forgive a fault, "Grandma, I am ashamed to ask God to forgive me for that, I have asked him so many times."

Cannot many children of a larger growth say the same? And is it necessary for us to be continually sinning and repenting? The promise is, "Who so confesseth and forsaketh his sin shall have mercy." Surely we should all be "ashamed" before God that we so easily fall into temptation. When we are assured that God will not suffer us to be tempted above that we are able, but will with the temptation also make a way of escape that we may be able to bear it.—New York Observer.

THE BRIGHT SIDE.—Look on the bright side. It is the right side. The times may be hard, but it will make them no easier to wear a gloomy and sad countenance. It is sunshine, and not the cloud, that makes the flower. The sky is blue ten times where it is black once. You have troubles, so have others. None are free from them. Troubles give sinew and tone to life—fortitude and courage to man. That would be a dull sea, and the sailor would never get skill, where there was nothing to disturb the surface of the ocean. What though things look a little dark, the lane will turn, and night will end in a broad day. There is more virtue in one sunbeam than in a whole hemisphere of clouds and gloom.

There is born within every man the germ of both virtue and vice. The development of one or the other is contingent upon circumstances.

We must not speak all that we know, (says Montague,) that were folly; but what a man says should be what he thinks, otherwise it is knavery.

CORRESPONDENCE.

AN EXPERIENOE.

Dear Pilgrim:—As our beloved brother J. Nicholson requests me to give a sketch of my fellowship with the Brethren Church through the PILGRIM, I will endeavor to do so with the help of the Lord. But permit me first to give a small sketch of my experience. God called me when young; finally I gave my heart to Him, and connected myself with the M. E. Church in Carlisle in 1823, and remained a member of said church for three years. By moving ten miles away I got out of the church. In 1841, I became a widow, which I am yet. In that same year I became a member again in the M. E. Church in Chambersburg, a church I dearly loved, but sorry to say that I could not follow my Savior in all His commandments, which I had a great desire to do, but was deprived of the privilege in the church of my choice. I remained a consistent member of said church until September 17, 1865, when I was led into the liquid stream by brother Lewis Cobaugh, at Daniel Coghanower's mill, in Cambria Co., Conemaugh District, and was buried with Christ in baptism. I believe I stand in full fellowship in the Brethren Church, not only with the church, but with Jesus my Lord. I rejoice that I can follow my Savior in all His commandments. Brethren and sisters, let us walk hand in hand in humility. Let us strive for that crown which our worthy Bro. Nicholson so beautifully explains in PILGRIM No. 27. It is worth striving for. Let us keep our lamps well trimmed, and our light shining bright that the world can see that we were with Jesus our Lord. I am an aged pilgrim, and have traveled for years through troubles, trials and difficulties, but the Lord has been my support through them all, in whom I always have put my trust, and always will in health, sickness and death. Soon my journey will be ended, then I hope I shall be numbered with that beautiful throng where John saw in a vision of Patmos, there to praise my dear Jesus for ever and ever.

"I would not live alway, no, welcome the tomb,
Since Jesus hath lain there, I dread not its gloom;
There sweet be my rest till he bid me arise,
And hail him in triumph descending the skies."

Sinner, come along with us and we will do you good. Forsake your sinful ways and turn to the Lord, for why will you die? Turn now while it is to-day. To-morrow may be too late. God calls you now. Are you given to your cups? Dash it away for there is an adder concealed in the bottom which will sting you to death. Are you profane? Stop short and ask God to have mercy on your poor souls, and He will abundantly pardon. Are you a novel reader? Dash your novel into the flames and take the Bible in its place. The former will lead you to ruin. The Bible will lead you into all truth, and will point you to Heaven. Are you fond of fashions? Stop, turn into the path of humility, for God resisteth the proud, but will give grace to the humble. May God for Christs' sake add His blessing to these few lines is my prayer. HANNAH WHISLER.

Mechanicsburg, Pa.

WHY THE BRETHREN DO NOT COMMUNE WITH OTHER DENOMINATIONS.

Dear Pilgrim:—As the above reasons were called for I will try to give some.

"Without faith it is impossible to please God." Were we to partake with them at their meetings, we would leave out some of the connecting links. Feet-washing, the Supper, and salutation of the Kiss, and if it would be right to leave them off once, it would be right to always do so; therein we would say they are useless. We find the word saying, "happy is the man that condemneth not himself in that which he alloweth." And should we partake with them they should partake with us, and we love them too much to invite them to sin, for they tell us frankly they have no faith in Feet-washing, the Supper, &c., and "whatsoever is not of faith is sin," so we have to be careful that we lay not a stumbling block in the way of any man. But we invite, and that with tears, for men and women to take God at His word and do just what He says, and then we are willing and ready to welcome all. And Christ ate His Supper in the evening and we cannot, consistent with reason, partake until evening. In order to be worthy communicants we must speak the same thing concerning the communion. And were we to bring our gift before the altar and remember that one of the communicants had aught against us we would have to leave there our gift and first be reconciled. Then we could offer our gift.

You herein find a few of the reasons and the last is an unreconciled standing they have with us, and we truly believe the word of God teaches us to practice these things; so we say with the apostle, "let every one be fully persuaded in their own minds. He that regards these things regards them unto the Lord, and giveth the Lord thanks, and he that regards them not, giveth not the Lord thanks.

WM. SADLER.

Nankin, O.

GREENE, IOWA. }
July 20th, 1872. }

Dear Pilgrim:—As I am the only one that has, as yet, sent any correspondence for your columns from here, I now inform your readers that our communion meeting is over, and that we had a good meeting, and a refreshing time. The ministers that came to us on the occasion, were Eld. Peter Forney and E. Troxel of Benton Co., Iowa, and Bro. H. R. Holsinger of Pa. who labored very zealously for the cause of the Redeemer. We hope that the members will seriously contemplate upon the admonitions given by Bro. H. R. H. in regard to the sisters wearing the covering when in the exercising of prayer or prophesying. Also to the members that engage in the excessive use of tobacco. I can say that I was well pleased with the remarks made on the occasion. Hope that all will take it to heart. Upon the whole, we had a refreshing time. The members manifested a spirit of love one to another, and sinners were converted. Three souls were made willing to come out on the side of the Lord, and were added to the church by baptism, while others were almost ready to yield to the calls, but for some cause unknown to us, are still procrastinating. Our church is in a prospering condition. There has been several additions during the summer and still others which we expect will soon come along with us. Further more, we have come to the conclusion to build a meeting house, which is now on the way. The size of it is 40 by 60 feet, all of stone with a basement story. And as we are not full handed by any means in our pecuniary circumstances, my prayer and desire is that all will put a shoulder to the wheel, for unless we work together we surely will not be able to complete building. For fear of digressing upon you worthy PILGRIM, I submit this to your judgement, correct mistakes and only publish what you think is worthy of notice.

J. F. EIKENBERRY.

Dear Pilgrim: In one of your last numbers, you expressed the wish to have communications upon the subject of Close Communions, or why the Brethren did not commune with other churches, and permit other churches to commune with them.

To me it has always been a source of much regret that it could not be otherwise. I know we have been charged with bigotry, at least that we thought we were better than others. To the superficial observer, and inquirer after truth, it has that appearance. But let us go to the law and testimony. What do we find with respect to the institution of the Communion which was intended to commemorate the sufferings of our Savior. It is there recorded that the night before the Savior was crucified, He used bread and wine, as the representations of His broken body and His shed blood. His death, or the remembrance of it, was to be perpetuated by the continual use of those emblems. Precedent to their use, He ate a supper with His disciples which is called by John and Paul a supper, not the Passover. Precedent to that supper He washed the disciples' feet, to purify and prepare them to worthily eat the supper and afterwards receive the broken bread and wine. But what do we now behold in the practice of a majority of the so called Christian denominations?

Why, they have dispensed with the greater part of the things instituted by Christ, on the night before His crucifixion. They no longer wash feet, no longer eat a supper, as precedents to the bread and wine. They have also changed the time which Christ used for the observance of those sacred duties. Paul says, "follow me as I follow Christ." See Acts 20th chapter. When and where did he follow Christ in this matter? Again we are informed "what God has joined together let no man put asunder." Hence we cannot consistently commune with other denominations.

But, says some, we would like to commune with you notwithstanding you refuse to commune with us. "We of course do not regard it necessary to eat the meal that you eat; and much less do we think it necessary to have our feet washed, yet we would submit to all those non-essential things, to keep up a uniformity of your exercises of the evening, and yet you refuse us." To such I would answer in the first place, "Are you not afraid thus to act? Is it not said that "whatsoever is not of faith is sin"? And would we not be accessory to such sin, if sin it be, by permitting you thus to act? But we have better reasons for declining to have others commune with us. Much as we may regret it, and I am sure it is regretted by every brother and sister of our community. It is not on the score of uncharitableness that we refuse you, but from stern necessity of duty. Unity is the highest round of the Christian ladder. And though we cannot be a unit in everything, we may be in this. And you say without any detriment to yourselves, time will determine that point. I have no disposition at this time to controvert that matter. I repeat, it is the duty of all to strive for unity in christian faith, especially is it so, when no one makes a sacrifice of principle. You say you would make none. We would, hence you can come to our terms, but we cannot to yours. You say our mode of inducting the sinner into the church is valid. We cannot, consistent with our view of Gospel obligations, say the same of yours. Hence you would make no sacrifice in coming to us—in the adoption of our plan of constituting membership, thereby procuring that unity that the following scriptures contemplate, which scriptures we offer as our principal reason, to justify our conduct in reference to this matter, at our Lovefeasts.

Ps. 133 : 1. Behold how good and pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity.

Amos 3 : 3. Can two walk together except they be agreed?

John 17 : 20. That they all may be one.

" " 22. That they may be one even as we are one.

" " 23. I in them, and thou in me that they be made perfect in one.

Acts 4 : 32. The multitude that believed were of one heart.

Rom. 15 : 5. Be like minded, one toward another.

1 Cor. 1 : 10. Be perfectly joined together in the same mind, and the same judgment.

2 Cor. 13 : 11. Be of one mind.

Phil. 1 : 27. Let us stand fast in one spirit.

These are the rules that will enable us to attain to that unity contemplated in the revelations of God's will and word. Help us, O Lord, to walk in thy ways, which are ways of pleasantness and paths of peace.

E. SLIFER.

NOTICE.

All to whom it may concern.

The Church in which the District Meeting of the Northeastern District of Ohio, in 1873, is to be held, wish to give notice through their periodicals that they have appointed W. Arnold, of Somerset, Perry county, Ohio, as Corresponding Secretary. Any person wishing any information on that matter can address him at the above named office. The time and place of holding said Meeting will be announced through our periodicals in due time.

By order of the Church.

ELI STONER.

Beloved Brethren :—Please announce that we, the brethren of the Salem Congregation, Frederick Co., Va., intend holding, the Lord willing, a Communion meeting on Saturday and Sunday the 14th and 15th of September at 1 o'clock. The meeting will be near Newtown, Stephensburg, and near the Winchester & Strasburg R. Road. An invitation is given to all, especially ministering brethren. G. S. RINKIN.

Editors of Pilgrim ;—In PILGRIM No. 27, present Vol. in which appears our appeal, I wish to correct the spelling of a name. Instead of Jacob Nangle it should be Jacob Naugle. We hope that the brethren and sisters will take an active part, and send us their mites for to build a house to worship in. We hope to hear from some by August 17, 1872.

WM. B. SELL.

Hamilton, Mo.

The Weekly Pilgrim.

JAMES CREEK, PA., July 30, 1872.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Another murder similar to that of Stokes' occurred in Philadelphia recently. A fireman by the name of William McMullen was shot and mortally wounded by Huge Warra, a recently pardoned convict. The increase of crime is indeed fearful. Murder is as common now in our large cities as it was in the cities of Europe, when the assassin for a fee, could get remission of the evil penalties of his crime by the church.

On Monday the 22nd inst., the city of Williamsport was threatened with a serious riot. It appears that employees of saw mills of that neighborhood, some four weeks ago, had struck for shorter time. On Monday morning, however, a number of men were willing to go to work under the old regime, but the majority refused to consent and a riot ensued.

A correspondent of the Evening Post gives a description of the Mennonites in Lancaster co., Pa. He appears to look upon them with contempt and as usual the church is judged by a few eccentric characters with whom he came in contact, that do not represent the principles of the church at all. From the description given of them we would suppose this to be the case in this instance.

Bro. J. F. Eikenberry of Butler county, Iowa, says: The harvest here is about ready for the sickle. It is a little late on account of the spring being later than usual. The prospect for a good wheat and oats crop is good throughout the county The prospects for a good corn and potato crop are flattering. Also fruit in abundance. The weather has been very dry and hot the past summer.

Stanley, the New York Herald correspondent, who went with the expedition in search of Dr. Livingstone, is on his way to London, in company with a son of the Doctor, and conveys letters to the British Government, and to the family of the great explorer. When Stanley left the interior of Africa the Doctor's health was poor; still he was determined not to return home until he had completed his task of ascertaining the origin of the Nile.

GERMANY.—The Official Gazette of Berlin, for July 11th, contains the proclamation of the law for the expulsion of the Jesuits from the empire. Six months are given them to close up their establishments and retire from the country. The government regards with uneasiness the increasing emigration to America, and measures are contemplated for repressing the same.

THE Methodist has a new set of reforms, to be discussed and carried out as soon as possible in the Methodist Episcopal Church:

1. The equalization of the lay and clerical representation in the General Conference.

2. Lay representation in the annual conferences.

3. The presiding eldership, of which it affirms, "There is perhaps no other feature of our Church system about which there prevails so general a discontent, and so general a demand for revision and reform, as the presiding eldership."

4. The relief of the General Conference of duty in the election of all officers — secretaries, book agents and editors—except bishops and "interdenomination messengers."

AN AFFECTING SCENE.—In speaking of the recent flood, which was so disastrous in several sections of Virginia, the Lynchburg papers record the following sad event:

A mother and several little children were making their escape from a narrow neck of land which lies between the river James and the canal, when they were amazed to find that the bridge was already gone, and that their only hope was to cling on to the abutments of the bridge until the angry waves should subside. But as they stood there clinging to the abutment, the waters continued to rise higher and higher, while in the deep darkness they could hear the crashing of trees and the thunders of bridge timbers that were wildly dashing all around them. They had been in this condition for some time when the little girl felt that her strength was gone, and with a wild shriek of terror she exclaimed, "Kiss me mother, for I can't hold on any longer!" And with the warm pressure of that mother's lips upon her cheek, she was swept away and was seen no more.

Lightning Freaks.

At the village of Marlboro, Ulster county, N. Y., recently, two terrific thunderstorms went over the place. Three bolts from the consolidated storm descended into the village, striking three houses occupying, with regard to each other's situation, the three angles of a triangle and about five hundred feet apart.

The chimneys of the three houses were struck and demolished from roof to cellar, but only one person was injured. This man, James Terwilliger, was struck and thrown down, his boots torn off and his body scorched. But his injuries were not serious.

The people of Marlboro are of the opinion that they have had lightning enough for one day, and that, if "lightning never strikes twice in the same place," it sometimes strikes three times in places quite close to each other.

THE PHRENOLOGICAL JOURNAL for August, maintains its high place among our leading monthlies. Its articles on Hon. Geo. F. Post; the Republican Nominees for President and Vice-President, and Fisher Ames, whose portraits are given, are readable sketches of eminent public men. We find also, Social Science, or what do we mean by Love? Expression; Diseases of the Skin; Prison Reform; What are Comets? Effects of the Mind on the Body; Have you a Character? The Pre-Adamites again; Character and Success, eminently worthy the consideration of the general reader. There is also a good deal of interesting miscellaneous matter. Price for the No. 30 cents; for a year $3.00. S. R. WELLS, Publisher, 389 Broadway, New York.

THE SCIENCE OF HEALTH.—We have received the second number [August] of this New Health Monthly. Good as the first number was, this is far better; among the contents we would note the first of a series of articles on Popular Physiology; Three Classes of American Girls; Electro-Therapeutics, by A. D. Rockwell, M. D. The Privileges and Penalties of Sex; A practical article on the Use and Care of the Teeth; The Health of Women, Ante-Natal Influences; Way to use Wheat; Hygienic Bathing; Directions for avoiding and the Cure of Summer Complaints; Sunstroke; Sea-sickness; The Bath and Small-Pox; an interesting Department of Agriculture, and talks with Correspondents. This new Magazine is published at the low and popular price of $2.00 a year. Single number, 20 cents. S. R. WELLS, Publisher, 389 Broadway, New York.

SALEM COLLEGE.

The Fall term of Salem College will open for the reception of any number of students from all parts on the 4th of September, 1872. Ample accommodations and thorough instruction will be given all students who connect themselves with this College. Good board can be had in good families at $2.50 to $3.00 per week or students can board themselves in clubs at $1.25 to $1.50 per week as numbers have done with the consent of the faculty. Special care will be given students who are far from home.

For Catalogues, Scholarships and full particulars address

SALEM COLLEGE,

July 22, '72. Bourbon, Ind.

Sick Headache.

Those who have ever had this distressing complaint need no description of it. Its attacks are often so sudden and severe as to make one helpless for awhile. If possible, put the feet in a warm bath (coming well up to the limbs) to which two tablespoonfols of wood ashes have been added. But this cannot always be done, as the person may be away from home at the time of the attack, or have no one to wait upon him or her, and be too sick to wait on themselves. But a remedy may be kept on hand that has always eased me; it may be carried in the pocket, so that if attacked from home, as one often is, by taking it one may soon be relieved. This remedy is boneset blossoms, and I take them in this way: Take what would make, when pressed together, a bunch as large as a chestnut; put it in the mouth and chew, swallowing the juice; as the bile begins to circulate in the stomach, a sort of chill is often felt, and the excess of blood circulates from the head to other parts of the system.

I suppose I need not give a description of this plant, as it is so generally known, though often called by different names. The whole plant is medicinal, though for headache I use only the blossoms, which appear in August; and I prefer them before they fully blossom, as they are not so easily rubbed off and wasted. It grows in wet pastures, and should be gathered when well budded for blooming or about the first of August. It may be tied in bunches and hung out of the way where it will keep clean and dry.—Hattie Hopeful in Rural New Yorker.

How To Make Raisins.

In the regions around the Mediterranean where the grape is extensively cultivated, the fruit is plucked from the vine after ripening, and dried in the Sun or in an oven made something like a Dutch oven. After drying, they are packed in boxes or casks for domestic use.

The best raisins are the Malaga, Muscatel, or Sun raisins. They are dried on the vine, the stem being partly separated and the leaves plucked away so as to admit the Sun freely. The grapes soon shrivel and become sweet from the concentration of the pulp. These raisins are said to be better than any other variety, and retain the freshness and bloom of the fruit and acquire less of the saccharine deposit.

Raisins are sometimes prepared by drying the ripe grapes after they are picked, either in the Sun or in heated rooms, and while they are undergoing this process the grapes are sprinkled with an alkaline lye. This coats them with a thin varnish, and induces an exudation of sugary articles.

In some places the raisin is made by clearing off a space on the ground, spreading the grapes on the smooth surface inclined to the Sun. They are protected from dews and rains, in and when sufficiently dry packed boxes.

Number of Shingles in a Roof.

J. D. Tate gives to the New York Farmers' Club a rule for estimating the number of shingles required for a roof of any size, one which he thinks every farmer and mechanic should remember. First find the number of square inches on one side of the roof; cut off the right hand or unit figure, and the result will be the number required to cover both sides of the roof, laying five inches to the weather.—The ridge board provides for the double courses at the bottom. Illustration: Length of roof, 110 feet, width of one side, 30 feet—110x30x144—432.000. Cutting off the right hand figure we have 43,200 as the number of shingles required.

GOOD BOOKS.

A large number of our patrons are receiving our books as noticed below, as premiums, and express themselves highly pleased with them. Others who are not agents, have enquired whether we keep them for sale. We have now made arrangements with Mr. Wells to furnish any of their publications post paid at publishers prices. Orders for books must be accompanied with the cash, and plain directions for sending them.

Conversion of St. Paul. By George Jarvis Geer, D. D. 12mo. fine edition, $1. Plain edition, 75 cents.

Footprints of Life; or, Faith and Nature Reconciled.—A Poem in three parts. The Body. The Soul. The Deity. By Philip Harvey, M. D. $1.25.

Fruit Culture for the Million. A Hand book. being a Guide to the Cultivation and Management of Fruit Trees. Descriptions of the Best Varieties, and How to Propagate them. illustrated $1.00.

Hand-book for Home Improvement: comprising "How to Write," "How to Talk," How to Behave," and "How to do Business," in one vol. 2.25.

How to Live; Saving and Wasting, or Domestic Economy. By Solon Robinson. $1.50.

Hopes and Helps for the Young of both sexes, Relating to the Formation of Character. Choice of Avocation, Health, Conversation, Cultivation of Intellect, Moral Sentiments, Social Affection Courtship and Marriage. By Rev. G. S. Weaver. Muslin, $1.50.

Life at Home; or, The Family and its Members. Husbands, Wives, Parents, Children, Brothers, Sisters, Employers and Employed, etc. By Rev. William Aikman, D. D. A work which should be found in every family. $1.50. Extra gilt, $2.00.

Man and Woman: Considered in their Relations to each Other and to the World. By Henry C. Pedder. 12mo, Fancy cloth. Price $1.00.

Man, in Genesis and in Geology; or, the Biblical Account of Man's Creation, tested by Scientific Theories of his Origin and Antiquity. By Joseph P. Thompson, D. D., LL.D. One vol. 12mo, $1.00.

Oratory—Sacred and Secular; or, the Extemporaneous Speaker. Including Chairman's Guide for conducting Public Meetings according to the best Parliamentary forms. By Wm. Pittenger. $1.50.

The Right Word in the Right Place. A New Pocket Dictionary and Reference Book. Embracing Synonyms, Technical Terms, Abbreviations, Foreign Phrases, Writing for the Press, Punctuation, Proof-Reading, and other Valuable Information. Cloth, 75cts.

The Emphatic, Diaglott; or The New Testament in Greek and English. Containing the Original Greek Text of the New Testament, with an Interlineary Word for-word English Translation. A Work for Students in Theology, and S. S. Teachers. By Benjamin Wilson. Price, $4.00; extra fine binding, $5.00.

Waver's Works for the Young. Comprising "Hopes and Helps for the Young of both Sexes," "Aids and Aims for Girls and Young Women," "Ways of Life; or, the Right Way and the Wrong Way." $3

Educational.

The second year of Pleasant Hill College, Warsaw, Ind., will begin Sept. 4th, 1872, in which a thoroughly practical education will be given in Academic and Collegiate studies. Brethren's children are expected to attend our weekly religious meetings. Ladies and gentlemen admitted on equal footing.

O. W. MILLER, President.
July 9-tf. Warsaw, Ind.

Menno Simon's COMPLETE WORKS.

In English, translated from the original Dutch or Holland, giving the whole of the great Reformers writings on the subject of Baptism. Price in full sheep $4.50; by mail $5.14.

Address, JOHN F. FUNK & BRO.

New Hymn Books, English.

TURKEY MOROCCO

One copy,	post-paid, - - -	$1 00
Per Dozen,	- - -	11 25

PLAIN ARABSQUE.

One Copy,	post-paid, - - -	75
Per Dozen,	" - - -	8 50

PLAIN SHEEP.

One Copy,	post-paid, - - -	75
Per Dozen,	" - - -	8 50

Ger'n & English, Plain Sheep.

One Copy	post-paid	$ 1 00
Per Dozen	- - - -	11 25
Arabesque plain,	- - -	1.00
Turkey morocco,	- - -	$ 1.25.
Single German	post-paid, -	50
Per Dozen,	- - -	5 50

HUNTINGDON & BROAD TOP RAIL ROAD

Summer Arrangement.

On an after Tuesday, June 4, 1872, Passenger trains will arrive and depart as follows:

Trains from Huntingdon South.				Trains from Bedford moving North,
MAIL.	ACCOM	STATIONS.		MAIL.	ACCOM
A. M.	P. M.			P. M.	A. M.
*le*8 20	LE6 00	Huntingdon,		AR5 25	AR9 10
8 28	6 06	Long Siding		5 17	9 00
8 45	6 19	McConnelstown		5 04	8 45
8 51	6 25	Pleasant Grove		4 58	8 39
9 05	6 37	Marklesburg		4 45	8 27
9 20	6·51	Coffee Run		4 33	8 11
9 27	6 58	Rough & Ready		4 26	8 40
9 39	7 10	Cove		4 12	7 52
9 43	7 15	Fishers Summit		4 08	7 48
10 03	7 35	Saxton	le	3 48	le 7 53
10 10	7 53		ar		ar 7 46
10 27	8 10	Riddlesburg		3 30	6 30
10 34	8 17	Hopewell		3 22	6 12
10 51	8 35	Piper's Run		3 06	6 00
11 10	8 55	Tatesville		2 48	6 56
11 22	9 08	Bloody Run		2 33	6 50
11 26	9 12	Mount Dallas		2 29	5 46
11 32	9 19	Ashcom's Mills		2 22	5 42
11 36	9 23	Lutzville		2 18	5 36
11 40	9 27	Hartley's Mills		2 14	5
11 46	9 34	Jamesons		2 07	5
*r*11 22	*ar*9 40	Bedford		LE2 00	LE5 30

JOHN M'KILLIPS, Supt

SHOUP'S RUN BRANCH.

LE10 25	LE7 40	Saxton.		AR3 40	AR7 20
10 30	7 55	Coalmont.		3 25	7 05
10 35	8 00	Crawford.		3 20	7 00
AR10 45	AR8 10	Dudley		LE3 10	LE6 50
Bro'd Top City from Dudley 2 miles by stage.

Time of Penna. R. R. Trains at Huntingdon.

EASTWARD.			WESTWARD.
Hb'g Ac.	9 24	A M	Cin. Ex.	2 19	A. M.
Mail	3 30	P. M	Pc'f Ex.	7 45	"
Cin. Ex.	6 55	"	Mail	5 40	P. M.
Phil. Ex	11 15	"	W. Pass.	11 52	A. M.

TRACTS.

"ANXIOUS BENCH RELIGION EXAMINIED," by Elder J. S. Flory, is a Tract now ready for distribution, of which the following is a brief synopsis of the contents: A short and pointed address to the reader. The motive that prompted him to write, and his responsibilities as a minister; The peculiarities attending this type of religion; The feelings there experienced, not imaginary but real, The key that unlocks the wonderful mystery; It is not the workings of God after the order and plan of salvation; Man's endowment, his imitative principle—emanated from God; Spiritual influences and intercourse; Relation existing between man and God, and man and man; The fraternal bond and our natural affinities established by the "so called" sciences of Electro Biology; Mesmerism and Psychology or science of the soul, also, "Spiritualism" "Spiritual Rappings," &c. The causes by which the feelings are excited; Sympathy of the nervous system, and how that momentary feeling of joy is brought about, called, "Experimental Religion; Similar feelings may be brought about when there are no religious pretensions; Our reasons why we think this modus operandi of getting religion is not according to the Gospel, and then concludes by pointing out that form of doctrine as taught by Jesus Christ, and recorded by His faithful witness.

These tracts will be sent to all post paid, in the following terms: Two copies, 10 cts, 20 copies 40 cents. 25 copies 70 cents, 50 copies $1.00, 100 copies $1.50.

1870 1872

DR. FAHRNEY'S

Blood Cleanser or Panacea.

A tonic and purge, for Blood Diseases. Great reputation. Many testimonials. Many ministering brethren use and recommend it. Ask or send for the "Health Messenger." Use only the "Panacea" prepared at Chicago, Ills., and by

Dr. P. Fahrney's Brothers & Co.,
Mar. 29-pd. Waynesboro, Franklin Co., Pa.

Italian Queen Bees,

FOR SALE.

Purity and safe arrival guaranteed. Sent post paid, at $2.25 each.

Address,
ISAAC HEDDING,
Lewistown, Box 160.
Jun. 24-tf. Mifflintown Co., Pa.

Trine Immersion.

A discussion on Trine Immersion, by letter between Elder B. F. Moomaw and Dr J. J. Jackson, to which is annexed a Treatise on the Lord's Supper, and on the necessity, character and evidences of the new birth, also a dialogue on the doctrine of non-resistance, by Elder B. F. Moomaw. Single copy 50 cents.

THE PILGRIM,

Published by J. B. Brumbaugh, & Co.

Edited by H. B. & Geo. Brumbaugh.

CORRESPONDING EDITORS.

D. P. Sayler, Double Pipe Creek, Md.

Leonard Furry, New Enterprise, Pa.

The Pilgrim is a Christian Periodical, devoted to religion and moral reform. It will advocate in the spirit of love and liberty, the principles of true Christianity, labor for the promotion of peace among the people of God, for the encouragement of the saints and for the conversion of sinners, avoiding those things which tend toward disunion or sectional feelings.

TERMS.

Single copy, one year,	$1.25.
Book paper, " "	1.50.
Eleven copies, [eleventh for Agt.]	$12.50.

Any number above that at the same rate,

Address.

H. B. BRUMBAUGH.
James Creek,
Huntingdon county Pa.

Narrow Pilgrim.

"REMOVE NOT THE ANCIENT LANDMARKS WHICH OUR FATHERS HAVE SET."

VOL. 3. JAMES CREEK, PENNSYLVANIA, AUGUST 6, 1872. NO. 32.

POETRY

THE UNKNOWN FUTURE.

I know not what may befall me,
God hangs a mist o'er my eyes,
And before each step of my onward way,
He makes new scenes to rise;
And every joy he sends me comes
As a sweet and glad surprise.

I see not a step before me,
As I trace the day of the year;
But the past is still in God's keeping,
The future His mercy shall cheer;
And what looks dark in the distance,
May brighten as I draw near.

For perhaps the dreaded future
Has less bitter than I think,
The Lord may sweeten the water
Before I stoop to drink;
Or, if Marah must be Marah,
He will stand beside the brink.

It may be He has been waiting,
For the coming of my feet:
Some gift of such rare blessedness,
Some joy so strangely sweet,
That my life can only tremble
With the thanks I cannot speak.

My heart shrinks back from trials
Which the future may disclose,
Yet I never had a sorrow
But what the dear Lord chose;
And I send the coming tears back,
With the whispered words, 'He knows.'

So I go on, not knowing;
I would not, if I might;
I would rather walk with God in the dark,
Than go alone in the light;
I would rather walk with Him by faith,
Than walk alone by sight.

ORIGINAL ESSAYS.

MEDITATIONS.—HARVEST.

Quite recently I led several into the water that they might be "buried with Christ in baptism," on coming out I immediately parted from them and hurried on to attend another appointment same day. As I passed along I seen men harvesting the golden grain. I fell into a train of reflection something after this manner: These men are laboring and toiling to gather their harvest—a harvest for time—for this life—for the mortal body. I have been laboring for days in succession as a laborer in the great harvest of the Lord. These men toil and sweat that none of the ripening harvest be lost. I have traveled over mountains and hills, under a burning sun, and labored and sweated that a part at least of the great harvest might be gathered,—a few "sheaves" have just been gathered into the shelter of the Church, but Oh! how much is being trodden down by Satan. Tramp! tramp! his stately step is heard all around! Souls—dear souls—yes, PRECIOUS SOULS are being trodden down—down into the mires of sin or blind ditches of error, there to perish forever! Why is it no more are gathered in and saved? We answer for the want of laborers. See those men, they have help sufficient for the harvest, if more is needed, more will be had. But in the harvest for souls more is needed, call after call is made, but unanswered. Is it so all of God's ministers are busy? It must be so, for if man will not keep a laborer in the harvest field who will only work one half or two thirds his allotted time, surely God will not keep one in His service who will "stand all the day idle" one or two Sundays out of the month or one that pretends to be a laborer for the Lord and plants and sows so many broad acres that he can't possibly go out into the "highways and hedges" to labor for the Lord. What! our leisure or our own interest first, and work for the Lord a secondary matter? Can it be so that there is always enough money in the purse to hire laborers for our own harvests let them be ever so great, but when a dollar is needed to help the Lord's cause or gathering in of precious souls, the purse and till is empty, empty? But hush roving mind, it is a "free" Gospel we preach! "Called of the Lord" but stay at home if we please no matter how loud the Macedonian cry! "Called of the Lord," but home calls are urgent and must be attended to first! "Called of the Lord," the love of souls invites, but the love of gain calls homeward so soon. "Called of the Lord," but we are volenteer laborers, work if we choose, play if we choose or work for self if we choose. The Lord's harvest is a wide and grand field to labor in, but home is a little world around which clusters heart affections and soul desires!

God of Heaven give thy laborers hearts that bleed at the sight of bloody Calvary and a ruined world, souls that go out in deed after the panting thousands and make them ready to go, spend and be spent, labor, FIGHT and DIE at their post in defeose of the cause of a glorified Redeemer!

J. S. FLORY.

BE ON YOUR GAURD.

In regard to your conduct toward God, gaurd yourself most carefully against spiritual pride and presumption. "Let him that standeth take heed lest he fall." Many persons have fallen into temporal and eternal misery because they trusted too much to their own powers, and were not sufficiently on their gaurd against temptations to sin. Therefore:

Be not presamptous, ever watch and pray,
Think not that now thou hast performed thy duty,
The adversary knows thy weakest part
Where he will seek thy welfare to destroy.
Carnal security will cause thy fall,
Gaurd thyself therefore, watch and pray.

Where there is much humility there is much grace. He who humbles himself before God shall be exalted by Him. "God resists the proud but giveth grace unto the humble." Bear this in mind. I pray you again, acknowledge and confess yourself to be the greatest sinner before God and you will receive mercy and God will exercise great patience toward you amid your frailties. Practice true humility toward your fellow men, you will experience this to be a sure method to secure a tranquil and contented life. Pride and selfishness have occasioned the most unhappy dissentions in families, society and civil life. Remember therefore that trials are connected with Christianity, let them not however alienate your feelings but rather confirm them in religion. Impress the sentiments upon your hearts:

When'er thy saints deserve rebuke,
Thou hast a chastning rod;
Thy providences and thy Book,
Shall make them know their God.

Blest is the man thy hands chastise,
And to his duty draw,
Thy scourges make thy children wise,
When they forget thy law.

LOUISA C. BUTENBAUGH.
Claylick, Pa.

Captured Thoughts.

To grasp after the things of this world and thus neglect our eternal interests, is like to grasp smoke in our hands, which is only the corruption or dross of a substance already consumed, while our pathways are strewn with gold—nay, it is worse.

Our respects are due to our mothers for their affectionate care over us; our honor due to our fathers for their faithful providings for us; our obedience due to our Savior Jesus Christ for His atonement and intercession for us; and our praises, and the love of our hearts, might, minds and strength are due to God the Father of all, for "the things which He has prepared for them that love Him.

To talk of our eternal happiness, and of our hopes of a triumphant resurrection and a glorious immortality, and not be strictly observant of all the requirements of the Gospel, which are indispensable to our heirship of the promise, is like the sluggard's dream, who sleeps all day long and dreams of being up and obtaining the reward of his day duties.

To pray God for His mercies and blessings and be not obedient to His commandments, is like borrowing much of him to whom we are not willing to lend a little.

C. C. ROOT.

Mirabile, Mo.

That Nothing be Lost.

The multiplying the loaves and fishes so that a little would feed so many, is a most striking proof of Christ's divinity. But another fact from that same history, though rarely noted, is scarcely of less weight. It is found in Jesus' command to gather up the fragments that nothing be lost. What human being would have given such directions at such an hour? The day was far spent. The disciples were already wearied out. They had, as Jesus well knew, a night of trial before them. And yet they must gather up the pieces. If, by the twelve baskets he would show the greatness of the miracle, it would seem of importance. But Christ expressly states the reason: "that nothing may be lost." How does that act itself at once ally Christ to Him who never loses a moment or wastes an atom.

To be wasteful, then, is not to be Christ-like. He said, "Let nothing be lost." And yet many Christians seem to think waste and generosity are synonymous. They call it mean to look sharply after the waste of store, shop, kitchen and nursery. Minutes, and pennies, and crumbs, are too insignificant to be considered by a man.

We find moreover that if we would be generous we cannot be wasteful. A man that wastes often gives nothing because he has nothing. A wasteful man is usually poor. Riches, when rightly gathered, come in littles.

For the Pilgrim.

THE DEATH OF A FATHER.

Our father is no more. Oh, how these words sound, how solemn to think our dear father is no more with us. It is hard to know that he is taken from us, no more to return. Oh, how we mourn thy loss. It causes the briny tear to fall when we think of thee. How often do we think thy presence is near, how often thy form appears unto us. Oh imagination! that thou wert only real. Yes my heart is sad when I must believe that I shall no more see thee, I feel as if should make many complaints, but oh, why not become more reconciled? Why not know that this life is only to prepare for death? Oh let it cause us daily to ponder upon our eternal welfare and the shortness of life. Though we reach the age of our father, our time soon shall come, but oh shall it find us ready to meet our God as we must believe our dear father was? Will we be the loss to the living, be in favor and friendship with all around us, have no known enemy in all the world, and leaving the example to our families and the world as he did, follow the golden rule and at last fall asleep in Jesus as calm and silent as our beloved father? Oh mother, it was hard for thee to give him up, dear sisters and brothers, we thought we could not give him up. Let us, like our dear mother, have more faith in God, put all our trust in Him and daily pray for more wisdom from on High to guide us in the paths we should go. Let us pray for the church, oh let not a day pass away that we do not pray for all our dear brethren and sisters, that we may be more united in holy love, that we may all strive more earnestly for the upbuilding of the Church of Christ; for those who are near and dear to us; for ourselves and families that we may be joined in love,—may have grace and faith to bear any trial for those who are near and dear to us. Oh young members, we are not zealous enough. Think of the cross that is laid upon our dear ministers. How often I think of their lot. We should strive harder to be a help to them. If we would be truly faithful they would have more encouragement. There are many, very many duties for us to perform, let us be more diligent, often examine ourselves and then we will see how far we are from living in all things as we so earnestly desire to be.

How much more I would love to say, but let us pray more earnestly for grace and love from God that we may be preparing with our whole might and strength for the blessed time to come, after our great work is done and we shall be taken to our Heavenly home where there shall be no more sin. This is the greatest desire I have. To leave this world, is to be free from sin and trouble. There we shall meet our dear father, yes, there parents and children, brothers and sisters, husband and wife shall meet. How blessed to be joined in pure and holy love that never fails. Oh praise to God for that happy day which shall be an eternal day. May it soon come where there is no more sin. There we will strike glad hands together. Joy to think that all is pure, there is no unkind word, no hard thougt, but all is love. Oh hasten then that glorious day when we'll take wings and fly away.

SUSANNAH HUTCHISON.

Oak Hill, W. Va.

For the Pilgrim.

PRAYER.

Prayer is the simplest act in all the christian religion. It is a meek and solemn petition or request, an address to God or it is sometimes the soul's sincere desire unuttered or expressed. It is as necessary to the life of the soul as breath is to the life of the body. There is no act to which we are oftener called than prayer, and there is none in which we find more encouragement. Be not surprised if you hear ministers of the Gospel dwelling much on the importance of prayer when all the patriarchs, prophets and apostles, and the Lord Jesus Christ dwell so much on it. Hear the Lord himself on this important duty. "Ask and it shall be given you, seek and ye shall find, knock and it shall be opened unto you; for every one that asketh receiveth, and he that seeketh findeth, and to him that knocketh it shall be opened. All things whatsoever ye shall ask in prayer believing ye shall receive. Whatsoever ye shall ask in my name I will do it." He will never cease to give till we cease to pray. The Lord never ceased to extend mercy to Sodom until Abraham ceased to pray. Who will not be encouraged to pray when he reads the parables of the friend at midnight, and the importunate widow, recorded in Luke 11: 5 and 18.

Reader, think of this. It certainly will give you much encouragement. There are wonderful examples in Scripture of the power of prayer. Nothing seems too great for prayer to do. It has won victories over fire, air, earth and water. Prayer has healed the sick, caused the blind to see, lepers to be cleansed, the dead to be raised to life. Prayer brought the great deliverance from bondage to the children of Israel, opened the Red Sea for them to pass through, brought water from the rock and bread from heaven. Prayer brought the Holy Ghost down on Christ after baptism. If we only have faith there is nothing impossible for prayer to do. "Behold he prayeth;" yes, would to God that all who are in trouble would pray. "Call on me in the day of trouble and I will deliver thee." "Cast thy burden upon the Lord and he shall sustain thee." Is any afflicted among you let him pray." This was the practice of all the saints whose history we have recorded in the Scriptures. The only way to be really happy in this world of sorrow and distress is by casting all our cares on God. It is trying to bear our own burdens that causes us to fall on our way. But there is a friend who is ever waiting to help us if we will tell Him our sorrows; a friend who pities the poor, the sick and sorrowful; a friend who is able and willing to help us. That friend is Jesus, to whom we should look at all times for help. Watch and pray for all men. Christ prayed on the mountain, in the garden, also after He was baptized. Peter prayed on the house top. Isaac prayed in the field. Nathaniel under the fig tree, and the thief on the cross.

I offer these points for your consideration. I know of no one who needs to be reminded of them more than I do. I do not believe in a certain form of prayer. We should at all times pray with the spirit and with the understanding also. In the history of my life I learned a few things, and one of them is, that appearance is not always a true index to that within. A happy and regenerated soul will find a heaven in the most lonely cot, while the wicked and hardened sinner will turn a paradise into a torment on earth.

JAMES L. SEARS.

PREFERENCE.

Preference means "an act of choice or exaltation." In the Holy Scriptures we have more than a few very plain comments on the prefering of one's self. Absalom preferred to be king instead of his father David, and consequently he hung in the oak. Esau preferred a mess of pottage to his birthright, and hence did not receive the blessing. The children of Israel murmured and preferred the flesh-pots of Egypt to manna, and therefore not a few of them died. And those who prefer "the pleasures of sin for a season" shall reap "swift destruction."

On the other hand when "we prefer one another," or when God prefers some one for a certain purpose, then His blessing will follow. Esther was preferred by king Ahasuerus for her beauty, and this "saved many people from death." Daniel was preferred before the presidents and princes of the kingdom of the Medes and Persians "because an excellent spirit was in him." Jesus was preferred before His harbinger because He was "the true light that lighteth every man that cometh into the world. And the man after God's heart preferred that his tongue might cleave to the roof of his mouth if he did not prefer Jerusalem before his chief joy. Paul enjoins Timothy not to prefer one before the other. He also wrote to his Roman brethren exhorting them to honorably prefer one another.

I gather from these two passages that while we should "do nothing with partiality" we should prefer others to ourself. This our Savior did himself and we should follow His example. We should take the lowest seat.

JNO. C. BRIGHT.

Dayton, Ohio.

HOPE.

There is an angel ever ready to minister to us with her beloved hand. She comes to buoy up the disheartened, to cheer the soul drooping beneath the seathing sun of misfortune, and warm the spirit frozen by the snow and sleet of discouraging circumstances. Her pinions sparkle with the glory of Heaven, and her breath is as a sweet breeze from the fragrant fields and rosy bowers of the pleasant land of immortality, refreshing the weary one about to sink under the heavy burden of care. She whispers to the heart and it beats with renewed life, and her presence casts a halo of rainbow tints upon the future, whose glory thrills us with courage and ambitious zeal:—she is called hope.

With her cheering form beside us, with her little lamp trimmed and burning, with us the petty trials and difficulties of to-day vanish before the brilliant sunshine of the future. But without her, without the light her presence lends, we are indeed undone. Truly in the depths of darkness and despair, ever cherish hope.

If fortune frowns, nourish hope. Let not the winds of adversity extinguish it, for once out it is not easy to regain in her presence. We pity those who, buffeted and tossed by the rude storms and passions, and perplexities of life, have let the flames go out, and ceased to cherish the little guardian of their happiness. Endeavor to fan it to burning again in your weak heart. Strive to lift them again into the radiant presence of hope. SUSIE A. COFFMAN.

JESUS THE GREAT PHYSICIAN.

Jesus said unto him, if thou canst believe, all things are possible to him that believeth. Mark 9 chap. 23 ver.

The above is the language of the Savior addressed to a distressed father, on account of the sore affliction of his son. This son it appears had been afflicted from a child. The precise nature of its afflic ion c nnot now be determined. The effects we discover, from the relation of the case, in the chapter from which we have selected the above words.

Should such symptoms present themselves in a case now, under treatment by Physicians, it would be pronounced a case of "fits," and their skill would be exerted to relieve the patient. But it appears that in the days of the Savior upon the earth, such afflictions were attributed to the source of all evil; produced by what the Savior calls a "foul spirit." Whether their surmises were correct, or whether the Savior concurred in their views, it is not necessary that we should stop to inquire. It is sufficient for our purpose to know, that here is a distressing case presented to the Savior for relief. Although it is not said to be such, yet we may imagine that application had been made for relief to the ordinary physicians of the country without avail. We do know application had been made to the disciples with no success, and a last resort was made to the Savior, whom we regard as Physician of soul and body, and with good effect for the child was relieved.

From the circumstances here related, we learn an important lesson. We discover that it always requires a combination of circumstances, to attain a specific end, the ordinary physician in this case, may have lacked skill, or the father of the child lacked confidence and ceased to use the remedies, and hence a failure. It is evident that the disciples were applied to, for they ask the Savior, "Why could not we cast him out?" The Savior's answer implies a mild rebuke. He does not say that they had not the power to cure, nor does he say that this father had lacked the proper faith, or confidence in them, but, said, "This kind can come forth by nothing but by prayer and fasting," an absence of one of the combining circumstances, and hence a failure.

But now this distressed father goes to Jesus, as a last resort; goes properly prepared and commences with supplication, "Master, I have brought my son, which hath a dumb spirit." "I spake to thy disciples that they should cast him out, and they could not." "But if thou canst do anything, have compassion on us and help us."

Now here are the circumstances about to conspire to effect the desirable end; the restoration of the health of this child, relieving both child and father, as prayed for. A reassurance and a public declaration from the father is yet required by the Savior. "If thou canst believe, all things are possible to him that believeth." Answer, "And straightway the father of the child, cried out, and said, with tears, "Lord I believe, help thou mine unbelief."

Result. "Jesus rebuked the foul spirit, saying unto him, "Thou dumb and deaf spirit, come out of him, and enter no more into him," and it was done. A happy result to father and child, and to all posterity. From this all may learn a profitable lesson, to wit: The necessity of co-operation of both the dispenser, and the recipient of a favor, to render such favor effective. And if this was necessary when applied to the body, as in the case before us and under consideration, how much greater the necessity of observing similar rules, when the subject pertains to the welfare of the soul, that principle that does not perish with the body. At the time those miracles were being performed, God was in Christ, exerting His power to establish His divine mission, and at the same time benefitting humanity. If he did so much for the bodies of men, will he not exert His supernatural power for the accomplishment of the greater good of the souls of men and women, after they shall have left the shores of mortality? He will. But according to His own prescribed rules, which rules have been signed, sealed, and published to remain, unaltered to the day of judgment, by which we are to be taught whilst in this life, and after death to be judged by the same, and woe be it to that person whose name is not written in the Commandments.

This child of whose affliction we are writing, was brought to Jesus to procure relief—so must we come to Him, according to His own injunction. But as we cannot approach Him, as did those when he sojourned upon earth, we will, nevertheless have to come to Him, and find Him in His word.

It is true that after his ascension to Heaven, He did appear to Saul of Tarsus, whilst on his way to Damascus, but he gave him no new revelation—but directed him to one of his regularly authorized agents to be taught what he should do. Enoch and Elijah were translated; it does not follow that we shall be translated. Saul of Tarsus was visited in an unusual way, by Jesus; it does not follow that we shall thus be visited.

Hence it becomes us to regard the true word of Prophecy, which we will do well to take heed. Let us rely upon nothing else. Regard it as a lamp to our feet and a light to our path—the man of our council, receive its teaching, obey its requirements. Knowing our duty, all that remains for us is to perform it. Having the disposition once, we will have supernatural aid afforded; for God has promised it, and His promises do not fail. We invite His convicting as also His assisting grace. If ye know these things happy are ye if you do them.

EMANUEL SLIFER.

A REVIEW.

A few remarks concerning an article which appeared in the PILGRIM of July 23d, concerning the River Brethren, as they are generally termed. We, as a Church, do not wish to add to or take from God's Word, but wish to observe all contained therein.

The writer states, "they having no Lord's supper": We would refer the reader to Matt. 26: 1 to 29th, Mark 14: 1 to 26th, Luke 22: 1 to 21st, John 13, 1 Cor. 11. Now compare with Exodus 12: 3 to 43, Deut. 16: 1 to 9, you will have the origin of the Passover which we believe Christ ate with His apostles and at the same time instituted feetwashing and the bread and wine.

2d. He states, "they alleging also that the Word of God is a dead letter." This is a misrepresentation and is calculated to cast reproach on the Church and do injustice to the Church. I hope it is a misunderstanding and not a wilful act on the part of friend Good. We believe the word of God will stand though heaven and earth pass away, and that it is the power of God unto salvation to all them that believe, but we hold that the letter without the spirit is powerless or dead. Let the unwilling, impenitent sinner read God's Word, it is a dead letter to him; but let him open the door of his heart and suffer the spirit of God to enter in, it will cause him to repent unto life and take its abode in that heart, and will put him in remembrance of all I have said unto you, saith Christ. Now let him read God's Word and it will be life, for it is the spirit that maketh alive. Now, the spirit and the word go hand in hand, and will teach that person to keep all God's commandments to the end and he is saved. This is our way of belief and so we teach.

I feel satisfied friend Good and his brethren will agree with us on the last subject. I think we, as two sister Churches, should not ridicule each other quite so much, and have more charity, which would be for the better for both Churches and outsiders; also be more acceptable with God.

H. C. LESHER.

CHRISTIAN CHEERFULNESS.

The language of the religion of Christ truly in the heart is that of rejoicing. "I will joy in the God of my salvation," said Habakkuk. Joy and peace are the fruit of believing. "Believing," said Peter, "ye rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory." Paul, too, closes one of the best of his epistles with the charge to all saints' saying, "Rejoice evermore." All these, and the multiplied similar expressions in the Holy Scriptures, show in the clearest terms that cheerfulness and joy are divinely intended to be among the most marked characteristics, and should be regarded as among the most constant of the privileges and duties of every true Christian.

Yet how far is all this practically from many that bear the Christian name? Their countenance looks as if it were seldom or never lighted up with the comfort and bliss of a joyful heart within. Their very coming into the social circle is not unfrequently the signal for every sign of cheerfulness and joy to flee away as dangerous and forbidden things.

But why should such things be? If a man has truly had his sins forgiven, been reconciled to God, and made to have a good hope of its being certainly, and in the best of all senses, well with him, both in this life and in that which is to come, has he not of all persons some ground upon which he may have joy, and if he has it, and has it as the fruit of his faith in Christ and through his religion, ought he not to show it to others.

THE WORLD'S WORK.

Our eternal lives are not made up of great occasions, and our greatness is not in superhuman and exhaustive effort, but in gradual growth, and this is nourished by little daily acts sacrifices and efforts which call into exercise every faculty of soul and sense; and the lives which most deserve to be called sublime are those of which the world and history take little account.

The lives of men and women around us are, for the most part, commonplace, and we could not afford to have it otherwise. If all then were reaching occasions rendering themselves sublime, how would the world's work be done?

The world's work is tiresome, perplexing, uncongenial, and sometimes, and for some people of necessity, it is very disagreeable and menial service, yet in the spirit in which this work may be conceived and carried forward to the end, there is sublime purpose and consecration, be the end ever so humble.

From the Christian Observer.

THE FAMILY AT BETHANY—NO 3.

Mary—Love of the Savior.

The gentle Mary was the most lovely of all the little household at Bethany. The occasional glimpses we get of her in the New Testament, reveal her as a woman of the most exquisite loveliness of character. Her heart was deeply imbued with the religion of Christ, and we have in her a most beautiful type of deep-toned, earnest piety. To the natural graces of her heart had been added all the graces of our holy religion, which so beautify and adorn, and elevate and ennoble, and make still more attractive, the character of woman. She had often sat at the feet of Jesus and gathered instruction from Him; and the influence He exerted upon her through His holy teachings and example, has shaped and moulded her whole life into one of beautiful symmetry. And her love for Him was most striking. In her fond and trusting heart, He had no rival. No earthly object was suffered to win away a tithe of her affection for Him.

Her love for Him was most strikingly manifested. On one occasion, occurring just a few days before the crucifixion, and after Lazarus had been raised from the dead, He was in Bethany, and sat at meat in the house of Simon, the leper. John tells us that a supper had been made to Him there. Martha served at the entertainment, and Lazarus sat at the table with them. Mary, having an alabaster box of very precious and costly ointment, opened it, and while He sat at meat, poured it upon His head and feet(Matt. 26: 7, John 12: 3), and the whole house wasfilled with the odor, and she wiped His feet with her hair. Could there have been a more sublime expression of esteem and veneration, and love for the person and character of the Savior; of gratitude for His kindness and zeal for His glory?

This touching scene instead of melting the disciples and giving them pleasure, but excited their indignation, and they called it a "waste." Judas Iscariot, the traitor and apostate, who had always been covetous and a thief, and who was doubtless even then forming and maturing plans for the betrayal of his Master, inquired with assumed benignity for the poor. "Why was not this ointment sold for three hundred pence (more than fifty dollars) and given to the poor?" "This he said," says John, "not that he cared for the poor, but because he was a thief and had the bag, and bore what was put therein." But the Savior answered sorrowfully, while the tragical events of the crucifixion rose vividly before his mind, "Why trouble ye the woman? for she hath wrought a good work upon me. For ye have the poor always with you, but me ye have not always. For in that she hath poured this ointment on my body, she did it for my burial."

He then uttered the prophetic words, "Verily, I say unto you, wheresoever this gospel shall be preached in the whole world, there shall also this, that this woman hath done be told for a memorial of her." And how has his prediction been verified? That act of that devoted, faithful woman has stood and will forever stand as a memorial of her. It has linked her name with the Savior for all time. Wherever the gospel has been proclaimed, wherever the name of Jesus has been known and loved and honored, a fragrance more delightful than the odor of the ointment she poured out, has lingered around the name of Mary. And it will ever be so. That simple act of devotion to our beloved Redeemer, has embalmed her memory in every pious heart, and while time lasts, her name will be honored by all who love and honor her annointed Lord.

Dear reader, how have we manifested our love for the Savior? We cannot, indeed, annoint his head and feet with precious ointment, as did the devoted Mary, but have we in any striking and unmistakable way shown to the world that we love him? Do we let those around us know by our actions that He is to us chief among ten thousand, and the one altogether lovely? Does our love prompt us to make sacrifices—real sacrifices that are felt by us—and do we do it promptly, joyfully and with cheerful zeal; not because we felt it to be a duty that we must discharge, but because our overflowing hearts lead us to it for his sake, that his glory may be promoted and his name hallowed in the earth? Ah, cold is that love that cannot answer these questions in the affirmative! If indeed, he were to inquire of us as he did of Peter, "Lovest thou me?" could we answer as did the apostle, "Lord, thou knowest all things; thou knowest that I love thee;" or in the language of the poet:

"Thou knowest I love thee, dearest Lord,
But oh! I long to soar
Far from the sphere of mortal joys,
And learn to love thee more."

The Savior is not on earth in person, but his representatives, his loved ones, are here mingling with us in the every day walks of life, and we may show our love for him by our affections for them, and by our kindness and attention to them. Would we then know whether we love the Savior? Let us look to our hearts and see what are their promptings. Let us look to our actions and see if they will bear the test. Reader, how stands the case with you? The Savior says, "He that loveth me, shall be loved of my Father, and I will love him and will manifest myself to him." But bitter things are written of those who have not this love. "If any man loveth not the Lord Jesus Christ, let him be anathema maranatha."

J. B. R.

THE CONSTRAINING LOVE OF CHRIST.

Continued.

The love of Christ impresses the individual with a feeling of his lost estate, in order that this loss and its attendant misery may humble him, and constrain him to seek the love of Christ, that in it he may find alleviation and a cure, for this is the intention of God in bringing us into this state of distress; not to repel us from Him, and plunge us into perdition and despair, but to induce us to seek his loving heart, and by a penitential hungering after the love of Christ, escape from all our sinfulness and its consequent misery, and cast ourselves upon the atoning blood, precious merits, and eternal grace of Christ; by a humble looging and aspiration of the heart after the influences of the grace and love of Christ, in the manner in which it may be really experienced to the tranquilizing of the distressed heart and conscience. In such a situation, all that the man has to do, is deeply to humble himself, confess his guilt, cast away every other confidence and desire to know nothing but the love of Christ and his eternal mercy. And when sin and the guilt of sin, and when wrath and condemnation press with all their weight upon the mind, the individual must do nothing else but plunge himself so much the more profoundly into the open abyss of the eternal mercy and love of Christ. It is then that we ought to let the love of Christ constrain us to repentance, and through repentance to love; it will then assuredly follow eventually, that the love of Christ will cover the multitude of sins, so that afterwards the individual is confounded, as the prophet expresses it, Ezek. 16: 63, with humble thankfulness and confusion, when the Lord thus forgives him all his sins, and repays them, as it were, solely with His love; and then it likewise happens that they to whom most has been forgiven, love more than others. The love of Christ, then, further constrains a converted soul to depart from sin, the world and its vanities. The man can no longer run with the multitude as before, without feeling himself under restraint. He then becomes sensible of sins of which none other knows, or can know, anything—even the smallest things, which do not come under the jurisdiction of the magistracy, or of man, but wherefore? Is a person subject to be despised and ridiculed when he lives a life of vanity, and is not under the influence of piety? By no means; the world, on the contrary, ridicules and slanders him who no longer runs to the same excess of riot. 1 Pet. 4: 5. The love of Christ constrains him to forsake these things; he dare not and will not follow his depraved nature any longer, but with the apostle says, "for the time past of my life is sufficient to have wrought the will of the Gentiles. I have long enough crucified my beloved Savior with my sins—that Savior who so loved me as not only to forsake the world but even heaven for me." Yes, the love of Christ constrains us not only to deny the gross vices of the world, and the dead works of sin, but urges us also to the real renunciation of the love of the world, and of attachment to created things, which may still remain in the heart—to the abandonment of the false and deeply rooted life of self—to the mortification of lustful and angry passions—to the sacrifice of our own will, our self-love and self-complacency, in small things as well as great, in natural as well as spiritual things. What gloomy and terrific ideas do we not often form of self-denial, how many weak and inexperienced souls are frequently deterred from it without a cause. "O," say they to themselves, "what a painful life must that be, when we cannot enjoy a single happy hour more in the world; it is impossible for us to live such a life." Ah, my dear friends, what erroneous ideas you are continually forming of God. He has no need of our self-denial, as it regards himself; but we have need of it. He is not an austere man, who makes our life and the road to heaven painful and laborious to us, and gives us no enjoyment in the world; but we are such foolish, blind and degenerate children as to be ignorant of our true happiness and salvation, and call that joy and pleasure which is in reality our torment and destruction. Just as a child that is playing with a knife weeps and resists, in its ignorance, when the mother's careful love commands to put it away. We must not look upon the inward impulse to self-denial as something of a legal nature, but as the constraining influence of the love of Christ; He seeks in a friendly manner to persuade us simple children to put the dangerous instrument out of our hands; and if the friendly persuasion avail not, He sometimes lets us wound ourselves that we may lay the dangerous knife aside. O, it is love alone. Christ will gladly have our whole hearts, and by means of such mortifications remove every obstruction out of the way, that thus He may make us partakers of His real, perfect and eternal joy, love and delight. Yea, the more the Lord leads a soul to deny itself, and the less liberty He gives the individual, the more especial is His love towards him. We oust, therefore, hunger after the love of Christ. Seek the willingness and the power to deny ourselves, and seek it until we find it; until the love of Christ constrain us voluntarily to renounce ourselves and all created things, and esteem ourselves happy in denying ourselves, and hazarding something for the love of Him who is our friend, our parent, and our bridegroom, and to live so as we may best please Him.

We want more of the Bible in our Church life; its knowledge, spirit, and power! Its well springs of salvation impart a robustness to us spiritually we cannot do without. The Church is not a lying-in hospital for souls whose invalided corps must be treated to the tid bits of delicate fancy, and sentiment and rhetoric clap trap.

YOUTHS' DEPARTMENT.

ALMOST THERE.

BY R. G. S.

Down close to the river's edge,
Drawing nigh the Golden Shore,
Celestial music mingling with
The river's sullen roar,
Visions there are of peaceful rest
And love, on the other side,
And angels wait to greet us
When we cross the rolling tide.

But our weary feet turn back,
And the music dies away;
A solemn stillness reigns around
The soul's return to clay.
We ope our wondering eyes
With a sense of quiet rest,
To see our loved ones gathered 'round,
To welcome us from "The Blest."

God grant the life He spared
May conform to His holy will,
That our daily thought and prayer shall be
That His love our life shall fill.
May we thankfully take the strength
In His goodness He shall give,
May it be our cherished thought
To serve Him while we live.

When the sands of life run out
And his angel bids us come,
And we close our tired, longing eyes
Upon our earthly home,
Shall we reach the river's side,
Where the strains of music sweet
Come wafted as the Saviour comes
To guide us through the deep?

Will He with undying love
Bear us safely o'er the tide?
Shall our sore feet press the golden sands
Upon the other side?
Shall our eyes in Heaven open
On that peaceful happy shore,
To meet and know our dear ones there
In bliss forevermore?

I DON'T CARE.

On last Sabbath eve. I went to church and I happened to get a seat among the boys, some large enough in stature to be considered young men and we suppose they thought they were, but in reality they had not as much manliness as some of the smaller ones When service commenced they still continued to whisper, and when the minister was about half through with his discourse one boy proposed to another to go out. His companion refused as he thought they would make too much noise and disturb the minister. But I don't care, said the other, and out he went, much to the annoyance of the minister and the hearers. Of course all good boys were glad when he was gone, for such a boy's room is more desirable than his presence. Now what attracted our attention most was that expression I don't care. That boy fought many hard battles before he could make that expression, for all bad characters are formed in a furnace of constant fire. By this we mean the constant checking of conscience, that principle which tells us when we do wrong. The first time you disobeyed your parents you felt the effects of conscience. It told you you had done something very wrong and you felt miserable. The next time you disobeyed you had, perhaps similar feelings, but the third, fourth and fifth time you could do it more easily, and finally you became so hardened that you can, like this boy, say "I don't care." Just so it is with all bad habits. The first time you knowingly lie or swear you fight a very hard battle, but after you have gained one victory the next conflict is entered into more freely, and so on until you don't care. This boy then we supposed had fought some hard battles, for the first time he went out of church he must have felt very badly, but now the habit is formed and he can do it easily. He now gratifies all the evil propensities of his nature regardless of right, or what others may think of him.

I hope none of the young readers of the PILGRIM have formed the habit of going out of church. It is an indication of ill manners and boys who are in the habit of talking in church and then getting up and going out, are generally rude in all their deportment. They care not who they annoy or what others may think of them. Such boys are disrespected, and are looked upon as being low, mean, and of little use anywhere. Then boys if you are in the habit of going out of church we hope you will think how low it is and try to reform at once. Do not allow yourself to say I don't care. When you lose all respect for the opinion of others, you are indeed pretty low—an outcast of society, disregarded by all good and well thinking persons. I hope all our young friends will try to conduct themselves so as to command the respect and esteem of all by whom they are surrounded. Remember a good name is more desirable than great riches. This you may have if you will only try to conduct yourselves properly, but if you become so reckless as to not care what you do, or what others think of you, you will certainly lose this great treasure. Beware of that expression I don't care.

THE LITTLE BOOK.

More than a year ago, as the writer was seated in the cars going West, a pleasant voice sang out, "Papers, sir? morning papers, lady?"

There was nothing new in the words; nothing new to see a small boy with a package of papers under his arm; but the voice so low and musical, its clear, pure tones mellow as a flute, and tender as only love and sorrow could make, called up hallowed memories. One look at the large brown eyes, the broad forehead, the mass of tangled nut-brown curls, the pinched and hollow cheeks, and his history was known.

"What is your name, my boy?" as, half blind with tears, I reached out my hand for a paper.

"Johnny ——:" the last name I did not hear.

"You can read?"

"Oh, yes! I have been to school some," glancing out of the window to see if there was necessity for haste

I had a darling boy once whose name was Johnny. He had the same brown hair, and large, tender, loving brown eyes; and perhaps it was on this account that I felt like throwing my arms around his neck, and kissing his thin cheek.

There was something pure in the child standing modestly there in his patched clothes and half-worn shoes; his collar course, but spotlessly white; his hands clean, and well moulded.

A long shrill whistle, and a short, peremptory call, and Johnny must be off. There was nothing to choose. My little Testament, with its neat binding and its bright steel clasps, was in Johnny's hand.

"Will you read it, Johnny?"

"I will, lady; I will."

There was a movement: we were off. I strained my eyes out of the window; but I could not see him: and shutting them, I asked His love for this destitute, tender voiced boy.

A month since, I made the same journey, and passed over the same railroad; and what was my surprise to see the same boy, taller, healthier, with the same clear, calm eye, and pure, clear voice!

"I have thought of you, lady; I wanted to tell you it is all owing to the little book."

"What's all owing to the little book, Johnny?"

"The little book has done all. I carried it home and father read it. He was out of work then; and mother cried over it so much, that I thought it must be a wicked book to make them cry so. But it is different now; and its all owing to the little book. We live in a better house now, and father don't drink; and mother says it will be all right again."

Dear little Johnny! his bright face all aglow, his eyes bright and sparkling, and his face looking so happy!

Never did I crave so for a moment of time. But no; the cars moved, and Johnny was gone.

"It is all the little book," sounds in my ears—the little book that told of Jesus, and of His love to poor sinners. What a change! A comfortable home, no more a slave to strong drink, hope was in the mother's heart; health mantled the cheeks of the children.

Would that all the Johnnies who sell papers, and have fathers who drink, and mothers who weep over the ruin of their once happy homes, would take to those homes the little book that tells of Jesus!—United Presbyterian.

Be always frank and true; spurn every sort of affectation and disguise. Have the courage to confess your ignorance and awkwardness. Confide your faults and follies to but few.

PAT'S PLEA FOR THE BIBLE.

In a school in the west of Ireland, a few years ago, were two boys about the same age—fifteen or sixteen. Their names were Pat F. and Philip O'F. There were many intelligent young people in the school, but Pat and Philip took the lead in most things; and, indeed, the visitors were often astonished at the remarkable readiness and appropriateness of their replies to the miscellaneous questions put to them. Philip has become a missionary of the cross in Turkey. We do not know what has become of Pat—at that time by far the most promising boy in the school. But "the day will declare it."

We remember on one occasion Mr. B., well known in that neighborhood, paid a visit to the school. He was desirous of trying at once the knowledge of the Scriptures possessed by the scholars, and their power to apply it to the solution of controverted points. Mr. B. assumed the language of an opponent to the general reading of the word of God.

"Boys," said, he "what right have you to read the Bible?"

"Every right, sir," said the boys, "for Christ said (John v. 49) 'Search the Scriptures.'"

"All very well," said Mr. B., "to prove that big people may read—men and woman who have come to years of maturity—but what has that to say to little fellows like you?"

"The word of God is fit for little people too," said Pat, "for we read (2 Tim- iii, 15) that Timothy knew the Holy Scriptures from a child."

"But," said Mr. B., "Timothy afterward, you know, became a priest. Your text only proves that young boys who are going forward to priesthood should be taught the Holy Scriptures."

"Oh, but, sir," said Pat, with a bright twinkle of his intelligent eye, that proclaimed he had the best of the argument even before the answer came, "wasn't Timothy 3d Epistle i. 5) taught by his grandmother? and sure, sir, she wasn't a priest!"—Wesleyan Juvenile Offering.

SOWING DISCORD.

"Aunt Alice, I think Sarah Lee is the most disagreeable girl in our school, she is always making mischief. Now I have helped her ever so many times in her lessons, and lent her my history, but she is not in the least grateful. She told Mabel that she thought I was awful proud of my curly hair, and that my composition wasn't half as good as Mary Gray's."

"Were not both statements true?" quietly asked her aunt.

Laura blushed, but presently said: "I think it is very mean for her to talk about me, any way. I suppose she was provoked because I got above her in spelling. I am sure it was not my fault that she missed. I told Mabel I thought that was what made her so spiteful."

"You never talk against her, do you, Laura?"

"No, indeed, I am sure I never did."

"Take care, my child: I think I can convince you that you said she was the most disagreeable girl in school, that she was always making mischief, that she was ungrateful and spiteful because you got above her. Now, did she say anything half as bad about you? How would it sound if what you have just said was reported to her, exactly as you have said it? Would you not be very sorry indeed to have her hear it?"

Laura looked as she felt, very much confused, and she had no apology to offer.

"Always look carefully within, my dear, when one speaks ill of you, and see if you do not deserve it, and cannot learn a lesson from it. Then, before you allow yourself to get angry, ask if you have not said quite as bad things about the other party. There are a great many hasty words spoken, which hurt nobody but the speaker, unless they are repeated. To do this is a tale-bearer's business; that is strictly forbidden in the Bible. 'Thou shalt not go up and down as a tale-bearer among my people.'

CORRESPONDENCE

Dear Pilgrim: As it has been my lot to be at home this holy day of the Lord, I was searching the Scriptures. I find if we want to be Christians, we must forsake the pride and fashions of the world, for God resisteth the proud and giveth grace to the humble. Then if he gives grace to the humble, he is well pleased with those that try to follow in his footsteps. Oh how beautiful the words of the Apostle, "Be ye followers of God as dear children, and walk in love as Christ also has loved us, and hath given himself for an offering and a sacrifice to God for a sweet smelling savior."

Dear young brethren and sisters, are not these cheering words to encourage us on our way to Heaven, to that blest abode where my spirit longs to be? I believe that is the desire of all true followers of Christ to be where parting is known no more. My heart was made to rejoice a few weeks ago while on a visit to my native place from which I had been absent for a year or more. I attended a Lovefeast, and also visited my mother and sisters in the flesh, and found them all well. Oh how I would have loved to have met them as sisters in the Lord. The Lovefeast was largely attended, and I met with many dear young sisters who have enlisted since I have, to follow the meek and lowly Savior in his own appointed way. Oh how glad I was to see them surround the table of the Lord. Some of them are quite young and tender lambs of the flock. Dear sisters, let us try to live a life of meekness and humbleness of mind, that we keep ourselves unspotted from the world, and let not our adorning be the plaiting of hair or wearing of false hair, or of gold or costly array, but as becometh those professing godliness.

ADA HARNE.

MECHANICSBURG PA, July 17, '72.

Dear Brethren:—I for the first time, seat myself to write a few lines for the PILGRIM which I get and dearly love. I spend many evenings in reading its interesting pages, which greatly cheers me and increases my happiness, but who can be truly happy without the love of God shed abroad in the heart? You, dear friends, who are running your rounds on the mountain of sin and folly, do not know the value of that happiness which religion gives. You may feel to be happy, and seem to enjoy yourselves while standing aloof from the promises of God, but what will be your happiness when the cold and icy hand of death takes hold on you? Then, my dear friends, your happiness will end, therefore if still unprepared, what are you waiting for? more preaching or more pleasure? Your pleasures will soon fade and pass away. I fear many of you will wait too long. Do not delay, youth is the time to serve the Lord; you are neither too old nor too young to enlist in the cause of Jesus and enter into the Good Shepherd's Fold. Some of you have fathers and mothers in the church and yet you stand back. Others brothers and sisters in the church and still serve satan. Oh how can you, enjoying such privileges, remain away from God? I am eighteen years of age and have much to bear. None of my friends belong to the same church which I do. My parents are members of the Bethel Church and my brother is a Methodist. Sometimes my trials and temptations are very great and hard to bear, yet the strong arm upholds me and tells me where there is no cross there is no crown. Hope that you dear friends, will think of your best interest before it may be forever too late, I remain kindly yours. Brethren if worthy a place, please correct mistakes. From your unworthy sister,

AMANDA ANDERSON.

Dear Pilgrim: I herewith give you an item of news from the Middle Fork Church, Clinton county, Ind. This Church has been organized upwards of 30 years. John Metzgar was the first bishop, under whose care the church increased rapidly. Next Daniel Marsh was made bishop by the church, after which John Metzgar moved to Illinois and left the charge to Daniel Marsh. Under his care the church continued to prosper until the year 1869, but for the last three years the church has been on the decline. In 1871 Daniel Marsh left for Illinois, and left the church in the care of Allen Maler and Stephen Metzgar, both bishops. This church needs help as there has been only one added by baptism for the last three years, while some have been expelled, others moved away, and a goodly number have gone to the spirit land and are now reaping the reward of their labors.

There are two meeting houses in this arm, having service in the one every two weeks and every four weeks in the other, they being some four miles apart. The preaching we have does not seem to do much good. Now, if some brethren strong in the faith would make this one of their stopping places and lend a helping hand, and the members be earnestly engaged in prayer in behalf of the church, it may be restored to life again and become more prosperous.

ONBERG, PA, July 29, '72.

Dear Pilgrim:—I suppose you remember of sending me some of Bro. Flory's tracts. I sent you $125, and received sixty and have distributed them all but two or three, and could give away twice that many more if I had them. I only got 15 cents for the whole lot. I gave one to one of my Baptist neighbors, and it has put him and several of his brethren on a stir, and I think that it might do some good if the thing is kept moving but I am a poor man and am not able to send for any more. The Baptists will hold their Association within about twelve miles of me, in this month, and if I had about one hundred tracts I would go there and distribute them among the congregation. If they would have as much effect on them as the one I gave to the one above mentioned, they might do considerable good &c. S. S. C.

We have sent you another package and hope that you may be enabled to make such use of them as the author intended when writing.

Dear Brethren:—By request of Bro. Philip Boyle please publish the following:

The brethren at Meadowbranch, Md., will, the Lord willing, hold their Communion on Saturday 12th of October, commencing half past one o'clock P. M. Also at Sam's Creek, on Tuesday 15th at same hour, to both of which we extend a hearty invitation, especially to ministering brethren, and inasmuch as our district is small and congregations not very far apart and only five of them, and there will be other Lovefeasts in connection at Monocacy immediately following ours, and I suppose Beaver Dam and Bush Creek in connection, will not some of our brethren from Virginia and Penna., be provoked to come and see how we do? Feast with us and call to others to come and enjoy what all the true followers of Jesus enjoy? Brethren what say you to these things? I fancy some Bro. when he reads this will say "I'll come."

EPHRAIM W. STONER.

UNION BRIDGE, MD., July 30th, 1872.

TO THE BROTHERHOOD.—Dear Pilgrim: Our beloved Brother and overseer, Philip Boyle, has a wish that his brethren may know his condition, therefore suggested that I should write something to you for publication. I will cheerfully comply with his wishes and write as follows: He, naturally feebly constituted, has at times suffered from Vertigo for a number of years, but the church has still had the benefit of his labor and counsel until recently. It has now been some 8 or 9 weeks since he has been confined to his chair, not being able to lie down to rest. From his attending physicians (Drs. Brown & Englar, successors to Dr. E. L. Brown) I received the following statement of the nature of his disease: Dilation of the right side of the heart attended with dropsical swelling of the lower extremities and aggravated paroxysms of Dyspnoea. He suffers considerably at times, but patiently—desires an interest in the prayers of the faithful. E. W. STONER.

NOTICE.

All to whom it may concern.

The Church in which the District Meeting of the Northeastern District of Ohio, in 1873, is to be held, wish to give notice through their periodicals that they have appointed W. Arnold, of Somerset, Perry county, Ohio, as Corresponding Secretary. Any person wishing any information on that matter can address him at the above named office. The time and place of holding said Meeting will be announced through our periodicals in due time.

By order of the Church.

ELI STONER.

Beloved Brethren:—Please announce that we, the brethren of the Salem Congregation, Frederick Co., Va., intend holding, the Lord willing, a Communion meeting on Saturday and Sunday the 14th and 15th of September at 1 o'clock. The meeting will be near Newtown, Stephensburg, and near the Winchester & Strasburg R. Road. An invitation is given to all, especially ministering brethren. G. S. RINKIN.

DIED.

HOOVER.—In the Yellow Creek Branch, Bedford county, Pa., July 18, 1872, Bro. John L. Hoover, after an illness of about 3 mos., aged 31 years, 2 mos. and 2 days. Funeral occasion improved by the brethren from John 11:23. S. A. MOORE.

MILLER.—June 16, in the Logan Congregation, Logan county, Ohio, our beloved old sister Catharine, wife of Jacob B. Miller, aged 66 years, 9 mouths and 21 days, disease dropsy and heart disease.

Sister Miller died very suddenly. She was getting ready to go on a visit to her daughters, her husband asked her if she could get ready till he would hitch up and she said she thought she could, which were the last words she spoke. Her husband after being ready came in and found her lying on the floor partly dressed, and dead. She was a faithful sister for many years, and now she leaves a kind husband and 5 children to mourn their loss. Funeral preached by the brethren from Philipians 1:21.

J. L. FRANTZ.

BALMER.—In the bound of the Logan Co., Ohio, July 18, our beloved old grand mother Balmer, aged 92 yrs. 5 mos. and 17 days.

She leaves two daughters and one son who are up in years, to mourn their loss but we hope their loss is her great gain. Funeral services by the brethren.

HEADINGS.—In Union twp., Logan co., Ohio, July 14, Jacob, son of Samuel and Nancy Headings, aged 8 years, 5 mos. and 11 days. Disease, Inflamatory Rheumatism.

Funeral preached by David Plank, Omish Minister in the German and by the writer in the English Language, from 103 Psalm.

J. L. FRANTZ.

DEARDORFF.—In the Solomons Creek Congregation, Elkhart co., Indiana, May 27th, 1872, Sister Susannah Deardorff, wife of friend Peter Leardorff, aged 50 years, 9 months and 7 days. Funeral by the Brethren, from Heb; 13: 14.

The Weekly Pilgrim.

JAMES OREEK, PA., Aug. 6th, 1872.

AN INQUIRY.

Please give an explanation through the columns of your excellent paper, the Standard, of I Corinthians, xi. 22. Also of the 33rd and 34th verses of the same chapter.

SEEKER AFTER THE TRUTH.

The agape, or feasts of love, (Jude 12) seem to have been a feast in which all Christians shared, the rich and poor alike supplying the table each according to his means. During, or at the close of this feast, the Lord's Supper was observed. There was nothing of divine appointment in the love-feast; it was the spontaneous outgrowth of the affection and enthusiasm of the first age of the church. It was not meant so much to supply the hungry as to cultivate spiritual and social affections. At Corinth, the party-spirit, so sadly prevalent, and the carnality that went along with it, led to a shameful perversion of the love-feast as well as of the Lord's Supper which was observed in connection with it. The rich, instead of placing their abundant contributions to the feast on a common table, along with the moderate and modest offerings of those in less affluent circumstances, to be shared by all even by those who were too poor to bring anything, had a table of their own, and made haste to feast by themselves before the arrival of the poorer brethren. Not only did they feast apart, but they feasted to excess, and entirely forgot the Lord's Supper with which the feast closed, being drunk on stupid with excess of eating and drinking.

It is this perversion of the love-feast, and this ignoring of the Lord's Supper which the apostle rebukes, alike as a great wrong to the poor and a dishonor to the Church of God. He therefore directs them to eat their meals at home; and when they come together, to wait until all are assembled, and then observe the Lord's Supper together in a becoming manner, according to the model furnished when it was instituted. He exhorts them to this, that they be not condemned of God in their assemblies. It is easy to see, in the light of these facts, what was meant by eating and drinking unworthily and failing to discern the Lord's body.—Christian Standard.

We cannot see that "a seeker after the truth" has been much enlightened by the above explanation unless our brother of the Standard has a different edition of the Testament from ours or struck a new vein of information as the following would seem to indicate:

"And made haste to feast by themselves before the arrival of the poorer brethren." This is certainly a modern rendering of the Scriptures under consideration, as we never before learned that the poorer brethren were behind time on that occasion, neither can we divine any cause why they should be unless the rich rode in carriages while the poor had to walk. Well, well, brother Standard, that is bad logic, very bad. But again. "He therefore directs them to eat their meals at home." This is another unwarrantable construction, as he did no such thing, but in substance, says: If ye are so hungry that ye cannot "tarry one for another," ye have houses at home, eat there so that when you come to partake of the Lord's Supper, ye can wait until all things are ready. It was not the use but the abuse that the apostle was rebuking. If the perverting of the Lord's Supper was a sufficient reason that it should be eaten at home, it would be equally logical to say that the bread and wine should also be eaten at home, as it is evident that its use was also perverted when it is said, some, or "another is drunken." It is certainly a great perversion of truth to try to make it apparent that Paul directed the church at Corinth to abandon the Lord's Supper after such pointed language as the following: "Wherefore, my brethren, when ye come together to eat, tarry one for another." That this eating has a reference to the Lord's Supper and not the Communion, or bread and wine, must be evident to every reflecting mind, especially when we consider the import of the following injunctions: "And if any man hunger let him eat at home." Certainly no man would think of satisfying his hunger with the small morsel of bread used to represent the broken body of Christ. If so, there would be no necessity of the injunction "tarry one for another" as there could be no possible incentive for them to partake of these sacred emblems before the proper time, therefore the inevitable conclusion is that it was at the deipnon or Lord's Supper that they were to "tarry one for another," and if any had such craving appetites that they could not wait until all was in readiness they should eat at their homes, before coming up to this Supper of the Lord's, that they come not together unto condemnation. The Lord's Supper is a feast of charity, a love-feast, a feast at which rich and poor are brought together on a common level and all things are common, where every line of distinction is hidden and all are one in Christ Jesus. Such was the character of the Supper celebrated by our Savior and recorded by his witnesses. Such was the Supper Paul labored to set in order at Corinth. Such was the Supper of the primitive Christians and such is the Supper perpetuated by the Brethren.

New subscribers are always in season. Only 3 cents per number to end of the year.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

From the Visitor we learn that since last Fall about forty were added to the Cherokee Church, Tenn. To George's Creek Church, Fayette Co., Pa., ten. Bush Creek Congregation, six.

We did not receive a mail last week but what had one or more orders for J. S. Flory's Tracts. Some are distributing them by the hundred. We can still supply orders. Send them along.

Bro. Samuel Myers, of Burnettsville, Ind., expects, this fall, to pitch his tent and permanently locate in the "Grand Prairie" about forty miles west of his present location. There are a few members and no ministers in that locality. He goes to supply the deficiency.

—The New York Medical College for Women will begin their Tenth Annual Term of twenty weeks, at their new College in Twelfth Street, Corner of Second Avenue, Oct. 15th. For Announcements, giving full particulars, address, with stamps, the Dean, Mrs. C. S. LOZIER, M. D., or the Secretary, Mrs. C. F. WELLS, New York.

From the last Monthly Report of the department of agriculture we glean the following:

Corn prospects are good. From 989 counties, including an area usually producing 600,000,000 to 700,000,000 of bushels annually, come returns indicating an increase of 3 per cent.

The condition of oats crop is from 1 to 6 per cent. above average in all the New England and Middle States except New Jersey and Deleware. Rye is reported above average in condition but a reduction in acreage of from 1 to 15 per cent.

The wheat crop of the United States is reported to be 6 per cent. less than an average crop. The quality of the grain is uniformly superior, straw short but heads are generally long and well filled. While the crop is short in some States, in others it is very good, especially in the southern States. From a field of 27 acres in Knox county, Texas, there was threshed 690 bushels of Tappahannock wheat, or nearly twenty six bushels per acre.

—This week we received a communication from Eld. H. C. Lesher, of the River Brethren Church, which we give in another column. He thinks that brother D. F. Good misrepresented their tenets of faith. Brother Good is of age and may speak for himself, but we know him too well to believe that he would willingly misrepresent any body or any faith. With due respect to Eld. Lesher's views we will be pleased to have him, or any of his brethren, prove that Christ and His apostles ate the Jewish passover at the time He instituted feetwashing. If He did, He done it out of place and time and therefore a violator of the Jewish law. It is truly to be regreted that we who agree in so many points of vital religion should not be fully united in fighting for Jesus and against the many evils and heresies now prevalent in the world, and we fondly hope that the time may yet come that we may be enabled to see eye to eye and unite our efforts in proclaiming to the world a pure and primitive Christianity.

PLEASE NOTICE.

We have this year entered largely into the credit system with our subscribers. Many promised to pay as soon as harvest was over. That time is now about past and we kindly inform such and all others who owe us either for subscription or books, that we are in need of some money and will be much obliged if those who can, will remit at once. Do not wait for the agents to ask you for it, but pay them as soon as possible, and we feel assured that our agents will forward it to us. We have labored faithfully to give you a good paper, please accommodate us by helping us to pay our honest debts which are accumulating against us for paper, material, help, &c.

PERSONAL.

S. M. MUMMERT. We do not know how many Tracts you ordered. We have sent, if not enough please inform us.

A. S. & B. A. C. Your PILGRIM to the end of the year is 60 cents.

LEVI LOEHR. We have no account of receiving your letter. It is all right now.

Essays, Church News, Obituaries, and Announcements wanted from every congregation in the brotherhood. The more aid we get in this way the better will the PILGRIM be. Think of this.

SALEM COLLEGE.

The Fall term of Salem College will open for the reception of any number of students from all parts on the 4th of September, 1872. Ample accommodations and thorough instruction will be given all students who connect themselves with this College. Good board can be had in good families at $2.50 to $3.00 per week or students can board themselves in clubs at $1.25 to $1.50 per week as numbers have done with the consent of the faculty. Special care will be given students who are far from home.

For Catalogues, Scholarships and full particulars address

SALEM COLLEGE.

July 22, '72. Bourbon, Ind.

Three Millions Starved in Persia.

A correspondent to the New York Observer gives the following in reference to the famine in Persia:

We are glad to see that measures are taken to contribute for the sufferers by this fearful famine raging here. There is great need of aid. The distress about us is very great, despite all our efforts. Much life has been saved, and thousands bless the Christians who are extending succor to these starving ones. We have endeavored to use the means placed at our disposal in the most economical way—that is, to benefit the greatest number, and still save from utter demoralization. We have tried to help those who are disposed to help themselves, by furnishing seed to sow, cotton to spin, spades with which to work, and employing multitudes in work for the general good. Our large body of pastors and teachers have rendered us much assistance and saved us from imposture.

But the crowd of refugees from other and more destitute districts increases, and our doors are thronged with the starving crowd. Some of the scenes are heartrending.

An Armenian writes to us from Tehran that it is computed that 106,000 have fallen victims of the famine and died in that city. Probably many were refugees from other and more destitute places. He says it is believed that not less than 3,000,000 have died of starvation in Persia.

From Hamadan our helper writes that cannibalism is awfully prevalent, and that young children are decoyed from their homes, killed and eaten. The English Consul at Tabreez, in writing us to day, says: "I have requested the famine relief committee to forward to you whatever funds they may have at present in their hands. I do not think any part of Persia is in such a frightful state. Cannibalism seems to be the universal rule." Let not friends say, "Before our aid can reach them the harvest will have come." Tens of thousands have so completely disposed of what property they had that should prices fall far below even their normal state, they have nothing left with which to buy. Tens of thousands will need to buy cattle and farming untensils. A long time will elapse ere the nation can rise to its feet. Help should be given and that generously.

Yours.
G. W. Coan.

The Great Heat.

The thirty days preceding the 19th of July, 1872, will probably be remembered as the most protracted "heated term" of the present age. The oldest and youngest inhabitants agree in testifying that nothing like it has occurred in their time, and we certainly hope will not hereafter. In New York and vicinity, all the usual remedies for heat have failed. Patience was the only alleviator. In the country it was only a little less severe than in the city. In other cities the same state of things prevailed. The same reports come to us from over the sea. Our correspondents complain of heat everwhere. In London and Paris it was intolerable. The heated citizens fled by thousands to the sea-side. It appears that the heat was exceptionally great in India. At Allahabad it has reached 115 degrees in the shade, and at Hyderbad 119 degrees. At the latter place it caused the death of an officer, four men and twelve children, among the 16th Lancers. In and around Poona, in the Deccan, the wells are dried up, the cattle are dying, and people are thankful if they can obtain a jar of water by no greater trouble than that of walking a number of miles for it. The Bombay Gazette says that prospects would be very gloomy were not the monsoon at hand.

We have reason to be thankful that no epidemic has added its horrors to the sufferings attending such extraordinary heat, and that it is now over.

GOOD BOOKS.

A large number of our patrons are receiving our books as noticed below, as premiums, and express themselves highly pleased with them. Others who are not agents, have enquired whether we keep them for sale. We have now made arrangements with Mr. Wells to furnish any of their publications post paid at publishers prices. Orders for books must be accompanied with the cash, and plain directions for sending them.

Conversion of St. Paul. By George Jarvis Geer, D. D. 12mo. fine edition, $1. Plain edition, 75 cents.

Footprints of Life; or, Faith and Nature Reconciled.—A Poem in three parts. The Body. The Soul. The Deity. By Philip Harvey, M. D. $1.25.

Fruit Culture for the Million. A Hand book, being a Guide to the Cultivation and Management of Fruit Trees. Descriptions of the Best Varieties, and How to Propagate them. illustrated $1.00.

Hand-book for Home Improvement: comprising "How to Write," "How to Talk," How to Behave," and "How to do Business," in one vol. 2.25.

How to Live; Saving and Wasting, or Domestic Economy. By Solon Robinson. $1.50.

Life at Home; or, The Family and its Members. Husbands, Wives, Parents, Children, Brothers, Sisters, Employers and Employed, etc. By Rev. William Aikman, D. D. A work which should be found in every family. $1.50. Extra gilt, $2.00.

Man and Woman: Considered in their Relations to each Other and to the World. By Henry C. Pedder. 12mo, Fancy cloth. Price $1.00.

Man, in Genesis and in Geology; or, the Biblical Account of Man's Creation, tested by Scientific Theories of his Origin and Antiquity. By Joseph P. Thompson, D. D., LL.D. One vol. 12mo, $1.00.

Oratory—Sacred and Secular; or, the Extemporaneous Speaker. Including Chairman's Guide for conducting Public Meetings according to the best Parliamentary forms. By Wm. Pittenger. $1.50.

The Right Word in the Right Place. A New Pocket Dictionary and Reference Book. Embracing Synonyms, Technical Terms, Abbreviations, Foreign Phrases, Writing for the Press, Punctuation, Proof-Reading, and other Valuable Information. Cloth, 75cts.

The Emphatic, Diaglott; or The New Testament in Greek and English. Containing the Original Greek Text of the New Testament, with an Interlineary Word for-word English Translation. A Work for Students in Theology, and S. S. Teachers. By Benamin Wilson. Price, $4.00; extra fine binding, $5.00.

Wuver's Works for the Young. Comprising "Hopes and Helps for the Young of both Sexes," "Aids and Aims for Girls and Young Women," "Ways of Life; or, the Right Way and the Wrong Way," $3

Educational.

The second year of Pleasant Hill College, Warsaw, Ind., will begin Sept. 4th, 1872, in which a thoroughly practical education will be given in Academic and Collegiate studies. Brethren's children are expected to attend our weekly religious meetings. Ladies and gentlemen admitted on equal footing.

O. W. Miller, President.
July 9-tf. Warsaw, Ind.

Menno Simon's COMPLETE WORKS.

In English, translated from the original Dutch or Holland, giving the whole of the great Reformers writings on the subject of Baptism. Price in full sheep $4.50; by mail $5.14.

Address, JOHN F. FUNK & BRO.

New Hymn Books, English.

Turkey Morocco

One copy,	post-paid, - - -	$1 00
Per Dozen,	- - -	11 25

Plain Arabesque.

One Copy,	post-paid, - - -	75
Per Dozen,	" - - -	8 50

Plain Sheep.

One Copy,	post-paid, - - -	75
Per Dozen,	" - - -	8 50

Ger'n & English, Plain Sheep.

One Copy	post-paid .	$ 1 00
Per Dozen	- - - -	11 25
Arabesque plain,	- - -	1.00
Turkey morocco,	- - -	$ 1.25.
Single German	post-paid, -	50
Per Dozen,	- - -	5 50

HUNTINGDON & BROAD TOP RAIL ROAD

Summer Arrangement.

On an after Tuesday, June 4, 1872, Passenger trains will arrive and depart as follows:

Trains from Huntingdon South. — Trains from Bedford moving North.

MAIL.	ACCOM	STATIONS.	MAIL.	ACCOM
A. M.	P. M.		P. M.	A. M.
*le*8 20	LE6 00	Huntingdon,	AR5 25	AR9 10
8 28	6 06	Long Siding	5 17	9 00
8 45	6 19	McConnelstown	5 04	8 45
8 51	6 25	Pleasant Grove	4 58	8 39
9 05	6 37	Marklesburg	4 45	8 27
9 20	6 51	Coffee Run	4 33	8 11
9 27	6 58	Rough & Ready	4 26	8 40
9 39	7 10	Cove	4 12	7 52
9 43	7 15	Fishers Summit	4 08	7 48
10 03	7 35	Saxton	3 48	le 7 53
10 10	7 53			ar 7 46
10 27	8 10	Riddlesburg	3 30	6 30
10 34	8 17	Hopewell	3 22	6 12
10 51	8 35	Piper's Run	3 06	6 00
11 10	8 55	Tatesville	2 48	6 56
11 22	9 08	Bloody Run	2 33	6 50
11 26	9 12	Mount Dallas	2 29	5 46
11 32	9 19	Ashcom's Mills	2 22	5 42
11 36	9 23	Lutzville	2 18	5 36
11 40	9 27	Hartley's Mills	2 14	5
11 46	9 34	Jamesons	2 07	5
*r*11 22	*ar*9 40	Bedford	LE2 00	LE5 30

JOHN M'KILLIPS, Supt

SHOUP'S RUN BRANCH.

LE10 25	LE7 40	Saxton.	AR3 40	AR7 20
10 30	7 55	Coalmont.	3 25	7 05
10 35	8 00	Crawford.	3 20	7 00
AR10 45	AR8 10	Dudley	LE3 10	LE6 50
Bro'd Top City from Dudley 2 miles by stage.

Time of Penna. R. R. Trains at Huntingdon.

EASTWARD.			WESTWARD.
Hb'g Ac.	9 24	A. M	Cin. Ex.	2 19 A. M.
Mail.	8 30	P. M	Pe'f Ex.	7 45 "
Cin. Ex.	6 55	"	Mail	5 40 P. M.
Phil. Ex	11 15	"	W. Pass.	11 52 A. M.

TRACTS.

"ANXIOUS BENCH RELIGION EXAMINED," by Elder J. S. Flory, is a Tract now ready for distribution, of which the following is a brief synopsis of the contents: A short and pointed address to the reader. The motive that prompted him to write, and his responsibilities as a minister; The peculiarities attending this type of religion; The feelings there experienced, not imaginary but real, The key that unlocks the wonderful mystery; It is not the workings of God after the order and plan of salvation; Man's endowment, his imitative principle—emanated from God; Spiritual influences and intercourse; Relation existing between man and God, and man and man; The fraternal bond and our natural affinities established by the "so called" sciences of Electro Biology; Mesmerism and Psychology or science of the soul, also, "Spiritualism" "Spiritual Rappings," &c. The causes by which the feelings are excited; Sympathy of the nervous system, and how that momentary feeling of joy is brought about, called, "Experimental Religion; Similar feelings may be brought about when there are no religious pretensions; Our reasons why we think this modus operandi of getting religion is not according to the Gospel, and then concludes by pointing out that form of doctrine as taught by Jesus Christ, and recorded by His faithful witness.

These tracts will be sent to all post paid, in the following terms: Two copies, 10 cts, 20 copies 40 cents, 25 copies 70 cents, 50 copies $1.00, 100 copies $1.50.

1870 1872

DR. FAHRNEY'S

Blood Cleanser or Panacea.

A tonic and purge, for Blood Diseases. Great reputation. Many testimonials. Many ministering brethren use and recommend it. Ask or send for the "Health Messenger." Use only the "Panacea" prepared at Chicago, Ills., and by

Dr. P. Fahrney's Brothers & Co.,
Mar. 29-pd. Waynesboro, Franklin Co., Pa.

Italian Queen Bees,

FOR SALE.

Purity and safe arrival guaranteed. Sent post paid, at $2.25 each.

Address,
ISAAC HEDDING,
Lewistown, Box 160,
Jun. 24-tf. Mifflintown Co., Pa.

Trine Immersion.

A discussion on Trine Immersion, by letter between Elder B. F. Moomaw and Dr J. J. Jackson, to which is annexed a Treatise on the Lord's Supper, and on the necessity, character and evidences of the new birth, also a dialogue on the doctrine of non-resistance, by Elder B. F. Moomaw. Single copy 50 cents.

THE PILGRIM,

Published by J. B. Brumbaugh, & Co.

Edited by H. B. & Geo. Brumbaugh.

CORRESPONDING EDITORS.

D. P. Sayler, Double Pipe Creek, Md.

Leonard Furry, New Enterprise, Pa.

The Pilgrim is a Christian Periodical, devoted to religion and moral reform. It will advocate in the spirit of love and liberty, the principles of true Christianity, labor for the promotion of peace among the people of God, for the encouragement of the saints and for the conversion of sinners, avoiding those things which tend toward disunion or sectional feelings.

TERMS.

Single copy, one year,	$1.25.
Book paper, " "	1.50.
Eleven copies, [eleventh for Agt.]	$12.50.

Any number above that at the same rate,
Address.

H. B. BRUMBAUGH.
James Oreek,
Huntingdon county Pa.

Brick Pilgrim.

"REMOVE NOT THE ANCIENT LANDMARKS WHICH OUR FATHERS HAVE SET."

VOL. 3. JAMES CREEK, PENNSYLVANIA, AUGUST 13, 1872. NO. 33.

POETRY.

LONGING FOR JESUS.

Yearning for thee, dear Saviour,
Reaching in prayer to thee,
Fain would I bind this faint heart
Closely thine own to be.
Jesus I trust in thee,
Thou who hast died for me.

Trembling with soul o'erburdened,
I kneel below thy cross,
O! loose this load of folly,
Bound by sin's shining dross.
Saviour I trust in thee,
Thou who hast died for me.

Give me a heart "unspotted,"
Washed newly in thy blood,
Fervent, to serve thee only,
Filled with love's rising flood.
Savior I long for thee,
Who gavest his life for me.

Hear, blessed Savior; give me
Near access to thy throne;
Humbly to live and serve thee,
Saved through thy death alone.
In heaven to live with thee,
Thou who hast died for me.

ORIGINAL ESSAYS.

THE VALUE OF THE SOUL.

The worth of our immortal souls is most emphatically taught us by the cross of Christ. "What is a man profitted if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul, or what shall be give in exchange for his soul?" Could any one literally gain the whole universe, as the price of iniquity, and keep it with every advantage during the term of human life, it could neither preserve his body from the grave nor his soul from eternal misery. It costs more to redeem the soul. View the Savior agonizing in Gethsemane, and expiring on the cross. Did He endure these unknown sufferings to preserve men from temporal poverty, pain or death? By no means, but to deliver from the wrath to come, where the worm dieth not and the fire is not quenched. Who can doubt then that an immortal soul is man's principal treasure? It is possessed by the meanest and infinitely exceeds, in value, all the distinction of the mightiest. He who made the soul knows its worth and he deemed it so valuable that he ransomed our souls from ruin at the price of his own beloved son. Shall we not then deem the salvation of the soul our grand concern and regard all interfering objects as unworthy our notice in the comparison? If we should never succeed in any one thing all our lives except in this grand scheme of saving souls, our felicity will be congratulated by angels to eternity. If we should prosper in all other respects and fail here, our folly and misery will be lamented and execrated forever. Our children also have immortal souls. Does our love for them induce us to use every means of providing for their comfort in this world, and shall it not influence us to proportionate earnestness in seeking their salvation? O, cruel and infatuated parents who take excessive care about the bodies of your children and leave their precious souls to perish everlastingly for want of diligent instruction, or perhaps even help to murder their souls by indulging their sinful dispositions and setting them a bad example.

Let us further learn to consider that our relatives, neighbors and enemies have immortal souls, because they are so valuable. He that winneth souls is wise. Let us then think nothing too much to expend or attempt for promoting that grand object for which the Son of God shed his precious blood. But viewed in this glass how vain does the world and all things in it appear. God forbid that I should glory save in the Cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom the world is crucified to me and I unto the world. What are empires or the loss of them, what renown or infamy, what affluence or poverty, what the most exquisite pleasure or torturing pain when put in competition with eternal happiness or misery, or when viewed in connection with the cross of Christ? Had He not so loved us, all possible prosperity could not have prevented our everlasting misery. If we believe in Him all possible adversity cannot prevent our everlasting happiness. Let us not then envy the wealthy and successful, but pity and pray for them. Let us not covet worldly things, repine for want of them, or lament the loss of them. Let us not join in the vain mirth of condemned sinners or be satisfied with the joy of God's salvation.

A PILGRIM.

Clearfoss, Md., July 31st, '72.

For the Pilgrim.

BRINGING UP OUR CHILDREN.

Much might be said in regard to the subject of bringing up our children, much more than I will be able to say, but we need not say much about it as the apostle tells us all that is necessary on the subject. He says, "Bring up your children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord." Brethren and sisters, what do we understand by the Apostle's advice? Do we understand him to say, bring up your children in the fashions and vanities of the world? Nay, verily, but in the "nurture and admonition of the Lord." Oh, let this make lasting impressions upon our minds, and let us try, by the help of Him who is able to help us, to do our duty toward our children and toward our God. For knowing, as we do, that we will be brought to render an account of our doings here, and then if we have done our duty and brought up our children in that way which is right and acceptable before God, it will be a blessing to us. Dear brethren and sisters, let us labor to see them become members of the church in their youthful days, before their hearts have become hardened by their crimes. It will then be an easy matter for them to leave the sinful pleasures of the world and follow the footsteps of their Savior. But let us look on the other side of the picture and mark well what we see. If we let our children go on in all the lust of the flesh and the pride of life, and decorate them in all the fashions of the world when they are in their infancy, what more can we expect from them when they grow up to be young men and young women, the time when we would like to see them turn to the Lord? How often do you remember them at a throne of grace, no doubt in tears, saying, "spare them yet another year," but they are still sporting upon the barren mountains of sin and folly. Brethren and sisters, it is then too late. Let us begin when the branch is yet tender and can easily be bent, for just "as the twig is bent the tree's inclined to grow," and if we bend them the right way and bring them up accordingly, when they are come to years of understanding they will bless us for so doing, and they will prove a blessing to us instead of a curse. Oh, brethren and sisters in the Lord, let us try and be faithful in the cause of our Master. Let us be as obedient to Him as we would have our children be to us. Let us put on the whole armor of God that we may be able to withstand all the fiery darts of the wicked one. Let us not lay down the armor until we our set feet on heaven's immortal soil. May the Lord give us grace to be faithful and when we fail on earth, take us home to the mansions of rest which are prepared for those that love Him, is the prayer of your unworthy sister M. S.

PATIENCE.

But let us see to it, my friends, that none of us should fancy that because we find it hard to exercise patience, therefore we may be excused seeking to exercise it at all. Many people act as if they thought that because they have no special need of patience, therefore they may do without patience altogether. Many a man appears to think that the hasty temper or the over anxious disposition which he received from nature, is to be received as an excuse for a constant fretfulness, or for occasional outbursts of impatience which are humiliating to Christian character, and destructive to Christian peace. But while we admit that no human being can tell how honestly any Christian man has striven with the evil heart of nature, how hard the law of the mind has fought against the law in the members: while we remember that we may partly know what a man has done, but cannot reckon what he has resisted; let us not forget that temptation is rarely so strong as to destroy responsibility, or to excuse transgression.

ON CALLING AND ELECTION.

I will have mercy on whom I will have mercy, and I will have compassion on whom I will have compassion; so then it is not of him that willeth, nor of him that runneth, but of God that sheweth mercy. Rom. 9: 15, 16.

It may perhaps, be productive of some good, to make some remarks on this scripture. In the first place the above quoted words must be well examined, and prove what is the meaning of them. To understand the apostle's drift in quoting them, we have to compare with other passages of his epistle to the Romans. In the twenty-eighth verse of the first chapter of this epistle, he says, "and even as they did not like to retain God in their knowledge, God gave them over to a reprobate mind, to do those things which are not convenient." These words give us a key, and will open to us many passages of this epistle. Here we find, because they did not like to retain God in their knowledge, God gave them over to a reprobate mind. Had they been willing to retain God in their minds, God would have had mercy and compassion on them, but as they rejected the knowledge of God, he also rejected them, and gave them over to hardness of heart. In the 3d and 4th chapters of this epistle, Paul speaks of the works of the law whereby no flesh shall be justified. The Jews were very zealous and sought their justification by the deeds of the law, yet could not be justified. The Romans were Gentiles. The apostle wrote unto them in this epistle testifying that a man is not justified by the deeds of the law, but by faith in Christ. (3: 28,) Here Paul encourages the Gentiles that if they had not the law, yet they had equal access to salvation, by Christ, with the Jews, telling them that God is not the God of the Jews only, but also of the Gentiles. (3: 29.) The general tenor of this epistle is of the calling and election of the Gentiles by faith in Christ, and the rejection of the Jews who went about to establish their own righteousness, having a zeal of God but not according to knowledge: for they being ignorant of God's righteousness and going about to establish their own righteousness, have not submitted themselves unto the righteousness of God; for Christ is the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth (10: 24). To the Jews who will and run to establish their own righteousness contrary to the counsel of God, is the above passage applicable, where it says, "So then it is not of him that willeth nor of him that runneth, but of God that sheweth mercy." The Jews with all their willing and running and compassing sea and land to make one proselyte they did not attain the righteousness of God, as God was not pleased to extend his mercy and compassion unto them, because they rejected his counsel and sought it not by faith, but by the works of the law, and they stumble at the stumbling stone and rock of offense. (9: 31, 32.) That rock was Christ on whom the Jews would not believe, but the Gentiles, which followed not after righteousness, have attained the righteousness which is of faith, because they sought it not in the works of the law, but by faith in Christ that justifieth the ungodly and their faith is counted for righteousness, and these are they on whom the Lord will have mercy and compassion because they did the will of God and sought him by faith in God's appointed way.

So it is with us at the present day. If we go on according to our own mind and will, contrary to the word and will of God, we may will and run to our utmost ability, yet God will not have mercy nor compassion. But if we do the will of God he will have mercy and compassion upon us. Now, in adverting to the words of Paul's quotation from the Bible, where he saith, "so then it is not of him that willeth, nor of him that runneth, but of God that showeth mercy. For the scriptures saith unto Pharaoh, even for this same purpose have I raised thee up, that I might show my power in thee, and that my name might be declared throughout all the earth. Therefore hath he mercy on whom he will have mercy, and whom he will he hardeneth." Rom. 9: 16, 18.

We must, with this passage compare the following to find who they are on whom God will have mercy, and also whom he will harden: Those who did not like to retain God in their knowledge, God gave over to a reprobate mind, and their hearts were hardened. They hardened their hearts against the counsel of God. The apostle says, "Despisest thou the riches of his goodness and forbearance and long suffering, not knowing that the goodness of God leadeth thee to repentance, but after thy hardness and impenitent heart, treasurest up unto thyself wrath unto the day of wrath and revelation of the righteous judgment of God. (Rom. 2: 4, 5.) "To-day if you will hear his voice harden not your hearts." (Heb. 3: 7, 8.) We see that men themselves harden their hearts against the counsel of God, when he, by his spirit, would lead them to repentance. When God calls men to repent he will not harden their hearts against it, neither does God harden the hearts of any one but those who have hardened their hearts against God and his word," through the deceitfulness of sin. Paul tells us to exhort one another daily while it is called to day, lest any of you be hardened through the deceitfulness of sin. (Heb. 3: 13). It is highly necessary for us to watch lest our hearts be hardened against God, through the deceitfulness of sin. But let us hear and obey the voice of the Lord and let the spirit of truth lead us in the path of wisdom.

Predestinarians preach the doctrine that God, by His unchangable decrees, has, from eternity, elected and chosen a part of mankind to be heirs of eternal glory, and has reprobated and doomed the other part to eternal misery and woe. They ground this doctrine partly on the above quoted words of Paul, which I have in some measure explained, and upon the type and figure represented by Jacob and Esau, of which I will give a farther explanation.

As God knew all future events, He has, by figures, represented what would come to pass, and Esau and Jacob were striking types, Esau being a type of the old dispensation, the Jews, with their laws and ceremonies, and Jacob a type of the new dispensation, the Christians with the Gospel and its privileges. When Esau and Jacob were born, Jacob's hand took hold on Esau's heel, Esau's heel denoting the end of the law and its ceremonies, the hand of Jacob the beginning of the Gospel dispensation. Esau was the first born, so also was the law before the Gospel. As the children struggled together before they were born, so did the unbelieving Jews struggle and strive against the Gospel, stumbling against the stumbling-stone, the rock of offense. (Rom. 9: 32, 33). Esau being red all over like a hairy garment, denotes the rigor of the law and the rough, rude nature of the old man in his natural birth. That the elder shall serve the younger, implies that the law is subservient to the Gospel. Paul says, "it is written that Abraham had two sons, the one by a bondmaid, the other by a free woman, but he who was born of the bond woman was born after the flesh, but he of the free woman was by promise, which things are an allegory," for there are the two covenants, the one from mount Sinai which gendereth to bondage which is Agar, for this Agar is mount Sinai in Arabia and answereth to Jerusalem which now is in bondage with her children, (Gal. 4: 22, 25) the children being not yet born neither having done any good nor evil that the purpose of God according to election, might stand not of works, but of him that calleth. It was said unto her, "the elder shall serve the younger, as it is written, Jacob have I loved, but Esau have I hated." Rom. 9: 11, 13.

This is somewhat hard to understand by those who do not view the case of Jacob and Esau in the light of a spiritual representation and may err greatly, as those words seem to import that according to the purpose and determination of God, he had chosen the one and rejected the other without respect to their merits in their future conduct, and that there was no room given for Esau to gain the love of God though he might seek it earnestly, and the inference be drawn that God is unrighteous. Paul asks, "what shall we say then, is there unrighteousness with God? God forbid." (5:14.) We cannot trace God in His foreknowledge and providence. His dispensations may be mysterious. He is righteous in all His ways, not of works but of him that calleth. It was said unto her, the elder shall serve the younger. He gives us to understand that the Jews sought their righteousness and justification by the works of the law and they could not attain to the righteousness which was acceptable with God, but as the called by the grace of God, they must obtain it through the Gospel by faith in Christ, for it pleased God that man's eternal should be by grace and not of works, that all the glory and honor should be given unto God for it, and that no flesh should glory in His presence.

When he said, "Jacob have I loved but Esau have I hated" it typified that the love of God was manifested to us in the Gospel and not in the law, because the law worketh wrath (Rom. 4: 15), and the wrath of God under which man had fallen, could not be appeased and reconciled by the law, but in Christ and His Gospel is grace and truth—the wrath of God pacified and the enmity slain, for He is our peace who has made both one, and hath broken down the middle wall of partition between us, having abolished, in His flesh, the enmity even the law of commandments contained in ordinances for to make in himself of twain one new man, so making peace. (Eph. 2: 14, 15.) This is the love of God which is prefigured in Jacob. As Esau despised and sold his birthright was prefigured the birthright to the promised inheritance of eternal life through the atonement of the only begotten Son of God, which promise was made to the Jews as the elder brother, but they despised and rejected the promised Savior—they sold their birthright to their younger brother the Gentiles.

A. J. CORRELL.

(To be continued.)

WANTS SUPPLIED.—A good man shall have what he needs, not always what he thinks he needs. Providence intends the supply of our necessities, but not of our desires. He will satisfy our wants, but not our wantonness. When a thing is not needful, a man cannot properly be said to want it; when it is needful, a good man shall not be without it. What is not bestowed upon us, may not be so beautiful at that time wherein we desire it, for everything is beautiful in its season. He that did not want God's kindness to renew him shall never want God's kindness to supply him; his hand shall not be wanting to give where his heart has been so large in working.—Charnock.

For the Pilgrim.

THE DUTY OF MAN TO LOVE GOD.

That man is under obligations to love God is admitted by all enlightened nations. For the command is too positive to be denied by any that believe in the Scripture of Divine truth. The important charge was given by God himself to His chosen people. Deut. 5:5. "And thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might." This passage alone precludes the idea of having any right whatever to love anything in preference to God. Had we no scripture to show in what way this love is to be manifested toward God, we would of necessity have to illustrate this matter by what we see, and what we have experienced in life. Love begets love; this is natural as well as Divine. For instance, it is natural for parents to love their children, hence they will give them wholesome advice, and command them nothing to do than what is for their good; and if children have confidence in their parents and love them they obey them in all that they command, and strictly observe all their counsel, and this increases the love in parents towards their children, and what a happy family will they be together. Even so in a church capacity. The faithful Pastor watches over his flock, tries to increase it and to keep them in unity and love and peace together and they obey him. What a glorious church! What a happy family will they be together, under that faithful teacher who teaches them to love God and to keep His commandments. The gentle breeze of love will perfume the family and the odor of that incense will ascend to God as a sweet smelling sacrifice.

Even so if we have love to God and have confidence in Him we will do all His commandments, knowing that they are all for our good and to our benefit, and are all essential to our eternal salvation, and of course, necessary to be obeyed in order that our love may flow to God and God's to us. Deut. 11:1. "Therefore thou shalt love the Lord thy God and keep his charge, and his statutes, and his judgments, and his commandments alway." Joshua 23:11. "Take heed therefore unto yourselves that ye love the Lord thy God." To love the Lord thy God is the great commandment in the law as expressed by Jesus in Matt. 22d chapter, Mark 12:30, 39. And thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength; this is the first commandment, and the second is to love thy neighbor as thyself: and this is more than all whole burnt offerings and sacrifices. It is useless for any man to say that he loves God and omits to do His commands, yea, it is mockery. Such a religion is a farce, and no better than the Mahometan. Jesus saith, "If ye love me, keep my commandments." Again, "He that hath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me: and he that loveth me shall be loved of my Father, and I will love him, and will manifest myself to him." "He that loveth me not keepeth not my sayings." Thus it is plain that unless we do what Jesus says our love is hypocrisy and deception, whether we profess to love God or our brethren. "By this we know that we love the children of God, when we love God and keep His commandments. For this is the love of God, that we keep his commandments, and his commandments are not grievous." Hence brethren and sisters, let us not only love in word, but in deed and in truth.

LEONARD FURRY.

ELECTION.

"But if our gospel be hid, it is hid to them that are lost in whom the God of this world hath blinded the minds of them which believe not, lest the light of the glorious gospel of Christ, who is the image of God, should shine unto them."—2 Cor. 3; 5.

The first thought by many, in reading this Scripture is that of Election, that a part of the children of men will be saved and a part lost, that those who are born to be lost will be lost, and those who are born to be saved will be saved and cannot be lost, but Peter will not agree with such doctrine when he says; "Wherefore the rather brethren, give diligence to make your calling and election sure."—2 Peter, 1:10. This shows that if any are elected they are in danger of being lost and are not sure of entering into rest.

There are many passages in the gospel that we might bring up to prove that God's mercies are extended to all. "He is the propitiation for our sins; and not for ours only, but also for the sins of the whole world."—1 John, 2; 2. This makes it very plain in my mind, that God is no respecter of persons, that he that worketh righteousness is accepted with Him, so if our gospel is hid it is for the want of a proper investigation. There are none who seek but what shall find. The saved have something which the lost have not, and this they have by a proper investigation of the gospel. Let every one search the gospel with the assurance that it is the power of God unto salvation.

Look once for a moment at the eight different writers of the New Testament and their motives. What were they? Were they honor, power or wealth? All men in laboring, expect a reward for that labor, but they had no earthly reward in view. As to honor, they were in this life, of all men most miserable. As to power, they were persecuted from place to place and lived in caves and dens of the earth. As to wealth, they suffered their goods to be distributed and destroyed, and cheerfully submitted to contempt and even death for the cause, and amidst the most cruel tortures or powerful allurements did they ever make a single concession of the truth of that doctrine which they so nobly defended, but was willing to suffer and die to establish the plan of salvation, whereby all sincere seekers after the truth might be saved. Then, if our gospel is hid, it is hid to them that are not willing to come to the gospel light, but prefer the god of this world lest their evil deeds might be made manifest and the glorious light of the gospel of Christ might shine into their hearts, and thus compel them to forsake ungodliness, the gambling saloons, dancing rooms and all places of sinful amusements, and come under the peaceable reign of Jesus, and live soberly, righteously and godly in this world. Oh sinner, if you are lost it is your own fault. Remember that Jesus came to seek and save the lost, but if you reject His offered salvation your case will be a desperate one, and will show an unwillingness on your part to have Christ to reign over you.

"Oh, sinner turn, for why will you die,
When God in his mercy is coming so nigh."

Brethren, stand fast in the truth, for we know that our labor is not in vain in the Lord. And now I commend you to God and the word of His grace which is able to build you up and give you an inheritance among all them which are sanctified.

JACOB TROXEL.

SABBATH SCHOOLS.

There is a great deal said about Sabbath Schools. Some object to them for various reasons, some of which are very good. Sabbath schools, when carried on properly, are the means no doubt of much good. If not carried on in a right manner, they are the means of great evil, from the fact that the Sabbath is a day of rest or a cessation from labor, and a day to be devoted to the service of God, and of course should be spent in the gaining of religious information and to the advancement and promotion of Christianity. Paul says, "Let all things be done unto edifying," that is unto instruction or the giving of information. So Sabbath schools when carried on properly, are edifying and of course cannot be objected to, but when carried on as many of them are in the world, they are of no importance but merely for the assembling together of young people and for amusement, which is calculated to contaminate the mind and draw it from the things which it should be placed upon. The Sabbath school year should be commenced in solemnity and end in the same way, not as the manner of some is, with a great exhibition accompanied with a band of music and a gay and splendid march, playing at the time some tunes which are a dishonor to the cause of Christ. These things are of the trifling amusements which Webster says are derogatory to the Christian character, and of course they should be looked upon as disadvantages to the Sabbath school cause and to the cause of Christianity, and shou'd be avoided as all other worldly practices.

THOMAS OWENS.

"Let Nothing be Done Through Strife."

This is an injunction which we are prone to forget at the very time we should remember it. But few of us are guiltless of its violation. The writer of this freely confesses that he is not.

These are earnest days in which we live. It is not a time for repose, nor is it a day for irresolution. Decision of purpose and energy of action are absolutely necessary.

But are these inconsistent with sanvity? May we not be decided and charitable at the same time? May not energy and gentleness link arm in arm? We think so.

We thank our Father that he has made us independent. Each is allowed, and indeed obligated, to do his own thinking. This independence leads us to differ. Shall we not respect each other in this? Shall we strive with each other, and become angry, and use hard words, and impute bad motives to one another, because of our disagreements? "The servant of the Lord must not strive."

If we are not much mistaken, we will all have to remember these things for some months to come.—Old School Presbyterian.

Beware of sleeping too late in the morning.

Beware of marrying a wife you cannot support.

Beware of buying more than you are able to pay for.

Beware of promising more than you are able to perform.

Beware of sudden conversions, for disguises are easily put on.

Beware of men who have no line of principle, but who work from policy.

Beware of men and women who talk too much.

Beware of the person who never finds anything good in his neighbors.

Beware of men who are idle and indifferent as to work and results.

Beware of men who get drunk and beat their wives.

Beware of men who drink every time they are asked to.

THE CONSTRAINING LOVE OF CHRIST

(Continued.)

Were I pointedly to address those who are in a state of grace, those who would so gladly deny themselves, but find to their sorrow, that they everywhere fall short, I would say, do not think so much upon denying yourselves, upon being faithful, or upon living holy and strictly, but rather seek to love, hunger after love, exercise yourselves in love, love is always exercising selfdenial without tasting its bitterness, and almost without thinking of it, think only how you may love Christ, how you may love more cordially than ever, and do everything to gratify and satisfy his love. The love of Christ constrains the believer into suffering and through suffering. This sounds strange and yet it is true.—The individual is frequently placed so wonderfully and unexpectedly in some painful situation, that he knows not how it happened—he is as it were pressed into it. Some particular person must just speak or act towards us in such a manner: some expression or circumstance is taken in a wrong light; things must so happen and follow each other, that we may just have a little trial, cross, or suffering, it is not necessary that such things be always great or important; the love of Christ often makes use of a trifle, and knows how to touch us with it in the most sensible part. Thus it happens with regard to the body and outward things, and thus also with reference to spiritual things, in innumerably different ways; and it is the love of Christ that does it, although we are ready to ascribe it to some other cause. Weak and timid souls may often distress themselves much by an unbelieving anticipation of future external or internal suffering. Temptations and I know not what kind of trials, which may, perhaps, never befall them, their language is, "If I have ever to suffer that which such a one has to endure. If I shall have to tread in this or that difficult path, I know it will be impossible for me to bear it." Ah, my friends, do not torment yourselves with unavailing care and sorrow, trust in love, that it will impel you to the cross. I mean, be without carefulness concerning the future. Love distributes afflictions wisely; she understands it better than we, as long as we remain little weak children. She will not impose any heavy burden upon us, but whatever we have to suffer at the moment, we ought to receive as coming directly from the hand of the love of Christ, and not as from any particular individual. When Christ suffered, he did not regard his sufferings as proceeding from the Jews, the Pharisees, or from Pilate, but as coming directly from his Father's hand, saying: "The cup that my Father hath given me, shall I not drink it?" John 18: 11. Therefore do not think so much of the affliction as of him that sends it. If the case be thus, my friend, if thou believest that it is Christ himself who sends thee any particular affliction, O how precious, how estimable and lovely ought everything to be to thee, that proceeds from a hand so dear, think how much he has suffered for thee; wilt thou not therefore endure a light affliction to please him?

Think not so much of affliction as of the love of Christ, love him, and thou wilt be able to endure all things. What cannot love do? What have so many thousands martyrs and numberless other holy souls endured, and been enabled to endure solely because they were constrained to it by the love of Christ. It imparts a growing willingness to suffer, and secretly keeps the soul as if nailed to the cross; so that frequently, when the individual is in painful situations, he would descend from the cross to let nature breathe, even were he at liberty to do so.

What anxiety do many manifest and what pains do they take to become holy by their own efforts. O, my dear friends, what you have to do is to love Christ and to unite yourselves with him by faith, love and prayer. As the branch is united to the vine does the branch find it difficult to bear sweet grapes? is it necessary to compel it to do so by commanding, threatning and rough usage? O, no. The whole process takes place very quietly. Easily and naturally. The branch merely abides in the vine imbibes its noble sap, and then it flourishes and bears fruit. "Abide in me" says Christ, "and ye shall bear much fruit." We have only to love him and to remain in his love, and as barren branches in ourselves, let the pure and divine influence and power of the precious love of Christ penetrate our whole souls, we should then become, as though naturally, a people dear and acceptable to God, and filled with all the precious fruits of righteousness to the praise of Jesus Christ. The virtues would then become easy and natural to us and we should esteem ourselves happy in being able to live to Christ according to all his good pleasure.

And really if it were possible—which it is not—that we could become holy by our own efforts, yet all would be only an imperfect, lifeless and worthless phantom, proceeding from the will and power of man, and in which we only regarded and loved ourselves. It is the love of Christ which must impart true life, power and value to all our Godliness, works and virtues. Paul, therefore, knows not how sufficiently to recommend this excellent way, "Though I have tongues of men or of angels," says he, "and have not charity or love, I should be as sounding brass," and so through the chap. 1 Cor. 13.

D. NEGLEY.

Welch Run, Pa.

SPOILT MUTTON VS. ROAST DUCK.

A traveler was once passing thro' Piedmont at a time when chestnuts were ripe. It happened that there was a plentiful harvest that year. So abundant, indeed, was the crop, that nuts literally paved the orchard grounds, and the farmers hardly knew what to do with them. Our wayfarer, coming to a low wall skirting a garden where a farmer and his men were busy loading, stopped to look at the operation. Upon this, the farmer, plunging his hands into a large basket, and bringing up a quantity of nuts, cried, "Take some, friend." Whether it was through modesty, or want of appetite, or from some other cause, our friend was not inclined for the nuts. Whereupon the farmer cried out, "Don't be afraid, stranger, you are quite welcome to them. There are nuts for men, nuts for women, nuts for children, nuts for cats and dogs this year; and if you don't take them, they'll probably be thrown to the pigs!" Now, whether our traveler was won over to partake of this freely offered feast, or whether, departing unfed he marveled at this wonderful benevolence of the man, he does not inform us. There may, however, be some reader saying, "This was in Piedmont, you see; those poor people living in popish darkness don't know any better, but of course that was no hospitality." Stop a bit, friend, let us see whether there may not be something akin to this nearer home. You are a lady, we will suppose, tolerably well-to-do. You have a good house, and lack nothing to make it comfortable. You "look well to the ways of your household, and eat not the bread of idleness." Walking around some day to see that all is going on right, you step into the kitchen. Suddenly your olfactory nerves are assailed with a disagreeable odor. Sniffing and searching you follow your nose, and come to the pantry; and there upon a high shelf you discover the offender, in the shape of a mutton-bone with a few ounces of meat upon it. You bring it to the light, sniff at it again, and bah! it is odious. "Mary!" you call; "Mary!" But Mary is up stairs, making the beds. "Mary! come down; I want you. What is this doing here making such a smell?" Of course Mary doesn't know. It was sweet enough when she put it there. "Its bad enough now," you reply, "but its a pity to waste it. Here, Mary, put on your bonnet and take it to Nancy Needham, down the lane." The conscience gives a little twinge, and you smell at it once more, saying, "It is not so far gone, after all; she'll be glad enough to eat it, poor woman." So having sent off the bone, you wipe your hands with a towel, lest there might be an odor of the mutton on them, and stroke yourself down with "Blessed is he that considereth the poor," and straightway go and sit down to a warm dinner of roast duck and green peas.

And this is your charity, is it? Away with such abominable benevolence. Call that charity? Ay, cheap and dirty charity, say I, making the poor and needy the receptacles of your refuse.

Sometimes I pass waste lands, whereon speculating builders intend to erect "ginger-bread houses" for the benefit of the working classes! These spots being full of pit-holes and used-up quarries, the owners stick up sign-boards, painted "Rubbish may be shot here." So do some people look upon the poor. They think they were made to be receptacles of all "leavings;" and moreover expect them thankfully to accept whatsoever their "benefactors" don't want themselves. This may be a convenience to the said benefactors, but, if they put down such donations under the head of charity, may the Lord open their eyes to see that they have placed them in the wrong column, and move them not to do so any more. Had my lady above referred to, sent the duck and green peas to poor Nancy, and sat down to pick the bone "that was not so bad after all" herself—(would it do her any more harm than it would Nancy?)—it might have been counted as something,—an "odor of sweet smelling savor," perchance, but sending the bone was quite another thing

Once more, and to the other sex this time. You have been to your business, squared up your accounts, put all right and straight, seen that the balance at your banker's is on the right side of the book, and, having looked after your own affairs in all ways you can think of, you take the 'bus and arrive safely home to tea. After that you have a long evening before you. You remember that friend Brown promised to come and play you a game of chess at seven; but it wants a full hour of seven yet, and being a man to whom it is misery to be idle, the getting over of that hour is now your special trouble. It will be as long as two if you don't do something. Ah! you remember now. Your wife told you this morning about a poor old man in the village who was dying, and that nobody seemed to go near him; and what a pity it was for him to die thus. Happy relief! Just the thing. You'll go. Why should you not? God has blessed and prospered you in business and, so far as you know, you've done your duty in looking after it. Why should you not give a little of your time to this cause? Why not indeed? especially as you do not know what else to do with it. So, off you go, and administer such consolation to the dying man as one in your frame of mind is likely to give, taking care when you meet friend Brown to say what you have done and drawing from him that bit of soft soap, "It's very good of you." Very good indeed! Wonderfully self-sacrificing, that killing of a troublesome hour.

Brethren and sisters, are these acts like His "who though He was rich, yet for our sakes became poor?" Who, though Lord of all, was content to be without a place whereon to lay His head? Who, though a beggar of water at the well of Samaria, was moved with compassion for the multitude, and fed them bountifully? Who, having no need to work, yet felt constrained to be about his Father's business, counting it, in fact, His meat and drink; and who walked up and down the roads of Palestine till He was well nigh worn out, that He might preach to perishing sinners the glad tidings of Redemption? Oh! in the light of such a life, how poor are our best services for God; how miserably poor, then, our reluctant, time-killing services, and our services to suit our own convenience must be.—Sword and Trowel.

REV. ROWLAND HILL'S PLAY BILL.

The following we clip from an exchange as being blended with the ludicrous and at the same time, instructive. It was posted up at Richmond, England, June 4, 1774, and was intended to counteract the pernicious influences of the posters of a theatre, and it is said that its moral and spiritual bearing was sufficiently powerful to close the theatre, Such bills would be quite appropriate in some of our modern Sodoms and might have a tendency to arrest the attention of the vain and giddy thousands who daily attend the time and soul killing establishments of folly and sin with which our cities are cursed.

BY COMMAND OF THE KING OF KINGS,

And at the desire of all who love his appearing.

AT

THE THEATRE OF THE UNIVERSE,
ON THE EVE OF TIME.

WILL BE PERFORMED

THE GREAT ASSIZE

OR

DAY OF JUDGMENT.

The Scenery which is now actually preparing, will not only surpass everything that hath yet been seen, but will infinitely exceed the utmost stretch of human conception. There will be a just representation of ALL the inhabitants of the world in their various and proper colours; and their customs and manners will be so exactly and minutely delineated, that the most secret thought will be discovered. "For God shall bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing, whether it be good or whether it be evil."—Eccles. 12: 14.

This Theatre will be laid out after a New Plan, and will consist of Pit and Gallery only; and, contrary to all others, the Gallery is fitted up for the reception of the people of high (or heavenly) birth; and the Pit for those of low (or earthly) rank!

N. B.—THE GALLERY IS VERY SPACIOUS AND THE PIT WITHOUT BOTTOM.

To prevent inconvenience, there are separate doors for admitting the company, and they are so different, that none can mistake that are not wilfully blind. The door which opens into the Gallery is very narrow, and the steps to it are somewhat difficult—for which reason there are seldom many people about it. But the door that gives entrance into the Pit is very wide and very commodious; which cause such numbers to flock to it that it is generally crowded.

N. B.—The strait door leads towards the right hand, and the broad one to the left.

It will be in vain for one, in a tinselled coat and borrowed language, to personate one of high birth, in order to get admittance into the upper places; for there is One of wonderful and deep penetration, who will search and examine every individual, and all who cannot pronounce Shibboleth in the language of Canaan, or have not received a white stone, or new name, or cannot prove a clear title to a certain portion of the Land of Promise, must be turned in at the left-hand door.

THE PRINCIPAL PERFORMERS

Are described in 1 Thess. iv. 16. 2 Thess. i. 7, 8, 9. Matt. xxiv. 30, 31; xxv. 31, 32. Daniel vii. 9, 10. Jude 14, 15. Rev. xx, 12 to 15, &c. But as there are some people better acquainted with the contents of a PLAY BILL than the Word of God, it may not be amiss to transcribe a verse or two for their perusal:

"The Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven, with his mighty angels, in flaming fire, taking vengeance on them that obey not the Gospel, but to be glorified in his saints. A fiery stream issued and came forth before him. A thousand thousand ministered unto him, and ten thousand times ten thousand stood before him. The Judgment was set, and the Books were opened; and whosoever was not found written in the Book of life, was cast into the lake of fire."

ACT I.

Of this GRAND and SOLEMN PERFORMANCE will be opened by an Archangel, with the Trump of God.

"The Trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised." 1 Cor. xv. 22.

ACT II.

Will be a PROCESSION of Saints, in white, with golden harps, accompanied with shouts of joy and songs of praise,

ACT III.

Will be an assemblage of all the Unregenerate. The Music will consist chiefly of cries; accompanied with weeping, wailing, mourning, lamentation and woe.

TO CONCLUDE WITH

AN ORATION

BY THE SON OF GOD.

As it is written in the xxv of Matthew, from the 34th verse to the end of the chapter. But for the sake of those who seldom read the Scriptures, I shall here transcribe two verses: "Then shall the King say to them on the right hand, Come ye blessed of my Father, inherit the Kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world:

Then shall he say also unto them on the left hand, Depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels."

AFTER WHICH THE CURTAIN WILL DROP.

Then! O to tell!
Some rais'd on high—others doomed to hell;
These praise the Lamb, and sing redeeming love,
Lodg'd in his bosom, all his goodness prove.
While those who trampled under foot his grace,
Are banished now forever from his face.
Divided thus, a gulf is fixed between.
And (EVERLASTING) closes up the scene.

"Thus will I do unto thee, O Israel; and because I will do this unto thee, prepare to meet thy God, O Israel."

TICKETS FOR THE PIT

At the easy purchase of following the vain pomps and vanities of the fashionable world, and the desires and amusements of the flesh—to be had at every flesh-pleasing assembly.

"If ye live after the flesh ye shall die."

TICKETS FOR THE GALLERY,

At no less a rate than being converted—forsaking all, denying self, taking up the Cross, and following Christ in the regeneration—to be had nowhere but in the word of God, and where that word appoints.

"He that hath ears to hear, let him hear."

"And be not deceived; God is not mocked. For whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."

N. B.—NO MONEY TAKEN AT THE DOOR

Nor will any tickets give admittance into the Gallery but those sealed by the Holy Ghost, with Immanuel's signet.

"Watch therefore; be ye also ready, for in such an hour as ye think not, the Son of Man cometh."

YOUTHS' DEPARTMENT.

WORK SQUARELY IN THE YOKE.

FOR THE YOUNG PILGRIMS.

Good farmer A. had a pair of oxen, ones name was Brindle and the other Jerry. Now Brindle was not only a fine looking ox but he was a good steer to work any place he was wanted. Jerry was also a fine looking animal but he had one great fault and that was he would not work square against the yoke but was continually shying off, first to one side and then the other. He had a good pattern by his side in old Brindle who just walked along steady and squarely, and it seemed work did not tire him much, while Jerry was in a continual fever of puffing and blowing and it was as farmer A. said, his wearing back and forth fatigued him more than the necessary labor, and also his working first to one side and then the other made the yoke gall his neck, while on the other hand such was not the case with Brindle who had long ago found out the best way was to work squarely and steadily against the yoke. Farmer A. would ply the goad freely to Jerry which would make his hide smart with pain. Poor Jerry, work with him was a hard matter, and much of his misery was brought on by him not working squarely and proper as he should. Farmer A. would kindly pat old Brindle and praise him for his good qualities, and you may be sure he fed him well and treated him kindly.

Now my dear young readers, let us notice the fact that some children, and even grown up persons are somewhat like the ox Jerry in some ways; they will not work squarely in the yoke. They have a duty to perform, but like Jerry will shy off first to one side and then the other with an effort to get rid of doing that duty or finding an easier way to do it, and as a general thing it goes worse with them than if they had worked squarely up to the "yoke" of duty. For instance a school-boy plays when he ought to have been learning his lesson, then he shies first one way and then the other to get around saying it, or he will steal a look at the book when reciting or make the teacher believe something that is not true as an excuse for not having the lesson. See what a fever of uneasiness such a boy is in, or how he worries over the matter, while the boy that worked squarely up to duty said his lesson with pleasure, and goes to his play when the time come for it, with a smile and a happy heart. And the child that is disobedient to parents and loves the company of the bad and idle is not working squarely in the yoke of duty; often conscience goads them and they smart with pain when they think how bad it is to disobey parents and go into the way of the wicked, duty to such is a hard task and by not doing it they feel miserable. Poor souls, their troubles are brought on by their own conduct, while the boy or girl that comes boldly up to duty finds many pleasures in the pathway, such as kind encouraging words and a clear conscience and a happy heart. Duty seems no hard task when there is a willingness to push right into it. Yes, it is much the best to work square in the yoke of duty, not worry over a task or job of work, or try to shun it and find out at last that worrying over the thought of doing it, or trying to avoid it, is more laborious or wearisome than doing the thing itself.

Also remember dear reader, that Jesus said "Take my yoke upon you and learn of me," and also, "My yoke is easy and my burden is light." Now if we take the yoke of Jesus upon us we should work square in it, but it is so there are so many a little like Jerry that wave first to one side and then to the other,—try to shun a Christian duty here and there, sometimes lean over towards the pride of the world, then over to the lust of the carnal mind or appetite, thus keep shying off one way or the other and the consequence is the yoke galls the neck, the meek and humble yoke don't just suit our dispositions, so we get tired and wearied, not that the yoke of Jesus makes us so, but it is our inconsistency that causes our trials and troubles often worse than if we had just worked squarely in the yoke with Jesus. He is our example, our friend and our side companion, let us work as He bids, and that is straight ahead in the line of duty and obedience, Children, and dear young readers of the PILGRIM, let me tell you the best policy is to work square, in the yoke of Jesus and with Jesus, don't shy off to one side and spend a day with a worldly pic-nic party, will Jesus smile on you then, think ye? If you have taken the yoke of Jesus upon you how will the fashions of the world look along side of that yoke? They will not correspond with it. You have the yoke of Jesus to wear, will that yoke fit a neck encircled with shining beads, rich lace or costly collar? Will the yoke of Jesus wear smoothly under those pendant ear jewels? Does your heart beat in unison with the love of a meek and lowly Redeemer under that eye-pleasing breast pin? If Jesus were here could you lay that ring adorned hand in His nail riven blessed hand and say "I love thy cross!" think you He would press it with the pressure of sweet love? No, no, lean to none of these things, but press forward in the path of duty and you will find the yoke of Jesus easy; work squarely and meekly in it and you will find it to be the best—much the best in time and eternity.

J. S. FLORY.

CORRESPONDENCE

A Reporter is wanted from every Church in the brotherhood to send us Church news, Obituaries, Announcements or anything that will be of general interest. To insure insertion, the writers name must accompany each communication. Our invitation is not personal but general—please respond to our call.

EVIL SPEAKING.

CARTERSVILLE, VA.

Dear Pilgrim:—Being alone this evening, my mind ran from one subject to another, and then almost suddenly settled down on the subject of "Evil Speaking" and the many evils it has caused. I feel almost compelled to say something to the dear readers of the PILGRIM, and hope that all may give what I shall say heeding as well as a reading and looking over. Speaking evil of others is one of the most unamiable habits that can be acquired and one that leads to infinite mischief. It is not always easy to avoid it, for there are a great many people in the world who are not what they ought to be, who do many things they ought not to do. It is hard for a blunt generous mind to refrain from expressing itself about mean people and mean acts; there is something in meanness and dishonesty that rouses the luxury of denouncing them in bold and unsparing terms. But the practice, as a practice, is a troublesome and dangerous one. There are occasions when it is our duty to speak out in exposure of wrong; but in general, it is best to abstain from evil speaking, even of evil persons. We are not made judges of other's actions; no one has the right to assume the character of arbites or censors. Even the best of us have our faults, and if every one should presume to denounce the vices and misconduct of others, the world would be given up to defamation. We may see and hear much we do not admire and can not like; we may become cognizant of the many evil deeds done by evil persons; but it is a part of wisdom and discretion to pass them by without notice, except when to speak of them cautiously may be necessary as a warning to friends. We all have enough of enemies in this world, without provoking others by ill-tempered comments. The enmity of evil men is the thing to be avoided, for while it can do us no good, it may do us much harm. Besides we may make mistakes in the haste of honest indignation, and speak evil of good men for acts we do not understand. Such is a worse mistake than the other; for while it is imprudent to promiscously denounce evil men, it is cruel, wrong, to defame a good one. So my dear brethren and sisters and gentle reader, let us all refrain from evil speaking, do as we would wish others to do to us; for who of us loves to hear ourselves spoken evil of? Let us pray for each other instead of backbiting and speaking evil. Our hearts have been made almost to sink within us by this awful practice of evil speaking. May God our Father help us is the prayer of your unworthy sister in Christ.

SARAH J. ETER.

Brethren Brumbaugh:—The spiritual health of the church, called the Brush Creek, is pretty good at present. So far this Summer we have not had as many additions as in former seasons, but the good work of the Lord is onward and upward. Some six additions by baptism lately, and some by letter. We have two Sabbath schools in our branch of the church that seems to be prospering well. One at the Brush Creek meeting-house, and one at Fairview school-house. I am sorry that there are still some brethren who are opposed to the Sabbath school. Our branch of the Church is located in Highland, Adams and Pike Co's. We have two regular preaching places in Highland county, five in Adams and one in Pike county. Our ministers are five in number, two in the first degree, and three in the second. Landon West and Isaac Jarnigan in the first degree, and Mills Calvert, Isaiah Custer and J. H. Garman in the second degree. Our deacons are four in number, Joseph Thomas, Joel Calvert, Wm. Calvert, Abraham Gall. We are left without an Elder. Elder Calvert died some years ago, and Elder Cadwalander has moved away, so we are without an Elder.

J. H. GARMAN.

Sinking Springs, Ohio.

Dear Pilgrim: We "dared to brave the lion in his den" and he has been aroused; quite recently a modern "Demetrius" has spoken, fearing their "craft" is in danger and that even "Diana should be despised and her magnificence should be destroyed * * * whom the world worshipeth" did "limber" his artillery and made a desperate assault on the "despised" little tract, and "cried out saying, great is Diana of the Ephesians," or in other words, "great is the Mourners Bench!" Webster was ransacked to find adjectives severe enough to denounce the tract, but "Gans" has not been caught, so please send on some more of those tracts according to order that they may be scattered by the wayside and the "Mourners Bench" be made to tremble, quake and splinter until it is riven to atoms! We will try and endure the "noise."

J. S. FLORY.

QUARRY, Iowa.

Dear Pilgrim: This leaves us in the usual enjoyment of health, for which we feel to thank God. To-day I am to preach a funeral sermon for old grandmother Lamb, a member of the Methodist Church. The last funeral I preached was for Frederick Nice, a boy not quite fourteen years of age, who was killed by lightning while standing by his father's side looking out of a window. His father was a widower and had no person living with him but his son. There was no person but his son present at the time of the sad occurrence. The old father was so badly shocked that he knew nothing for some time, but is now about over it again.

ELD. JOHN MURRAY

Announcements.

LOVEFEASTS.

Meadow Branch, Md., Saturday October 12th. Commencing at half past 1 o'clock p. m.

Sam's Creek, Md., Tuesday, October 15th, commencing at half past 1 o'clock p. m.

Salem Congregation Frederick Co., Va. Saturday and Sunday, 14th and 15th of September. Commencing at 1 o'clock p. m

DEAR PILGRIM: Please inform your readers that we the brethren of the Stone Church, Marshall county, Iowa, intend to hold our Communion Meeting, commencing on Friday, Sept. 13th. We intend continuing our meeting over Sunday, and hope our ministering brethren will make arrangements to stay with us until after that time. When we make our meeting public, we think the members should feel themselves invited.

ELD. JOHN MURRAY.

Bro. Brumbaugh:—Please say through the PILGRIM that the brethren composing the Whitesville branch will hold their Lovefeast, the Lord willing, at the house of brother Daniel Glick's, in Andrew Co, Mo., on the 5th of October, commencing at 4 o'clock P. M. The usual invitation is extended, to ministers especisally. We think it prudent to continue the meeting, if some of the ministers could arrange their matters so as to remain with us a few days and preach for the Lord, as much good may be accomplished here. Please think of this brethren before starting. Those from a distance desiring to be with us at that time can address brother Daniel Glick, Flag Springs, Andrew county Mo., or J. B. Bashor, Whitesville, Andrew county Mo. By order of the Church.

S. C. BASHOR.

DIED.

NUSBAUM.—On July 28th, in Taylor township, Blair county, David Nusbaum, aged 62 years, 9 months and 7 days.

HETERICK.—At New Enterprise, Bedford Co., Pa., July 22nd. Cora, infant daughter of brother John and sister Justina Heterick. Aged 3 months and 20 days. Funeral services by the brethren from Math. 18: 1, 3.

LEONARD FUKRY.

The Weekly Pilgrim.

JAMESCREEK, PA., Aug. 13th, 1872.

AURORA BOREALIS.

The Heavens, at all times, is a book of wonders, and almost every hour we turn a leaf to behold scenes of new beauty. During the day we have the ever-changing clouds as subjects for our continual admiration, and at night, the starry Heavens, beautified by the great orb of night, form one of the grandest themes for contemplation, but on last Saturday night we had our attention called to one of the grandest sights that we had the pleasure of witnessing for a long time. It was the "Aurora Borealis." It was between eight and nine o'clock that it appeared in its most beautiful colors. We have often seen the phenomenon before, but, we believe, never so beautiful. The sight was so grand that for us to try to give a description of it would only spoil it to those who had the pleasure of seeing it, which we have no doubt many of our readers had. But with this, like a great many other things, we may have seen it quite differently, and generated within us quite different chains of thought. From effects we seek after causes, and as many of our readers perhaps have never sought after the cause of this phenomenon of nature, it would be our greatest pleasure to inform you of it, if we had a positive knowledge of it ourselves. If you noticed it carefully you will remember that it seemed to raise from the North in flashy waves. This reminded us of one of the old theories adduced which was, that it was supposed to be caused by the sun's rays reflecting from moving masses of ice towards the poles. This might do pretty well if we could get the sun in the right place, the ice in the right position and have it move in the right direction, but with all the philosophy we have got we cannot imagine how these things can work together.

A more modern theory is, that it is supposed to be due to the passage of electric currents through the higher regions of the atmosphere—the different colors manifested, being produced by the passage of electricity through air of different densities. If our readers can swallow and digest this, you have the cause. If not, you have the best we can give, but without entering into a further investigation, we will agree that it was exceedingly beautiful and that the first and great cause is God, but by what special means He brings it about we are not fully informed. These are some of the deep things of God and portray to us the wonders of His might, and if we live as dear children, the time will soon come, when these natural eyes shall be closed in death and our spiritual eyes, in a new life, shall be opened, when we shall behold such rapturous visions that all the beauties of earth will fade in comparison.

REPRIMAND.

——We this week received a gentle reminder for introducing into our columns what was thought to be a sly touch on politics.—Among other things our good brother said, we give the following: "Now, if you cannot find any fault with the man that bailed Jeff Davis in order to keep back the stroke of justice and to gain the support of the whole South, then I think that either you or I must be politically blind." If one of us must be politically blind we will accept the position as we do not claim any wisdom whatever in the business of the world's Kingdom, but independent of politics we look upon the bailing of Mr. Davis as one of Greely's redeeming qualities. It was a philanthropic, merciful and Christian-like act, and in no way interfered with the power of the law or justice, but simply made himself responsible for the culprit's appearance at a bar of justice and when that was done, Mr. Greely freed himself from that responsibility, and if Davis there escaped justice it was the fault of the civil tribunal and not of Greely. What may have been his object we do not pretend to say, but if we suppose that it was to gain the vote of the South we give him credit for considerable forethought. In giving the biography of Mr. Greely, we did not do it from a political standpoint or with the expectation of throwing an influence in his favor, but gave it because our readers have a right to know what kind of men are seeking the highest position of government. Grant, the Republican candidate has been before the people for the last five years, and everybody knows, or ought to know, something about him, therefore we did not deem it necessary to say anything, as actions speak louder than words. If we were to make the appointment, neither of them would get to be President, but the two evils are before you, choose the less, if choose you must, but far better, dear brethren, stand aloof from the political whirlpool of corruption, and let the world elect its own rulers, and henceforth if it becomes our lot to say anything about either, or any of the candidates in the political field we do not wish to have it said that we are endeavoring to cast a political influence, as that is, by no means, our design.

AWAY FROM CARE.

Care is a disease of the mind and is a creature of circumstances. To become liberated from it, we must flee from the cause. This cannot always be done, as it sometimes follows us wherever we go; yet a changing of position and scenes often has the desired effect, as it throws us among other causes which, when combined, may become sufficiently great to overbalance the cause of our cares and thus give us hours of sweet reprieve amidst our most burdensome vexations of life.

Through the kindness of our gentlemanly superintendent of the H. & B. T. Railroad, we hold a free pass over the road which tempted us on last Saturday morning to forsake our sanctum of books, papers and manuscript and enjoy, for a short season, the pleasures and excitements of railroad travel. The morning was unusually refreshing, with a brisk breeze from the west, window hoisted, good seat and pleasant car, there is no outside reason why a man should not feel pleasantly situated providing the ride is not too long.

In railroad travel there is much to interest and instruct both inside and outside (of the car we mean.) There is much said about the west with its level roads, large fields, thriving towns and flowering prairies, but if you wish a refreshing and exciting car ride, let it be among the hills, across the ravines, over the streams and through the mountains. No matter if you do have an occasional fright, it only adds variety to the scenes and helps you to change subjects.

Bedford was the place of our destination, having some business transactions there. This is the present terminus of the H. & B. T. Railroad. Here the Bedford and Bridgeport road commences, which is now completed and forms a through route both West and South. Bedford is becoming a place of considerable importance on account of the Springs which are a little South of it. These Springs have been quite a summer resort for a number of years but since the completion of the railroad the number has been largely increased. During the last two weeks in July there were over 1100 arrivals and there ran daily, between the town and Springs, twenty-two first class hacks and several busses.

After spending several hours in town, we again took the cars and by five o'clock p. m., we were at home again feeling well pleased with our little trip.

A LARGE PAPER.—We have been asked; why not have a larger paper and thus avoid the necessity of subscribing for other papers in order to get general information? We answer, because there has, as yet, been no general demand for such a paper. We are ready, waiting and willing to publish just such a paper. We will publish a large eight page weekly, something like the Advent Times, or Christian, a sheet 28 x 40 for the small consideration of $2.00 per annum. Now if there is a general demand for a paper that will give, in addition to all the Church news, all the news of the world in order to a proper observing of the signs of the times, let us know it. With our present list of exchanges, and hundreds more if desired, we can put out a paper that will fully meet all the wants of the Church.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

ELD. LEONARD FURRY and G. W. Brumbaugh are now on a preaching tour in Fulton Co., Pa. They expect to be gone two weeks—expect to hear from them on their return.

THE JAPANESE have just completed their first railroad. It is known as the Japanese Government Railroad and runs from Yokohama to Yeddo, the capital. It was built at a tremendous cost, but is said to be paying well.

THE Christian Standard reports 165 accessions to their church as a total for last week. Brethren what do you suppose our weekly average is? Why not have a weekly report from every church in the brotherhood? We will gladly make note of them. Send them along.

DR. LIVINGSTONE, the great African explorer is the subject of considerable comment. His present object is to discover the source of the Nile. In the outset he went as a missionary. After teaching several nations of them the use of fire arms and the tactics of war he turned out explorer for which he was eminently more fit than introducing the peace doctrine of Jesus.

IT IS SUGGESTED that the devil is bound, from the fact that many of the popular ministers have left their charges and have gone to some of the fashionable watering places. Perhaps he has given his work into the hands of some of his ministers and went along with the divines. He is a great friend to worldly enjoyment.

JAUREZ, President of Mexico, died on the night of the 18th of July. There is considerable anxiety manifested in regard to the news from this distracted country on account of his successor, Lerdo de Tejada, who is supposed to be a sympathizer with the Revolutiooists. He will act President until Congress shall order the election of another.

A PRESBYTERIAN MINISTER in crossing the Jordan gives expression to the following:

"As the sun was sinking beneath the horizon we came in sight of the Jordan and hastened down to the ford where the Savior is thought to have been baptized. We turned our faces away from the baptismal font of Jesus—away from the huge liquid grave."

How strangely men will express themselves! Here he calls Jordan a baptismal font—a huge liquid grave! and then turns right around and says that Jesus was sprinkled. There would certainly be no necessity of taking him into a "liquid grave." to sprinkle a little water on him.

THE GOVERNMENT of Japan has decided to promulgate a new form of religion.

The most noted expooents of the various sects have been consulted, and the new religion will be enlightened and simple and adapted to the common people. All will be compelled to conform hereto.

This may appear strange to us, yet popular religion of America is drifting in the very same channel, not trying to adapt it to the common people, but to the tastes and caprices of the world. The Japanese, in their heathanism, may be excused, but what will be the excuse of those who have the plan of salvation set before them so plainly that a wayfaring man, though a fool, cannot err therein?

FROM A DISSENTER, we learn that there is a new Church of believers being organized in Kansas. From the same source we learn that there are some twelve similar organizations under headway in the different States. Among the hundreds of different sects now extant in the world, a person would suppose there would be variety enough to suit almost any taste, but aberration is the rage of the times and refractory members, rather than come under restraint, will withdraw and set up for themselves, and if they can get a sufficient number of enthusiasts, they organize a Church and commence to establish their doctrine instead of the Lord's.

We have not yet learned the tenets of this new Church, but hope that it may not be as wild as some of the delusions that are now flooding the world. Oh, when will my people consider on their ways and turn their feet to the sure testimonies of the Lord?

The Famine in Persia.

At Hamadan, in Persia, the distress was on the increase, and the daily death rate was from seventy to a hundred. The cart for the dead was making its daily rounds, picking up the bodies and dumping them, in their rags, young and old, men and women, in one promiscuous heap, without order. By order of the king, persons were employed to wash and bury these dead, but they were daily cast into pits. Two months ago, it was computed that two hundred human bodies had been eaten. Dogs and cats had disappeared. It was dangerous for a child to stray from home, but for a few steps, lest he be seized, killed and eaten. Up to the time of leaving, matters were growing worse every day. Very many had only enough to last, by the greatest stint, a week or a fortnight longer. They would sell everything to buy a little bread, but to prolong for a few hours, their wretched existence. The last resort is to tear down their houses over their heads, sell the timbers to obtain their final morsel, and then succumb. They found the bones of the dead strewn along the road. Bodies were to be seen, in all stages of decomposition; and large numbers had become the food of vultures and jackals. Men have fled. Whole villages have become depopulated, and the land lies waste, without man or beast to till the soil. The prospects for Hamadan and region is very sad for the year to come, as but little grain has been sown, on account of the lack of seed. Men have just arrived from Teheren, who represent the famine as fearful there. Hundreds are said to die daily of starvation and the consequent sickness.

Disastrous Fire.—The Erie Railway Company suffered the loss of its extensive repair shops in Jersey city, last week, by fire. Twenty-four locomotives were destroyed, besides large quantities of tools, &c. The total loss is estimated at $1,156,000, divided as follows: Buildings, $150,000; twenty-four locomotives, $192,000; machinery, $800,000; belting, lumber and other stores, $5,000; and the books and papers in the offices, comprising all the drawings of engines, machinery, &c., accumulated since the road has been in operation, about $9,000. In addition to this, about $10,000 worth of the tools belonging to the workmen were wholly destroyed. An insurance amounting to about two-thirds of the value of the property lost by the company was effected only a few months ago. About 500 workmen are thrown out of employment by the fire, and as many of them have no resources except those afforded by their labor from day to day, much suffering will undoubtedly ensue. Nearly all of them, machinists, as well as carpenters, which were insured in but few cases.

A dispatch was received at San Francisco, July 23, from Victoria, stating that all the white settlers at the Forks of Skeena, British Columbia, had been killed by the Indians.

The number of deaths by cholera during the past week, in St. Petersburg, was 126; Moscow, 32; Odessa, 84. Quite a decrease.

GOOD BOOKS.

A large number of our patrons are receiving our books as noticed below, as premiums, and express themselves highly pleased with them. Others who are not agents, have enquired whether we keep them for sale. We have now made arrangements with Mr. Wells to furnish any of their publications post paid at publishers prices. Orders for books must be accompanied with the cash, and plain directions for sending them.

Conversion of St. Paul. By George Jarvis Geer, D. D. 12mo. fine edition, $1. Plain edition, 75 cents.

Footprints of Life; or, Faith and Nature Reconciled.—A Poem in three parts. The Body. The Soul. The Deity. By Philip Harvey, M. D. $1.25.

Fruit Culture for the Million. A Hand book. being a Guide to the Cultivation and Management of Fruit Trees. Descriptions of the Best Varieties, and How to Propagate them. illustrated $1.00.

Hand-book for Home Improvement: comprising "How to Write," "How to Talk," How to Behave," and "How to do Business," in one vol. 2.25.

How to Live; Saving and Wasting, or Domestic Economy. By Solon Robinson. $1.50.

Life at Home; or, The Family and its Members. Husbands, Wives, Parents, Children, Brothers, Sisters, Employers and Employed, etc. By Rev. William Aikman, D. D. A work which should be found in every family. $1.50. Extra gilt, $2.00.

Man and Woman: Considered in their Relations to each Other and to the World. By Henry C. Pedder. 12mo, Fancy cloth. Price $1.00.

Man, in Genesis and in Geology; or, the Biblical Account of Man's Creation, tested by Scientific Theories of his Origin and Antiquity. By Joseph P. Thompson, D. D., LL.D. One vol. 12mo, $1.00.

Oratory—Sacred and Secular; or, the Extemporaneous Speaker. Including Chairman's Guide for conducting Public Meetings according to the best Parliamentary forms. By Wm. Pittenger. $1.50.

The Right Word in the Right Place. A New Pocket Dictionary and Reference Book. Embracing Synonyms, Technical Terms, Abbreviations, Foreign Phrases, Writing for the Press, Punctuation, Proof-Reading, and other Valuable Information. Cloth, 75cts.

The Emphatic, Diaglott; or The New Testament in Greek and English. Containing the Original Greek Text of the New Testament, with an Interlineary Word for-word English Translation. A Work for Students in Theology, and S. S. Teachers. By Benamin Wilson. Price, $4.00; extra fine binding, $5.00.

Waver's Works for the Young. Comprising "Hopes and Helps for the Young of both Sexes," "Aids and Aims for Girls and Young Women," "Ways of Life; or, the Right Way and the Wrong Way," $3

Hopes and Helps for the Young of both sexes, Relating to the Formation of Character. Choice of Avocation, Health, Conversation, Cultivation of Intellect, Moral Sentiments, Social Affection Courtship and Marriage. By Rev. G. S. Weaver. Muslin, $1.50.

1870 1872

DR. FAHRNEY'S

Blood Cleanser or Panacea.

A tonic and purge, for Blood Diseases. Great reputation. Many testimonials. Many ministering brethren use and recommend it. Ask or send for the "Health Messenger." Use only the "Panacea" prepared at Chicago, Ills., and by

Dr. P. Fahrney's Brothers & Co.,

Mar. 29-pd. Waynesboro, Franklin Co., Pa.

SALEM COLLEGE.

The Fall term of Salem College will open for the reception of any number of students from all parts on the 4th of September, 1872. Ample accommodations and thorough instruction will be given all students who connect themselves with this College. Good board can be had in good families at $2.50 to $3.00 per week or students can board themselves in clubs at $1.25 to $1.50 per week as numbers have done with the consent of the faculty. Special care will be given students who are far from home.

For Catalogues, Scholarships and full particulars address

SALEM COLLEGE,

July 23, '72. Bourbon, Ind.

Educational.

The second year of Pleasant Hill College, Warsaw, Ind., will begin Sept. 4th, 1872, in which a thoroughly practical education will be given in Academic and Collegiate studies. Brethren's children are expected to attend our weekly religious meetings. Ladies and gentlemen admitted on equal footing.

O. W. Miller, President.

July 9-tf. Warsaw, Ind.

Italian Queen Bees,

FOR SALE.

Purity and safe arrival guaranteed. Sent post paid, at $2.25 each.

Address,

ISAAC HEDDING,
Lewistown, Box 160,

Jun. 24-tf. Mifflintown Co., Pa.

Trine Immersion.

A discussion on Trine Immersion, by letter between Elder B. F. Moomaw and Dr J. J. Jackson, to which is annexed a Treatise on the Lord's Supper, and on the necessity, character and evidences of the new birth, also a dialogue on the doctrine of non-resistance, by Elder B. F. Moomaw. Single copy 50 cents.

HUNTINGDON & BROAD TOP RAIL ROAD

Summer Arrangement.

On and after Tuesday, June 4, 1872, Passenger trains will arrive and depart as follows:

Trains from Huntingdon South.				Trains from Bedford moving North.
MAIL. A. M.	ACCOM P. M.	STATIONS.		MAIL. P. M.	ACCOM A. M.
*le*8 20	LE6 00	Huntingdon,		AR5 25	AR9 10
8 28	6 06	Long Siding		5 17	9 00
8 45	6 19	McConnelstown		5 04	8 45
8 51	6 25	Pleasant Grove		4 58	8 39
9 05	6 37	Marklesburg		4 45	8 27
9 20	6 51	Coffee Run		4 33	8 11
9 27	6 58	Rough & Ready		4 26	8 40
9 39	7 10	Cove		4 13	7 52
9 43	7 15	Fishers Summit		4 08	7 48
10 03	7 35	Saxton	le	3 48	le 7 53
10 10	7 53		ar		ar 7 46
10 27	8 10	Riddlesburg		3 30	6 30
10 34	8 17	Hopewell		8 22	6 12
10 51	8 35	Piper's Run		8 06	6 00
11 10	8 55	Tatesville		2 48	6 56
11 22	9 08	Bloody Run		2 33	6 50
11 26	9 12	Mount Dallas		2 29	5 46
11 32	9 19	Ashcom's Mills		2 22	5 42
11 36	9 23	Lutzville		2 18	5 36
11 40	9 27	Hartley's Mills		2 14	5
11 46	9 34	Jamesons		2 07	6
*r*11 22	*ar*9 40	Bedford		LE2 00	LE5 30

JOHN M'KILLIPS, Supt

SHOUP'S RUN BRANCH.

LE10 25	LE7 40	Saxton.	AR3 40	AR7 20
10 30	7 55	Coalmont.	3 25	7 05
10 36	8 00	Crawford.	3 20	7 00
AR10 45	AR8 10	Dudley	LE3 10	LE6 50

Bro'd Top City from Dudley 2 miles by stage.

Time of Penna. R. R. Trains at Huntingdon.

EASTWARD.				WESTWARD.
Hb'g Ac.	9 24	A. M	Cin. Ex.	2 19	A. M.
Mail	3 30	P. M	Pe'f Ex.	7 45	"
Cin. Ex.	6 55	"	Mail	5 40	P. M.
Phil. Ex	11 15	"	W. Pass.	11 52	A. M

TRACTS.

"ANXIOUS BENCH RELIGION EXAMINED," by Elder J. S. Flory, is a Tract now ready for distribution, of which the following is a brief synopsis of the contents: A short and pointed address to the reader. The motive that prompted him to write, and his responsibilities as a minister; The peculiarities attending this type of religion; The feelings there experienced, not imaginary but real, The key that unlocks the wonderful mystery: It is not the workings of God after the order and plan of salvation; Man's endowment, his imitative principle—emanated from God; Spiritual influences and intercourse; Relation existing between man and God, and man and man; The fraternal bond and our natural affinities established by the "so called" sciences of Electro Biology; Mesmerism and Psychology or science of the soul, also, "Spiritualism" "Spiritual Rappings," &c. The causes by which the feelings are excited; Sympathy of the nervous system, and how that momentary feeling of joy is brought about, called, "Experimental Religion; Similar feelings may be brought about when there are no religious pretensions; Our reasons why we think this modus operandi of getting religion is not according to the Gospel, and then concludes by pointing out that form of doctrine as taught by Jesus Christ, and recorded by His faithful witness.

These tracts will be sent to all post paid, on the following terms: Two copies, 10 cts, 10 copies 40 cents, 25 copies 70 cents, 50 copies $1.00, 100 copies $1.50.

Menno Simon's
COMPLETE WORKS.

In English, translated from the original Dutch or Holland, giving the whole of the great Reformers writings on the subject of Baptism. Price in full sheep $4.50; by mail $5.14.

Address, JOHN F. FUNK & BRO.

New Hymn Books, English.

Turkey Morocco

One copy,	post-paid,	$1 00
Per Dozen,		11 25

Plain Arabesque.

One Copy,	post-paid,	75
Per Dozen,	"	8 50

Plain Sheep.

One Copy,	post-paid,	75
Per Dozen,	"	8 50

Ger'n & English, Plain Sheep.

One Copy	post-paid	$ 1 00
Per Dozen		11 25
Arabesque plain,		1.00
Turkey morocco,		$ 1.25.
Single German	post-paid,	50
Per Dozen,		5 50

THE PILGRIM,

Published by J. B. Brumbaugh, & Co.

Edited by H. B. & Geo. Brumbaugh.

CORRESPONDING EDITORS.

D. P. Sayler, Double Pipe Creek, Md.

Leonard Furry, New Enterprise, Pa.

The Pilgrim is a Christian Periodical, devoted to religion and moral reform. It wil advocate in the spirit of love and liberty, the principles of true Christianity, labor for the promotion of peace among the people of God, for the encouragement of the saints and for the conversion of sinners, avoiding those things which tend toward disunion or sectional feelings.

TERMS.

Single copy, one year,	$1.25.
Book paper, " "	1.50.
Eleven copies, [eleventh for Agt.]	$12.50.

Any number above that at the same rate,

Address.

H. B. BRUMBAUGH.

James Creek,

Huntingdon county Pa.

Narrow Pilgrim.

"REMOVE NOT THE ANCIENT LANDMARKS WHICH OUR FATHERS HAVE SET."

VOL. 3. JAMES CREEK, PENNSYLVANIA, AUGUST 20, 1872. NO. 34.

POETRY.

A VOICE FROM HEAVEN.

I shine in the light of God,
His likeness stamps my brow;
Through the valley of death my feet have trod,
And I reign in glory now!

No breaking heart is here,
No keen and thrilling pain,
No wasted cheek, where the frequent tear
Hath rolled and left its stain.

I have reached the joys of heaven;
I am one of the sainted band;
For my head a crown of gold is given,
And a harp is in my hand.

I have learned the song they sing
Whom Jesus hath set free,
And the glorious walls of heaven still ring
With my new-born melody.

No sin, no grief, no pain;
Safe in my happy home,
My fears all fled, my doubts all slain,
My hour of triumph come!

O friends of mortal years,
The trusted and the true!
Ye are watching still in the valley of tears,
But I want to welcome you.

Do I forget? oh, no;
For memory's golden chain
Shall bind my heart to the hearts below
Till they meet to touch again.

Each link is strong and bright;
And love's electric flame
Flows freely down like a river of light
To the world from whence I came.

Do you mourn when another star
Shines out from the glittering sky?
Do you weep when the raging voice of war
And the storms of conflict die?

Then why should your tears run down,
And your hearts be sorely riven,
For another gem in the Savior's crown
And another soul in heaven?

ORIGINAL ESSAYS.

For the Pilgrim.

GROWING IN GRACE. NO. 3.

2 PETER III: 18.

Manner. Having said something about the essentials and means, it may be in place to devote this article to the characteristics or manner of growth, which should be, among other things, symmetrical, harmonious and constant.

A symmetrical growth in grace.—We sometimes see objects that seem to have grown too much in one direction and too little in others. A one-sided tree, for example, does not please us as well as one with a regular and symmetrical form. But the latter is not only more beautiful, it is also more durable, and may be much more useful. Its fruit may not be any better but, other things being equal, it will certainly be more abundant. Now are there not one-sided men—Christians, too—as well as one-sided trees? We sometimes hear them called "men of one idea",—that is, men that allow their minds to dwell so much on one thing that it becomes almost the sum and substance of their thoughts—their hobby, which they ride on all occasions and seem to think that all who are not equipped as they are will certainly be the losers in the race. Such persons of course lose their influence over men of more breadth of thought, and, in so far, contract their sphere of usefulness. While the hobby-rider gallops over the field with his mind's eye constantly fixed on one object, others prefer to look at other objects of interest as they pass along, and to look at them, too, from many different standpoints. This, it seems, the "man of one idea" will not take the trouble to do, and if he be a Christian minister, he fails in this very important point—"rightly dividing the word of truth." He preaches too much on one thing, and not at all on subjects equally important; consequently sensible people soon tire of listening to him, no matter how good, bad or indifferent his "one thing" may be. He may, of course, do some good, just as the one-sided tree may bear some excellent fruit; but why not be, if possible, a well-balanced, symmetrical gospel plant, and not only bear good fruit, but also an abundance of it,—letting it form and color beneath the eye of the great Artist, and in accordance with those beautiful and mysterious laws which Himself alone could frame!

A harmonious growth in grace.—Whether the outward appearance be symmetrical or not (to resume the figure of the tree), if we look beneath the foliage, we will sometimes see the branches crossing and chafing one another, and thus interfering with the health and fruitfulness of the tree as a whole. There is jarring, friction, opposition. Are there not also opposing traits in character, and sometimes even in Christian character? It is possible to inherit many good qualities (the most, it is said, have some redeeming traits), to acquire many more, and yet not be what we might and should. Inconsistency is the cause. We allow the bad to mix with the good; one neutralizing the other, and, though branches of the true vine, we become in a manner unfruitful. For instance, some of us who might otherwise be exemplary Christians, allow ourselves to indulge in some pernicious habit (tobacco using, for example), and, worse than all, we perhaps try to make it harmonize with our holy calling by wresting Scripture. Thus, in the example cited, we maintain that God pronounced every created thing "good," and that even if the "weed" were one of the results of the curse, its use will be sanctified if we receive it with thanksgiving! But such a use of holy writ can no more convince the sincere, unbiased mind, than Satan, by quoting Scripture, could convince the Son of God. The leopard can not change his spots and it is no use to quote Scripture to prove that he can. It may be done, however. Suppose the weed were even "very good" in itself, would it then not be a sort of sacrilege to ask a blessing on a use of it so obviously sinful in its tendency! If the husbandman would gather a good harvest, he must banish the weeds—to ask God to bless them would hardly fill his cribs with the yellow corn or his garners with the golden grain. "Ye ask and receive not: because ye ask amiss, that ye may consume it on your lusts."—"Happy is the man that condemneth not himself in that thing which he alloweth." Thus say James and Paul.

A constant growth in grace.—It is sometimes said that there is no standing still in the divine life; we are either getting better or getting worse. This is perhaps, one of those stereotyped expressions more frequently used than fully comprehended, but there is no doubt enough truth in it to teach us the danger of inactivity and the importance of a constant growth in grace. The Christian's cause is ever onward and upward. Once having put his hand to the gospel plough he must not stop or look back. The same is taught by such scripture expressions as these: "Be not weary in well-doing: for in due season you shall reap, if ye faint not." "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily and follow me." Pray without ceasing." "It is good to be zealously affected always in a good thing. "Run with patience the race that is set before you." These will suffice. Rest begets rust; and rust, we know, retards motion. If a Christian neglects a given means of grace to-day—prayer, reading the Bible, public worship, or any other—he will, no doubt, feel less inclined to avail himself of the same to-morrow, or "next time." Many have taken the first step to a downward course by indulging "just this once, for the Christian to do this in the present in the hope that it will seem easier in the future, is as foolish as for the sinner to defer repentance in hopes of finding "a more convenient season. Both are cheats upon self to please satan. There can be a constant growth in grace only when there is a constant use of the means that God has appointed. A very important one if there is public worship. Is it any wonder that some grow cold, when they can attend the house of God only once in eight weeks, perhaps not so often? And would it not be bet- to have service at a half a dozen different places than to have a half a dozen idle ministers at one place? "Why stand (sit) ye here all the day idle?" The more extensive the field over which Paul scatters his gospel seed, the more seed he is likely to drop in good soil; and the more frequently Apollos goes to water the tender plants, the less liable they are to droop and die, and the greater, of course, will be the increase, some yielding a hundred fold, some sixty, some thirty, others less, according as the spiritual plants have or have not enjoyed a constant harmonious and symmetrical growth in grace. Z.

Mercersburg, Pa.

ON CALLING AND ELECTION.

They shall come from the east and from the west, from the north and from the south and shall sit down in the kingdom of God. "And behold there are last, which shall be first and there are first which shall be last." Luke, 13: 29, 30.

As Esau could not obtain the blessing by his weapons, the quiver and bow in hunting venison; so could not the unbelieving Jews obtain the Gospel blessing by their zeal for the works of the law. As Jacob inherited the blessing so do all the believers in Christ obtain the blessing and are blessed with all spiritual blessings in heavenly places in Christ, Eph. 1: 3. "Therefore it is not of him that willeth nor of him that runneth but of God that showeth mercy."

We see now whether from the emblematical representation of Esau and Jacob and the words, "Jacob having loved, but Esau having hated," there can be drawn the conclusion that God has from the creation chosen and elected a part of the human family to be heirs of eternal life and glory while he has doomed the other to eternal pain and misery, notwithstanding the law wherein God manifested his hatred of sin and which was prefigured by Esau whom he hated and by the works of which the sinner could not be justified in the sight of God," for by the deeds of the law there shall no flesh be justified in his sight." Rom. 3: 20.

God did not hate the penitent sinner who was under the law and obeyed it, but by the law and its sacrifices, pointed him to the all-atoning Lamb and the gospel by which the love of God is manifested to sinners, which was prefigured by Jacob whom He loved, and by which all are called to the gospel feast, "for many are called but few are chosen." Matt. 22: 14.

Now what is the cause that but few are chosen? It is because they will not come and obey the call. The invitaion was as urgent to those who did not come as to those that came, and those who were first bidden refused to come, when the Lord sent out his servants at supper time to say to them that were bidden, "come for all things are now ready" Luke 14: 17. They all with one consent began to make excuses and refused to come. Those were of the house of Israel. When all things were made ready and they bidden to come and came not, it was because they would not come, and not because they were not invited and could not come. When this was shewed unto the Lord he said to his servants go quickly into the streets and lanes of the city and bring in hither the poor and the maimed and the halt and the blind and the servants said, Lord it is done as thou hast commanded and yet there is room; and the Lord said unto the servants go out into the highways and hedges and compel them to come in that my house may be filled. The highways and hedges denote the whole world. This accords with the commandment given to the apostles by Christ when he ascended to heaven saying: "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." Mark 16: 15. This call is to all both Jew and Gentile. All nations of every language; free grace for all that will come and accept it. If the greater part are reprobated and rejected why are they called? The Lord wept over Jerusalem and said. Thou that killest the prophets and stonest them that are sent unto thee, how often would I have gathered thy children together even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings and ye would not." Matt. 23: 37. From these scriptures it is evident that it is in the free will of man to accept the call of the gospel and come to Christ and live, or reject it and die, for it is the will of God that all men should be gathered under the wings of his mercy and be saved and come to the knowledge of the truth. 1 Tim. 2: 4. "Behold saith the spirit, I have set before thee an open door and no man can shut it." Rev. 3: 8. "The spirit and the bride say come, and let him that heareth say come, and let him that is athirst come, and whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely." 22: 17. If a door is set open that no man can shut, and all are invited to come and take of the water of life freely, can it yet be said that God, who is no respecter of persons, did, in his foreknowledge, reprobate a large majority of his rational creatures, unavoidably on their part, to eternal misery? Is it not inconsistent with the above scriptures, and in opposition to the text and the divine attributes of God? That Christ, by the sacrifice of himself, has made atonement for the sins of the whole world, I will try and prove by the gospel. "Therefore as by the offense of one, judgment came upon all men to condemnation, even so by the righteousness of one the free gift came upon all men to justification of life. Rom. 5: 18. "That we have an advocate with the Father Jesus Christ the righteous, and he is the propitiation for our sins, and not for ours only, but also for the whole world. 1 John 2: 1, 2. Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that he loved us and sent his Son to be the "propitiation for our sins." And we have seen and do testify the Father sent his Son to be the Saviour of the world. When John saw Jesus coming unto him; he saith, "behold the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world. John 1: 29. The Samaritans said unto the woman: "now we believe, not because of thy saying, for we have heard him ourselves, and, know that this is indeed the Christ, the Savior of the world" 4: 42. "To wit that God was in Christ reconciling the world unto himself, not imputing their tresspasses unto them." 2 Cor. 5: 19. This proves that a full atonement is made for the sins of the whole world and the door of free grace is open for all who will come and accept it by faith in Christ.

Now what is the reason why some are elected and chosen while others are hardened in sin? Is it not their own willingness or unwillingness in receiving the gospel of peace? "Know brethren beloved your election of God for our gospel came not unto you in word only but also in power and in the Holy Ghost and much assurance as ye know what manner of men we were among you for your sake, and ye became followers of us and of the Lord, having received thee in much affliction with joy of the Holy Ghost." 1 Thess. 1: 4, 6. "For this cause also thank we God without ceasing, because when ye received the word of God which ye heard of us, ye received it not as the word of men, but, as it is in truth, the word of God, which effectually worketh also in you that believe. For ye brethren became followers of the churches of God which are in Judea are in Christ Jesus." 2: 13, 14. "Wherefore the rather brethren, give diligence to make your calling and election sure, for if you do these things ye shall never fall." 2 Pet. 1: 10. This is evident from the above scriptures, that all those who gladly and willingly received the word, believe in Christ, keep His sayings and follow Him are the called, the elected, the chosen. They press toward the mark for the high calling of God in Christ Jesus. Yes, they are elected and chosen because they obey the voice of the Lord, keep His commandments and do them. Fight the good fight of faith and lay hold on eternal life and thus Christ is the author of eternal salvation "unto all them that obey Him." Heb. 5: 9. Those that are reprobated, are those that reject the offered grace, as Peter says: "For this they willingly are ignorant of, that by the word of God the heavens were of old and the earth standing out of the water and in the water." 2 Pet. 3: 5. "And this is the condemnation that is come into the world, and men loved darkness rather than light because their deeds were evil, for every one that doeth evil hateth the light neither cometh to the light lest his deeds should be reproved." John 3: 19, 20. "And with all deceivableness of unrighteousness in them that perish, because they received not the love of the truth that they might be saved, and for this cause God shall send them strong delusion that they believe a lie, that they might be damned who believed not the truth, but had pleasure in unrighteousness." 2 Thess. 2: 10, 12. "But unto them that are contentions and do not obey the truth, but obey unrighteousness, indignation and wrath." Rom. 2: 8.

This appears plain that they only are hardened and reprobated, who harden themselves and are wilfully ignorant of the knowledge of God and His ways, who love darkness rather than light, who will not retain God in their knowledge, who will not receive of the truth and be saved, but spurn the knowledge of God and His grace from them and persist in their obstinacy and impenitency on the road down to eternal woe. "For he that being often reproved and hardeneth his neck shall suddenly be destroyed and that without remedy." Prov. 29: 1.

In this world is set before us life and death, therefore let us choose life, let us fight a good fight of faith, lay hold on eternal life whereunto we are called, and let us give diligence to make our calling and election sure that we may obtain the crown of righteousness which the Lord the righteous Judge shall give unto all them that love his appearance.

A. J. CORRELL.

For the Pilgrim.

PRAY WITHOUT CEASING.

Prayer tends to make work successful in two ways, by making the worker strong, and by securing the help of God. The reaction of prayer if it merited no other praise would be its ample vindication. If it accomplished nothing without us, we should do well to pray without ceasing on account of what it does within us.

The success of work done for God depends largely upon the courage and confidence of the worker, and these depend upon his personal relation to God. What we shall achieve for the Master is not a question of phisical force, nor of numbers nor of finance, nor of intelligence solely and chiefly. It is a spiritual question. The amount as well as the quality of work for God, attempted by his people, is largely contingent on these prayers. They that wait on the Lord shall renew their strength so that they may be able to run in the path of duty d be weary, and under the severest discouragements, to walk and not faint. But prayer is also a positive force in the moral world. It brings about results which, but for it, would never come to pass. The Bible never shrinks from representing prayer as a power above those natural laws which now-a-day are so often assumed to be the very frame work of nature or the virtual fetters of a sleeping deity.

Prayer has wrought many a miracle, and now that this exceptional method of divine working is past, it wields the measureless energies of providence in ways no less efficient for good. God still works among men. He works by men and by very imperfect men, in answer to their trustful supplications.

Truth deserves attention, so if we would pray well we must live well. Those who are great prayers are great workers. It is only by working for Jesus that we can get any just conception of what needs to be done, of the obstacles in the way, of the best methods of meeting them, and of the inspiring motives which make all toil delightful. In such cases we should be willing to obey all the sayings of our Savior. We can not judge ourself neither will we be judged according to what this or that man has taught us by preaching or writing, however honest and sincere their intentions, eloquent their speech, fluent their language and great their learning. None of these will do us any good if we do not live, act and obey from our hearts and free will, that form of doctrine taught by word and precept by Christ the Redeemer of men and Son of God himself, as also by his chosen apostles. The words that Christ spoke are, and will be our judge and if we judge ourselves by these words here, we will not come into judgement hereafter. True and willing obedience and veneration God only accepts from his creatures, and these we can only learn if we study the scriptures for that end and purpose. But too much do we see these days, as it were by force, to worship God as the leading preachers think it proper, and in many cases it is done by the multitudes to please men and honor them. This should not be. God requires all the praise and honor that men can give. All power in heaven and on earth is given to Christ yet we see too much used by the clergy. After we come to the years of accountability I claim that we cannot be free except the truth make us free which is the word of God. We should remember the truth is to stand though heaven and earth may pass away. J. L. Sears.

We should not only break the teeth of malice by forgiveness, but pluck out its sting by forgetfulness.

For the Pilgrim.

RELIGION.

M. E. GOOD.

Religion is a glorious thing to practice, but O, how sad to neglect! Religion should be the chief concern of us all here below. There is nothing of so much importance to mankind; all else will vanish, but pure religion will never, no never. But how many profess religion and do not what God has required of them, but try to serve two masters at once, want to be christians and still do as the world does, dress in every shape and form imaginable, go to frolics, dance and play. Oh, what christianity! Can we for one moment suppose God is a God of confusion? His ways are ways of pleasantness, his paths are paths of peace, and whosoever comes unto him in a pure religious way, he will in no wise cast out.

How often has my heart been made to ache to see some who started out to serve God when I did. They going a different way and trying to take the world along, no change in dress. What does Christ say? "Come ye out from the world and be a separate people," adorning ourselves in modest apparel forbidding the wearing of gold and costly array.

Christ says after we have done all he has commanded us to do we are to count ourselves unprofitable servants. Therefore we have no promise of heaven unless we do his will

His word is to judge us at the last day, but Oh, how many will not be able to stand that judgement. Let us try to obtain that heirship while time and opportunity is granted us. Christ's ways are not our ways. We all desire to go where Jesus is and our stay on earth will not be long. Soon, perhaps too soon, that stern messenger, death, will sever the brittle cord of your existence. Will you be ready for that solemn change? Religion is more needful to us than all the glittering wealth or all the world can bestow. The road that leads to God is known and sought by few. Many are called but few are chosen.

Religion soothes our sorrows and calms our fears and fits us for our heavenly home where all is calm, serene and holy. Dear young brethren and sisters who as well as myself started out young to bear the cross of Jesus, let us try to bear it faithfully until our Christian pilgrimage is o'er, though we sometimes feel discouraged there is a star to guide those who humbly trust in God and do right. Let the world say what it will, if Christ be for us who can be against us. Let us not be ashamed to own our Lord. He loves us with an unchangable love. Let us ever be faithful. How lovely it will be as we grow older to look back upon a well spent life, a life devoted to God's service. Let us try to be a good example for others to follow, patterning after our blessed Savior. How worthy of imitation. Then we will never go astray and will obtain a crown of never fading glory at the right hand of our blessed Savior.

Waynesboro, Pa.

THE WORLD ASLEEP.

The whole world is, with respect to a future state, as it were fast asleep in this night of universal darkness and ignorance. The greater part are dreaming in their sleep and believing themselves to be wide awake, are verily persuaded that all is real because their dreams are regular, yea, like night walkers they perform the actions of a busy world in their sleep, and confident that they are in the full use and exercise of their reason. They wage war, they buy and sell, they marry and are given in marriage, and weary and fatigue themselves in this continual dream. Now who can persuade us in a dream that we are dreaming or that we talk in our dream? This is the true but melancholy condition of the greater part of mankind. They dream while they think themselves to be awake, and slumber over the day of life while they seem to exert the greatest activity to obtain solid and substantial good. Alas, neither admonitions nor reproof, nor the example of ten thousand dreamers who have gone before, can awake individuals until they are led by the hand of death behind the curtain, and made look at once full on a world of spirits. Nor is the general race of slumberers to be roused till the last trumpet sounds in their affrighted ears, and eternity expands in their staring eyes. There are however a few, and but a few, alas, who are spiritually awake, and whose thoughts pierce through the dark shadows of this dismal night into the light of glory and the regions of bliss. Such look beyond the glittering tapers and deceitful glow-worms of honors, riches, pleasures and applause. And yet in this imperfect state even, they are but like men struggling with the darkness of the night, watches waiting for the morning light and wishing for the perfect day. Such however, are the only persons who have their loins girt, and their lamps burning in expectation of the bridegroom, at whose coming the day will break, the shadows flee away, and a light seven times brighter than the noonday sun shine forever on them. Then and not till then shall the darkness pass, and the true light shine. While in the dark we wander, while in gloom we grope, waiting for the longed-for day. We are ready to fall asleep and to spend our time in slumbering, thoughtlessness, in drowsy inactivity, but when the day of glory shall spring, when the light of his countenance is lifted upon us ever, and the noon of communion spreads round us, then the falling shades with divine strength from the rock of ages shall invigorate every power of mind to adore the Most High. A Pilgrim.

CHEERFUL HOMES.

A single bitter word may disquiet an entire family for a whole day. One surly glance casts a gloom over the household; while a smile like a gleam of sunshine, may light up the darkest and weariest hours. Like unexpected flowers that spring up along our path, full of freshness, fragrance and beauty, so the kind words and gentle acts, and sweet dispositions make glad the home where peace and blessing dwell. No matter how humble the abode, if it be thus garnished with grace, and sweetened with kindness and smiles, the heart will turn longingly toward it from all the tumults of the world, and home, if it be ever so homely, will be the dearest spot beneath the circuit of the sun.

And the influences of home perpetuate themselves. The gentle grace of the mother lives in her daughters long after her head is pillowed in the dust of death; and fatherly kindness finds its echo in the nobility and courtesy of sons who come to wear his mantle, and to fill his place; while on the other hand, from an unhappy, misgoverned and disordered home, go forth persons who shall make other homes miserable, and perpetuate the sourness and sadness, the contentions, and strifes, and railings, which have made their own early lives so wretched and distorted.

Toward the cheerful home the children gather, "as clouds and as doves to their windows;" while from the home which is the abode of discontent and strife and trouble, they fly forth as vultures to prey their prey.

The class of men that disturb and disorder and distress the world are not those born and nurtured amid the hallowed influences of Christian homes; but rather those whose early life has been a scene of trouble and vexation, who have started wrong in the pilgrimage, and whose course is one of disaster to themselves and of trouble, to those around them.—The Christian.

Be Gentlemen at Home.—It is cruel and cowardly, in any man, to speak to the women under his own roof in a manner that would forever disgrace him if heard under any other. And yet how many do it, alas! and even go their way after it, selfishly forgetting the tears and bitterness they have caused, and selfishly expecting, if they remember it at all, that on their return the domestic sky will be without a cloud. More the pity when it is! Then, indeed, is there danger in the air; for then too often come deceit, and hypocrisy and indifference.

Modesty is one of the chief ornaments of youth.

Giving and Receiving.

It is better to give than to receive. It is so good to give! "Yes, but it is so nice to receive!" says some young curly-head, without as yet independent possessions, or the means of having any, save by the free gift of the elders and the well-endowed. So it is—very nice to receive; especially if you get the thing you want, and neither a white elephant with which you do not know what to do, nor just the thing you do not want or that you most particularly dislike, but the gift of which will stand in your way of getting what you desire. Barring these mishaps it is nice to receive; but for all that, the hand that gives knows the greater pleasure. Glad moment as it is to have a want satisfied, a blank filled up, it is one yet more glad to the person who is the cause of this content. To go among the poor and starving, and to see the bright faces that are left where such sad ones were met, to know the comfort that has been bestowed and the happiness created by our gifts, most assuredly turns back on the heart of the giver a fuller stream of joy than that which he has poured forth. Even if it is only the pleasure one gives the young—mere pleasure without any vital good in it—a toy, a trinket, the boy's first knife, the girl's first fan—there is more happiness to the donor than to the recipient; granting always that the gift has been made with a full heart and unbiased intention, and not impelled by fancied necessity: "I must give Emily that," and "I ought to give John this," and "What a nuisance it is, one's friends having so many children! I must give all the little cormorants presents this Christmas, and I'm sure I do not wish to do so!" By the look of things with some people, giving would seem to be a species of self-inflicted torture; a thing to be accomplished with as little agony—that is, expenditure—as possible, and to be undergone as seldom as may be. It is a necessity; but a necessity only from the outer law of manners, not from the inner impulses of the heart. There are certain people who never give. They pay their bills with scrupulous exactness, they owe no man anything, and would as soon be guilty of forgery as of debt and extravagance; but when it comes to giving—to a voluntary offering beyond the strict measure of legal necessity—they are as if made of wood, and you might as well attempt to make a graven image live and love as to get generous gifts out of your close-fisted friends. Perhaps, if they could be made to see generosity in the light of a religious duty, they might be up to the mark—in a way, carrying their disbursement as a cross; but nothing short of that would move them. And even then they would have to hope that the Lord would forgive that matter of the moth-eaten flannel, which was sixpence a yard cheaper than that which was whole; and that the doubtful shilling in the plate last Sunday might not be scored against them heavily. Such minds of course know nothing of the pleasures of giving, if something of its pain; but, setting these aside, we say again that of those who give, and those who receive, the former know the greater pleasure, and get the more lasting good.

So of forgiveness. We all have to go through a fire of trespasses and sins—both those which we commit against others, and those which others commit against us; and we all, therefore, have need of forgiveness on the one hand, and are required to forgive on the other. And, deep as is the peace which falls on us when we are forgiven, the exquisite rest of soul that comes "like a brooding dove" when we forgive is greater. But then it must be a real forgiveness—not that self-contradictory sham of which some people are so fond: "I may forgive, but I can never forget." It must be a forgiveness that has sought for excuses for the offence committed, and has found them; as they can always be found when looked for—a forgiveness that does honestly wipe the whole thing away as if it had never been, a tabula rasa of all the causes of resentment, and start fresh with a new score. And any one who has raised himself to this level out of the low-lying bogs of brooding and resentment, or the boiling springs of wrath, has come out into an upper air of security and contentment, such as we imagine gives a slight forecast of Heaven. To nourish anger and unforgiving displeasure is the worst thing we know. We might as well act out the old fable and warm a viper in our bosom; for we may be sure that some day this unforgiving displeasure will do us more harm than the object and that the viper's fang will fasten inward and not outward.

CHURCH FESTIVALS.

The following we clip from the Advent Christian Times. It so squarely meets the issues of the day that we think it worthy of a general reading. We are glad to know that our Church has never been cursed with these gambling schemes and hope our brethren will ever stand in firm opposition against them.

It is right or else it is wrong for churches to have festivals. There is no middle ground in this question. The evidence is either for or against. Many sincere followers of Christ are doubting and woudering in this matter. On the one hand they see great evils connected with the practice. And on the other they find many that the church calls good, giving undivided support to it. In such a perplexity as this there is no relief only in the sore word of God.

The seemingly plausible excuse that is submitted by the advocates of this custom viz: "that the church needs money and the festival is the surest way of getting it;" is, when closely scrutinized no excuse at all "Shall we do evil that good may come?" A minister once thanked the Lord in view of an approaching festival, that the church was going to get some of the devil's money! I think the minister hit the nail on the head. It is my candid opinion that money raised at these festivals is the devil's money. Is it necessary for the saints to borrow (or steal as the case may be) money from the devil in order to support the Lord's cause? It would seem so, from this minister's prayer. Shame on people who urge so flimsy an excuse for so great an evil: If the Lord's cause need money; go to the Lord for it, and not to the devil. The Lord is fully able to sustain his own cause, without any help from the other party.

"In the days that were before the flood they were eating and drinking." (Mat. 24: 38.) Does this refer to ordinary "eating and drinking," which is necessary to sustain life? I think not. Men have always been eaters and drinkers in the ordinary sense. The eating of food for the satisfaction of hunger and the slacking of thirst by drinking "pure cold water" has always been necessary for the sustenance of human life. This "eating and drinking" must therefore refer to something entirely different from the ordinary consumption of food.

To what can it refer but to feasting? The human appetite when unrestrained, naturally craves dainties even though they be unwholesome. Let an "ice cream supper" be announced under any circumstances and the people desire to be there to enjoy it. But let the church announce an "ice cream supper for the Lord" and the people will go with a double motive: (1) They like the "ice cream," and (2) its novel to think its the "Lord's ice cream." This is found to be a very effectual way to get out old rusty church members that seldom go to prayer meeting or preaching more than twice per annum, and when they do go, sleep through the entire service. They are sure to be out to the festival, and as wide awake as any. The trouble is men's religion is getting out of their hearts into their stomachs. Paul gives a pretty broad hint in this direction when he speaks of a class "whose God is their belly." This is the way it was in the days of Noah; and as it was in his day, so it is to be in days of the coming of the Son of man. And it is to be fulfilled right in our midst. The church has left the prayer meeting and gone to "eating and drinking." Thus we have another sign of Jesus soon coming.

"The people sat down to eat and drink and rose up to play." (1 Cor. 10: 7.) Moses left the Hebrews and went up into Mt. Sinai. He tarried long in the mountain. The people became impatient. They complained to Aaron of Moses' long absence, and demanded at his hand a god that they might worship. A golden calf is manufactured and the people are invited to worship it as their god. And it is not long after this until it becomes necessary to have a church festival, and the record states that they "sat down to eat and drink and rose up to play." This case is true to history. Not until a church apostatizes does it run off after the god of this world and go to holding fairs and festivals to raise money professedly for the Lord, but really to adorn and furnish their temples for their own convenience and comfort. What would John Wesley and the Methodists of his day have thought of a "grab bag," or "religious lottery," or an "ice cream supper in the Lord's house," or selling a "paste board-sweet cake," worth probably five cents, for the neat sum of $65 to buy an easy sofa for the pulpit and a beautiful, velvet, cushioned stool for the preacher to kneel his broadcloth upon while he makes an earnest prayer for the salvation of the audience? How would such things have been received by the Methodists in their early days of humility, holiness and piety? Not a layman or minister in the denomination but what would have spurned such things from their midst as unholy and degrading. How is it today? Let the observing answer. They sat down to eat and drink and rose up to play. This is usually the order of exercises at all church fairs, etc. The first thing is to eat and drink. The scene then changes, and a promiscous frolic ensues.

"Jesus went up to Jerusalem and found in the temple those that sold oxen and sheep and doves, and the changers of money sitting: and when he made a scourge of small cords, he drove them all out of the temple, and the sheep and oxen; and poured out the changer's money, and overthrew the tables, and said unto them that sold doves, Take these things hence; make not my Father's house a house of merchandise." (John 2: 14-16.) This shows how the blessed Master regarded church festivals. Indeed the above example is a very tame one compared with many that we have to-day. The selling of oxen and sheep in the temple was a very mild offence compared with many of the gambling, deceptive and dishonest tricks that are practiced under the cloak of religion in the church festivals of this century. No doubt Christ would dismiss every one of them if he were here personally. But he is here only by his Spirit, and the driving is the other way. Instead of his driving them out of the temple, they have driven him out of the church.

C. C. MARSTON.

SPURGEON AT HOME.

The following is an extract from the correspondence of Dr. Suyler to the New York Observer. It may be interesting for our readers to learn something about the most popular preacher of Europe.

"At ten o'clock I drove out with a friend to spend an hour with Mr.

Spurgeon. He resides several miles from his church, on the beautiful Nightingale Road—Clapham. The Road is lined with shade-embowered villas, like Clinton Avenue, Brooklyn. "Helensburgh House," the residence of the great preacher, is a very attractive mansion, surrounded by the most exquisite bit of garden and velvet lawn that I have yet seen in London. The grounds cover two or three acres, and were purchased by Mr. Spurgeon when this quarter of London was new and unoccupied, and the land was comparatively cheap. In time this place will be a fortune to its owner. Mr. Spurgeon's income from his Tabernacle and from his work is large; but nobly has he earned it, and generously does he use it. One of the most laborious of Christ's workers, he has a right to a beautiful home.

He greeted us in his free, cordial style, which is like my neighbor Beecher's genial manner. There are many points of resemblance between these two foremost preachers of the day; their stout, broad physique, their exuberant spirits, ready wit, marvelous fluency and superabounding juices of a manhood that seems utterly inexhaustible. Spurgeon's hair is just slightly tinged with its first grey; he is as stout as ever. "In this flesh dwelleth no good thing," said he playfully.

We spent a pleasant hour in his library, which overlooks the charming grounds. He showed us twelve or fifteen stately volumes of his printed sermons, besides several of his works translated into Dutch, Norwegian and German. He is now at work on a Bible interspersed with notes and helps of a peculiar kind. but the most interesting object was a small pile of his sermon preparations —each one on a half sheet of note-paper, or on the back of an envelope. Only the heads of the sermon are committed to paper, and not one syllable more. When we asked him if he had ever written a discourse, he replied, "I would rather be hung." His usual method is to choose his text, and devote a half hour to preparing the plan and putting it on a bit of paper. All the rest is left to the pulpit. "If I had a month given me to prepare a sermon," said he, "I would spend thirty days and twenty-three hours in something else, and in last hour I would make the sermon. If I could not do it in an hour, I could not do it in a month." This is certainly an extraordinary mental habit. But let it be observed, that if Spurgeon spends but n few minutes in arranging a sermon, he spends many days in careful, prayerful study of God's Word and of the richest Puritan writers on theology and experimental religion. He is all the time filling up the cask, so that whenever he turns the spiggot a sermon flows out in a few moments. His fluency in language has also become about perfect from long and constant practice. But never does he go to the pulpit without a mental agitation, amounting often to physical distress. "For years," said he, "I suffered so much before entering the pulpit that it often brought on violent attacks of vomiting and profuse outbreaks of perspiration. Only lately have I outgrown these fits of physical suffering."

Mr. Spurgeon took us through his beautiful grounds. In the rear of his garden he has perched up his old "Park Street" pulpit into a tree! The pulpit-stairs wind down around the trunk; and up in this eyrie he sits in a hot Summer day. Like our neighbor, Beecher, he has a keen appetite for flowers. His family is small. Two twin-boys, of the age of sixteen, are at school. His invalid wife waved her hand to us as we walked through the grounds before her window. The painful illness of this devoted wife is the shadow that falls over his beautiful home. This "crook in the lot" has been a chastening, mellowing sorrow to him.

The delightful hour which I passed with brother Spurgeon only increased my estimate of him as a minister of the Lord Jesus Christ. His marvellous voice, which sweeps over five thousand auditors in the "Tabernacle," is exceedingly pleasing in conversation. As I parted from him, I felt anew that there is but one Spurgeon in the world. As he stands in the loftiest pulpit in Europe, long may he continue to have all Christendom for his congregation.

Peter Piper's Papers.

I am often very deeply impressed with many common-place things which I observe as I go abroad, or as business requires me to have direct intercourse with my fellowmen; and with no other thing am I more deeply impressed than with the very great difference that exists between man and his fellow. Now this difference is seen not in one thing nor in a few things, but in very many things.

For instance, as I go along the street I may meet my young friend Mannerly, whenever I will, he always says, pleasantly good morning, or good day, or good evening Uncle Peter, and often follows up his kindly salutation with other respectful remarks. And if I come in where Mannerly is seated he invariably rises and offers his chair and this I have observed is his conduct towards all elderly people especially.

Now I like Mannerly. He is a young gentleman and will certainly make his mark in the world. He has respect for everybody and everybody respects him.

But there is my young friend Grum. He'll pass you by a dozen times a day and never notice you at all: Or if he must speak, it is in such a stiff, cleneked sort of a way that you hardly know whether it is a greet or a growl. And then there is so much stiffness in his manners and oil on his hair and shine on his boots as well as glitter on his chain that you hardly know whether he belongs to the nobility; or only wants to. He will put himself to no trouble to oblige anybody and always wears such a curl on his lip as seems to express his disdain for all earthly creatures.

Indeed, when I see him putting on his airs and assuming in his way to be somebody, I feel very much like saying to him, "Young man, you seem to be impressed with a sense of your importance, but indeed you are not so important after all. You are only one amongst the million. Your nudity would be just as ludickerous as other peoples, and I suppose, that at last, the worm will revel with as much delight upon your carnality as upon your despised neighbors."

I can see a great difference between Mannerly and Grum. I went into Buck's shop one day. He was lounging on a cushioned chair behind his counter reading a newspaper as was his custom. He mumbled something like a salutation, but nothing more, not even looking up from his paper. I waited a short time thinking that perhaps he was just at some interesting point and wished to finish it before heeding me further. But after ten minutes it was all the same, Buck only read on. I just walked out and across the street to Berry's. I no sooner came in than Berry, ever watchful for customers and business came forward with a hearty "God day, glad to see you, Uncle Peter. Can we do anything in our line for you to-day?"

It was cheering to see how ready he was to show his goods. Evidently it was no trouble for him to wait upon a customer. I bought what I wanted and paid for it and as he handed the neatly done up parcel he pleasantly remarked, "now, Uncle Peter, I'll not say thank you, as is the common custom; but I will say, call again and I'll make it as much to your interest to buy from me as it is to my advantage to sell to you."

"Well now, Berry," said I, "why don't you say, thank you, as others do?" "Well, sir," said he, "just for this very reason: If I am honest in giving a man the worth of his money there is nothing between us. I have no more right to thank him than he has to thank me. But, if it may be said, that he has favored me by coming to deal with me, then I may say that I favor him by keeping on hands, for his convenience, a stock of articles which, if I and others in the same trade did not keep, he would be compelled to go all the way to the manufacturers and producers to get; or do without. The profit he pays me for keeping them is far less than it would cost him to go or send for them; so that really he is favored more than I am, and, strictly speaking, the thanks should be on the other side. But, if it may be said that he favors me by coming to deal with me in preference to others; then I may say again; if I make it as much to his interest to buy from me as it is to my advantage to sell to him, (and no other dealer can justly and honestly do better) then we are even, with no balance for thanks on either side; unless, it be that he deals with me in preference to others out of special regard for me. Then I am thankful and do express my thanks in a substantial way.

But, as a general thing, this matter of personal preference for shop keepers has more of an eye to personal advantage than anything else. At least, that's my judgment, it is not uncharitable."

"Yes, yes, Berry," said I, "yours is a proper and necessary calling when it is well followed, I admit," and I went away thinking that Berry was not only a man of manners but a shrewd man of business. No wonder he wins.

There is a great difference between Buck and Berry, that's a fact.

PETER PIPER.

Modesty is one of the chief ornaments of youth.

YOUTHS' DEPARTMENT.

LITTLE LAMBS.

I am Jesus' little lamb,
And my Shepherd's ever near,
Gently leading me along
To the pastures green and fair.

When I'm tired, weak and weary,
And the noonday sun is high,
Then to the fountains clear he brings me,
Where the cooling shadows lie.

When the shadows in the vale
Deepen into gloomy night,
Then my Shepherd gently folds me
In his breast till morning light.

I must be a gentle lamb,
Never, never go astray,
But must seek to follow Jesus
In the straight and narrow way.

I must be a trustful lamb,
Holding on my Shepherd's hand,
Knowing he will safely lead me
To a bright and heavenly land.

I must be a loving lamb,
Always ready to obey,
Answering cheerfully his voice,
Without murmur or delay.

Thus I'll be a happy lamb,
Filled with faith and hope and love,
Living here to please my Shepherd
Till I join his fold above.

—The Child's Paper.

PROMISING.

"How obliging Ed. Dayton is," said Martin Wells to Will Buchannon one day when they left the schoolhouse together. "He says he will lend me any book he has, and he has so many nice ones. He promised to bring me 'Carlina' to-morrow. I never could finish it, because I did'nt get the magazine."

"O yes, he'es very good about making promises!" said Will dryly.

"And he said he would get me a ticket to the Mercantile Library, or speak to his father—he'es one of the managers. There's some arrangement by which they give tickets to a certain number of boys. Wasn't it kind of him?"

Martin was a stranger in a strange place, with little money to spend, and Ed. Dayton's pleasant words and obliging offers had made a strong impression upon a mind naturally sensitive and grateful.

"O, certainly, very kind of him," said Will, who knew pretty well the nature of Ed. Dayton's promises, but would not prejudice a stranger against a schoolmate.

"So different from John Fitz Adam," continued Martin; "I wanted so to see 'Atkinson's Siberia,' and I knew that he had it, and I did venture to ask him to lend it to me this week; and all he said was he could'nt promise.' It's the first time I ever asked a favor of any one in this school," said Martin, proudly, "I guess it will be the last."

"It's not like John to be stingy," said Will—and then the boys parted.

The next morning, Ed. Dayton had forgotten to bring "Carlina," and then Martin, two days after ventured to remind him of his promise, he said that the book was his sister's and that she did not like to lend her books.

Seeing the state of the case, Martin said nothing about the library ticket, of which he heard nothing more, to his very great disappointment, for he dearly loved books.

He was going home Friday night, feeling rather tired, homesick and lonesome, when John Fitz Adam came running after him with a book in his hand. "Here's Atkinson," he said, out of breath; "I could'nt promise it the other day, because I did'nt know whether father wanted to send it away to grandma or not, and it was lent to my cousins, but it came home last night, so it's at your service, and keep it as long as you like."

"Oh, thank you!" said Martin, brightening, and regretting his hasty judgment of John, then the boys parted, and presently said Martin "John I'm sure you are very good;" and was joined by Ed. Dayton.

"I think Fitz Adam is a regular mean fellow," said Ed. "I just asked him this morning to look out some references for me in some books I know he has at home, and he wouldn't promise to do it, because he said he thought his father wanted him this evening. I'd like to see the time when I couldn't promise to oblige a friend."

"And I'd like to see the time when you'd keep your promise," thought Martin. "If people always keep their promises, they are generally rather careful how they make engagements. It don't cost any one much to promise who never performs."—Child's World.

CORRESPONDENCE

A Reporter is wanted from every Church in the brotherhood to send us Church news, Obituaries, Announcements or anything that will be of general interest. To insure insertion, the writers name must accompany each communication. Our invitation is not personal but general—please respond to our call.

A REPLY.

Dear Pilgrim:—I hope it will not be thought amiss by you, to reply to the article of August 6th by H. C. Lesher, headed "A Review" of correspondence in No. 30 of July 23d. The writer thinks I tried to cast a reproach upon their church by misrepresentations &c. If I have misrepresented anything I shall correct it with pleasure, but if I really have, the writer, H. C. L. has failed to correct the wrong. In the first place, I must say that in reference to "alleging the word to be a dead letter," that might be proven by a number of living witnesses, but proof of that kind is not called for at this time, from the fact that H. C. L. in his review, in part, asserts the same thing, by saying the word of God is a dead letter to the sinner as long as he refuses to obey it. The Savior says "it is spirit and it is life" and will exercise its power to life, or death whether obeyed or not. The sinner may be dead, or feign to be dead to the word, as he is dead in tresspasses and in sin. With this view and the obligation of the word and power of the Holy Ghost to believe, and do all, we may agree. I will here say that I am glad to hear that some of you, since then, have tried publicly to correct the assertion which was made unguardedly by some of your brethren, which is much to your credit.

In reference to the Lord's Supper and Passover, (believing our friend H. C. L. to be candid), I think he has left the inquiring mind very much in doubt as to what he with his brethren believe and practice. His Bible references to the Jews Passover under the law, and the Testament references of what Jesus taught and practiced with His apostles, he says will give "us the origin of the Passover which we believe Christ ate with His apostles, at the same time instituted Feet-washing and the bread and wine." That the Passover had its origin many hundred years before the Christian era, as recorded in Exodus 12, no one will deny, but the Bible reader will discover in comparing what he finds there with the Passover or Supper which He ate with His disciples or apostles as recorded by the Evangelist's Mathew, Mark, Luke and John, quite dissimilar, which difference I will not note at present. But if Jesus ate the Jews Passover, why does not my friend and his brethren eat it? If the spirit of God's Word rules your action in practice on the question, why not follow (imitate) the example of the exemplar Jesus? Or as the Evangelists describe it why not do it so? Peter and John were sent to prepare the Passover, referring them to a certain one who would show them the place and there they should make ready. They did so, made ready, and when the hour, or evening was come, He sat down and the eleven apostles with Him. Everything being ready, water, basin, towel, supper, bread and wine, He now riseth from supper (prepared) and laid aside his garment and began to wash His disciples feet. After He had washed their feet He sat down again and told them, "one of you shall betray me," and again, "he that dippeth with me in the dish is he, or he to whom I give a sop when I have dipped it." Again the same Evangelist tells us that as they were eating, Jesus took bread and when He had given thanks He brake, and said take eat this is my body, &c. Now if friend Henry still thinks we are misrepresenting things or their church, we hope he will tell us plainly, because we want the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth.

What we have now written in short, if not plain sufficient we will try to make it plain in detail. Again in his review, in speaking of them and us, as two "sister Churches." This is a term I don't clearly understand as used in this relation. Jesus says "He that believeth in me, the works that I do will he do also," and as Jesus did the will of the Father, so also they that do the Father's will, He says "is my brother, sister and mother." D. F. Good.

EXPLANATION.

Thomas Owens in No. 29 of PILGRIM says I will confer a favor by giving an explanation on Math. 23: 15 as quoted in my tract. The quotation alluded to is this; "For ye compass sea and land to make one proselyte and when he is made ye make him two fold more the child of hell than yourselves." He is in error when he says I used that quotation in my tract but it is quite likely I made use of it in some of my writings, let that be as it may as an explanation is asked of me I will cheerfully concede to his wishes, but remember in granting the request I only give my idea about the matter and he and others can accept of it or reject it as they choose.

The word "hell" like many other words has a meaning that varies, and as is acknowledged by many Bible student does not in all places absolutely mean the place of torment for the wicked, but is used at times as denoting a state or condition of darkness or place of darkness. When the Savior used the words, under consideration he was addressing the hypocritical Pharisees or his language had a reference to them. The fact that they were hypocrites is all sufficient to give us to know they had light and understanding but were not willing to walk by the same and done all they could to keep others from walking by the light. Would if possible shut up the kingdom of heaven against men, and would not go in themselves or let others go in. They would go to great trouble and expense no doubt to make proselytes to their doctrine that they might glory in them and through them add to their worldly aggrandizement. And they done all they could to blind their eyes against the truth and keep them in utter darkness, hence made them two fold more the children of "hell" (that is, children of darkness) than themselves. Because they knew better, they had light and understanding they would not impart to their proselytes, so it is evident their proselytes were much more in darkness, yea, two fold more the children of darkness than themselves.

Just like the Roman Catholic Priest said to a brother who asked him some questions as to their peculiarities relative to penance, forgiving of sins by man &c., answered "Oh yes we know better but then it makes the creatures feel so good!"

We may look around and see the "Pharisee Hypocrits" of to-day, that go to great trouble and expense to make proselytes and when made are "children of darkness," far greater than their teachers who for worldly or selfish considerations do all they can to keep them from coming to the light or truth as it is in Christ Jesus. "Woe unto you Scribes and Pharisee Hypocrites! for ye devour widows houses, (beg and take from the poor) and for a pretense make long prayers; therefore ye shall receive the greater damnation." Math. 23: 14.

J. S. Flory.

Dear Pilgrim:—On the 3rd of August we had a thanksgiving meeting. Elder D. Long of Md., and D. Longenecker of Adams Co., Pa., were present. The meeting was well attended, and the brethren entertained us very agreeably for some two hours. Bro. Long remained with us over Sabbath. Bro. Longenecker remained also, but labored in the upper part of our arm of district. Bro. Long preached at Weltys in the morning, in the afternoon at Ringgold. Both meetings were well attended.—Also had two more additions, husband and wife, son and daughter-in-law of our worthy friend and Elder minister of the Sevenday Baptist Church near Quincy, Pa. We pray they may still continue to come. D. F. Good.

Announcements.

LOVEFEASTS.

Meadow Branch, Md., Saturday October 12th. Commencing at half past 1 o'clock p. m:

Sam's Creek, Md., Tuesday, October 15th, commencing at half past 1 o'clock p. m.

Salem Congregation Frederick Co., Va. Saturday and Sunday, 14th and 15th of September. Commencing at 1 o'clock p. m

Dear Pilgrim: Please inform your readers that we the brethren of the Stone Church, Marshall county, Iowa, intend to hold our Communion Meeting, commencing on Friday, Sept. 13th. We intend continuing our meeting over Sunday, and hope our ministering brethren will make arrangements to stay with us until after that time. When we make our meeting public, we think the members should feel themselves invited.

Elo. John Murray.

At the house of Daniel Glicks, Andrew co., Mo., October 5th, commencing at 4 o'clock, p. m. Meeting will be continued if aid can be obtained. Address Daniel Glick, Flag Spring, or J. B. Bashor, Whitesville, Andrew co., Mo.

Brother Brumbaugh's:—Please announce that there will be a Communion Meeting in the Conemaugh Church, Cambria Co., Pa., on Friday the 13th of September, commencing at 4 o'clock, p. m. Meeting to continue over Sunday. The usual invitation given. By order of the Church.

Stephen Hildebrand.

Beloved Brethren:—Please announce through the Pilgrim that we, the Brethren of Black river Congregation, Medina co., Ohio, intend, the Lord willing, to hold a Lovefeast in our Meetinghouse on Wednesday the 9th of October. An invitation is given to all, especially the Ministering brethren. Joseph Rittenhouse.

District Meeting for Southern Ill.

Notice is hereby given to the brethren and sisters that, the Lord willing, the District Meeting for Southern District of Ill., will be held in the Ottercreek Church at the Pleasant Hill Meeting House 3 miles southwest of Virden, Macoupin county, Ill., beginning on Monday, the 14th day of Oct. Also, a Communion Meeting at the same place on Saturday before the District Meeting, to which the usual invitation is given to all the brethren and sisters. Appointments for preaching will be made in the neighborhood as early as Thursday evening before, and brethren from a distance are expected to fill them. We hope therefore, that a sufficient number of ministers will respond to this request so as to make these meetings interesting and profitable. Those coming by railroad can stop off either at Virden or Girard, where they will be met by the Brethren.

By order of the Church.

Daniel Vaniman.

MONEY LIST.

David Beeghly,	$ 1.00
Joseph Rittenhouse,	1.00
Jacob Myers,	.40
Nannie J. Wise,	1.25
Samuel Myers,	2.00
Jonas Price,	4.25
Wm. Mallory,	1.75
Jesse Conner,	.55
Alma M. Crouse,	1.40
D. B. Mentzer,	.50
John Montgomery,	.70

The Weekly Pilgrim.

JAMES CREEK, PA., Aug 30th, 1872.

SABBATH REFLECTIONS.

Time, time, oh how rapidly it is passing away. Another week with its joys and pleasures, its cares and vexations, is numbered with the past, and with it, thousands have left the shores of time. A slumbering and sleeping, and Sabbath morn, in all its hallowed loveliness, breaks in upon us. This day of days, oh, how impressively solemn, and how gladly welcomed by millions of world careworn souls, but how much more inexpressibly sweet is it to the saint that has bid adieu to the world Kingdom and now longs for the crumb of life from the Master's Table, broken by the faithful servant of the Most High? Our hearts are made to burn with the fire of God's love when we think of the vast multitudes leaving their homes and resorting to the sanctuary there to drink in the water of Life as it flows from God's own chosen fountains. With the vast concourse, we too, bidden by the spirit, go up to James Creek Church, one of our religious resorts, there to unite our voices with kindred spirits in singing the sungs of Zion. Humbly we kneel at a mercy seat—acknowledge mercies, confess our sins, implore forgiveness and the Divine aid and presence of Him who hath said, "and I will be in your midst," when the following text is read by our brother G. B.: "I must work the works of Him that sent me, while it is day: the night cometh when no man can work."

The remarks were apt and seemed to impress the congregation favorably. The subject is one of momentous importance and is pregnant with high and holy thoughts. We talk and think about those works, and perhaps catch a glimpse of their greatness, but how seldom are they viewed in all their fullness? Mighty achievements have been accomplished in the world—they are only as a drop in the bucket—did we say a drop in the bucket?—yea, a thousand times less. Napoleon conquered millions and almost subdued a world to his feet, yet with all his honor, glory and wealth, he could not redeem a soul from hell. This great work completed, and the salvation of the world was secured

Washington performed a great work in liberating the American people from foreign oppression, but immensely greater was the work of Jesus in redeeming the world from the bondage of sin and satan. Brethren and sisters, we too have a work to do.—"To-day" is our time for doing that work. Are we at it? It is important—it is a great work, even the salvation of our souls. Let us be up and adoing, "for the night cometh when no man can work." "As the tree falleth so shall it lie," as we die so shall we appear in the judgment.

ANOTHER TRACT.

We entered the tract business with some fears of our labors not being appreciated but in this we were pleasantly disappointed, as we have already sold and dsstributed over 2.000 copies of "Anxious Bench Religion Examined" and still the demand seems unabated, and from reports from those who distributed them, we have no doubt but what much good will be accomplished in favor of the cause of primitive religion.

This week we have issued a large edition of another tract by the same author called the "Counterfeit Detecter or Baptism—Much in Little." We shall not attempt to eulogize the tract, but kindly ask those who desire to put their shoulder to the wheel and help along the great cause of salvation, to send for a few copies for examination, and then if thought worthy, send for a lot and scatter them broadcast. Cast them as bread upon the waters and pray God to give them success.

We subjoin the following note of the writer's which accompanied the manuscript. It sets forth the intention of the author and tract fully as well as we could do it ourselves.

Bro. Brumbaugh:—Enclosed is manuscript which if you feel disposed, you are at liberty to print in tract form. There is a necessity for something on baptism in a plain and short manner, in order that it may reach the masses. The most of the views of the Brethren that have been published are in such books that the masses, outside the Brotherhood, do not get. Our periodicals too, are principally circulated within the compass of the Brethren. We should have tracts treating of our faith, of such a nature as may be distributed broadcast if we expect to prosper as we should. That the effort I have made will add to the advancement of our Master's Kingdom, I cannot say. If it answers as "one drop in the bucket," in the cause, it will not be entirely useless. Everything must have a beginning, and if you can get a tract out of my views and scraps I have gathered up with your attention, you are at liberty to use it as you think best. I cast it forth from my pen through a motive to do good if others take it up and send it forth, my only ambition is, that it may cause some soul to steer clear of the breakers of popular religion.

J. S. FLORY.

TACHYGRAPHY. — Through the kindness of Mr. D. P. Lindsey we have been presented with a copy of his recent work on "Tachygraphy," or "Short Hand." We have at different times thought of learning a system of short hand, but all former systems seemed so intricate that we could not persuade ourselves that we had the spare time to learn it, but after a careful examination of Mr. Lindsey's Tachygraphy our hopes of being a rapid writer are revived and if we can see any chance for a little leisure we shall give it a trial. The system of short-hand is greatly simplified and will take but a short time to become practical enough to write five times as rapidly as long-hand. The work is published by Otis Clapp, Boston Mass. at $2.00 per copy.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

VIRGINIA TAXES.—It is probable that five hundred thousand dollars will be paid the internal revenue collector as tax on tobacco made in Richmond, Va., during the month of July. Already the amount paid in largely exceeds four hundred thousand dollars.

What a dreadful sight of chewing and smoking it will take to consume all that tobacco! O, well, it is a consolation to know that we do not need to help, but we know that a great many of our readers will, and pay for getting the chance.

IN THE FAR WEST there is considerable excitement in regard to the discovery of diamond fields located in Arizona and California. It is reported of diamond of enormous value being found. One weighing 108 carets valued at a million of dollars. Thousands of shares are now offered in these "hidden" fields at $40 per share. This is another claptrap to gull in the credulous and will prove to be all a "big sensation," equivalent to some of the oil speculations, and shares in lead and silver mines. Stick to your honest avocations, and let sharpers and swindlers blow and pay for their own whistles.

THE HERALD OF TRUTH reports a visit of some three or four of their brethren from Russia. Their object in coming is to become acquainted with the American people, their country, their privileges, their institutions and their religion.

In about a year, the Russian Government will begin to enforce the late act which will require every able-bodied man to serve as a soldier in the army regardless of their religion. For religious liberty, it is expected a large number will emigrate to America

The Dunkard Baptist Church in Germantown, Pa., organized in 1723, which has hitherto opposed a paid ministry, has called a pastor at $1200 a year. This is an important innovation for a church of a denomination which still practices the rite of feet-washing.—New York Observer.

Why this should be considered a more important innovation from the fact that the Brethren practice feet-washing is not so evident, unless those who are not in the habit of innovating have no right to commence. A paid ministry we do consider an innovation from our established principles, but a supported ministry we look upon as our privilege. If a church sees proper to give a ministering brother $1000 or $1200 to aid him in supporting his family, if he needs it, it by no means innovates upon our principles of charity and brotherly affection, but when hirelings come around, driving sharp bargains and biting at the highest bid we protest against it as unconstitutional.

ATTENTION—PLEASE.

We have a project in view which we expect to be for the interest and special benefit of every PILGRIM reader. To make our enterprise as complete as possible, we kindly ask our readers to comply with the following requests:

1st. We want the name and address of every minister in the brotherhood that has not heretofore been published.

2d. All those who have changed their post office since the beginning of the year will please give their present address. Also all those who have been elected during the present year.

3rd. We desire the time and place of holding all the District Meetings that will be held during the spring of 1873. If the time is not determined give us the name of the Congregation, county and State in which it will be held.

4th. If any of the churches have a programme of their local meeting for 1873, we will be pleased to have it. If there are none prepared, do it at once, and send it to us. It would be quite an advantage to the congregations and those who wish to visit them.

5th. A few papers of standing interest, biographies or anything sufficiently practical and of general importance to justify a standing publicity will be gladly received for our use. Also a few unobjectionable business cards and advertisements will be accepted on reasonable terms.

Now brethren these requests are made for the churches general good and we do hope and pray that some brother or sister in every church of the brotherhood will give us the desired information at once.

WANTED.

A female apprentice to the printing business. She must have a good moral character, a liberal English education and a willingness to work. A member of the church, or one that will be interested in the cause for which we are laboring, will be preferred. A good and permanent sit will be given. Apply soon. Address

The Pilgrim,
James Creek,
Huntingdon Co., Pa.

DIED.

BURKHART.—In the Conemaugh Church Cambria co., Pa., June 24th, sister Esther Burkhart, wife of brother Joseph Burkhart of Mineral Point, aged 63 years. Funeral sermon by the brethren.

BURKHART.—On the 19th of July, brother Ephraim Burkhart, aged 75 years, 10 months and 7 days. Funeral sermon by the brethren. STEPHEN HILDEBRAND.

Another Mammoth Cave.—The discovery of a new "Mammoth Cave" in Kentucky is reported. It is close to a place called "Split Rocks," in Boone County, and is causing much excitement. The local papers say that the neighborhood has been a resort for picnics for years; and yet, until July 16, ult., it has remained entirely unknown. The cave, so far as explored, is said to be more than two miles long, and it contains single chambers no less than 100 feet in length by 40 in width and 20 in height. Limestone forms the entrance and generally the sides of the cave, while the roof consists of a kind of heavy shale. The walls are often incrusted with iron and maganese, interspersed with shining crystals of gypsum. Pendent from the ceiling are beautiful stalactities, the growth of ages; and these, in some of the halls, extend quite to the floor, thus constituting imposing ranges of columns. It is probable that most interesting accounts will soon be made public of articles found in the cave. Already arrow-heads, tomahawks, and other utensils, bearing marks of the hand of the red man have been discovered, and there is a strong probability that further researches will add largely to the relics thus at the outset stumbled upon.

Chang and Eng.

The Raleigh North Carolinian, says: "The Siamese twins, Chang and Eng, who are now living in the western portion of this State, and one of whom is lying dangerously ill at the present time, were born in a small village on the coast of Siam, in the year 1811. We are in possession of some particulars concerning them which may be of interest to our readers. Their parents got their living by fishing. And until 1829, when Chang and Eng were brought to the United States, they made their living by selling shellfish. Their mother bore seventeen children. At one time she gave birth to three, and never less than two. But none of these children were deformed. While you may whisper in the ear of one without the other hearing, while volatile salts applied to the nostrils of one has no effect on the other; still, if you but stick a pin in the exact vertical centre of their connecting link, both will flinch from the hurt. These twins are seldom observed to converse with each other. They play a good game of draughts and make pretty much the same moves, and at the same time, and frequently play against each other.

Argentine Confederation.

A Rio Janeiro correspondent reports the Indians are invading and ravaging the Argentine provinces, on the west side of the Rio Platte, in formidable numbers. Outlying settlements have been burned and plundered, and in some cases women and children perished in the flames. The inhabitants were fleeing in a panic. At one place a party of English residents defended themselves six hours against a horde of savages, until the house they were in was burned. The Indian invasion has removed all danger of war between the Argentine Confederation and Brazil.

Immense Indian Frauds.

A large mass of very important testimony has been taken, disclosing immense and almost incredible frauds upon the Cherokees, Creeks, Choctaws and Chickasaws, through means of corrupt bargains made by Indian delegates with Washingt on lobbyists and claim agents. The contingent fees, in some instances, aggregating millions of dollars, in which the delegates had largely pecuniary interests. The cancellation and annulment of all such existing contracts will be recommended and insisted upon.

A good story is told of a clergyman in a Massachusetts town who forgot his notes on a Sabbath morning, and as it was too late to send for them, he said to his audience by way of apology, that this morning he should have to depend on the Lord for what he might say, but in the afternoon he would come better prepared.

GOOD BOOKS.

A large number of our patrons are receiving our books as noticed below, as premiums, and express themselves highly pleased with them. Others who are not agents, have enquired whether we keep them for sale. We have now made arrangements with Mr. Wells to furnish any of their publications post paid at publishers prices. Orders for books must be accompanied with the cash, and plain directions for sending them.

Conversion of St. Paul. By George Jarvis Geer, D. D. 12mo. fine edition, $1. Plain edition, 75 cents.

Footprints of Life; or, Faith and Nature Reconciled.—A Poem in three parts. The Body. The Soul. The Deity. By Philip Harvey, M. D. $1.25.

Fruit Culture for the Million. A Hand book, being a Guide to the Cultivation and Management of Fruit Trees. Descriptions of the Best Varieties, and How to Propagate them. illustrated $1.00.

Hand-book for Home Improvement: comprising "How to Write," "How to Talk," How to Behave," and "How to do Business," in one vol. 2.25.

How to Live; Saving and Wasting, or Domestic Economy. By Solon Robinson. $1.50.

Life at Home; or, The Family and its Members. Husbands, Wives, Parents, Children, Brothers, Sisters, Employers and Employed, etc. By Rev. William Aikman, D. D. A work which should be found in every family. $1.50. Extra gilt, $2.00.

Man and Woman: Considered in their Relations to each Other and to the World. By Henry C. Pedder. 12mo, Fancy cloth. Price $1.00.

Man, in Genesis and in Geology; or, the Biblical Account of Man's Creation, tested by Scientific Theories of his Origin and Antiquity. By Joseph P. Thompson, D. D., LL.D. One vol. 12mo, $1.00.

Oratory—Sacred and Secular; or, the Extemporaneous Speaker. Including Chairman's Guide for conducting Public Meetings according to the best Parliamentary forms. By Wm. Pittenger. $1.50.

The Right Word in the Right Place. A New Pocket Dictionary and Reference Book. Embracing Synonyms, Technical Terms, Abbreviations, Foreign Phrases, Writing for the Press, Punctuation, Proof-Reading, and other Valuable Information. Cloth, 75cts.

The Emphatic, Diaglott; or The New Testament in Greek and English. Containing the Original Greek Text of the New Testament, with an Interlineary Word for-word English Translation. A Work for Students in Theology, and S. S. Teachers. By Benamin Wilson. Price, $4.00; extra fine binding, $5.00.

Menno Simon's COMPLETE WORKS.

In English, translated from the original Dutch or Holland, giving the whole of the great Reformers writings on the subject of Raptism. Price in full sheep $4.50; by mail $5.14.

Address, JOHN F. FUNK & BRO.

New Hymn Books, English.

TURKEY MOROCCO

One copy,	post-paid, - -	$1 00
Per Dozen,	- - -	11 25

PLAIN ARABSQUE.

One Copy,	post-paid, - - -	75
Per Dozen,	" - - -	8 50

PLAIN SHEEP.

One Copy,	post-paid, - - -	75
Per Dozen,	" - - -	8 50

Ger'n & English, Plain Sheep.

One Copy	post-paid	$ 1 00
Per Dozen	- - -	11 25
Arabesque plain,	- - -	1.00
Turkey morocco,	- - -	$ 1.25.
Single German	post-paid, -	50
Per Dozen,	- - -	5 50

SALEM COLLEGE.

The Fall term of Salem College will open for the reception of any number of students from all parts on the 4th of September, 1872. Ample accommodations and thorough instruction will be given all students who connect themselves with this College. Good board can be had in good families at $2.50 to $3.00 per week or students can board themselves in clubs at $1.25 to $1.50 per week as numbers have done with the consent of the faculty. Special care will be given students who are far from home.

For Catalogues, Scholarships and full particulars address

SALEM COLLEGE,
July 22, '72. Bourbon, Ind.

Educational.

The second year of Pleasant Hill College, Warsaw, Ind., will begin Sept. 4th, 1872, in which a thoroughly practical education will be given in Academic and Collegiate studies. Brethren's children are expected to attend our weekly religious meetings. Ladies and gentlemen admitted on equal footing.

O. W. MILLER, President.
July 9-tf. Warsaw, Ind.

TRACTS.

"ANXIOUS BENCH RELIGION EXAMINIED," BY ELDER J. S. FLORY. A SYNOPSIS OF CONTEETS. An address to the reader: The peculiarities that attend this type of religion. The feelings there experienced not imaginary but real. The key that unlocks the wonderful mystery. The causes by which feelings are excited. How the momentary feelings called "Experimental religion" are brought about, and then concludes by giving that form of doctrine as taught by Jesus Christ and recorded by his faithful witnesses.

COUNTERFEIT DETECTER
or
BAPTISM—MUCH IN LITTLE.

This work is now ready for distribution, and the importance of the subject will speak for it a large demand. It is a short treatise on baptism in tract form intended for general distribution, and is set forth in such a plain and logical manner that a wayfaring man though a fool, cannot err therein. Either of the above tracts sent postpaid on the following terms: Two copies, 10 cts, 10 copies 40 cents, 25 copies 70 cents, 50 copies $1.00, 100 copies $1.50.

1870 1872

DR. FAHRNEY'S Blood Cleanser or Panacea.

A tonic and purge, for Blood Diseases. Great reputation. Many testimonials. Many ministering brethren use and recommend it. Ask or send for the "Health Messenger." Use only the "Panacea" prepared at Chicago, Ills., and by

Dr. P. Fahrney's Brothers & Co.,
Mar. 20-pd. Waynesboro, Franklin Co., Pa.

Trine Immersion.

A discussion on Trine Immersion, by letter between Elder B. F. Moomaw and Dr J. J. Jackson, to which is annexed a Treatise on the Lord's Supper, and on the necessity, character and evidences of the new birth, also a dialogue on the doctrine of non-resistance, by Elder B. F. Moomaw. Single copy 50 cents.

HUNTINGDON & BROAD TOP RAIL ROAD
Summer Arrangement.

On and after Tuesday, June 4, 1872, Passenger trains will arrive and depart as follows:

Trains from Huntingdon South.				Trains from Bedford moving North.
MAIL. A. M.	ACCOM P. M.	STATIONS.		MAIL. P. M.	ACCOM A. M.
*le*8 20	LE6 00	Huntingdon,		AR5 25	AR9 10
8 28	6 06	Long Siding		5 17	9 00
8 45	6 19	McConnelstown		5 04	8 45
8 51	6 25	Pleasant Grove		4 58	8 39
9 05	6 37	Marklesburg		4 45	8 27
9 20	6 51	Coffee Run		4 33	8 11
9 27	6 58	Rough & Ready		4 26	8 40
9 39	7 10	Cove		4 12	7 52 28
9 43	7 15	Fishers Summit		4 08	7 48 10
10 03	7 35	Saxton		3 48	le 7 53
10 10	7 53				*ar*7 40
10 27	8 10	Riddlesburg		3 30	6 30
10 34	8 17	Hopewell		3 22	6 12
10 51	8 35	Piper's Run		3 06	6 00
11 10	8 55	Tatesville		2 48	6 36
11 22	9 08	Bloody Run		2 33	6 30
11 26	9 12	Mount Dallas		2 29	5 46
11 32	9 19	Ashcom's Mills		2 22	5 42
11 36	9 23	Lutzville		2 18	5 36
11 40	9 27	Hartley's Mills		2 14	5
11 46	9 34	Jamesons		2 07	5
*r*11 22	*ar*9 40	Bedford		LE2 00	LE5 30

JOHN M'KILLIPS, Supt

SHOUP'S RUN BRANCH.

LE10 15	LE7 40	Saxton.	AR3 40	AR7 20
10 30	7 55	Coalmont.	3 25	7 05
10 35	8 00	Crawford.	3 20	7 00
AR10 45	AR8 10	Dudley	LE3 10	LE6 50
Bro'd Top City from Dudley 2 miles by stage.

Time of Penna. R. R. Trains at Huntingdon.

EASTWARD.			WESTWARD.
Hb'g Ac.	9 24	A. M	Cin. Ex.	2 19	A. M.
Mail	3 30	P. M	Pc'f Ex.	7 45	"
Cin. Ex.	6 55	"	Mail	5 40	P. M.
Phil. Ex	11 15	"	W. Pass.	11 52	A. M.

THE PILGRIM,

Published by J. B. Brumbaugh, & Co.

Edited by H. B. & Geo. Brumbaugh.

CORRESPONDING EDITORS.

D. P. Sayler, Double Pipe Creek, Md.

Leonard Furry, New Enterprise, Pa.

The Pilgrim is a Christian Periodical, devoted to religion and moral reform. It will advocate in the spirit of love and liberty, the principles of true Christianity, labor for the promotion of peace among the people of God, for the encouragement of the saints and for the conversion of sinners, avoiding those things which tend toward disunion or sectional feelings.

TERMS.

Single copy, one year,	$1.25.
Book paper, " "	1.50.
Eleven copies, [eleventh for Agt.]	$12.50.

Any number above that at the same rate,

Address.

H. B. BRUMBAUGH.
James Creek,
Huntingdon county Pa.

Narrow Pilgrim.

"REMOVE NOT THE ANCIENT LANDMARKS WHICH OUR FATHERS HAVE SET."

VOL. 3. JAMES CREEK, PENNSYLVANIA, AUGUST 27, 1872. NO. 35.

POETRY.

COUNT THE MERCIES.

Count the mercies, count the mercies,
Number all the gifts of love;
Keep a daily, faithful record
Of the comforts from above;
Look at all the lovely green spots
In life's dreary, desert way;
Think how many cooling fountains
Cheer the fainting heart each day.
Count the mercies, count the mercies,
See them strewn along our way.

See, oh, see how rich the beauties
In the charming scenes of earth!
Think of all the untold blessings
Clustering round our home and earth;
Think of friends and precious kindred—
To our hearts so dear, so sweet;
Think of heaven's unnumbered comforts—
Can you all the list repeat?
Count the mercies, count the mercies,
Making bright paths for our feet.

Count the mercies, though the trials
Seem to number more each day;
Count the trials, too, as mercies,
Add them to the grand array.
Trials are God's richest blessings,
Sent to prompt our upward flight,
As the eaglet's nest all broken
Makes them fly to loftier height.
Count them mercies, greatest mercies,
That bring heaven within our sight.

Count the mercies that shall sever
Cords which bind our spirits down,
Causing us below to grovel,
And forget our heavenly crown.
Let all earthly ties be riven,
Nests be broken, hopes decay,
If to God our hearts be driven,
If from earth we soar away.
Count them mercies, wondrous mercies,
Urging us the heavenward way.

Oh, what richer, purer comforts!
Better far than those of earth—
Joys unfailing, hopes enduring,
Treasures of surpassing worth;
Beams of bright celestial radiance
From the central source of light,
Spreading o'er each scene of sadness
Halos gladdening to the sight.
Precious mercies, priceless treasures,
Bringing us such rich delight.

Let us number o'er our jewels;
Let us estimate their worth;
Let us thank the gracious Giver,
Strewing blessings o'er the earth.
Let our hearts o'erflow with gladness,
Let us tell the wonders o'er,
Till our multiplying mercies
Seem a countless, boundless store;
Then let praises, grateful praises,
Be our language evermore.

[Advocate of Christian Holiness.]

THINKING INSTEAD OF DOING.

"Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils, and in thy name have done many wonderful works?"—Matt. 7:22.

From the reading of the above Scripture it appears that some will come at the day of judgment claiming admittance that will be disappointed, or come up thinking as Naaman did. Now we wish to give our views rather to show why this may be. Then we hope some one who is able will carry the subject out. We will first notice the case of Naaman. Read the 5th chapter of 2d Kings, and you will find that Naaman was a captain of the host of the king of Syria, we do not intend to relate all, but he was a leper, and the Syrians had gone out and captured a little maid out of the land of Israel and she waited on Naaman's wife. And she said unto her mistress, would to God, my lord were with the prophet that is in Samaria, for he would recover him of his leprosy. Now when this came to the captain's ears he went to the king of Israel instead of the prophet. But when he came to the prophet he had pictured out the way he expected to be cleansed, but when the man of God did not as much as come out, but sent a message to him to tell him what to do, he became wroth and went away and said, "Behold I thought he would surely come out to me, and stand and call on the name of his God, and strike his hand over the place and recover the leper." This is what I wanted. Now we believe there are hundreds and thousands who go thro' this world thinking, and die thinking they are doing God's will. But thinking they are doing something will not meet the approbation of God. Bot when we do just what God tells us to do, we have no need of thinking. Now to prove our position more fully we will take a child: The father tells the child to do some work and takes a journey. The child is disobedient, it remains idle. When the father comes home the child feels condemned, feels like hiding or will almost be classed with those that will cry to the rocks and mountains to fall on them and hide them from the face of Him that sitteth upon the throne. Now let that child propose to do the work, it will get to planning, and it will say, "I can make some improvement. I will do the work a little different, it will be easier and I think father will be pleased with it." Now it begins to think, and when father comes home, how will that child feel? We answer, just like Saul did when he was to destroy the Amalekites. He came back thinking, and when he met Samuel he said, "blessed be thou of the Lord: I have performed the commandment of the Lord." 1 Samuel 15: 13. This child will meet its father with just as good a conscience as if it had done what it was told to do, and perhaps did something that did not meet the design of of the father. So we believe a person may, under some kind of an influence, go through this world thinking, or as it is sometimes said, live happy and die happy, when they have not done the will, and come up at the day of judgment and claim admittance in the language of our subject. When a person dies happy and they have not done the will, we let it pass for what it is worth and say, "if the Lord will save them we have no objections." But let me say, real happiness consists in safety. When we feel safe, then we feel happy, but we never expect to feel entirely safe until we cross over Jordan. Then we expect to shout and sing and be with the Lord forever, and that this might be our every happy lot is the wish of your unworthy writer S. N. W.

For the Pilgrim.

HOW TO GAIN A GREAT NAME.

Not long since I heard a man expressing his inclination to attend the Academy at West Point, saying that if he was a little younger he would prepare himself to enter that Academy and there prepare himself for a position in the army, and be enabled to do his country an important service in case of war, and thereby gain a great name. It occurred to me that the great name which he was speaking of, was only a worldly honor that must one day perish with the world.

But there is a school that may be entered by both male and female, without price, in which they can be trained to fight under the blood-stained Banner of King Immannel and learn the discipline of His holy warfare, and be enabled thereby to do an important work in the cause of Zion, and for the welfare of the souls of the children of men. They can gain a great name, the name of being the servants of God, or soldiers of the cross, a name worth striving for, and one that is of far more value than all the honors this world can give.

The school spoken of is the school of Christ and every person who would like to receive this great name must enter this school and be submissive to its divine rules, and there learn lessons of holiness and righteousness; and of obedience toward God, which is the whole duty of man. This is the only way of obtaining a real good character, that is, one that will be acceptable and admirable with God and His holy angels.

THOMAS OWENS.

Deal Gently.

What a world of happiness and love this would be were we all to obey this simple command! A few words of love and kindness are more sure to guide the erring in the path of right, than a life-time of harsh dealing. Sister, deal gently with an erring brother, for the kind words of a loving sister are sweeter far than music in a brother's ear. Brother, listen, to and obey the commands of a loved sister. If you are traveling in the downward path, I admonish you, hear the gentle words of a sister. Her words may fall onheeded now, but perhaps when the voice of that loved one is hushed, when she can no longer plead with you, her gentle and loving admonitions will haunt you day and night, and the pleasure you sought for will not be found until you seek and travel in the path that she has pointed out to you.

I have often thought were wives to deal more gently with their husbands, and husbands to treat their wives in a like manner, there would be thousands of happy homes where now misery reigns. Should it be the lot of any young lady to be wedded to an intemperate husband, deal gently, for you will never reclaim him from the paths of vice by dealing with him harshly.—SELECTED.

In all thy ways acknowledge the Lord.

For the Pilgrim.

GOD IS LOVE.

Throughout the entire dispensation of God's providence, as it is revealed to man, is left a trace of His love toward man. In the creation God entrusted to man rights and privileges which angels could not claim. Adam alone had the right of nomination, next under God Himself. Such was God's love to man that He honored him with His own likeness,—that when He breathed in him the breath of life he became a living soul. Now to be glorified of man, for which purpose he was created, God gave him a simple law and withdrew himself for a time. But Oh! lamentable to say, here already appears man's irreverence to his kind Maker. At once he chooses to disobey and grieve Him. "Oh wretched man that I am! who shall deliver me from the body of this death." But after he had thus disobeyed and grieved God, doth God still show him pity? Oh, yes, He finds him naked and ashamed, and He pities him. He loves him. "Unto Adam also, and to his wife, did the Lord God make coats of skins, and clothed them." According to justice the penalty must now inevitably follow the breach of the law. So in justice God now pronounces upon him his doom. But God's pity cannot allow that man should live in so depraved a state forever; that he should be required to endure forever the pains, the toils, the losses and the sorrows of this life, God's love could not permit. So lest man should put forth his hand and take also of the tree of life, and eat and live forever, God drove out the man, placing cherubims and a flaming sword which turned every way, to keep the way of the tree of life. Adam went forth into the world, replenished the earth and multiplied; and as he increased in population so he increased in sin. And God saw the wickedness of the people, "And it repented the Lord that He had made man on the earth, and it grieved Him at his heart." "But Noah found grace in the eyes of the Lord." Yet afterward failed and his posterity sinned. Again God in love to man chose a people; gave them a law that He might be obeyed and obtain honor and reverence to His Holy name. Neither shall that law return unto Him void, till it has accomplished that for which it was sent. Yet this law was ignored, violated, and trodden under unhallowed feet; and in the midst of the gross wickedness of rebellions nations, "God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in him should not perish but have everlasting life." Again, the apostle who recorded the above language of the Savior, in one of his subsequent epistles views the ungratefulness of sinful man and God's love toward him notwithstanding, and says, "Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that he loved us, and sent his Son to be the propitiation for our sins." 1 John 4: 10. Paul the apostle understood also how God adventured his favor into a world yet in sin—how "God commendeth his love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us." Truly "God is love."

But God is just as He is kind. It is said of Him that He is a consuming fire. So God's love, His justice, and his vengeance combined makes Him a true God. It makes Him a great God. It makes Him a God in whom we may well trust, upon whom we may well depend, and to whom we may have freedom and boldness, and faith to come and ask of Him when we feel our dependence upon Him.

Notwithstanding the sins of the people God followed them in love. But justice which constitutes of the righteousness of God was ever with Him, the consequence of which was, that the means of his government was ever a law containing conditional promises, and upon the transgressor of this law fell the penalty of the law. So now in view of this, and also the great superiority of the dispensation of the Gospel that has reached us, Paul observes and says, "Therefore we ought to give the more earnest heed to the things which we have heard, lest at any time we should let them slip. For if the words spoken by angels was steadfast, and every transgression and disobedience received a just recompense of reward, how shall we escape, if we neglect so great salvation." Heb. 2: 1, 2, 3. And again, "He that despised Moses' law died without mercy under two or three witnesses; Of how much sorer punishment, suppose ye, shall he be thought worthy, who hath trodden under foot the Son of God, and hath counted the blood of the covenant, wherewith he was sanctified, an unholy thing, and hath done despite unto the spirit of grace? For we know him that hath said, Vengeance belongeth unto me, I will recompense, saith the Lord." Heb. 10: 28–30.

C. C. ROOT.

Mirabile, Mo.

THE very fact that you have trouble is a proof of the faithfulness of Christ, for you have got one half of His legacy, and you will have the other half; you know that Christ's last will and testament has two portions in it. "In the world ye shall have tribulation;" you have got that. The next clause is, "In me ye have peace;" you have that too. "Be of good cheer, I have overcome the world;" that is yours also.

Time is gliding by swiftly.

A LETTER.

DEAR BRO. BRUMBAUGH:—The readers of the PILGRIM will, doubtless, remember of reading extracts from a letter written by sister Hollowbush. Below we give another by which we may learn the patient endurance of our bereaved sister. May God give her strength to endure her bereavement with christian resignation. She solicits the prayers of the dear brethren and sisters in her behalf.

POTTSTOWN Pa., July 21st, '72.

E. R. Stiffler,

Dearly Beloved Sister:—While seated at my lonely dinner table I thought I would spend the afternoon in talking to you, to let you know that I am still in the land among the living. Still blest with a reasonable degree of health, and plenty of this world's goods to satisfy my bodily wants, for which I feel very thankful to the Great Ruler of events. But the loss of my dear husband can never be replaced. Dear sister, I waited long for a letter from you, sometimes I thought you had forgotten me or you had not received my letter,—but then I thought let patience have her perfect work, and in due season ye shall reap if you faint not. Your letter came to hand and I did reap great comfort and encouragement from its contents, for which you will please accept my warmest thanks. My five remaining children are, Mary A. Cook, my eldest, who lives in Lancaster Co., sixty miles from home. She and her husband are members of the Church of God. Annie Frederick lives two miles off. Sue Harley and my only son live in Pottstown. The latter is very sickly. I am fearful that Consumption is deeply rooted in his system. It is a source of sorrow to me. Jennie Stamon lives in the same house with me, but she cannot do much for me, having three small children and an abundance of work. O, sister dear, amidst all my sorrows and troubles I have great reason to be thankful for the many blessings that are daily bestowed upon me from Him who is mighty to save and strong to deliver.

Jacob Conner, the brother that sent the notice of my husbands death to the C. F. C., has been chosen speaker in my dear husband's place. He was my choice. O, I feel to rejoice, for I do think he is worthy of that high and holy calling. O, may he be endued with power from on High; may he be instant in season at all times to preach the Word to a guilty world. He is just the age that my husband was when he was called to the ministry. He has a companion and three small children. Twenty weeks ago to-day my dear husband preached his last sermon in our meeting-house. How sad I felt this forenoon while sitting there thinking of the time we lived together, of the time we tried to serve the Lord together. I have no feelings of remorse or compunctions of conscience, but I might have given him more encouragement, might have helped him along more than I did. I often sit and think, and wonder why he was taken away and I was left. I think sometimes how glad I would be if I could see him coming. But then I think it would only be to sicken and die. He will die no more. He has gone, gone home to meet our departed ones, for they that love shall dwell together, far beyond the rolling river. To die no more! What a blissful thought, for sin is the source of mortal woe, and death the cruel spoiler that mars the beautiful works of God can never enter there. My husband called me to him an hour or so before he died and very affectionately asked me to love the Lord for his sake, I said I would do anything for him that I could. He then exclaimed "I am done." Now sister I want to renew my efforts to make my calling and election sure. O that my thoughts may be weaned from this world, that my aspirations may be more heavenward, that my conversation may be in Heaven, that I may converse more fully with Him that wore the crown of thorns, and with those dear ones that have passed through the pearly gates, and are walking the golden streets with the spirits of good men made perfect. Converse with the general assembly and church of the first born which is written in Heaven. Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither hath it entered into the heart of man to conceive the joy that the Lord has laid up for those that love Him. Having such glorious prospects, such soul-cheering inducements, would it not be great wisdom in us to make an extra effort to be more earnestly engaged in making our calling and election sure, striving to work out our soul's salvation with fear and trembling, for the night cometh when no man can work. I feel the night coming, I see the shadows lengthening, my sun is fast descending the western shore, and very soon it will set. O, may it have a glorious setting, and may it have a glorious rise beyond the everlasting hills; and what I ask for myself I ask for you, dear sister, and for all the household of God.

You said you would like to see me and talk with me, I would like to visit you very much but my infirmities are too great and my means are too limited, so that my prospects of seeing you are very doubtful, but by faith we can meet around one common mercy-seat. Although we are separated by mountains, valleys and rivers, yet our love can be mutual, and our prayers fervent. I have written more than I intended to when I commenced, I do not know whether it will be beneficial to you or not. The day has now closed and darkness covers the land, and I feel as though I would lay my body down to rest, so I will close my letter hoping to still hear from you, and trusting that you will still remember me at a throne of grace that I still may have faith in the All-prevailing name of Jesus;—that I may cast all my cares and trials on Him to whom all power is given in Heaven and earth. My love and best wishes to you and all who may inquire after me. Good night.

HANNAH HOLLOWBUSH.

P. S. I do not take any of our periodicals as my means are too limited. I would like to have the WEEKLY PILGRIM. (The WEEKLY PILGRIM will be sent to you. E. R. S.)

For the Pilgrim.

REFLECTIONS.

I am very little used to writing on any subject, much less on a religious one, but some considerations and reflections have occurred to me, which I am disposed to commit to paper, and if they are deemed suitable I should like to see them in the PILGRIM.

I love to read the Scriptures and have received comfort and instruction from them at seasons of deep distress and depression. Passages have opened to my mind in a way that has afforded much relief and caused deep, and I trust, lasting impressions, and I can with sincerity recommend them to the careful attention of my young friends as well as others. But I must confess I am much afraid they are but too superficially read by many, and some too who hold them in very high estimation. I have seen people very active in Bible societies, and so much attached to the cause as to spend much time and money in distributing this best of books, and hardly allow themselves time to read anything else, and yet after all this earnest zeal they act in direct contrariety to its requirements. After reading the judgments pronounced upon the daughters of Zion for their haughtiness, pride and gaudy attire, and hearing it expressly enjoined, "be not conformed to this world, but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind," and also seeing it written, "let not your adorning be that outward adorning, of plaiting the hair, or of wearing of gold, or of putting on of apparel. But let it be the hidden man of the heart, even the ornament of a meek and quiet spirit, which is in the sight of God of great price," they will lay down the book and spend hours and days in making the most foolish dresses and attending parties where there is as great a display of pride and grandeur as is in the power of vanity to exhibit. What is more inconsistent than such conduct, would say the apostle? "God is not mocked, for whatsoever we sow, that shall we reap. If we sow to the flesh, we shall of the flesh reap corruption, but if we sow to the spirit, we shall of the spirit reap life everlasting. Surely such do not read the Scriptures understandingly, with a sincere desire of taking up their cross and following him who was meek and lowly in heart. And it is such, and such only, that will attain unto righteousness, and find rest to their souls. Unless the heart be made better by reading the Scriptures our reading will be of little avail. The Son of God came to save his people from their sins, not in them. There is no toleration under this blessed government, for pride and exaltation of frivolity and idle pastime. Fine carriages and grand and costly furniture are also inconsistent with the example of Christ and his precepts. Again how many professing Christians are at great expense with their houses. If a poor man should owe them they would exact the last cent, and while they expend hundreds of dollars in such vain and useless adornment, they will plead their poverty if called on to lend assistance to the needy. These things are not written in a spirit of asperity, but with a sincere desire that we may improve and act agreeably to the light afforded us.

AN OLD PILGRIM.

"TRANSFORMATION."—DRESS.

"Transformed," not conformed is the language of the Apostle, (Rom. 12: 2,) in reference to the necessary change incident to a passing from one element to another—from sin and death, to life and righteousness, or from the carnal life of the world—to the spiritual life in Christ Jesus.

Dress being one of the things embodied in the Apostles language we will speak of it exclusively at this time. What it should be and consist of, in our relation to divine things, has truly been a subject of magnitude and diversity of opinion among religionists, and others. And knowing this to be the fact, we at this time only claim the right of a few thoughts upon the subject. Jesus says: "I am the vine, and ye are the branches," also, "my father is the husbandman." The branches are the legitimate issue of the vital, divine, living base, the vine, Christ Jesus; planted, qualified and authorised, by the husbandman. We would think it very strange to see a bramble leaf and flower upon the olive branch; an olianthus upon the apple, or a pansie upon a peach. Still more unseemly would it seem for a melon to be found upon the branch of the grape vine. Natural causes produces natural results, so every seed will produce its kind and from results we may safely judge the nature of the cause. So when the Father, the Son, and Holy Ghost infuse into the tender germ the character of their divine nature, the effect and result is similar and natural. The Apostle describes this so beautifully when he says, "Adorn themselves in modest apparel, with shamefacedness and sobriety; not with broidered hair, or gold, or pearls, or costly array." Again. "let it not be that outward adorning of plaiting of hair, and of wearing of gold, or of putting on of apparel; but let it be the hidden man of the heart, in that which is not corruptible even the ornament of a meek and quiet spirit, which is in the sight of God of great price." . "Being filled with the fruit of righteousness," meaning the fruit of the spirit. Again in the last days perilous times shall come. For men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud," — Heady, high-minded," &c: From such we are advised to turn away. Not everything that glitters is gold, neither is everything that sparkles a diamond, neither is a proud heart always under broadcloth, nor an humble one always under calico and jeans The scripture tells us that, "where the treasure is, there the heart will be also. The strongest evidence of the seat of the heart's treasure is the look, the talk, &c., of the proud creature. Where the heart's treasure is, there is truly the seat of affection; the affections delight in the objects of its devotion; and becomes the chief of our thought, talks and admirations and even in the form of godliness; we may pray about it, preach about it, and yet it is only that Idol, that curse, worshipped—Pride of dress.

Selected by CHAS. E. CROUSE.

VICISSITUDES OF LIFE.

Remember that human life is but as the journey of a day. We rise in the morning of youth, full of vigor and expectation. Set forward with spirit and hope, with gayety and with diligence, and travel on awhile in the straight road of piety towards the mansions of rest. In a short time we remit our fervor, and endeavor to find some mitigation of our duty and some more easy means of obtaining the same end. We then relax our vigor and resolve to be no more terrified with crimes at a distance, but rely upon our own constancy and venture to approach what we resolve never to touch. We thus enter the bowers of ease and repose in the shades of security. Here the heart softens and vigilance on all sides; we are then willing to inquire whether we may not at least turn our eyes upon the gardens of pleasure. We approach them with scruples and hesitation; we enter them timorous and trembling, and always hope to pass through them without losing the road of virtue which, for awhile, we keep in our sight and to which we propose to return. But temptation succeeds temptation and one compliance prepares us for another. We, in time, lose the happiness of innocence and solace our disquiet with sensual gratifications. By degrees, we let fall the remembrance of our original intention and quit the only adequate object of rational desire. We entangle ourselves in business, immerge ourselves in luxury, and rove through the labyrinth of inconstancy, till the darkness of old age begins to invade us and disease and anxiety obstruct our way. We then look back upon our lives with horror—with sorrow, with repentance, and wish that we had not forsaken the ways of virtue.

Happy are they, my friend, who learn not to dispair but shall remember that, though the day is past and their strength is wasted, there yet remains one effort to be made, that reformation is never hopeless nor sincere endeavor ever unassisted; that the wanderer may at length return, after all his errors, and that he who implores strength and courage from above shall find danger and difficulty give way before him.

"I do not speak of theology in controversy, but I speak of pure religion, the great principle for moulding the heart and mind. To banish this element would be a ruinous experiment, both as regards the pupil no less than the master. The former would be without the weapons he indispensably requires to enable him to meet the conflicts before him through life; those weapons are to be found in religion alone. The master has no stay or impelling motive so sure and efficient as religion. In his arduous and trying position, it is the origin and nourishment of all true devotedness. In such days as ours, there is a more urgent need than ever to teach the child that for which he was sent into the world, his duty to his Maker and his fellow-creatures, which is comprehended in the two great commandments, which the word of Revelation alone prescribes—the love of God and man."—Professor Naville, of Geneva.

The "Ark of salvation" has no state-rooms for passengers, but all who wish to embark for Heaven must ship as crew, and be always ready to man the ropes, scrub the deck, work the pumps, or watch at the mast-head. At the command of the Captain, every Christian sailor engages in his appropriate duty with an hearty "Aye, aye, Sir" upon his lips, and a glow of gratitude in his heart for the privilege of serving Jesus the Master.

THE PENNSYLVANIA GERMANS.

From the Johnstown (Pa.) Tribune.

Many of the early settlers of Pennsylvania and Maryland were Germans, Hollanders and Swiss, who were driven by religious intolerance in their own land to seek new homes in America. William Penn, the Quaker, founder of Pennsylvania, and George Calvert, the Catholic founder of Maryland, having secured the guarantees of civil and religious liberty in the characters of their respective provinces, the shores of the Delaware and Chesapeake naturally offered an asylum to all who preferred tolerance to intolerance in matters of religion.—During the closing year of the seventeenth century, and up to the commencement of the American Revolution in the succeeding century, many thousands of the people we have mentioned crossed the ocean and settled in Eastern Pennsylvania and Maryland. Some of them pushed into the Shenandoah Valley in Virginia. The Rheinish provinces of Germany seem to have furnished a large proportion of the German settlers. Rheinish Bavaria (Pfalz), Wurtemburg and Baden sent large numbers of emigrants. Switzerland sent many thousands. There never was a very large emigration of Hollanders to Pennsylvania, the prows of their vessels being generally directed toward New York.

In a brief time the representatives of the three nationalities became so thoroughly intermingled, by reason of religious ties, intermarriages, similarity of customs and language, and general harmony of interests, that they formed one homogeneous class, by some called Pennsylvania Germans, and by others Pennsylvania Dutch. The Swiss settlers ceased entirely to be called Schweizers or Swiss.

With the perfect union thus established, and familiar intercourse with the English-speaking settlers, came a new colloquial and written language, also called Pennsylvania German or Pennsylvania Dutch, which is still largely spoken, but not much written in some sections of Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia, and in some portions of the Western States to which the descendants of the Pennsylvania Germans emigrated. As a language, it must in time yield at all points to the pure English and German tongues. Few now speak it who do not also speak English. It is mainly a compound of the Bavarja and Swiss dialects of the German language, with many English and a few Dutch (Holland) words added. It is doubtful if a Pennsylvania German could make himself understood in any part of Holland, Germany or Switzerland to-day.

The religious belief of the early Pennsylvania German is that of the Mennonites and German Baptist or Tunkers. The Mennonites were the first to come. Their first settlement in the country was made at Germantown in 1683, the year after Penn commenced his settlement at Philadelphia. Those who settled at Germantown were Hollanders. The Mennonites who followed them were from Holland, Germany and Switzerland. The first colony of the Brethren or Tunkers also settled at Germantown and its vicinity in 1719—thirty-six years after the first Mennonite settlement. They were Germans who had taken refuge from religious persecution in Holland. Other Tunkers followed in 1729, and during the succeeding years. America soon became the stronghold of the new religion. Although its adherents spread into various parts of Germany, Holland and Switzerland, our researches led us to conclude that the most of them finally found their way to this country. The Mennonites, on the other hand are still more numerous in Europe than in America, Holland being their stronghold. Here their founder, Menno Simon, was born in 1496. Jacob Amen, the leading spirit of the Omish branch of the Mennonite sect, was a native of Switzerland.

Strictly speaking, the Tunker and Mennonite faiths were almost identical at the time of which we were writing, differing only in minor particulars. Both sects recognized, and still recognize the Dortrecht Confession of 1632 as their standard theological belief. The points of difference relate chiefly to Church government and other outward observances, but even in these there is a great similarity of practice. The Mennonites were in existence long anterior to the Tunkers. Menno Simon, their founder, was a cotemporary of Luther in the sixteenth century, while the Tunkers did not have a denominational existence until the beginning of the eighteenth century, their first Church having been organized in 1608, at Swartzenan, in the Province of Witgenstein. It is proper to add that both the Tunkers and Mennonites claimed to have received their religious faith in great part from the Waldenses and Albigenses, and through them from the primitive Christians.

It may be of interest to the reader to learn that Witgenstein was formerly a small State of about twenty-five German square miles, governed by a Count, and that half of it subsequently belonged to the Duchy of Nassau and half to Rheinish Prussia. Now since Nassau was absorbed by Prussia in 1868, it all belongs to the kingdom of Prussia.

Ninty-nine out of every hundred of the Mennonites and Tunkers are farmers. Their mode of life is simple in the extreme. They dress plainly, live frugally, and practice a very strict code of morals. Their honesty, truthfulness and industry are proverbial. They do not mingle much with the world, but are stayers at home, minding their own business, and minding it well. Poverty is almost unknown among them. They are slow to abandon the customs of their fathers, and do not readily adopt modern innovations of any kind. They were originally opposed to the common school system, but now almost unanimously favor it. They are opposed to war, and generally settle all disputes among themselves, without going to law.

We have said that the Mennonites and Tunkers were the first of the German settlers of our State, and to this we now add that they constitute to-day a very large portion of our old Pennsylvania German population, especially in the rural districts. Lutherans, Moravians, and representatives of other religious denominations, followed them from Germany, but did not precede them. Whole sections of our State are inhabited by them. They early spread into the fertile Cumberland Valley, and thence pushed into Bedford, Somerset and Cambria Counties. A few of them crossed the Chestnut Ridge and Laurel Hill into Westmoreland, Indiana, and other western counties of the State. Their settlement in Cambria County was made during the closing year of the last century, in and around Johnstown, in what was then called the "Conemaugh country." The portion of Cambria County thus settled by them was embraced in Somerset county up to 1807. A very large majority of all the farmers in the neighborhood of Johnstown are to this day Mennonites and Tunkers, the latter largely predominating. A majority of the whole are believed to be of Swiss origin.

FAITH

The doctrine of faith in common with all Bible doctrines is worthy our closest and most prayerful study, "For without faith it is impossible to please God." Faith acts an important part in the affairs of this world. It precedes all knowledge, for man with his imperfections of judgment and short-sightedness has not the powers of mind to investigate and comprehend all he comes in contact with. All research either of science or revelation, points us to God as the great fountain of wisdom and knowledge and beyond this we cannot go, but we must exercise faith in him, or our knowledge is valueless. Without this faith man could not live, for he would not dare to make use of the elments which sustain life without satisfying himself that they contained nothing poisonous. The destruction of faith would be the end of all harmony and order, and from its ruins would spring up chaos and disorder. Knowledge is what we gain through the cognitive powers. Faith pushes its way much farther and gives us the substance of things which the natural sense cannot determine. With our eyes we see the beauties of nature, mountains, valleys, forests, &c. Faith opens the gates of heaven to our souls and we see the great white throne, angels with their harps, and with rapture and delight we gaze on the beautiful temple of the New Jerusalem, the abode of the blest and the hope of those who fear the Lord. Do we truly see these things? Are we sure they exist? Is it faith, or may not we have a mistaken fancy? Has the astronomer any doubt of the existence of a star which he sees only with the aid of the most powerful telescope? He is all the more positive for knowing something more powerful than his own eyes had disclosed. Thus the christian is assured beyond doubt of the reality of these things, because it is the power of God which discloses them to his view. We know that all faith does not please God. Hence we have what we term natural faith, and saving faith. The first alone will not make men wise unto salvation. A man may believe the Bible and yet be far from God. Devils believe yet they are not saved. Man has a heart, mind and will. All these must be consecrated to the Lord if we would please him. Saving faith demands that we believe not only that the Bible is true, but also that our hearts trust in the redeeming power of Christ. To all this the will must freely consent. The faith which pleases God renounces self, lays all upon the altar and says with Job, "Though thou slay me, yet will I trust in thee."—Herald of Truth.

FAITH IN GOD.

If a man pray as he should, it is "the prayer of faith." If a man obey as he should, it is the obedience of faith. If a man war in the Church militant, it is "the fight of faith." If a man live as a Christian and holy man, he "liveth by faith." Nay, shall I say yet more; if he die as he ought, he "dieth by faith." "These all die in faith." What is that? The power of faith that directed and ordered them in the cause of their death, furnished them with grounds and principles of assurance of the love of God, made them carry themselves patiently in death. I can say no more, but with the apostle, "Examine yourselves whether you be in the faith." Why does not the apostle say Examine whether faith be in you, but "whether you be in faith?" His meaning is, that as a man is said to be in drink, or to be in love, or to be in passion, that is, under the command of drink, or love or passion; so the whole man must be under the command of faith (as you shall see more afterward). If he pray, faith must indite his prayer; if he obey, faith must work; if he live, it is faith that must quicken him; and if he die, it is faith that must order him in death. And whersoever faith is, it will do wonders in the soul of that man where it is; it can not be idle; it will have footsteps; it sets the whole man on work; it moveth feet and hands, and eyes and all parts of the body. Mark how the apostle disputeth; "We having the same spirit of faith, according as it is written, I believed, and therefore have I spoken; we also believe, and therefore speak." The faith of the apostle which he had in his heart, set his tongue agoing. If a man have faith within it will break forth at his mouth.—Thos. Hooker.

Youth's Department.

A FANCY.

I suppose if all the children
Who have lived through ages long,
Were collected and inspected
They would make a wondrous throng.
Oh, the babble of the Babel!
Oh, the flutter of the fuss!
To begin with Cain and Abel,
And to finish up with us!

Think of all the men and women
Who are now and who have been,
Every nation since creation
That this world of ours has seen;
And of all of them, not any
But was once a baby small;
While of children, oh, how many
Never have grown up at all!

Some have never laughed or spoken,
Never used their rosy feet;
Some have even flown to heaven
Ere they knew that earth was sweet;
And, indeed, I wonder whether,
If we reckon every birth,
And bring such a flock together,
There is room for them on earth?

Who will wash their smiling faces?
Who their saucy ears will box?
Who will dress them, and caress them?
Who will darn their little socks?
Where are arms enough to hold them?
Hands to pat each shining head?
Who will praise and who will scold them?
Who will pack them off to bed?

Little happy Christian children,
Little savage children too,
In all stages, of all ages,
That our planet ever knew!
Little princes and princesses,
Little beggars, wan and faint,
Some in very handsome dresses,
Naked, some, bedaubed with paint.

Only think of the confusion
Such a motley crowd would make!
And the clatter of their chatter,
And the things that they would break!
Oh, the babble of the Babel!
Oh, the flutter of the fuss!
To begin with Cain and Abel,
And to finish off with us!

"SOMEBODY LOVES ME."

Two or three years ago the Superintendent of the Little Wanderers' Home in Boston, received, one morning, a requst from the Judge that he would come up to the court room. He complied directly, and found there a group of seven little girls, ragged, dirty and forlorn, beyond what even he was accustomed to see. The Judge pointed to them (utterly homeless and friendless) and said, "Mr. T——, can you take any of these?"

"Certainly; I'll take them all," was the prompt reply.

"All! What in the world can you do with them?"

"I'll make women of them."

The Judge singled out one, even worse in appearance than the rest, and asked again: "What can you do with that one?"

"I'll make a woman of her," Mr. T—— repeated firmly and hopefully. He took them all home. They were washed and dressed, and provided with a good supper and beds. The next morning they went into the school-room with the rest of the children. Mary was the name of the little girl whose chance for better things the Judge thought so small. During the forenoon the teacher said to Mr. T——, in reference to her, "I never saw a child like that; I have tried for an hour to get a single smile, and failed."

Mr. T—— said afterwards, himself, that her face was the saddest he had ever seen—sorrowful beyond expression; yet she was a very little girl, only five or six years old.

After school he called her into his office, and said, pleasantly, "Mary, I've lost my little pet. I used to have a little girl here who would wait on me, and sit on my knee, and I loved her very much. A kind gentleman and lady adopted her, and she went to live with them. I miss her, and I should like you to take her place, and be my little pet now, will you?"

A gleam of light flitted across the poor child's face, as she began to understand him. He gave her ten cents, and told her to go to a store near by, and get some candy. While she was out he took two or three newspapers, tore them in pieces, and scattered them about the room. When she returned in a few minutes, he said to her, "Mary will you a clear up my office a little for me: pick up these papers, and make it look real nice?"

She went to work with a will. A little more of this sort of management—in fact, treating her just as a kind father would—wrought the desired result. She went into the school-room after dinner with so changed a look and bearing, that the teacher was astonished. The child's face was so absolutely radiant; and half fearful of some mental wandering, she went to her and said "Mary, what is it? What makes you look so happy?"

"Oh! I've got somebody to love me!—somebody to love me!" the child answered earnestly, as if it were heaven come down to earth.

That was all the secret. For want of love that little one's life had been so cold and desolate that she had lost childhood's beautiful faith and hope. She could not at first believe in the reality of kindness or joy for her. It was this certainty that some one loved her, and desired her affection, which lighted the child's soul and and glorified her face!

Mary has since been adopted by wealthy people, and lives in a beautiful home in New England; but more than all its comfort and beauty, running like a golden thread through it all, she still finds the love of her father and mother.

Shall we who have many to love, and to love us, refuse to be comforted—to see any value and use in life—any work for our hands to do—because one of our treasures may be removed from our sight—from our home and care to a better?

And oh! shall we let any of these little ones go hungering for affection—go up even to God's throne, before they find "one to love them?"

Faithfulness to Employers.

There is no greater mistake a young man can commit than that of being indifferent to the interests of his employer. It is true there are circumstances under which it seems almost impossible to feel an interest in an employer's business, but for all that it is worth a trial. Be faithful in small things, be attentive to your duties, shirk no employment that is not dishonorable, feel that your employer is fairly entitled to every minute of the time which you have agreed to give him for a stipulated remuneration. The wages may be small—too small; but if you have contracted to work for a dollar a week, when your work is worth ten, stick to your bargain like a man, until your term of service has expired. It may seem very hard, but it will instill the great principle of being true to your word."

And besides, you will gain a reputation for faithfulness, and integrity, and diligence, which is worth more to a young person than thousands of silver and gold.

The good friend who taught a boy the Tanner's trade, when he was about to finish his apprentice-ship promised to give him a present worth more than a thousand dollars. He carried the young man home and said, "He is the best boy that ever I had."

That was the Friend's present, and the father confessed that it was worth more than a thousand dollars for a boy to have and to deserve so good a name as that.

A good name is a fortune in itself, a good trade is another. If you earn but little, try to learn a great deal. Your learning may be worth more to you than your earnings. Out of one hundred persons committed to the State's prisons only three have learned good honest trades. Ninty-seven persons without trades go to State's prisons where three persons with trades go there.

So wherever you are, try to master your business, determine to know something; attend to what you are taught, and do thoroughly what you do at all. Finish what you begin. Put things back where you find them. Avoid dirt, disorder, and dissipation; resist the devil and submit to God; and, blessed and saved, you shall serve him both now and forever.—The Christian.

"THE OLD WOMAN."

It was thus, a few days since, we heard a stripling of sixteen designate the mother who bore him. By coarse husbands we have heard wives so called occasionally, though in the latter case the phrase is most often used endearingly. At all times, as commonly spoken, it jars upon the ear and shocks the sense. An "old woman" should be an object of reverence above and beyond most all other phases of humanity.—Her very age should be her surest passport to courteous consideration. She has fought faithfully "the good fight," and come off conquerer. Upon her venerable face she bears the marks of the conflict in all its furrowed lines. The most grievous of the ills of life have been hers; trials untold and known only to her God and herself, she has borne incessantly; and now, in her old age—her duty done: patiently awaiting her appointed time—stands more honorable and deserving than he who has slain his thousands or stood triumphant upon the proudest fields of victory. Young man, speak kindly to your mother, and even courteously, tenderly of her. But a little time, and you will see her no more forever. Her eye is dim, her form is bent, and her shadow falls graveward. Others may love you when she has passed away—kind hearted sisters: perhaps she whom of all the world you may choose for a partner, she may love you warmly, passionately; children may love you fondly, but never again, while time is yours, shall the love of woman be to you as that of your old trembling mother has been.

Man is said to be a rational creature; but should it not rather be said, that man is a creature capable of being rational, as we say a parrot is a creature capable of speech?—Goethe.

CORRESPONDENCE

A Reporter is wanted from every Church in the brotherhood to send us Church news, Obituaries, Announcements or anything that will be of general interest. To insure insertion, the writers name must accompany each communication. Our invitation is not personal but general—please respond to our call.

UNION DIST., IND.
August 17th, '72

Dear Pilgrim:—By the requst of Union Church Sabbath School, I will attempt to give, through the columns of our worthy paper, a report of the Sabbath School conducted by the sisters of this arm of the brethren and sisters of this arm of the true christian church. The church assembled March 24th, 1872, and organized a school with but little or no opposition. As Sabbath Schools among the brethren through the West are of recent date, of course some were somewhat opposed to establishing them, but the result of our School has all tended to the good of mankind, and those who were at times opposed to them, seeing the good that comes from a well conducted school, are among the most useful members of our school. We have a promising organization, averaging in attendance since the first session 103. At first we began by encouraging the school to read chapters. After a few sessions Bro. John Wise from Pa. gave us a friendly visit, and an address to our school and recommended it as more profitable for children to commit the Scriptures to memory than to read too much. Upon this suggestion we advised the school to commit verses together during the week and recite the same during school hours to their teachers, and the report the same to the secretary. By this process we are able to give to the brotherhood an accurate account of what we have been doing, and then let those who chance to peruse the statement judge if we are not accomplishing a great good. We open our school by singing, exhortation and prayer. Singing after prayer, then the school goes to recitation for about one hour. The time is occupied by reading, asking and answering questions from that portion of the Scriptures which may have been their lesson given them by their teacher. As soon as this is done, the teachers have the scholars to recite the verses they have committed to memory and then report to the secretary, who keeps an accurate account of all verses recited by the school at each session. Then comes the answering of general questions to the school which are written and handed to the secretary one Sabbath previous to their being submitted to the school for to be answered. But before the school closes, the secretary reads to the school the questions to be answered at the next school. This gives all an ample opportunity during the week to search the Scriptures for the proper answer to the different questions. No question being given but what can be proven or answered from the Bible. When this is finished we sing a hymn and have exortation and prayer, and sometimes sing a hymn after prayer. During those exercises the best of order is observed by scholars and spectators, and a great interest seems to be manifested by the parents of our church and many of our neighbors who attend and take an active part in our school. To them we owe a part of our success.

There are many advantages in a well conducted Sabbath School to the cause of christianity that might be brought to the minds of the brethren and sisters and much good be done. This is one of the best places to raise our children in the fear and admonition of the Lord. Let none stay from the Sabbath School especially those who are the most apt to teach. Parents neglect not to go regular for you all have your influence. Exert yourselves to do good—let your light so shine that others may see your good works and thereby glorify our Father which is in heaven.

This arm of the true church is awake to the rescuing of souls from ruin and indeed, brethren and sisters, we do feel as though God had made this one of his passing ways. There seems to be a deep interest manifested in the cause of true christianity.

Since the latter part of Dec. 1871 there has been 73 added to the church by baptism and several by letter and acknowledgem nt to the church. We have, to the glory and honor of God, the pleasure of inviting into the fold, by baptism, some souls almost every meeting. We pray this may continue until all have acknowledged the truth as it is in Jesus.

I will now give you a consolidated report of nineteen sessions of our school since the organization.

Total attendance of officers	117
General average over	6
Total attendance of teachers	176
General average over	9
Total attendance of scholars	1176
General average over	61
Total attendance of spectators	473
General average	25
Total number present during nineteen sessions	1952
General average over	102
Total No. of chapters read	3118
Total No. of verses recited	4728
General average	413

The above is an exact statement of the work accomplished by the Union Sabbath School. Bro. Adam Appelman Supt., Bro. Samuel Beiler Asst. Supt. May the blessing of God be with children everywhere, is the wishes of one who loves the cause of christianity.

WM. G. COOK.

PLYMOUTH, Ind.,
August 19th, '72.

Dear Pilgrim: It is my lot to be at home alone this holy Sabbath day. My husband and father are away preaching, as duty calls them away, as the harvest is great and the laborers are few. It is raining to-day, so I cannot go to Sabbath school with my children, and while alone, it is sad to think my mother is no more. O, how these words sound to my ears, how solemn to think our dear mother is no more with us. As the sun is sinking from our sight in the west, so our mother has gone to her grave. We no more behold her smiles in this world, but her words to us were, 'prove faithful and we will meet in heaven." Oh, what comfort it gives to know that she has only made that happy change from a world of trouble to a home in heaven. It makes me so lonesome when I am alone and see the spot she loved. The garden was her favorite spot, and the rose and pink were her flowers; but she is gone now, her place at the table is vacant, and her voice raises no more with us in singing the evening hymns around our family altar—her amen is no more heard at close of our prayers. When we think of this, big tears bedim our sight, but why do we linger in mourning, the dearest friends must part here on earth? Yet we will meet again never to part.

Little Mary says:

"I think I can see grandma yet, can't you, Johnny?"

"Yes, Mary, I remember her when I say good night to Pa and Ma and grandpa.—O, Mary, I think of grandma too, how dear the name! I can't speak it or grandpa will shed tears, and I don't like to see him shed so many tears."

Dear father and sisters five, let us not shed so many tears for our mother, for she is gone where saints are going, but let us try and meet her in that happy home. Though dark clouds sometimes hover over the way, yet let us not faint but go on. No dark clouds can ever enter where peace and love knows no end, where part is known no more when we strike glad hands on the sunny shores and banks of deliverance. Oh may we all meet there is the prayer of your unworthy sister in the Lord. Farewell.

HANNAH E. APPELMAN.

Dear Pilgrim: The harves is all reaped and mostly stacked. We are once more blessed with a bountiful crop of wheat and oats of a good quality, and most of the farmers think a yield of 20 to 25 bushels of wheat per acre, and from 40 to 50 of oats. We have had a splendid season. Corn looks fine—in fact we have great reason to thank God for so bountiful a crop. We are in a new country and are well pleased, and hope more brethren and sisters seeking homes in the far west will come and settle amongst us. Any information wanted will be gladly given by applying to John Ikenberry or the writer.

Address Purple Cain, Dodge Co., Nebraska. Yours in love,

JACOB P. MOOMAW.

Announcements.

LOVEFEASTS.

Waddam's Grove, Stephenson county, Ill., Oct. 12th and 13th.

Meadow Branch, Md., Saturday October 12th. Commencing at half past 1 o'clock p. m.

Sam's Creek, Md., Tuesday, October 15th, commencing at half past 1 o'clock p. m.

Salem Congregation Frederick Co., Va. Saturday and Sunday, 14th and 15th of September. Commencing at 1 o'clock p. m

At the house of Daniel Glicks, Andrew co., Mo., October 5th, commencing at 4 o'clock, p. m. Meeting will be continued if aid can be obtained. Address Daniel Glick, Flag Spring, or J. B. Bashor, Whitesville, Andrew co., Mo.

Dear Pilgrim: Please inform your readers that we intend, the Lord willing to hold our Lovefeast in the Dunnings Creek Church, Bedford county, Pa., October 12th, commencing at 4 o'clock, preaching next day. The usual invitation given to all to be with us. JOHN B. MILLER.

Beloved Brethren:—Please announce that we, the brethren of the River Falls Church, Pierce county, Wisconsin, intend holding, the Lord willing, a Communion Meeting on Saturday and Sunday, the 7th and 8th of September, at 10 o'clock. The meeting will be at my house. An invitation is given to all, especially ministering brethren.

WM. H. ROBEY.

Brother Brumbaugh's:—Please announce that there will be a Communion Meeting in the Conemaugh Church, Cambria Co., Pa., on Friday the 13th of September, commencing at 4 o'clock, p. m. Meeting to continue over Sunday. The usual invitation given. By order of the Church.

STEPHEN HILDEBRAND.

Beloved Brethren:—Please announce through the PILGRIM that we, the Brethren of Black river Congregation, Medina co., Ohio, intend, the Lord willing, to hold a Lovefeast in our Meeting house on Wednesday the 9th of October. An invitation is given to all, especially the Ministering brethren. JOSEPH RITTENHOUSE.

DEAR PILGRIM: Please announce that we, the members of Lost Creek Church, Juniata county, Pa., intend, the Lord willing, to have our Lovefeast on the 16th and 17th of October, at the Free Spring Meetinghouse about 5 miles east of Mifflin station and about 2½ miles north-west of Thompsontown station, commencing at 1 o'clock, p. m. The usual invitation is extended to all desiring to be with us.

By order of the Church.

MICHAEL BESHOAR.

DEAR PILGRIM: Please announce that we, the brethren of the Bell Creek Church, Dodge county, Neb., intend holding a Lovefeast, the Lord being willing, on the 21st and 22d of Sept. An invitation is given to all, especially ministering brethren, as we need much labor in the ministry here.

JACOB P. MOOMAW.

District Meeting for Southern Ill.

Notice is hereby given to the brethren and sisters that, the Lord willing, the District Meeting for Southern District of Ill., will be held in the Ottercreek Church at the Pleasant Hill Meeting House 3 miles southwest of Virden, Macoupin county, Ill., beginning on Monday, the 14th day of Oct. Also, a Communion Meeting at the same place on Saturday before the District Meeting, to which the usual invitation is given to all the brethren and sisters. Appointments for preaching will be made in the neighborhood as early as Thursday evening before, and brethren from a distance are expected to fill them. We hope therefore, that a sufficient number of ministers will respond to this request so as to make these meetings interesting and profitable. Those coming by railroad can stop off either at Virden or Girard, where they will be met by the Brethren.

By order of the Church.

DANIEL VANIMAN.

DIED.

REPLOGLE.—In Jefferson county, Iowa, August 6th, 1872, of irritation of stomach and bowels, Mary, daughter of brother Jacob B. and sister Maria Replogle, aged 9 years and 6 months lacking one day. Funeral services by brother Peter Lutz from Rom. 7: 4, 16.

FISHEL.—Also in the same place, Aug. 8th, of cholera infantum, Joseph Franklin son of brother Jacob H. and Elisabeth Fishel, aged 14 months and a few days. Funeral services by brother Peter Lutz from Rom. 7: 4, 10.

He sleeps, our little Franky sleeps,
We know that he is blest;
Cradled so soft and tenderly
On the dear Savior's breast.

DAVID B. TEETER.

(Visitor please copy.)

PARSONS.—In the River Falls Church, Pierce county, Wisconsin, April 3rd, 1872, Alice May, daughter of W. J. and Artemisse Parsons, aged four months and four days.

Funeral occasion improved by the writer from first Peter, 1: 24. "Let little children come unto me and forbid them not for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven."

WM. H. ROBEY.

HOOVER.—On August 14th, in North Woodbury township, John, son of Isaac and Mary Ann Hoover, aged 11 months and 2 days.

The Weekly Pilgrim.

JAMESOREEK, PA., Aug.27th, 1372.

ATTENTION—PLEASE.

We have a project in view which we expect to be for the interest and special benefit of every PILGRIM reader. To make our enterprise as complete as possible, we kindly ask our readers to comply with the following requests:

1st. We want the name and address of every minister in the brotherhood that has not heretofore been published.

2d. All those who have changed their post office since the beginning of the year will please give their present address. Also all those who have been elected during the present year.

3rd. We desire the time and place of holding all the District Meetings that will be held during the spring of 1873. If the time is not determined give us the name of the Congregation, county and State in which it will be held.

4th. If any of the churches have a programme of their local meeting for 1873, we will be pleased to have it. If there are none prepared, do it at once, and send it to us. It would be quite an advantage to the congregations and those who wish to visit them.

5th. A few papers of standing interest, biographies or anything sufficiently practical and of general importance to justify a standing publicity will be gladly received for our use. Also a few unobjectionable business cards and advertisements will be accepted on reasonable terms.

Now brethren these requests are made for the churches general good and we do hope and pray that some brother or sister in every church of the brotherhood will give us the desired information at once.

ARE WE ONE SIDED?

We should be, especially if we could always keep on the right side. But this is not the point, it is, are we partial in advocating such views as may be in harmony with our own, and suppressing those which are not? It is thought so, or rather intimated. Notwithstanding the drift of certain questions may so indicate, yet we assure our kind readers and contributors that such is not the case. We have suppressed no side of any question at issue save that of Feet-washing, and the discussion of that we objected to in toto from the fact that it is not discussion that is wanted, but a little less self and more brotherly kindness and Christian charity.

The subject of Sabbath Schools is thought to be one sided. Why is this? It is not because anything was suppressed that was written against them but because the written expression, of late, all seems to be favorable to them. It is a subject of great importance and demands the prayerful consideration of the Brotherhood.

Many of our brethren who formerly were opposed to them, on giving them a trial have changed their minds and now strongly advocate them. As an evidence of this, we cite you to Bro. Knisley's Correspondence of this week. While we admit that the popular Sabbath Schools of the land have many and serious evils connected with them, yet when stripped of these innovations, we think they may be productive of good if properly conducted. If others think differently and are fearful of their tendencies, they are at liberty to express themselves, but we would advise, let your arguments be based on the institution itself and not its abuses and unnecessary appendages. We will be pleased to have its merits and demerits thoroughly tested.

CONGREGATIONAL BRETHREN.

This is the significant cognomen of a new religious organization lately sprung up. Of the character of its members we know comparatively little, and will say less. Kansas seems to be the headquarters, with a membership of 16, having two speakers and two deacons, also claim similar organizations in Rockingham and Augusta Co's. Va., Knox and Montgomery Co's. Ohio, and Elkhart and Clinton Co's. Ind.

We look upon this move as being heretical and dangerous and an outgrowth of self. They claim the New Testament for their discipline and pretend to dissent from the Brethren on account of the mode of Feet-washing. The object undoubtedly is to court a split in the Church on account of this foolish jangling about mode in Feet-washing. It is truly humiliating to know that some of our brethren are so unyielding where there is no positive law, and rather than relinquish their pet theories they would see the Church shivered to atoms.

On this question we have taken our stand on the side of "local option" which will be the final and inevitable result of this much mooted question. In the meantime brethren and sisters, mark those who are causing divisions amongst us and be not partakers of their heresies. The object is to organize a single mode Church, and then get all such as are favorable to that mode to unite with them, but it should be remembered that the head of this movement is composed of refractory and disreputable members. There has been a number of such branching off from the Brethren and none of them succeeded and neither will this, let them alone.

If there are such organizations in the above reported counties, brethren residing there would do us a favor by giving us a report of them, their character, mode of worshipping and cause of dissenting.

DON'T FORGET.

Please do not forget our call for information—see "Attention—Please"—but respond to it at once, we want it as soon as possible. The object is not to make money but every reader of the PILGRIM for 1873 will get the advantage of it free of charge. We have not fully determined in what style we will put it out but it will be some kind of an "Annual Supplement" for the special benefit of our readers and will be ready for distribution some time in December, but as the getting it up and having it published will take considerable time we want the information NOW. For business men and advertisers it will be a splendid opportunity as we intend to give it an extensive circulation.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

BRO. ALLEN BOYER reports a bountiful harvest of all kinds of grain for Northern Illinois and Southern Wisconsin.

BRO. HOLSINGER contemplates changing the form of the Companion from an octavo to a folio, or from 16 to 4 pages. The change will be effected at the beginning of the next volume if too many objections are not brought against it.

THE OTHER DAY we helped to cut down several trees as a commencement for building another Church in the James Creek Congregation. We expect to complete it some time during the fall.

ELD. SAMUEL MURRAY says: We are all enjoying the rich blessings of God, spiritual and temporal—The health in this part of the country is good with the exceptions of a few cases of fever—the weather has been very hot until recently, we had some good rains which made it more pleasant. Wheat, oats and flax crops were light, prospects for corn are good.

BRO. Wm. B. SELL of Mo., reports that contributions towards building their church are coming in very slowly. Brethren and sisters, will you permit the good cause to suffer for want of a little funds? Let every church do a little, and the littles put together will greatly help them to build their church. DO IT NOW.

CORRESPONDENCE, money list, and announcements crowded out, will appear next week.

WANTED.

A female apprentice to the printing business. She must have a good moral character, a liberal English education and a willingness to work. A member of the church, or one that will be interested in the cause for which we are laboring, will be preferred. A good and permanent sit will be given. Apply soon. Address

The Pilgrim,
James Creek,
Huntingdon Co., Pa.

PERSONAL.

MICHAEL BESHOAR. Due us. 25 cts.

SAMUEL MURRAY. The postal order was received.

JOHN H. ULRICH, The money sent us was received, if not published it must have been overlooked.

JOS. ZAHN. Send for the job whatever you have been in the habit of paying.

JACOB M. MOHLER, There was a mistake in Vincent Holaday's address. That has been attended to—the Tracts are sent.

WM. H. ROBEY, your money for Hymn book did not reach us. We stand good for the safe arrival of books when the money is received but cannot well afford to send them when we receive no money. We have no books on hands now but will send you one when received if you inform us what kind you wish.

J. M. We do not keep Menno Simon's works for sale. It can be had by addressing John F. Funk & Bro., Elkhart, Ind. See advertisement on outside page. By a mistake part of the address was omitted and was not noticed in time for correction this week. The work is a good one and contains much interesting and instructive reading.

FOR DISTRIBUTION.—We have a lot of odd No's. which we will gladly send to any person who can distribute them to a good advantage. Send for a lot and distribute them. There are many who would take the PILGRIM to the end of the year if they would see it. Only 3 cents per number or 45 cents from the first of September.

THE ALDINE for September is a remarkably meritorious number, both as regards its artistic and literary attractions. "Moonlight on the Hudson," drawn by Paul Dixon, and engraved by Bogert, is a specimen of which lovers of American Art may well be proud. The scene appears to have been chosen just above the Highlands, probably between there and Poughkeepsie; and the artists have performed their respective parts with a harmony of feeling resulting in one of the most splendid and truthful effects that it has ever been our good fortune to see. The other full-page cut, "Wood Ducks," by Gilbert Burling, is a most charming glimpse of nature; and the loving care displayed in the minutest details of gorgeous plumage and profuse vegetation, stamps the draughtsman as an enthusiast peculiarly fitted for the subject. Those who were delighted with the noble Newfoundland Dog in the March number, will be equally pleased with Mr. Thayer's terrier "Playing Sick," and the companion in which the poor invalid is galvanized into life, asking "Who said Rats?" "Watering Cattle," by Peter Moran; "Little Emily," by John S. Davis; "Lais Corinthaica," after Holbein, with several smaller designs, go to make up what we feel justified in pronouncing one of the most remarkable issues of this most remarkable of all periodicals. The poetry and literature is as fresh and crisp as ever. For interest and ornament it will have no rival, when, at the close of the year, it is bound and laid upon the parlor or library table—it will indeed be a royal volume. Subscription (including Oil Chromo), $5.00. James Sutton & Co., Publishers, 58 Maiden Lane, New York.

When and Where the Day Begins.

As we travel eastward, the day begins earlier; near the equator starlight appears an hour earlier for each thousand miles going east. When it is sunrise in New York, the people of Europe have had sunlight for many hours, and the Californians are still in their beds dreaming. Evidently the day has a first beginning, and at the eastward. But how far and where? Who are the people who first see the light of Monday morning?

It is the sun which brings the day; where does he first bring Monday? If we could travel with him, we might find out. Let us suppose the case. We will take an early start: At sunrise, on Sabbath morning, with the sun just at the point of peeping over the horizon behind us. As we go, the people give us a sabbath greeting; we bring Sabbath with us to Pittsburg, St. Louis, Salt Lake, San Francisco, our faithful chronometer informs us that we have been on the tramp about five hours. But we started on Sabbath morning, and it is Sabbath morning still. We go on, still on Sabbath morning Will this Sabbath morning never end? The quiet Pacific knows very little of Sabbath or any other day, and our question scarcely receives an echo for reply. When we get to Yokohama, in Japan, or Shanghai, in China, we are told for the first time that Monday has come. Every where now we bring Monday, and in twenty four hours, by the chronometer, after starting, we are in New York again, and find the merchants taking down their shutters, and the Monday newspapers telling us what has happened during our absence.—Scientific American.

The Discovery of Coffee.

Toward the middle of the fifteenth century a poor Arab was traveling in Abyssinia, and finding himself weak and weary from fatigue, he stopped near a grove. Then, being in want of fuel to cook his rice, he cut down a tree which happened to be covered with dead berries. His meal being cooked and eaten, the traveller discovered that the half-burned berries were very fragrant. He collected a number of these, and, on crushing them with a stone, he found that their aroma increased to a great extent. While wondering at this, he accidentally let fall the substance in a can which contained his scanty supply of water. Lo, what a miracle! The almost putrid liquid was instantly purified. He brought it to his lips, it was fresh, agreeable, and in a moment after the traveler had so far recovered his strength and energy as to be able to resume his journey. The lucky Arab gathered as many berries as he could, and, having arrived at Arden, in Arabia, he informed the mufti of his discovery. The worthy divine was an inveterate opium smoker, who had been suffering for years from the influence of that poisonous drug. He tried an infusion of the roasted berries, and was so delighted at the recovery of his own vigor, that in gratitude to the tree he called it cahuah, which in Aradic signifies force. And that is the way in which coffee was discovered.

DIAMONDS.—It is reported that diamonds and other precious stones have been discovered in Arizona, and that a company has organized to work the new fields. From a statement in one the daily papers, it seems that even if diamonds prove to be as abundant as the reports indicate, the effect upon the market value of the brilliant stone will scarcely be appreciable. Before passing into the hands of the dealer, the diamond must be cut. and the number of persons capable of performing this delicate operation is small. In Amsterdam, where the business is more largely carried on than in any other part of the world, the diamond cutters have recently raised their price, and entered into a compact not to receive apprentices, or give instructions to others, not even to their own sons for three years. Diamond cutting is also done in London and by two houses in this country. Messrs. Tiffany & Co. and a Boston house, employ about a dozen men in this work. The diamond cutters have been overwhelmed with work for a long time, and the largest increase in the supply of the rough stones will not cause, therefore, a much greater number of diamonds to be thrown upon the market.

GOOD BOOKS.

A large number of our patrons are receiving our books as noticed below, as premiums, and express themselves highly pleased with them. Others who are not agents, have enquired whether we keep them for sale, We have now made arrangements with Mr. Wells to furnish any of their publications post paid at publishers prices. Orders for books must be accompanied with the cash, and plain directions for sending them.

Conversion of St. Paul. By George Jarvis Geer, D. D. 12mo. fine edition, $1. Plain edition,75 cents.

Footprints of Life; or, Faith and Nature Reconciled.—A Poem in three parts. The Body. The Soul. The Deity. By Philip Harvey, M. D. $1.25.

Fruit Culture for the Million. A Hand book. being a Guide to the Cultivation and Management of Fruit Trees. Descriptions of the Best Varieties, and How to Propagate them. illustrated $1.00.

Hand-book for Home Improvement: comprising "How to Write," "How to Talk," How to Behave," and "How to do Business," in one vol. 2.25.

How to Live; Saving and Wasting, or Domestic Economy. By Solon Robinson. $1.50.

Life at Home; or, The Family and its Members. Husbands, Wives, Parents, Children, Brothers, Sisters, Employers and Employed, etc. By Rev. William Aikman, D. D. A work which should be found in every family. $1.50. Extra gilt, $2.00.

Man and Woman: Considered in their Relations to each Other and to the World. By Henry C. Pedder. 12mo, Fancy cloth. Price $1.00.

Man, in Genesis and in Geology; or, the Biblical Account of Man's Creation, tested by Scientific Theories of his Origin and Antiquity. By Joseph P. Thompson, D. D., LL.D. One vol. 12mo, $1.00.

Oratory—Sacred and Secular; or, the Extemporaneous Speaker. Including Chairman's Guide for conducting Public Meetings according to the best Parliamentary forms. By Wm. Pittenger. $1.50.

The Right Word in the Right Place. A New Pocket Dictionary and Reference Book. Embracing Synonyms, Technical Terms, Abbreviations, Foreign Phrases Writing for the Press, Punctuation, Proof-Reading, and other Valuable Information. Cloth, 75cts.

The Emphatic, Diaglott; or The New Testament in Greek and English. Containing the Original Greek Text of the New Testament, with an Interlineary Word for-word English Translation. A Work for Students in Theology, and S. S. Teachers. By Benamin Wilson. Price, $4.00; extra fine binding, $5.00.

Menno Simon's COMPLETE WORKS.

In English, translated from the original Dutch or Holland, giving the whole of the great Reformers writings on the subject of Baptism. Price in full sheep $4.50; by mail $5.14.

Address, JOHN F. FUNK & BRO.

New Hymn Books, English.

TURKEY MOROCCO

One copy, post-paid, - - - $1 00
Per Dozen, - - - 11 25

PLAIN ARABESQUE.

One Copy, post-paid, - - - 75
Per Dozen, " - - - 8 50

PLAIN SHEEP.

One Copy, post-paid, - - - 75
Per Dozen, " - - - 8 50

Ger'n & English, Plain Sheep.

One Copy post-paid $ 1 00
Per Dozen - - - 11 25
Arabesque plain, - - - 1.00
Turkey morocco, - - - $ 1.25.
Single German post-paid, - 50
Per Dozen, - - - 5 50

SALEM COLLEGE.

The Fall term of Salem College will open for the reception of any number of students from all parts on the 4th of September, 1872. Ample accommodations and thorough instruction will be given all students who connect themselves with this College. Good board can be had in good families at $2.50 to $3.00 per week or students can board themselves in clubs at $1.25 to $1.50 per week as numbers have done with the consent of the faculty. Special care will be given students who are far from home.

For Catalogues, Scholarships and full particulars address

SALEM COLLEGE,
July 22, '72. Bourbon, Ind.

Educational.

The second year of Pleasant Hill College, Warsaw, Ind., will begin Sept. 4th, 1872, in which a thoroughly practical education will be given in Academic and Collegiate studies. Brethren's children are expected to attend our weekly religious meetings. Ladies and gentlemen admitted on equal footing.

O. W. MILLER, President.
July 9-tf. Warsaw, Ind.

TRACTS.

"ANXIOUS BENCH RELIGION EXAMINIED," BY ELDER J. S. FLORY. A SYNOPSIS OF CONTEETS. An address to the reader: The peculiarities that attend this type of religion. The feelings there experienced not imaginary but real. The key that unlocks the wonderful mystery. The causes by which feelings are excited. How the momentary feelings called "Experimental religion" are brought about, and then concludes by giving that form of doctrine as taught by Jesus Christ and recorded by his faithful witnesses.

COUNTERFEIT DETECTER
or
BAPTISM—MUCH IN LITTLE.

This work is now ready for distribution, and the importance of the subject will speak for it a large demand. It is a short treatise on baptism in tract form intended for general distribution, and is set forth in such a plain and logical manner that a wayfaring man though a fool, cannot err therein. Either of the above tracts sent postpaid on the following terms: Two copies, 10 cts, 10 copies 40 cents, 25 copies 70 cents, 50 copies $1.00, 100 copies $1.50.

1870 1872

DR. FAHRNEY'S

Blood Cleanser or Panacea.

A tonic and purge, for Blood Diseases. Great reputation. Many testimonials. Many ministering brethren use and recommend it. Ask or send for the "Health Messenger." Use only the "Panacea" prepared at Chicago, Ills., and by

Dr. P. Fahrney's Brothers & Co.,
Mar. 29-pd. Waynesboro, Franklin Co., Pa.

Trine Immersion.

A discussion on Trine Immersion, by letter between Elder B. F. Moomaw and Dr J. J. Jackson, to which is annexed a Treatise on the Lord's Supper, and on the necessity, character and evidences of the new birth, also a dialogue on the doctrine of non-resistance, by Elder B. F. Moomaw. Single copy 50 cents.

HUNTINGDON & BROAD TOP RAIL ROAD

Summer Arrangement.

On an after Tuesday, June 4, 1872, Passenger trains will arrive and depart as follows:

Trains from Huntingdon South.				Trains from Bedford moving North.
MAIL. A. M.	ACCOM P. M.	STATIONS.		MAIL. P. M.	ACCOM A. M.
*le*8 20	LE6 00	Huntingdon,		AR5 25	AR9 10
8 28	6 06	Long Siding		5 17	9 00
8 45	6 19	McConnelstown		5 04	8 45
8 51	6 25	Pleasant Grove		4 58	8 39
9 05	6 37	Marklesburg		4 45	8 27
9 20	6 51	Coffee Run		4 33	8 11
9 27	6 58	Rough & Ready		4 26	8 40
9 39	7 10	Cove		4 12	7 5228
9 43	7 15	Fishers Summit		4 08	7 4810
10 03	7 35	Saxton	le	3 48	le 7 53
10 10	7 53		ar		*ar*7 46
10 27	8 10	Riddlesburg		3 30	6 30
10 34	8 17	Hopewell		3 22	6 12
10 51	8 35	Piper's Run		3 06	6 00
11 10	8 55	Tatesville		2 48	6 56
11 22	9 08	Bloody Run		2 33	6 50
11 26	9 12	Mount Dallas		2 29	5 46
11 32	9 19	Ashcom's Mills		2 22	5 42
11 36	9 23	Lutzville		2 18	5 36
11 40	9 27	Hartley's Mills		2 14	5
11 46	9 34	Jamesons		2 07	5
*r*11 22	*ar*9 40	Bedford		LE2 00	LE5 30

JOHN M'KILLIPS, Supt

SHOUP'S RUN BRANCH.

LE10 15	LE7 40	Saxton.	AR3 40	AR7 20
10 30	7 55	Coalmont.	3 25	7 05
10 35	8 00	Crawford.	3 20	7 00
AR10 45	AR8 10	Dudley	LE3 10	LE6 50
Bro'd Top City from Dudley 2 miles by stage.

Time of Penna. R. R. Trains at Huntingdon.

EASTWARD.			WESTWARD.
Hb'g Ac.	9 24	A. M	Cin. Ex.	2 19 A. M.
Mail	3 30	P. M	Pe'f Ex.	7 45 "
Cin. Ex.	6 55	"	Mail	5 40 P. M.
Phil. Ex	11 15	"	W. Pass.	11 52 A. M.

THE PILGRIM,

Published by J. B. Brumbaugh, & Co.

Edited by H. B. & Geo. Brumbaugh.

CORRESPONDING EDITORS.

D. P. Sayler, Double Pipe Creek, Md.

Leonard Furry, New Enterprise, Pa.

The Pilgrim is a Christian Periodical, devoted to religion and moral reform. It will advocate in the spirit of love and liberty, the principles of true Christianity, labor for the promotion of peace among the people of God, for the encouragement of the saints and for the conversion of sinners, avoiding those things which tend toward disunion or sectional feelings.

TERMS.

Single copy, one year, $1.25.
Book paper, " " 1.50.
Eleven copies, [eleventh for Agt.] $12.50.
Any number above that at the same rate,

Address.

H. B. BRUMBAUOH.
James Creek,
Huntingdon county Pa.

Narkin Pilgrim.

"REMOVE NOT THE ANCIENT LANDMARKS WHICH OUR FATHERS HAVE SET."

VOL. 3. JAMES CREEK, PENNSYLVANIA, SEPTEMBER 3, 1872. NO. 36.

POETRY.

Selected by WM. S. JONES.

THE PENITENT.

"Father! at thy call I come,
In thy bosom there is room
For a guilty soul to hide,
Pressed with grief on every side.
Here I'll make my piteous moan,
Thou canst understand a groan;
Here my sins and sorrows tell,
What I feel thou knowest well.

Ah! how foolish I have been
To obey the voice of sin;
To forget thy love to me,
And to break my vows to thee.
Darkness fills my trembling soul,
Floods of sorrow o'er me roll;
Pity, Father! pity me!
All my hopes alone in thee.

But may such a wretch as I,
Self-condemned and doomed to die;
Ever hope to be forgiven,
And be smiled upon by Heaven?
May I round thee cling and twine,
Call myself a child of thine;
And presume to claim a part,
In a tender Father's heart?

Yes, I may, for I espy
Pity trickling from thine eye;
'Tis a Father's bowels move—
Move with pardon and with love.
Well I do remember too,
What his love hath deigned to do;
How He sent a Savior down,
All my follies to atone.

Has my Elder Brother died?
And is justice satisfied?
Why, O, why should I despair,
Of my Father's tender care?

ORIGINAL ESSAYS.

THE SON CALLETH THEE.

"Hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son." Heb. 1:2.

After man had been under sin and condemnation for four thousand years, God remembered him in His mercy and revealed himself to us by His Son who left His position in heaven, was brought forth by the Virgin Mary, and grew up to manhood as other persons. When thirty years of age He came to His forerunner, John, and was baptized of him,—entered upon His prophetic mission and began to preach the Gospel of the Kingdom of God and say, "the time is fulfilled, the Kingdom of God is at hand, repent ye and believe the Gospel." This was truly good news to the children of men after being so long without hope in the world. "Darkness covered the land and gross darkness the people," but now light has sprung up, heaven is being revealed unto us, the Kingdom of God has come within our reach. Our wants were being revealed through the preaching of the Son of God. We were told to repent and come into His Kingdom. This will apply to us although eighteen hundred years after it was first revealed to man. Who of the readers of this article who have not yet entered into the fold of Christ, will be the first to say, I am tired of sin, I mean to enter the Kingdom of Christ, I mean to do it now? The promise is, "to-day if you hear his voice harden not your hearts." Sinner, if you reflect for but one moment what God has condescended to do for you, you will not live as you do. If God had not seen proper to make such provision for you, your lot would be in hell, where hope is a stranger and merey could not reach you. But God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son that whosoever would believe on Him need not perish but have everlasting life, which was His design and desire when He first created man; but through the commission of sin that design was frustrated and man wilfully deprived himself of that glorious inheritance. But now God has again opened up a new and living way whereby we may gain his favor, as our text says, "hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son." What has he spoken to us? When summed up it is but this, "Fear God and keep his commandments," not with a slavish, but with a reverential fear, fear to offend such a kind and benevolent Father who was so kind as to bring life and immortality to light by the Gospel; open a door that we could enter into His Kingdom. Who would be unwilling, when Jesus says go down into the river Jordan, or any other river or stream of water, and there be cleansed of all unrighteousness and sin? He told us at least by example, for He told John, "for thus it becometh us to fulfill all righteousness." But the objecter will say, He was not baptized for the remission of sin. We will admit that, and will admit a little more, He was not baptized unto repentance. Have you thought of this? Why was He not? Answer, Because He had nothing to repent of, neither had He any sins to remit. Now I will ask you, have you anything to repent of? Have you any sins to remit? If you have, then repent and be baptized for the remission of your sins in accordance with the example of Christ, by being buried in the liquid grave, and make a good confession before God and what by-standing witnesses may be looking on. Then God will accept you and appoint you a place in His Kingdom, receive His favors and have a part in the first resurrection. On such the second death shall have no power.

He sent His ministers about
To preach the word of grace,
And to baptize the world throughout.
Who should His truth embrace

"We are embassadors for Christ, as though God did beseech you by us; we pray you in Christ's stead be ye reconciled to God." Cor. 5:20. You can see the mission of the embassador which is the minister of God whose duty it is to hold forth the truths of God's word, and it will have the same bearing upon the hearer as though Christ was here in person to deliver the message to you. It was not consistent with His being that He should always remain in the flesh. He says: "It behooved Christ to suffer and to arise from the dead the third day, and that repentance and remission of sins should be preached among all nations, beginning at Jerusalem." Luke 24: 46, 47.

O how great and responsible the position of the embassador of Christ. If he betrays his trust, woe be unto him, for Paul says, "woe be unto me if I preach not the Gospel." When the pure Gospel is preached, then the burden will be resting on the hearer and the embassador will be free. These arrangements were all made for the good of man that a proper communication be kept up between us and God.

Now then, I will make a solemn appeal to all under whose notice this article may fall. Come out from among the sinful pleasures of the world, enter by the door into the Church militant, which is by faith, repentance and baptism. Become lively members of the Kingdom of grace, attend to all the ordinances of the house of God, no matter who may say this or that ordinance is not essential to your welfare. Turn a deaf ear to all such doctrine, for it cannot be spoken in truth; it only shows that he who does so sets up his judgment against the judgment of God, which is proof positive that he is not the embassador of Christ but a servant of the evil one whose reward will be according to his work. Flee from him as you would from an adder, for his words will poison you. I warn you, take heed unto yourselves and unto the doctrine, continue in them for in so doing thou shalt save thyself and them that hear thee.

GEORGE WORST.

NO NONESSENTIALS IN THE GOSPEL

That all the commandments and precepts of the gospel are essential to salvation, is a self evident fact that they are given by inspiration of the Most High, and it is unreasonable to say that He who is all wise would give a system of precepts, that He did not think was necessary for man to obey. But knowing the nature of man is sinful, He gave him a code of laws by which his obedience and love to God is made manifest. So it is the indispensable duty of man, in order to obtain salvation, to obey all His precepts, not accusing the Son of God of folly or imprudence, by saying that some of the things that are written in the Scriptures are nonessential ordinances. The ordinances of the House of God are all of great importance to the welfare of the human family, from the fact that circumcision is nothing and uncircumcision is nothing, but the keeping of the commandments of God, (1 Cor. 7:19) which is the same as to say that circumcision is not essential to salvation, but the keeping of the commandments of God are essential, so we cannot see that there is any non essentials in the gospel. All things that are written therein, are for our benefit and instruction in the way of salvation. All things that are found therein are the words of eternal truth, which stand forever, and by which man is to be judged in the last day.

THOMAS OWENS.

For the Pilgrim.

PROFESSING CHRIST.

TO A YOUNG DISCIPLE.

To profess Christ is to confess our faith in Him, and "take up our cross and follow Him." Here is the power of the new life. It is not sufficient to say, as thousands do, "I believe in Christ," and then do not follow Him in all his appointed ways. They treat the Christian profession as a matter to be measured by human wisdom and fancy, and which may be appropriated to each individual according to his pleasure or desire; but it is abundantly evident from the teachings of our blessed Savior, as found in the sacred volume of the New Testament, that the principles of the Christian profession are not only God-given, but are fixed immutable, sealed by the blood of the immaculate and eternal Lamb of God, that "taketh away the sin of the world." How utterly vain that any one should think that the conditions of salvation may be changed to suit our own desire! When we stop short of a full compliance with God's plan of saving us, how can we hope for a full salvation? Nay, but we must render a full obedience, and complete service, an unreserved resignation to our "Father in heaven, and He will number us among His dear children, and at last give us a home in heaven. What a joyful thought! It is very consoling and comforting to know that there is a Christian organization on the face of the earth which accepts this glorious profession, this holy religion, as it was first delivered, and is still offered to all men. Heaven requires such an acceptance, for it is well-pleasing in the sight of the Lord; and blessed are they who thus accept it, make it the regulator of their conduct in life, and the hope of eternal life in the future state.

The Christian faith made is good faith according to the words of Jesus, and held faithfully unto the end, is the highest and most sublime manner of life that we can attain to in this disordered world. It is most noble and beautiful in all its relations. Christ, its author, is most noble in His holy and Divine Eternal character, and it is sin to think otherwise of Him. His cause is noble and holy, for He has sanctified it with His own blessed example, and aids and strengthens it with His own Holy Spirit. His commands are noble and gentle. His promises are sure and most exhilarating, giving the soul the sweetest consolation under trial, and a blessed hope of rest from all suffering, and joys evermore. Surely, the profession of that dear, ever-blessed name is forever full of beauty, admiration and nobility. All His works displayed to our vision above, beneath and around are replete with beauty, power and sublimity. All His providences will appear evident manifestations of His infinite wisdom, justice and mercy. Some admire most the acts and writings of human characters who have distinguished themselves as heroes, warriors, generals, statesmen, authors, poets and others; but these should be secondary. The disciple of our blessed Lord will find his greatest admiration and interest in recounting God's goodness and mercy toward him or her, and in viewing and investigating the writings and records of the holy apostles and evangelists. These are the new Scriptures—the Gospel Word—and here we will find subjects for our study and research. May these be your daily study and delight. If you feast on the food which the Holy Scriptures afford, your heart will be filled with the love of God, and will enjoy a sweet foretaste of the joy of the saints in the presence of the King in his beauty. If you feast on angels' food—"the bread of heaven"—angels will dine with you, What good and pure companions! They will walk with you, though unseen, and minister unto you even in this world. A glorious thought! The Word declares that the heirs of salvation have "ministering spirits"—angels. That disciple who daily renews his vows to God and his church, holds fast his profession of faith in Christ, and strive to live unspotted from the world has an angel of God to minister grace and comfort to him, who will deny? But not every one that says, "Lord, Lord," or that "names the name of Christ," has a ministering angel. Only the faithful, humble Christian. May you never insult your guardian angel, but so live that you may enjoy its holy companionship until you join the innumerable company around the dazzling throne of the "King of kings." The Lord says to thee: "Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life." Precious promise.

For years you were a target for God's arrows of conviction, and you were wounded repeatedly in your strivings against the spirit of God, and His government. You were often reminded of your situation, and that you were not on the Lord's side, for God never designed that you should belong to the legions of satan's army. But now, God be praised, you have had courage to desert the bondage of the dark king, and join glorious ranks of the army of the Lord. You say you are "well satisfied," and that you "would not again resume your former position." This is a stanza of the new song that fills the mouth of every one that becomes a "new creature," and that tastes and sees that the Lord is good. Old things pass away, all things become new. O, how new! May you always walk in "newness of life." You say you "wonder at some of your associates how they can continue in sin." But this is the consequent experience of every disciple of Jesus, who denies self, "comes out from the world" which is "lying in wickedness," and follows Jesus in the way of holiness. As you live unto God, and search the Scriptures, you will observe many new things, more and more see the vanity of this world, and feel the necessity, power and beauty of a true, Christian profession.. You confess you "were blind, but now you see." You see as you never saw before. Those who live at ease in sin are blind. The "god of this world," in the Protean forms of fashion, pleasure or enticement, have blinded their eyes so much that they are not aware of the imminent danger they were in. Shall we not pray earnestly and frequently for them, that God may send powerful and effectual arrows of conviction into their hearts? We have reason to believe that they feel the claims of the Christian profession pressing upon their hearts, but they yield not. Perhaps one kind word of encouragement would greatly assist them in turning now to the Lord. Brother James, the Evangelist, says, "Let him know that he which converteth the sinner from the error of his way shall save a soul from death, and shall hide a multitude of sins.

The world always has made harsh remarks about Christian believers. Worldly persons ever have, more or less, persecuted and ridiculed those who forsake the vanity and foolishness of this world and who make an humble, self-denying profession of the religion of Jesus. Speaking of your laying aside or doffing the world's fashion, and donning the plain, simple apparel which becometh the children of God, it is no wonder that a young but gay friend should say, "I am surprised that L——would so throw herself away." It is surely a hard saying for one who also professes to be a Christian! If you should have offered your name for membership in a proud, popular church which practices the doctrines of John Calvin, with all the additional modifications of the nineteenth century, then it would not have been said "you have thrown yourself away." But inasmuch as you have renounced your sinful connections with the world, and taken your stand "as a light unto the world," therefore you have incurred the scoreful remark. The faith which you profess is the "faith once delivered to the saints," and stands as an everlasting foundation—the Truth of the Word of God. This faith is opposed and evil spoken of even by professed Christians, so that it is possible to profess Christ, and not be His, for if any one be Christ's, he will not speak against Christ's doctrine, or against such as would embrace that doctrine. You have embraced that faith and doctrine which is your salvation, and in doing so you have "thrown yourself away."

How truly did your Jesus say, "Deny thyself," and to do this would be to "throw thySELF away." If you have really and decidedly come out from among the world, and vowed unfailing allegiance to the "King of Kings," you have thrown your self away—denied your self. Your friend's contemptuous remark expresses a great truth in your favor, but she did not so intend it. Your faith will confront all opposition. You know in whom you have believed, and if faithful to His cause, you will finally triumph over the last enemy—Death, and join the joyous jubilant throng of saints above in singing the anthem of redeeming love, forever and ever.

D. B. MENTZER.

For the Pilgrim.

DREAMING OF GLORY.

BY F. M. SNYDER.

How pleasant it is to ever have our eyes fixed upon Jesus as He now dwells in a sphere of ineffable glory; surrounded as He is with all the grandeur and beauty of the holy Zion. Ah, look for a moment at that sainted father of yours. He quietly sinks further back into the old arm-chair. He has become weary of reading that large Bible of his; he can no longer hold it up; his palsied hands begin to ache; his trembling limbs grow tired; his eyes grow dim. That Book—blessed Book indeed—is handed you, and while you now read its sacred pages, he falls into an unconscious sleep; his half closed eyes are turned heaven-ward; he dreams of the beauty, of the glory of the celestial world—a world he had just been reading of a minute ago, in that Book which you now hold in your hands. As you look into his half-closed eyes, at his gray locks as they are carelessly tossed about in the playful breeze, and at his moistened brow as the cool sweat issues forth, you are made to wish, if you never wished before, that you were a Christian. Ah, could you but get a glimpse of the heavenly beauty he now beholds! His natural eyes are only closed to this world of sorrow that he may see more clearly the bliss for which you sigh. How glad you should be that your father is a Christian! Instead of him awaking up only to scold and abuse you he will awake with a Heavenly smile in his face; tell you something of the happiness of the righteous and blessedness of old age without sin. He can tell you something of interest something of Heaven, of which he has been dreaming. Lo! he is already awake. Go to him now, take that palsied hand of his in yours, ask him how he enjoyed his rest and his very heart will beat for joy at the thought of answering a question, which answer should make you wish to share the joys he daily shares of and of which he anticipates sharing in the world to come.

Heaven's crystal waters with infants of paradise sitting on their healthful shores, for awhile plucking flowers that blossom never to fade, then singing their Maker's praise; Zion's golden streets with whole companies of angels clothed in spotless white, led by the holy prophets and apostles who were once immortal beings, aye, sinners like you. Jesus Christ the Son of the Most High and Rock of our salvation, in all His Kingly beauty and interceding loveliness; all this, and more than pen can describe, he tells you he has dreamed of. And think you he enjoyed such a rest sweetly? Would it now require any persistent effort on the part of your father whom you so dearly love and whom you could not entertain the idea for one single moment to be banished from forever, to get you to abandon every sin that degrades and every unhallowed pleasure which you have learned to love, and come to the cross of Him in whom alone is found mercy?

CONSOLATION IN DISTRESS.

A certain writer remarked that man has never yet been in a condition so pitiable but that he may imagine a state more distressing. Job was in deep distress, yet had he been denied the privilege of "scraping himself" with a potsherd, and of laying in ashes it would still have been worse. Again, consolation in times of distress is like a healing balm, and of this Job was the recipient. His three friends came and administered unto him the oil of consolation, and had he been deprived of this, his condition would have been still more pitiable. Thus, no matter how deep our distress may be, we may imagine still deeper distress.

This same writer gives expression to a thought that gives consolation not only to the distressed, but they may have additional comfort from the consideration that when they are at the bottom of the wheel of fortune, every revolution may lift them up, but cannot possibly depress them. There are those who are at the top, and while they may be trembling with fear lest they may be hurled into the chasm of misfortune beneath, those who are at the bottom can look up calmly and with hope that they, some day, may be impelled upward. But how many there are in this condition that never take this view of things and instead of trying to find something in the wreck of their happiness for which to feel grateful they are rather inclined to take the advice of the Patriarch's wife "Curse God and die." If we could view all that we have in this world as belonging to God, and not our own, our apparently straitened circumstances would not give us so much distress. In this world we have nothing. All that we have is only loaned to us and there is no reason why we should despair when God sees proper to loan us but a small portion of this world's good's. The fact that we own nothing seemed to give Job consolation when he was deprived of all his substance. "The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away." There is none in this age of world that, like Job, are entirely destitute. We all have a little and we certainly should feel thankful for the use of it. We may have but little, but we should not imagine that the sun will ever remain obscured because it, apparently, ceases to shine now, or that it is dark in every man's house because the shutters are closed over our windows.

There are some persons too, who appear to imagine that the whole world is shrouded in darkness because there is a small cloud in the sky. We look at it, magnify its dimensions, and imagine its terrors until we lose all sight of the brightness that is beyond the limit of the cloud. Some small misfortune or distress absorbs all our attention and the blessings of heaven are forgotten. J. B. B.

ON THE SCRIPTURES.

An entertaining history or a striking description of some famous battle will challenge our attention, and cause us to light another candle, but a small portion of the Scriptures suffice us, yea, some are more taken with a well written romance than with all the interesting truths of the Word of God. This is a lamentation and shall be for a lamentation. Ah, how am I to blame that do not value this invaluable book, where the style is lofty, the images striking, the figures beautiful, the harmony conspicuous, the subjects of infinite moment, and the glory of God the scope of all. Here corruption and grace are portrayed, the struggles of the old and the new man set forth in an instructive light. Here are arrows that pierce the stubborn heart, and a balm of comfort for the bleeding soul. Here kings are taught how to reign, and princes how to judge, and here is an unerring directory for churches in their public, and Christians in their private capacities to walk by. This is the armor of Heaven from which I may be furnished with weapons for my spiritual warfare, for the sword of the spirit is the word of God. Like a kind comforter it stills my complaints, chases sorrows, cheers my sinking spirits, revives my hope, strengthens my faith, and sets me above the hurricanes of time. This feeds me with manna, not the manna of the wilderness of which all who ate are dead, but the Divine manna, preserved in the golden pot of the promise, laid up in the ark of the covenant of grace for all the chosen seed. "Surely thy words were found of me and I did eat them, thy words was the joy and rejoicing of my heart." This is the only food that can support the strength of the traveller heavenward. This makes my table so well furnished, and so richly spread in the presence of my foes. With this my cup overflows, and this is my daily allowance from the Kings table till the day I am admitted to sit at the table with the King. "The words of thy mouth are better to me than thousands of gold and silver, I rejoice at thy word, as one that finds great spoil."

Without this sacred book I should have no happiness here, no hope for futurity, for it is the christians charter for the glorious inheritance above. It is my directory in all conditions, at all times, in all difficulties, amidst all companies, and in all places. To be compelled to read a human composition again and again, would be intolerable, but to be debarred from reading the scriptures would be death! They are always savoury and refreshing to the spiritual taste. As the traveller drinks at the stream that attends him through the desert, as often as he is parched with thirst, and finds it always refreshing, these truths which at one time we read with a belief that they are Divine, came at another time when the spirit breathes on them with such power, that, in them we hear God talking with us, and our hearts burn within us. Here time is blinded and eternity brought forth, the world set in flames and the new creation formed. Here Heaven and earth talk together; God and man converses. Here conscience is accosted, thoughts discerned, and secrets brought to light. This is the light of Revelation that dispels the darkness of corrupt nature, shows me the world to come; at present, sets the judgment throne, sounds the trumpet, gathers the nations, passes the sentence, and brings in eternity; yea, from this sacred volume I may learn on what hand I shall stand, and what my sentence shall be in that tremendous day.

May I build for myself a dwelling in the word of promise which shall stand when the hail shall sweep away the refugees of lies. From this book will I choose my sons in the house of my pilgrimage, and will count myself happier with a few promises from it, than if possessed of sceptres, crowns and kingdoms. This is the window out at which the beloved looks, the lattice through which he shows himself till the day breaks and the shadows flee away. In a word this sacred word is the beauteous day star that gives the pleasant dawn till the sun himself arises and shines in the firmament of glory.

A. PILGRIM.

POWER OF LOVE.—Suppose some cold morning you should go into a neighbor's house and find him busy at work on his windows, scratching away, and should ask him what he was up to, and he should reply, "Why I am trying to remove the frost, but as fast as I get it off of one square it comes on another," would you not say "Why man, let your windows alone, and kindle your fire, and the frost will come off?" And have you not seen people who try to break off their bad habits, one after another, without avail? Well, they are like the man who tried to scratch the frost from off his windows. Let the fire of the love of God and men, kindled at the altar of prayer, burn in their hearts and bad habits will soon melt away.

Lines on the Death of an Only Child.

To Brother Samuel and Katie Rieat.

Pure as the snow drop in its bloom,
Dear Harry passed away,
Into the dark and silent tomb,
His little form to lay.

Ere sin could blight or sorrow fade,
Death came with friendly care—
The opening bud to heaven conveyed,
And bade it blossom there.

Then Father, Mother, tread the way,
That leads to joys on high.
Then, when shall close life's weary day,
You'll meet your child above the sky.

Think of your babe as beckoning you
To that bright world above;
Though now he's hid from mortal view,
His spirit pleads for you in love.

A little angel hovering near
From midst the cherub band,
Perchance to you he loved so dear,
To call you to that happy land.

Be particular in the choice of your companions; they should be spiritual, holy, self denying believers; if they are not, they will injure you by their spirit and example.

God promises you all you want, and invites you to come and receive it as you want.

ENERGY ADDED TO FAITH.

The right balance of the Christian graces, that no one grace shall be dwarfed or perverted by the unscriptural development of others, is greatly to be desired, especially in our day, when piety takes on such different modes of manifestation. Entire symmetry of Christian character, in which each grace holds its true place and all exhibit a proportionate completeness, is a rare attainment, and as difficult as rare. As an aid to this end is the Scriptural injunction, "Add to your faith virtue."

Faith is the foundation of true Christian character. It is as essential as the corner stone to a material structure; and this because by it we are brought into union with Christ, and secure the indwelling of the Holy Spirit. Without this living union, "the fruits of the spirit" can have no development, as they have no starting point: with it all the benefits of Christ's redemptive work may in time become ours.

This faith is the corner stone of the Christian edifice in the heart of every true believer, is far more than a mere intellectual assent to the truth relating to Christ; it joins with this assent of the understanding a hearty embracing of Christ in all his offices as just what the sinful man needs; and casts itself upon him as its only and all sufficient Savior. Such a faith subordinates the whole being—will, affections, and active powers—to the will of Christ. It makes the realities of the eternal world present verities, and leads the Christian to act as "seeing the Invisible." It sinks the world, with its motives and claims and pleasures, into their due insignificancy, and gives spiritual and divine things their proper prominence. On such a basis Christian character may be builded; out of such a symmetrical cluster of graces may spring and bloom and mature.

Yet faith without works is dead. More abstract trust in God, however absorbing and profound, is of little avail, and may be perverted by the yet unsanctified nature into a blind and dreamy mysticism. Hence says the precept, "Add to your faith virtue," that manly energy which will go forth in active work for Christ.

"Action, not thought, is being's highest end;"

and he that will follow Christ must, like Him, go about and do good. God is ever active, and in world-making and world governing "worketh hitherto." Christ incarnate was ceaseless in his activities; the early disciples rested not in the diffusion of his salvation, nor should any believer now fail to work in his Vineyard. The addition of this manly energy to a living faith is essential to the beginning of a symmetrical Christian character.

THE MULTITUDE OF OUR MERCIES.

If the ungrateful man were asked to count up his great mercies, he would mention two or three things, and fancy he had completed the catalogue. The most of us, in ordinary moods, would not require a ream of letter paper to write out what we carelessly conceive to be a comprehensive and extended list; but when the eye is clear, with a few briny tears, straightway it sees a hundred objects which it observed not before. To the soul chastened by divine correction, mercies swarm and teem where aforetime there seemed but few.

Take note of this, reader; I jot it down while I am newly escaped from the chamber of affliction, and the impression is fresh on me; it is a great mercy to be able to change sides when lying in bed. Did I see you smile? I meant no pleasantry, but intended to write a sober, serious sentence. Did you ever try to turn, and find yourself quite helpless? Did others lift you, and by their kindness reveal to you the miserable fact that they must lift you back again at once into the old position? for, bad as it was, it is preferable to any other! Do not smile again, but listen while I add—it is a great mercy to get one hour's sleep at night. You go to bed and never reckon upon opening your eyes again until your seven or eight hours are over; but some know what it is, night after night, to long for slumber and find it not. Oh, how sweet an hour's sleep when it has interposed between long stretches of pain, like a span of heaven's blue between the masses of thunder-cloud! We bless God more for those dear moments of repose than for whole weeks of prosperity.

What folly it is, however, to put down a few of these benefits selected from so many more! It is as though we would catalogue the cattle on a thousand hills, or enumerate the waves of the ocean. The tender love which chastises us, the gentle kindness which bruises us, the fond affection which crushes us to the ground—these do not so readily recount; yet is there as much divine love in a smart as in a sweet, as great a depth of tenderness in buffeting as in consoling. We must count our crosses, disease and pains, if we would number our blessings?—Earnest Worker.

ONLY THE BRIGHT HOURS.—On a Spanish sun-dial is written, "I mark only the bright hours." This is wise. There is more sunshine than shade, more bright than dark hours to be remembered. The trials and sorrows of life are not sent to shroud us in mourning, but for our instruction and spiritual growth, and usefulness. The temper and dispositions of the heart, as well as the growth and capacity of the mental powers, depend much upon the trials and disappointments of life. The Christian should not murmur and repine at his lot, but with confident trust in God's goodness and wisdom, regard every trial, however severe, as a stepping-stone to usefulness here and brighter joys above.

Youth's Department.

A BEAUTIFUL HYMN.

There is a spot to me most dear
  Than native vale or mountain;
A spot for which affections tear
  Springs grateful from its fountain.
'Tis not where kindred souls abound,
  Though that is almost heaven—
But where I first my Saviour found,
  And felt my sins forgiven.

Hard was my toil to reach the shore,
  Long toss'd upon the ocean—
Above me was the thunder's roar—
  Beneath, the waves' commotion.
Darkly the pall of night was thrown
  Around me faint with terror,
In that dark hour around my grave,
  Ascend for years of error!

Sinking and panting as for breath;
  I knew not help was near me,
And cried, "O, save me, Lord, from death,
  Immortal Jesus, hear me."
Then quick as thought I felt Him mine,
  My Saviour stood before me—
I saw His brightness round me shine,
  And shouted "Glory, Glory!"

O, sacred hour, O hallowed spot,
  Where joy Divine first found me—
Wherever falls my distant lot,
  My heart shall linger round thee—
And when from earth I rise to soar
  Up to my home in heaven,
Down will I cast my eyes once more
  Where I was first forgiven.

LOST.

Outside a Bristol coffee-shop, on a cool drizzling morning in November, stood a ragged, dirty young fellow. He shivered as the raw, damp wind moaned around him, finding out every hole in his scanty clothes, and fluttering his rags. His bare feet, covered with fragments of shoes, were blue and pinched. Passengers hurried to and fro without a glance at the miserable object. The swing-doors of the coffee shop opened and shut, letting out the fragrance and warmth within. The young man, as he stood by the door, scanned wistfully every face as it came out and went in. Let us scan his face. Dirty it is, pale and pinched; but it is no common face, it tells a sad and eloquent tale to him who read it aright. That high, broad forehead, sunken eye, finely cut nose, with that thick, coarse lip and jaw, tell of good birth and high intellect, degraded and clouded by vice and dissipation. Here is a jewel—which, cut and polished, would be fit for the crown of the King of glory—trodden under foot in the mire of a Bristol street.

The swing-door of the coffee shop again opened, and a benevolent looking man, buttoning his great-coat across his chest, came out into the rain. Here was the sort of face for which the lad had looked in vain among the shrewd, sharp business faces which had passed before him.

"Give me a half-penny, please, sir; and I'll repeat any chapter in the Gospel which you please to name; I'm starving."

The gentleman addressed stopped short, and gazed at the speaker. The living reality, of which you have read the picture, shivering and wretched, stood before him; and, as he took in the youth's probable history, a tear stood in his eye.

"You can repeat any chapter in the Gospels, eh? Well, repeat to me the 14th of St. John." Every word was repeated correctly. "Now the 27th of St. Matthew." The wondrous story of the crucifixion came from the boy's lips like a lesson learned long ago.

"Young man," said the kind voice, as the gentleman's hand was laid, despite rags and dirt, upon the youth's shoulder, "Come in here with me; I do not want to give you a penny for those two chapters; for I know where that penny will go; come here."

He led him into that coffee shop which had seemed so like a palace to him as he stood in the cold rain. The guests drew back, and eyed the strange customer from a distance; but his benefactor led him on to the most distant corner of the room, and motioning him to a chair, and calling for coffee and bread and butter, he sat down before him. The lad's ravenous appetite proved that he had not broken his fast for many a long hour.

When he had finished his breakfast, he looked up with a warm glow to his benefactor. "Thank you, sir; this is far better than the penny; but you must let me do something else for my breakfast, sir; I haven't earned it." But as he looked around at the respectable customers, who looked scandalized at a beggar, in his rags and dirt venturing among them, he timidly said: "Please let me go, sir, I am not fit to be here; it isn't right that I should sit down with you."

"My lad," was the kind answer, "I did not bring you here to give you a cup of coffee and then turn you adrift upon the streets. I want to help you. I want—oh! God grant it—to save you. You don't look as if you had many friends in the world. Tell me your story; and if you are to be saved from this life, by God's grace I'll pledge myself to be the man to save you. Only tell me truly who you are, and how you came here."

"Sir," said a low, earnest voice, very different from the beggar's whine, "you know, I can see, something of my story. I was born a gentleman, the son of a clergyman. I can see the pretty vicarage now, covered with ivy and roses, and the green lawn on which I played, a happy child, with my little brothers and sisters. I can see the old school, and the faces of my school fellows, and then, and then'—he broke down, covered his face with his hands, and sobbed aloud—"all is darkness and misery."

"What then?" said his questioner, kindly, "after the happy school-days, what then?"

He dried his eyes: "I went to college, sir, the first boy in the school, proudly thinking that I should carry all before me. I fell in with clever, but wicked companions. I was soon to be found at wine parties, and to be seen giving wine parties in return, I'm sure you guess the rest of my story, sir. I took to drinking freely and while intoxicated committed an action that closed the college gates against me. What could I do? Home I would not go after what had happened. I tried one kind of work and then another, my taste for drink getting stronger and stronger as I sank lower; and now, sir, no one will employ me. My character, my respectability, my health and strength gone, all that is left is my memory: if I read a chapter or a verse, I can repeat it. That memory, sir, which placed me at the head of the school, would have given me high honors at the university, and might have led me to a high position in life; it might have been my greatest blessing; but now, while it is my daily bread, it is my greatest curse. I remember too well every little incident in my past life. Ah! sir, it is the drink that has done it; it has dragged me down from my position in life to be a ragged beggar, it has broken my parents' hearts, it has bound me so tight in its chains that I don't believe that I could burst through them if I would; and it will land me in hell. Now, sir, you know my story, please to let me go, you can't help me; I don't want to be raised up in life again, I'm a wreck and am content now to be so."

The listener's eyes filled with tears as he looked on what was indeed a wreck of humanity—the young life before him a hopeless ruin. "Dear friend," said he, "say what you will, I cannot go from this house and forget you. You may call yourself the devil's castaway; but it is the devil's castaways whom Jesus came to seek and to save. Hear the words of infinite love, "Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts; and let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him, and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon." You tell me you have fallen from your station in life; but the spirit of God will set you with princes. Ask God's pardon through the blood of a crucified Redeemer, and then do as one of old did—arise and go to your father."

"Never!" almost shrieked the unhappy young man; "I have sworn never to cross my father's threshold again, and I never will. Good day, sir, you mean kindly, but it's too late for me." A hasty step, the swingdoor closed, and when, a moment after, he who would have rescued the perishing one stood in the street, the tall, thin form had disappeared.

Once again, think of that Bristol coffee house, the pattering rain, and the thin dripping, shivering form that stood outside. Now look for one moment on another scene. It is the very same hour, and the same rain is falling; but it is on the soft grass and damp leaves, instead of the black mud of Bristol streets. A silver-haired old man, kindly and venerable, is glancing over the Times. The fire burns brightly, and is reflected from the silver on the table; the urn hisses cheerily. Two girls are gazing out on the fast-fading glories of their flower garden, and watching the rooks as they wheel around the tower of the old church. The paper is laid down with a sigh, and the chair wheeled to the table.

"Any clue to poor Robert?" whispered an elderly lady, laying her hand on his arm; "I pray, day and night, that God will restore us our poor, lost boy."

"No certain clue yet," answered the father, "and yet there is hope. He has been traced to Bristol and lost there. God grant that our wanderer may be given to us again, before we lie down with sorrow in the grave. And as to the poison which has ruined our lad, while I have breath I will use it in entreating all the precious souls in the parish to cast it from them—to give up this cursed drink; for oh! wife, it has caused more broken hearts, it has filled more empty graves, it has peopled hell more, than all the other sins which stain the earth put together."

CORRESPONDENCE

NEWS FROM THE UNION CHURCH.

MARSHALL CO. IND.

Dear and respected brethren, sisters and readers of the PILGRIM:—I do feel to give you some church news, and hope in so doing the members will not think that I wish to boast. God forbid, but I do feel to rejoice in God my Savior, that He has stood by us since we have been organized here in Marshall, Stark, Pulaski, and part of Fulton county's. Though we have organized a new district from ours that is prospering very well, we have over two hundred members yet after giving some forty to the new district. We have been laboring here for fifteen years, and the good Lord, I do believe, has been with us, but as long as we had to preach in schoolhouses and could not accommodate our neighbors and friends, we had not such good success, we gathered a few here and there. In the Spring of 1871, we counseled our members whether we had not better build a church-house, so we got the consent of our members and commenced early in the Spring of 1871 and did the best we could, as we were poor; but we wished to build a house for the Lord, and we believe the Lord blessed us, for we sometimes thought we would have to give it up; but if we would stop a little, or stand still, we would see the salvation of the Lord, and took courage. We did not need to put slab benches in the house, though our seats are not painted, but are good and comfortable, and we have a very good house for which we thank God our Heavenly Father, who is the giver of all good. We owe some four hundred dollars yet, but oh how thankful we are since we had our first meeting, which was about the 18th of November '71. Since that time we have received into the church from one to eight at a time until we got eighty-two, seventy-four by baptism, six by letter, and two that were expelled all in eight months and a half. Thank the Lord for it, and we have applications for baptism at our next meeting, again. Our neighbors and neighbors children are very favorable to us and attend meeting very well, and as I was very much opposed to Sabbath schools, our neighbors and their children, and some of our dear members who were brought up in Sabbath schools requested of the church to organize one, and knowing that our neighbors took a great interest in helping to build our house, I give way and laid it before the church, and got a unanimous voice for Sabbath school. But they should be entirely controlled by members, and good order be kept and not allow pride or anything that is contrary to the Bible. We have the best of order, and our friends who do not make any profession of religion conduct themselves as well as the members of the church, and all the dear children are so attentive and orderly, and hearing so much reading in the Bible I have been asked more questions by them since our Sabbath school commenced, which is only a few months, than I was asked in two years before. Dear brethren, I do believe if our Sabbath schools are conducted as they should be, it will be a very good thing to bring many souls to God. Dear members, go with your children and teach them before you go and when at school, and I believe that those who live will see that our rising generation will not so easily be deceived. I was opposed to Sabbath schools because I knew nothing about them, but judged them from those picnics and celebrations which were their abuses, but dear members we should not be opposed to anything that is good because it is abused by some, but let us take hold of them and manage them according to the gospel.

Since we have our Sabbath school, we have nearly all the congregation to bow with us at our meetings which before many would not do. I think we have as good young people in our country as in any I ever saw. Since our Sabbath school was first organized they come in orderly and go away orderly. Oh, may the good Lord bless them all is my prayer. I must say that our young members appear to be in good earnest. O, let us all be engaged for them, and try to keep them united and never try to divide or sow discord among them. My love to all our dear brethren and sisters.

JOHN KNISLEY.

HOLLIDAYSBURG, PA. }
Aug. 14th, 1872. }

Dear Pilgrim: Thrice welcome messenger to our fireside! from whose well-filled pages we learn from dear brethren and sisters that the ark of God is still moving, and many precious souls are being enlightened by the glad tidings of salvation. Doubtless some of the dear brethren and sisters will be interested to hear from this, the Duncansville branch of the church. On Sabbath, July 28th, we had the pleasure of meeting with, as it were, a handful of God's creation at Altoona, Pa.; heard a very interesting and profitable sermon by Bro. G. Myers, from Matt. 28: 19, 20. "Go ye, &c." For some time our brethren and sisters have been trying to accommodate those of our brethren and sisters who reside in Altoona with services, where it was the privilege to hold meetings, preaching mostly at the brethren's houses. The above named sermon was delivered in a new building erected for a United Brethren Meetinghouse, but not occupied by them. This was the first sermon preached in the house. We were informed that the house is for sale, and we rather think on reasonable terms. We think if the brethren would make a little effort we might purchase the building. We talked to Bro. Myers upon the subject that we feared the brethren are too timid about letting their light shine in cities and towns. It will be very surprising to some to learn that to my knowledge, or my parents, there never was a sermon preached in Hollidaysburg by the brethren. Would not some brother have a desire to deliver the first sermon there? We are well aware that here, as well as elsewhere, there are many souls desiring the bread of life. Brethren feed the hungry souls, and great shall be your reward in heaven. Last Saturday, Aug. 10th, we had a pleasant visit from Brother and sister Quinn from Tyrone, Pa. On Sabbath morn, we repaired to the church, near Duncansville, to receive the ebbings of God's love. We were somewhat detained in the morn at home by very sudden illness of my father. He had a violent attack of cramp and cholera morbus. We never witnessed one in more intense agony. Every possible effort was made for his relief, the physician was summoned who considered him dangerous, but up to this time is convalescent. Sermon by Bro. Quinn from Matt. 7: 21, 22. This has been the first opportunity to our recollection of hearing Bro. Quinn preach. We think our bro. did the text justice in pointing out the way of salvation to poor benighted souls. We felt so very sad, however, at the time, about the sufferings of our father. After services an appointment was made for our church council to be held Saturday, August 31st, at which the time will be appointed for our Fall lovefeast. We trust that no envy, malice, or ill-will will exist, but that all will be brought to peace and harmony, that we may be prepared to all surround the table of the Lord and partake of the broken body and shed blood of our Redeemer. "Brethren, be of one mind." Due notice will be given of the time of our Lovefeast if decided to hold one. "Brethren pray for us."

Your sister with the hope of heaven. E. R. STIFLER.

Dear brother Editor: I sometimes say just what I think and will now write what comes into my mind. If anything is worth a little room in our PILGRIM you may publish it. If not, lay it aside and give room for those who are better prepared to write than I am.

On last Sabbath morning, as I live near the meeting house, I was looking for some of the ministering brethren to pass to know who would be to do the preaching. Soon two of the young brethren came who, as yet, had not much practice in the ministry. The one stopped in with me and seemed rather discouraged at the task before them. While going up, one of them requested me to have in readiness a good piece of music. I promised to do the best I could. The meeting was opened by singing 668 hymn. We had really very good music, some would have thought it very good.

I have, right here, a word. If we wish our children to learn to read we must send them to school and have them taught. Just so with singing. If we wish our children to be good singers we must either teach them or send them to singing schools. When I was young singing was held in school houses, but now, by other denominations, they are held in their churches. To one of these schools a number of the brethren's children went, but it was soon said, "what business have they in our houses? They have houses of their own." We therefore commenced a singing in one of our own houses, but this was soon objected to and it was stopped. Some thought it was opening a door for the enemy. Can it be brethren, that we are opening a door to the enemy in singing those beautiful melodies which are as bread on our way to Zion? Brethren, let us have school in our churches and thus give our children a chance to learn to sing. Let the parents take an interest in them by attending and seeing that there is good order maintained and we will soon find that there will be a new interest in our meetings, and a much better attendance by the young. I never heard any say they did not like good singing. We have as good material as other churches, why not have as good singing? If we were to make use of as much music as old David it would take considerable teaching, but as I am a poor writer I will leave it for those who are better qualified. Brethren let us hear from you.

DANIEL DIEHL.

Henrietta, Pa.

REPORT OF OUR VISIT TO FULTON AUGUST 22, 1872.

Brother George W. Brumbaugh and myself started in the morning of the 9th of August, 1872, took dinner at brother H. Hershberger's, took supper at brother John C. Calhoun's; had meeting in the Brush Creek M. H. Stayed all night with brother Nathan Welsh.

10th, Had meeting 9:30 A. M. at the same place, baptized one. Went across Sidling Hill, had meeting that evening at S. H. near brother Alpheus Mallott's, stayed all night there.

11th, Meeting 8 A. M. and 4 P. M. at the same place.

12th, Went to brother Calvin Mallott's, had meeting there at 10 A. M. and also in the evening. Were urged by friend J. Hull to spend part of the afternoon with him, had a friendly discussion on the formula and position in Baptism. He believing in one action and supine position, though agrees with us in feetwashing, Lord's Supper, as a separate institution from the bread and wine, and salutation of the kiss. After supper were requested by his father, Joseph, to have a season of prayer, as he and his wife, being feeble, could not attend the meeting that evening.

13th, Went to friend Isaac Barnhard who seems to be a warm friend to the Brethren, with his whole family, had meeting in the forenoon and evening at Daniel's S. H.

14th, S. Barnhard, wife and daughter conducted us to Aaron Hess' S. H. had two meetings there, they stayed with us till after the evening meeting Hope the Lord will bless them for their kindness and speedily bring them into the "Church of the living God whose pillar and ground is the truth." Stopped by request at friend Morgan Hill's for dinner, then went to friend Aaron Hess', where we stayed all night. At these last three places the Brethren never preached before, and our friends had many questions to ask concerning our church, as they have heard many strange things believed by the Dunkards, such as we never heard before.

15th, Meeting at Needmire S. H. 10 A. M. and evening, stayed all night with brother John Lake.

16th, Went to Cross Road S. H. Meeting forenoon and evening, stayed with brother Jonas Mallott, who with his wife and daughter came lately to the Brethren, being zealous for the cause and showed us much kindness.

17th, Went to brother Absalom Mallott, had meeting two times in his barn. Visited brother J. Lake and J. Malott, Esq. whose wife and mother-in-law are members, took supper there but stayed that night where we had the meeting.

18th, being Sunday, had meeting at 9 A. M., which closed our labors in that vicinity. Sung in conclusion, "My dearest friends in bonds of love," Took an affectionate, farewell attended withmany tears, from the brethren, sisters and dear friends, who followed us and attended the most of these meetings, recommended to God and request of earnest prayer for one another. Went that afternoon with brother Kline as our leader 10 miles to his house where we had meeting at 4 that evening. Spent the night there.

19th, Visited friend Fisher by the request of his daughter whose mother is in delicate health, had a season of prayer with the family, then crossed Sidling Hill and Rays Hill to Bedford Co., Pa. Came to brother Simon Richey's in Rays Cove at 2 P. M. 14 miles. As by some misunderstanding, there was no appointment, they concluded to have meeting in their S. H. near by. He sent his boys and girls round the neighborhood and got a nice congregation and had a very good meeting. Next morning, 20th, G. W. Brumbaugh left me, as he thought his presence was required at home, took dinner with friend David Kerns whose wife is a sister and much afflicted with Rheumatism, went to sister McDanneld, had meeting that evening in the German Reformed church, large meeting and good attendance. This closed our labors.

21st, Went home, found the family well. Met with kindness everywhere. Had 21 meetings, traveled about 90 miles, and besides, had much private preaching. Hope many good impressions were made, and may God bless our weak efforts.

LEONARD FURRY.

New Enterprise, Pa.

ALLENTOWN PA., }
Aug. 25th '72. }

Brethren Editors of the Pilgrim: — Being alone this beautiful Sabbath evening I thought of improving my time by writing a few lines to you, and if you think them worthy a place in the columns of the PILGRIM, all right, if not, it must be good also.

The welcome visitor, the PILGRIM, is still cheering us with its weekly visits, lightning up our home and casting sad gloom away. In reading the many excellent articles composed by the brethren and sisters, I as a babe in Christ am greatly strengthened, spiritually, to press more earnestly Zionward, to run the race set before us, to fight the fight and to come out conqueror.

At our late Lovefeast, the first I ever enjoyed, having been buried with Christ in baptism the 28th of January last, and risen with Him to walk in newness of life, I enjoyed very much. I could not but help feeling for my youthful acquaintances that are yet out of the ark of safety. I could not refrain from wishing that I had given myself to God long before this time. If those yet out of the ark of safety could only for one moment, feel or taste the enjoyment there is in associating with God's people, and obeying His commands, many of the unconverted would wake themselves up and enlist under the banner of King Jesus, and thus find rest unto their souls.

In looking over lost humanity, and seeing the actions in life, I cannot but help exclaiming with the poet:

"The road that many travel,
Is not the road for me;
It leads to death and sorrow,
In it I would not be.
But there is a road that leads to God,
'Tis marked by Christs' most precious blood;
The passage there is free,
O that's the road for me."

That the God of all grace might bless us and help us to be burning and shinging lights, and also to keep all His commandments that we may have a right to the tree of life, and enter in through the gates into the city, is the prayer of your young brother in the Lord.

H. F. ROSENBERGER.

CHAMPAIGN COUNTY, ILLINOIS;

Kind Reader: We are pleased to inform you that the good cause is still moving on with us. At the present time our little band of faithful members seems to be in great hopes of successes, and are making strong and repeated efforts to enlarge the borders of Zion. Since our last Communion meeting, which was held in June, we have received six into the church by baptism,—three sisters and three brethren, and we still have good prospects of other additions soon.

Health has not been so good during the season. Many deaths have occurred during the summer; mostly children. We have been called upon to preach three funerals during the last five days. The last one was today—a child aged 7 month; the prettiest little infant we have seen in a long while. How beautiful must heaven be adorned with such harmless jewels. It is worth all the trials one is called to endure, just to have the pleasure of seeing heaven, and how much more beautiful it will be to dwell there forever. We retired to the "city of the dead," and interred the little one in a little house, where it must dwell alone. And when our life shall end we must dwell there, each one in his own house, with no one to care for him but his Maker.

J. H. MOORE.

Urbana, Ill.

AUTHORSHIP.

The following is from the pen of our literary antiquarian, Abram H. Cassel, and is intended for a correction of authorship of a curious play poster which we published sometime ago. This is right, as every author should have the honor or dishonor of fathering his own productions. In this connection, we will throw a hint to our contributors. Do not be guilty of literary theft by making use of other peoples productions and palming them off as your own. There is a corresponding relation between penmanship, orthography and composition that no observing editer can fail to see.

Dear Brother: — In the PILGRIM of August 13, I noticed the reprint of a very rare and curious Poster, there attributed to the Rev. Rowland Hill, which is a mistake. It was wirtten by the Rev. John Wesley of London in the year 1774, and a copy of it was sent by him to the King of England (George iii) which has ever since put a stop to the play called the "Day of Judgment" which was, about that time, performed in the London Theatres. I have a nice clean copy of the original in my collection, and while I don't suppose that any of your readers have ever seen it, a short description of it may be interesting to some at least. The size of it is 18 by 27 inches, surrounded by an ornamental border one inch wide. Inside the border is a very striking engraving or panoramic illustration of scenes connected with the Resurrection and the Judgment 9 by 12 inches; along the right hand margin are 98 references to prove texts in the Bible. The whole is in a large bold type and printed in so impressive a manner that no one can behold it without feelings of awe.

Announcements.

LOVEFEASTS.

DUNNINGS CREEK, Bedford co., Pa., Oct. 12th at 4 o'clock, p. m.

RIVER FALLS Church, Pierce co., Wis. Sept. 7th, 10 o'clock, a. m.

CONEMAUGH Church, Cambria co., Pa., Sept. 13, at 4 o'clock, p. m.

BLACK RIVER Congregation, Medina co., Ohio, Oct. 9th.

LOST CREEK, Juniata co., Pa., Oct 10th, at 1 o'clock, p. m.

BELL CREEK Church, Dodge co., Neb., September 21st.

Waddam's Grove, Stephenson county, Ill., Oct. 12th and 13th.

Meadow Branch, Md., Saturday October 12th. Commencing at half past 1 o'clock p. m.

Sam's Creek, Md., Tuesday, October 15th, commencing at half past 1 o'clock p. m.

Salem Congregation Frederick Co., Va. Saturday and Sunday, 14th and 15th of September. Commencing at 1 o'clock p. m

At the house of Daniel Glicks, Andrew co., Mo., October 5th, commencing at 4 o'clock, p. m. Meeting will be continued if aid can be obtained. Address Daniel Glick, Flag Spring, or J. B. Bashor, Whitesville, Andrew co., Mo.

The brethren of Yellow Creek, Bedford co., Pa., will hold their Communion Meeting, Tuesday, October 15th, commencing at 4 o'clock, p. m. The usual invitation is given.

The brethren of Raccoon, Ind., have appointed their Communion Meeting on the 10th of Oct., and give a general invitation. Ladoga is the R. R. Station. Meeting 1¼ miles north-west of town. R. H. MILLER.

BELOVED BRETHREN: Please announce that the brethren composing the Hamilton Branch have agreed to hold their annual Lovefeast, at my residence, 4 miles north of Hamilton, Daviess co., Mo. Commencing at 2 o'clock on the 12th day of October next and continue over Sunday. We extend a general invitation to all the brethren and sisters, especially the ministering brethren. W. B. SELL.

BRO. BRUMBAUGH: Please inform the readers of your valuable paper, that we, the brethren and sisters of the Clarion district, intend to hold a Lovefeast on the 5th and 6th of October. A hearty invitation is extended, especially to the Ministering brethren. HENRY KLINE.

Dear Pilgrim: Please announce that there will be a Communion Meeting, the Lord willing, on the 17th of October, in the Howard Cougregation, 12 miles west of Kokomo, in Howard co., Ind., to which there is a hearty invitation given, especially to ministering brethren. Those coming by railway will find conveyance to the place of meeting if they are at Kokomo on the day previous. H. HAMILTON.

Dear Pilgrim: — Please inform your readers that we, the brethren of the church of Okaw, Piatt county, Ill., intend, the Lord willing, to hold our communion meeting on Wednesday, the 9th of October 1872, commencing at 10 o'clock a. m. The usual invitation given. By order of the church.

JACOB P. REPLOGLE.

Dear Brother:—Please announce that we, the brethren of Bethel church in Holt Co., Mo., propose holding a communion meeting on the 14th and 15th of September, if the Lord will, commencing at 4 o'clock p. m. An earoest invitation is extended to all the brethren and sisters in other arms of the church of the surrounding counties and States. We want to be strongly reinforced by the ministering brethren at our meeting. Come along brethren, we will be happy to see all that can come. By order of the church.

A. J. CORRELL.

District Meeting.

Southern Ill., in the Ottercreek Church at the Pleasant Hill Meetinghouse, 3 miles south-west of Virdin, Macoupin co., Monday, Oct. 14th. A Communion Meeting at the same place on Saturday before.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS.

Those wishing to correspond with me will please notice that my present address is

Orangeville,
Stephenson Co., Ill.

ENOCH ERY.

DIED.

METZGAR.—On Aug 23d, 1872, in North Woodbury township, Mary, wife of Geo. Metzgar, and daughter of Adam and Julian Kensinger, aged 17 years, 4 months and 29 days.

MILLER. — Near Pattonville, Aug. 5th, 1872, Ella May, daughter of Bro. Henry H. and sister Christiana Miller, aged 7 years, 12 days. Funeral by the brethren.

MONEY LIST.

S. J. Garber	75
Jesse Conner	54
George Kinny	2 00
P. H. Kurtz	1.25
Jacob M. Mohler	50
E. Umbaugh	5.00
Joseph Rittenhouse	2.25
Michael Beshoar	4.00

The Weekly Pilgrim.

JAMES CREEK, PA., Sept. 3rd, 1872.

ATTENTION—PLEASE.

We have a project in view which we expect to be for the interest and special benefit of every PILGRIM reader. To make our enterprise as complete as possible, we kindly ask our readers to comply with the following requests:

1st. We want the name and address of every minister in the brotherhood that has not heretofore been published.

2d. All those who have changed their post office since the beginning of the year will please give their present address. Also all those who have been elected during the present year.

3rd. We desire the time and place of holding all the District Meetings that will be held during the spring of 1873. If the time is not determined give us the name of the Congregation, county and State in which it will be held.

4th. If any of the churches have a programme of their local meeting for 1873, we will be pleased to have it. If there are none prepared, do it at once, and send it to us. It would be quite an advantage to the congregations and those who wish to visit them.

5th. A few papers of standing interest, biographies or anything sufficiently practical and of general importance to justify a standing publicity will be gladly received for our use. Also a few unobjectionable business cards and advertisements will be accepted on reasonable terms.

Now brethren these requests are made for the churches general good and we do hope and pray that some brother or sister in every church of the brotherhood will give us the desired information at once.

LET US EDUCATE.

A desire has been expressed that all interested in education among the Brethren, meet and deliberate on some method for establishing a school for educating Brethren's children; and as a necessity for such an institution has long been felt by many among us, it is now high time for us to move in the right direction.

It is improbable that a fair attendance could be obtained at any one place, but we may send delegates to represent us. Let all interested in the subject meet by districts and appoint delegates to meet at a common centre point to deliberate on the best method of organizing and establishing an institution of learning among us, and select a place for location. If we can not meet to appoint delegates before our district meetings in the Spring, let us try to meet then and without fail attend to this business. We wish to hear from the Brethren through our periodicals and by letter, in regard to this matter. Discuss it freely and get it before the minds of the Brethren.

If we intend to do anything, let us do it now. Why delay?

O. W. MILLER.

Warsaw, Ind.

That there is a growing desire and necessity for more education among the Brethren is evident to every candid and observing mind. When we say education we mean education, nothing more—nothing less, without reference whatever to any occupation of life. Education is so much abused that some of our brethren have become prejudiced against it on this account, and when it is spoken of, or the subject of schools introduced, they cannot see anything but "Educating for the ministry."

In giving our sentiments on this subject, we intend to be honest and wish to be understood, therefore we say that education is no more, nor less for the education of ministers than it is for the farmer, mechanic, physician or merchant. If a brother wishes to be a farmer, education will assist him in cultivating and fertilizing his soil, in procuring the proper implements and sowing his seed in such a time and manner as to produce the greatest results from the least possible amount of labor. Just so in any other calling, and especially so if called to the ministry. Many brethren called to this responsible position have, Jonah like, taken the ship–for Tarshish for want of this very necessary qualification. It is true that we have an honored host of brethren of limited education who have achieved mighty victories on the Lord's side, but this does not prove that those brethren with their holy zeal, might not have accomplished still more with the advantages of a good, liberal education. There are perhaps seventy-five per cent. of our ministers lament an insufficiency of education. Now, brethren, how are we to remedy this? Most certainly by educating our children, thus qualifying them to fill any honorable position or calling in life. Then, if we must educate our children, which we all admit to some extent, and as our common schools are not, in all cases, sufficient to meet the wants, the question very properly arises, where and by whom shall they be educated? With a body that clings so devotedly to Bible principles as we do, this should be no question, no matter how nocectarian the institutions of learning may be. To prefer to send our children to other schools in preference to our own, is to close our eyes to everything that is reasonable and in harmony with the spirit that so honorably characterizes the Brethren.

Now, Brethren, the issue is before us and the time for decision has arrived. Our children will be educated and it remains for us to decide whether we will send them out to sectarian schools and thus have them indoctrinated with the popular religion of the day with all its attendant follies and corruptions, or whether we will get at it and build up schools of our own where can be taught, in connection with a good education, the humble principles of the Kingdom of Jesus? We have been, to a great extent, the former, and many indulgent parents are now reaping the fruit in tears. The brethren have made an effort, and how far they have succeeded, their present patronage will show. Their beginnings may have been faulty, and undoubtedly were, but if we all had put our shoulder to the wheel, these errors could have been wiped out and a permanent basis founded.

In the above call we have no special interest, but lay it before our readers for consideration and will be glad to hear the conclusions on either side, but try and avoid extreme views. We have given our feeling briefly, fairly and squarely and give others the same liberty, hoping that by the grace of God the discordant elements on this important subject may speedily be harmonized and our whole strength and influence be cast on the side of truth and for the upbuilding of our Zion.

Brethren, when we get on this subject we scarcely know when to stop. We were just now thinking if all our dear ministering brethren had a good edueation what a bulwark of strength it might be to us with the whole truth on our side! Do not think by this that we undervalue inspiration It should be remembered that inspiration is not intended to create, but to "bring to our remembrance." Therefore we must fill our own vessels and God will tell us how to use it. Knowledge is not religion but religion is knowledge.

A STRICT SECT.

The recent annual meeting of German Baptists, in this country, commonly called "Dunkards," decided that as "instrumental music is of the world, and not of the true Church of God, members had better not engage in teaching it in public schools or elsewhere;" that "it is not advisable for brethren to engage in the banking business;" and that "a brother who suffers himself to be elected to the legislative assembly as a representative of the people, and to serve in it, cannot be retained as a member of the Church."—New York Observer.

Some of our decisions may seem unduly strict, especially when unaccompanied with the reasons on which our conclusions are based. No doubt the query has been raised, from whence did the Brethren learn that "instrumental music is of the world. That musical instruments do not drop down from heaven is very evident, neither do chairs, lounges, looking glasses and carriages. If we seek divine authority for any of them, the weight of evidence would be in favor of instruments—but this is not what we intended saying We are made sorry that all these little questions are brought up to our Annual Conference and there, placed upon the Minutes, from whence they are sent, broad cast, over the world, some of which reflect no very great honor to the Church. The time has truly come that whatsoever is done in secret shall be proclaimed from the house tops, and it becomes us, as being wise, to take note of these things lest our light be darkness.

He that gathereth in summer is a wise son; but he that sleepeth in harvest is a son that causeth shame.

GENERAL INTELLIGENCE.

SMOKING VALLEY, in Oregon, has a boiling spring at which meat and vegetables are cooked with facility.

A PETRIFIED fish, eight feet long and six feet in girth, was lately found in Kansas, and a petrified turtle was found forty feet under ground a few days ago in Iowa.

TWENTY ONE thousand immigrants principally from Germany, England and Ireland, were landed at the port of New York during the month of July.

THE Delaware peach crop this year is estimated at 1,500,000 baskets, about half as many as last year. The quality of the fruit, however, will be much finer than usual.

MR. George H. Brewster, of Boston, is said to be the possessor of a copy of the New Testament which is undoubtedly the oldest book in America. It was printed in London in 1503, eleven years after the discovery of America, and 117 years before the landing of the pilgrim fathers. The book is of quarto form, three inches thick and ten inches long, the marginal notes and comments being printed in large, coarse Roman letters, while the chapters are of Old English type. It is supposed to have been used by the puritan fathers at Plymouth.

IT is stated that careful experiments show that a piece of cotton cloth smeared with boiled linseed oil and placed in a chest filled with paper and rags, although kept in a cold room, will be charred in eight days. Cotton rags smeared with paint and thrown among shavings will also catch fire. These facts show the necessity of great care in throwing and putting away rags, particularly when covered with oil or other substances of a like nature.

SILENT endurance appeals to us from beast and bird. Prof. Sillimon, the younger, tells of his capture of a wild bird upon one of the islands of the Pacific. The forests were deep and dark, and the birds, never having learned to fear man, were so wild that they were perfectly tame. He selected a white one of lustrous plumage, and breaking its feathers, pressed his little lancet down toward its heart. The bird quivered and its soft eye looked into his, as a drop of blood stood upon its snowy breast. Not a motion, not a noise, and for the moment he turned away, overcome by his feelings. Had it screamed or fought, he would have pierced its breast without care. It was silent endurance that touched him.

THE PEACH CROP.—One of the peculiarities of this crop is that it never pays well when the yield is abundant. The perishable nature of the product necessitates a quick sale, and when the supply is large it often sells at a sacrifice. But when the crop is lighter the fruit is generally better, will bear longer transportation, and will command a better price. The present season the crop in some sections is a failure, and in all is less than an average. Hence the supply will be limited, and, as the fruit is good, the fortunate owners of full orchards will have a profitable harvest. Already we hear of many who have sold their fruit, delivered at boat or cars, for 70 to 90 cents, and the prospect promises even better prices. Owing to the uncertainty of the Baltimore and Philadelphia markets, many growers wagon their many miles to reach railroad connection, where they can ship fruit directly to New York, and unless Baltimore and Philadelphia dealers deal more liberally than in the past, they will probably find the supply much less than the demand.—Cecil Democrat.

GOOD BOOKS.

A large number of our patrons are receiving our books as noticed below, as premiums, and express themselves highly pleased with them. Others who are not agents, have enquired whether we keep them for sale, We have now made arrangements with Mr. Wells to furnish any of their publications post paid at publishers prices. Orders for books must be accompanied with the cash, and plain directions for sending them.

Conversion of St. Paul. By George Jarvis Geer, D. D. 12mo. fine edition, $1. Plain edition, 75 cents.

Footprints of Life; or, Faith and Nature Reconciled.—A Poem in three parts. The Body. The Soul. The Deity. By Philip Harvey, M. D. $1.25.

Fruit Culture for the Million. A Hand book. being a Guide to the Cultivation and Management of Fruit Trees. Descriptions of the Best Varieties, and How to Propagate them. illustrated $1.00.

Hand-book for Home Improvement: comprising "How to Write," "How to Talk," How to Behave," and "How to do Business," in one vol. 2.25.

How to Live; Saving and Wasting, or Domestic Economy. By Solon Robinson. $1.50.

Life at Home; or, The Family and its Members. Husbands, Wives, Parents, Children, Brothers, Sisters, Employers and Employed, etc. By Rev. William Aikman, D. D. A work which should be found in every family. $1.50. Extra gilt, $2.00.

Man and Woman: Considered in their Relations to each Other and to the World. By Henry C. Pedder. 12mo, Fancy cloth. Price $1.00.

Man, in Genesis and in Geology; or, the Biblical Account of Man's Creation, tested by Scientific Theories of his Origin and Antiquity. By Joseph P. Thompson, D. D., LL.D. One vol. 12mo, $1.00.

Oratory—Sacred and Secular; or, the Extemporaneous Speaker. Including Chairman's Guide for conducting Public Meetings according to the best Parliamentary forms. By Wm. Pittenger. $1.50.

The Right Word in the Right Place. A New Pocket Dictionary and Reference Book. Embracing Synonyms, Technical Terms, Abbreviations, Foreign Phrases Writing for the Press, Punctuation, Proof-Reading, and other Valuable Information. Cloth, 75cts.

The Emphatic, Diaglott; or The New Testament in Greek and English. Containing the Original Greek Text of the New Testament, with an Interlineary Word for-word English Translation. A Work for Students in Theology, and S. S. Teachers. By Benamin Wilson. Price, $4.00; extra fine binding, $5.00.

Water's Works for the Young. Comprising "Hopes and Helps for the Young of both Sexes," "Aids and Aims for Girls and Young Women," "Ways of Life; or, the Right Way and the Wrong Way," $3

Hopes and Helps for the Young of both sexes, Relating to the Formation of Character. Choice of Avocation, Health, Conversation, Cultivation of Intellect, Moral Sentiments, Social Affection Courtship and Marriage. By Rev. G. S. Weaver. Muslin, $1.50.

WANTED.

A female apprentice to the printing business. She must have a good moral character, a liberal English education and a willingness to work. A member of the church, or one that will be interested in the cause for which we are laboring, will be preferred. A good and permanent sit will be given Apply soon. Address

The Pilgrim,
James Creek,
Huntingdon Co., Pa.

Menno Simon's COMPLETE WORKS.

In English, translated from the original Dutch or Holland, giving the whole of the great Reformers writings on the subject of Baptism. Price in full sheep $4.50; by mail $5.14.

Address, JOHN F. FUNK & BRO.

New Hymn Books, English.

TURKEY MOROCCO

One copy,	post-paid, - -	$1 00
Per Dozen,	- - -	11 25

PLAIN ARABESQUE.

One Copy,	post-paid, - - -	75
Per Dozen,	" - - -	8 50

PLAIN SHEEP.

One Copy,	post-paid, - - -	75
Per Dozen,	" - - -	8 50

Ger'n & English, Plain Sheep.

One Copy	post-paid	$ 1 00
Per Dozen	- - -	11 25
Arabesque plain,	- - -	1.00
Turkey morocco,	- - -	$ 1.25.
Single German	post-paid, -	50
Per Dozen,	- - -	5 50

SALEM COLLEGE.

The Fall term of Salem College will open for the reception of any number of students from all parts on the 4th of September, 1872. Ample accommodations and thorough instruction will be given all students who connect themselves with this College. Good board can be had in good families at $2.50 to $3.00 per week or students can board themselves in clubs at $1.25 to $1.50 per week as numbers have done with the consent of the faculty. Special care will be given students who are far from home.

For Catalogues, Scholarships and full particulars address

SALEM COLLEGE,
July 22, '72. Bourbon, Ind.

Educational.

The second year of Pleasant Hill College, Warsaw, Ind., will begin Sept. 4th, 1872, in which a thoroughly practical education will be given in Academic and Collegiate studies. Brethren's children are expected to attend our weekly religious meetings. Ladies and gentlemen admitted on equal footing.

D. W. MILLER, President.
July 9–tf. Warsaw, Ind.

TRACTS.

"ANXIOUS BENCH RELIGION EXAMINIED," BY ELDER J. S. FLORY. A SYNOPSIS OF CONTEETS. An address to the reader: The peculiarities that attend this type of religion. The feelings there experienced not imaginary but real. The key that unlocks the wonderful mystery. The causes by which feelings are excited. How the momentary feelings called "Experimental religion" are brought about, and then concludes by giving that form of doctrine as taught by Jesus Christ and recorded by his faithful witnesses.

COUNTERFEIT DETECTER
or
BAPTISM—MUCH IN LITTLE.

This work is now ready for distribution, and the importance of the subject will speak for it a large demand. It is a short treatise on baptism in tract form intended for general distribution, and is set forth in such a plain and logical manner that a wayfaring man though a fool, cannot err therein. Either of the above tracts sent postpaid on the following terms: Two copies, 10 cts, 10 copies 40 cents, 25 copies 70 cents, 50 copies $1.00, 100 copies $1.50.

1870 1872

DR. FAHRNEY'S

Blood Cleanser or Panacea.

A tonic and purge, for Blood Diseases. Great reputation. Many testimonials. Many ministering brethren use and recommend it. Ask or send for the "Health Messenger." Use only the "Panacea" prepared at Chicago, Ills., and by

Dr. P. Fahrney's Brothers & Co.,
Mar. 29-pd. Waynesboro, Franklin Co., Pa.

Trine Immersion.

A discussion on Trine Immersion, by letter between Elder B. F. Moomaw and Dr J. J. Jackson, to which is annexed a Treatise on the Lord's Supper, and on the necessity, character and evidences of the new birth, also a dialogue on the doctrine of non-resistance, by Elder B. F. Moomaw. Single copy 50 cents.

HUNTINGDON & BROAD TOP RAIL ROAD

Summer Arrangement.

On an after Tuesday, June 4, 1872, Passenger trains will arrive and depart as follows:

Trains from Huntingdon South.				Trains from Bedford moving North.
MAIL. A. M.	ACCOM P. M.	STATIONS.		MAIL. P. M.	ACCOM A. M.
*le*S 20	LE6 00	Huntingdon,		AD5 25	AR9 10
8 28	6 06	Long Siding		5 17	9 03
8 45	6 19	McConnelstown		5 04	8 45
8 51	6 25	Pleasant Grove		4 58	8 39
9 05	6 37	Marklesburg		4 45	8 27
9 20	6 51	Coffee Run		4 33	8 11
9 27	6 58	Rough & Ready		4 26	8 40
9 39	7 10	Cove		4 12	7 52
9 43	7 15	Fishers Summit		4 08	7 48
10 03	7 35	Saxton		3 48	le 7 53
10 10	7 53				*ar*7 46
10 27	8 10	Riddlesburg		3 30	6 30
10 34	8 17	Hopewell		3 22	6 12
10 51	8 35	Piper's Run		3 06	6 00
11 10	8 55	Tatesville		2 48	6 56
11 22	9 08	Bloody Run		2 33	6 50
11 26	9 12	Mount Dallas		2 29	5 46
11 32	9 19	Ashcom's Mills		2 22	5 42
11 36	9 23	Lutzville		2 18	5 36
11 40	9 27	Hartley's Mills		2 14	5
11 46	9 34	Jamesons		2 07	5
*r*11 22	*ar*9 40	Bedford		LE2 00	LE5 30

JOHN M'KILLIPS, Supt

SHOUP'S RUN BRANCH.

LE10 25	LE7 40	Saxton.	AR3 40	AR7 20
10 30	7 55	Coalmont.	3 25	7 05
10 35	8 00	Crawford.	3 20	7 00
AR10 45	AR8 10	Dudley	LE3 10	LE6 50

Bro'd Top City from Dudley 2 miles by stage.

Time of Penna. R. R. Trains at Huntingdon.

EASTWARD.			WESTWARD.
Hb'g Ac.	9 24	A. M	Cin. Ex.	2 19 A. M.
Mail	3 30	P. M	Pc'f Ex.	7 45 "
Cin. Ex.	6 55	"	Mail	5 40 P. M.
Phil. Ex	11 15	"	W. Pass.	11 52 A. M.

THE PILGRIM,

Published by J. B. Brumbaugh, & Co.

Edited by H, B. & Geo. Brumbaugh.

CORRESPONDING EDITORS.

D. P. Sayler, Double Pipe Creek, Md.

Leonard Furry, New Enterprise, Pa.

The Pilgrim is a Christian Periodical, devoted to religion and moral reform. It will advocate in the spirit of love and liberty, the principles of true Christianity, labor for the promotion of peace among the people of God, for the encouragement of the saints and for the conversion of sinners, avoiding those things which tend toward disunion or sectional feelings.

TERMS.

Single copy, one year,	$1.25
Book paper, " "	1.50.
Eleven copies, [eleventh for Agt.]	$12.50.

Any number above that at the same rate,

Address.

H. B. BRUMBAUGH.

James Creek,
Huntingdon county Pa.

Berkly Pilgrim.

"REMOVE NOT THE ANCIENT LANDMARKS WHICH OUR FATHERS HAVE SET."

VOL. 3. JAMES CREEK, PENNSYLVANIA, SEPTEMBER 10, 1872. NO. 37.

POETRY.

UP AND DOING.

Up and doing, little Christian,
Up and doing while 'tis day;
Do the work your Master gives you,
Do not loiter by the way;
For we all have work before us,
You, dear child, as well as I;
Let us seek to learn our duty,
And perform it cheerfully.

Up and doing, little Christian,
Gentle be, and ever kind;
Helpful to the loving mother,
E'en her slightest wishes mind.
Let the little children love you
For your care and pleasant play;
And the feeble and the weakly,
Help them by your kindly way.

Patience, patience, little Christian.
No cross look nor angry word;
Follow Him who died to save you,
Follow Jesus Christ, our Lord.
Help the suffering and the needy,
Help the poor whom Jesus loves;
Tell the sinner of the Saviour
Who still lives to bless above.

Pray, then, pray, then, little Christian;
Never, never cease to pray;
Pray for pardon, pray for blessing,
Pray for guidance day by day.
Render thanks for all the mercies
Which our Father sends to thee;
Most of all for the dear Saviour
Who once died on Calvary.

Up and doing, little Christian,
Trust not to thyself alone,
But work out your own salvation
Through the grace of God's dear Son.
Jesus loves you, little Christian,
Turn not from his love away,
But go forth and do his bidding;
Up and doing, while 'tis dry.

SECRET PRAYER.

But when thou prayest, enter into thy closet; and when thou hast shut thy door, pray to thy father, which is in secret, and thy father which seeth in secret shall reward thee openly." Math. 6 : 6.

The Pharisees were accustomed to pray standing in the synagogue, and in the corners of the streets, that they might be seen of men. "Verily I say unto you, they have their reward." The disciples were warned against this practice, and a practice quite the reverse to it was recommended, "But when thou prayest, enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut thy door," &c. What is meant here by the figure which Christ employs? It appears to me that He uses the closet here to represent any secret place. To give the figure its application we would say, it teaches us to select a place for private devotion, secure from all intrusion, as if alone in the world and in the immediate presence of God, pour out our heart's sincere desires, making known our every want to Him who seeth in secret, and you may and will find to your heart and soul's greatest delight, that the great and blessed promise is sure,—"shall reward thee openly." Our Savior, in language most emphatic, has enjoined upon us this duty. Let us then contemplate its importance. When midnight spread its gloom over Judah, why was our Savior found a lonely wanderer in its most unfrequented wilds? The Scripture tells us it was His custom to retire to those solitudes for private, secret devotions. Is it not important that a duty should be fulfilled which is enjoined by the Savior's lips, and enforced by a Savior's example?

Secret prayer, the prayer of retirement, the communion of the soul with God, when that soul is withdrawn as far as possible from every external influence. The example of pious men in all ages of the world show the importance of secret prayer. Read the biography of any eminent Christian, and you will find that it is in secret prayer that their strength has been obtained. I will give a few examples from the Bible as having a bearing upon the subject under consideration. In the case of the patriarch Jacob, we have a most beautiful illustration not only of secret prayer, but also of the wonderful power and efficacy of a living and saving faith. "And Jacob was alone; and there wrested a man with him until the breaking of the day." Jacob having hold of him, and with superhuman strength and wisdom perceiving his majesty and power to bless him, would not let go his hold until he received his heart's desire. It is said that "he prevailed not against him," but Jacob prevailed. Gen. 32. This is figurative of the redemption purchased by Christ, through which, Paul says, "we are more than conquerors, through him that loved us.

"Shall reward thee openly." We find that Jacob was doubly rewarded, inwardly by being blessed and receiving a new and prevailing name, Israel, and outwardly, by being enabled to overcome all obstacles and meeting his enemy, Esau, peaceably. Daniel retired to his chamber three times a day for prayer, with the window open looking towards Jerusalem, and he was amply rewarded openly. We have also the case of Hannah, "Now Hannah, she spake in her heart; only her lips moved, but her voice was not heard," but the Lord heard and answered her prayer, in giving her Samuel, the good and obedient prophet. "Peter went up upon the housetop, a retired place, to pray, about the sixth hour." He went there to commune with God, not as did the Pharisees, "to be heard and seen of men," and while there "he fell into a trance, and saw heaven opened," and it was revealed to Peter "openly" "that God is no respector of persons; but in every nation he that feareth him and worketh righteousness is acceptable with him." Secret prayer, the most abundantly blessed of all, is that which our Savior enjoins upon every believer, and if more generally practiced we would enjoy more of that peace of which the world knows nothing. That calm, serene, holy quietude and complacency of spirit which is so necessa- for the perfection of the saints. We would have more brotherly love; more love for the benighted souls of the impenitent; less affection for the treasures of the world which rust doth corrupt and thieves break through and steal. We would have little disposition to speak evil of one another, and talk loosely and disrespectfully of each other; we would have more desire for spiritual conversation. It would be very important to devote stated times to secret prayer. We would not say how often, that must be decided by the wants and circumstances of each one. We cannot pray too often if we pray right. The converted heart deplores its want of spirituality; it longs for a nearer approach to the divine virtues and graces of the heavenly Parent, which can only be secured by constant application to the inexhaustible fountain, and that application made in secret. While family, social and public prayer is proper, and has the promise that "where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them," yet there may not be that degree of individual assurance and value that belongs to secret prayer. In public devotion there may be dangerous temptations awaiting us, such as to be heard and applauded by men. &c. In private we are alone with God, and a feeling of our individual responsibility to Him, and of our great unworthiness and imperfection, takes possession of us, which is so necessary to make our intercourse profitable to us. These exercises are appropriate anywhere that secludes us from observation, while we are commanded to "watch and pray lest ye enter into temptation;" "watch and pray, for ye know not in what hour the bridegroom cometh;" "pray everywhere lifting up holy hands without wrath or doubting;" ask, cease not to ask and it shall be given you, ask anything in the name of Jesus, and if it is God's will you will get it. God is never weary of gratifying His dear Son and showing the greatness of His love to Him, and till He is weary of Him and ceases to love Him, He shall never be weary of loving, hearing, and heaping favors on them that ask, however unworthy. Hear what the unjust Judge saith, "I will grant the request of this woman lest by her continual coming she weary me." Our merciful Father is not wearied with our pleadings. Instead of weariness, He entreats us to ask Him for all things that we need, and He is ready and willing for Jesus' sake to accept our petitions.

D. NEGLEY.

"Show me the man you honor: I know by that symptom, better than by any other, what kind of a man you yourself are. For you show me there what your ideal of manhood is; what kind of a man you long inexpressibly to be.—Carlyle.

DO YOU OBSERVE THE LORD'S DAY?

The following was sent us for publication by I. J. Blickenstaff who thinks it contains some good ideas. After reading it we came to the same conclusion and therefore give it to our readers with the hope that it may accomplish some good in calling the attention of our many readers to the necessity of remembering the Sabbath day to keep it holy.—Eds.

When Christians were few in number, and scattered abroad in heathen countries, there was one mark by which they were known. It was this: they kept the Lord's day—the first day of the week, according to Jewish reckoning—in a religious manner. On that day the first Christians met together to worship God, and to be instructed in the knowledge of the gospel. Hence we are informed by an historian who lived fifteen hundred years ago, (Eusebius,) that it was usual, if any were in doubt of a man's religion, to put this question to him, "Do you observe the Lord's day?" And the answer was often most decided—"I am a Christian; I cannot neglect it." This question was enough to test the character of a man, and to show whether he was a believer or an idolater.

And the same thing is a sure sign now. If a man truly bears the Christian name, he keeps the Lord's day. He feels it to be not only his duty to God, but to himself and his family. He cannot slight it, or do without it. He must have rest from labor. It is his birthright as a man; it is his privilege as a Christian. He is willing to work for six days in the week, but he requires one day to refresh his body, and attend to the interests of his soul. All men, however, do not feel thus. It is a lamentable fact that thousands do not value the boon of a day of rest; they either neglect or pervert it. Will you, reader, for a few minutes consider its claims?

God, who has a right to regulate the use and employment of our time, has commanded one day out of every seven to be set apart from worldly labor. He only gave us six working days in a week; no man has a claim to more. All, therefore, may labor during six days, because God has so ordered; and all have a right to rest one day in seven, because it is their duty to obey Him. He made this appointment in wisdom and love; for he never orders anything without a good reason, and a kind purpose to be attained by it. The appointment and sanctifying of one day in seven as a day of holy rest, was made at the creation, and was afterward repeated to the Jews. It belongs to all times, places and persons; for "the Sabbath was made for man." If it were given to him when he was innocent, and when labor was not a burden, how much more necessary is it now that he is weak and wicked, and earns his "bread by the sweat of his brow?" This season of rest is called, under the gospel, THE LORD'S DAY; not only because it is the portion of time which God calls his own, to be employed in his service, and for his glory; but, more particularly, because on this day our Lord and Savior rose from the dead. It is sometimes called the Sabbath, which means "rest," as it is the season to seek rest from earthly labor and care, both for the body and the mind.

But the claims of the Lord's day, though founded on revelation, or what the Bible teaches with authority, are also in full agreement with our nature, or what we feel we want. We need rest for the BODY. As sleep is necessary every day of life, so the rest of the Lord's day is needful every week. It is found by experience, as a general result, that where there is no such rest as the weekly Sabbath, the health and strength of a man will decline, and life will sooner come to an end. "Men," says a physician, "who labor but six days in a week, will be more healthy, and live longer, than those who labor seven; and they will do more work, and do it in a better manner."

"The Sabbath," says another physician, "holds the same relation to the week as night does to the day. It is mercifully interposed as a break to labor; a day when the cares and anxieties of life, so far as they relate to the mind and the body, should be laid aside, that man may recruit his strength, and renew his exhausted powers. Unnecessary labor on the Sabbath is a physical sin—a transgression of a physical law, to which a penalty is attached that cannot be evaded. Whoever tramples on the Sabbath, making it a day of toil instead of a day of rest, is living too fast, and will sooner come to the end of his life."—Dr. Alden.

There are many, however, who admit the necessity of rest from business, but who give the time thus gained to pleasure-seeking. They say that it is the only day when the working-man can breathe the fresh air, or enjoy a trip by water or land, to see the beauties of creation and admire the works of art. Now, it may be right and desirable that all should have some time for these purposes; but it must not be Sabbath time. We must not ourselves break a plain command, or make others break it, under the plea that it is to secure recreation or health. These must be sought at other times. But there are higher interests than those of the body: the noblest part of man is his SOUL, and for its good especially the Sabbath has been appointed. Six days in the week we are in the midst of the cares and duties of the present life, and are liable to forget that we are to live forever in another world. How needful is it then, that at certain times we should dismiss from our minds the factory, the fields, and even domestic affairs, that we may consider what we are, where we are, and whither we are going! Yet more, that which gives to the day of rest its highest value, is its connection with the gospel. Then we are called to pause in our worldly toil, that we may hear that proclamation of mercy, "God so loved the world, that he gave his only-begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have everlasting life." In the quiet and rest of this holy day we may the better listen to the voice of a Father saying to his prodigal children, "Come now, and let us reason together: though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool." Then, too, a Savior declares his love in dying for our sins on the cross, while he invites us in those heart-cheering words: "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

Consider, if you have lived twenty years in the world, more than a thousand Sabbaths have been spent. If forty years, more than two thousand. If sixty, more than three thousand, or nearly nine years of life. Consider, too, these days of rest and spiritual profit are rapidly coming to a close. Your last will soon be gone; and what then? If you have improved them by a sincere worship of God and belief of the truth as it is in Jesus, you will be saved; if you have neglected the blessings of the Sabbath and of salvation, you will be lost! In this solemn view of the subject, you may be willing to attend to a few plain and practical hints on

THE PROPER WAY TO SPEND THE SABBATH.

1. Prepare for it. Make all your purchases and marketings as early on Saturday as possible. Arrange all domestic duties, so that when the day of rest dawns there may be no hurry or confusion in your house.

2. Enter on the day under a sense of the value of Sabbath hours, and with a desire to improve them. Let the reading of the Holy Bible and prayer engage your earliest attention.

3. Refrain from all business. If you are a shopkeeper, let it be well understood among your customers that you do not, under any pretense, serve on a Sunday. If a master, put no temptation before your men to work on that day; rather in every way discourage and oppose it.

4. Refuse all parties of pleasure, and excursions by rail, horse, or steamboat; find your truest pleasure in serving the Lord. There are other seasons when healthful recreation may be lawfully and rightly enjoyed.

5. Attend public worship with your family. It is written, "Ye shall keep my Sabbath and reverence my sanctuary." Join in the prayers devoutly, in the praises gratefully, and listen to the preaching of the gospel with self-application.

6. Be careful to go to a place of worship where the truth of God, as revealed in his word, is faithfully preached. Through his gracious providence there are few places in our highly favored country where this cannot be attained.

7. If a parent, keep your children out of the streets; send them to Sunday school, or hear them at home read a chapter in the Bible. If they are grown up, use all your influence to lead them to honor this day, and go with you to the house of God.

8. Avoid the newspaper entirely on the Lord's day. Politics, police-office reports, and worldly news and conversation in general, do not agree with thoughts and feelings suited to the day.

9. Seek the spiritual good of others. The Sabbath rest is not in idleness. If you have the opportunity, let some portion of the day be employed in visiting the sick, relieving the distressed, teaching the young, or in other works of Christian love.

For the Pilgrim.

THE GOODNESS OF GOD.

We cannot look in any direction where the Creator's love does not smile around us. In Him we live, move and have our being, and all that we possess flows entirely from the exhaustless source of His bounty.

From the first moment of our existence, His guardian arm surrounded us, and at this present moment, we are the objects of His providential care. Justly is the earth said to be full of the goodness of the Lord.

It is God's air we breathe and God's sun that enlightens us. The grateful vicissitudes of day and night, the revolutions of the seasons, marked by the regular return of summer and winter, seed time and harvest, are all appointed by His unerring wisdom. It is His pencil which paints the flower, and His fragrance which it exhales. Wherever there is life, there is some degree of happiness. There are enjoyments suited to the different powers of feeling, and earth, and air and water are, with magnificent liberality, made to teem with life.

Let these striking displays of creating goodness call forth, on our part, responsive love, gratitude and veneration. One who has raised us up to behold the light of day and to enjoy all the comforts which this world presents. Let our heart send forth a perpetual hymn of praise, evening and morning. Let us celebrate Him who maketh the morning and evening to rejoice over our heads, who openeth His hand and satisfieth the desire of every living thing.

How graciously has our Creator, through His goodness, manifested Himself to us through a crucified Redeemer? How gracious indeed the care with which He has provided a remedy for our spiritual wants and an answer for those longings and fears which look beyond our present state of existence. Cannot we obey Him in all His calls? What you do, do in the fear of the Lord. His blessings change not with the rolling years. When the believer thinks of them, his heart becomes heavy, it overflows with deep emotion. Call upon the Lord then, He has been merciful with you.

Sinners, He has been waiting to the last moment. "How often would I have gathered you even as a hen gathers her chickens under her wings, but ye would not." Now perhaps He sees fit to cut you down by the cold monster death. Come unto Him before it is forever too late.

D. G. LINT.

Somerset, Pa.

A SWEETLY SOLEMN THOUGHT.

These beautiful lines have been forcibly presented to my mind. In them there is solemnity that should cause the wanderings of the mind to be concentrated to each day of our lives, as the poet would have us to understand.

"A sweetly solemn thought
Comes to me o'er and o'er,
To-day I'm nearer to my home
Than e'er I've been before."

O may these lines be ever present in the minds of us who are traveling home to God, in the way the fathers trod. The thought comes to us, to-day we are nearer to our home than e'er we've been before. A truthful saying indeed, and shall we have another? To-day is ours but to-morrow is not.

Then dear brethren and sisters, let us at all times be on the watch lest at any time we should enter into temptation. A solemn thought that by to-morrow we may be called home to give an account of the deeds done in the body. We cannot live too close to God, as each day we are one day nearer to our home, so we should make that much of an advance in the good work and cause of Christ. We should feel that each day brings us one day nearer to our God, that when the last day on earth comes, we can go with Him to our eternal rest at the right hand of God, and be forever at home with the bright angels around the dazzling throne of God.

A sorrowful solemn thought, one that makes my very heart pain to think of you, poor sinner, who are at variance with God. He is sure to conquer, a battle ne'er has lost. Have you ever thought that to-day you are one day nearer to your home? What do you call your home? There is a home for you as well as for the saint. Do you mean to stay on this earth or go to the place, a home prepared for the devil and his angels, that is, the home prepared for those who are at variance with God.

O sinner think of to-day as being your last. Evidently one day will be the last, and it the Lord only knows. Then inculcate a feeling with the poet,

"Feel as if now my feet
Were slipping o'er the brink,
For I may now be nearer,
Much nearer than I think."

A. H. GOOD.

For the Pilgrim.

THE KINGDOM OF PEACE.

It is recorded in the Scriptures that when our Savior was about to depart from a village of the Samaritans that would not receive Him, two of the disciples asked their Lord, if they should command fire to come down from Heaven and consume them as Elias did, and He turned and rebuked them and said: "Ye know not what manner of spirit ye are of, for the Son of man is not come to destroy lives but to save them."

How plainly does it here appear that the followers of the Lord Jesus Christ, under the gospel dispensation, are not allowed to do many things which were done by the most holy and upright under the Old Testament dispensation. They were now to be translated into a new and more spiritual kingdom than they had hitherto been acquainted with. No revenge, no resentment nor violence was to be employed in support of this kingdom, but it was to be a kingdom of peace and righteousness, where the followers of the Prince of Peace beat their swords into plough shares and their spears into pruning hooks and learn war no more. A kingdom wherein the followers of the meek and lowly Jesus are to be possessed of the same spirit with their Lord and Master and walk as He also walked. Such a religion gives no sanction to war and bloodshed as most of the pretended guides and teachers in christendom have induced the people to believe, which circumstance, if there was nothing else, sufficiently proves that the ministers of antichrist are now numerous in the world.

The design of the gospel was not only to put an end to wars, but it was also intended to subdue the inordinate passions of men, so that there should be nothing to hurt or destroy in all the Holy Mount. To attain to this condition, self must be denied and the cross be taken up. A religion without self-denial is like the religion of too many at this time, is a religion of man's invention, and not that Divine religion preached by Jesus Christ, which teaches men that denying ungodliness and worldly lust, they should live soberly, righteously and godly in this present world. But the greater part of the ministers of this day, instead of inculcating this doctrine of self-denial and holy living, suffer their hearers to indulge in unholy and worldly desires, countenance them in all their pride, extravagance and folly of conduct, dress and equipage, and require no other self-denial or mortification of spirit, no other mark of their being transformed in their affections from the present evil world or of being a branch of the true vine Christ Jesus, than merely a conformity to the outward rites of ceremonial worship, and such is the delusive security of many, and such the darkness in which they are enveloped, that all reproof is lost upon them, and hints upon reform only excite ill will, or are treated with disdain.

A PILGRIM.

REST FOR THE WEARY.

"God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes: and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain."

Blessed assurance: "God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes." Oh, ye whose cheek are bathed with the fountains of the heart, whose eyes are heavy with much weeping, look up through your tears; hear the sweet promise coming to your ears from the mouth of His angel, all your tears are to be wiped away, and by His hand.

When our Saviour had endured temptation and sorrow, when almost sinking beneath the weight of His burden, angels came and ministered unto Him. But God Himself shall wipe away all tears from thine eyes. Oh! saddened, earth-weary mortal, a little while and tears shall be unknown to thee.

Are you weeping because a loved one has been taken from your embrace? Has death snatched a cherished treasure from your heart, leaving it lacerated and bleeding—every fibre quivering with an agony of grief? Oh! be comforted, for "there shall be no more death." And though the grim spectre now stands between you and the idol of your earthly affections, he shall not be admitted to that tranquil abode; he has only power to wound us while we dwell within the boundaries of his domain. When you have passed beyond, all tears shall be wiped away from your eyes, and death shall no longer stand between you and the dear objects of your love.

Weary sufferer tossing restlessly upon thy couch of pain and languishing, counting the moments as they drag slowly by, looking forward eagerly to each to-morrow, and when it has come, finding yourself disappointed because it brings no relief—there is for you a balm of consolation. Listen! "neither shall there be any more pain." How you have thought, have wondered, and speculated upon the imagined moment, when you might be free from the pain which haunts even your sleeping hours; how you have tried to force memory to recall the time when you did not know this misery; you find little in looking back; if you look forward unto to morrow, or next week, or next month, you can see no prospect of relief. But oh! it has been decreed by one who is able to accomplish all things, that there is a place where pain is forever unknown! Ah, then, take courage, poor suffering one; every pang shortens the time of your suffering, soon, ah! how soon you little know, you will be free from all pain, your tears of sorrow shall have been all wiped away, and you shall be rejoicing with thousands who have, like you, been freed from pain, sorrow and tears.

F. S. C.

FAMILY GOVERNMENT.

The great difficulty in family government arises from the fact that few parents ever learn to govern themselves. It was said of old that "he who ruleth his own spirit is greater than he who taketh a city." The fact is, that the ruling of his own spirit is about the last accomplishment ever arrived at by mortal man; and the remark is equally true to mortal women. Hence, the government of children is poor enough, as a general thing. In fact, it is, in the many cases, no government at all, but simply the venting of some father's or mother's, or teacher's spite upon a child that has done something to stir up the evil passions of one's nature. Some say that the more they punish their children, the worse they seem to grow. That may very well be, if parents punish them because they are annoyed or angered at something they have done. A parent should never punish a child when he is the least bit "put out" with it, or for any reason whatever except the highest good of the child itself.

WORKING CHEAP.—"What does satan pay you for swearing?" asked one gentleman of another. "He don't pay me anything," was the reply. "Well, you work cheap, to lay aside the character of a gentleman; to inflict so much pain on your friends and civil people to suffer; and lastly to risking your own precious soul—and all for nothing. You certainly do work cheap—very cheap, indeed."

BEAUTIFUL REMARK.—A pious cottager residing in the midst of a long and dreary heath was asked by a visitor, "Are you not sometimes afraid in your lonely situation, especially in the winter?" He replied, "O, no! for Faith shuts the door at night and Mercy opens it in the morning."

FAMILY WORSHIP.

As the fruit of the harvest is connected with the sowing of the husbandman; or, more aptly, as the heritage of the child is connected with the wisdom and industry of the parent, so are the immortal destinies of the children connected with family worship. If you train up a child in the way he should go, the Word of God is pledged that when he is old he will not depart from it. And what kind of home training is more in keeping with the way of God's commands, and which tells more effectually upon the present and future interests of the child than when the father, the mother or elder brother, like the patriarchal priest of old, ministers at the home altar? When he opens the Bible, and lets God speak words of admonition for daily duties and consolation for life's troubles, or words of caution against worldly or hellish snares, and of encouragement to a life of holiness; when the family priest offers prayer, and thus speaks to God for himself and his; raises them in the arms of faith to the throne of grace, with all their sins and temptations and cares, that they may have daily pardon, deliverance and salvation, and, if possible, with united heart and voice, praise the Lord for family mercies in the use of psalms and hymns and spiritual songs. This gives cheerfulness and encouragement to family worship—too often a dull heavy task for the child. It will prepare him all the better for the duties of the day, and there is no means so effectual to mitigate the cares and sorrows accumulated during the day as the evening offering of praise; it tends to recall our mercies, which always outnumber our afflictions.

Yes, this most important part of family training cannot be dispensed with. When the child is to be fitted for its immortal destinies, its spiritual heritage is linked to the home altar. He may go astray as he leaves the parental fireside, and as he is driven to and fro by temptation's storms, but the remembrance of that altar, the forms of father and mother and loving sisters all supplicating God in his behalf, and the remembrance of its godly lessons, he bears within the tempest tossed soul, will afford him an anchorage, and will enable him sometime to reach the haven of salvation. When he is old, he will not depart from the way of righteousness in which he there was trained. This has been the actual experience of many a prodigal son.

On the other hand, how many have been swallowed by the billows of temptation and worldliness, or wrecked upon the shoals of infidelity for want of this heaven-derived anchorage? You may train the child's mind to the extent of its capacity, and leave it a rich intellectual heritage, and you may train it for the race of worldly gain, and besides, endow it with inexhaustible riches; but left without this religious heritage, and you have defrauded that child! It is true, you have done your best for it as one that is to have no destiny for this world alone, but for its immortal, its higher destiny, you have made no provision, and your intelligent, affluent son or daughter, so far as the parent's training goes, may sink a spiritual bankrupt into the prison house of irredeemable despair! "Pour out Thy fury upon the families that call not on Thy name!" No wonder this retribution, when so much evil to God and mankind must result from a neglect of the duty.

Where there is no family worship, soon there will be no family religion; instead of the fire of the altar being kept burning from generation to generation, that fire may die out in the generation that now is, and "Ichabod" will be written upon that altar—the glory of God is departed. The sons and daughters, going forth to form new families, will, most likely neglect the altar, and possibly deny the God of their fathers, and family apostacy be the sad consequences. Thus fountains will be opened everywhere, which, instead of sending forth streams to make glad the city of our God, will deluge the land with spiritual corruption, which is a stench in the nostrils of a holy God, and to man they prove most fatal. Why the frequent dissolution of the conjugal ties; the alarming domestic infidelity; the increase of crime; the rapid social disintegration; our nation filling with elements which, like the rumbling within the volcano, threaten to overwhelm us with destruction? I will not say that the source of all this can be traced to the altarless households of the generations now ending; but when I remember the history of Israel, and of other and more recent nations, I am authorized in saying that the social corruptions of the times would be far less, had family religion abounded in this generation as it did abound in the former generation. "Pour out Thy fury upon" whom? The full record of inspiration is, "Upon the heathen that know Thee not, and upon the families that call not upon thy name." Here God himself places side by side the neglecters of this duty and the heathen who know not God! Oh, if God did pour out his wrath upon Nebuchadnezzar and upon all the heathen, what will be the doom of those families, in this age of Christian light and priviliges, who call not on the Lord? Surely it will be more tolerable for Sodom and Gomorrah in the day of judgment than for such families! Therefore, let the altar burn daily in every family, and like Joshua, let every father say, "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."

Like some lightning rod, which averts the stroke of terrible clouds from your dwelling, so the ascending prayer and praise of the altar will save you and yours from the wrath of God. It will strengthen the bond of family affection; it will aid in family government, and it will afford a constant foretaste of heaven—for heaven is a family and its service holy communion and praise.—Christian Observer.

A Poor Rich Man.

Daniel Dancer was a noted old miser. He did not value money for its worth, but simply as something to hoard up and feast his eyes upon. Though possessing an income of many thousands of pounds a year, he lived in the most wretched manner.

He wandered about every morning over the common in search of any old scraps he could possibly turn to account,—bits of old iron, paper, locks of wool from the hedges, old bones (which he took home, and first carefully picked, then gave to his dog.) He delighted in mouldy crusts, and fragments from the table, but had such a horror of "extravagance," that he could hardly be induced to eat a good joint of meat, even when it was given to him. Though owning very fine timber-land, he would pick up his fuel, bit by bit, from under his neighbors' hedges, and even when he had gathered a great store of it, would lie in bed all a winter's day to save it. He had chests full of good clothing in his house, but would never wear it. He kept his rags about him by old sacking, bound with rojes of hay. With these he covered his stockings in cold weather, giving him a most distressed appearance. He patched his old shoes so often, that they at last came to be almost shapeless bundles of leather on his feet.

His old house was so wretched, that no carpenter would dare set about trying to repair it after his death. A large tree had actually grown up inside, and pushed its top through the roof. It was found, however, to be very rich within. Large bowls of guineas were found hid about in various places, sometimes buried in the kitchen, or filled into chinks about the chimney; while rolls of bank notes were stuffed into the covers of old chair-backs. In the stable, however, were found the richest stores, a large sum of money being hidden there among heaps of rubbish. Very likely there were other valuables which never came to light.

All his life this poor rich man was heaping up his hoards, only to go away at last and leave his idols. He had no treasure laid up in Heaven. For seventy-six years he has been in eternity; and, oh, how unavailing his regrets over his wasted life! How worthless his bowls of guineas look to him now! How much more blessed the lot of those who send their treasure on before them in the shape of good works and alms-deeds!

Never begin to feel this passion of avarice; it is like nursing a viper in your bosom. Never save your pennies just because they are money, but because they will buy something useful. —Early Days.

Energy.

Give me the man of energy! The man who stirs about and keeps things alive about him. The man who is at his post by time in the morning prepared for business, and willing to toil and meet the difficulties that arise in his path during the day. He who is energetic is always found enterprising, and if he cannot find one thing to do he can another; he does not wait Micawber-like, for something to turn up, but creates something, and whatever may be his defects or shortcomings in other respects, energy and enterprise will cover them all, and he will be respected and appreciated by the community in which he lives.

On the other hand take away the indolent, dilatory, trifling man, who spends the best part of the day in bed, and then repair to his business not fully aroused, spends part of his day perusing the papers and loitering around, then starts out to transact business, and returns in an hour exhausted. Procrastination is his bane and a continual putting off, which, when the day closes, ends in nothing accomplished. Idleness is the root of all evil, and has done more to ruin the human family than any other vice.

THE TRUE GREEN OLD AGE.—We know not a more beautiful spectacle in the world than an old man who has gone with honor through all its storms and conquests, and who retains to the last this freshness of feeling that adorned youth. This is the true green old age; this makes a southern winter of declining years, in which the sunlight warms, though the hearts have gone. Such are ever welcome to the young—and sympathy unites, while wisdom guides. There is this distinction between respect and veneration; the latter has always in it something of love.

A CHEERFUL VIEW OF THINGS.—"How dismal you look!" said a Bucket to his companion, as they were going to the well.

"Ah!" replied the other. "I was reflecting on the uselessness of our being filled: for, let us go away ever so full, we always come back empty."

"Dear me! How strange to look at it in that way," said the other Bucket. "Now I enjoy the thought that, however empty we come, we always go away full. Only look at it in that light, and you'll be as cheerful as I am."

Youth's Department.

HE CALLETH THEE

Go and tell Jesus all thy sin,
Try not to hide thy shame within;
Go and tell Jesus all thy fears,
Trust thou his love—He knows thy tears!

Go and tell Jesus thou art lost;
Think of the price thy ransom cost,
Think of his cross, think of his prayer,
Hear his kind voice—do not despair.

Go and tell Jesus how thy heart
Shrinks from his glance, which like a dart
Pierces its depths, fills thee with fear;
Go and tell Jesus, He will hear!

Li-ten! He calls—He calls for thee:
"Weeping soul, come nearer to me;"
Rise to thy feet, lift up thy head,
See the dear Lord, whose look you dread.

How canst thou doubt thy waiting Lord?
Where is thy faith in Jesus' word?
O, cease to wound that loving breast,
Where all thy hopes of life must rest!

—The Christian Banner.

A SAD PICTURE.

To-day I saw a quite young man, just passing from his boyhood years, drunk, with a bottle of whiskey in his pocket. To me it was a sad picture indeed, to see a young man entering upon an active life with such a mark, and with such prospects for a life of misery and wretchedness here, and worse in eternity. I say prospects, for let me tell you dear children and youth who read the PILGRIM, he that yields to the influence of strong drink so far as to drink at the bar, and then put the poison in his pocket for the purpose of feeding his morbid appetite regardless of consequences, is on the road to ruin and almost beyond reach; his prospects seem to me gloomy indeed, unless by some mighty power he can break the iron chain that is drawing tighter and tighter around him. I imagine as I look back upon his young life, I see a bright boy upon whom a dear mother lavished her love and care, and a father looked upon with a hopeful heart, but in a way I know not, the wily tempter found a way to the appetite of that boy. It may have been by the mother, with her own hand handing to her darling boy a brandy peach, or by the father giving the sugar in the bottom of the toddy glass, or by a friend putting the poison cup to his lips and then to the lips of this boy; but let that be as it may, one thing is certain by some means and somewhere he took the first drink. And that first drink has done a bad work, for it is certain had he never taken the first drink he never would have taken the second, and he would to-day have been a sober man, but alas! he now, I fear, is following along in the wake of a numerous throng that is treading the broad and sure road that leads to ruin—ruin of character, ruin of intellect, ruin of self-respect, ruin of body and ruin of SOUL. In the name of all that is good and lovely let me entreat you dear reader, to beware of the "FIRST DRINK." Never touch the demon and you are safe and secure from his iron grasp. No other course is safe; the occasional dram-drinker is not sure he will not fill a drunkard's grave, and go to a drunkard's hell!

I knew a man who in his youth felt the drawings of that "spiritual" demon alcohol, and by a determined effort broke the spell and was made free, and for twenty years has stood aloof from the monster curse. If there is one that read these lines who feels they are not free from the drawings of this "strong man" we would warn you to draw back before it is too late! Make one determined effort to place your feet on tetotalism ground, be a man, and stand there and you are safe, though intemperate legions howl, reproach and blaspheme, you are safe,—though the fires of a drunken world seathe around you, you are safe, and though devils lure thousands to the "pit" of blackness and darkness you are safe from that evil. Let your motto be "Touch not, taste not, handle not" the unclean thing. May God help all our dear young readers to keep themselves "unspotted" from this monster giant who blackens character and soul.

J. S. FLORY.

Joe's Enemy.

"It's my dreadful temper. I try to cure it. I think I have, and then it breaks out worse than ever. O, mother! what shall I do? what shall I do?" cried poor Joe in despair.

"Watch and pray, dear: never get tired of trying; and never think it is impossible to conquer your faults," said Mrs. March, drawing the rough head to her shoulder and kissing the wet cheek so tenderly that Joe cried harder than ever.

"You don't know, you can't guess how bad it is! It seems as if I could do anything when I'm in a passion; I get so savage I could hurt any one and enjoy it. I'm afraid I shall do something dreadful some time, and spoil my life, and make everybody hate me. O, mother, help me, do help me!"

"I will, my child, I will. Don't cry so bitterly, but remember this day and resolve with all your soul that you will never know another like it. Joe, dear, we all have our temptations, some far greater than others, and it often takes us all our lives to conquer them. You think your temper is the worst in the world; but mine used to be just like it."

"Yours, mother? Why, you are never angry," and for a moment, Joe forgot remorse in surprise.

"I've been trying to for forty years, and have only succeeded in controlling it. I am angry nearly every day of my life, Joe; but I have learned not to show it; and I still hope to learn not to feel it though it may take me another forty years to do so."

The patience and the humility of the face she loved so well was a better lesson to Joe than the wisest lecture the sharpest reproof. She felt comforted at once by the sympathy and confidence given her—the knowledge that her mother had a fault like hers, and strengthened her resolution to cure it; though forty years seemed rather a long time to watch and pray, to a girl of fifteen.

"My child, the troubles and temptations of your life are beginning, and may be many; but you can overcome and outlive them all, if you learn to feel the strength and tenderness of your Heavenly Father as you do that of your earthly one. The more you love and trust him, the nearer you will feel to him, and the less you will depend on human power and wisdom. His love and care can never be taken from you, but may become the source of lifelong peace, happiness, and strength. Believe this heartily, and go to God with all your little cares and hopes and sins and sorrows, as freely and confidently as you come to your mother."—From "Little Women."

CORRESPONDENCE

A Reporter is wanted from every Church in the brotherhood to send us Church news, Obituaries, Announcements or anything that will be of general interest. To insure insertion, the writers name must accompany each communication. Our invitation is not personal but general—please respond to our call.

A LARGER PAPER WANTED.

Dear Brother:—We are pleased to learn that you manifest a willingness to enlarge your excellent paper, if the brethren think it proper to support you in the extra expense which such a change will necessarily incur; and you also manifest a desire to know the minds of the subscribers respecting the same. This grants us the liberty of expressing our views, which you may take for what they are worth. We had thought of thus writing you respecting this matter, but have deferred it until the present, and we hope you will not consider us meddling in your business, when we express ourselves at some length, and with a degree of precision in giving you our views.

We are of the opinion that your paper is entirely too small to contain sufficient matter, in quantity and variety to meet the wants of the Brotherhood in general. It is good, what there is of it, but then it is entirely too small, and it is therefore necessary that other papers be taken to procure a regular supply of useful reading matter.

The most of your readers desire some of our, as well as other national affairs; the general and leading movements in the world with some account of scientific discoveries, explorations, historical researches and the news in general, which to procure, they are driven to the necessity of taking papers the contents of which are scarcely fit for the mature minds, let alone children. In addition to this we want the general religious news of the Brotherhood, in short, the readers want to know just what is going on among the Brethren. Hence, we will suggest a few items agreeable with our understanding of the wants of the Brotherhood.

1 The PILGRIM ought to be at least as large as the "American Christian Review," and good paper.

2 The body of the type should be the same as it is.

3 One entire page should be printed in Pica, for the benefit of the aged readers. This would afford them much pleasure.

4 One entire page should be printed in Great primer, for the benefit of children. Of all the styles of type there is none that pleases children so well as this. They even think more of it than pictures. So much is it admired by them that some Sunday School papers are appearing in this type. Such type as this would, in the estimation of many, increase the value of your paper very much, and I am one of them.

5 Never publish an article unless it contains a heading which appropriately expresses the nature of the subject of which the article treats. This important matter is too much neglected by many editors.

6 Never place more than one or two long articles on the same page. Long articles, like long sermons, ought to be few and far between.

7 Spare no pains to procure a number of good contributors to your paper, even if at some cost. Writing, like everything else, is a business and requires time, and is always somewhat expensive to the writer. Good writers cannot always prepare matter for the press, just when they have nothing else to do, nor is it proper that they should devote too much time and money to the preparation of public matter, for which they receive not even so much as the expenses, when their time and money are otherwise lawfully required to support their families. Those who devote their time to writing, prepare matter with little difficulty, while others regard it as a laborious task.

8 Let the price of such a paper be what you may think proper; we should think about $2 00

9 Publish quite a lot of them, and let your agents be actively engaged in distributing them everywhere and procuring subscribers.

Now brother Brumbaugh, we are not running your paper, and of course should not dictate too freely, but at the same time you wish to know the wants of your readers, hence you have before you a piece of our mind, and if it will not assist you any, it certainly can do you no harm.

We are highly pleased with your paper, and shall labor to send you all the subscribers for the coming Vol. that we can possibly secure.

A READER OF THE PILGRIM.

NOTES OF TRAVEL.

On the 29th of June in company with Bro. C. Masters we set out on a trip to labor for the Lord and for the welfare of souls. At 10 a. m., had meeting at Bro. John Martins, at 4 p. m. at Hutchison's School House. All night at friend M. Hutchisons, next day went to Lick Creek Meeting-house, Summers co. At this place our appointment and that of a Methodist circuit rider were at the same hour, we gave way to him and heard a man preach that we are saved by faith alone, notwithstanding James says, "By works a man is justified, and not by faith only!" Preaching in the afternoon to a large and attentive congregation. All night with friend S. Martin.

Next day went to school-house near Meadow Bluff. Meeting in the afternooo. All night with brother I. Richardson. Two meetings next day at the same place, dined at brother Hibb's; all night at brother John Forren's. Much interest was manifested at the meetings.

Next day, July 3rd, meeting at the Blue Sulphur Springs. Notwithstanding it was in the height of harvest, there was a large turn out. Two added to the church by baptism. I immediately set out to attend an appointment for afternoon at Brown's school-house. Brother Masters had gone on to same point in the morning to attend a meeting at 11 o'clock. He had a crowded house and good attention. Owing to having missed the road, I was behind time, but found a crowded house waiting patiently, and who listened attentively to the word preached. All night with friend Brown.

July 4th. Meeting at Dickenson meeting-house. Home with sister Masters. Owing to my severe labors, I was quite fatigued and unwell; so I tarried with our dear sisters and the kind family until next day, when we returned to our home and found all well. Thanks to God for his goodness, and thanks to all the dear brethren, sisters and friends for their kindness.

July 27th. Took the train at the Falls of Kanawha, and went to Charleston, the capital of our State. Took dinner and supper with sister M. and Allen Haws. Meeting at night in the city, home with brother I. Starkey, who, next morning, took me in his conveyance to Two mile school house. Good turn-out and good attention. Back again to Bro. Starkey's. Meeting in the city at 4 p. m. Home with friend Fitzgerald. At night went to hear a United Brethren preacher hold forth at the court-house. All night with friend Allen Haws.

Next day brother Starkey took me to Rose Valley school-house. Meeting a. m. Home with brother Perry, who took me at night to a school-house, several miles farther down the river. Good congregation and attention. Home with friend C. D. Ferguson, where I was kindly entertained for the night. Next morning brother Starkey took me back to Rose Valley school-house. After service, one was willing to be "buried with Christ in baptism;" so she was immersed beneath the waves of the great Kanawha; and, coming up straightway out of the water, thanked and praised God with exceeding joy. After taking some refreshments brother Perry took me to Coal's Mouth, where I expected to meet one to convey me further on; but my letter had failed to go in time, so I had to foot about 4 miles up Coal river to friend S. H. Meadows, where I was kindly received and cared for.

Next morning set out afoot and went to friend H. Belcher's. By the kindness and perseverance of Mrs. Belcher and others I succeeded in getting a horse to ride to brother Fisher's, who I found at home, and tarried with him and family until next morning, when he let me have a horse to ride to Lincoln county, meeting at 4 p. m. All night at brother W. L. Stower's. Next day at 9 a. m. met at Sand Run school-house, with the members of the church, to whom we gave a kind exhortation and admonition to steadfastness. Public preaching at 11 o'clock, one precious young soul added to the fold by baptism. Meeting again at same place at 4 p. m., after which we took the parting hand from dear ones, and had an expression from some that they intended soon to unite with the church. Kindly entertained for the night at the house of friend J. S. Miles.

Next day, in company with Bro. Stowers and sister Mary Christian, returned to Bro. Fisher's, Putnam co., Meeting in a pleasant grove, near his house, at 4 p. m. Took supper at Mrs. Alford's. Meeting at night in school-house near by. Returned to brother A. P. Fisher's. Next day, (Sunday), at 11 o'clock, meeting at Elizabeth meeting-house; large turn-out. Home with sister and friend Akin. Just after dinner went to the home of a sick friend, who had requested meeting at his house. Found a good congregation. Preached to them and then set out to attend my appointment at the Falls of Coal at early candle light. Found a good congregation, and preached the third sermon for the day. Home with friend Meadow's.

Next morning on foot went to Coals Mouth, or as it is now called St. Albans; and at 10 a. m. took the train for Charleston. Took dinner with brother Starky, and tarried until evening. Took supper with sister Haws and thence to the train, and on to the Falls of Kanawha, where I found my son awaiting me with conveyance. Arrived at home August 9th, found all well. In the section of country I visited there is a great demand for the true doctrine to be preached. At some points after preaching there were not less than 9 or more applicants for preaching. In the depths of my soul I was made to exclaim, Lord, what shall I do? Precious souls, begging for the bread of life and none to carry it to them! May the Lord send more laborers into this field is my prayer.

J. S. FLORY.

UPTON, PA. }
August 27th, 1872. }

Beloved Brethren:—After being silent by way of writing for the PILGRIM for a considerable time, I this day, have come to the conclusion to pen a few lines for your worthy paper.

I have tried to be a careful reader of the PILGRIM for nearly two years, and have came to the conclusion the brethren are trying their utmost to spread the Gospel in this humble way. Now to the subject I thought of giving a few ideas in regard to the Supper that our blessed Savior instituted the same night he instituted Feet-washing and the Communion. As far as I know, we, the Brethren, are the only people that believe in the Lord's Supper, all others believing, or at least preaching and practicing that the Communion of the bread and wine is the Lord's Supper. We are prepared to prove, by the Gospel, that there stands in connection, three distinct and separate things, namely: Feet-washing, the Lord's Supper and the Communion. It has been so often proven from the Gospel, by the Brethren that I at this time do not intend to spend much time in proving it again, but, by the help of God wish to show to all who may read this article that what we are blamed for by perhaps almost all persuasions of professional Christians, certainly must be a great mistake on their part, that is, that we eat the Jewish passover, or that the Savior gave the example for so doing on that doleful night. Now in the first place, I will prove that the Savior was no more under the law at the time he instituted Feet-washing, the Lord's Supper and the Communion. He teaches us that he came not to destroy the law and the prophets, but to fulfil them and he did so by being subject to them until about the age of thirty. Then he commenced opening the new way and the first start of that way was when he came to John the forerunner and desired baptism at his hand and accordingly was baptized by John in the river Jordan, for we read, "the law and the prophets were until John, since that time, the kingdom of God is preached and every man presseth into it." Luke 16: 16, and also we read in the 1st chapter of Mark, "the beginning of the Gospel of Jesus Christ the Son of God." The apostle Paul also says, "the law was our schoolmaster to bring us to Christ," but after faith has come we are no longer under a schoolmaster. Now, from the above named Scriptures and many more that might be named, it seems very plain that the Savior could no more eat a Jewish passover after he opened his christian ministry. It seems very strange that we, the professors of the different denominations cannot see eye to eye upon these plain portions of the word of the Lord. God knows my prayer has often been the same that the blessed Savior prayed for in his high priestly prayer, "that all might be one as him and the Father were one;" and this will only come to pass when we agree to take Jesus as the man of our counsel and his word as the rule of our practice. With these solemn thoughts resting upon the mind, I will give this article over for the perusal of the candid reader, hoping that it may at least do some good, feeling very much interested in behalf of souls, especially such that come close in practice and have expressed a desire to me that the little difference might be wiped away. Now I will say in conclusion, give us your hand and Jesus your heart, and we will lay one hand on the Gospel and say amen to every command as therein taught.

GEORGE MOURER.

Dear Pilgrim:—I will give a little church news which may be of some interest to your many readers.

Quite a new era has dawned on the Limestone Church, Tenn. The brethren met for public worship on the 23rd of July and continued the meeting until the 25th, at which time eight precious souls were made willing to take the yoke of Jesus and learn of him. They had an election deacons, when the lot fell for upon the following brethren: Emanuel Klepper, John pence and John Browning. May they be faithful to their calling and help to gather many sheaves into the Father's Kingdom. We were made glad to see the church move onward.—Brethren, let our watch word be onward and upward.

Yours in Christ.

F. W. DOVE.

Jonesboro, Tenn.

Announcements.

LOVEFEASTS.

DUNNINGS CREEK, Bedford co., Pa., Oct. 19th at 4 o'clock, p. m.

RIVER FALLS Church, Pierce co., Wis. Sept. 7th, 10 o'clock, a. m.

CONEMAUGH Church, Cambria co., Pa., Sept. 13, at 4 o'clock, p. m.

BLACK RIVER Congregation, Medina co., Ohio, Oct. 9th.

LOST CREEK, Juniata co., Pa., Oct 16th, at 1 o'clock, p. m.

Bell CREEK Church, Dodge co., Neb., September 21st.

Waddam's Grove, Stephenson county, Ill., Oct. 12th and 13th.

Meadow Branch, Md., Saturday October 12th. Commencing at half past 1 o'clock p. m.

Sam's Creek, Md., Tuesday, October 15th, commencing at half past 1 o'clock p. m.

Hamilton Branch, 4 miles North of Hamiltoo, Daviess Co., Mo., Oct. 12th 2 o'clock p. m. To continue over Sunday.

Clarian Church, Clarian Co., Pa., Oct. 5th and 6th.

Howard Congregation, Howard Co., Ind, Oct. 17th. Those coming by railway will find conveyance at Kokomo on the day previous.

Okaw Church, Piatt Co., Ill., Oct 9th, at at 10 o'clock a. m.

Bethel church, Holt Co., Mo., September 14th, 15th, at 4 o'clock p. m.

Clover Creek, Blair Co., Pa., Oct. 17th; 18th, at 4 p. m.

Salem Congregation Frederick Co., Va. Saturday and Sunday, 14th and 15th of September. Commencing at 1 o'clock p. m

At the house of Daniel Glicks, Andrew co., Mo., October 5th, commencing at 4 o'clock, p. m. Meeting will be continued if aid can be obtained. Address Daniel Glick, Flag Spring, or J. B. Bashor, Whitesville, Andrew co., Mo.

The brethren of Yellow Creek, Bedford co., Pa., will hold their Communion Meeting, Tuesday, October 15th, commencing at 4 o'clock, p. m. The usual invitation is given.

The brethren of Raccoon, Ind., have appointed their Communion Meeting on the 10th of Oct., and give a general invitation. Ladoga is the R. R. Station. Meeting 1¼ miles north-west of town. R. H. MILLER.

Dear Pilgrim:—Please announce that the Brethren at Brownville Washing county, Md., will hold their Lovefeast on the 5th and 6th of October, commencing at 10 o'clock.

Brownsville is immediately on the railroad from Hagerstown to Hapersferry. Can be approached from Hagerstown, 6.30 a. m. 12 m. 5 p. m. From the south, 7 a. m. 12 m. 1.30 p. m. We would be pleased to have brethren and sisters with us, especially ministering brethren. E. SLIFER.

Dear Brethren :—Please announce in the PILGRIM that, the Lord willing, we intend to have our Lovefeast in the Dryvalley Meeting house Mifflin co, Pa., commencing at 1 o'clock P. M. Preaching next day until noon. We give an invitation to all who may have a desire to be with us, especially to the ministering brethren. JACOB MOHLER

Dear Brethren: Please announce through the PILGRIM, that we, the brethren of East Nimishillen Congregation, Stark co, Ohio, intend, the Lord willing, to hold a Lovefeast in our Meeting-house on Saturday the 28th day of September, beginning in the forenoon, as usual, and continuing the next day. A hearty invitation is given to all, especially to the ministering brethren.

HENRY BRUMBAUGH.

District Meeting.

Southern Ill., in the Ottercreek Church at the Pleasant Hill Meetinghouse, 3 miles south-west of Virdin, Macoupin co., Monday, Oct. 14th. A Communion Meeting at the same place on Saturday before.

DIED.

BECHENBAUGH.—In the lower Miami Church, Montgomery Co., Ohio, August 20th, sister Catharine Bechenbaugh, aged 66 years, 4 months and 18 days.

She was afflicted for about five years when death came and relieved her of her sufferings. Funeral services by the brethren from Revelations 14 : 12, 13.

DANIEL BOCK.

SIMPSON.—In the Limestone Congregation, Washington Co., Tenn., July 16th, 1872, Barbara Simpson, aged about 66 years.

She was a daughter of Benjamin Bashor who moved from Pa. to Va. when his children were small, and at this place he died. Through course of time the remaining part of the family removed to Tenn. where they have a large connection, also in Mifflin Co. Pa. and Mo. F. W. DOVE.

Dear brethren :—Enclosed you will find a notice of the death of my brother Solomon. The notice was clipped from the Shelby Republican, published in Shelbyville, Ind., where the deceased resided for the last five years, and for the benefit of his many friends in the different states I would like you to publish the same in the PILGRIM.

Brother Solomon had not attached himself to any church but was a warm friend of the Brethren. He lived a strictly moral life, being very charitable and kind to the poor and afflicted. Was an active and successful business man, a man of great purity of character in his private and public walks of life; of positive, noble and generous impulses; a warm friend, kind husband and parent, thus possessing many natural attributes of a good Christian. We will also learn a lesson from his early taking off in the full vigor of manhood and usefulness. Be ye also ready.

D. R. SAYLER.

DEATH OE SOLOMON J. SAYLER.

The loss by death of any citizen, if he be honest and industrious is more or less felt by every community; but when one suddenly passes off the stage of action into the cold embrace of death, who has walked outside the beaten track of Self, and devoted his energies to the improvement of the community in which he lives, all keenly feel his loss—all are mourners! Eminently such an one was Solomon J. Sayler We speak in no wise dispairingly of our many enterprising citizens when we affirm that, for the short time Mr. Sayler was a citizen of this county he excelled all others in his labors for the development and improvement of the resources of our county and city. It is not surprising, then that, when the solemn news on last Saturday morning passed from citizen to citizen, Solomon J. Sayler was no more, it cast a gloom over our entire community.

Solomon J. Sayler was born in Fredrick county Maryland, July 14th, 1833, and died August 16th, 1872, aged 39 years 1 month and 2 days. He removed from his native State to Montgomery county, Ohio, where he was married, and for several years conducted his business at Little York in that State. He removed to Shelbyville on the 19th day of August, 1867—just five years prior to placing his remains in the city cemetery. For several months past M. Sayler has been suffering from severe attacks of sick headache, with which he was frequently prostrated for days at a time. He had been advised by his friends to withdraw from active business for a time, and devote his attention to his health, and we believe had arranged to undergo a regular course of treatment. He was chosen last Spring the chairman of the Republican County Central Committee, and resigned his position some four weeks ago because he felt that the state of his health would not permit him to take the active part that his sense of duty would demand of him if he remained at the head of the Committee.

Just one week before his death he was taken down with an attack of the Flux, and so severe and rapidly did the disease fasten itself upon him, that all the skill and remedies of his physicians proved of no avail. Only a few hours before his death, after being told by his physician that his life could not be saved, he sent for his friend, Mr. Blessing, and instructed him in detail as to what disposition he desired should be made of his business affairs after which he spoke words of comfort and cheer to his family and friends, and then sank peacefully to rest.

His funeral took place at the Presbyterian Church on last Monday, at 2 o'clock P. M., Revs. Sluter and Dolph officiating. There was a large concourse of citizens in attendance, and a universal heartfelt sympathy was manifested toward his bereaved wife and children, thus suddenly deprived of a loving and devoted husband and father.

The Weekly Pilgrim.

JAMES CREEK, PA., Sept. 10th, 1872.

LOSS OF THE METIS.

On Thursday night, August 30th this noble vessel left New York with 104 passengers and 52 officers and deck hands, all no doubt without the least apprehension of fear as she was strongly built at a cost of $225,000, but with man there is no sure refuge. Soon the rain commenced falling in torrents and the waves in fury were lashed against the fatal vessel. Onward she made her way through midnight darkness while the unconscious crew were undisturbedly sleeping in their rooms. About 4 o'clock in the morning there was a sudden crash and the Metis shook and trembled in every joint—there was a collision. The Nettie Cushing in the midst of darknes and the storm had struck her and shivered the lower part into splinters, and then came the panic such as can be felt but not described.

The following we clip from the Sun.

Meantime the passengers, frightened from their slumbers, had congregated in the cabin. The scene was one of horror and confusion. There were men, women and children in the throng, and the shrieks pun outcries of the wrecked ones were horrible. There were many instances of bravery among the ladies, as there was of abject cowardice among the men. Some ran frantically about tearing their hair and uttering useless lamentations. Others, more wise, devoted themselves to the one duty of the hour, the preparation for the struggle before them in the dark, surging waters. The Steward busied himself in fastening on the life preservers and trying to calm the fears of the more excited.

The mattresses in the staterooms of the Metis were made in such a manner as to serve as buoys, and a large stock of cork preservers were on board. Every passenger was soon fitted out for a possible solitary voyage on the black waters. Then they all huddled aft and waited orders. The boats were filled and launched. The ship was sinking fast at 5 o'clock. The waters were closing over her lower decks, and the waves dashed over her hurricane deck and pilot house. Capt. Burron remained on the ship with Capt. S. G. Gallup, one of the detectors of the company, until the last boat had left. Then seizing a spar they threw themselves into the water and trusted to fate for deliverance.

The hull and engines of the Metis went down very soon after the passengers had left. The furious breaking of the waves over the hurricane deck washed it from the hull. It broke up and was tossed upon the waves furnishing support for many a person who was struggling in the water. The life boats proved but frail barks on the raging billows, They were tossed about like chips upon the angry sea. To guide them was an utter impossibility and ehey drifted helplessly about, no one knowing in what direction until morning broke and revealed to the shipwrecked passengers the low, sandy point which stretches out to the east of Stonington, and is known as Watch Hill. Even then it was almost impossible to reach the Point as the sea ran high and the gale had moderated but very little.

The morning dawned upon a terrible but grandly impressive scene. The waters were covered with the debris of the wreck. Bales of cotton, boxes of fruit, spars, and fragments of the steamer were tossed about in utter confusion The four life, boats, with their precious freight, were far apart, and rising and falling with the waves. They were not as full as when they were launched, Many were washed overboard.

Floating about among the spars and boxes were the bodies of men and women, some clinging to pieces of the wreck, others riding on the billows with nothing but their preservers as buoys. On the beach at Watch Hill a large crowd had collected to witness the terrible scene of destruction. The beach was strewn with dead bodies and fragments of the wreck. Nearly every wave as it rolled up cast some token of the dire destruction upon the sand, and then receded only to return with a fresh burden.

The vessel was provided with life preservers for all, but some were so selfish in this trying hour that they took charge of two and three and left others without any. The number of the lost is not fully ascertained but is supposed to be over seventy.—How uncertain are human expectations.

A LAST CALL

We for the last time, call the attention of our readers to our request. Part of our work will go to press in a short time, therefore those who have not yet responded and wish to, will please do so at once. We would be much pleased to have a few short biographies of some of our ministering brethren. They should consist of something like the following: When and where born, when united with the church, when and where elected to the ministry, his success and abilities. The name of the church or churches over which he presided and where and when he died. In connection with these facts might be given incidents connected with his ministerial duties,

The present ministerial list is not nearly so complete as it should be. Many are not on it, while others have been changed. These should be corrected at once, also all those who intend changing for the coming year should report their address for 1874. Now brethren please attend to this last notice. No matter who does it, but let us have NOW the name and address of every brother elected to the ministry within the last twelve months, also all changes. By obliging us you will oblige yourselves in getting a complete list and much other information of standing usefulness

MORE NAMES—MORE NEWS.

Some of our agents are still at work and are doing good service by introducing the PILGRIM into new families, and it does us good to know that we are giving very general satisfaction. This we attribute mainly to the timely aid of our many friends in supplying us with church news and other interesting matter. That is right brethren and sisters. If you expect to hear from other churches they expect the same of yours. If none report, none can read, if all report all may read, and as all love to read church news, every church should report something. Please think of this, and give it a trial and we will give you a feast of good things. The time of Communions is now here and we expects some goodly reports. Please do not disappoint us.

AHEAD OF TIME.

On account of being ahead of time in going to press, we will lose several mails of matter that would otherhave appeared this week. This will account for the none appearance of notices received too late for insertion

IN SEASON.

A number of good and interesting essays will be in season just now. Please send them along, but remember that we must have the name of the writer, but will be withheld if so requested unless of a personal character.

BRO. G. S. RINKER, of Va., wishes us to say: if any Ministering brethren intend being with them at their Communion Meeting they will please inform them on what day they will come, so that they can meet them at the station with conveyances. Stop off at Newtown Station and enquire for Bro. Daniel Baker who lives one mile from town and at the Meetinghouse.

ADDRESS WANTED.—We are sending a PILGRIM to Henry Adams. Oak Grove, Perry co., Pa., but it is returned, there being no such office. Some one will please give us his proper address as the paper is paid for and he should have it.

GENERAL INTELLIGENCE.

The potato crop around Alton, Ill., is unsurpassed.

A new Geyser is reported to have sprung up in Iceland.

Mowing machines of American manufacture are used in Mecklenburg, Germany.

The hair on a camel weighs ten pounds and sells for more than a hundred dollars.

A chicken farm, embracing seventy-five acres, is in successful operation near Philadelphia.

During the month of June 64,820 acres of land were sold in Washington Territory.

A field in Tulure Co., Cal., of 400 acres, which had never been fenced or irragated, yielded 15,089 bushels of grain this year.

The fruit crop of England this year is the smallest ever remembered. The Gardeners' Magazine says the peach-wall is as bare as the apple orchard; there are very few plums and cherries, while pears are thinly sprinkled. The cause of the dearth is the cold weather which prevailed during March and April.

Some curious statistics about small birds have recently been laid before the House of Commons. The thrush is said to work from 2:40 in the morning until 9:30 in the evening, or nineteen hours. During this time he feeds his young 206 times. Blackbirds work seventeen hours. The male feeds the young 44 times, and the female 55 times per day. The industrious titmouse manages to spread 417 meals a day before its voracious offspring. According to one naturalist, their food consists largely of caterpillars.

FREAKS OF LIGHTNING. — The storm of Tuesday evening, the 13th, did great damage in southern Connecticut. Many houses and barns were struck. At the house of Lester Woodford, in the Old Farms district, occurred one of the most remarkable escapes on record. The lightning entered the room where a boy lay in bed, tearing both sheets on the bed into fragments, and scorching one badly, but leaving the boy uninjured! Wild with fear, he ran down stairs, entirely naked, being unable to recollect whether he had taken off his night shirt himself, or whether the lightning had done it for him.

During one of the thunder storms the same week, the house of Bennet Holmes, in Cheshire, was struck by lightning. The fluid passed into the sitting room where were four persons. After moving a table some two feet, turning a plate on the table bottom up, throwing a lamp to the floor and killing a cat in the room, the current passed into a closet where it created sad havoc with milk pans and stone jugs, after which it passed off through the cellar.

During a heavy shower at South Deerfield, Mass., Mrs. A. L. Fish was sitting with one foot upon a stool when a flash came, tearing off one of her shoes and demolishing the stool, yet leaving the lady herself uninjured. No damage was done to the house, and where the fluid entered and how it made its exit is a mystery.

When the house of John G. Whittier, the poet, was struck, the electric fluid passed down the central chimney until it reached the roof, where, owing to some defect in the rod, or its incapacity of carrying so great a volume of fluid, it left the conductor, tore off splinters from the roof timbers, and, perforating the wall just above a window in the lower story, entered the room, tearing the curtains and destroying a mirror etc. Mr. Whittier was standing in the threshold of the library, and was struck down by the violent shocks but soon recovered, although he is still suffering somewhat from the effects of the concussion. The damage to the house was not great.

GOOD BOOKS.

A large number of our patrons are receiving our books as noticed below, as premiums, and express themselves highly pleased with them. Others who are not agents, have enquired whether we keep them for sale. We have now made arrangements with Mr. Wells to furnish any of their publications post paid at publishers prices. Orders for books must be accompanied with the cash, and plain directions for sending them.

Conversion of St. Paul. By George Jarvis Geer, D. D. 12mo. fine edition, $1. Plain edition, 75 cents.

Footprints of Life; or, Faith and Nature Reconciled.—A Poem in three parts. The Body. The Soul. The Deity. By Philip Harvey, M. D. $1.25.

Fruit Culture for the Million. A Hand book. being a Guide to the Cultivation and Management of Fruit Trees. Descriptions of the Best Varieties, and How to Propagate them. illustrated $1.00.

Hand-book for Home Improvement: comprising "How to Write," "How to Talk," How to Behave," and "How to do Business," in one vol. 2.25.

How to Live; Saving and Wasting, or Domestic Economy. By Solon Robinson. $1.50.

Life at Home; or, The Family and its Members. Husbands, Wives, Parents, Children, Brothers, Sisters, Employers and Employed, etc. By Rev. William Aikman, D. D. A work which should be found in every family. $1.50. Extra gilt, $2.00.

Man and Woman: Considered in their Relations to each Other and to the World. By Henry C. Pedder. 12mo, Fancy cloth Price $1.00.

Man, in Genesis and in Geology; or, the Biblical Account of Mao's Creation, tested by Scientific Theories of his Origin and Antiquity. By Joseph P. Thompson, D. D., LL.D. One vol. 12mo, $1.00.

Oratory—Sacred and Secular; or, the Extemporaneous Speaker. Including Chairman's Guide for conducting Public Meetings according to the best Parliamentary forms. By Wm. Pittenger. $1.50.

The Right Word in the Right Place. A New Pocket Dictiooary and Reference Book. Embracing Synonyms, Technical Terms, Abbreviations, Foreign Phrases Writing for the Press, Punctuation, Proof-Reading, and other Valuable Information. Cloth, 75cts.

The Emphatic, Diaglott; or The New Testament in Greek and English. Containing the Original Greek Text of the New Testament, with an Interlineary Word for-word English Translation. A Work for Students in Theology, and S. S. Teachers. By Benamin Wilson. Price, $4.00; extra fine binding, $5.00.

Waver's Works for the Young. Comprising "Hopes and Helps for the Young of both Sexes," "Aids and Aims for Girls and Young Women," "Ways of Life; or, the Right Way and the Wrong Way," $3

WANTED.

A female apprentice to the printing business. She must have a good moral character, a liberal English education and a willingness to work. A member of the church, or one that will be interested in the cause for which we are laboring, will be preferred. A good and permanent sit will be given. Apply soon. Address

The Pilgrim,
James Creek,
Huntingdon Co., Pa.

Menno Simon's COMPLETE WORKS.

In English, translated from the original Dutch or Holland, giving the whole of the great Reformers writings on the subject of Baptism. Price in full sheep $4.50; by mail $5.14.

Address, JOHN F. FUNK & BRO.
Elkhart, Ind.

New Hymn Books, English.

TURKEY MOROCCO.

One copy,	postpaid,	$1.00
Per Dozen,		11.25

PLAIN ARABESQE.

One Copy,	post-paid,	75
Per Dozen,	"	8.50

Ger'n & English, Plain Sheep.

One Copy,	post-paid,	$1.00
Per Dozen		11.25
Arabesque Plain,		1.00
Turkey Morocco,		1.25
Single German,	post paid	50
Per Dozen,		5.50

SALEM COLLEGE.

The Fall term of Salem College will open for the reception of any number of students from all parts on the 4th of September, 1872. Ample accommodations and thorough instruction will be given all students who connect themselves with this College. Good board can be had in good families at $2.50 to $3.00 per week or students can board themselves in clubs at $1.25 to $1.50 per week as numbers have done with the consent of the faculty. Special care will be given students who are far from home.

For Catalogues, Scholarships and full particulars address

SALEM COLLEGE,
July 22, '72. Bourbon, Ind.

Educational.

The second year of Pleasant Hill College, Warsaw, Ind., will begin Sept. 4th, 1872, in which a thoroughly practical education will be given in Academic and Collegiate studies. Brethren's children are expected to attend our weekly religious meetings. Ladies and gentlemen admitted on equal footing.

O. W. MILLER, President.
July 9–tf. Warsaw, Ind.

TRACTS.

"ANXIOUS BENCH RELIGION EXAMINIED," BY ELDER J. S. FLORY. A SYNOPSIS OF CONTEETS. An address to the reader: The peculiarities that attend this type of religion. The feelings there experienced not imaginary but real. The key that unlocks the wonderful mystery. The causes by which feelings are excited. How the momentary feelings called "Experimental religion" are brought about, and then concludes by giving that form of doctrine as taught by Jesus Christ and recorded by his faithful witnesses.

COUNTERFEIT DETECTER
OR
BAPTISM—MUCH IN LITTLE.

This work is now ready for distribution, and the importance of the subject will speak for it a large demand. It is a short treatise on baptism in tract form intended for general distribution, and is set forth in such a plain and logical manner that a wayfaring man though a fool, cannot err therein. Either of the above tracts sent postpaid on the following terms: Two copies, 10 cts, 10 copies 40 cents, 25 copies 70 cents, 50 copies $1.00, 100 copies $1.50.

1870 1872

DR. FAHRNEY'S

Blood Cleanser or Panacea.

A tonic and purge, for Blood Diseases. Great reputation. Many testimonials. Many ministering brethren use and recommend it. Ask or send for the "Health Messenger." Use only the "Panacea" prepared at Chicago, Ills., and by

Dr. P. Fahrney's Brothers & Co.,
Mar. 29-pd. Waynesboro, Franklin Co., Pa.

Trine Immersion.

A discussion on Trine Immersion, by letter between Elder B. F. Moomaw and Dr J. J. Jackson, to which is annexed a Treatise on the Lord's Supper, and on the necessity, character and evidences of the new birth, also a dialogue on the doctrine of non-resistance, by Elder B. F. Moomaw. Single copy 50 cents.

HUNTINGDON & BROAD TOP RAIL ROAD

Summer Arrangement.

On an after Tuesday, June 4, 1872, Passenger trains will arrive and depart as follows:

Trains from Huntingdon South. — Trains from Bedford moving North.

MAIL. A. M.	ACCOM P. M.	STATIONS.	MAIL. P. M.	ACCOM A. M.
*lc*8 20	LE6 00	Huntingdon,	AR5 25	AR9 10
8 28	6 06	Long Siding	5 17	9 00
8 45	6 19	McConnelstown	5 04	8 45
8 51	6 25	Pleasant Grove	4 58	8 39
9 05	6 37	Marklesburg	4 45	8 27
9 20	6 51	Coffee Run	4 33	8 11
9 27	6 58	Rough & Ready	4 26	8 40
9 39	7 10	Cove	4 12	7 52
9 43	7 15	Fishers Summit	4 08	7 48
10 03	7 35	Saxton lc	3 48	7 53
10 10	7 53	Saxton ar		7 46
10 27	8 10	Riddlesburg	3 30	6 30
10 34	8 17	Hopewell	3 22	6 12
10 51	8 35	Piper's Run	3 06	6 00
11 10	8 55	Tatesville	2 48	5 56
11 22	9 08	Bloody Run	2 33	6 50
11 26	9 12	Mount Dallas	2 29	5 46
11 32	9 19	Ashcom's Mills	2 22	5 42
11 36	9 23	Lutzville	2 18	5 36
11 40	9 27	Hartley's Mills	2 14	5
11 46	9 34	Jamesons	2 07	5
*r*11 22	*ar*9 40	Bedford	LE2 00	LE5 30

JOHN M'KILLIPS, Supt

SHOUP'S RUN BRANCH.

LE10 15	LE7 40	Saxton.	AR3 40	AR7 20
10 30	7 55	Coalmont.	3 25	7 05
10 35	8 00	Crawford.	3 20	7 00
AR10 45	AR8 10	Dudley	LE3 10	LE0 50
Bro'd Top City from Dudley 2 miles by stage.

Time of Penna. R. R. Trains at Huntingdon.

EASTWARD.			WESTWARD.
Hlb'g Ae.	9 24	A. M	Cin. Ex.	2 19 A. M.
Mail	3 30	P. M	Pe'f Ex.	7 45 "
Cin. Ex.	6 55	"	Mail	5 40 P. M
Phil. Ex	11 15	"	W. Pass.	11 52 A. M.

THE PILGRIM.

Published by J. B. Brumbaugh, & Co.

Edited by H. B. & Geo. Brumbaugh.

CORRESPONDING EDITORS.

D. P. Sayler, Double Pipe Creek, Md.

Leonard Furry, New Enterprise, Pa.

The Pilgrim is a Christian Periodical, devoted to religion and moral reform. It will advocate in the spirit of love and liberty, the principles of true Christianity, labor for the promotion of peace among the people of God, for the encouragement of the saints and for the conversion of sinners, avoiding those things which tend toward disunion or sectional feelings.

TERMS.

Single copy, one year,	$1.25.
Book paper, " "	1.50.
Eleven copies, [eleventh for Agt.]	$12.50.

Any number above that at the same rate,

Address.

H. B. BRUMBAUGH.
James Creek,
Huntingdon county Pa.

Narrow Pilgrim.

"REMOVE NOT THE ANCIENT LANDMARKS WHICH OUR FATHERS HAVE SET."

VOL. 3. JAMES CREEK, PENNSYLVANIA, SEPTEMBER 17, 1872. NO. 38

POETRY

WHEN IS THE TIME TO DIE?

I asked the glad and active child
Whose hands were filled with flowers,
Whose silvery laugh rang free and wild
Among the vine-wreathed bowers—
I crossed her sunny path and cried,
"When is the time to die?"
"Not yet! not yet!" the child replied,
And swiftly bounded by.

I asked a maiden: back she threw
The tresses of her hair;
Grief's traces o'er her cheeks I knew,
Like pearls they glistened there;
A flush passed o'er her lily brow,
I heard her spirit sigh;
"Not now," she cried, "oh, no, not now,
Youth is no time to die!"

I asked a mother, as she pressed
Her first born in her arms,
As gently on her tender breast
She hushed her child's alarms;
In quivering tones her answer came,
Her eyes were dim with tears;
"My child his mother's life must claim
For many, many years."

I questioned one in manhood's prime,
Of proud and fearless air;
His brow was furrowed not by time,
Nor dimmed by woe or care.
In angry accents he replied,
And flashed with scorn his eye;
"Talk not to me of death," he cried,
"For only age should die."

I questioned age; for him the tomb
Had long been all prepared;
But Death, who withers youth and bloom
This man of years had spared.
Once more his nature's dying fire
Flashed high, as thus he cried,
"Life, only life, is my desire!"
Then gasped and groaned and died.

I asked a Christian: "Answer thou,
When is the hour of death?"
A holy calm was on his brow,
And peaceful was his breath;
Serenely o'er his features shone
A smile, a light divine;
He spake the language of his soul—
"My Maker's time is mine!"

—American Messenger.

ORIGINAL ESSAYS.

WHAT IS SIN?

This may seem to be rather a common-place question, yet there are thousands wish to know this very thing every day. Inspiration is pretty plain where it says, "Sin is a violation of law," and a very rational conclusion is, that where there is no law there is no sin. But the query may be, what is that law which to violate is sin? I answer, Nature's law which is God's law, or God's law which is Nature's law. "I understand you to mean, says one, that everything we do that is in harmony with the laws of Nature is right because they are God's law." Exactly, that is what I mean. In the creation, God made the heavens and the earth, and every living thing. These were all made according to fixed laws and embodied divine principles, and God said they were good. For the special benefit of man, is given a divine law, not to annul anything which was given, but help them carry it out. By a violation of this law, man fell and sin entered into the world, yet the heavens continued as they were. The sun continued to make it day and the moon and stars to beautify the heavens at night. Everything continued to carry out those principles which were and are as fixed as the everlasting hills, except man, poor man alone slipped from his original sphere and became the first and great violator of heaven's law. Since then, all the ills and pains measurably are the result, either directly or indirectly, of the violation of law. These troubles may run back to the third and fourth generation, yet they have a cause and are traceable somewhere.

The law of salvation and redemption is perfect and not only intended for our present, but also future good, —for good physically, morally and spiritually. Then sin is sin because it is destructive and deadening in its results. God has given us bodies which are for the indwelling of the soul, hence Paul says: "Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the spirit of God dwelleth in you? If any man defile the temple of God, him shall God destroy." This body then, God has given us as an inviolable trust, and anything and everything that we do that has a tendency in any way to destroy it, is a violation of law, which is sin. Sin destroys and degrades, but religion regenerates and elevates. Intemperance is the grand basis of sin, while temperence is the foundation of holiness; The drunkard is debarred from heaven because of intemperance. This is a violation of law.

First, directly because it is destruction to the body and converts the man into a brute, and thus frustrates the design of God in His creation.

Second. Indirectly, from results. Drunkeness is not local in its work of destruction, but sheds its baneful influence all around, cursing and blighting everything upon which it falls. It wastes the Lord's money and robs it from dependant families, taking from them necessary food. This distresses the body. It robs them of facilities of education, which in turn, robs them of character and a means of gaining an honorable livlihood. This degrades them and leads them into the channels of temptation and vice and terminates their life in degredation and misery. Drunkeness then is grossly sinful because it is, and leads to a violation of law.

The same relative argument may be urged against pride or fashionable dressing. Dress is all right and proper in its place, so is beauty because it is one of the graspings of the soul, but it is the intemperate use of it that makes it sinful, when it causes directly or indirectly a violation of law.

It is a direct violation of law when it tends to injure our physical organization. Modern fashionable life does this in so many ways that I can only refer to the most prominent ones, and unfortunately these generally belong to the female class. The corset has long been the curse and blight of the female life, and thousands and millions have fallen its victim. What the cup has done to man, physically, the corset has done to woman. It is deceptive and tampers with its victim, and as with the drunkard, the cloven foot is concealed until the victim is within the net. It is self murder by inches, the cords are gently but gradually tightened and tightened until the waist becomes so compressed that almost every organ is displaced from its normal position, and the inevitable result is, decline of health, decline of life and a premature death. Medical men in their practice, and through their writings, have cried long and loud against this glaring evil, yet the mass, either ignorant of its nature, or indifferent to its results, continue the work of self-destruction with a zeal worthy of a better cause, and greatly pride in the wasp like waist as a chief beauty which really should be their disgrace, and in the estimation of every intelligent young man, should be their greatest objection, as it measurably disqualifies them to fill the normal functions of married life. This is a violation of law and therefore sinful.

Fashionable dressing is sinful directly because there is a waste of time in preparing it. Our time belongs to the Lord and should be devoted to His service, therefore wasting it in useless display is wasting the Lord's time. It is sinful because it is extravagant, and extravagance is a wasting of the Lord's money.

Indirectly, it is sinful because of its bearing on society. It places the standard of dress too high for the poor, yet to reach it, thousands have been tempted to commit the grossest of sins in order to obtain the means to gratify its demands. An evidence of this we have at our very doors. How many of our females labor and toil week in and week out simply to appear in style on the Sabbath, the very time that they should especially be attired in modest apparel as becometh holy women, and even a large percentage of this holy day is spent in preparing and changing the wardrobe. This is sinful, because their earnings instead of being devoted to the general good of the body and the cultivation of the mind, is spent for those things which are destructive in their tendancies and wean the affections from God by setting them on things below, but if devoting money honestly earned to extravagance is sin, how great must be the degree of that sin when it causes the young and virtuous female to sell her purity in order to obtain means to gratify this craving vanity generated by the wealthy by pride in dress? We need but go to our large cities,—and sad to say, the curse is spreading into our smaller towns,—to see the thousands who have bartered away their womanhood, their morality and their prospects of heaven in order to get means to enable them to appear in first class society, but God will never suffer the guilty to go free and in consequence the haunts of wickedness is filled with wrecks of demoralized humanity that once bid fair to become bright and shining ornaments to society and the Church. Oh, how great is that sin of violation of law.

So I might go on to an indefinite length in showing that all sin is a violation of Nature's law, and on this account has God wisely legislated against them, thus making it doubly sinful to violate them. Marriage is right and the bed undefiled, but adultery and fornication is sinful because of attending results which inevitably end in a violation of law. Just then, as all sin is a violation of law and leads to degredation and misery, so righteousness is the obedience to law and leads to blessed and glorious results. Dear reader, in conclusion we wish you to understand that whatever you do that tends directly or indirectly to destroy life is sin. To sin or disobey is to die, but to obey is to live. The conclusion of the whole matter, says the wise man, is to fear God and keep His commandments. At some future time I may call the PILGRIM readers to this subject again. DIXIE.

THE SPIRIT OF CHRIST

In the last clause of the ninth verse of the eighth chapter of Paul's letter to to the Church at Rome we find this language: "Now if any man have not the spirit of Christ he is none of his," and according to the common laws of language, when there is a negative there must of necessity be an affirmative, hence we deduce from the text that "if any man have the spirit of Christ he is his," and by reading thus we have included in the meaning of this small passage of Scripture the present condition of every mature rational child of man, for it is an incontrovertible fact that all such are either in possession of the spirit of Christ or they are not, there being no neutral or middle position to occupy.

In view of the exceeding great and rich promises made to those who "have the spirit of Christ," and also in view of the bitter woes denounced against those who have not that spirit, it must be obvious to every thinking mind that the choice should always be made in favor of having that spirit in order to render available the accompanying promises, yet how often are we pained to see the children of men when they arrive at years of discretion willingly and we hope blindly choose that mode of life wherein the "Spirit of Christ can never be found, and continue, to an indefinite period of time, squandering their Lord's goods, the talents with which we are all endowed, that prolific source of enjoyment, and thus deprive their souls of that healthful nutriment received by and through sweet communion with the "Spirit of Christ;" and thus rob our Master of that honor and glory that will naturally accrue to his great name, if we live in accordance with the dictates of his spirit, and thus, if such a course of life be adhered to, do they pave for themselves a way that leads down, down, down, lower than the grave, and prepares them for a habitation in that lake of of fire prepared for the devil and his angels where their worm dieth not and the fire is not quenched, while if we, by persuing the legitimate course provided for us, do gain possession of that spirit, we have the promise of blessings rich and rare. "We have the promise of "the life that now is and that which is to come," and one in a certain place testifies, saying of those who have that spirit, "Now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be, but we know that when he shall appear we shall be like him." Is there not great encouragement for the weary pilgrim in this language? When the cares of life oppress our mind, when sickness and pain make their inroads upon our tenaments of clay, when we feel old age with its many infirmities creeping upon us whitening our locks, furrowing our brow, dimming our sight, weakening our intellect and turning our tottering steps toward the tomb, how great the consolation if "his spirit beareth witness with our spirit that we are the children of God," for then we can say, "if this cup of suffering may not pass except I drink it, thy will, Oh, God, be done, knowing that the sting of death is gone, that the victory of the grave is destroyed, and knowing, too, that when we see our blessed Master we shall be like him, be pure, be holy, be good, be endowed with an intelligence not circumscribed by the limits of a world like this, be gifted with a mind unshackeled by carnality, but susceptible of that bliss enjoyed by the redeemed, in singing a song which the angels in heaven can never sing.

But we fear that persons are sometimes led astray by their teachers with regard to the manner of imbibing or receiving this spirit, and also with regard to its characteristics, for we all know that there are people who teach the doctrine that a man may be swearing, lying, gambling or committing any such sin, and believe, repent, receive forgiveness for his sins and the gift of the Holy Ghost, becoming a thorough christian, or as they use the language, as good as he ever can be all within an hour, or without moving out of the radius described by the altar railing of their fashionable meeting houses, or to be plainer yet, without going away from the Mourners Bench. And the doctrine is also taught that a person may be a christian or have the spirit of Christ and believe only a part of the command of God and reject part, or that they may have that spirit without strict moral purity, that it is necessary in order to defend the spirit of Christ, to have our minds stored with worldly knowledge so as to meet the devil with his own weapons, giving as an example that Moses was skilled in all the arts of the Egyptians and by virtue of that skill outdid the Egyptains at their own game, for which idea, however, they have failed to give proofs. Teaching too that a person may have that spirit and indulge in all the fashions, pleasures, and vanities of the world, and various other ideas and maxims that we consider incompatable with one having the spirit of Christ.

We believe that a person must proceed in this as in everything else pertaining to christianity, just as the law says, and on consulting the law the idea is received that there is a point at which it is proper to begin and then to proceed onward by degrees toward perfection according to our ability and the grace given unto us, and in proof of this we will offer the following Scriptures: Paul in writing his first letter to the Corinthians in the first part of the third chapter he says: "And I, brethren, could not speak unto you as unto spiritual, but as unto carnal even as unto babes in Christ. I have fed you with milk and not with meat; for hitherto ye were not able to bear it."

Then in his letter to the Hebrew brethren, 5: 13, 14, he says; "For every one that useth milk is unskillful in the word of righteousness; for he is a babe. But strong meat belongeth to them that are of full age, even to those who by reason of use have their senses exercised to discern good and evil." And our Savior also in speaking of the manner of proceeding of the kingdom in the heart he used this illustration, "first the blade, then the ear, then the full corn in the ear." Mark 4: 28.

From these passages of Scripture we think it plain that there is a beginning point and that point once found it is necessary for us to "press forward toward the mark of the prize of our high calling in Christ Jesus our Lord." Or as Paul to Ephesians 4: 13, says, "unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ." And in order to make our understanding of this subject entirely plain will offer an illustration like this: When the proper period, in the age of a child, has arrived that its education should commence, we never undertake to crowd orthography, reading, writing, arithmetic, and the higher branches into the mind of a child within an hour, but we proceed more in accordance with reason and a due regard to the subject to be acted on, and object to be attained. We first teach a child the alphabet and when it has learned that, then to spell, and once that far, the child begins to recognize words that it has used and the use of the alphabet, and spelling begins to impress itself upon the mind of the child and a new interest seizes its mind, it will apply that small amount of knowledge to every object within its reach and when it begins to study the definitions of words it will recognize terms and words that it has heard others use but did not understand before this time and this gives a new impetus to the mind of the child. From this time on the mind develops more easily and with greater rapidity and is able to grasp the higher branches of education with greater readiness from having perfectly learned and properly applied these rudiments, and as a natural consequence it will retain them in the mind with greater tenacity from having found or realized the good effects resulting from the same, and the child is now prepared to press forward to the goal of an ambituous mind, viz: Educational perfection.

Now for the application, The beginning point in Christianity is faith, virtue, knowledge, temperance, patience, godliness and charity. Faith, then, being the initiative of Christianity presents at once the great importance attached to it from that fact that in order to insure success in the Christian life one must be very careful to have the foundation properly laid. And in view of the fact that there are more kinds of faith than one, we should be able to discern and imbibe that particular faith recommended by inspiration. The faith that proves its existence by the works it produces, the faith that scorns a doubt of God's word, the faith that induces an implicit confidence in the realization of the promises of God based upon a thorough obedience to his word; the faith that inculcates a Godly fear of those threats of punishment intended to be meted out to those who disobey or disregard the just commands of God, which faith was manifested by Abraham and procured for him justification and the exalted title of "the Father of the faithful," which faith was manifested by Noah, by Enoch, by Isaac, by Jacob, by Lot by Moses, by David and by all those good old Patriarchs and Prophets who lived and died in the faith and have gone to reap their reward, which faith was also manifested by our blessed Savior, who, when tempted by Satan, invariably met his cunningly devised schemes to induce Jesus to renounce his allegiance to the God of Heaven, by a quotation from God's word; which faith enabled Paul and his brother Apostles to endure afflictions of every kind counting them but light compared to the glory held in reservation for them, and which faith we must have, my brethren and sisters, if we would be accounted worthy to obtain that kingdom prepared for those who love and faithfuly serve our Lord Jesus Christ.

To be Continued.

FASHIONABLE DRESSING AND ITS EFFECTS.

Bro. Brumbaugh:—The following we clip from the Urbana Republican, and was written by a gentleman who had just completed a trip through more than a half dozen States. What he saw is simply a specimen of the great transactions that will characterize a leading department of business to be settled at the bar of God, and we would that the ladies of the present age could form an appropriate conception of the ultimate consequences, which the fashionable dressing of the day is to produce.

"Pittsburg at last. When we had an hours rest and a chance to straighten out our stiffened limbs by walking around the smoky City, but smoky as it is, many ladies were out looking radiant and beautiful, dressed in the extreme of fashion, many of them having enough in value on their backs to set a young couple up in housekeeping or stock a small farm, and we cannot help but think that this desire to dress, to put all we have on our backs is one of the growing evils of our land. The rich can afford it and the poor knowing it to be the key which unlocks the golden gate to society will spend all they have to attain it, and only those women who have not the means to "dress" can appreciate the crushing might which society heaps upon this disability. If you are not able to "dress" you are treated with disrespect in the car, the boat, or at the public gathering, you are thrust aside to be laughed at, to be driven out of good society; to have your intelligence, your virtue, your character held as naught against silks and satins. It matters not whether this rule of society is right or wrong, the fact remains to blight and ruin. The lady of fashion thinks nothing of paying seventy-five dollars for making a dress, made up of thirty or forty yards of silk, costing from five to ten dollars a yard. These are the persons who rule the street, the car, the parlor, and we might say the churches. What can the poor girls who work for from four to ten dollars a week say to this array of facts?

The rich can be fashionable, but the poor cannot be by honest means. The poor shop girl looks upon a fifty dollar dress, and they are out of her reach, there is a gulf of forty dollar's between her and them,—between her and the attention and respect of society. Her virtue will build a bridge across the chasm, and she can cross over. She longs to lay aside the load of poverty and to receive the caress of society, and she sells herself to hell for dress. The first wrong step taken and she goes down, down, and there's no help for her.

This is not a fancy picture, but the experience of thousands who now fill the brothels and other dens of infamy in our land. This insane desire to "dress" is doing more toward ruining quiet happy homes than all other causes put together.'

Here is a chance for the would-be-reformers to take hold of a useful department and bring about a reform, not only beneficial to the American race, but a change that will save many a sensitive being from the torments of hell itself. Those who are crying so long and loud about "Women's Rights," can here find an extensive field for hard and needful work. You may talk of reforming the heathen, and bringing them under the control of the Christian religion; better talk of reforming the ladies of our country, and first bring them under the influence of our Master's teachings; it may be true that they who live where the light of the gospel sun has never shone, require religious illumination, but while this is the case, our women require discipline in the gospel order of dressing.

The fact that the present system of dressing is degrading our race, both physically and mentally, is a sufficient argument to set aside the fashions that are the means of leading so many to a premature grave, with spiritual cultivations as much incapacitated for the purities of Heaven, as the heathen who have never known their Creator's rules. Though such persons may rule the society of earth, yet that of Heaven is reserved to meet the wants of the poor and meek, who, though they may fail to shine in the fashionable society of the age, will be among the brightest luminaries that shall adorn the celestial camp.

The writer remarks, respecting these fashionable persons: "These are the persons who rule the street, the car, the parlor, and we might say the churches;" not only might say, but in fact, they do rule nine tenths of the churches of our land, bringing religion to the very feet of the devil himself, the sole author and finisher of fashions. The lady that dresses the finest, that wears the most costly array, and decorates herself with the most gold, and everything which the Scriptures condemn, is esteemed almost a saint, while that poor, meek, humble and plainly dressed sister, scarcely deserves notice among the religious classes. What others may think of such actions, dressed in the garb, we know not, but it simply portrays to our mind the glorious fact, that those whose poverty and Christian-like conduct have made it necessary for them to take the lowest seat in the estimation of those who rule society, will one day be called up higher, to take an honored station among the redeemed faithful.

Give us our chance for Heaven, in the person of a plainly dressed Christian, other things being equal, and we would not give it for all the fashions the world ever dreamed of; in short we want it to be understood, that all who desire a home in Heaven are called upon to divest themselves of all superfluity, and come out from the world and be ye a separate people. This thing of robing the Christian in the devil's garb, is not only a disgrace to Christianity, but at once shows the degredation to which the minds of people have sunk respecting pure religion. Good common sense, simple morality and economy itself, without one particle of divine revelation, ought to be sufficient to deter fallen humanity from such extreme folly. Nor are these evils confined to our silly ladies alone, but they are patronized by some of our most famous preachers, who never say one word against this growing evil, which in short is taking the place of all the religious vitality that formerly adorned the apostolic church.

BRETHREN, the charge is delivered to you to preach the GOSPEL, and how in the name of common sense, this can be done, and never once set forth, in Scriptural truth, 'the gospel order of plain dressing is a mystery to us. Delay not, but set to work, and not only reform the church, but the world. Let the heathen go for the present, we have more work in the line of reformation in dress, &c., at home than all the preachers in the land can perform during their lives.

J. H. MOORE.

Urbana, Ill.

A HORSE'S PETITION TO HIS DRIVER: Up the hill, whip me not; down the hill, hurry me not; in the stable, forget me not; of hay and corn, rob me not; of clean water, stint me not; with sponge and brush, neglect me not; of soft dry bed, deprive me not; if sick or cold, chill me not; with bit and reins, oh! jerk me not; and when you are angry, strike me not.—Our Dumb Animals.

COME UNTO ME.

This language is addressed to those who are laboring under their burden of sin, by one who loved them sufficiently to leave the blissful realms above and come into this sinful world to suffer bleed and die, and is now seated at the right hand of the magesty on High, and is calling in accents full of love, "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

Dear young friends, will you heed the gracious call from Heaven, or will you say, "Go thy way for this time, when I have a convenient season I will call for thee? Do you ever expect to have a more convenient time to come to Jesus than the present, while you are young and in your prime? Do not flatter yourselves with the thought that you have time yet in years to come to attend to the salvation of your soul. We have an account of one that said, "Soul, thou hast much goods laid up for many years, take thine ease, eat drink and be merry," but mark the answer God gave unto him, "Thou fool, this night thy soul shall be required of thee." You have no assurance of your lives. To-day is all that is promised to you, to-morrow may find you in eternity, therefore, to-day if you hear His voice harden not your hearts. Oh! live for Him who died that you might have life, and that you might have it abundantly. Do not procrastinate your day of grace, but consecrate yourselves early to the service of Him who left the glory of Heaven, and became a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief, for your sakes, and purchased redemption for you with His own precious blood. What will you give in return for this amazing love? Will you not sacrifice the few sinful pleasures of this world, and live in such a way and manner that may qualify you for the courts of Heaven, a home in the many mansions which our Savior has gone to prepare?

Dear young brethren and sisters, let us not be discouraged, though we may have trials and persecutions. Let us look beyond this, knowing that these light afflictions which are but for a moment work for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory, for if God be for us who can be against us? Let us rather rejoice that we are counted worthy to suffer temptations for the sake of Him who suffered for us. Let us try, by the help of the Lord, to be faithful, that when our days of pilgrimage are over, we may receive the crown of glory that fadeth not away reserved in Heaven for the faithful.

MARTHA TROXEL.

Nankin, Ohio.

Every man, rich or poor, ought to have some great absorbing purpose, some active engagements in which his energies are devoted. Duty, daily duty, not enjoyment—must be the aim of each life. No man has a right to live upon the fair earth, to breathe its fair air, to consume its food, to enjoy its beauties, producing nothing in return.

THE OLD LAND MARKS.

Remove not the ancient landmark which our fathers have set. Prov. 22: 28.

Unsettled boundary lines between neighbors lead to animosity and strife. In religion the consequences are still more fatal. Multitudes who live on the border between the church and the world, imagine that they are only on friendly terms with their neighbors, when, in reality, they are in the same spiritual kingdom with them. The world loves them because they are of the world. This is plainly declared by Christ, If ye were of the world, the world would love his own: but because ye are not of the world, but I have chosen you out of the world, therefore the world hateth you, John 15: 19. By the world here is meant all unconverted persons. When men become Christians they become unlike the world. They have passed from the kingdom of darkness into the kingdom of light.

Their aim is different. Worldly men aim at securing the advantages of the world. They make this their study. Their energies are expended in gratifying their bodily appetites, or endeavoring to secure wealth, or fame, or pleasure. Real christians live for an object wholly different. Their aim is to please God. To lay up their treasures in heaven engages their thoughts, employs all their powers of body and mind, and nerves them up to ceaseless activity. They are not understood by the world. If they are men of talent, they are pronounced weak and foolish, because, as is alleged, they do not employ their talents to better advantage. No matter how sound they may appear to be in judgment, or how successful they may be in accomplishing whatever they undertake, the simple fact that they make the service of God the business of life, is taken as conclusive evidence of some concealed weakness of intellect. Though the times have changed, there is a boundary line between the church and the world that no one has the right to remove. That is their place. They have no business in the Church of Jesus Christ. That was made for a different class of persons altogether. Their spirit is different.

He whose claims are worldly, has, of necessity a worldly spirit. It cannot be otherwise. It is natural. He may be educated and polished: but under that refined air, pride and ambition and selfishness reign supreme. Strong winds cause the surface of a river to run up stream, but, underneath, the great body of water is making its way undisturbed toward the ocean. So, powerful influences may give to a selfish man the appearance of benevolence; a sinner the semblance of a saint, but his goodness is short-lived in its duration, and limited in its influence. The Ethiopian cannot change his skin, nor the leopard his spots.

The Christian is a man of meek and humble spirit. So far from seeking the honor that comes from men, he does not recieve it when freely offered. Flattery takes no hold upon him. He seeks the approbation of God, and with that he is satisfied.

There is a wide difference in the practice of the men of the world and true Christians. This results necessarily from the difference in their aims and spirit. If the trees are unlike in kind, there is an unlikeness in the fruit. Whether Christian act is an organized capacity or as individuals, they act unlike the world. The means employed to build up secular organizations should never be resorted to by the church, no matter how rapidly they might swell its numbers, or multiply its influence. It was not by selling pews, fostering pride, furnishing fine music, and glittering rhetorical displays, that the primitive church was multiplied, but by walking in the fear of God and in the comfort of the Holy Ghost.

In his methods of doing business, and in his private walk, the saint differs widely from the sinner. He does not act from impulse, but from a settled principle to do right. He has a due regard to the interests of others as well as his own. He is not only honest when honesty appears to be the best policy, but he is downright honest at all times.

His tastes have been changed—the theatre, the race course, the novel have no attractions for him. He drinks of the river of God's pleasure, and is happy in the assurance that his name is registered in the Lamb's Book of life.

Cursed is he that removeth the landmark between the church and the world. The line of demarkation was drawn distinctly by Jesus Chsist himself, and no body of ministers have any right to obliterate it in any of its parts. Let it stand out so plain that every one may readily know to which side he belongs.

Christ has no concord with Belial, however much Belial may desire it. No matter what overtures of peace Belial may make, the servants of Christ are not allowed to make peace on any other terms than those of unconditional surrender. They must in reality renounce the devil and all his works before they can be received into the ranks of Jesus Christ. Vice is always ready to associate with virtue. Gamblers and thieves would require no persuasion to consent to live on terms of friendly intercourse and social equality with honest citizens. Virtue is exclusive in its very nature. Christianity is the embodiment of virtue in its highest forms It cannot unite with the world without losing its distinctive character. It may retain its name, but its essential elements be gone.

Whosoever therefore will be a friend of the world is the enemy of God.—Earnest Worker.

WHAT CONSTITUTES A LIE.

That little word spelled L-I-E, is in very common use in these days in which we live. Men small and great, common men and uncommon men, large boys and little boys, frequently indulge in the use of this little, yet very insignificant word. But, often as it is used, it is a word that has a much wider range than is commonly allowed it. Now, to what is it applicable? Does it simply apply to the telling of something that has no foundation in truth, a fabrication gotten up and published by some mischievous or malicious person, for the purpose of injuring others, either in their business or character, of whose success or good name they are jealous? This seems to be the common way of applying it, and it is no doubt correct so far as it goes.

But does it go far enough. The man or woman who will maliciously fabricate and publish an unqualified falsehood, for any purpose, is certainly entitled to the name of liar, with all its honors and emoluments. And the influence of such persons as these is amply sufficient to keep strife and discord alive, if there were no other characters belonging to the same family to help them on with their noble work. Who is there that cannot call up cases of strife and discord, in families, churches and communities, readily traceable to the contemptible work of this class of falsifiers? and there are few, if any, communities that are exempt from their pernicious influence.

But, mean as this class of people are, or ruinous as their influence may be, they are not the only ones worthy of bearing the name of liar. The person who is asked by another for a simple statement of facts known to be in his possession, for the information of parties interested, and who states but half the facts, and thereby presents the matter in a false light, with the design to mislead and deceive said parties, is certainly no better than the man who tells an unqualified falsehood, for both had the same object in view, and the same end was reached in both cases namely, deception.

The person who meets you on the street and greets you with a smile, and takes your hand with a friendly grasp, and makes you believe by his friendly exterior that he is your friend and then in your absence acts as your enemy, is certainly but little better than a liar. It is true it is not called by that name in common parlance, but where is the difference? One utters a lie in words, the other acts it out and it has been truly said: "that actions speak louder than words." The person who mixes truth and falsehood together, and weaves it in such a nice, plausible way that it cannot easily be detected, and misleads public opinion in regard to others, and places his fellows in a false light before the world, is worse than the man who tells an outright falsehood, as there is no class of falsifiers whose stories are so hard to detect or upset as those who dose the public with lies sugar-coated with truth.

The man who utters falsehoods without any foundation in truth, is more easily detected. When the end is once found, the whole story can be easily unraveled. Not so with the more genteel liars; their stories are so interwoven with truth that it is extremely difficult to separate the one from the other, and it is often the case that persons have to bear the reproach for years, heaped upon them through the influence of this class of falsifiers. The person who tells an untruth for the purpose of deceiving or injuring others, is certainly bad enough. Those who keep back part of the truth for the purpose of deception are mean; but those who mix truth and falsehood together, using enough of truth to deceive and mislead, are worse in principle, and meaner in character, than either of the others.

UPHOLD YOUR OWN.—One of the principal papers of our State, after an experience extending almost a hundred years, says most sensibly: Does it ever for an instant occur to the business man that it is a solemn duty to support the local paper of his neighborhood? What is it but the well-conducted newspaper that makes his city or town? What constantly and gratuitously advertises it to the world as a place of interest and importance? What daily or weekly makes known to the whole earth the simple fact that such a place as where he strives to gain a livelihood has existence in the atlas? It is the local paper. Now, we venture to say that not the one-tenth part of the business people of any city in the country spend any money in the way of judicious advertising. True, they take the paper, but it is not because they feel any duty devolving upon them to afford it support. Their subscriptions are measurably of no account. If advertisements were not given by others, the papers would cease to live despite the prompt payment of subscribers. Show us a local paper well filled with live advertisements and we will at once take stock in the enterprise and business tact of the people who live where the journal is published. The outside world judges more of the place by the newspaper it publishes than from any other sign. It is therefore a matter of great moment that the local journal of the city, town and village should be well supported, for it, above all other things, contributes to the general prosperity.

GOOD, kind, true, holy words dropped in conversation may be little thought of, but they are like seeds of flower or beautiful tree falling by the wayside, borne by some bird afar, haply thereafter to fringe with beauty some barren mountain-side, or to make glad some lowly wilderness.

A soft answer turneth away wrath, but grievious words stir up anger.

Youth's Department.

WATCH, MOTHER.

Mother, watch the little feet
Climbing o'er the garden wall,
Bounding through the busy street,
Ranging cellar, shed and hall,
Never mind the moments lost;
Never mind the time it cost;
Little feet will go astray—
Guide them, mother, while you may.

Mother, watch the little hand
Plucking berries by the way,
Making houses in the sand,
Tossing up the fragrant hay;
Never dare the question ask,
"What to me the weary task?"
These same little hands may prove
Messengers of light and love.

Mother, watch the little tongue
Prattling eloquent and wild,
What is said and what is sung
By the joyous, happy child;
Watch the word while yet unspoken
Stop the vow before 'tis broken,
This same tongue may yet proclaim
Blessings in the Savior's name.

Mother, watch the little heart,
Beating soft and warm for you;
Wholesome lessons now impart,
Keep, oh! keep that young heart true.
Extricating every weed,
Sowing good and precious seed,
Harvest rich you then may see,
Ripe for eternity.

LET US ABIDE THE TIME.

Here we are again, but how very negligent we have become! The last time we wrote, we thought we were so closely attached to our young readers, and so interested in their welfare that we would devote a spare hour every week to our "Youth's Department," but time has robbed us of our intentions and in consequence, weeks and even months have passed since we formed those, we believe, good intentions.

Dear young friends, we need not tell you that we are living in a fast age, because the spirit of progress is so powerfully stamped upon every young mind that we can see it cropping out in almost every movement. This fast American notion planted, or rather born in us, may have many good qualities, but it undoubtedly has some evil tendancies and leads to bad ends.

In passing down the road the other evening, when within about a mile and a half of Huntingdon, our train or road was blockaded by a car that had been thrown off the track, which gave us about a half hour to wait and for observation. Soon we saw this restless disposition cropping out. Comments were abundant. Some called it a "slow go," others thought they had better encamp for the night, and others felt sure they would not get away any more that day. After an untold number of remarks, there was a general raid on the conductor; "How soon will the train start?" After having answered until he thought he was around, he began to feel as if he was bored, but still the queries continued to come; "how long"—"how long," until he became weary and filled their inquisitiveness with such answers as he thought adapted to the occasion. Impatience grew stronger and stronger until a move was made to get out and walk. This met a pretty general approval, but the possibility of the train starting soon and passing them by the way, became another question. At last an old and decrepit man with silvered locks and more impatience than prudence, thought to give the company an example of pluck by leading the way and "off he goes." He could not "abide the time." Soon the engine began to steam, puff and whistle, and "off she goes." By the time we made half the distance, we overtook the old man plodding along with staff in hand, sweating and blowing as if determined to out time us, but soon he was left in the rear, no doubt profiting by the lesson he had learned, that it is best to abide by the time.

How many of our young readers act just as simple as did the old man? If you ever expect to become good and wise, you must learn to wait on the train, or abide the time. This modern habit of jumping at conclosions is often dangerous and causes a doing over again, that which was only half done.

Patience is a quality or prineiple that generally leads to success. By patience, we mean a willingness to wait.

Little Eddie has a little pile of wood to chop. He calmly and quietly sits about the work, stroke after stroke is made without the least sign of impatience, and stick after stick is added to the, at first, small beginning, until it grows beautifully large, and the task disappears so fast that he almost wonders at his own success. He has learned a great lesson; "to abide the time."

Across the way lives impatient Bill. He has the same amount of wood to chop and the same time to do it in, but he is a fast boy. He first examines the work and then sits down and mourns over its greatness until the work should be half done, then commences the work with all possible haste in order to have it done in a very short time. His speed is rapid at first, but soon he tires, the strokes grow lighter and still lighter, until at last he is fagged, and the work is left unfinished. Now this is because he was not willing to abide the time. Had he, like Eddie, commenced the work at once and went about it patiently, he could have completed it just as easily as did Eddie. So it is in everything else we undertake to do. We must not try to force things or get a head of time. Time is just like a train, if we abide with it we get along nicely, even if we have to wait a little sometimes, but if we try to go ahead of it, we lose it, and always come out behind. We just now think of a narrative we read of in the Bible at one of our morning lessons. David, the king had a foolish son who wanted to be king but was not willing to abide his time, rebelled against his father and raised an army to destroy him, but in his impatience he displeased God and fell in the battle. Had he abided his time and waited until after his father's death, he would have been made king by virtue of his position. Like the old man, the train passed him and he was left to perish.

At this battle there we two men called runners, and they both wished to run and tell the king of the death of his son, but one of them was a fast young man and, like the old man, went ahead of the train. He had went before the conquered army and did not see the death of the king's son while the other one remained with the army and saw the whole affair. The fast young man wished to run but he had no tidings, therefore the captain told him that he should wait until another day, by that time he might have some tidings to hear, and commanned the one who had tidings to run. But the young man was fast and must run; finally he was allowed to run, and by being fleet of foot, he out ran the other and fell down at the kings feet, crying "all is well," but when he was asked, "is the young man safe?" he had no tidings. He saw a great tumult but did not know what it was. Soon the other came with tidings in his mouth and the fast young man was made stand aside because he had nothing to tell. If he had abided his time until the next day he might have learned some important news to take to the king and thus been honored before him.

From these circumstances we hope our young readers will learn an important lesson. Always abide your time and never undertake to do anything until you are prepared to do it well, and according to some system In this life we are all runners and have tidings to take to our King Jesus, but if we wish to have tidings to give, we must enter the Kings army and be present at all his battles, so that when we are called to run we may have tidings in our mouth, or in other words, we must abide the time and wait until the battle is over and the victory won.

A PROVERB ILLUSTRATED.

BY JOSEPH ALDEN, D. D.

To do justice and judgement is more acceptable to the Lord than sacrifice.—Prov. 21: 3.

"Is this a good article?" said a customer to Mr. Salsbury, a prosperous country merchant. "I am not a judge of it, and I must depend upon your recommendation."

"I hope you don't think I would knowingly sell you anything but a good article. I call it a good article, and I think I am a pretty good judge."

"You may cut me off twelve yards of it."

The cloth was cut off and delivered and paid for, and the customer left the store.

Mrs. Salsbury happened to be in the store when the sale was made. She thought that the fabric was not what it appeared to be, and was sorry to hear her husband say what he did respecting it.

"I was sorry to hear you recommend it so strongly," said Mrs. Salsbury. "I am very sure that there is some cotton in it."

"I bought it for a genuine article, and I must sell it as I buy it. I can't insure all the goods I buy and sell. I should soon be a poor man if I did. Besides, I did not recommend it strongly. I didn't say it was a good article, though I have no doubt it is as good as any he would be likely to find; I said I called it a good article. I didn't say I was a good judge; I said I believed I was a good judge. The truth is, my dear, that you don't understand the business of selling goods. It would be impossible to carry on business as you would have it carried on."

"I can't see that telling the exact truth would be out of the way in doing business."

"If I were to tell every customer exactly what I think of the goods, I should not be able to sell anything. There are certain business usages that business men must conform to."

"Suppose those usages conflict with the law of God?"

"They don't usually; of course when they do come in conflict, the law of God must be obeyed."

When Mrs. Salsbury had retired, her husband felt a little uneasy. He didn't seem to be quite satisfied with what he had done, and with the principles he had laid down.

His thoughts were, in a measure, diverted from the subject by the entrance of new customers.

When they had gone he thought of his subscription to the missionary cause; it was made on the previous Sabbath, but had not been paid. He resolved that as soon as he had closed the store he would call on the treasurer and double his subscription.

At 9 o'clock he closed the store, losing thereby the opportunity of selling some few articles, and called on the treasurer. "I have called to pay my subscription," said, he handing him double the amount that stood opposite his name.

"Did you intend to double your subscription?" asked the treasurer, he counted the money.

"Yes; I can't really afford to do it; but some sacrifices must be made, and I suppose I may as well make them as any one."

The treasurer was a very humble man, and was not in the habit of calling the motives of his brethren in question. He was glad to hear Mr. Salsbury make the remarks he did, and to receive the pecuniary proof of his sincerity.

If he he had known what had taken place at the store, and the causes which prompted Mr. Salsbury to double his subscription, he would, perhaps, have been reminded of the passage, "To do justice and judgment is more acceptable to the Lord than sacrifice." There is no such thing as atoning for our sins by special acts of sacrifice. Christ tells us that when we have done all, we have done only that which it is our duty to do.—Christian Advocate.

CORRESPONDENCE

A Reporter is wanted from every Church in the brotherhood to send us Church news, Obituaries, Announcements or anything that will be of general interest. To insure insertion, the writers name must accompany each communication. Our invitation is not personal but general—please respond to our call.

Brethren of the Pilgrim:—When I stray "let the righteous smite me; it shall be a kindness, and let him reprove me, it shall be an excellent oil which shall not break my head." Your letter of the 7th inst., was received yesterday, reminding me in a gentle and Christian-like spirit of my omission of duty. But the gentle whisperings of the "still small voice" were sometimes in advance urging on to duty, and in some small degree to make amends to my dear brethren of James Creek. I confess to the trespass on your patience and kindness, and will hope to be more active in the near future.

Relative to business matters, I thought the draft on brother P. C. was honored as I heard nothing to the contrary, though I was disappointed in not seeing a notice of it in the PILGRIM. Enclosed find amount collected.

My apology for not communicating for "our paper" is found in the infirm state of my health. I have been very infirm this Summer, not too weak to write for our dear PILGRIM, but undue mental exercise was not favorable to the successful influence of the remedies used for my restoration.

For several years I have been threatened with dyspepsia, and this Summer it was about to resume a chronic form and I found it necessary to use vigorous measures to overcome it. For several months I was barely able to keep up our regular appointments, and at one time I thought it would be a duty to myself and the cause to suspend them altogether, until I could be sufficiently restored, to hope for permanent health. About that time my mother and brother went to "Our Home" in Dansville, New York, and through their advice and instruction, and the blessing of the Great Physician, I succeeded in turning the tide favorably and now I am improving rapidly.

We consider ourselves very unfortunate as a congregation, especially during the present season. Bro. Peter Crumpacker, our co-laborer, has been on a visit to his children in the West since the first of May, and our energetic and influential brother A. Crumpacker is still wholly unable to divide with me the arduous duties of the ministry. His infirmities are still severe, and the church suffers the loss of his services now when she is ill able to bear it. Brethren when it is well with you remember us.

We are cut off from the aid of the neighboring churches measurably by intervening mountains, and on every hand, the "Macedonian cry" comes to us "come and help us." But we cannot go. The weak and infirm state of our corps of laborers absolutely forbid. Our only hope is, through prayer, that God will aid us with the purpose and power to do and suffer for His holy cause.

Yours Truly,
D. C. MOOMAW.

CENTER VIEW, Mo., }
September 1, '72. }

Dear Pilgrim:—This beautiful Sabbath finds me at the stand to meet the request in part of a writer in No. 35, soliciting some one to give him a history of a religious sect calling themselves Congregational Brethren. This is a name that I am familiar with here in the West from hearsay, but not personally acquainted with what they practice, but this I do know, they come short of what I call Brethren.

This is the first time it came to my notice that they are our Brethren who have backslidden or fallen away, but if this be the case, it is what we may look for and more than this, knowing the spirit of some of that class so well. It appears from the reading of the piece before me, to be the intention of the writer to warn our brethren who contend for the single mode of feetwashing, to beware of that sect. From this they most practice that for one thing and since I have thought over the matter I and the writer will differ on that, I say that it is the very thing to try the church and sift out the chaff. Now here are my reasons for saying what I do. There are two small arms of our church that I know to be very contentious in many things and single mode is one of the principle things they talk about and they always commence by saying, they wish to fulfill the law to the letter. It is strange, yea, very strange, that many of those single mode brethren, whom I can call to mind are so strict for the letter of the law, or, in other words, doing and appearing just like the Savior did in that one thing and very slack in many others. For one thing, there are numbers of that class when it comes to the humble appearance of our Good Master, they loose sight of Him, such as wearing his hair of a medium length and parting it on top or centre of the head. Many of these brethren war against the decisions of Annual Meeting, and to my knowledge, teach for doctrine the commandments of men by saying to their members, "you need not be so precise in uniforming in the order of the Brethren as you are holy without it, and to the sisters, they can dispose of the covering if they don't feel like wearing it." Now this is my mind. Let all who wish to run upon an outside track, go where they tolerate this "elastic anyway religion," just as a man thinks so be it unto him, and there they can be at ease and do and act with the gaudy of the day, for as it is a new thing, they will go for number in place of order, and furthermore, I say in the concluding of these broken remarks, that a withdrawal to my mind, is preferable to a division. We want no corruption nor cisms among us and let all who wish, depart, go in peace.

Your unworthy brother,
JACOB CRUMPACKER.

There is such a thing as being over zealous, even in a good cause. We have no doubt but what Bro. Crumpacker has a goodly zeal for the "old or ancient landmark," but it is not good to be too radical in things that we have no direct, "thus saith the Lord for."

While we love and respect the order of the Brethren, we would not like to stigmatize others with teaching for doctrine, the commandments of men, and at the same time contend for parting the hair on the middle of the head as being of divine authority. This item of knowledge is gathered from profane history and no doubt is truth from the fact that he wore his hair after the manner of the Nazarenes and history tells us that this was the prevailing custom, but be this as it may, we should not preach it as Bible doctrine. This and the cut of the garment was adopted by the Brethren because, at the time, it was thought expedient, and we hold to it because we are not to follow the vain maxims of the world.

To attache all departures from the "order" to those brethren who are favorable to single mode in feetwashing is certainly a mistake, as some of our most humble, honest and zealous brethren hold that opinion and think they have good Bible authority for it. Therefore we are not so willing that they should depart for such petty differences of opinion. Far better, dear brethren, bear with each other a little and try and reconcile these difficulties. We are in favor of reconciliation. Christ came not to condemn but to save. When we enter the church of God, we become the Lamb's wife and by "departing in peace," and wedding another we become adulterers in the sight of God. No, dear brethren and sisters, let us not, for these little differences of opinion, destroy our baptismal covenant and thus be severed from the true vine stalk to die, eternally die. In laboring for peace and union, we need not sacrifice any principle of our holy religion, but we must sacrifice our own stubborn will. Then brethren let us labor, let us suffer and let us pray for Zion and the healing of her wounds. We desire the salvation of all men, and especially the household of faith. "Blessed are the peace makers, for they shall be called the children of God."

HOLLIDAYSBURG, PA., }
Sept. 10th, 1872. }

Dear Bro. Brumbaugh: In my last, I stated that August 31st was the day appointed for our church meeting, at which time a goodly number of the brethren and sisters assembled for the occasion, we trust in the fear of the Lord. Brethren J. W. Brumbaugh and D. M. Holsinger of Clover Creek, and bro. W. H. Quinn of Tyrone were present. We were not present at the commencement of the meeting, but the business transacted during our presence, we hope was done in God's fear, and that He smiled upon those of His children that were present. Two sisters were reclaimed. We do pray that since these dear sisters have again concluded to be lambs of Jesus fold, that they will try more perseveringly to be more than conquerors, and live faithful even unto the end of the world. The time appointed for our Communion season is Thursday and Friday, Sept. 19th and 20th commencing at 4 o'clock, p. m. Bro. H. R Holsinger, expects to be present on the occasion. We trust other dear brethren and sisters will also be present with us, and that we may have a blessed season of refreshment which may be remembered by us.

Your sister in Christ.
E. R. STIFLER.

Announcements.

LOVEFEASTS.

DUNNINGS CREEK, Bedford co., Pa., Oct. 19th at 4 o'clock, p. m.

RIVER FALLS Church, Pierce co., Wis. Sept. 7th, 10 o'clock, a. m.

CONEMAUGH Church, Cambria co., Pa., Sept. 13, at 4 o'clock, p. m.

BLACK RIVER Congregation, Medina co., Ohio, Oct. 9th.

LOST CREEK, Juniata co., Pa., Oct 16th, at 1 o'clock, p. m.

BELL CREEK Church, Dodge co., Neb., September 21st.

Waldam's Grove, Stephenson county, Ill., Oct. 12th and 13th.

Meadow Branch, Md., Saturday October 12th. Commencing at half past 1 o'clock p. m.

Sam's Creek, Md., Tuesday, October 15th, commencing at half past 1 o'clock p. m.

Hamilton Branch, 4 miles North of Hamilton, Daviess Co., Mo., Oct. 12th 2 o'clock p. m. To continue over Sunday.

Clarian Church, Clarian Co., Pa., Oct. 5th and 6th.

Howard Congregation, Howard Co., Ind, Oct. 17th. Those coming by railway will find conveyance at Kokomo on the day previous.

Okaw Church, Piatt Co., Ill., Oct 9th, at at 10 o'clock a. m.

Bethel church, Holt Co., Mo., September 14th, 15th, at 4 o'clock p. m.

Clover Creek, Blair Co., Pa., Oct. 17th; 18th, at 4 p. m.

Salem Congregation Frederick Co., Va. Saturday and Sunday, 14th and 15th of September. Commencing at 1 o'clock p. m

At the house of Daniel Glicks, Andrew co., Mo., October 5th, commencing at 4 o'clock, p. m. Meeting will be continued if aid can be obtained. Address Daniel Glick, Flag Spring, or J. B. Basbor, Whitesville, Andrew co., Mo.

The brethren of Yellow Creek, Bedford co., Pa., will hold their Communion Meeting, Tuesday, October 15th, commencing at 4 o'clock, p. m. The usual invitation is given.

The brethren of Raccoon, Ind., have appointed their Communion Meeting on the 10th of Oct., and give a general invitation. Ladogn is the R. R. Station. Meeting 14 miles north-west of town. R. H. Millea.

Dear Pilgrim:—Please aonounce that the Brethren at Brownville Washing county, Md., will hold their Lovefeast on the 5th and 6th of Octotober, commencing at 10 o'clock.

Brownsville is immediately on the railroad from Hagerstown to Hapersferry. Can be approached from Hagerstown, 6.30 a. m. 12 m. 5 p. m. From the south, 7 a. m. 12 m. 1.30 p. m. We would be pleased to have brethren and sisters with us, especially ministering brethren. E. Slifer.

Dear Brethren:—Please announce in the Pilgrim that, the Lord willing, we intend to have our Lovefeast in the Dryvalley Meeting house Mifflin co., Pa., Oct. 15, commencing at 1 o'clock P. M. Preaching next day until noon. We give an invitation to all who may have a desire to be with us, especially to the ministering brethren. Jacob Mohler

Dear Brethren: Please announce through the Pilgrim, that we, the brethren of East Nimishillen Congregation, Stark co, Ohio, intend, the Lord willing, to hold a Lovefeast in our Meeting-house on Saturday the 28th day of September, beginning in the forenoon, as usual, and continuing the next day. A hearty invitation is given to all, especially to the ministering brethren.

Henry Brumbaugh.

Beloved Brethren: —Please publish through the Pilgrim, that the Church at Falling Springs, Franklin county, Pa., intend, the Lord willing, to hold a Communion meeting at the Antrim Meeting-house, near Kauffman's Station, on Tuesday the 15th of October, commencing at 10 o'clock A. M. An invitation is given to all, and especially ministering brethren. David Bock.

Dear Brethren:—Please announce through the Pilgrim, that we have appointed our Communion meeting in the Salimony arm of the Church, Huntington Co., Ind., on the 25th of September, the Lord willing, to which is given a hearty invitation. Those coming on the railroad, will stop at Huntington the day before the meeting. Samuel Murray.

Bro. Henry:—Please announce in your paper that we expect to hold our Communion meeting on the 12th of October, the Lord willing, at the Hopewell Church, Woodcock Valley, Pa., to commence at 4 o'clock P. M., and meeting next day. The usual invitation is given, especially to ministering brethren.

Eld. Jacob Steel.

Dear Pilgrim:—The Brethren of Mansfield Co., Ohio. intend holding their Lovefeast on the 25th of Sept. 4 miles North of Mansfield, at the house of Samuel Martin.

Isaac Whisler.

Our Communion meeting will be held at the James Creek Church, Huntingdon Co., Pa., on Saturday, October 19th, services to continue over Sabbath. Pilgrims are cordially invited to be with us, especially those who labor in word and doctrine.

George Brumbaugh.

Beloved Brethren:—Please announce that we, the brethren of the Milmine Church, in Piatt county Ill., intend, the Lord willing, to hold a Lovefeast on the 17th of October, commencing at 10 o'clock A. M. Invitation is given to all, especially to ministering brethren. Those coming by railroad, will stop off at Milmine or Cerrogorda.

David Troxel.

If the Lord will, there will be a Lovefeast in the Antietum Congregation, at Welty's Meeting-house, Washington county, Md., on the 10th of October, commencing at 10 o'clock A. M. The usual invitation is given. Members desiring to be with us arriving at Hagerstown on the early or ferenoon trains, leaving at 2 o'clock on the Western Maryland Road, in 20 minutes will arrive at Smithsburg, 2 miles from the place of meeting.

Joseph F. Rohrer.

District Meeting.

Southern Ill., in the Ottercreek Church at the Pleasant Hill Meetinghouse, 3 miles south-west of Virdin, Macoupin co., Monday, Oct. 14th. A Communion Meeting at the same place on Saturday before.

DIED.

BECHTAL.—In the Clover Creek congregation, Blair county Pa., August 30th, '72, Little Dannie, son of brother Joseph and sister Julia Bechtal, aged 2 years, 3 months and 4 days. Funeral services by G. W. Brumbaugh of Clover Creek, and George Brumbaugh of James Creek.

The dear and loving little Dannie is no more, his prattling tones are hushed in death. No more will a fond mother feel the warm embrace or kiss the rosy cheek. Father too, will deeply feel the loss, and often miss the one that filled an important place in the family circle, but why repine at the Divine decree? He is only gone over the stream. God has laid the little treasure up for you—has taken the little lamb into His fold where he shall await your arrival once more to press the loving form and imprint the loving kiss. Then fond parents, weep not for you shall meet Dannie again in Heaven.

DOYLE.—Sister Catharine Doyle of the Montgomery congregation, was buried on Tuesday the 6th of August '72, aged 63 years. The congregation was addressed by the brethren from the subject of the happy resurrection of the saints, Thess. 4, 14-16.

She was a member of the Campbellite party for about 24 years, when about 7 years ago she became convinced that she could not follow her Lord and Master in that connection and united with the Brethren, and continued faithful with us 'till the hour of her deliverance. She was a sister of exemplary piety and virtue, and though poor in the goods of this world, she was rich in good works and secured for herself the esteem of all her acquintances.

A very large concourse of friends attended the funeral and burial services, testifying thus their sympathy and esteem for her virtues, and in behalf of the bereaved husband and children.

D. C. Moomaw.

EBY.—In the White Oak Church, Lancaster Co., Pa., August 27th, 1872, Barbara, daughter of brother Benjamin and sister Sybilla R. Eby, aged 2 months, and 14 days. Funeral services by John Oibble, David Garlach and Samuel Grabill, from Job, 14; 13.

Farewell my little Barbara,
Thou hast from sorrow gone.
And left parents and sisters,
Deeply thy loss to mourn.

I miss thee O, sweet Barbara,
But my loss is your great gain;
For this world is naught but trouble,
Temptation, toil and pain.

We will strive to meet thee,
When our Father's will is done;
And live with thee forever,
Round God's eternal throne.

Mother.

NICODEMAS.—September 9th, in North Woodbury township, Rose, infant daughter of Samuel and Mary Nicodemas, aged 15 days.

SHIFFLER.—September 6th, 1872, in Taylor township, Blair county Pa., Harriet, daughter of Samuel and Elizabeth Shiffler, aged 29 years, 10 monhts and 3 days.

The Weekly Pilgrim.

JAMES CREEK, PA., Sept. 17th, 1872.

Jos. Rittenhouse: John Beichler's Pilgrim is sent, Lovina Marsh's address changed and the money all right.

Mary Hoover: We are sorry to say the $1.25 was not received. The Pilgrim is now sent.

S. J. Garber: The mite is accepted and the Pilgrim sent.

D. B. M.: Yes, we did but it was returned by P. M., marked "not lifted." Perhaps he did not know it was sent.

Jacob Mohler: The list of appointments are intended for 1873. If you intend to run your appointments through the coming year we could make up your list showing the place and time of every appointment for the coming year That is the design, but unless we get a number more, we will not make the table.

Eld. Samuel Murray: We received the $1.25, also the postal order. All right.

CROWDED OUT.

Our regular editorial on account of other matter was crowded out this week, with some other copy intended for this week.

THE NEW ROUTE.

We wish to inform our travelling brethren from West to East or East to West, that by taking the Coonelsville road at Pittsburgh they can come right through by James Creek were we would be much pleased to have them stop or call at the Pilgrim Office. Those going from East to West will change cars at Huntingdon, and take the H. & B. T. R. R. This road is under improvement and will soon be as good as any other road in the State. After the 19th of this month, the Penna. Central cars will run through from Huntingdon to Cumberland.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

The brethren and friends of the Montgomery Congregation who have subscribed for the Pilgrim and are in arrears, will please allow me to remind them that I am desirous to forward all dues to the office, and am ready at any time to wait on them.

Yours as ever,

D. C. Moomaw.

Elder J. S. Flory, says: In church matters we are still making some progress—some additions lately by baptism. Our Communion meetings are as follows: Near Meadow Bluff, Greenbriar county, September 14th and 15th, in this county, Fayette, at sister Master's, 16th and 17th, at our Meeting-house, 19th and 20th.

We call attention to farm for sale in our columns this week. We learn bro. Frantz has been unfortunate during the last few years and is so involved that he must sell his farm at a great sacrifice. It can be bought of him privately for ten dollars per acre and probably something less. Any one wanting such a property had better go and see it.

Important Notice.

We want some one in every church in the brotherhood to send us the name and address of every minister in their respective churches who are not taking the Pilgrim, (those that are taking it we have.) As a compensation for this information, we will send free to every one that reports, a splendidly gotten up Pilgrim Almanac containing everything belonging to a first class Almanac, with quite a number of biographies of prominent ministering brethren never before written, also other important church information with an improved "Ministerial Record" different from anything ever published. We make this demand for the sake of peace and to avoid giving offence, and hope that some one, in every church, will respond at once. Also if there are any ministers who have been elected within the last year not yet reported, send us their names and address. In every address please give the county. We want this information as soon as we can possibly get it. Address

H. B. Brumbaugh
James Creek,
Huntingdon Co., Pa.

MONEY LIST.

B. B. Brumbaugh	$1.60
Abraham Hess	2.50
Annie Deibl	1.00
A. C. Neff	.60
Emma Rohrer	5.00
Allen Boyer	4.65
C. H. Walker	12.75
Thomas Owens	1.00
Noah Flora	.80
J. S. Flory	2.50
Dr. P. Fahrney's Bros. & Co.	20.50
D. C. Moomaw	5.00
E. R. Stifler	1.40

GENERAL INTELLIGENCE.

One flash of lightning killed thirty-two sheep during a recent thunder storm at Barnwell, S. C.

The net profits of the Etna Iron works, at Rome, Ga., is four hundred and twenty five dollars a day.

Twenty springs of clear cold water have been found near Waterloo, Ala., in the space of a square mile.

Among the remarkable mineral discoveries recently made are the Jolpin lead mines, in Jasper county Missouri.

A new stock law is about to go into effect in Illinois, under which no domestic animals will be allowed to run at large.

A man in Howard county, Kansas, is growing what he calls Japanese wheat, very much resembling millet or Hungarian grass. It yields several tons to the acre, and is said to be excellent food for cattle and horses. It is already from five to six feet high.

Iron Rails.

The exports of iron rails from Great Britain for the month ending July 31 were 84,563 tons; of this amount 41,805 tons were to this country—nearly one half of the total export. For the seven months of the calender year the total exports of iron rails have amounted to 532,305 tons, of which 300,316 tons were to this coontry, against a total export of 564,472 tons to same time last year, and an export to this country of 287,169 tons.

How to Quit Tobacco.

The best thing to hold in the mouth is a mouthful of cold water, renewed every few minutes. It will take away the craving for tobacco quicker than anything else, and is wholly unobjectionable. A pine stick is the best of anything to chew, but the objection to that, and to anything that is chewed, is that it over-exercises and weakens the salivary glands. In quitting the use of tobacco, quit at once, and not attempt to leave off gradually.—Herald of Health.

The Chinese Tea Crop.

The Shanghai News Letter reports that the tea crop does not come up to the first expectations of it. It had been thought that it would be largely in excess of last year, instead of which the direct shipments for Hankow to the end of June were less by 1,500,000 pounds than last year, and the same is true at Shanghai and Foochow. The amount afloat for Europe from Hankow has been further reduced by the wreck of the steamer Parnassus, having on board over 1,500,000 pounds. The Peruvian Consel at Macao has been sentenced to fourteen years imprisonment for attempting to drown the engineer of a steamer.

GOOD BOOKS.

A large number of our patrons are receiving our books as noticed below, as premiums, and express themselves highly pleased with them. Others who are not agents, have enquired whether we keep them for sale. We have now made arrangements with Mr. Wells to furnish any of their publications post paid at publishers prices. Orders for books must be accompanied with the cash, and plain directions for seeding them.

Conversion of St. Paul. By George Jarvis Geer, D. D. 12mo. fine edition, $1. Plain edition, 75 cents.

Footprints of Life; or, Faith and Nature Reconciled.—A Poem in three parts. The Body. The Soul. The Deity. By Philip Harvey, M. D. $1.25.

Fruit Culture for the Million. A Hand book. being a Guide to the Cultivation and Management of Fruit Trees. Descriptions of the Best Varieties, and How to Propagate them. illustrated $1.00.

Hand-book for Home Improvement: comprising "How to Write," "How to Talk," How to Behave," and "How to do Business," in one vol. 2.25.

How to Live; Saving and Wasting, or Domestic Economy. By Solon Robinson. $1.50.

Life at Home; or, The Family and its Members. Husbands, Wives, Parents, Children, Brothers, Sisters, Employers and Employed, etc. By Rev. William Aikman, D. D. A work which should be found in every family. $1.50. Extra gilt, $2.00.

Man and Woman: Considered in their Relations to each Other and to the World. By Henry C. Pedder. 12mo, Fancy cloth Price $1.00.

Man, in Genesis and in Geology; or, the Biblical Account of Man's Creation, tested by Scientific Theories of his Origin and Antiquity. By Joseph P. Thompson, D. D., LL.D. One vol. 12mo, $1.00.

The Right Word in the Right Place. A New Pocket Dictionary and Reference Book. Embracing Synonyms, Technical Terms, Abbreviations, Foreign Phrases Writing for the Press, Punctuation, Proof-Reading, and other Valuable Information. Cloth, 75cts.

The Emphatic, Diaglott; or The New Testament in Greek and English. Containing the Original Greek Text of the New Testament, with an Interlineary Word for-word English Translation. A Work for Students in Theology, and S. S. Teachers. By Benamin Wilson. Price, $4.00; extra fine binding, $5.00.

Oratory—Sacred and Secular; or, the Extemporaneous Speaker. Including Chairman's Guide for conducting Public Meetings according to the best Parliamentary forms. By Wm. Pittenger. $1.50.

Wayer's Works for the Young. Comprising "Hopes and Helps for the Young of both Sexes," "Aids and Aims for Girls and Young Women," "Ways of Life; or, the Right Way and the Wrong Way," $3

Hopes and Helps for the Young of both sexes, Relating to the Formation of Character. Choice of Avocation, Health, Conversation, Cultivation of Intellect, Moral Sentiments, Social Affection Courtship and Marriage. By Rev. G. S. Weaver. Muslin, $1.50.

SALEM COLLEGE.

The Fall term of Salem College will open for the reception of any number of students from all parts on the 4th of September, 1872, Ample accommodations and thorough instruction will be given all students who connect themselves with this College. Good board can be had in good families at $2.50 to $3.00 per week or students can board themselves in clubs at $1.25 to $1.50 per week as numbers have done with the consent of the faculty. Special care will be given students who are far from home.

For Catalogues, Scholarships and full particulars address

SALEM COLLEGE,
July 22, '72. Bourbon, Ind.

Valuable Farm
FOR SALE.

I will offer for sale, on the premises, at public auction, on

THURSDAY, October 10th, 1872,

(if not sold privately before), the farm on which I did reside. about 16 miles west of Lewisburg, not far from R. R., in Greenbriar co., W. Va.; on the James river and Kawha turnpike containing about

500 ACRES

On which is erected a large brick dwelling house and kitchen, stable and other outbuildings. This property is good for grain or grass, and is a convenient and desirable residence. About one-third of the land is cleared and the rest in good timber. All well watered, and could be conveniently divided into two or three small farms. Any one desiring to inspect the farm can do so by calling on W. R. Sharp, who lives adjoining the premises. Title good. Terms, $2,500 cash and the residue in one and two years.

DAVID FRANTZ,

$5to$20 per day! Agents wanted! All classes of working people, of either sex, young or old, make more money at work for us in their spare moments, or all the time, than at anything else. Particulars free. Address G. Stinson & Co., Portland, Maine.

Menno Simon's
COMPLETE WORKS.

In English, translated from the original Dutch or Holland, giving the whole of the great Reformers writings on the subject of Baptism. Price in full sheep $4.50; by mail $5.14.

Address, JOHN F. FUNK & BRO.
Elkhart, Ind.

New Hymn Books, English.

TURKEY MOROCCO.

One copy, postpaid, - -	$1.00
Per Dozen, - - - -	11.25

PLAIN ARABESQE.

One Copy, post-paid, - - -	75
Per Dozen, " - - -	8.50

Ger'n & English, Plain Sheep.

One Copy, post-paid, - -	$1.00
Per Dozen - - - -	11.25
Arabesque Plain, - -	1.00
Turkey Morocco, - - -	1.25
Single German, post paid -	50
Per Dozen, - - - - -	5.50

Educational.

The second year of Pleasant Hill College, Warsaw, Ind., will begin Sept. 4th, 1872, in which a thoroughly practical education will be given in Academic and Collegiate studies. Brethren's children are expected to attend our weekly religious meetings. Ladies and gentlemen admitted on equal footing.

O. W. MILLER, President.
July 9-tf. Warsaw, Ind.

TRACTS.

"ANXIOUS BENCH RELIGION EXAMINIED," BY ELDER J. S. FLORY. A SYNOPSIS OF CONTEETS. An address to the reader: The peculiarities that attend this type of religion. The feelings there experienced not imaginary but real. The key that unlocks the wonderful mystery. The causes by which feelings are excited. How the momentary feelings called "Experimental religion" are brought about, and then concludes by giving that form of doctrine as taught by Jesus Christ and recorded by his faithful witnesses.

COUNTERFEIT DETECTER
OR
BAPTISM—MUCH IN LITTLE.

This work is now ready for distribution, and the importance of the subject will speak for it a large demand. It is a short treatise on baptism in tract form intended for general distribution, and is set forth in such a plain and logical manner that a wayfaring man though a fool, cannot err therein. Either of the above tracts sent postpaid on the following terms: Two copies, 10 cts, 10 copies 40 cents, 25 copies 70 cents, 50 copies $1.00, 100 copies $1.50.

1870 1872

DR. FAHRNEY'S
Blood Cleanser or Panacea.

A tonic and purge, for Blood Diseases. Great reputation. Many testimonials. Many ministering brethren use and recommend it. Ask or send for the "Health Messenger." Use only the "Panacea" prepared at Chicago, Ills., and by

Dr. P. Fahrney's Brothers & Co.,
Aug. 3-pd. Waynesboro, Franklin Co., Pa.

Trine Immersion.

A discussion on Trine Immersion, by letter between Elder B. F. Moomaw and Dr, J. J. Jackson, to which is annexed a Treatise on the Lord's Supper, and on the necessity, character and evidences of the new birth, also a dialogue on the doctrine of non-resistance, by Elder B. F. Moomaw. Single copy 50 cents.

HUNTINGDON & BROAD TOP RAIL ROAD

Summer Arrangement.

On an after Tuesday, June 4, 1872, Passenger trains will arrive and depart as follows:

Trains from Huntingdon South. — Trains from Bedford moving North.

MAIL. A. M.	ACCOM P. M.	STATIONS.	MAIL. P. M.	ACCOM A. M.
*le*8 20	LE6 00	Huntingdon,	AR5 25	AR9 10
8 28	6 06	Long Siding	5 17	9 00
8 45	6 19	McConnelstown	5 04	8 45
8 51	6 25	Pleasant Grove	4 58	8 39
9 05	6 37	Marklesburg	4 45	8 27
9 20	6 51	Coffee Run	4 33	8 11
9 27	6 58	Rough & Ready	4 26	8 40
9 39	7 10	Cove	4 12	7 52
9 43	7 15	Fishers Summit	4 08	7 48
10 03	7 35	Saxton	8 48	le 7 53
10 10	7 53			*ar*7 46
10 27	8 10	Riddlesburg	3 30	6 30
10 34	8 17	Hopewell	3 22	6 12
10 51	8 35	Piper's Run	3 06	6 00
11 10	8 55	Tatesville	2 48	6 56
11 22	9 08	Bloody Run	2 33	6 50
11 26	9 12	Mount Dallas	2 29	5 46
11 32	9 19	Ashcom's Mills	2 22	5 42
11 36	9 23	Lutzville	2 18	5 36
11 40	9 27	Hartley's Mills	2 14	5
11 46	9 34	Jamesons	2 07	5
*r*11 22	*ar*9 40	Bedford	LE2 00	LE5 30

JOHN M'KILLIPS, Supt

SHOUP'S RUN BRANCH.

LE10 15	LE7 40	Saxton.	AR3 40	AR7 20
10 30	7 55	Coalmont.	3 25	7 05
10 35	8 00	Crawford.	3 20	7 00
AR10 45	AR8 10	Dudley	LE3 10	LE6 50
Bro'd Top City from Dudley 2 miles by stage.

Time of Penna. R. R. Trains at Huntingdon.

EASTWARD.			WESTWARD.
Hb'g Ac.	9 24	A. M	Cin. Ex.	2 19 A. M.
Mail	3 30	P. M	Pe'f Ex.	7 45 "
Cin. Ex.	6 55	"	Mail	5 40 P. M
Phil. Ex	11 15	"	W. Pass.	11 52 A. M

THE PILGRIM

Published by J. B. Brumbaugh, & Co.

Edited by H. B. & Geo. Brumbaugh.

CORRESPONDING EDITORS.

D. P. Sayler, Double Pipe Creek, Md.

Leonard Furry, New Enterprise, Pa.

The Pilgrim is a Christian Periodical, devoted to religion and moral reform. It will advocate in the spirit of love and liberty, the principles of true Christianity, labor for the promotion of peace among the people of God, for the encouragement of the saints and for the conversion of sinners, avoiding those things which tend toward disunion or sectional feelings.

TERMS.

Single copy, one year,	$1.25.
Book paper, " "	1.50.
Eleven copies, [eleventh for Agt.]	$12.50.

Any number above that at the same rate,

Address.

H. B. BRUMBAUGH.

James Creek,
Huntingdon county Pa.

Narrow Pilgrim.

"REMOVE NOT THE ANCIENT LANDMARKS WHICH OUR FATHERS HAVE SET."

VOL. 3. JAMES CREEK, PENNSYLVANIA, SEPTEMBER 24, 1872. NO. 39

POETRY.

A GRAND OLD POEM

Who shall judge a man from manners?
Who shall know him by his dress?
Paupers may be fit for princes,
Princes fit for something less;
Crumpled shirt and dirty jacket,
May beclothe the golden ore
Of the deepest thought and feeling—
Satin vests could do no more.

There are springs of crystal nectar
Ever welling out of stone;
There are purple buds and golden,
Hidden, crushed and overgrown:
God, who counts by souls, not dresses,
Loves and prospers you and me,
While he values thrones the highest
But as pebbles in the sea.

Man, upraised above his fellows,
Oft forgets his fellows then,
Masters, rulers, lords remember
That your meanest hinds are men;
Men by honor, men by feeling,
Men by thought and men by fame,
Claiming equal rights to sunshine,
In a man's ennobling name.

There are foam-embroidered oceans,
There are little weed-clad rills;
There are feeble inch-high saplings,
There are cedars on the hills;
God, who counts by souls, not station,
Loves and prospers you and me;
For to him all famed distinctions
Are as pebbles in the sea.

Toiling hands alone are builders
Of a nation's wealth or fame;
Titled laziness is pensioned,
Fed and fatted on the same;
By the sweat of others' foreheads,
Living only to rejoice;
While the poor man's outraged freedom
Vainly lifted up its voice.

Truth and justice are eternal,
Born with loneliness and light;
Secret wrongs shall never prosper
While there is sacred right;
God, whose word-heard voice is singing
Boundless love to you and me,
Sinks oppression with its titles,
As pebbles in the sea.

ORIGINAL ESSAYS.

AN EPISTLE TO THE CHUROH AT BEALINGTON AND CORINTH, BARBOUR CO., W. VA.

[This epistle was not written for publication but by permission and request we send it to the PILGRIM for publication.]
JOHN W. FITZGERALD.

Unto all those that are of the church of God at Bealington and Corinth I send greeting in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ whereunto thou art called to be a peculiar people of the household of faith, grace, peace and mercy be unto you from God our Father.

Dearly beloved brethren and sisters by request and agreeable to promise I thus address you, thanking God always in my prayers for his mercy to me in opening the way that I was permitted to come to you and walk with you in heavenly places in Christ Jesus and bear testimony with you of the blessedness of the religion of Jesus, and to form that acquaintance with one another that I trust shall continue not only through time but in eternity. I also thank God for bringing me thither to my own home again and giving me the blessings I and mine enjoy. Notwithstanding I am afflicted somewhat in my throat, caused in a great measure by my more than ordinary labor on my mission to your section, I can say, God be praised and his name be glorified and his will be done. In all our afflictions we should rather have the mind to ask God to give us grace to endure the chastening rod than to have him remove it.

Hoping the Lord is with you all in giving you of his abounding grace, love and humility. I am constrained to praise you for your zeal and steadfastness, as I hope, in that faith delivered to the saints. You are truly as lambs in the midst of wolves, being surrounded with those who glory in persecuting you and speaking evil of you. But be not moved by any of these for Christ has promised to be with you even unto the end, and rejoice when you are evil spoken of because of your adherence to the true faith. I am persuaded you will not be driven from the narrow way by the scoffs and jeers of a vain world, or worldly minded professors who themselves are blinded to the fact that they bring reproach upon the name and character of Christ by their actions and loud profession. Keep in remembrance that a religion without a cross will not profit beyond the tomb. Even though a cross is claimed, if shrouded from view by the works of pride and worldly mindedness it is all the same. Be satisfied with nothing short of "pure and undefiled religion" which you know requires that we should keep ourselves unspotted from the world. We infer from this that we should keep ourselves unspotted from all unrighteousness. Be cautious then that we do not identify ourselves with the worship of those who "sold the truth in unrighteousness" by denying some of the commands of God. That is, we should take no more part with them than we do with the world's unrighteousness. If we encourage the unrighteousness of the world we do err. May we not also conclude if we encourage anything that has a semblance of error or iniquity, we sin? We are persuaded better things of you my beloved in the Lord. Quite a number of you have followed the noble example of old. Paul left that religion you first embraced because it did not promise justification through the merits of Christ. Because we have no promise of being recognized by God as one of his children short of obedience to the requirements of his will. That is, we receive the glorious benefits resulting from an application of the meritorious blood of Christ because of our faith, repentance, and obedience to God. These being necessary on the part of the rebellious creature, before God promises salvation by his free grace and mercy. Having evidence that you are founded and grounded upon Christ and the truth, we are persuaded that "neither death nor life, nor angels, nor principalities nor powers," nor anything else will "be able to separate you and us from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus our Lord." Oh, may your self-sacrificing example be the means of bringing many more to the fold that Christ may truly be their shepherd.

There is something truly commendable in those that tear loose from those principles inculcated in the heart even in early youth,—from friends, associates and church relationship, to unite themselves to a separate and peculiar people from the world. But ah! the love of Christ is stronger than all else, the soul's interest, an interest above every other, eternal life sweeter than worldly pleasure or form of Godliness void of the power. A heavenly Father and brotherhood with Christ, a relationship of stronger ties than any other. Then no marvel why we see honest disposed persons breaking loose from everything that hinders their progress heavenward. O, the marveloos workings of the spirit of truth whenever it finds its way to the heart. May the Lord give you fortitude to withstand every wave of persecution, and every dart of satan aimed at your soul. Keep on the whole armor of God and you will come out conquerors in the end. Preach so loud by your chaste conversation and everyday walk that satan may flee to the confines of darkness. Don't let satan through the propensity of pride help you to adorn your mortal body that must soon be food for worms; but let Jesus have full control of your hearts and he that was so meek and lowly, will dictate to you in all things in the government of the outer as well as the inner man. Remember that if the adversary gets the least foothold in the heart he will be busy with his fingers in the dress, hair, &c.

And further we would say, comfort and encourage those who have the care over you and are ministers of God to preach peace to the world. They have a heavy burden to bear if faithful to their calling. Oh then do not make it heavier by discouraging them. When possible go to hear them and help them that they may preach in demonstration of the spirit and with power. How help them? First by your presence, second by earnest prayer for them. Praise them by your close attention and interest in what they are saying. That kind of praise is not apt to hurt them. Never speak of their faults to others, especially to the world. Don't be afraid to tell them of anything you think would be a benefit to them, but let it be done in love and with child like simplicity. And to you ministers who are set as watchmen on the walls of Zion, let me say a few words

THE CONSTRAINING LOVE OF CHRIST.

Continued.

BY GERHARD TERSTEEGAN.

The love of Christ constrains to diligence, watchfulness and activity in every good work, and during the whole course of godliness. Many a one who slumbers securely in the deadly sleep of sin, may be terrified and awakened by fear and chastisement; strong emotions and the most serious resolutions may be produced in a man by the judgments of God, by illness, fear of death, the decease of near relatives, or by other reproofs of conscience, so that one would think something really good would result from it; but how soon it passes away, when unaccompanied by the heart-renewing grace and love of Christ, distress, death and hell may constrain as they will, yet if the love of Christ does not constrain at the same time, the man falls asleep again. The external means of grace may also be of service in awakening and encouraging slothful souls; but if we wish to be effectually and permanently awakened by the means of grace which God puts into our hands, we must remain near our hearts, and pay attention to the co-operating love of Christ which inwardly awakens, and causes its influence to be felt in the deepest recesses of the heart, although love knows no anxious and distracting care, yet it is equally remote from slothfulness and drowsiness. Its possessor is ever anxious, the day through, to be trying to do something to please his beloved.

And here I must allude to outward slothfulness and heaviness. There are many who complain of being so easily overpowered by sleep, when alone and towards night. It must be allowed that this has its natural causes with some, who are weak and fatigued by labor; in which case the individual must have patience with himself; but I fear, that with many, it is love that is wanting. I have witnessed how many have been overtaken by sleep in the evening, when anything good was read or spoken of, but who immediately roused themselves when any favorite topic of another kind was introduced. How shameful. Ah, if we had but a little more love for Christ, we should not be so slothful.

The love of Christ constrains to good works, the learned dispute in all manner of ways about good works and their merits, whether and how far they are necessary to salvation, and the like, a soul that loves Christ, interferes not with such controversies. Love, as is natural to it, constrains incessantly to every good work towards God, towards the brethren, towards our neighbors and even towards our enemies, love cannot act otherwise. She seeks to do every one good, and to devote herself to all. She has always enough, she is rich, she is kind, she is bountiful; and if she has no money or anything else to give, she has still a heart, which she gives in sympathy, compassion, and in rendering every possible assistance. In a word, love is always doing good, almost without thinking of it; she performs a thousand good works, without asking whether she ought to do them or not; and the merit of good works never occurs to her. Even when she has much she thinks she has hitherto done nothing, and that she will now begin. Thus it is that the love of Christ constrains.

D. NEGLEY.

Welsh Run, Pa.

Knocked About in the World.

It is a good thing for a young man to be "knocked about in the world," though his soft hearted parents may not think so. All youths, or if not all, certainly nineteen twentieths of the sum total, enter life with a surplusage of self-conceit. If, in measuring themselves with wiser and older men than they are, they discover that it is unwarrented, and get rid of it gracefully, of their own accord, well and good; if not, it is desirable for their own sakes, that it be knocked out of them.

A boy who is sent to a large school soon finds his level. His will may have been paramount at home, but schoolboys are democratic in their ideas, and if arrogant, are sure to be thrashed into a recognition of the golden rule. The world is a great public school, and it soon teaches a new pupil his proper place. If he has the attributes that belong to a leader, he will be installed in the position of a leader; if not, whatever his own opinion of his abilities may be, he will be compelled to fall in with the rank and file. If not destined to greatness, the next best thing to which he can aspire is respectability; but no man can either be truly great or respectable, who is vain, pompous and overbearing.

By the time the novice has found his legitimate social position, be the same high or low, the probability is that the disagreeable traits of his character will be softened down or worn away. Most likely the process of abrasion will be rough, perhaps very rough; but when it is all over, and he begins to see himself as others see him, and not reflected in the mirror of self-conceit, he will be thankful that he has run the gauntlet, and arrived, though by a rough road, at self-knowledge. Upon the whole, whatever loving mothers may think to the contrary, it is a good thing for youths to be knocked about in the world—it makes men of them.

FAMILY WORSHIP.

Family worship is an ordinance which God has frequently blessed to the saving of souls. In houses where it is conducted with life and feeling, it has often proved a converting ordinance. A few years ago, an Englishman visited America and spent some days with a pious friend. He was a man of talent and accomplishments, but an infidel. Four years afterwards he returned to the same house—a Christian. They wondered at the change, but little suspected when and where it had originated. He told them that he was present at their family worship, on the first evening of his former visit, and when after the chapter was read they all knelt down to pray—the recollection of such scenes in his father's house long years ago, rushed in on his memory so that he did not hear a single word. But the occurrence made him think, and his thoughtfullness ended in his leaving the howling wilderness of infidelity, and finding a quiet rest in the salvation wrought out by Jesus Christ.

We might enumerate many like instances. Many servants have been awakened through family worship. Children have often heard these truths, which, when the Spirit brought them to remembrance in after days—perhaps in days of profligacy, and when far from their father's house, sent home the prodigal. It is not only of Zion's solemn assemblies, but of Jacob's humble dwellings, the little fireside sanctuaries—That "the Lord shall count when he writeth up the people, this man was born there." We would ask of every Christian: "In your house there have been, perhaps several accountable beings born into the world. Have there been any born again?"—Episcopal Recorder.

SCANDAL.

It is a curious reflection to make, but probably a just one, that scandal flourishes all the more because scandal-mongers receive no gain for their proceedings. Many other crimes are attained by personal gain; and what is gained often furnishes the means for detection and punishment. If, by a merciful provision of nature, it was arranged that a portion of the character taken away by scandal should attach itself to those who invent or propogate the scandal, the world, like the birds in the fable, would be very ready to fly upon the scandal-mongers and deprive those daws of the plumes thus gained. But in the present state of affairs, these lovers and propagrators of scandal do not gain the smallest shred of honor or reputation by their scandal-mongering, and consequently they feel much less shame and meet with much less reproof, as their evil saying are attended by no personal advantage. It is only very nice and sensitive consciences that enable their owners to suffer remorse when they have heedlessly invented or furthered scandal.—Good Words.

The religion that costs its owner nothing is probably worth about its cost.

Youth's Department.

FORGIVE AND FORGET.

Forgive and forget—it is better
To fling every feeling aside,
Than allow the deep cankering fetter
Of revenge in thy breast to abide.
For thy step through life's path shall be lighter
When the load from thy bosom is cast,
And the sky that's above thee be brighter,
When the cloud of displeasure is past.

Though thy spirit swell high with emotion,
To give back an injustice again,
Let it sink in oblivion's ocean,
For remembrance increases the pain;
And why should we linger in sorrow
When its shadow is passing away;
Or seek to encounter to-morrow
The blast that o'er-swept us to-day?

Oh! memory's a varying river,
And though it may placidly glide
When the sunbeams of joy o'er it quiver,
It foams when the storm meets the tide.
Then stir not its current to madness,
For its wrath thou wilt ever regret,
Though the morning beams break on thy sadness,
Ere the sunset forgive and forget.

A LOVELY CHILD.

Does a pretty round face, rosy cheeks, bright blue eyes and silken curls make a child a lovely darling. We answer these alone will not make a lovely child. There must be something else to excite our love, and that is a gentle and lovely disposition. We care not if a child has coarse features, gray eyes, brown cheeks and flaxen hair, if it has a sweet temper, tender heart, modest manners and an obedient disposition it is a lovely child. A pretty face with a proud look, beautiful eyes with an angry brow, does not look lovely. A pair of chubby neat lips that pout, complain and say naughty words are not sweet and lovely. A hand that strikes a brother or sister or breaks a doll or plaything for spite is not a pretty hand. Now children, who read this paper, if you want to be lovely I will tell you how you may. It is not by putting on a fine gay dress or velvet pants with bright buttons or trimmings or a fashionable hat with a pile of ribbons twisted round and round or by putting on a shiny breat pin, string of beads or finger rings. Such things are flowers of pride and if delighted in, show that the heart is proud; and instead of making you lovely in the eyes of good common sense people you look vain and ugly. But if you want to be loved and lovely you must cultivate a kind disposition, keep a mild temper and not think yourself better than this or that boy or girl just because you are better dressed or have a better education. By being obedient and willing to do what you are told to do will cause others to love you. Be honest and frank to all your mishaps just as they occur. Don't laugh at the misfortunes of any one. And boys let me say to you that smoking, chewing tobacco, swearing or drinking liquor never made one lovely or more thought of, but it made many look ugly. Keep from such things as you would from a rattlesnake.

To be lovely in the eyes of good men and women is a good thing, but to be lovely and good in the eyes of Jesus is better. Jesus loves only a meek and humble spirit, a kind and gentle disposition. Try then, dear children, to be lovely in the eyes of your parents, schoolmates, associates and especially in the eyes of the Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ. Many children make men and women that are loved and honored and blessed by God. May every little reader be a lovely child that they may be happy in this life and in the life to come.

J. S. FLORY.

TIDE-MARKS.

It was low tide when we went to Bristol, and the gray rocks stood up bare and grim above the water; but high up on all the sides, was a black line that seemed hardly dry, though it was far above the water.

"What makes that black mark on the rocks?" asked my friend.

"O, that is the tide-mark," she replied. "Every day, when the tide comes in, the water rises and rises until it reaches the line, and in a great many years it has worn away the stone until the mark is cut into the rock."

"O!" thought I, "that is all, is it?" Well I have seen a great many people that carry tide-marks on their faces. Right in front of me was a pretty little girl, with delicate features and pleasant blue eyes. But she had some queer little marks on her forehead, and I wondered how they came to be there, until presently the mother said:

"Draw down the blind, now, Carrie; the sun shines right in baby's face."

"I want to look out," said Carrie, in a very peevish voice.

But her mother insisted, and Carrie drew the blind, and turned her face away from the window. O! dear me, what a face it was! The blue eyes were full of frowns instead of smiles, the pleasant lips were drawn up in an ugly pout, and the queer marks on the forehead had deepened into actual wrinkles.

"Poor little girl," I thought, "how badly you will feel when you grow up, to have your face marked all over with the tide-marks of passion; for these evil tempers leave their marks, just as surely as the ocean does, and I have seen many a face stamped so deeply with self-will and covetousness, that it must carry the marks to the grave.

Take care, little folks; and whenever you give way to bad temper, remember the tide-marks.—Life Boat.

DON'T DEPEND ON FATHER.

Stand up here, young man, and let us talk to you. You have trusted alone to the contents of your father's purse, or his fair fame, for your influence or success in business. Think you that "father" has attained eminence in his profession but by unwearied industry? or that he has amassed a fortune honestly without energy and activity? You should know that the faculty requisite for the acquiring of fame or fortune is essential to, nay inseparable from, the attaining of either of these. Suppose "father" has the "rocks" in abundance, if you never earned anything for him, you have no more business with these rocks than the goslin has with a tortoise. And if he allows you to meddle with them before you have gained them by your own industry, be perpetrates untold mischief. Sooner or later you must learn to rely on your own resources, or you will not be anybody. —Selected.

CORRESPONDENCE

Dear Brethren:—To learn that the Lord's cause is prospering is encouraging, therefore I will try to give a few items that may be read with interest. I belong to the Shiloh congregation, but the distance being so great to our meeting house I seldom get there to meeting. We hold our meetings in a school house, and feel thankful that we can have that to worship in. Some five years ago, the people of our neighborhood devised a plan to build a meeting house which was done in a very convenient place. This house was to be built as a house free for nearly all, especially for the Brethren, when not occupied by the church to which it was deeded, which was the M. E. Church South. But when the Brethren began to preach, the house being in a tolerable condition for preaching, though by no means completed, the key was turned against us, and ever since that time our meetings have been outside of "Corinth." Some endeavored to persuade me to go with them, but this I could not do, telling them the Scriptures taught me differently Oh! how my heart aches to know that my present enemies were once my warmest friends, but cheering thought! some have been made willing to accept the terms of reconciliation. Eight have enlisted in the cause of Christ this Summer, and others are we believe convinced. May the Lord enable them to enter into "the Ark." There are six ministering brethren belonging to our congregation, two of them being called to the ministry this Summer, of course are not expected to do so much as our older brethren, for we do think some of our brethren are too cold. Oh! brethren, think of the precious souls that are perishing for spiritual bread! Then why, why do you not feed them? It is true, sometimes we feel as though we had not much to give, "but little given, little required." If we are willing to give what little we have, this is all sufficient. Though a poor widow cast in but two mites while the rich man cast in perhaps several, Christ said she hath cast in more than they all. Why? Because she cast in all she had. So brethren, if we have but little, let us cast it forth and the Lord will give "the increase."

Some get discouraged if after they preach two or three times at one place, their success is not made apparent, but we should not neglect the "gift that is given us." Remember the widow who interceded for her daughter; thrice she asked the Savior to heal her daughter, and the last time her request was granted. Let us not give over the first or second time, but let us be in earnest, continuing to preach. The honest hearted certainly will not refuse to work as the reward is promised only to the faithful. J. M. WELLS.

Brethren Editors:—In response to your appeal for news from the churches I will report from this part of the mission field. Notwithstanding the infirm condition of our ministerial force, we have kept up a weekly appointment this Summer alternating between three and four meeting places. Father-in-law's absence in the West, and brother A. Crumpacker's infirm health, has thrown the weight of active labor on a poor, weak instrument, but the interest manifested in our meetings continues unabated and our large congregations attest our success in keeping alive, at least, the knowledge of the importance of the salvation of the soul. One has enrolled his name on the register of the church militant, and others are apparently halting between two opinions. Oh, immortal souls, how long will you tarry! Another old veteran of the world who has passed the allotted period of 70, came feebly to the door of the church for entrance just as the dim taper sunk in the impenetrable gloom of death. Another whose feet are quivering and slipping on the verge of eternity, is praying for strength to enable her to come in by the door into the Fold. Thus poor, deluded mortals are slumbering and sleeping till they are aroused by the cold, fierce grip of death, and not till then can many of them think of the soul, of Heaven, of hell, of eternity.

We are progressing slowly with our meeting-house. The lumber is about ready, but sluggishness and procrastination mark and control the movements of the building committee, and another communion season will pass before we can possibly get the benefit of its protecting walls and roof. Our brethren who have so liberally supported our subscription list need not fear the demands of the collector unless a different spirit takes possession of the committee.

Your Bro.,
D. C. MOOMAW.

NEAR MAYTOWN, PA., }
September 9th, '72. }

Dear Pilgrim:—I am a reader of your columns, and as I have been struck with a few things upon which I now take the liberty of asking a few questions for my own information and that of others.

1st. What are the Minutes of our Annual Conference for, are they to be considered binding, or can every member do as he or she pleases about adhering to them?

There was a query, some time ago, about the use of tobacco. Since then, another about its cultivation, but they do not seem to affect anything, as I see that the Brethren are still right smart at cultivating it, also chewing and smoking.

Again in PILGRIM, No. 32, under "News of the Week" the writer asks Elder Lesher or any of his brethren, to prove that Christ ate the Jewish Passover at the time He instituted Feetwashing. I think that friend Good, as Elder Lesher calls him, (PILGRIM No. 34,) gives pretty good proof when he states that Peter and John were sent to prepare the passover, referring them to a certain one who would show them the place, and there they should make ready, and when the hour, or evening was come, He sat down and the eleven apostles with Him, everything being ready, water, basin, towel, supper, and bread and wine. Now does the writer expect any better proof? This appears very plain that it was at the one and same time. No church or denomination is responsible for this letter, but the writer.

C. LENHART.

REMARKS. As the writer wishes to be responsible for his own productions, we have given him a hearing and will also give some information.

The Minutes of A. M. are vested with power according to circumstances. While some answers are given as advisory, others are intended as positive law, but all are expected to be honored, and certainly should be. There are some queries brought before the meeting that there is no direct Scripture upon which to base a decision. In such cases, an answer is given which is thought to be in harmony with the spirit of Christ. Such are given as advisory decisions. Again, there are other queries to which answers are given that are based on direct Scripture. These are considered as positive decisions and members dare not willingly violate them.

The queries and decisions in regard to the use and cultivation of tobacco, the cut of the coat, the wearing of the hair, &c., have no direct scriptural basis, therefore are considered only advisory, which means a positive duty modified by the will, which, too frequently, decides in favor of self gratification, therefore they seldom receive that respect and honor they should. "These things ought not so to be."

In regard to the supper question we think that Bro. Lenhart is a little mixed. Bro. Good's statement proves that Christ and his disciples ate the Christian Passover or Lord's Supper, but it by no means, proves that it was the Jewish passover.

Brethren Brumbaugh's:—As I like to read Church news, I will this morning undertake, for the first time, to give the readers of the PILGRIM a sketch of what happened with us in the Pine Creek District, St. Joseph county Ind.

On last Wednesday, Sept., 4th, our elder and myself were called upon to go and see Henry Hoover, who was very sick. Our elder was gone from home, so I tried to get one of our other speakers to go with me, but I found none of them at home. I then went alone, the distance being about ten mile. When I arrived I found the man dangerously sick with the typhoid fever, without any hope of recovery. I asked him what his desires were, and he told me that he wished to be baptized as he had already put it off too long, and now unless he could be baptized he could not die satisfied. There was only one brother present, his uncle Amos Hoover who thought such a thing could not be done as he was too low to be moved, and no suitable water within five miles. I was also at the time at a loss to know how to proceed, but the Lord always makes a way. I then asked him if all was done on his part and whether he did not think the Lord would be satisfied without baptism. He thought that he was able to attend to the ordinance, and therefore could not feel justified without doing it. He suggested that we could get a large vessel that would answer the purpose. We then counselled those present, when one wondered whether we could not make him believe that sprinkling would do just as well. I told him that we did not believe in such doctrine. We then made a box 2 by 4 feet and filled it with water. We then carried him out and immersed him in the names of the triune God., then carried him back again to the house and placed him upon his bed. I then went to take my leave of him and found him calm and resigned, so I bade him farewell and returned homeward conscious of having done my duty towards one whose life was rapidly ebbing out. At 10 o'clock that night he closed his eyes in death and passed away in hope of eternal life.

Now dear readers, should this not be a warning to all, and should not every one who has not made peace with his God, think of the great necessity of obeying the Gospel in all its requirements while in health, so that when we come to die we may be also ready for in such an hour as we think not the Son of Man cometh?

JOHN N. BARNHART.

Walkerton, Ind.

CERROGORDA, ILL., Sept., 4th '72.

Dear brother Brumbaugh:—I am now in this part of the country with my wife visiting my children who are residing here. At some leisure time I may give a report. I am a reader of the PILGRIM and in it I noticed that to insure insertion, the writer's name must accompany each article, but in No. 32, page 254, I noticed a communication without a name to it, from the congregation in which I reside. I am the oldest visiting brother in that church and know well, all about it as I have been keeping a record of it for many years. My feelings were hurt in reading that communication which I am sorry to say is very incorrect, especially in stating the names of our bishops as there are none such there nor never was. It is true there has been only one added by baptism but there are causes for it. We have eight official members, four speakers and four visiting brethren, and we are as well united as any leading brethren can be found, standing together as a little band of soldiers contending against some fallen members who are now called Thurmanites. They claim the New Testament for their discipline and pretend to dissent from the Brethren on account of the mode in Feet-washing. Their object is to cause a split in the church, but we are still contending for the faith once delivered to the saints, not expecting to yield our position. We still hope that after a hard struggle to have more prosperous times again. I think the design of the writer was not to build up the church but to tear it down. It is certainly incoosistent to invite strong brethren to make this their stopping place after showing such poor encouragement, and I think brethren will not feel very free in accepting such invitations.

In conclusion I will say to all who are in the household of faith, stand firm on the rock and remember the words of our Savior: "Fear not little flock, for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the Kingdom."

JACOB SHIVELY.

Some time ago we received a letter wishing us to give the name of the writer of the article referred to, but we could not do it from the fact that the idea never struck us that there was any impure motive connected with it, and for that reason the name has slipped our memory, and the copy is destroyed, hence the transgressor will be to go free this time, but hereforth such writers will sail in their true colors. It is certainly far from our wish to admit anything to mar the feelings of our Brethren, but such things may happen when we least expect it, therefore we ask the indulgence of our readers, hoping that the good will greatly overbalance the evil.

Announcements.

LOVEFEASTS.

DUNNINGS CREEK, Bedford co., Pa., Oct. 19th at 4 o'clock, p. m.

RIVER FALLS Church, Pierce co., Wis. Sept. 7th, 10 o'clock, a. m.

CONEMAUGH Church, Cambria co., Pa., Sept. 13, at 4 o'clock, p. m.

BLACK RIVER Congregation, Medina co., Ohio, Oct. 0th.

LOST CREEK, Juniata co., Pa., Oct 16th, at 1 o'clock, p. m.

BELL CREEK Church, Dodge co., Neb., September 21st.

Waddam's Grove, Stephenson county, Ill., Oct. 12th and 13th.

Meadow Branch, Md., Saturday October 12th. Commencing at half past 1 o'clock p. m.

Sam's Creek, Md., Tuesday, October 15th, commencing at half past 1 o'clock p. m.

Hamilton Branch, 4 miles North of Hamilton, Daviess Co., Mo., Oct. 12th 2 o'clock p. m. To continue over Sunday.

Clarian Church, Clarian Co., Pa., Oct. 5th and 6th.

Howard Congregation, Howard Co., Ind, Oct. 17th. Those coming by railway will find conveyance at Kokomo on the day previous.

Okaw Church, Piatt Co., Ill., Oct 9th, at at 10 o'clock a. m.

Bethel church, Holt Co., Mo., September 14th, 15th, at 4 o'clock p. m.

Clover Creek, Blair Co., Pa., Oct. 17th; 18th, at 4 p. m.

Brownsville, Washington county, Md., October 5th and 6th, at 10 a. m.

Dry Valley Meeting house, Mifflin county Pa., October 15th, at 1 o'clock p. m.

East Nimshillen Congregation, Stark Co., Ohio. September 28th.

Falling Springs, Franklin county, Pa., at the Antrim meeting-house on the 15th of October, at 10 a. m.

In the Salimony arm of the Church, Huntington county Ind., September 25th.

Hopewell Church, Woodcock Valley Pa., October 12th, at 4 p. m.

Four miles north of Mansfield, at the house of Samuel Martin, September 25th.

James Creek, Huntingdon Co., Pa.. Oct., 19th. Services to continue over Sabbath.

Milmine Church, Piatt county Ill., October 17th, at 10 a. m.

In the Antietum Congregation. at Welty's meeting house, Washington county. Md., on the 10th of October, commencing at 10 o'clock.

Salem Congregation Frederick Co., Va. Saturday and Sunday, 14th and 15th of September. Commencing at 1 o'clock p. m

At the house of Daniel Glicks, Andrew co., Mo., October 5th, commencing at 4 o'clock, p. m. Meeting will be continued if aid can be obtained. Address Daniel Glick, Flag Spring, or J. B. Bashor, Whitesville, Andrew co., Mo.

The brethren of Yellow Creek, Bedford co., Pa., will hold their Communion Meeting, Tuesday, October 15th, commencing at 4 o'clock, p. m. The usual invitation is given.

The brethren of Raccoon, Ind., have appointed their Communion Meeting on the 10th of Oct., and give a general invitation. Ladoga is the R. R. Station. Meeting 1¼ miles north-west of town. R. H. MILLER.

Please announce through the PILGRIM that the brethren of the Grasshopper Valley Congregation intend, the Lord willing, to hold a Communion meeting on the 12th and 13th of October in the meeting house in the town of Osawkee, Jefferson county, Kansas. An invitation is given to all, especially do we wish ministering brethren to be with us.

By order of the Church.

A. PEARSOLL

Dear Brethren: Please announce that we, the Brethren of Shiloah Church, in Barbour Co., W. Va., intend, the Lord willing, to hold a Communion meeting on the 12th and 13th of October, commencing at 2 o'clock P. M. A hearty invitation is extended, especially to ministering brethren. Those coming by railway will find conveyance to the place of meeting if they are at Thornton B. & O. R. R. on the day day previous.

Come brethren and help us increase the borders of Zion. Those intending to come will please inform us through the Pilgrim and Companion. J. M. WELLS.

Dear Brethren: Please announce that we intend to hold a Communion Meeting in the Spring Run meeting house, 2 miles from McVeytown station, Mifflin Co., Pa., on the 13th of October, Commencing at 1 o'clock P. M. Preaching the next day until noon. The usual invitation is given to ministers and members who may wish to be with us. JOSEPH R. HANAWALT.

Dear Brethren: Please announce in the PILGRIM that we, the brethren of Pine Creek Church, St. Joseph Co., Ind., intend to hold our Communoin Meeting on the 16th and 17th of October commencing at 4 o'clock. A general invitation is given. JOHN N. BARNHART.

The Weekly Pilgrim.

JAMES CREEK, PA., Sept. 24th, 1872.

A VISIT TO DALE CITY.

On Monday morning of last week we started on a visit to Dale City or more especially the Companion family. We had a desire to see them at their new location and as Miss Linny Will, who has been in our office for some time was going to her home in the West, by way of Dale City, we concluded to accompany her that far. At 9 o'clock we were on our journey's way. The morning was quite a pleasant one and as we passed through rather a wild romantic country we saw much to engage our attention, and we were agreeably entertained. As we passed along but few were added to our number until we reached Bloody Run when quite a delegation of Lutheran ministers entered. They have been holding Synod at this place and were returning home. One young gentleman who seated himself in front of us manifested a disposition to talk. Whether he was naturally inclined to talk or whether he wanted us to know that he was going to be a preacher we do not know, but we are inclined to think the latter. He told us he was studying for the ministry and then went to work at his mental arithmetic which he carried with him. Mental development is, no doubt, a necessary qualification for a minister but we did think it would have been more in harmony with this would be teacher's calling to have carried his Bible. The more we see of the popular ministry the more we become disgusted with it. It is to be feared that the great majority of those who now enter the ministry are aiming at self-aggrandizement or pecuniary benefit, and we are not astonished under these considerations that there is so little real, vital piety. In further conversation we informed this young man that the apostolic method of calling ministers was through the voice of the church and he thought all if that method was still continued that wanted to preach might not be called, there is truth in it, for there are those who enter the ministry that none would suppose to have the qualifications for so high and holy a position.

But we are digressing. In a short time we were at Bedford, the terminus of the H. & B. T. Railroad. Here we had the pleasure of meeting Bro. Graybill Myers and Henry Hershberger who had been on a visit to Dale City and were now returning. We were informed that they had been preaching in Somerset Co. for about one week. The train on the Bridgeport Railroad being due in a few minutes, we had but little time to spend here, and soon we were wending our way onward. This road by the way is one among the smoothest roads we have ever travelled over. At some minutes after 1 o'clock we arrived at Bridgeport, and oh what a place! We had expected to see a thriving town, but it consisted of a few old dilapidated houses and a small station house, not even provided with seats to sit down. Here we had to lay over until six o'clock in the evening, over four hours, as the train on the Pittsburgh and Connellsville Railroad was not due until that time. Any one who has waited over four hours at a passenger depot of this class, can imagine our dilemma. We felt quite uncomfortable at first, but there is always consolation in distress, and this we had from the consideration that our situation might have been worse. The time was spent, not so unpleasantly after all, and at 6 o'clock we stepped aboard for Dale City. Well we have often passed through a rough and rugged country but this surpasses anything we have ever seen. But on we went at good speed, through the Allegheny and then we were in a short time at Dale City. Here we were met by Bro. Holsinger and Lottie and soon we were with the Companion family again. We felt glad to meet them once again. Sister Holsinger has always treated us with marked kindness and she did make us feel welcome. Being wearied traveling we soon retired. In the morning for the first time we were permitted to cast our eyes upon this apparently thriving little town. On the whole it presents quite an inviting appearance and will most likely, in the course of time, become a place of considerable importance. They are now making an effort to have the Pittsburgh, Washington & Baltimore Railroad Co., erect their machine shops here. $26,000 was raised as a bonus, in about two days, and it is thought they can soon double that amount.

Companion office is the first place we visit. Here we met and formed the acquaintance of sister Mary Beeghly who is employed as an assistant editress. She applies herself closely to the work and is, no doubt, making herself quite useful. Bro Beer was absent, he and Bro. Lint being on a visit to Armstrong county. We are indeed sorry that we had not the pleasure of meeting Bro. Beer, as we always looked upon him, since our first acquaintance, as a model brother—a brother whom we love. In the afternoon sister Mary Beeghly, in company with others, conducted us to her home. From here we went Dr. P. Fahrney's. Sister Fahrney seems to be well pleased with her new home. They have bought several lots, and intend building and locating permanently at this place. We then called at Bro. Daniel Beeghly's. Had but a short time to stay, and as Bro. Daniel was not in, we did not meet him. Returned to sister Mary's home where we spent the evening pleasantly. They have indeed a beautiful home, and what is still better, kind hearts. We were much pleased with this family. The icy hand of death has visited them and taken from their midst a father and a son, and this thought often causes a sore wound, but they no doubt can look forward with hope to the time when there shall be a re-union of kindred spirits again.

We again returned to Bro. Holsinger's and in the morning departed for home. Miss Linny Will who accompanied us will remain here a day or more and then go on West. We gave her the parting hand reluctantly as she has been with us for some time and has proved to be a kind, sociable and amiable lady. May success follow her wherever her lot may be cast in this life. We passed on without any delay until we reached Bedford where we lay over for two hours. We spent the time by taking a walk through Bedford, which is on the whole a pretty nice country town. The cemetry being in close proximity to the town, we visited it and spent one hour. We might give some of our musings while in the "City of the dead," but for fear of being too prolix we forbear. We arrived home safely and found all things well.

J. B. B.

We ask a special reading for the Epistle to the church at Bealington and Corinth. It reads so apostolical that we think it will apply equally well to every church in the brotherhood. That tender care for the children of God, breathed through the epistle is characteristic of true christian charity, and will meet with a gladly response in many a heaven born saint throughout the land. God grant that every minister of Jesus' salvation may have hearts bleeding for the conversion of sinners. When our minds become so engrossed with the theme of redeeming love that we are willing to suffer for sinners as did our blessed Lord, those petty little questions about mode in Feet-washing, who are to be the fathers and a number of other things that are now marring the beauty of Zion, will be forever buried and covered over with the mantle of love that hides us all from avenging justice.

We Intended to say, last week, that we held our regular Church meeting on Saturday Sept. 7th which was largely represented by the members, as but few were absent, a custom for which James Creek is praiseworthy. After transacting the usual business and the money almost raised for our church, which is now in process of erection, a candidate was announced for baptism which was attended to in the fear of the Lord. The congregation at James Creek has progressed slowly but surely and we are glad to know that our present influences are favorable and our prospects good. We feel satisfied that there are a number that are persuaded that the Brethren have the truth on their side and we fondly hope the time may soon come that they will determine to cast their lot on the Lord's side and go with us. Brethren and sisters, let us all pray for the success of Zion.

INVITATIONS.

We feel truly grateful to our brethren and sister for the many kind invitations received to attend their Lovefeasts. We certainly would be pleased to attend them all, but there are so many and so close together that it will not be practicable, however, we expect to be at a number of them, but have not yet determined to what places we shall go.

PERONAL.

E. P. L. Dow of Loudenville, Ohio, says: "We have had but a small increase here yet the Lord has not forgotten us. There were several added to the church by baptism this summer, one reclaimed and three moved away. Thank the Lord that some are leaving the broad way and taking passage on the ship that lands it passengers safely on the other shore."

On Saturday, September the 14th, the brethren of Yellow Creek Bedford Co., Pa., called Joseph C. Replogle to the ministry and Levi Replogle to the deaconship. We are informed that Bro. Joseph is a young man of promise and it is hoped that he will fill with honor, the high position in which he is placed.

Educational. We had prepared some remarks to this article but they were crowded out—will have something to say next week.

J. H. Garman. The money for "Anxious Bench Religion Examined" was received and the Tracts sent. The money for the "Detecters" is also received and with them we will again send the other Tracts.

Send for the Pilgrim, only 30 cents to the end of the year. Good things in store for our readers.

SAMPLE COPIES.

We will always be pleased to furnish sample copies for distribution. All who think you could distribute them to a good advantage, send along your names and we will send you a pack of odd numbers free of charge.

The Science of Health for October contains an illustrated article on Popular Physiology, shewing the effects of improper dressing, and improper positions in sitting, standing and sleeping, and the evil effects which come from transgressions in this direction; the Different Medical Systems are discussed; Diseases of the Eye, illustrated; an article on Hygienic Dwellings gives directions for ventilation, light, location, etc. What is Hygienic Agriculture? It discusses the Theory and Practice of Medicine; Fresh Fruits and Vegetables; Hopefulness as a Remedial Agent; Women Physicians; and the Health of Editors. This magazine is published at $2 a year; single numbers 20 cents. It is offered on trial three months—this and the next two numbers—for 25 cents. Address the Publisher, S. R. Wells, 389 Broadway, N. Y.

MARRIED.

RUPERT—HAGY.—By the undersigned, at his residence in Tyrone, Pa., Sept, 12th, Mr. Samuel J. Rupert, to Miss Eliza J. Hagy, both of Altoona, Blair Co., Pa.

STEPHENS—FULTON.—By the same, at his residence, August 15th, Mr. James C. Stephens, to Miss Sallie A. Fulton, both of the Agricultural College, Center Co., Pa.

Wm. H. Quinn.

Important Notice.

We want some one in every church in the brotherhood to send us the name and address of every minister in their respective churches who are not taking the Pilgrim, (those that are taking it we have. As a compensation for this information, we will send free to every one that reports, a splendidly gotten up Pilgrim Almana, containing everything belonging to a first class Almanac, with quite a number of biographies of prominent ministering brethren never before written, also other important church information with an improved "Ministerial Record" different from anything ever published. We make this demand for the sake of peace and to avoid giving offence, and hope that some one, in every church, will respond at once. Also if there are any ministers who have been elected within the last year not yet reported, send us their names and address. In every address please give the county. We want this information as soon as we can possibly get it. Address

H. B Brumbaugh
James Creek,
Huntingdon Co., Pa.

A SAD STORY.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 2.—Geo. W. Howard, of Rome, New York, will be remembered as the gentleman who was married at Sharon Springs, on Wednesday last, and was on his way to visit a brother in Pawtucket, Rhode Island, when he lost his bride of a day by the late Metis disaster. The next morning what was supposed to be his wife's body was found, and it was reported that her funeral would take place at Sharon Springs yesterday. The initials "N. A." were the same as on his wife's rings, tho' it was of a different pattern, yet he did not feel positive that it was his wife. Being nearly exhausted himself, and not in a condition to think much about it, he concluded it must be her. Accordingly a coffin was procured at Stonington, and he started Saturday morning for the home of his loved one. He arrived there Saturday evening with what he supposed was the remains of his wife, but, on opening the coffin at the residence of his wife's parents, they discovered at once that it was not their daughter. The scene that followed can be better imagined than described. The afflicted husband at once returned to Stonington, and forwarded the corpse by express. When he arrived, he found another man searching for the body he had supposed was the body of his wife. In the meantime his friends in Pawtucket had heard of the lady who was picked up by the schooner A. B. Belden and brought to Newport, and had telegraphed to the undertaker for a description, which he gave, and at the same time had a photograph taken and sent also. This convinced them that the body which had been in this city since Friday night was no other than the wife of Mr. Howard. He, in company with his brother, arrived here this morning, and at once identified her. The scene that follows beggars description. As the husband gazed upon the remains of his beloved he was deeply affected, as were all present. The body was taken away on the 12 o'clock boat, via Wickford, an will be taken at once to Rome, N. Y. She was twenty-eight years of age, and bears a striking resemblance to the woman the husband had supposed was his wife. Mr. Howard states that the coat found upon her was placed there by himself to keep her warm, and that a moment after they were washed from the Metis, and all his exertions to save her were fruitless. It is a sad story, probably the most heart-rending one that can be told of the terrible disaster.—N. Y. Times.

Camphene lamps are as destructive of human life as locomotives.

The grape crop will be immense this year.

Many people in different parts of the State are dying from cramp in the bowels. In most cases it is caused by sudden chills.

The apple crop is so plentiful that all the old mills and presses of the country are being put in order. Hand presses are also in demand in some localities and improved large new presses, to supply an entire neighborhood with facilities to make cider.

Advertisements.

GOOD BOOKS.

A large number of our patrons are receiving our books as noticed below, as premiums, and express themselves highly pleased with them. Others who are not agents, have enquired whether we keep them for sale. We have now made arrangements with Mr. Wells to furnish any of their publications post paid at publishers prices. Orders for books must be accompanied with the cash, and plain directions for sending them.

Conversion of St. Paul. By George Jarvis Geer, D. D. 12mo. fine edition, $1. Plain edition, 75 cents.

Footprints of Life; or, Faith and Nature Reconciled.—A Poem in three parts. The Body. The Soul. The Deity. By Philip Harvey, M. D. $1.25.

Fruit Culture for the Million. A Hand book. being a Guide to the Cultivation and Management of Fruit Trees. Descriptions of the Best Varieties, and How to Propagate them. illustrated $1.00.

Hand-book for Home Improvement: comprising "How to Write," "How to Talk," How to Behave," and "How to do Business," in one vol. 2.25.

How to Live; Saving and Wasting, or Domestic Economy. By Solon Robinson. $1.50.

Life at Home; or, The Family and its Members. Husbands, Wives, Parents, Children, Brothers, Sisters, Employers and Employed, etc. By Rev. William Aikman, D. D. A work which should be found in every family. $1.50. Extra gilt, $2.00.

Man and Woman: Considered in their Relations to each Other and to the World. By Henry C. Pedder. 12mo, Fancy cloth Price $1.00.

Man, in Genesis and in Geology; or, the Biblical Account of Man's Creation, tested by Scientific Theories of his Origin and Antiquity. By Joseph P. Thompson, D. D., LL.D. One vol. 12mo, $1.00.

The Right Word in the Right Place. A New Pocket Dictionary and Reference Book. Embracing Synonyms, Technical Terms, Abbreviations, Foreign Phrases Writing for the Press, Punctuation, Proof-Reading, and other Valuable Information. Cloth, 75cts.

The Emphatic, Diaglott; or The New Testament in Greek and English. Containing the Original Greek Text of the New Testament, with an Interlineary Word for-word English Translation. A Work for Students in Theology, and S. S. Teachers. By Benamin Wilson. Price, $4.00; extra fine binding, $5.00.

Oratory—Sacred and Secular; or, the Extemporaneous Speaker. Including Chairman's Guide for conducting Public Meetings according to the best Parliamentary forms. By Wm. Pittenger. $1.50.

Water's Works for the Young. Comprising "Hopes and Helps for the Young of both Sexes," "Aids and Aims for Girls and Young Women," "Ways of Life; or, the Right Way and the Wrong Way," $3

Hopes and Helps for the Young of both sexes, Relating to the Formation of Character. Choice of Avocation, Health, Conversation, Cultivation of Intellect, Moral Sentiments, Social Affection Courtship and Marriage. By Rev. G. S. Weaver. Muslin, $1.50.

$5 to $20 per day! Agents wanted! All classes of working people, of either sex, young or old, make more money at work for us in their spare moments, or all the time, than at anything else. Particulars free. Address G. Stinson & Co., Portland, Maine.

SALEM COLLEGE.

The Fall term of Salem College will open for the reception of any number of students from all parts on the 4th of September, 1872. Ample accommodations and thorough instruction will be given all students who connect themselves with this College. Good board can be had in good families at $2.50 to $3.00 per week or students can board themselves in clubs at $1.25 te $1.50 per week as numbers have done with the consent of the faculty. Special care will be given students who are far from home.

For Catalogues, Scholarships and full particulars address

SALEM COLLEGE,
July 22, '72. Bourbon, Ind.

Valuable Farm
FOR SALE.

I will offer for sale, on the premises, at public auction, on

THURSDAY, October 10th, 1872,

(if not sold privately before), the farm on which I did reside. about 16 miles west of Lewisburg, not far from R. R., in Greenbriar co., W. Va.; on the James river and Kawha turnpike containing about

500 ACRES

On which is erected a large brick dwelling house and kitchen, stable and other outbuildings. This property is good for grain or grass, and is a convenient and desirable residence. About one-third of the land is cleared and the rest in good timber. All well watered, and could be conveniently divided into two or three small farms. Any one desiring to inspect the farm can do so by calling on W. R. Sharp, who lives adjoining the premises. Title good. Terms, $2,500 cash and the residue in one and two years. DAVID FRANTZ,

Menno Simon's
COMPLETE WORKS.

In English, translated from the original Dutch or Holland, giving the whole of the great Reformers writings on the subject of Baptism. Price in full sheep $4.50; by mail $5.14.

Address, JOHN F. FUNK & BRO.
Elkhart, Ind.

New Hymn Books, English.

TURKEY MOROCCO.

One copy, postpaid,	$1.00
Per Dozen,	11.25

PLAIN ARABESQE.

One Copy, post-paid,	75
Per Dozen, "	8.50

Ger'n & English, Plain Sheep.

One Copy, post-paid,	$1.00
Per Dozen	11.25
Arabesque Plain,	1.00
Turkey Morocco,	1.25
Single German, post paid	50
Per Dozen,	5.50

TRACTS.

"ANXIOUS BENCH RELIGION EXAMINIED," BY ELDER J. S. FLORY. A SYNOPSIS OF CONTEETS. An address to the reader: The peculiarities that attend this type of religion. The feelings there experienced not imaginary but real. The key that unlocks the wonderful mystery. The causes by which feelings are excited. How the momentary feelings called "Experimental religion" are brought about, and then concludes by giving that form of doctrine as taught by Jesus Christ and recorded by his faithful witnesses.

COUNTERFEIT DETECTER
or
BAPTISM—MUCH IN LITTLE.

This work is now ready for distribution, and the importance of the subject will speak for it a large demand. It is a short treatise on baptism in tract form intended for general distribution, and is set forth in such a plain and logical manner that a wayfaring man though a fool, cannot err therein. Either of the above tracts sent postpaid on the following terms: Two copies, 10 cts, 10 copies 40 cents, 25 copies 70 cents, 50 copies $1.00, 100 copies $1.50.

1870 1872

DR. FAHRNEY'S
Blood Cleanser or Panacea.

A tonic and purge, for Blood Diseases. Great reputation. Many testimonials. Many ministering brethren use and recommend it. Ask or send for the "Health Messenger." Use only the "Panacea" prepared at Chicago, Ills., and by

Dr. P. Fahrney's Brothers & Co.,
Aug. 8-pd. Waynesboro, Franklin Co., Pa.

Trine Immersion.

A discussion on Trine Immersion, by letter between Elder B. F. Moomaw and Dr. J. J. Jackson, to which is annexed a Treatise on the Lord's Supper, and on the necessity, character and evidences of the new birth, also a dialogue on the doctrine of non-resistance, by Elder B. F. Moomaw. Single copy 50 cents.

HUNTINGDON & BROAD TOP RAIL ROAD
Summer Arrangement.

On an after Tuesday, June 4, 1872, Passenger trains will arrive and depart as follows:

Trains from Huntingdon South. Trains from Bedford moving North.

MAIL. A. M.	ACCOM P. M.	STATIONS.	MAIL. P. M.	ACCOM A. M.
*le*8 20	LE6 00	Huntingdon,	AR5 25	AR9 10
8 28	6 06	Long Siding	5 17	9 00
8 45	0 19	McConnelstown	5 04	8 45
8 51	6 25	Pleasant Grove	4 58	8 39
9 05	6 37	Marklesburg	4 45	8 27
9 20	6 51	Coffee Run	4 33	8 11
9 27	6 58	Rough & Ready	4 26	8 40
9 39	7 10	Cove	4 12	7 52
9 43	7 15	Fishers Summit	4 08	7 48
10 03	7 35	Saxton	3 48 le	7 53
10 10	7 53	Saxton	ar	7 46
10 27	8 10	Riddlesburg	3 30	6 30
10 34	8 17	Hopewell	3 22	6 12
10 51	8 35	Piper's Run	3 06	6 00
11 10	8 55	Tatesville	2 48	6 56
11 22	9 08	Bloody Run	2 33	6 50
11 26	9 12	Mount Dallas	2 29	5 46
11 32	9 19	Ashcom's Mills	2 22	5 42
11 36	9 23	Lutzville	2 18	5 36
11 40	9 27	Hartley's Mills	2 14	5
11 46	9 34	Jamesons	2 07	5
*r*11 22	*ar*9 40	Bedford	LE2 00	LE5 30

JOHN M'KILLIPS, Supt

SHOUP'S RUN BRANCH.

LE10 25	LE7 40	Saxton.	AR3 40	AR7 20
10 30	7 55	Coalmout.	3 25	7 05
10 35	8 00	Crawford.	3 20	7 00
AR10 45	AR8 10	Dudley	LE3 10	LE6 50

Bro'd Top City from Dudley 2 miles by stage.

Time of Penna. R. R. Trains at Huntingdon.

EASTWARD.			WESTWARD.
Hb'g Ac.	9 24	A. M	Cin. Ex.	2 19	A. M.
Mail	8 30	P. M	Pc'f Ex.	7 45	"
Cin. Ex.	6 55	"	Mail	5 40	P. M.
Phil. Ex	11 15	"	W. Pass.	11 52	A. M.

THE PILGRIM.

Published by J. B. Brumbaugh, & Co.

Edited by H. B. & Geo. Brumbaugh.

CORRESPONDING EDITORS.

D. P. Sayler, Double Pipe Creek, Md.

Leonard Furry, New Enterprise, Pa.

The Pilgrim is a Christian Periodical, devoted to religion and moral reform. It will advocate in the spirit of love and liberty, the principles of true Christianity, labor for the promotion of peace among the people of God, for the encouragement of the saints and for the conversion of sinners, avoiding those things which tend toward disunion or sectional feelings.

TERMS.

Single copy, one year,	$1.25.
Book paper, " "	1.50.
Eleven copies, [eleventh for Agt.]	$12.50.

Any number above that at the same rate,

Address.

H. B. BRUMBAUGH.

James Creek,
Huntingdon county Pa.

Narrow Pilgrim.

"REMOVE NOT THE ANCIENT LANDMARKS WHICH OUR FATHERS HAVE SET."

VOL. 3. JAMES CREEK, PENNSYLVANIA, OCTOBER 1, 1872. NO. 40

POETRY.

WE MISS THEE.

Composed by Maggie A. Shroyer, on the death of her brother.

Yes we miss you dearest brother,
Yes we sadly miss you now;
For in death your voice is hushed
That we heard not long ago.
Those dear footsteps now are hushed
That so often told thee near,
And closed to earth are those sparkling eyes,
Undimmed by sorrow's tear.

All beautiful thy gentle form
Grown up to manhood's years;
'Till death, on dark destructions wings,
Announced thy time was near.
Then submissive to God's great command,
Our souls in reverence bow,
And say, thy will O Lord be done,
Though tears unnumbered flow.

Thou hast escaped a world of toil,
Perhaps eternal pain;
And had we power, we would not say,
"Return to us again."
For though affection's chain
Is now in fragments riven,
Again united, link to link,
T'will bind us all in Heaven.

Until then, dear brother, calmly rest—
In His dear arms of love;
'Till summoned we ascend to share,
Unending life above.
Yes dear brother, thou hast left us,
For brighter realms above;
But we hope, some day to meet you,
And be joined in bonds of love.

Yes, you left us, brother left us,
But a little while ago;
And I think that thou art happy,
Something seems to tell me so.
Dearest brother, how we miss you!
And everything we see,
Seems ever to be whispering
Something of thee.

Your dear lone companion—
And your children three,
Which you have left behind you,
Sadly mourn for thee.
The children often talk of papa,
As you taught them to say,
They talk of you at meal time,
And when they are at play.

And your father and mother,
They often talk of John;
They think of you both night and day
But alas! their son is gone.
And your brothers and your sisters
As you know there many be,
They will keep your name so dearly,
Treasured up in memory.

Since thou hast gone my dearest brother,
Little Mattie and your wife;
And another of your brothers,
Also have laid down their life.
And they have gone, I hope to meet you
In that land of peace and love,
Where we all do hope to greet you
Living with our God above.

WRITTEN BY ELLIE MOORE.

REFLECTIONS.

BY D. B. MENTZER.

"There! Who has died?" said I to a costomer this morning, as the first knell of a tolling bell fell upon my ear.

"I don't know," said he.

We soon learned it was one of our citizens, somewhat aged, stricken by apoplexy. It is often said that "in the midst of life we are in death." How true! It seems as though human life and death are travelling companions, the former sometimes ruling our mortal being with all the buoyancy and strength of health, then again Death, accompanied with a myriad train of diseases, raises a contest betimes, making our "mortal bodies" their battleground. In the case of to day, Death gained an immediate victory, and soon its prisoner, that lifeless body, will be shut up in the dark prison-house of the grave. Oh, how sudden!

Sometimes the conflict is a lingering one, and for a time, the forces of life rally and gain a partial victory; but a "few years hence, and we shall go the way whence we shall not return"—Death will carry us captive down to the land of dreary shadows and silent solitude. Solemn thought! Think of it ye gay, ye proud. Think of it, ye who enjoy the blessings of health. Think of it, ye whose earthly existence now trembles between life and death. O think of it, ye who are not quite ready to go down that dark vally.

I look around me and reflect. I see the indifference in which men live. Yes, we are all indifferent! But then, praise God, some of us are trying to live for Jesus and Heaven, and though the warfare is sometimes fought with considerable difficulty, yet, by the grace of Christ, we will fight it out on the line of duty, for we know what we are fighting for, we know our Captain, we know we are on the right side, and we know, most happily too, that when this warfare is over, the cause of sin and wrong subdued, and our Jesus shall have the sceptre of universal authority, "King of Kings" over all, blessed forever, then it will be our Father's good pleasure to give us the Kingdom." O let us arouse ourselves, gird on the whole armor of God, live soberly, humbly, faithfully, trustingly, and "let our light shine" forth in all its brilliancy, and walking and working with Jesus, to exemplify and spread the light of His life.

But I was thinking, too of the indifferent. How few are devoutly endeavoring, daily to advance in spiritual growth, and raise our holy Christian profession higher and higher above the groveling and sensual things of the present time, unto holiness, virtue, godliness, perfection, as it is written: "Let us go on unto perfection."

Dear friend, if you are not ready for the event of your final departure from earthly relations and associations, get ready now, and delay not. Beloved Christian reader, if you are walking in "the narrow way" and "observing all things that Jesus commanded," "go on your way rejoicing," and let all around you feel the power, and see the beauty of the Christian religion.

Waynesboro, Pa.

APOSTACY.

When a dear child, brother, sister, or associate—one upon whom our warmest love is centered—becomes influenced by disease, our fears and sympathies are aroused and we are much concerned about their welfare, and when at last the dread enemy baffles all skill and death brings the beloved one down to the cold and silent tomb, oh, how sad we feel, and in the depths of our sorrow we mourn for the loved and lost—the ties of natural affection are so strong that we are loth to be comforted. Sad are the realities of such a picture, but there is another of a sadder nature, and that is to see the influence of the monster disease, sin, working upon a dear one of the household of faith,—a beloved brother or sister in the Lord Jesus Christ. One whom we seen—as we believed born into the family of God, and rejoiced to see treading the "narrow way" with a bright countenance, beaming as we thought with the love of God that dwelt within, and to see them "count it joy" to suffer persecution for Christs' sake. To see such a one have no longer that ardent relish for the "droppings of the sanctuary" and to see plainly the evidences and outgrowth, upon the body, of the deadly disease that is at work in the heart, how sad we feel and oh how earnest we pray for them! And in love admonish them—plead with them and do all in our power to counteract the destroyer's stately steps. But alas! alas! the skill of the Great Physician is thwarted—body and soul yield to the tempter and at last death ensues, and oh, what a death! Dead to pure religious influence, dead to Heaven and Heavenly joys, dead to light and spiritual life, dead to the shelter and divine protection of the Church of the living God, dead to the sweet and endearing ties that bind kindred souls in one close communion of Christian love and affection. Dead! dead! to God and the Lord Jesus Christ! Oh, how our heart is made to bleed for such, to think Satan has torn them from us notwithstanding our entreaties, our prayers and hopes, the cords that we thought bound them so closely to the side of our blessed Master, and we felt bound us close to them had to be broken. We truly are made to feel the stroke, on the church is cast a gloom because one has been dragged into darkness—yea back to the world. But this is not all, methinks in Heaven angel rejoicings are hushed, and a voice of deep lamentation is heard crying woe, woe, woe, a soul is lost! LOST! And if the excruciating pains and torments of his enemies made Jesus "groan upon the tree" oh what pain and sorrow must that be that is inflicted by a professed friend, yea brother or sister, of His while crucifying the blessed Son of

FREEMASONRY CONTRARY TO THE CHRISTIAN RELIGION.

BY SPECTATOR.

The following paper on Freemasonry was sent us by O. W. Miller, and from the "Signs of the times" it would seem highly important that this curse, which is now tieing the hands of justice and threatening to undermine our civil and religious liberties, should be ventilated and our members warned of its dangers.

The sacred Scriptures require us to 'Prove all things and hold fast that which is good." (1 Thes. ver. 21.) In carrying out this injunction I was led to investigate the history, principles and tendency of Freemasonry; and after a somewhat protracted examination of the subject, I finally came to the conclusion that it is the most enormous system of humbuggery, delusion and blasphemy ever invented by the devil.

We have no record of any other system so well adapted to impose on the credulity of mankind and lead them down to eternal ruin. It appears to be composed of lies from stem to stern; it is founded in lies; its whole superstructure is lies; and it is propagated by lies. Its boasted antiquity is all lies from beginning to end. Not a trace of it can be found in the Holy Scriptures; not a trace of it in the Apocryphal writings, nor in the Targum nor Talmud or any other Rabbinical writings of the Jews; not a word about it in the writings of Josephus who, as a historian was very minute in giving an exact account of all the institutions, sects and parties, whether civil or religious, in the Jewish nation. How did it happen that he never wrote a word about Freemasonry?" Plainly because it did not exist in his day. Freemasons tell us the institution existed in the days of Solomon, and yet in St. Matthew's gospel (ch. 7. 7.) is quoted in the first degree, which was not written till 1000 years after the death of Solomon. In the third degree we have the names of three ruffians, Jubela, Jubelo, Jubelum, now these are Latin names and we know there was no Latin in Palestine in the days of Solomon. The language used by the Jews was Hebrew. On a close investigation I found fifty-seven lies in the third degree alone which I am prepared to exhibit and prove if necessary. In the lecture on the fourth degree we are told that that degree was founded by King Solomon, Hiram King of Tyre, and Hiram Abiff. In this degree quotations are made from the New Testament which clearly shows the falsehood of the pretended antiquity of the degree. The Jews were certainly wicked enough without saddling them with the invention of the infernal system of speculative Freemasonry. It was invented by Gentiles in a grog-shop in London, July 24th, 1717. I shall show that Freemasonry is as far from the Christian religion as the North Pole is from the South and that the one can no more associate with the other than light and darkness, or oil with water.

1st. The doctrines and principles of the Christian religion are to be proclaimed openly and publicly to all the world. Under the Jewish dispensation the Divine Being said "I have not spoken in secret from the beginning." (Is. xliii.) Our blessed Savior said, "I spake openly to the world . . and in secret have I said nothing." (John, xxiii. 20.) And when he sent his apostles to establish the Christian church he said, "go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature. (Mark xvi. 15.) It may be confidently affirmed that God never required anything to be kept a secret that emanated from him.

Freemasons on the contrary are sworn to conceal their principles from a very large majority of the human race. The Entered Apprentice, stripped of all but his shirt and a pair of drawers, blind-folded, with a rope around his neck, on his left knee, with his left hand under the Holy Bible, square and compass and his right hand on top of them says, "I most solemnly and sincerely promise and swear, that I will always hail, ever conceal, and never reveal, any part or parts, art or arts, point or points of the secrets, arts and mysteries of ancient Freemasonry, which I have received, am about to receive or may hereafter be instructed in." . . . binding myself under no less penalty than to have my throat cut across, my tongue torn out by the roots," etc. The penalties annexed to higher degrees are equally ferocious and barbarous. Among those denied the benefits (?) of Freemasonry are, boys under age, all women, old men, cripples, etc. On a moderate calculation nine tenths of the human family are absolutely excluded from the institution of Freemasonry. The very fact that secrecy is essential to its existence is prima facie evidence of its diabolical origin.

2nd. The Christian religion discards and rejects all use of the sword, as being inimical to the principles object nature and design of the Christian system. In the millennium and when the kingdom of Christ is fully established, "the people shall beat their swords into ploughshares and their spears into pruning-hooks; nation shall not lift up the sword against nation neither shall they learn war any more." (Is. II. 14) All use of the sword is excluded from the kingdom of Christ. (Matt. 26, 52.)

Freemasons on the contrary use the sword as an essential element in their institution. We see it naked in the hand of the tyler at the door of every lodge-room. It is exhibited in all their public processions; in their laying the corner-stone of public buildings, etc. The Knights Templars kneeling on two cross-words with their hands on the Holy Bible on which two cross-words are laid, "promise and swear to use their sword in defense of the Christian religion. Poor deluded fanatics!—binding themselvs with a barbarous oath to use the armor of satan in defense of the religion of Christ, not knowing that Christ rejects both their oath and their sword. Should they fail to fulfil their oath they forfeit their lives. The penalty is to have their head struck off and placed upon the highest spire in the Christendom!

3rd. The Christian religion absolutely forbids swearing in every shape or form. The great head of the Church has said, "swear not at all; neither by heaven; for it is God's throne; nor by the earth for it is his foot-stool; neither by Jerosalem, for it is the city of the great King. Neither shalt thou swear by thy head because thou canst not make on hair white or black." (Matt. 5: 34, 39.) The apostle James says, "Above all things my brethren, swear not, neither by heaven, neither by the earth, neither by any other oath. (Jam. 5: 12.

Freemasons on the contrary have their whole system interladed with oaths of the most ferocious and profane description. They are interposed between each degree, and operate as cement to hold the heterogeneous mass together. A greater mixture of discordant elements perhaps never met in one mass. It includes heathen folly, Jewish ceremonies, long since set aside by the light of revelation, perverted and misapplied quotations from the Scriptures, vain, empty, high-sounding titles and abject servility by the majority of the minority.

If the outlandish oaths that now hold these discordant materials together as with a band of iron and brass were dispensed with, the whole system would go to fragments in a short time. The Entered Apprentice, in direct violation of the command of Christ, on his knees, with his hand on the Holy Bible, says, "I promise and swear," three times; the Fellow Craft, in a similar plight, says, "I promise and swear," six times; the Master mason says "I promise and swear," seventeen times; the Mark Master, seven times; the Past Master, eleven times; the Most Excellent Master, seven times; the Royal Arch Mason, fourteen times. The Royal Arch Mason, counting all the lower degrees he has passed through, has said, in presence of Almighty God, "I promise and swear," sixty-eight times; the Most Excellent Master, fifty-one times; the Past Master forty-four times; the Mark Master thirty-three times; the Master Mason twenty-six times; the Fellow Craft, nine times. When the circumstances under which these oaths are taken are considered, including a rope round the neck, eyes bandaged, partial nudity, encircled with drawn swords, they must be shocking to humanity; and when their elementary principles are examined, they will be found to be contrary to the laws of God and man, and admirably adapted to overthrow all civil government and undermine the foundation of the Church of Christ.

4th. The Christian religion considers all men as brethren, in subjection to one supreme head, which is Jesus Christ. "Be not ye called Rabbi (Master) for one is your Master, even Christ; and all ye are brethren." (Matt. 23: 8, 10.) Christ, on one occasion, said, "Ye call me Master and Lord; and ye say well, for so I am." (John 13: 13.) "For to this end Christ both died and rose, and revived, that he might be Lord both of the dead and living." (Rom. 14: 16.) Christ is the head of the Church, which is his figurative body, and believers are members of his body in subjunction to him. He has the exclusive command and control over all his servants. If other lords have the command or dominion over them, in whole or any part or degree, they are none of his. (Eph. 1: 22.—4: 15. Col. 1: 18—2: 19.

(To be continued.)

THE WAY OF SALVATION PLAIN.

BY DR. GUTHRIE.

The Bible has had innumerable commentators. Some by their books or sermons remind us of him who lighted a candle to show the sun; and others like the fog bank through which the sun shines shorn of its beams, "darken counsel by words" and make what was clear, obscure. By their labors, some have diluted, while others, making their sermons or commentaries a vehicle for error, have adulterated the truth of God, the wine of life. But however this may be, more pens have been worn, more breath spent, more printing presses employed, in expiaining the Bible than all other books whatever; so that, were all the books collected which have been written to throw light on the Scriptures, they would—not excepting that of Alaxandria, which it took many years to reduce to ashes—from the largest library the world ever saw. Are we to infer from this that the way of life is obscure? By no means. All that is necessary to know in order to be saved, it is easy to know. "The wayfaring men, though fools, shall not err therein," says the prophet; and without disparaging the labors of pious and able divines to explore the mysteries and shed light on the obscurities of the sacred volume, the simple Bible, blessed of God, has proved to unlettered thousands a safe and sufficient guide. Whatever genius and arduous study it may require to rise to a place in the temple of fame, many an humble Christian, hardly able to spell his way through the Word of God, has reached one in the temple of Heaven. Thousands so deficient in talent or energy as never to have been able to make their way in this world, have found their way to a better one; nor are there wanting interesting and well attested cases of imbeciles who, though destitute of capacity for ordinary knowledge, have known him, whom to know is life eternal—so plain the way through childlike faith in Christ—so easy as well to the unsteady gait of simpletons as to the tottering foot of childhood, as to verify the words "The wayfaring men, though fools, shall not err therein," With this simple answer to the great question, "What shall I do to be saved? "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved." None need be excluded from Heaven because of ignorance; as with virtue in Christ's blood to cleanse the chief of sinners, none need be excluded because of sin. It needs no learning to learn the way. What has the church seen? God ordaining out of the mouth of babes and sucklings; gray haired men learning wisdom at the feet of childhood; the death beds of the humble poor like the very gates of Heaven; the child learning the way to life on his mother's knee; the thief learning it on his dying cross; the mantle of prophets falling on ploughman; Heaven revealing its glories to humble shepherds; rude fisherman of Galilee called to the apostleship; grace polishing the roughest men; roaring savages tamed by the voice, and sitting at the feet of Jesus, clothed and in their right mind. Simple faith in Him is all that is required; such confidence as the little child, lying in its mother's arms, hanging on her neck, looking up in her face, reposes in the power of a mother's arm and the tenderness of a mother's heart.

THE DEVIL'S ANNIVERSARY.—Luther has this in one of his sermons: "The devil held an anniversary, when his agents reported their work, 'I let loose wild beasts on a Christian caravan, and their bones are on the sand,' said one. 'What of that? Their souls were all saved,' said satan. 'I drove the east wind against a ship filled with Christians, and they were all drowned,' said another. What of that? Their souls were all saved,' said the devil. 'For ten years I tried to get a Christian asleep; I succeeded, and left him so,' said a third. Then the devil shouted, and the night stars of hell sang for joy."

Youth's Department.

THE MERRY HEART.

'Tis well to have a merry heart,
However short we stay;
There's wisdom in a merry heart,
Whate'er the world may say.
Philosophy may lift it's head,
And find out many a flaw;
But give me the philosopher
That's happy with a straw!

If life brings us but happiness,
It brings us, we are told,
What's hard to buy, though rich one's try
With all their heaps of gold:
Then laugh away, let others say
Whate'er they will of mirth;
Who laughs the most, may truly boast
He's got the wealth of earth.

There's beauty in a merry heart,
A moral beauty too;
It shows the heart's an honest heart,
That's paid each man his due.
It lent a share of what's to spare,
Despite of wisdom's fears,
And made the cheek less sorrow speak,
The eye weep fewer tears.

The sun may shroud itself in cloud,
The tempest wrath begin,
It finds a spark to cheer the dark,
It sunlight is within!
Then laugh away, let others say
Whate'er they will of mirth,
Who laughs the most, may truly boast
He's got the wealth of earth.

TO YOUNG PILGRIMS.

Dear young pilgrims, on the way to Zion, I feel like writing to you this afternoon, if you will please give your attention and we shall try to edify one another and promote the cause in which we are engaged. Come let us lay aside all superfluity of naughtiness, and become humble and Christlike in our deportment, and prove by our walk and conversation that we are the Lord's. Let us fulfill our high and holy calling as becometh saints, that when we finish our course it may be finished with joy. "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints." Let us strive at all times for the welfare of Zion that the ancient landmarks be not removed. Dear young brethren and sisters, let us heed the example of our dear old father's and mother's in Israel, that we do not hew out sisterns of our own. Let us just look back for the short space of ten or fifteen years at a congregation of brethren and sisters then assembled, and compare with us now. Methinks there is a vast difference, therefore let us renew our diligence to imitate their good example. The longer I am with the church the more I see the necessity of being uniform in our appearance and general deportment. I think it tends greatly to pulling down some of the strongholds of sin and greatly promotes love, peace and good will amongst us. But when we carry so much of this world's fashion along with us into the church, how it grieves our dear brethren and sisters! The word says: when ye sin so against the brethren and wound their weak consciences ye sin against Christ, and in another place it says: "whatsoever ye have done unto the least of these my brethren ye have done it unto me." Let us not therefore wound the hearts of these dear ones any more lest we sin against Christ in our coming in such a way as may cause offence instead of joy.

Now a few words to our dear young sisters. Have ye not read that whatsoever is highly esteemed by the world is an abomination to God? and there are few fashions that receive more attention at present than the manner of arranging the hair, and sorry indeed am I to see such an abundance of headgear coming into the church, that were it not that they give a peculiar cut to the covering our sisters wear, methinks they would not be able to wear an ordinary cap. Think you this will stand the test at the bar of God? I sincerely hope that you will each lend your influence to rid the church of this evil and prove by our good example that we are sincere and mean to build up Zion that we can dwell together in the unity of the spirit and the bond of peace. We are to abstain from the very appearance of evil, and when we make so much display, it certainly has an evil appearance. Let us flee these things and become humble followers of the meek and lowly Lamb of God. Dear young pilgrims, it is out of love for the cause in which we are engaged, that I have written the way I have. Let us pray without ceasing for ourselves and the church, that when the marriage supper of the Lamb shall come we may be among the blessed ones who are called to partake thereof. A SISTER.

VALUE OF A GOOD NAME.

A man of very pleasing address, but very dishonest in his practices, once said to an honorable merchant, "whose word was as good as his bond," "I would give fifty thousand dollars for your good name."

"Why so?" asked the other in some surprise.

"Because I could make a hundred thousand dollars out of it."

The honorable character which was at the bottom of the good name he cared nothing for: it was only the reputation, which he could turn to account in a money point of view, he coveted.

But a good name cannot be bought with silver; it, of all other possessions, must be fairly earned. When it is possessed, it is better business capital than a great sum of money. It is a capital any boy or girl may secure. Honesty must be its foundation, even in the smallest particulars. When an employer says, "that is a boy I can trust," he will always find himself in demand, provided he joins with it industry. "The hand of the diligent maketh rich."

It seems hard at the time, maybe, —this ceaseless round of work, while other boys are lounging about store-steps, or playing on the green. But the reward will come if you are faithful. While loungers are dragging out a miserable lifetime in privation and poverty, the hard-working boy lives at his ease, respected and honored.

Remember this, boys, if you desire to make your way in this world. There is nothing that can serve your purpose like a name of honesty and industry: and you will never acquire either if you are a lounger about the streets, and a shirk at your business. Everybody suspects a lad who is often seen about saloon-doors or tavern-steps. It undermines a boy's character for honesty very rapidly to mix with the society he finds there; and such habits tend to anything but industry.

"A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, and loving favor rather than silver and gold." Print that text on your heart, and carry it with you in all your walks and ways. It is worth far more than silver and gold to you.—Presbyterian.

IF YOU PLEASE.

Boys and girls, we will print for you the last words of the Duke of Wellington, "if you please."

When the Duke of Wellington was sick, the last thing he took was a little tea. On his servant handing it to him in a saucer, and asking if he would have it, the duke replied, "Yes if you please." These were his last words. How much kindness and courtesy are expressed by them! He who had commanded great armies, and was long accustomed to the tone of authority, did not overlook the small courtesies of life. Ah, how many boys do! What a rude tone of command they often use to their little brothers and sisters, and sometimes to their mothers!

They order so. This is ill-bred, and shows, to say the least, a want of thought. In all your home talk remember "If you please" will make you better served than all the cross or ordering words in the whole dictionary. Do not forget three little words —"If you please."

"Speak gently; it is better far
To rule by love than fear."

A PLAN FOR READING THE BIBLE THROUGH EVERY YEAR.

In January read Genesis and Exodus.

In February read to 10th Deut.

In March read to 15th of 1st Sam.

In April read to 15th of 2d Kings.

In May read to 5th Nehemiah.

In June read to 100th Psalm.

In July read to 50th Isaiah.

In August read to 20th of Ezekiel.

In September read to end of old Testament.

In October read to end of Luke.

In November read to end of Corinthians.

In December read to end of New Testament.

About 65 to 75 pages per month, or about two pages for every week day, and four pages for every Sunday.

Put this on the inner cover of your Bible.

OUR CORRESPONDENCE

A Reporter is wanted from every Church in the brotherhood to send us Church news, Obituaries, Announcements or anything that will be of general interest. To insure insertion, the writers name must accompany each communication. Our invitation is not personal but general—please respond to our call.

LOVEST THOU ME MORE THAN THESE?

Dear Pilgrim: A great deal has been said and written on the above subject. Different views are had as to what Christ meant when he interrogated Peter, when he said "lovest thou me more than these?"—Some think that he wished to know whether Peter loved him more than he did the disciples, but I believe he wished to know of Peter whether he loved him more than the fish. It is necessary to go back to the time when Peter was called to forsake his occupation that we may rightly understand the question.—Jesus saw Simon, called Peter, and Andrew, his brother, casting a net into the sea, for they were fishers, and he saith unto them: "Follow me and I will make you fishers of men?" Now Peter, as a general thing, was a faithful follower of Jesus, yet he was a very peculiar man. We find him of a determinate ready mind, even when he learned that Christ was shortly going to leave them, he said, "Why can I not follow the now, I will lay down my life for thy sake." Shortly after this, Christ was taken and we see Peter following him afar off.—Mat. 29:58. Fear perhaps mingled with doubt, took possession of his mind. But yet he loved him, therefore he wished to see what would become of his Lord. He was put to death according to the Scriptures, laid in the Sepulcher, and raised from the dead the third day.

Now Peter after being told by the women, who had been to the Sepulcher, that Christ was risen, ran to the Sepulcher and beheld the linen clothes by themselves, and departed wondering in himself at that which had come to pass.

Peter with the rest of the apostles began to doubt whether Jesus was the Christ, consequently he said to six of his disciples, "I go a fishing." They say unto him, "We also go with thee. Peter, losing that belief in Christ that he had while with him, although Christ had said follow me and I will make you fishers of men, resorted to his former occupation "for they were fishermen." Then Jesus appeared to them while thus engaged. On this occasion they caught a great quantity and having dined, Christ said to Peter, "Lovest thou me more than these?" Now as Peter's occupation was to fish, and Christ having called him to be "fishers of men," when Christ found him thus engaged, he wished to remind Peter that to feed his lambs, or be fishers of men, was of far greater value than all the fish in the sea. A man is apt to love his occupation, so with Peter, having resorted to fishing, his affections were there, "for where your treasure is, there is your heart also."

After Christ interrogated his fishing by calling his mind back to the important duty of feeding his sheep says, "Follow me." As much as to say, if you love me more than these, continue in the occupation of preaching the gospel.

I may be asked, why did Christ question Peter three times? I answer because he did not answer his question satisfactory. Christ wished to know whether Peter loved him more than these, the fish.—But Peter did not say he loved Christ more than these, but only said, "thou knowest that I love thee.

We see no reason why Christ should desire to know whether Peter loved his disciples more than him, for Christ said, "feed my sheep," thus giving him to understand that if he loved him more than the fish, he should love his brethren, also feed them with the bread of life. "When thou art converted strengthen thy brethren, Satan hath desired to have thee."—We see that satan did desire to have Peter when he forsook the all important task assigned him of fishing for men.

What I have written I written as my views and not for controversy. Should any differ with me, I hope a spirit of forbearance will be manifested.

J. M. WELLS.

ON TRAINING CHILDREN.

Dear Brethren:—I again drop a few lines for the PILGRIM. Brethren and sisters in the Church of Christ, we as the servants of our Lord are trying to follow the example of Christ in obedience to his holy and divine will. If we want to die happy, it is our duty to keep all the commandments which he has given us, and if we properly examine the Scriptures we find a command that we should raise our children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. Now dear brethren and sisters, if we admonish our children we should do it in the fear of the Lord, and if we do this, let us keep them from the vain fashions of this world. But if you will admonish them and still buy fashionable things for them you are not doing your duty as you should towards them. Even mothers will get children hats with ribbons and artificials and flowers on them before they can walk. If that is serving the Lord, a man can serve him in a show tent or a ball-room. "Train up a child in the way he should go and when he is old he will not depart from it."—Prov. 22-6. If we raise our children on the broad road, they will likely remain there, and will be forever a curse. Whose fault is it? Who will be to blame in the great day of God Almighty but the parents? After awhile when the children grow to manhood and womanhood the parents will ask others to pray for their children. Pray for your children! Why did you not obey the Lord and do as he told you to do? Do you not see the folly of raising them in all the vain fashions of this world?

Brethren and sisters, these are some of the little foxes that so much endanger the tender vines. It will not do to example and preach so much against pride on our own persons, and at the same time, manifest so much taste for it in dressing and decorating the bodies of our innocent children, thus inculcating into them a desire for these vain things which may work out their ruin.

A. H. BAUM.

Ashland, Ohio.

Brother Brumbaugh:—In regard to enlarging the PILGRIM, so as to give the general news, &c., I would say, I think there are a great many that need just such a paper as described in number 37. The Brethren mostly are a reading community and no paper published by them answers the full purpose, therefore we are obliged to take one or two others besides our religious papers to keep ourselves informed on necessary information to qualify us for usefulness in life. I would be much in favor of a trial. I believe such a paper would take and its circulation increase if gotten up to satisfaction.

I am your brother,

JESSE Y. HECKLER.

Dear Brethren:—I have, of late, thought how much I would like to have written for the PILGRIM, but I have been from home on "field duty" so much that I have no time to be at home on "furlough." The enemy is pressing hard, but still I will fight if God will nerve my arm to the power of his might. Of all patriotism that ever burned in the bosom of man, there is none like that of Christian patriotism; and where, such heroism as that, that causes a soul to fight and, if needs be, die at the fort of religious honor? Oh may we all prove ourselves worthy of the vocation whereunto we are called.

J. S. FLORY.

Dear Pilgrim:—As I have been a reader of your worthy paper ever since it was first published, I will give a word of church news. This being a large District, the brethren thought best to divide and make smaller ones, which was done last Spring, and they all appear to be getting along well. The Maggodee district have received fifteen by baptism this summer, and we hope there are some more that will soon come.

Your brother in Christ,

JACOB P. NEFF.

Dear Pilgrim:—Our visiting brethren are paying their annual visit to the Church, and so far as I have heard, have found peace and harmony, which makes me feel to rejoice, and take courage. Our church meeting is appointed to be next Saturday, at which time we expect to make arrangement for our Fall Communion Meeting. The time will then pe published, which I suppose will be about from the 25th to the 28th of October.

Yours, J. H. GARMAN.

Dear Pilgrim:—We spend many happy hours in reading your pages and comparing them with the words of eternal truth, and feel to do all that we can to make your work successful and be for the welfare of souls.

MARTIN A. EISENHORN.

Announcements.

LOVEFEASTS.

Shiloh Church, Barbour Co., W. Va., October 13th, 3 o'clock p. m.

Spring Run, Mifflin County Pa., October 13th, 1 o'clock p. m.

Pine Creek Church, St. Joseph county Indiana October 16th 4 o'clock p. m.

Welch Run; Franklin Co. Pa. October 12th.

DUNNINGS CREEK, Bedford co., Pa., Oct. 19th at 4 o'clock, p. m.

BLACK RIVER Congregation, Medina co., Ohio, Oct. 9th.

LOST CREEK, Juniata co., Pa., Oct 16th, at 1 o'clock, p. m.

Waddam's Grove, Stephenson county, Ill., Oct. 12th and 13th.

Meadow Branch, Md., Saturday October 12th. Commencing at half past 1 o'clock p. m.

Sam's Creek, Md., Tuesday, October 15th, commencing at half past 1 o'clock p. m.

Hamilton Branch, 4 miles North of Hamilton, Daviess Co., Mo., Oct. 12th 2 o'clock p. m. To continue over Sunday.

Clarian Church, Clarian Co., Pa., Oct. 5th and 6th.

Howard Congregation, Howard Co., Ind, Oct. 17th. Those coming by railway will find conveyance at Kokomo on the day previous.

Okaw Church, Piatt Co., Ill., Oct 9th, at at 10 o'clock a. m.

Clover Creek, Blair Co., Pa., Oct. 17th, 18th, at 4 p. m.

Brownsville, Washington county, Md. October 5th and 6th, at 10 a. m.

Dry Valley Meeting house, Mifflin county Pa., October 15th, at 1 o'clock p. m.

Falling Springs, Franklin county, Pa., at the Antrim meeting-house on the 15th of October, at 10 a. m.

Hopewell Church, Woodcock Valley Pa., October 12th, at 4 p. m.

James Creek, Huntingdon Co., Pa.. Oct., 19th. Services to continue over Sabbath.

Milmine Church, Piatt county Ill., October 17th, at 10 a. m.

In the Antietum Congregation. at Welty's meeting house, Washington county, Md., on the 10th of October, commencing at 10 o'clock.

At the house of Daniel Glicks, Andrew co., Mo., October 5th, commencing at 4 o'clock, p. m. Meeting will be continued if aid can be obtained. Address Daniel Glick, Flag Spring, or J. B. Bashor, Whitesville, Andrew co., Mo.

The brethren of Yellow Creek, Bedford co., Pa., will hold their Communion Meeting, Tuesday, October 15th, commencing at 4 o'clock, p. m. The usual invitation is given.

The brethren of Raccoon, Ind., have appointed their Communion Meeting on the 10th of Oct., and give a general invitation. Ladoga is the R. R. Station. Meeting 1¼ miles north-west of town. R. H. MILLER.

Please announce through the PILGRIM that the brethren of the Grasshopper Valley Congregation intend, the Lord willing, to hold a Communion meeting on the 12th and 13th of October in the meeting house in the town of Osawkee, Jefferson county, Kansas. An invitation is given to all, especially do we wish ministering brethren to be with us.

DIED.

MILLER.—In the Beaver Creek congregation, Rocking county, Va., near Bridgewater, August 7th, 1872, sister Sallie Miller, consort of brother Abraham Miller, aged 54 years, 2 months and 28 days. Her remains were taken to Beaver Creek and buried on the 8th Funeral services by David Bowman and others to a large congregation, from Rev. 20: 6.

THOMAS.—In the same neighborhood, August 11th, sister Catharine Thomas, consort of brother Henry Thomas deceased, aged 72 years, 4 months and 22 days. She was buried at Beaver Creek on the 12th. Funeral services by Martin Miller and others, from Rev. 14: 13, to a large congregation.

MANLY.—In the same neighborhood and at the same place, September 5th, sister Martha Manly, aged 27 years, 11 months and 4 days. Funeral servics by David Bowman from Job 19: 24.

S. N. WINE.

The Weekly Pilgrim.

JAMES CREEK, PA., Oct. 1st, 1872

EDUCATIONAL.

Educational of last week was a little more personal than we could have wished, but as truth will not lose anything by investigation, we gave it a hearing. Salem College has had a good share of buffs, but how deserving it is, can only be judged by those who are best acquainted with its proceedings. We are, and ever were, in favor of having our children educated in Brethren's schools, not in name only, but in substance, therefore we have favored a move in that direction and when the Bourbon school was started we done all for it that consistency would allow, but the idea, that because there is a "Salem College" no other move can be made to more fully supply the wants of the Church is simply ridiculous. Salem College is not a whit more a Brethren's school than is Bro. Miller's of Warsaw, Bro. Sharp's of Marysville or any other school now conducted by brethren.

There is a wrong somewhere, and to-day we have no school fully recognized by the Brethren, therefore we are decidedly in favor of having our educational enterprises investigated, and if Bourbon is decided upon to be a favorable location, all difficulties can be amicably adjusted and the school governed and taught wholly by brethren, then let the Church give it that encouragement and patronage that the cause demands. If not let us try it somewhere else.

In regard to donations, our sister has hit the cause of failure fairly and squarely. Donations from the world, (?) we say never, never. They are intended to tie our hands and fetter the truth, and besides, it is a disgrace to a church worth its millions and millions to beg the world for money to build a school. But to the idea of making it a church institution we are opposed, and the friends of education might as well all be, for just as long as we labor to accomplish that end, just so long we will fail. Let the school be gotten up as a private enterprise, similar to our periodicals. If one brother is not able, let three or four or a dozen, or even a whole district, join together. Let the funds be sufficient to put up good and commodious buildings and place everything on a clear and independent basis, and then have brethren for officers and teachers and there will soon be plenty of brethren's children for scholars. Anything short of this can not compete with the many good unsectarian schools now in the world. Time and money is too precious to spend at schools short of the modern facilities for teaching.

If another location is wanted, we know of one which we think could be either leased or bought within the bounds of a large congregation of Brethren. The buildings are situated in a beautiful and healthful town accessible by railroad and supplied with a good and convenient Church built by the Brethren, the fact is, we do not know of another more desirable location in the country. Any information concerning it will gladly be given by addressing us.

Our remarks have not been made through a spirit of self-aggrandizement, but for the good of the enterprise. We care not where the location shall be or who shall be at the head of it, only so the object desired be attained. Let us have something worthy of our whole patronage or nothing at all.

A GLIMPSE OF OUR FUTURE.

The present year so far, has been one of many pleasant and,in some cases, very happy associations especially with kindred spirits,and the PILGRIM in way of number, has been a success. From a small beginning it has been working, like the leaven in the meal or the trembling voice of Jonah in the great city, until a considerable field has been supplied with the glad tidings of its weekly bearings. But when we look around us and see the vast multitudes who have never learned to know Jesus unto eternal life, it creates within us a strong desire to make our work more universally known, and have determined to make a move in that direction and are now making arrangements by which we can tell, at least 200,000 souls that there is a "WEEKLY PILGRIM" published at James Creek, in defense of "Primitive Christianity."

To do this, it will take money, but we will run the risk with the hope of realizing our desires in making the Church of the "Brethren" and its principles more generally known. We are not very certain that we shall receive our reward in dollars and cents but it will be a move towards preaching the gospel to every creature. And now, dear brethren and sisters, when we go to the expense of sending forth the medium through which the truth may be preached, we ask you to aid us in preaching it. Please furnish us with a goodly number of articles that treat on the principles of our faith, such as will stand the "purifiers fire," and bear the name of "sound doctrine."

Help us to burthen its pages with the glad tidings of salvation, and if we are not mistaken, for 1873, thousands who never had the privilege of reading its pages before, will learn of Him, of whom to know, is eternal life.

WHO HAS IT?

Things in the PILGRIM office are progressing finely, and we have pretty plenty of everything just now, except money. Our coffer of late is quite unlike the miraculous meal tub, as the last dollar frequently leaves it without another to take its place. We have nearly $1,000 standing out among our patrons—who has it? We need it, would like to have it, and should have it. We adopted the credit system for the accommodation of such who had not the money to pay at the time of subscribing. We granted such favor with the assurance that all of our dear brethren and sisters are strictly honest. In this, we do not expect to be disappointed, but we fear our liberality may be the cause of some becoming negligent in regard to our wants. "Brethren these things ought not so to be." Please administer to our necessities now by sending us the small amount due us, and we will feel grateful indeed.

ELD. PHILIP BOYLE.

From a letter written by E. W. Stoner, dated September 12th, we were informed of the departure of our much esteemed Eld. Philip Boyle of the Pipe Creek Congregation, Md. One after another, the old fathers in Israel are falling to sleep, but who shall wear their mantles?

Bro. Boyle was greatly beloved by all who knew him, and the Pipe Creek and surrounding churches will deeply feel their loss.

PERSONAL.

ELD. J. S. FLORY, writes us that diphtheria is raging in their county, and that a number of deaths have occurred within a few days.

SIMON MIXEL. The money for the tracts was received, also your last remittance.

JOHN MONN. Your note containing a reply to letter of Bro. George Mourer published in PILGRIM of March 15th, is received and we certainly would be pleased to publish it was there anything in it worthy of being read, but it is so utterly void of argument, reason and truth that we refuse to disgrace our columns with it. A man so grossly ignorant of the Scriptures and the force of language ought to blush at the idea of criticizing the productions of men of better intelligence and judgment. You will please excuse us for our conclusion as we think its publication would not tend to edification.

JACOB EIGENBRODE. Of the books you wish we have none now on hands, will send it as soon as we get another supply. The tracts are sent.

MANUSCRIPT. We have several packs of manuscript which we have not yet had time to examine. The contributors will please exercise patience until we get a little leisure.

TELL YOUR friends—don't forget it—that the PILGRIM is only 30 cents to the end of the year.

THE YOUNG FOLK'S RURAL is a novelty among publications for young people, entirely different from any other in style and character. Cash prizes are given for best "compositions." Write for a specimen number and particulars, which will be sent free. Terms, $1.50 per year—$1.00 in clubs of four or more, and every subscriber receives a pair of beautiful chromos as a gift. Splendid premiums to those who form clubs. Address H. N. F. LEWIS, Publisher, Chicago, Ill.

THE ALDINE for October is a brilliant number. It opens with a full page drawing, by Victor Nehig: a graphic and spirited representation of a professional bravo and his employer, and the rival who is about to become their victim. This is followed by "Hollo," and "School Discipline," by John S. Davis—the former, a glimpse of boy life in the country: the boy, in this instance, being a young urchin, who has stolen into the woods with his dog and gun; the latter, a view of a village school-house, in which a girl is doing penance among the boys, probably for missing her lesson. F. T. Vance takes us into the Heart of the Adirondacks, of which he gives us three views—"The Glen," a charming bit of woodland scenery, with a little brook falling over rocks into a still pool; "Preston Ponds," and "Lake Henderson," a moonlight glance at that mountain-girdled sheet of water. From Paul Dixon we have "The Hills of New England," and "Evening," two characteristics and admirable drawings. Then comes "A Serious Case," by Ernst Bosh; "Temple of Canova," and "Last Moments of Von Weber;" and, last, a group of "Snow-Birds," by Gilbert Burling.

The literature is as readable as ever—the most notable articles being "A Last Visit to Leigh Hunt," by January Searle, a pleasant reminiscence of that genial old essayist; "Painted Boats on Painted Seas," by Hiram Rich, a scholarly essay, drawn from a wide range of reading; "October," a pleasant title of out-door life, by W. W. Bailey, and the "Heart of the Adirondacks." In the shape of stories we have "Prince and Peasant," by Helen S. Conant; "A Woman's Eternity," by Elizabeth D. Leon and, and "Mouse Shoes," by Lolly Dihk's Mother. George W. Sears contributes a characteristic poem, "In the Woods," and S. W. Duffield a pathetic fantasy, which he he calls 'The Two Lives.' Besides these papers there are editorials on 'School Children,' 'A Serious Case,' 'The Temple of Canova,' and 'Karl Von Weber.' The subscription price is $5 00 per annum, which includes a superb Oil Chromo, and the publishers are James Sutton & Co., 58 Maiden Lane, New York.

Immense Wheat Farms in California.

There are three wheat farms in the San Joaquin Valley, with areas respectfully of 36,000 acres, 23,000 acres and 17,000 acres. On the largest of these farms the wheat crop this year is reputed to be equal to an average of forty bushels to the acre, the yield running up on some parts of the farm to sixty bushels. The product of this farm for the present year is 1,440,000 bushels. The boundary on one side of this farm is about seventeen miles long. At the season of ploughing ten four horse teams were attached to ten gang plows, each gang having four plows—or forty horses with as many plows were started at the same time, the teams following in close succession. Lunch or dinner was served at a midway station, and supper at the terminus of the field, seventeen miles distant from the starting point. The teams returned on the following day. The wheat in this immense field was cut with twenty of the largest reapers, and we believe has now all been threshed and put in sacks It would require over forty ships of medium size to transport the wheat raised on the farm to a foreign market. Even the sacks required would make a large hole in the surplus money of most farmers. We have nott he figures touching the product of the other two farms; but presume that the average is not much below that of the first. There are thousands of tons of wheat which cannot be taken out of the valley this season, and must remain over as dead capital, or what is nearly as undeniable, will only command advances at heavy rates of interest.

The Snelling Argus suggests the building of a narrow guage road from Stockton through Snelling to Merced Falls. Such a road would be of great importance to Stockton and to the farmers along the entire line.—San Francisco Bulletin.

Losses by Water.—The losses on ninety-three plantations on Warrior river, in Alabama, in the recent floods, aggregate over $400,000.—The Mobile Register says that of the "ninety-three plantations referred to, fifty-seven had met with a total loss of every bushel of corn, every bale of cotton, and every item of stock and improvements; only eighteen having saved anything whatever—and even these were only able to foot up a trifle, snatched from destruction, in the way of such stock as could be hastily removed."

The Cotton Crop.—The total crop for the year ending Sept. I, 1872, reaches 2, 974,351 bales, while the exports 1,957,234 bales, and the home consumption 1,137,540 bales, leaving a stock on hand at the close of the year of 54, 521 bales.

Snow.—There was a snow storm at Mount Washington, N. H., on the 3d instant. The guests at North Conway, Lower Bartlett, and other places saw the scene, and the effect the next morning in the bright sunlight was worth a trip to the White Mountains to see.

Advertisements.

GOOD BOOKS.

A large number of our patrons are receiving our books as noticed below, as premiums, and express themselves highly pleased with them. Others who are not agents, have enquired whether we keep them for sale. We have now made arrangements with Mr. Wells to furnish any of their publications post paid at publishers prices. Orders for books must be accompanied with the cash, and plain directions for sending them.

Conversion of St. Paul. By George Jarvis Geer, D. D. 12mo. fine edition, $1. Plain edition, 75 cents.

Footprints of Life; or, Faith and Nature Reconciled.—A Poem in three parts. The Body. The Soul. The Deity. By Philip Harvey, M. D. $1.25.

Fruit Culture for the Million. A Hand book. being a Guide to the Cultivation and Management of Fruit Trees. Descriptions of the Best Varieties, and How to Propagate them. illustrated $1.00.

Hand-book for Home Improvement: comprising "How to Write," "How to Talk," How to Behave," and "How to do Business," in one vol. 2.25.

How to Live; Saving and Wasting, or Domestic Economy. By Solon Robinson. $1.50.

Life at Home; or, The Family and its Members. Husbands, Wives, Parents, Children, Brothers, Sisters, Employers and Employed, etc. By Rev. William Aikman, D. D. A work which should be found in every family. $1.50. Extra gilt, $2.00.

Man and Woman: Considered in their Relations to each Other and to the World. By Henry C. Pedder. 12mo, Fancy cloth Price $1.00.

Man, in Genesis and in Geology; or, the Biblical Account of Man's Creation, tested by Scientific Theories of his Origin and Antiquity. By Joseph P. Thompson, D. D., LL.D. One vol. 12mo, $1.00.

The Right Word in the Right Place. A New Pocket Dictionary and Reference Book. Embracing Synonyms, Technical Terms, Abbreviations, Foreign Phrases Writing for the Press, Punctuation, Proof-Reading, and other Valuable Information. Cloth, 75cts.

The Emphatic, Diaglott; or The New Testament in Greek and English. Containing the Original Greek Text of the New Testament, with an Interlineary Word for-word English Translation. A Work for Students in Theology, and S. S. Teachers. By Benamin Wilson. Price, $4.00; extra fine binding, $5.00.

Oratory—Sacred and Secular; or, the Extemporaneous Speaker. Including Chairman's Guide for conducting Public Meetings according to the best Parliamentary forms. By Wm. Pittenger. $1.50.

Water's Works for the Young. Comprising "Hopes and Helps for the Young of both Sexes," "Aids and Aims for Girls and Young Women," "Ways of Life; or, the Right Way and the Wrong Way," $3

Hopes and Helps for the Young of both sexes, Relating to the Formation of Character. Choice of Avocation, Health, Conversation, Cultivation of Intellect, Moral Sentiments, Social Affection Courtship and Marriage. By Rev. G. S. Weaver. Muslin, $1.50.

$5 to $20 per day! Agents wanted! All classes of working people, of either sex, young or old, make more money at work for us in their spare moments, or all the time, than at anything else. Particulars free. Address G. Stinson & Co., Portland, Maine.

SALEM COLLEGE.

The Fall term of Salem College will open for the reception of any number of students from all parts on the 4th of September, 1872, Ample accommodations and thorough instruction will be given all students who connect themselves with this College. Good board can be had in good families at $3.50 to $3.00 per week or students can board themselves in clubs at $1.25 to $1.50 per week as numbers have done with the consent of the faculty. Special care will be given students who are far from home.

For Catalogues, Scholarships and full particulars address

SALEM COLLEGE,
July 22, '72. Bourbon, Ind.

Valuable Farm
FOR SALE.

I will offer for sale, on the premises, at public auction, on

THURSDAY, October 10th, 1872,

(if not sold privately before), the farm on which I did reside. about 16 miles west of Lewisburg, not far from R. R., in Greenbriar co., W. Va.; on the James river and Kawha turnpike containing about

500 ACRES

On which is erected a large brick dwelling house and kitchen, stable and other outbuildings. This property is good for grain or grass, and is a convenient and desirable residence. About one-third of the land is cleared and the rest in good timber. All well watered, and could be conveniently divided into two or three small farms. Any one desiring to inspect the farm can do so by calling on W. R. Sharp, who lives adjoining the premises. Title good. Terms, $2,500 cash and the residue in one and two years. DAVID FRANTZ,

Menno Simon's
COMPLETE WORKS.

In English, translated from the original Dutch or Holland, giving the whole of the great Reformers writings on the subject of Baptism. Price in full sheep $4.50; by mail $5.14.

Address, JOHN F. FUNK & BRO.
Elkhart, Ind.

New Hymn Books, English.

Turkey Morocco.

One copy, postpaid,	$1.00
Per Dozen,	11.25

Plain Arabesque.

One Copy, post-paid,	75
Per Dozen, "	8.50

Ger'n & English, Plain Sheep.

One Copy, post-paid,	$1.00
Per Dozen	11.25
Arabesque Plain,	1.00
Turkey Morocco,	1.25
Single German, post paid	50
Per Dozen,	5.50

TRACTS.

"ANXIOUS BENCH RELIGION EXAMINIED," by Elder J. S. Flory. A Synopsis of Contents. An address to the reader: The peculiarities that attend this type of religion. The feelings there experienced not imaginary but real. The key that unlocks the wonderful mystery. The causes by which feelings are excited. How the momentary feelings called "Experimental religion" are brought about, and then concludes by giving that form of doctrine as taught by Jesus Christ and recorded by his faithful witnesses.

COUNTERFEIT DETECTER
or
Baptism—Much in Little.

This work is now ready for distribution, and the importance of the subject will speak for it a large demand. It is a short treatise on baptism in tract form intended for general distribution, and is set forth in such a plain and logical manner that a wayfaring man though a fool, cannot err therein. Either of the above tracts sent postpaid on the following terms: Two copies, 10 cts, 10 copies 40 cents, 25 copies 70 cents, 50 copies $1.00, 100 copies $1.50.

8701 1872

DR. FAHRNEY'S
Blood Cleanser or Panacea.

A tonic and purge, for Blood Diseases. Great reputation. Many testimonials. Many ministering brethren use and recommend it. Ask or send for the "Health Messenger." Use only the "Panacea" prepared at Chicago, Ills., and by

Dr. P. Fahrney's Brothers & Co.,
Aug. 3-pd. Waynesboro, Franklin Co., Pa.

Trine Immersion.

A discussion on Trine Immersion, by letter between Elder B. F. Moomaw and Dr. J. J. Jackson, to which is annexed a Treatise on the Lord's Supper, and on the necessity, character and evidences of the new birth, also a dialogue on the doctrine of non-resistance, by Elder B. F. Moomaw. Single copy 50 cents.

HUNTINGDON & BROAD TOP RAIL ROAD

Summer Arrangement.

On an after Tuesday, June 4, 1872, Passenger trains will arrive and depart as follows:

Trains from Huntingdon South. Trains from Bedford moving North.

MAIL. A. M.	ACCOM P. M.	STATIONS.	MAIL. P. M.	ACCOM A. M.
le 8 20	LE 6 00	Huntingdon,	AR 5 25	AR 9 10
8 28	6 06	Long Siding	5 17	9 00
8 45	6 19	McConnelstown	5 04	8 45
8 51	6 25	Pleasant Grove	4 58	8 39
9 05	6 37	Marklesburg	4 45	8 27
9 20	6 51	Coffee Run	4 33	8 11
9 27	6 58	Rough & Ready	4 26	8 40
9 39	7 10	Cove	4 12	7 528 28
9 43	7 15	Fishers Summit	4 08	7 48 10
10 03	7 35	Saxton	3 48	le 7 53
10 10	7 53			ar 7 46
10 27	8 10	Riddlesburg	3 30	6 30
10 34	8 17	Hopewell	3 22	6 12
10 51	8 35	Piper's Run	3 06	6 00
11 10	8 55	Tatesville	2 48	6 56
11 22	9 08	Bloody Run	2 33	6 50
11 26	9 12	Mount Dallas	2 29	5 46
11 32	9 19	Ashcom's Mills	2 22	5 42
11 36	9 23	Lutzville	2 18	5 36
11 40	9 27	Hartley's Mills	2 14	5
11 46	9 34	Jamesons	2 07	5
r 11 22	ar 9 40	Bedford	LE 2 00	LE 5 30

JOHN M'KILLIPS, Supt

SHOUP'S RUN BRANCH.

LE 10 15	LE 7 40	Saxton.	AR 3 40	AR 7 20
10 30	7 55	Coalmont.	3 25	7 05
10 35	8 00	Crawford.	3 20	7 00
AR 10 45	AR 8 10	Dudley	LE 3 10	LE 6 50
Bro'd Top City from Dudley 2 miles by stage.

Time of Penna. R. R. Trains at Huntingdon.

EASTWARD.			WESTWARD.
Hb'g Ac.	9 24	A. M	Cin. Ex.	2 19 A. M.
Mail	3 30	P. M	Pc'f Ex.	7 45 "
Cin. Ex.	6 55	"	Mail	5 40 P. M.
Phil. Ex	11 15	"	W. Pass.	11 52 A. M.

THE PILGRIM.

Published by J. B. Brumbaugh, & Co.

Edited by H. B. & Geo. Brumbaugh.

CORRESPONDING EDITORS.

D. P. Sayler, Double Pipe Creek, Md.

Leonard Furry, New Enterprise, Pa.

The Pilgrim is a Christian Periodical, devoted to religion and moral reform. It wil advocate in the spirit of love and liberty, the principles of true Christianity, labor for the promotion of peace among the people of God, for the encouragement of the saints and for the conversion of sinners, avoiding those things which tend toward disunion or sectional feelings.

TERMS.

Single copy, one year,	$1.25.
Book paper, " "	1.50.
Eleven copies, [eleventh for Agt.]	$12.50.

Any number above that at the same rate,

Address.

H. B. BRUMBAUGH.
James Creek,
Huntingdon county Pa.

Zion's Pilgrim.

"REMOVE NOT THE ANCIENT LANDMARKS WHICH OUR FATHERS HAVE SET."

VOL. 3. JAMES CREEK, PENNSYLVANIA, OCTOBER 8, 1872. NO. 41

POETRY

WE CAN MAKE HOME HAPPY.

Though we may not change the cottage
For a mansion tall and grand,
Nor exchange the little grass plot
For a boundless stretch of land—
Yet there is something brighter, dearer,
Than the wealth we'd thus command.

Though we have not met to purchase
Costly pictures, nice and rare—
Though we have not regular hangings
For the walls so cold and bare,
We can hang them o'er with garlands,
For flowers bloom everywhere.

We can always make home cheerful,
If the right course we begin,
We can make its inmates happy,
And their truest blessing win;
It will make th small room brighter,
If we let the sun shine in.

We can gather round the fireside
When the evening hours are long—
We can blend our hearts and voices
In happy, social song;
We can guide some erring brother—
Lead him from the path of wrong.

We can fill our homes with music,
And with sunshine brimming o'er,
If against all dark intruders
We will firmly close the door—
Yet should evil shadows enter,
We must love each other more.

There are treasures for the lowly,
Which the grandest fail to find;
Ther's a chain of sweet affection
Binding friends of kindred mind—
We may reap the choicest blessings
From the poorest lot assigned.

ORIGINAL ESSAYS.

For the Pilgrim.

ERROR OF THE TIMES.

One error is, opinions passed for faith. What is here meant by opinions I will thus explain: Opinions are all propositions which are not expressly laid down in Scripture, or not so evidently deducible from Scripture as to leave no occasion for doubt of the truth of them in the minds of those that sincerely and reverently believe the text. That this is our case, let the different confessions of faith published by the different religious sects, be perused, and you will find such propositions translated into doctrines of faith as are not expressed in Scripture, and perhaps not deducible from Scripture, and thereby becomes a bone of contention rather than a band of concord to religious society. This has been the unhappiness of christendom. Even after all the light of reformation which God has sent amongst us, men are to be received or reproached for denying or owning such propositions, while at the same time, articles of faith made by one set of men are in direct contradiction to those framed by others, and yet both claim the Scriptures for their foundation. How easily might this have been prevented if confessions of faith had been delivered in the words of Scriptures, instead of fallible men, who construe Scriptures so differently. All profess to believe the text and why should any man, or set of men, presume to be wiser or plainer in matters of faith than the Holy Ghost. It is strange that the penmen who were divinely inspired to write the Holy Scriptures should be so deficient in expressing clearly, that man's frail capacity should be needed to make them intelligible. But that scarcely any one article of faith should be in Scripture terms is, in my judgement, an offence against God and the Holy Scripture, and very injurious to christian charity and fellowship. Who can express any man's mind so fully as himself, and should we allow that liberty to ourselves, and refuse it to him who is the perfection of wisdom and knowledge. The Scriptures came not in old time, said the apostle Peter, by the will of man, but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost. Who can speak or express the mind of the Holy Ghost plainer than the Holy Ghost? The Scripture is the great record of truth, that which all articles agree to be the declared mind and will of God, and they unanimously say it ought to be believed and received as such. If this be true, in what language can we so safely and properly declare our belief of those truths as the language of Scripture? And since men are so apt to err, imaginary thoughts are better in Scripture than for them to explain them, and make their explanation our criterion. But if it be true, as true it is that few have written of divine authority of the Scripture, who do not insult the penmen of it, who were so inspired by the Holy Ghost that nothing delivered by them could be a mistake but was a complete declaration of the will of God to men, I cannot see how such men excuse themselves who consider that declaration as insufficient for a christian creed without their explanation, and deny those persons to be members of Christ's Church who refuse to subscribe thereto. This was the difficulty Christ met with, and complained of in his time. They had set up so many rabbies to teach them religion that the Lord of true religion could hardly find a place among them. And what did they do? They taught for doctrines the traditions of men. They gave their own and their predecessor's apprehension and constructions upon Scripture for the mind and will of God and rule of peoples' faith, and that which followed was, and ever will be, contention and discord among professing christians. For the sake of peace consider this lo here, and lo there, doctrine one of this mind; another of that mind, and now there are as many sects, as great men to lead them. Thus christians are divided and subdivided and that mostly upon the score of opinions about religion. This wanton search and unwarranted explanation has cost christendom dearly. Let us beware; it may cost us dearly. I must say that opinions on one side or the other has been the cause of much of that discord that has troubled the professors of Christianity. Truly, when I consider the smallness of the writings of the Evangelist, the shortness of Christ's sermons and precepts, the fewness of the epistles written by the apostles, and the many and great volumes of commentators and critics since, we may justly say; the text is almost lost in the comment. Where, by the way, let me say that the volumes of books is no small token of the uncleanness of the writers, for the more evident and better digested the matter, the more easy and short it will be in expression. No man would be treated by his servant as God has been treated by his creature man. His message is too obscurely expressed. We will explain it and deliver it with more caution and clearness. I render render not this practice more odious than it is. It introduces the traditions of man in the room of God's record, and setteth up their judgements for the rule of the christian faith. I do not say that men are never to express their minds upon any portion of Scripture to edification. There is a liberty not to be denied, but never to lay down articles of faith. These ever ought to be in the language of Scripture, to avoid temptation and strife. You see how the contrary method has been the great makebate in all ages, and the imposition of such, the privilege of hypocrites, but a snare to many honest minds occasion of feuds and miserable divisions, and while men were wrangling about some one point, the most important points of faith and life were little regarded. Unity was broken, amity destroyed, and wounds made that were never closed—not a good samaritan to be found to close and heal them.

A PILGRIM.

TAKING HOLD AND LETTING GO.

—Peter's venture—I call it venture; and yet it was not venture, for that implies hazard, whereas there was no risk—was leaving a leaking, sinking boat to go on board a noble ship. Still to human eyes, though not to angels, it was a venture. Frail as the vessel was, it was to him an eyes safer than the sea. Out of this vessel he let himself down into that raging sea, and began his walk. He was now wholly in the arms of Jesus; nothing between him and the waves but these everlasting arms.

What his feelings were in letting go his hold of the ship we do not know; perhaps very peculiar; but with that word "come" sounding over the waves, why should he fear? His was the venture of faith, a faith which showed itself, not in its power to grasp but to let go the vessel's side—the human stay. Yes, we often speak of faith as taking hold; but here it is seen in letting go.

AN ESSAY ON THE LORD'S SUPPER. No. 1.

I am prompted by various circumstances which I shall not mention, to write an essay on the above subject. I publicly promised to publish to the world our views, or the position we hold in regard to this important institution. And, inasmuch as we differ from all our Christian friends in this ordinance, we propose to treat it under the following heads.

First. That Christ, in the night of His betrayal, ate a supper, and not the legal Passover.

Second. That that supper is an institution of His own, commanded to be observed by His followers.

Third. That it is a distinct institution from the bread and wine, called by Paul the Lord's Supper; the bread and wine called Communion.

And lastly. That the Apostles observed it.

This we will try to do in the fear of the Lord, without disrespect or disesteem towards those who differ from us, not for the sake of controversy, but merely to enlighten and prepare the mind for a more thorough examination of the Scripture.

To show then, that Christ did not eat the Legal Passover, we must examine the law of that passover and the time it had to be observed, the way it was to be prepared, the manner it had to be eaten, and more especially, in what capacity and wherein, an important point overlooked by our friends who oppose us in our views.

The institution is recorded in Exodus, 12th chapter. First design was for a protection; as the blood sprinkled on the side posts and upper door post of their dwellings was to be a token for the destroying angel, who went forth to destroy the first born in Egypt, to pass over their dwellings, hence the term passover. So Jesus Christ the Lamb of God, slain for the sins of the world is the Christian's passover and the antitype of the Paschal Lamb slain in Egypt. But there was a feast to be observed separate from the Paschal Lamb, as a memorial of their deliverance, even so the Christians keep a feast, notwithstanding, as Paul says, 1st Cor. 5th, "For even Christ our passover is sacrificed for us; Therefore let us keep the feast.

Dear reader bear this in mind as I may refer to this again. Bear in mind that the Paschal feast was in its origin a family institution, kept in each separate dwelling. The elders of the whole assembly of the children of Israel were to kill it, this part of the command was afterward changed by the same power which commanded it, namely by God Almighty Himself. This is a point our commentators, and all those that make the Savior's meal, which He ate in His last night, the Jewish or legal passover, fail to see or neglect to notice, as also our friend W. J., who lately treated upon the subject did, and in consequence failed entirely to meet the point at issue. Whether this is done willingly, or out of ignorance, is known best to themselves. In Dent. 16th chapter, 2, we have the charge, "Thou shalt therefore sacrifice the passover unto the Lord thy God of the flock and the herd, in the place where the Lord shall choose to place His name there." "Thou mayest not sacrifice the passover within any of thy gates which the Lord thy God giveth thee. But at the place which the Lord thy God shall choose to place His name, in there thou shalt sacrifice the passover at even, at the going down of the sun, at the season that thou camest forth out of Egypt. And thou shalt roast and eat it in the place which the Lord thy God shall choose." (5th' 6th and 7th verses.)

In Numbers, 8th chapter, the Levites were to be separated to the service of the tabernacle after the Jewish congregation was organized, and the priesthood established, "And after that shall the Levites go in to do the service of the tabernacle of the congregation." 8: 15. Thus we see, to sum up, the change from the original instead of a household, or so many that can consume a lamb, go together, the elder to kill the lamb, then to prepare and eat it in their own dwelling: they were now, the whole congregation to go to where the Lord choose to place His name, the Levites to kill the lamb, the priests to sprinkle the blood, the Levites to slay and prepare it, and there at that place the children of Israel were to eat it in a congregational capacity. Every Bible reader knows that at the time of the Savior, Jerusalem was the place of thus meeting. The Temple built by Solomon was dedicated to be the house of the Lord, and upon his earnest prayer, the Lord answered him. "And the Lord said unto him, I have heard thy prayer and thy supplication that thou hast made before me: I have hallowed this house which thou hast built, to put my name there forever; and mine eyes and my heart shall be there perpetually." 1 Kings, 9: 3. Though that one was destroyed by Nebuchadnezzar, yet again builded by Ezra, and dedicated by similar promises, hence we see the law of the passover strictly observed by King Josiah who kept the most solemn one ever kept by any of the kings of Judah. "So the service was prepared, and the priests stood in their place, and the Levites in their courses, according to the kings commandment. And they killed the passover, and the priests sprinkled the blood from their hands, and the Levites flayed them. As it is written in the book of Moses." Chron. 35: 10-11 12. See also, Ezra, 6; 20, 21.

The law of the passover as it stood in the days of the Savior, choice of the lamb, selected on the 10th of the first month, a lamb or a kid, a male of the first year, without blemish, the place, time and manner of killing it. In Jerusalem the court of the temple, in the evening of the fourteenth day of the first month, killed by the Levites and the blood sprinkled by the priests. The preparation—roasted with fire whole with his legs, head and with the purtenance thereof—eating of the same. "And they shall eat the flesh in that night, roast with fire and unleavened bread, and with bitter herbs, with your loins girded, your shoes on your feet and your staff in your hand; you shall eat it in haste, it is the Lord's Passover. None of you shall go out of the house till morning."

Now we ask the candid reader solemnly, where do you find any similarity in the meal the Savior ate that night with his twelve chosen disciples in that upper room of a private house? Had the two disciples, not belonging to the Levites, authority to kill a lamb according to the law of God? Was there a lamb killed at all for that meal, and if so did they eat in the manner and at the place where the law required it? Was it at the time commanded in the law, for we read that it was before the feast of the passover, and that the Jews the next day did not go into the judgment hall of Pilate lest they be defiled, but that they might eat the passover? If the Savior did so depart from the strict command of God in the observance of this institution, why was it necessary to employ false witnesses to condemn him? Had he intended to eat the passover, or had the Jews believed so, they could by his own action condemn him as a violator of their law without going to so much trouble, hence the logical conclusion is that that meal is an institution of his own appointment. We admit that Mathew, Mark and Luke called that meal, passover, and that the same identical meal is also called by Luke supper, and by John expressively called a supper. Paul in I Cor. 11, called the same meal, the Lord's Supper, and why so? Because it was instituted by the Lord Jesus Christ.

Our friend lately in his discourse labored a long time to show that the meal, called by the before mentioned Evangelists, is the same identical meal John speaks of in connection with Feetwashing, to which we heartily assent, for it is conclusive by all except Luke, mentioning the circumstance of the sop by which Judas the traitor was made known at the time of eating. This I was glad to hear, but to call that meal the legal passover is a glaring inconsistency, for who would suppose Christ to be so inconsistent to mix up the ceremonial law with the gospel in such a promiscuous manner, first institute Feetwashing under the Gospel, then observe the Paschal lamb, closing up with the bread and wine, an institution likewise under the Gospel, all attended to in the same night connected together; and by man inseparable. Common sense will forbid to come to such a conclusion, and yet this is the dilemma into which our friend W. J., fell. The term passover does not necessarily mean Paschal Lamb, it is used sometimes to mean the feast that follows it, and that term used in the New Testament synonymous with supper must be understood in its specific sense. Let us see what that sense is. It is obvious to an unprejudiced mind that it simply means a passing over from one thing to another, and as this was the time the type of the true Paschal Lamb was to be reached by the Antitype, the ceremonial law, as a shadow of good things to come, was superceded by the Gospel law, hence the propriety of the sacred writers and the Savior specifically using the term. The feast of memorial and token of deliverance has passed over to a more glorious feast, the Supper of the Lord Jesus Christ, to be observed as an unmistakable token of his true followers, a foretaste of that Heavenly Supper, and a sweet anticipation of everlasting deliverance at the celebration of the Great Marriage Supper of the Lamb. Hence the Savior saith, "With desire I have desired to eat this passover with you before I suffer, for I say unto you I will not any more eat thereof until it be fulfilled in the Kingdom of God." Luke 22: 15. He saith this passover, which has a direct reference to the one He was eating, and in reference to that identical one, He saith He will not any more eat thereof until the Kingdom of God shall come, as said in regard to the wine. The legal passover or Paschal Lamb as a type of Christ, received its fulfillment when the antitype was crucified we all believe, but here He speaks of one that will not receive its fulfillment until in the Kingdom of God. He saith in regard to the cup of communion, which all admit an institution to be observed, "But I say unto you, I will not henceforth drink of the fruit of the vine until that day when I shall drink it new with you in my Father's Kingdom." Matt. 26: 29. The idea is here presented in these two institutions, that in a future time, He will again participate in these things. In the 22d chapter of Luke, 28, 29, 30th, "Ye are they which have continued with me in my temptations, and I appoint unto you a Kingdom as my Father hath appointed unto me, that ye may eat and drink at my table in my Kingdom, and sit on thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel." O, that ministers of God would better acquaint themselves with the Word of inspiration, such weighty matters would not be handled so loosely as we must sometimes hear to our sorrow; providing all were honestly disposed to do so without self interest and prejudice.

Our friend says supper in the Gospel is synonymous with passover. If he means with the one that Christ and His disciples ate, I agree, but if he means, as I have understood, with the Paschal Lamb or legal passover, I claim to differ, and for just reasons, and until those reasons be removed by Scripture authority, I shall continue to do so. If any one can show that the Jewish Pascha in the Bible is called supper, or with the Greek term Deipnon I will yield the point, and no sooner. That Christ did not eat the legal passover we argue from the following facts:

(To be continued.)

WHAT WAS CHRIST BAPTIZED FOR?

This is a question of vast importance and is one that ought to enlist our serious attention, that we may better inform ourselves and the world of the true intention of our own baptism, as we undoubtedly must be baptized in the same sense that our Redeemer was. And while I shall proceed to give my views in an abridged form, I hope that the thinking part of the Brotherhood will do the same, in order that we may have all the light that can be brought to bear upon this important subject. Our object should be to make it plain to the minds of the people that Christ was man as well as God, and that the sting of sin still rests in the flesh until it goes through a cleansing process, whether it be by our own actual transgression or the sin of Adam before it was atoned for, by the precious blood of the Lamb. I will here state that the sting of Adam's sin was still imputed to his posterity until it was atoned for, and I will also state that God never acknowledged our Savior to be his son in the hearing of the multitude until after He was baptized of John in Jordan. Hence as he never was acknowledged to be a son in the audience of the people until he was baptized, I shall propose to investigate what he was baptized for.

Some say that it was the introduction into the priesthood, and the Savior coming into the priesthood, in this way, was simply the antitype of which Aaron and his sons were the type. They say, as Aaron and his sons were washed with water, and oil poured upon their heads by the hands of Moses, they were consecrated Priests.—Lev. 8. So did John wash Jesus in Jordan and the Holy Ghost anointed him Priest, thus making the two, that is Aaron and Christ, of the same order, contrary to the words of Paul, when he says referring to Christ, that he was called after the order of Melchisedek:—Heb. 7: 17.

Now we observe that those who say that the Savior was baptized in the order of the Levitical priesthood contradict the entire 7th chapter of Hebrews, and also the 110th Psalm. If any person will prove to me that the Melchisedek and the Levitical priesthood is of the same order, then I will believe that the Savior was also introduced by this order. But it is evident that they are not of the same order from the fact that it was impossible for perfection to be attained by the Levitical priesthood. "For the priesthood being changed there is made of necessity a change also in the Law."—Heb. 7: 12. "For it is evident that our Lord sprang out of Judea; of which tribe Moses spake nothing concerning priesthood. And it is yet far more evident, for that after the similitude of Melchisedek there ariseth another priest.—Heb. 7: 14, 15.

So we see that the baptism of our Savior must have meant something else, and what is it? It was for our example, but the Scriptures do not say so, and before we can take a thing for a fact we would prefer to see the proof-sheets. We are informed by Peter that when we do well, and suffer for it, this is acceptable with God. —1st Peter 2: 20. "For even hereunto were ye called: because Christ also suffered for us, leaving us an example that we should follow his steps." Hence we learn that the example of Christ here spoken of by Peter, is in regard to a patient suffering for doing well. I do admit that Christ is our example in all things, but in this one thing, the baptism of our Lord, it has a deeper meaning than a mere example, and we believe it was for the remission of sins,—the sin that actually was resting in the sinful flesh that our Savior had taken upon him.

I will now show that the Savior was possessed of sinful flesh, and it is drawn from the fact that he is called the seed of woman—Gen. 3: 15. Also, the son of man—John 13: 31; Acts 2: 22. He was also of the fruit of David's loins—Acts 3: 30. "And God said of David that he had found him to be a man after his own heart, and David being a prophet, said that he was born in sin and contaminated in iniquity. So David being born in sin, and Christ being of the fruit of David's loins, and also of the seed of the woman, I hold that in his flesh the sting of Adam's flesh is plainly seen. It is also stated that he took not on him the nature of angels, but he took on him the seed of Abraham. —Heb. 2: 16. "Wherefore it behooved him to be made like his brethren in all things, verse 17. Now until John, we were all under the Law, and the law made nothing perfect, but the bringing in of a better hope did. We notice that John's mission was the beginning of this better hope, and his mission was the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins, and to prepare a people for the reception of the Lord; and while thus preaching that very Savior comes to him to receive baptism at his hand. John forbade saying, that he had need to be baptized of him, showing that John considered that there was something lacking on his part. But the Savior said "Suffer it to be so now, for thus it becometh us to fulfill all righteousness." Then he suffered him. It seems to me, taking all things together, that our Savior was baptized for the remission of sins, not for his own actual sin, but the sin that he inherited through the line of his descent. There are many places in the Scriptures that alludes to his purity, such as he was tempted in all things like as we are yet without sin, and if we notice particularly this refers to him after his baptism, when he was tempted in the wilderness; and thus after his baptism his flesh was made pure, and then his blood atoned for the original sin. Now he has given baptism for the remission of our actual sin.

JOHN W. FITZGERALD.

Beelington, W. Va.

For the Pilgrim.

ON DEATH.

What a feeling of awe is carried to the mind of the thoughtless sinner by this simple word, death. How solemnly it falls upon the ear of the sensitive and how forcibly is the question impressed upon their minds, am I prepared to die? And as they stand around the grave of a friend, or perhaps a relative, a fond parent or wife, or husband, sister or brother, to pay the last sad tribute of respect to their memory, how often they are led to shudder and shrink back in affright, lest the next time the hand of death is laid on any one it might be themselves, and then this awful condition comes up before them, and they know if the hand of God were laid upon them, they would be lost, lost forever!

But not so with the child of God. The Christian looks forward to death as a sweet deliverance from all earthly trials, and seems to them but a small stream dividing the blissful land of immortality from this mundane shore.

I love to dwell on the subject, death, and am anxiously waiting and looking forward to that sweet deliverance from all my sorrows. I am often led to ask myself the question, "why should I fear death?"

One that suffers physically as I do, knowing that in that beautiful city, the home of the blest, all those trials will cease, for we have the blest assurance that when our troubles here are ended, we shall find peace to our souls. Although I have many pleasures here, I also have many trials, and I often think if it were the will of the Lord to take me away from this stage of action, that I would much sooner leave all on earth and dwell with him in glory.

Death of itself is of very solemn import to all, especially those living in their sins without a hope of immortal life, and often when lying on a bed of sickness, scorched with fever and racked with pain, I can close my eyes to all earthly scenes and see with an eye of faith, as it were, the beautiful home of the blest, and wish if the Lord would only see fit to take me to himself, to be absent from this mortal frame, trusting in the blest assurance that I shall be ever present with him. And we ought all so to live that when the angel of death comes we shall be ready to exclaim with the poet:

"Welcome death."

Not many days ago I was visiting a friend who has put off her return to God until it is too late. Disease has made rapid inroads upon her constitution and is fast hastening her away. Then how earnestly did she entreat of us to send for a brother to pray with her, and for her, and to baptize her. But, alas! when he came she was in too weak a condition to have it done, and having to fix her, nothing would pacify but we should get a suit of clothes for that purpose. That also was done and they were laid on the bed by the side of her. Then she insisted for them to be put on her, but she was too weak for the exertion, and when I left her home she was still begging of some one to put them on, and the sorrow felt from that painful scene is indescribable. It is indelibly impressed upon my heart and never shall I forget the bedside of that girl, and day by day she still grew weaker and in her rational moments she wished to be baptized. But alas! she will never more be able to have that duty performed. What a solemn warning this ought to be to the young. You who are in prosperity and the future shining before you. You never think of turning to God, but when you are in trouble, and the hand of affliction is laid upon you, how quick you turn to him for succor, but alas! you have spent all your days in sin, and when it comes to the end you have only to trust in God. He is a just and merciful God.

In conclusion let me entreat of my young readers to think over this matter seriously. Turn from the paths of sin, forsake the world with its pride and allurements, and turn to the Bible, the book of books, and seek information therefrom, and be prepared when death comes to exclaim with the poet:

Come, welcome death,
I'll gladly go with thee."

LIZZIE BUZZARO.

Fairplay, Md.

I KNOW there is that in the Scriptures that it has grit to it. I know there is a book which has gone thro' tempestuous ages, assailed buffeted, cast hither and thither, and yet has retained the confidence of mankind, because it has that in it which masters sorrow, takes hold of trouble, gives strength where there is weakness, and supplies an anchor to those who are tempest-tossed. There is that in the Word of God which supports the poor and ignorant, taking hold of the fundamental wants of human nature with a power which no other literature and no other thing ever did.

FREE MASONRY CONTRARY TO THE CHRISTIAN RELIGION.

BY SPECTATOR.

Freemasons, on the contrary, and in direct violation of the above command, call one another "Master," "Grand Master" Most Excellent Master," "Worshipful Master," "Perfect Master," "Royal Master," "Prince of Mercy," "Chief Prince," "High Priest," "Grand Pontiff," "King" "Captain of the Host," "Most Puissant," "Sovereign of Sovereigns" &c. Several of these titles belong exclusively to Christ, and cannot be assumed by sinful mortals without a degree of pride, insolence and blasphemy unsurpassed in magnitude this side the gates of the lower regions.

The Christian religion commands and requires all Christians to come out from among the wicked of the world and be separate. This duty is taught everywhere in the Scriptures. "Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful."—Ps. 50:1. The psalmist again says: "I have not sat with vain persons, neither will I go in with dissemblers. I have hated the congregation of evil doers, and will not sit with the wicked."—Ps. 29:4-5. "Forsake the foolish and live."—Prov. 9:6. A companion of fools shall be destroyed."—Prov. 13:20. "Flee out of the midst of Babylon and deliver every man his soul."—Jer. 2:6. "Wherefore come out from among them and be ye separate saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing, and I will receive you."—2 Cor. 6:14. "Come out of her, my people, that ye be not partakers of her sins, and that ye receive not of her plagues."—Rev. 18:4. This is all very plain.

Freemasons, on the contrary, unite with and patronize all sorts of characters to be found this side the gates of the infernal regions. The world knows that a very large portion of the Masonic brotherhood is composed of liars, swearers, drunkards, thieves, robbers, swindlers, blasphemers, fornicators, adulterers, cutthroats, perjured persons by the thousand, Jews, pagans, Mohammedans, barbarians, traitors, infidels, apostate Christians, rascals, Deists without number, gamblers, loafers, and murderers by the hundred. Let us hear, however, what Masons themselves have to say on the subject, as their testimony must be unquestionable. One Mason says, "The lodge is a cage of unclean birds." Another, "It is a house of refuge for rascals and backslidden Christians." Another, "We know Masons whom we would not believe, in the lodge or out of it, under oath or without an oath." Another, "A Masonic lodge is the strangest medley of priests and murderers, deacons and whoremasters, church members and gamblers, decent men and loafers, drunkards and rowdies that the All-seeing Eye looks down upon." Judge Whitney, Worshipful Master of Belvidere Lodge, Ill., says: "I find myself associated, as a Mason, with drunkards, blackguards, loafers, gamblers, whoremasters and murderers, and their aiders and abettors and accessories." What a society for a minister of the gospel to unite with and promise, on oath, to defend in all their criminal conduct, as every Royal Arch Mason does!

6. The Christian religion requires us to take the Holy Scriptures alone as the rule of our faith and morals. "All Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness; that the man of God may be perfect, throughly furnished unto all good works."—2 Tim. 3:16, 17. "The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul." Ps 19:7. "We have a more sure word of prophecy, whereunto ye do well to take heed." 2 Peter 1:19. "To the law and to the testimony, if they speak not according to this word, it is because there is no light in them." Is. 8:20. No man has any liberty to add anything to the Holy Scriptures or take anything from them. "Ye shall not add unto the word which I command you, neither shall you diminish aught from it." Deut. 6:2. "For I testify unto every man that heareth the words of the prophesy of this book, If any man, shall add unto these things, God shall add unto him the plagues that are written in this book; and if any man shall take away from the words of the book of this prophecy, God shall take away his part out of the book of life and out of the holy city, and from the things which are written in this book." Rev. 22:18:19.

Freemasons, on the contrary, take the mallet, square and compass as a rule of their life, which may mean anything or nothing as caprice or fantastic humor may dictate. In the lecture on the first degree we are told that by due attention to the compass we are taught to limit our desires, curb our ambition, subdue our irregular appetites, and keep our passions and prejudices in due bounds with all mankind, but more especially with the brethren. Again in Sickle's Monitor, page 32, we are told that the squire is to square our actions, and the compass to circumscribe our desires and keep our passions in due bounds with all mankind, especially with the brethren. In the Entered Apprentice degree we are told that Freemasons use the gavel or mallet for the more noble and glorious purpose of divesting their hearts and consciences of all the vices and superfluities of life, thereby fitting their minds, as lively stones, for that spiritual building that house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens. If this is not a formal rejection of the word of God as a rule of life, I know not what is. If it is not, it is an addition to it, which is equally criminal. The word of God accompanied by the agency of the Holy Spirit is the only means appointed in the divine government to subdue and root out the vile affections of the human heart: and if these means are rejected it is absolutely certain that no means devised by man can accomplish the object. All Freemasons who rely on the mallet, square and compass to subdue their vile affections are under the most consummate delusion of the devil.

7. The Christian religion teaches us to show benevolence and kindness to all mankind, but more particularly to true Christians, because Christ takes whatever is done to them as being done to himself. The Apostle Paul says, "As we have therefore opportunity, let us do good unto all men, especially to them who are of the household of faith." Gal. 6:10.

Freemasons, on the contrary, act, as such, entirely on selfish principles. The system is founded on selfish and exclusive principles and its object is to take undue advantage of all outside its pale, and swindle them out of their rights, so far as can be done with the safety of the members of the institution. In the third obligation of the Knights of the Cross, the candidate uses the following language: "I swear to advance my brother's best interest, by always supporting his military fame and political preferment in opposition to another." The preference is given, not to the household of faith, but to the members of the lodge, who may be, and frequently are, liars, thieves and ruffians of the worst descriptions. There is no restriction in robbing and swindling imposed on a Mason, providing he does not cheat a Mason or a Masonic lodge. There is no restriction in fornication and adultery, provided he does not violate the chastity of a Master Mason's wife, mother, sister or daughter, he knowing them to be such. These are all the exceptions; all the world besides is clear game.

8. The Christian religion requires us to forgive our enemies and treat them well. "If thine enemy be hungry, give him bread to eat; if he be thirsty, give him water to drink." Prov. 25:21. Again, "If thine enemy hunger, feed him; if he thirst, give him drink." Rom. 12:20. The Great Head of the Church has said, "I say unto you, Love your enemies, bless them that curse you." Matt. 5:44. "For if ye forgive men their trespasses, your Heavenly Father will also forgive you. But if ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your Father forgive your trespasses." Matt. 9:14-15. This is so plain that all can understand it.

Freemasons, on the contrary, mete out vengeance to their enemies. In the first obligation of the thrice illustrious Knights of the Cross, the candidate under oath receives the following injunction: "To the end of your life you will use your most decided endeavors to bring such persons to the strictest and most condign punishment, agreeably to the usages of our ancient fraternity, and this by pointing him out to the world as an ungodly vagabond, by opposing his interests, by deranging his business, by transferring his character, after him wherever he may go, and by exposing him to the contempt of the whole fraternity and of the world, during the whole of his natural life." In the third obligation of the same, the candidate says: "I swear to look on his (a brother Mason's) enemies as my enemies, his friends as my friends, and stand forth to mete out tender kindness or vengeance accordingly."

(To be continued.)

THE CONSTRAINING LOVE OF CHRIST

Continued.

BY GERHARDT TERSTEEGEN

The love of Christ constrains to a continual progress in sanctification and godliness. Those controversies are unnecessary which are carried on about perfection—whether the commands of God can be kept—whether such a state be attainable and the like. People dispute about perfection, and ought reasonably first to inquire if they have taken one step toward it. Methinks they only betray their lifeless and loveless hearts by disputes of this nature. Love knows no bounds; she invariably seeks to advance further, to be more faithful, pious and acceptable in the sight of God. She does not long inquire whether the thing be practicable or not. She essays it in good earnest; she must necessarily follow her impulse and her constraining influence. The apostle Paul was doubtless further advanced than any of us, yet what does he say in Phil. 4: 13, 14. "Forgetting those things that are behind, and reaching forth unto those things that are before. I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus," and if it were to be said to him, "why, Paul, art thou not pious enough? thou art certainly no longer afraid of hell." "Ah," he would reply, "it is not heaven nor hell that constrains me, but it is the love of Christ that constrains me." The love of Christ enters voluntarily into all our concerns. She will and must have her hand not only in the greatest, but even in the smallest things, all that we do in reference to our natural life, however great and important it may appear, is in itself worthless folly, and not worthy the attention of a heaven-born saint; but by love, all these trifles may become truly great, and a means of serving God. He that gives a cup of cold water only, from love to Christ, performs a great work—when the love of the world, care, or unbelief, or any other of the powers of nature constrains us to business, and is our leading motive in it, the mind must naturally become more darkened and abstracted; but if the love of Christ constrain us to the work, and if we let ourselves be restrained by it in our affairs, so that we perform them in a child like manner, solely to his love and glory, they are then no longer a hindrance, but become a real service rendered unto God. It is this that the Holy Spirit means, when it is said, "whatsoever,"—observe how everything is inclined—"whatsoever ye do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus." Col. 3:17. The love of Christ will gladly keep us all the day near itself and within its influence, urge us on our way, and by its constraining power preserve us from wandering either to the right hand or the left. O, if we would but carefully abide within its precincts. Persons often make to themselves a variety of good rules, maxims and regulations for their conduct, which I do not entirely reject. I know that order and discipline is requisite to keep untoward nature in restraint. Otherwise she would run wild; it is only to be lamented that all these good rules and maxims are so soon broken through, there is no better rule, regulation or precept than the love of Christ which is inwardly so near us. The love of Christ will lead us as a mother leads her child. A child that walks in leading-strings is carefully held and guided; for though it goes at liberty, and without constraint, yet were it on the point of running into danger, it would immediately feel that it was held by something from behind. The love of Christ seeks to lead us in the same manner in order that we may be drawn in the cords of love. Hos. 11: 43. When through ignorance we might be ready to fall into something improper or dangerous, we should perceive like a child in leading strings, that something held and restrained us, namely: The love of Christ.

Youth's Department.

WE ALL MIGHT DO GOOD.

We all might do good,
Where we often do ill,
There is always the way,
If there be but the will;
Though it be but a word,
Kindly breathed or suppressed,
It may guard off some pain,
Or give peace to some breast.

We all might do good
In a thousand small ways—
In forbearing to flatter,
Yet yielding due praise,
In spurning all rumor,
Reproving work done,
And treating but kindly
The hearts we have won.

We all might do good,
Whether lowly or great,
For the deed is not guaged
By the purse or estate!
If it be but a cup
Of cold water that's given,
Like the widow's two mites,
It is something for Heaven.

SEEK JESUS EARLY.

BY C. H. HAWBECKER.

"He taught me also, and said unto me, let thine heart retain my words. Keep my commandments and love."

How applicable the words of Solomon in this our day and generation. I feel with pure love to try to give my young friends and associates a word of encouragement, and O, I feel so much for the young who are out of the ark of safety. We all need encouragement. We who profess to name the name of Jesus need it, yet could our dear friends who stay away realize for one moment the true happiness the Christian enjoys, you would not hesitate to call upon the name of the Lord and be saved.

He does not use compulsory means, neither is his commands grevious, and in our youth while our hearts are yet tender, how much easier. How beautifully the poet may express our mind.

"'Tis easier work if we begin,
To serve the Lord betimes,
While sinners who grow old in sin,
Are hardened by their crimes."

What kind invitations were given by the brethren, and how earnestly did they exhort us to obey God rather than man. How pleased we are to have them preach for us and how thankful our hearts for their labor of love.

How pleasant it was in our childhood to ramble along some beautiful stream in its meandering flow. How much more beautiful the thought if we keep his commands we shall one day pass over Jordan, and bask on the sunny banks of deliverance.

Let me ask you once more to give earnest heed unto the words spoken by the Lord, to retain his words and keep his commands.

Upton, Pa.

God is always inviting you to his throne; he says, "Let me hear thy voice; come near unto me, that I may bless thee."

SKIPPING THE HARD POINTS.

Boys, I want to ask you how you think a conqueror would make out, who went through a country he was trying to subdue, and whenever he found a fort hard to take, left it alone. Don't you think the enemy would buzz wild there, like bees in a hive, and when he was well into the heart of the country, don't you fancy they would swarm out and harass him terribly?

Just so, I want you to remember, will it be with you; if you skip over the hard places in your lessons, and leave them unlearned, you have left an enemy in the rear that will not fail to harass you, and mortify you times without number.

"There was just a little bit of my Latin I hadn't read," said a vexed student to me, "and it was just there the professor had to call upon me at examination. There were just two or three examples I had passed over, and one of those I was asked to do on the blackboard."

The student who is not thorough is never well at his ease; he can not forget the skipped problems; and the consciousness of his deficiencies makes him nervous and anxious.

Never laugh at the slow, plodding student; the time will surely come when the laugh will be turned. It takes time to be thorough, but it more than pays. Resolve when you take up a new study that you will go thro' with it like a successful conqueror, taking every strong point.

If the inaccurate scholar's difficulties closed with his school life, it might not be so great a matter for his future career. But he had chained to himself a habit that will be like an iron ball at his heel all the rest of his life. Whatever he does will be lacking somewhere. He has learned to shirk what is hard, and the habit will grow with years. Now nothing we get in this life is to be had for nothing. Success is not thrust upon a man. If you want any good you must work for it. The eye that never falters and the nerve that never quails, are the true elements of victory in the mental and moral, as well as the physical world. Don't skip the hard points.—School-day Visitor.

THE LOAF OF BREAD.

In a time of famine, a rich man allowed twenty of the poorest children in the town to come to his house, and said to them,—"In this basket there is a loaf of bread for each of you. Take it, and come again at the same hour every day, till God sends better times."

The children pounced upon the basket, struggled and fought over the bread, because each wished to have the largest and best loaf; and they went away without a word of thanks to their friend.

But Francesca, a little girl meanly, though neatly dressed, stood at a distance, and gratefully took the loaf that was left in the basket, which was the smallest; then she kissed the good man's hand, and went quietly home.

The next day the children were just as naughty and ill-behaved; and this time there was left for poor Francesca a loaf that was hardly half as large as the others. But when she reached home, and her mother cut the bread, there fell out a number of new pieces of silver. The mother was frightened and said, "Take back the money this moment; for it is certainly in the bread by mistake."

Francesca took it back.

But the kind man said, "It is no mistake, my good child: I had the money baked in the smallest loaf in order to reward you. Be always as contented and yielding as you now are. He who is contented with the smallest loaf, rather than quarrel for the largest, will receive abundant blessings."—Children's Prize.

LOOK ON THE BRIGHT SIDE.—We are too apt to grow desponding when things do not go as we think they should. There can nothing befal us, so bad that we cannot imagine that it might be still worse, and it often happens too, that these mishaps are brought about by our own negligence or mismanagement, yet men will often look only on the dark side. This is my luck, it is really discouraging, and I have a mind to relinquish all further efforts," is the mind, if not the oral expression of the desponding. There is nearly always a bright side as well as a dark one, and if there should be none, we may imagine one, which will afford us much more happiness and contribute largely to our success both in a present and future emergency. The desponding can never be successful in any undertaking. It is only by firmness and untiring perseverance that we can hope to gain the vortex of our conceptions. We may conceive of what we will and there is always a whirlpool encircling it around, and our boat with which we set sail for the common center may often be deluged, yet he that is firm may survive, and placing himself under the bright rays of hope, will soon become warmed up again—strengthened for a more fearful conflagration.

A memory well stored with Scripture, and sanctified by grace is the best library.

There is some promise in your Bible exactly adapted to every trying hour.

CORRESPONDENCE

A Reporter is wanted from every Church in the brotherhood to send us Church news, Obituaries, Announcements or anything that will be of general interest. To insure insertion, the writers name must accompany each communication. Our invitation is not personal but general—please respond to our call.

Dear Brethren:—I again resume the ever faithful pen to acquaint you with our affairs. Since our last communication we have enjoyed a season of prosperity, the beginning, we hope of a brighter future. We have baptized two recently, and others are expecting to follow soon. Bro. A. Crumpacker has so far recovered his health as to enable him to engage in the work of the ministry, and much to the gratification of his brethren and the people. Bro. Peter Crumpacker has returned from the West, and these happy circumstances combined have empowered us to enlarge our missionfield. Last Sunday Bro. Bealm of Roanoak and I attended several meetings in Floyd county, and the word preached seemed to be received gladly, by some at least, as they testified afterward. May the Lord of the Vineyard help them. A young widow was present who buried her husband just a fortnight previous. Her grief was very intense, and her wailing would pierce the hardest heart. Oh, sin, how hast thou marred this beautiful world!

The communion season has commenced in this District. The East arm of the Floyd Church has had theirs. On the second Saturday and Sunday in October it will be at the brick church in the same county. On the third Saturday and Sunday of the same month it will be at the brick church in Franklin Co. On the 4th Saturday and Sunday the Montgomery congregation will celebrate the sacred feast at the house of Bro. George Brunk. We extend the usual invitation. It will commence at 10 A. M. We have not had a feast since May 1871. I think we have been too delinquent and hope that we may have the opportunity to partake of the life giving emblems oftener in the future. We had hoped to have had our meeting house ready for the occasion, but the Summer is past, Winter is fast approaching and the work is not begun. We will resume the business next Spring, and push it to completion.

The Roanoak Congregation will meet to commune together on the 2d Saturday and Sunday in Nov. The other congregations have appointed theirs but we have not heard from them.

We have a suggestion to offer relative to the manner of conducting our Lovefeasts to which I ask the special attention of our Elders. We usually commence the practical part of the communion services about dusk, and they are often prolonged to a late hour, sometimes as late as 12 o'clock. After 9 o'clock, the usual time for people generally to retire to their slumbers, old and infirm persons get very sleepy and fatigued, and the services benefit them but little, as they are not in a proper condition physically to engage in them. What would prevent us from commencing them at an earlier hour: say at 3, or at the latest 4 P. M. If we desire to follow the example of our Lord we will commence them at the proper time to enable us to close them by nightfall.

There are several important reasons why we should make this change

1st. It would be nearer the example of Christ.

2d. It would add much to the facility of practicing the ordinances as we would enjoy the advantage of abundance of light.

3d. The members would be in a better condition to engage in the services.

4th. We would be relieved from a vast amount of rowdyism that so often interrupts and disturbs our devotions.

I think these reasons sufficient to justify the proposed amendment, and I hope our Elders will so consider it; but if it should afterward appear to work unfavorably it would be easy to correct the mistake. What say you, brethren of the PILGRIM? I will write you again when I have something that I think will be profitable to your readers.

Yours in the Faith,
D. C. MOOMAW.

HAMILTON, Mo. }
Sept. 23rd, 1871. }

Beloved Brethren:—We wish to answer some of our brethren through the PILGRIM, as we have been requested so to do, in relation to sending money. Hamilton P. O. is a money order office. We prefer registered letters as this is a safe way of sending money. What little we have received was sent in private letters. It came safe and we answered privately, but will in the future give a full report through our periodicals.

We would, out of love and a true regard for our Master's cause solicit those of our brethren and sisters who have not as yet contributed, to take an active part in this matter. It is as brother Brumbaugh states, all that is wanting is for some brother or sister to act in the cause and by so doing you will enable us by your donations to build a house for the Lord.

We have received a number of letters from our dear brethren who have given us much encouragement and donated very liberally. God bless you brethren for your labor of love in thus assisting us to build a house to hold our Lovefeasts in as well as other meetings.

Now brethren our wants have been made known to you. We don't want to press and beg continually. The Lord loves a cheerful giver. We hope that we shall not be disappointed in our undertaking.

May the God and Father of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ bless us all, and enable us all to live faithful to the profession of faith we have made, that when we have answered the design of our being here upon earth, we may all be gathered home to the mansions of bliss and glory, ever to dwell together in peace and love in the presence of God the Father and his Son, our Savior, Amen.

WM. B. SELL.

Advertisements.

LOVEFEASTS.

Shiloh Church, Barbour Co., W. Va., October 13th, 2 o'clock p. m.

Spring Run, Mifflin County Pa., October 13th, 1 o'clock p. m.

Pine Creek Church, St. Joseph county Indiana October 16th 4 o'clock p. m.

Welch Run; Franklin Co. Pa. October 12th.

DUNNINOS CREEK, Bedford co., Pa., Oct. 19th at 4 o'clock, p. m.

BLACK RIVER Congregation, Medina co., Ohio, Oct. 9th.

LOST CREEK, Juniata co., Pa., Oct 16th, at 1 o'clock, p. m.

Waddam's Grove, Stephenson county, Ill., Oct. 12th and 13th.

Meadow Branch, Md., Saturday October 12th. Commencing at half past 1 o'clock p. m.

Sam's Creek, Md., Tuesday, October 15th, commencing at half past 1 o'clock p. m.

Hamilton Branch, 4 miles North of Hamilton, Daviess Co., Mo., Oct. 12th 2 o'clock p. m. To continue over Sunday.

Clarian Church, Clarian Co., Pa., Oct. 5th and 6th.

Howard Congregation, Howard Co, Ind, Oct. 17th. Those coming by railway will find conveyance at Kokomo on the day previous.

Okaw Church, Piatt Co., Ill., Oct 9th, at at 10 o'clock a. m.

Clover Creek, Blair Co., Pa., Oct. 17th, 18th, at 4 p. m.

Dry Valley Meeting house, Mifflin county Pa., October 15th, at 1 o'clock p. m.

Falling Springs, Franklin county, Pa., at the Antrim meeting-house on the 15th of October, at 10 a. m.

Hopewell Church, Woodcock Valley Pa., October 12th, at 4 p. m.

James Creek, Huntingdon Co., Pa., Oct., 19th. Services to continue over Sabbath.

Milmine Church, Piatt county Ill., October 17th, at 10 a. m.

In the Antietam Congregation, at Welty's meeting house, Washington county, Md., on the 10th of October, commencing at 10 o'clock.

At the house of Daniel Glicks, Andrew co., Mo., October 5th, commencing at 4 o'clock, p. m. Meeting will be continued if aid can be obtained. Address Daniel Glick, Flag Spring, or J. B. Bashor, Whitesville, Andrew co., Mo.

The brethren of Yellow Creek, Bedford co., Pa., will hold their Communion Meeting, Tuesday, October 15th, commencing at 4 o'clock, p. m. The usual invitation is given.

The brethren of Raccoon, Ind., have appointed their Communion Meeting on the 10th of Oct., and give a general invitation. Ladoga is the R. R. Station. Meeting 1¼ miles north-west of town. R. H. MILLER.

Please announce through the PILGRIM that the brethren of the Grasshopper Valley Congregation intend, the Lord willing, to hold a Communion meeting on the 12th and 13th of October in the meeting house in the town of Osawkee, Jefferson county, Kansas. An invitation is given to all, especially do we wish ministering brethren to be with us.

Dear Brethren: Please announce that we, the Brethren in the Hatfield Church, Montgomery Co., Pa., intend to hold our Communion meeting on the 19th of October, commencing at 2 o'clock P. M., near Hatfield Station, North Pennsylvania R. R. A general invitation is given to ministers and members who wish to be with us. Those that have a desire to be with us from the West, go to Harrisburg, from there to Reading, then to Bethlehem, change cars for Hatfield or Landisdale. Hatfield is one mile from the place of meeting house, Landisdale 2 miles South. All trains will not stop at Hatfield.

JONAS PRICE.

DIED.

McFARLAND.—In Duncansville Church, Blair co, Pa, September 20th, 1872, Samuel, infant son of brother Robert and sister Catharine McFarland, aged 8 months and 20 days. Occasion improved from the words, "Death has now no more dominion over him." Rom. 6:9, last clause, by bro. Jas. Bell and the writer.

LEONARD FURRY.

THOMAS.—In the Beavercreek Congregation, Rockingham, Va., August 11, our old sister Catharine, consort of brother Henry Thomas, dec'd, in the 78d year of her age. Funeral services by the brethren from Rev. 14:13.

MANLY.—Also in the same Congregation, Sept. 6th, sister Martha Manly in the 29th year of her age. Funeral by the Brethren from Job. 19: 25, 26.

MILLER.—Also in the same Congregation Sept. 19, Eld. Martin Miller, in the 73d year of his age.

Funeral services by the Brethren from 2d Timothy, 4th chap. 6, 7, 8 ver, to a large congregation, and a large circle of friends, children and grand children. For 29 years he has been a watchman on the walls of Zion, and appeared to manifest an ardent zeal for the cause of his Master, but for several years has had frequent attacks of apoplexy but was still able to go about until a few days previous. His desire was to be absent from the body, and be present with the Lord, and we have a hope that he has realized that desire. GEORGE W. WINE.

(Visitor and Companion please copy.)

BOYLE—O the 15th of August our beloved brother Eld Philip Boyle, aged 65 yers, 6 mos. and 4 days. He died of disease of the heart and dropsy.

Brother Boyle was overseer of the church at Pipe Creek, Md., about 30 years. In his death the church has sustained a loss that is irrepairable, but we believe he was prepared to go, and we pray that his spirit to unite, and keep united, and his wisdom to govern the church, may rest upon Bro. Senseney who will take his place. Funeral services by our neighboring brethren who were present, from 1 Pet. 1: 13.

EPHRAIM W. STONER.

GROVE.—Also in the same congregation, in Baltimore, August 28th, brother L. J. Grove, in the 55th year of his age. On the 30th his remains were interred in the cemetery at Westminster, Funeral services by the brethren. Text, Matt. 24: 44.

Brother Grove died of heart disease, to which he had been predisposed. On the day of his death he was covering his tinning establishment with gas tar, the fumes of which, together with the heated tar and broiling sun, overcame him. He was taken with a pain in his left side; and he said to a boy that was with him, "Call." Then he lay down upon the roof and died there in a few minutes. So suddenly death may come, and if our work is not done, it will then be too late. Brethren and sisters, let us try to be ready always, lest he come suddenly and find us sleeping. And to those who are not ready, young or old, we say, acquaint now thyself with God and be at peace. EPHRAIM W. STONER.

MAUN.—In the Ridge District, Franklin county, Pa., Emma Jane, infant daughter of Bro. Levi and sister Elisabeth Maun, aged 1 year, 10 months and 7 days. Funeral services by the writer and others. Text, Matt. 19: 14.

D. M FOGLESANGER.

DAYWALT.—In Welsh Run Congregation, Franklin co., Pa., on the first day of August, 1872. Bro. Michael Daywalt, aged 96 years wanting four days. Funeral by the brethren. WM. ANGLE.

MONEY LIST.

John M. Barnhart	$4.45
John Bethka	80
Kate Brinzer	40
Simon Mixel	2.50
A. W. Bowman	10.00
Daniel Miller	1.75
Noah Dice	1.25
Jacob Eigenbrode	2.10
D. H. Bonebrake	6.37½
Jacob Friedly	1.25
David Miller	6.00
L. C. Newcomer	1.30
A. B. Barnhart	1.90
Addison Baker	5.00

The Weekly Pilgrim.

JAMES CREEK, PA., Oct. 8th, 1872

CONFERENCE.

At a late meeting of the Eldership of the "Church of God," in Martinsburg, Pa., the following questions were discussed: "What is sanctification?" and "How are children saved?"

We had not the pleasure of being present at the meeting, but were informed that on sanctification, Forney of the Church Advocate, dared to dissent from the popular theory of modern religionists, claiming that the term has but one meaning and not legion, as many would have it. It is said that his position was well founded and his argument unanswerable. We shall hail with joy, the time when things shall be called by their right names, and words have but one meaning.

On "How are children saved," we heard not the position taken, neither do we see any room for discussion on the question, as there is certainly but one way by which they can be saved, and that is so evident that everybody should agree upon it. That the unconscious infant cannot do anything towards its own salvation will be admitted by all; and that no man has the power to save them is equally true. It then remains, if children are to be saved, it must be through Christ's atonement. "Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not, for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven."

OUR MEETINGS.

On Sunday 10, A. M., Sunday evening and Monday evening, Bro. Jas. R. Lane preached for us at the Branch or southern side of our congregation, where we are now building a Church, and on Tuesday evening in the James Creek Church. Bro. Lane gave us some good common sense sermons. On Sunday eve., we had, "For the grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared unto all men," &c. The subject is like a never-failing fountain, the more you drink of it, the more you want. The subject was well treated and seemed to make favorable impressions on the congregation. On Monday eve., we were not present but were informed that it was a good meeting. On Tuesday eve., the subject was: "If any man will serve me, let him follow me." &c. He first showed the disposition and position of the true literal servant and the relation between servant and master. Then made a spiritual application by making the child of God, the servant, and Christ Jesus, the Master, thus enforcing the necessity of rendering true service in order to meet the approbation and gain the reward of our Heavenly Master, and finally be worthy of the crown. The sermon was one of interest and hope it may be for our mutual good.

THE PILGRIM ALMANAC.

From present appearances, our Almanac will be a success. Our call for aid has met punctuality far beyond our expectations. Our readers are reporting everywhere as far as the PILGRIM reaches, their ministers names and addresses, and our blanks sent out are returning by the scores, filled with the desired information. The "Ministerial Record" will be pretty complete, and will contain a large number of names never before given, but will not be in quite as good order as we would desire, on account of the shortness of the time to prepare it. One new feature in our "Record" will be the addition of the county to the address. This is now a requirement of the postal department, and will give additional interest in giving a better idea of location. The work is now commenced and will be ready for distribution again the first of December.

CHURCH SALE.

We are informed that the Brethren of Philadelphia have sold their old church house on Crown street, and purchased a site on which to build another one, higher up in the city, the exact location, we have not learned. In the mean time, they have leased a hall where public worship will be held until better accommodation can be had.

PERSONAL.

D. H. BONEBRAKE:—Your account is right. Thank you.

JACOB FRIEDLY:—Your remittance is received. Jeremiah Forman's PILGRIM is sent regularly with the pack. If he does not get it, it must be detained at the office.

J. D. TROSTLE, says:—"I am glad to inform you that we are still having additions during the summer, and the church seems to be prospering, having baptized quite a number. Among them at one time, there was an old man of 90 years and a lad of 9. We have concluded to make an effort to build a meeting house at this end of our territory, our present house being some 9 miles from this place. Wishing you success in all of your undertakings and hoping that the PILGRIM may continue his journey through the land, I remain yours in the bonds of the Gospel."

MIXED UP.—Conclusion of M. J. McClures article on "The Spirit of Christ" in No. 39, page 307 is badly mixed. In the three first columns, temperance and patience are mixed promiscously. Temperance of 2nd paragraph in 2nd column should have followed 2nd paragraph in 1st column. Patience in 1st paragraph 3rd column, should have followed 1st paragraph in 2nd column. This bungle was done by our foreman in making up from mixed galleys, and overlooked by the proof-reader in our absence. For it, we are sorry, both for the sake of the writer and our readers.

OUR Personal to John Monn of last week seems to need an explanation. The reply to Bro. Mourer referred to was not written by Bro. Monn, but to him as a reply to Bro. Mourer's letter published in PILGRIM of March 15th.

THE PHRENOLOGICAL JOURNAL for October commands our approval for the variety and quality of its interesting contents. We think the following articles especially worthy a reading: Lowell Mason, the late eminent musician and teacher; The One-Eyed Conductor; Japanese in America, with portraits; Expression, its Anatomy and Philosophy; Preparing for the Cholera; Water, Pure and Impure; Children's Rights; The Last Case of Salem Witchcraft; Life Insurance; Enrico Dandolo; The English Language. In these we certainly have instructive, moral literature in a very attractive dress. Price for the number, 30 cts. $3.00 a year. S. R. Wells, New York.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

LARGE TELESCOPES.—A dispatch from Washington says: "The object glass for the new telescope, which is rapidly approaching completion, for the Naval Observatory, was contracted for at twenty-six inches clear aperture. The entire diameter of the glass is, however, twenty-seven and one half inches. The agreement with Mr. McCormick, of reaping-machine fame, for the glass which he has ordered is that it be in all respects a duplicate of the one in process of construction for the Naval Observatory. The glass for the McCormick instrument is not yet cast. The largest instrument of the kind yet constructed has a clear aperture of twenty-five inches."

THE NEW POSTAGE RATES.—Several notices of the reduction in postage have already appeared, but the following is clearer and more complete than any: Under the new law the postage on transient newspapers, magazines, pamphlets, etc., is just half what it was under the old law—that is, such matter can now be sent, in parcels not weighing over twelve ounces, at one cent for each two ounces. A one cent stamp will therefore carry any magazine or package of newspapers which does not weigh more than two ounces. Book postage under the new code is two cents for each two ounces or fraction thereof. Book manuscripts and proof sheets go at one cent for each two ounces or fraction thereof, but this only between author and publisher, and manuscript for publication in newspapers and magazines must be paid for at letter rates, which remain as heretofore. Nothing weighing more than four pounds, except Congressional documents, will be received into the mail.

ARRIVAL OF 600 MORMONS.

Our foreign papers last week contained an announcement of the embarkation, on a single steamer at Liverpool, of six hundred Mormons for this port. They arrived on the 16th, and have already left by a special train for Utah. They are in charge of Mormon agents from the time of their leaving Europe until they reach their destination, and have been joined by a few Mormons from this vicinity who will accompany them on to Salt Lake. There are in the company just arrived 256 Scandinavians, 25 Scotch, 12 Welch, 4 Irish, 295 English and 6 returning missionaries.

It is sad to see so many fresh recruits brought under the power of this gross delusion and led away to join the ranks of Brigham Young's subjects. Many will doubtless awake to their delusion when they reach Mormon territory, as many have before them. The mass of them are probably like the thousands which have previously arrived, ignorant and led astray with the promise of plenty in a new and unknown region. The converts to this base form of religion are nearly all of the class upon whom it is easy to impose—unenlightened and incredulous. They are not Americans who join the rank, but Scandinavians and ignorant English. Mormonism is not an excrescence of American growth, though on our soil it receives its strength and increase from abroad. Now that these people are in our land, one thing should be done for them, and that is to give them the gospel. The Christian Church should greatly enlarge its missionary efforts in this direction.—N. Y. Observer.

Severe Storm at Lock Haven.

The Clinton Republican gives the following description of a storm which occurred at and near Lock Haven, on Thursday of last week:

About 6 o'clock in the evening the water fell in large drops, and about half-past eight o'clock a regular torrent of water came from the clouds, and continued till nearly 12 o'clock. How it rained! It seemed as if the old Susquehana had been turned over on the city. Every man, woman and child who happened to be in the street flocked into the stores for shelter. The storm was pronounced by "probability men" to be the heaviest they had ever known. The water in the Bald Eagle creek, and other streams in this vicinity, commenced to rise Friday morning so rapidly that the river became more or less agitated over the matter, and commenced to boil. In some of the back streets of Lock Haven small rivers were soon formed, and at 9 o'clock in the morning one citizen prophesied that in less than twenty-four hours the city would be to some extent inundated. On Friday morning dark, threatening clouds overshadowed us, but the sun worked with such an energy that it quickly dispersed them. Some anxiety was felt for the bridge now undergoing repairs. It was thought that the logs in the river, should there be a flood, would, in their downward course, strike the frame work on which the men were working; and also the piers, and necessitate the building of a new bridge. But everything worked to a charm, and all the danger passed by.

The water in the Bald Eagle creek overflowed the road near Mill Hall, in some places washing out large pieces. The dam at the Washington Iron works was totally destroyed. The farms along the line of this creek suffered slightly from the freshet. The road supervisors will find any amount of work to employ them for several days.

Wine Making in California.

Some idea of the rapidity with which the wine interest of California has grown may be gathered from a knowledge of the fact that there is a single vineyard in Sonoma County, which has five hundred acres of bearing vines. It belongs to Buenavista Vineculturist Society, and produces both white and red wines. Its yield last year amounted to one hundred and sixty thousand gallons, and this year it is much larger. The same company owns a tract of six thousand acres, upon which grow the willows from which the champagne baskets are made, the wood from which casks are manufactured, and the straw for packing. They also have on the premises a cooper's shop, a distillery and immense cellars for ripening the vines. From forty to one hundred men are employed, according to the season. In the cellars there are now a large quantity of wine, and this year's vintage will more than fill them.

Excursion to Europe.—Cyrene Commandery, No. 34, Knights Templars, Columbia, Pa., at their last assembly passed a resolution and appointed a committee to organize an excursion to Europe. It is proposed to leave New York about the 10th of June next.—Monthly Herald.

GOOD BOOKS.

A large number of our patrons are receiving our books as noticed below, as premiums, and express themselves highly pleased with them. Others who are not agents, have enquired whether we keep them for sale. We have now made arrangements with Mr. Wells to furnish any of their publications post paid at publishers prices. Orders for books must be accompanied with the cash, and plain directions for sending them.

Conversion of St. Paul. By George Jarvis Geer, D. D. 12mo. fine edition, $1. Plain edition, 75 cents.

Hand-book for Home Improvement: comprising "How to Write," "How to Talk," How to Behave," and "How to do Business," in one vol. 2.25.

How to Live; Saving and Wasting, or Domestic Economy. By Solon Robinson. $1.50.

Life at Home; or, The Family and its Members. Husbands, Wives, Parents, Children, Brothers, Sisters, Employers and Employed, etc. By Rev. William Aikman, D. D. A work which should be found in every family. $1.50. Extra gilt, $2.00.

Man and Woman: Considered in their Relations to each Other and to the World. By Henry C. Pedder. 12mo, Fancy cloth Price $1.00.

Man, in Genesis and in Geology; or, the Biblical Account of Man's Creation, tested by Scientific Theories of his Origin and Antiquity. By Joseph P. Thompson, D. D., LL.D. One vol. 12mo, $1.00.

The Right Word in the Right Place. A New Pocket Dictionary and Reference Book. Embracing Synonyms, Technical Terms, Abbreviations, Foreign Phrases Writing for the Press, Punctuation, Proof-Reading, and other Valuable Information. Cloth, 75cts.

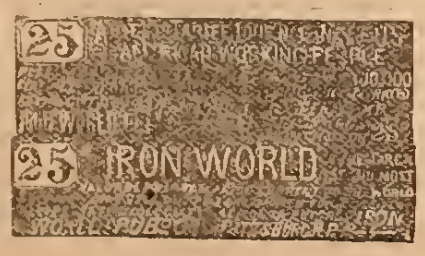
The Emphatic, Diaglott; or The New Testament in Greek and English. Containing the Original Greek Text of the New Testament, with an Interlineary. Word for-word English Translation. A Work for Students in Theology, and S. S. Teachers. By Benjamin Wilson. Price, $4.00; extra fine binding, $5.00.

Oratory—Sacred and Secular; or, the Extemporaneous Speaker. Including Chairman's Guide for conducting Public Meetings according to the best Parliamentary forms. By Wm. Pittenger. $1.50.

Wayer's Works for the Young. Comprising "Hopes and Helps for the Young of both Sexes," "Aids and Aims for Girls and Young Women," "Ways of Life; or, the Right Way and the Wrong Way," $3

Hopes and Helps for the Young of both sexes, Relating to the Formation of Character. Choice of Avocation, Health, Conversation, Cultivation of Intellect, Moral Sentiments, Social Affection Courtship and Marriage. By Rev. G. S. Weaver. Muslin, $1.50.

$5to$20 per day! Agents wanted! All classes of working people, of either sex, young or old, make more money at work for us in their spare moments, or all the time, than at anything else. Particulars free. Address G. Stinson & Co., Portland, Maine.



SALEM COLLEGE.

The Fall term of Salem College will open for the reception of any number of students from all parts on the 4th of September, 1872. Ample accommodations and thorough instruction will be given all students who connect themselves with this College. Good board can be had in good families at $2.50 to $3.00 per week or students can board themselves in clubs at $1.25 to $1.50 per week as numbers have done with the consent of the faculty. Special care will be given students who are far from home.

For Catalogues, Scholarships and full particulars address

SALEM COLLEGE,
July 22, '72. Bourbon, Ind.

Valuable Farm
FOR SALE.

I will offer for sale, on the premises, at public auction, on

THURSDAY, October 10th, 1872,

(if not sold privately before), the farm on which I did reside, about 16 miles west of Lewisburg, not far from R. R, in Greenbriar co., W. Va.; on the James river and Kawha turnpike containing about

500 ACRES

On which is erected a large brick dwelling house and kitchen, stable and other outbuildings. This property is good for grain or grass, and is a convenient and desirable residence. About one-third of the land is cleared and the rest in good timber. All well watered, and could be conveniently divided into two or three small farms. Any one desiring to inspect the farm can do so by calling on W. R. Sharp, who lives adjoining the premises. Title good. Terms, $2,500 cash and the residue in one and two years. DAVID FRANTZ,

Menno Simon's
COMPLETE WORKS.

In English, translated from the original Dutch or Holland, giving the whole of the great Reformers writings on the subject of Baptism. Price in full sheep $4.50; by mail $5.14.

Address, JOHN F. FUNK & BRO.
Elkhart, Ind.

New Hymn Books, English.

TURKEY MOROCCO.

One copy, postpaid, - -	$1.00
Per Dozen, - - - -	11.25

PLAIN ARABESQE.

One Copy, post-paid, - - -	75
Per Dozen, " - - -	8.50

Ger'n & English, Plain Sheep.

One Copy, post-paid, - -	$1.00
Per Dozen - - - -	11.25
Arabesque Plain, - -	1.00
Turkey Morocco, - - -	1.25
Single German, post paid -	50
Per Dozen, - - - - -	5.50

TRACTS.

"ANXIOUS BENCH RELIGION EXAMINED," BY ELDER J. S. FLORY. A SYNOPSIS OF CONTENTS. An address to the reader: The peculiarities that attend this type of religion. The feelings there experienced not imaginary but real. The key that unlocks the wonderful mystery. The causes by which feelings are excited. How the momentary feelings called "Experimental religion" are brought about, and then concludes by giving that form of doctrine as taught by Jesus Christ and recorded by his faithful witnesses.

COUNTERFEIT DETECTER
OR
BAPTISM—MUCH IN LITTLE.

This work is now ready for distribution, and the importance of the subject will speak for it a large demand. It is a short treatise on baptism in tract form intended for general distribution, and is set forth in such a plain and logical manner that a wayfaring man though a fool, cannot err therein. Either of the above tracts sent postpaid on the following terms: Two copies, 10 cts, 10 copies 40 cents, 25 copies 70 cents, 50 copies $1.00, 100 copies $1.50.

1870 1872
DR. FAHRNEY'S
Blood Cleanser or Panacea.

A tonic and purge, for Blood Diseases. Great reputation. Many testimonials. Many ministering brethren use and recommend it. Ask or send for the "Health Messenger." Use only the "Panacea" prepared at Chicago, Ills., and by

Dr. P. Fahrney's Brothers & Co.,
Aug. 3-pd. Waynesboro, Franklin Co., Pa.

Trine Immersion.

A discussion on Trine Immersion, by letter between Elder B. F. Moomaw and Dr. J. J. Jackson, to which is annexed a Treatise on the Lord's Supper, and on the necessity, character and evidences of the new birth, also a dialogue on the doctrine of non-resistance, by Elder B. F. Moomaw. Single copy 50 cents.

HUNTINGDON & BROAD TOP RAIL ROAD
Summer Arrangement.

On an after Tuesday, June 4, 1872, Passenger trains will arrive and depart as follows:

Trains from Huntingdon South. Trains from Bedford moving North.

MAIL. A. M.	ACCOM P. M.	STATIONS.	MAIL. P. M.	ACCOM A. M.
*le*8 20	LE6 00	Huntingdon,	AR5 25	AR9 10
8 28	6 06	Long Siding	5 17	9 00
8 43	6 19	McConnelstown	5 04	8 45
8 51	6 25	Pleasant Grove	4 58	8 39
9 05	6 37	Marklesburg	4 45	8 27
9 20	6 51	Coffee Run	4 33	8 11
9 27	6 58	Rough & Ready	4 26	8 40
9 39	7 10	Cove	4 12	7 52 28
9 43	7 15	Fishers Summit	4 08	7 48 10
10 03	7 35	Saxton	3 48	le 7 53
10 10	7 53			*ar*7 46
10 27	8 10	Riddlesburg	3 30	6 30
10 34	8 17	Hopewell	3 23	6 12
10 51	8 35	Piper's Run	3 06	6 00
11 10	8 55	Tatesville	2 48	6 56
11 22	9 08	Bloody Run	2 33	6 50
11 26	9 12	Mount Dallas	2 29	5 46
11 32	0 10	Ashcom's Mills	2 23	5 42
11 36	9 23	Lutzville	2 18	5 36
11 40	9 27	Hartley's Mills	2 14	5
11 40	9 34	Jamesons	2 07	5
*r*11 22	*ar*9 40	Bedford	LE2 00	LE5 30

JOHN M'KILLIPS, Supt

SHOUP'S RUN BRANCH.

LE10 25	LE7 40	Saxton.	AR3 40	AR7 20
10 30	7 55	Coalmont.	3 25	7 05
10 35	8 00	Crawford.	3 20	7 00
AR10 45	AR8 10	Dudley	LE3 10	LE6 50
Bro'd Top City from Dudley 2 miles by stage.

Time of Penna. R. R. Trains at Huntingdon.

EASTWARD.			WESTWARD.
Hb'g Ac.	9 24 A. M	Cin. Ex.	2 19	A. M.
Mail	3 30 P. M	Pe'f Ex.	7 45	"
Cin. Ex.	6 55 "	Mail	5 40	P. M.
Phil. Ex	11 15 "	W. Pass.	11 52	A. M.

THE PILGRIM.

Published by J. B. Brumbaugh, & Co.

Edited by H. B. & Geo. Brumbaugh.

CORRESPONDING EDITORS.

D. P. Sayler, Double Pipe Creek, Md.

Leonard Furry, New Enterprise, Pa.

The Pilgrim is a Christian Periodical, devoted to religion and moral reform. It will advocate in the spirit of love and liberty, the principles of true Christianity, labor for the promotion of peace among the people of God, for the encouragement of the saints and for the conversion of sinners, avoiding those things which tend toward disunion or sectional feelings.

TERMS.

Single copy, one year,	$1.2.
Book paper, " "	1.50.
Eleven copies, [eleventh for Agt.]	$12.50.

Any number above that at the same rate,

Address.

H. B. BRUMBAUGH.
James Creek,
Huntingdon county Pa.

Merkln Pilgrim.

"REMOVE NOT THE ANCIENT LANDMARKS WHICH OUR FATHERS HAVE SET."

VOL. 3. JAMES CREEK, PENNSYLVANIA, OCTOBER 15, 1872. NO. 42

POETRY.

THE DESERT ROCK.

"They drank of that spiritual Rock that followed them ;and that Rock was Christ." —3 Cor. 10, 4.

Rock of the desert pouring still
Thy stream the thirsty soul to fill;
Rock of the desert, now as full
Of living water, pure and cool,
We stand beside thy stream.

Rock of eternity, to thee
In thirst and weariness we flee;
Thy waters cannot cease to pour;
Their fullness is forevermore;
Let him that thirsteth come.

Bright water of eternity,
We come, we come, to drink of thee.
The voice of welcome that we hear,
The voice dispelling every fear,
Is—"whosoever will."

River of life, upon thy brink
We sit, and of thy waters drink;
The murmur of thy sparkling wave
Speaks still of Him who came to save,
Who bids us drink and live.

River of peace, so full and bright,
Each drop clear-shining with the light;
And still the voice that comes from thee
The voice that telleth all is free,
Is—"whosoever will."

River of love, so deep and wide,
All Heaven is in thy flowing tide;
For all the love of God is here,
The love that casteth out all fear,
The—"whosoever will."

River of God, still flowing on,
Thy source the everlasting throne.
River of Heaven, transluceut stream,
Thy fullness ever at the brim
For—"whosoever will."

River of health, thy current pours
Its freshness on these leprous shores!
Pure Jordan, bidding all draw nigh,
For health and immortality,
With—"whosoever will."

Dear river, what a sun is thine!
What glories on thy waters shine!
What freshness in each sparkling drop,
And still the voice that cometh up
Is—"whosoever will."

—Selected.

ORIGINAL ESSAYS.

"IN THE LIGHT."

"But if we walk in the light as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ cleanseth us from all sin."—1st John, 17 : 7.

In the foregoing expression the Apostle, appropriately describes the person of our blessed Lord, what they did, saw and heard of the word of life. Therefore as they saw and heard from Jesus Christ Himself, the infallible Guide and Teacher, they were competent witnesses to declare unto the people the truth, the gospel —the Word of God that was embodied in that message which was delivered us by our Savior, and is to enlighten the human mind, that the penitent soul or searcher after righteousness might see the Kingdom of God, and behold that God is light, and with Him there is no darkness at all; and by virtue of the light which was in God, the Father, His Son became the light of the world. Therefore we learn that the grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared to all men. "Free and universal salvation to all men;" oh how cheering and consoling is the gift of God! Given entirely free. Who ever will be taught by the sayings of the gospel will be saved. Herein see we the mercy and grace of God. God in the gift of His Son brought life and immortality to light.

"Salvation, O the joyful sound." Yes, Jesus came as a prophet, priest and King. He came as a teacher to teach us the way of life and salvation; teach us to forsake our sins, and our evil ways, that we might have the eyes of our understanding opened or enlightened, that we should cease to do evil and learn to do well. He also taught us to deny ourselves of gratifying the flesh and the lust thereof, pride and vain show, which is of the world and will pass away with the world and the using thereof, and teaches how we should live that we might be under the blessings of God. Then, says the Apostle, if we "walk in the light" we have the promise that our fellowship shall be joyful with one another, and more especially the fellowship of the Father and the Son. But our sacrifice must not be like Cain's, cold and indifferent. If so, we will be found dishonoring God and a self soul destroyer. But the promise was to Cain, "If thou doest well thou shalt be accepted; if not sin lieth at thy door." Oh dear brethren, here we can learn a lesson. Do we bring any sacrifice to the Lord? If we do not we sin by omission, and if we do, and it is not offered by faith, it is worse than none. We deceive ourselves and mock God. We must worship God in spirit or our sacrifice is unholy, and will meet with non-acceptance and we will not have the blessings of God attending us on our pilgrimage. God our merciful Father asks no impossibilities of us, for the Word says, "My yoke is easy and my burden is light." If we love God we love His Word, and if we love His Word we will comply with it. Jesus says, "He that doeth truth cometh to the light that his deeds may be made manifest that they are wrought in God." Here dear brethren and sisters if we have an eye single to the glory of God our body is full of light.

Dear brethren, when we view the Word of the Lord, is there not every thing held out to induce us to be zealously affected in a good cause? And have we not espoused that good cause? The expression of the precept is, "Walk in the light." Jesus was the light of the world. Now the Word of Truth is the light of the world and it is the only guide we have or ever will have. "Man liveth not by bread alone, but by every word of God." Oh what an association is the Church of God, the ground and pillar of Truth. Love, joy, peace &c., is the by-laws of this association, governed by a perfect law. In Matt. 18, is the discipline of the Church, taking the whole gospel as their rule of faith and practice. Again walk in the light, for if we claim fellowship with Christ and His people, and walk in darkness we are found in a falsehood, and the truth is not in us. "He that cometh after me shall not walk in darkness but shall have the light of life." Therefore we are commanded to walk in the light. How can we except we obey His precepts and commands? "He that says he knows God, and keepeth not His commandments is a liar, and the truth is not in him." Then we infer we must keep all His sayings that are taught in His Holy Word, if we expect to walk in the light. And it is only by obeying Christ in all things He has said unto us in His Word, that we then can and will be recognized as the children of light. Then by a practical experience we shall know, and by the sanctifying influence of the Holy Spirit as a testimony from the Lord. Oh brethren, what shall follow in the sweet consoling thought of the fellowship which we shall enjoy one with another here as His people, and finally in Heaven as the saints of light in glory?

If we are the children of light we are the children of God. Then union and love must exist. No malice, no hatred, no envy, no jealousy, no partiality, should or can exist in the breast of any disciple of Jesus, if he is walking in the light of the gospel. But love, joy, peace and union will pervade the Church, and the promotion of the cause of Christ will be at heart with every member of the body of Christ. Then the mind of Christ will develop itself in our life. Let us often be found at a throne of grace, where we can have sweet communion with God our Savior, where He has promised to strengthen us that we may be strong in the Lord, and receive aid and comfort in an hour of trial while passing through this wilderness; looking unto Jesus as our commander and leader, and He will finally lead us on to victory.

J. F. OLLER.

Waynesboro, Pa.

"The turning point in my life," said a gentleman, "was, when I was a boy, not going to a low circus. Some kind of low show and circus came into town, and of course all the boys were dying to go. My mother did not want me to go. I might have stolen off. I had money enough in in my pocket, the boys did all they could to persuade me, and, more than all, people were going in squads to see it. It is so easy to go with the multitude; it is so hard to make a stand, break away, and go the other way.

"That is exactly what I did. I 'mastered the situation,' I mastered myself, and did not go.

AN ESSAY ON THE LORD'S SUPPER. No. 2.

[Continued from last week.]

First, That he was a minister of the gospel, fulfilled the law in every point previous to his baptism or his entering upon his ministry. "For the law and the prophets were until John, from that time the Kingdom of God is preached by the Gospel." Greek and German version, "Christ is the end of the law, for righteousness sake." The prophet Isaiah, said, as quoted by Christ, Luke 4: 18, "The spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he hath anointed me to preach the Gospel to the poor," &c. And, "to preach the acceptable year of the Lord." He added, "This day is this Scripture fulfilled in your ears." Consequently, he did not teach the ceremonial law to his disciples, who were to be the representatives of his church under the Gospel dispensation; much less did he observe it or else he would have acted contrary to his teaching.

Second, It being not held according to the commands of God, as seen already, would be highly inconsistent to his character as the Son of God. Lastly, That he and his disciples alone participated, even the good man of the house excluded; being joined together with two Gospel institutions which is incontrovertible.

We call this meal of the Savior a Supper because he ate it with his disciples in the evening, and was a full meal, and as it corresponded with the term Deipnon, the sacred writer used it to distinguish it from the Communion. In Mark 5: 21, we have the term used and is rendered supper. "Herod made a supper (Deipnon) to his lords, high captains, and chief estates of Galilee." Let this suffice as regards the first proposition. I think we have proved that part beyond any possible shade of successful contradiction from the word of God, as we are not disposed to accept as proof any evidence from man.

2nd proposition, That that supper is an institution of his own; commanded to be observed by his followers. This part is, in a measure, partly answered by the first, and will not require many words. The Lord instituted it in the same night he instituted feetwashing and the communion and placed the supper right between the others in order. We read, John 13, "He riseth from supper." In the first place it reads, Supper being ended, (Deipnon genominon), Greek.—Our common version expresses too much as seen in the same chapter, for Supper was eaten after feetwashing. Hence we understand, with many others, Supper being served or prepared. He sat down with the twelve at the table; he riseth from that prepared Supper, washes his disciples feet, an act of humiliation, and also an after washing, signifying an internal cleansing from the defilement of sin; very appropriate, as nothing unclean can be permitted to partake of the Marriage Supper of the Lamb, of which this Supper of the Lord is a type, or figure; hence cleansing before Supper. After he had washed their feet, he sat down again, instructed them in what he had done "Know ye what I have done to you? Ye call me Master and Lord, and ye say well, for so I am. If I then your Lord and Master, have washed your feet, ye also ought to wash one another's feet. If ye know these things, happy are you if ye do them." Mark the language, for we will use criticism. If ye know these things. What things? Certainly more than one, for the plural, these things, correspond with the prenominal adjective, these, and pronoun them, and these is the plural of this, which are used for things just occurring and those and that are used for things occuring more distant. So we must understand that these means feetwashing and the Supper as he mentions them shortly before in connection, and as we understand a condition expressed in the phrase. Transposed it reads, If ye do these things knowing them, ye shall be happy. The reverse is the consequence in the negative. If ye know these things and do them not ye shall be miserable or unhappy. Inasmuch then as said already, ye ought to wash feet, and ye should do as I have done to you, we regard this positive command, feetwashing and Supper being conjoined in the promise of happiness, if we know both, and comply with both ordinances. Hence, sound logic teaches us that the Supper is positively commanded by our Lord to his disciples, and if commanded to them, they are also to us, who claim to be the followers of the Lord Jesus Christ; for the great and last commission of the Lord teaches us to teach the nations to observe all things I have commanded you.

The great apostles of the Gentiles understood it so, when he corrects the disorder of the Corinthian Church, for he saith, "Be ye followers of me, even as I also am of Christ. Now I praise you, brethren, that ye remember me in all things, and keep the ordinances as I delivered them to you." 1 Cor. 11. One of these ordinances spoken of here must be the Supper, for he speaks only of the communion and the Supper in this chapter, yet he speaks in the plural, ordinances, and praises them that they keep them. But friend, I say it was an innovation, and Paul put the foot on it. Paul praises the Corinthians for remembering him and keeping the Lord's Supper as he delivered it to them, as he received it from the Lord. Here is a positive proof that the Lord instituted a Supper with an injunction to observe it, or Paul would not say that he received it from the Lord, and delivered it unto them by the term Lord's Supper, (Kuriakon deipnon). The only place we find that term between the lids of the Bible. And why so called? Because the Lord instituted it. But we are told Paul set his foot on it. Why Brother if you set that aside where have we authority for a Lord's Supper at all? For this is the only place we find that term. In what a dreadful condition does it place our Christian friends who call the bread and wine in the communion the Lord's Supper!

Now my dear Christian friend, viewing all these Scriptural evidences from a rational standpoint, unbiased and without preconceived opinion, honestly and in the fear of the Lord, we cannot but come to the conclusion that Christ, in the night of the betrayal, instituted a Supper, and commanded his disciples to observe it with the rest of the ordinances. This closes the second proposition.

Third proposition. We propose to show in this part, that this Supper is a distinct institution from the bread and wine, called by St. Paul the Lord's Supper, but the bread and wine, called the Communion. In this part, our principal argument, shall be based upon the terms the sacred writers used to designate these ordinances, and how they were understood at that time. Deipnon is the Greek term they used and it is in itself a generic term, that is, may be used for ill purposes as well as for good ones; hence the Greeks employed it when they made a feast to their nobles, or even to Bachus, yet it was in the days of the Savior understood to mean a plentiful meal, at the close of the day. Hence the common version of the English have for Deipneo, to sup, Deipnon, Supper, feast. The former term occurs four times in the New Testament and is translated sup, supped, after supper. The latter occurs 16 times, translated 3 times feasts and 13 times Supper. But when we want the specific meaning of the term, we must see in what connection it stands, and consequently cannot misunderstand its meaning. Having then (1 Cor. 11: 20) the term, Kuriakon, Deipnon, Lord's Supper. We understand a Supper of the Lord's appointment, and that Supper was a meal brought together by the Church, and to be partaken of in a Church capacity, but there were divisions in that Church, made known to Paul by the house of Chloe. They met in parties, and instead of eating that Supper in common together, in love and union, each party partook of their own, and did not wait until the proper time, Those that had brought nothing had to be ashamed. Such was the abuse of that sacred meal through the disorder of the heresies among them, that St. Paul sharply reproved them, and said, "When ye come together into one place, in such a party spirit that ye cannot eat together, nor wait until the proper time, "this is not to eat the Lord's Supper," and assigns the reason: "For in eating every one taketh before other his own Supper; and one is hungry and another is drunken. What! have ye not houses to eat and drink in? or despise ye the Church of God, and shame them that have not? What shall I say to you? Shall I praise you in this, I praise you not."

The church at Corinth was highly reprehensible for its conduct and was wholly unfit to eat the Supper of the Lord, and alike disqualified to commune together, hence, in that condition, would eat and drink damnation to themselves, not discerning the Lord's body. The Lord's Supper must be discerned from a common one, as well as the emblems of the Lord's body from a common one. Paul after giving directions how they may be qualified to keep the ordinances, says, in verse 33, "Wherefor my brethren, when ye come together to eat," eat what? Certainly the Lord's Supper, "tarry one for another." "And if any man hunger," that he cannot wait till the proper time, "let him eat at home: that ye come not together unto condemnation." Why? for not discerning the Lord's ordinances in a proper manner. Is it not as clear as the sun in the bright meridian that the aim of the apostle Paul was to to correct their abuses and disorder in both ordinances, as he blends these together, and not to set aside as friend J, and many others, assert? If he set aside one, he did the other, also. Remove the disorder, which prevents it from being the Lord's Supper, and what have you but the Lord's Supper?

BEARING THE CROSS.

Bearing the cross is one of the strongholds of the Christian. It, in a great measure, turns our backs to the world, and especially to those things which are an abomination in the sight of God. Bearing the cross will deny us of many fashions and follies of time and sense. It increases love and humility, and pulls down the high places of carnality and hypocrisy. Bearing the cross fits us for spiritual duties. The Savior says, "whosoever does not bear his cross and come after me, cannot be my disciple." Luke 14: 27. This is plain language indeed. James says, 1: 27, "pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this: "To visit the fatherless and the widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world."

Now in my opinion of the Scriptures I believe we cannot ward and keep off all the spots of the world except we truly bear our cross; neither do I believe we can let our light shine without the cross upon us. I think it would be well for all pilgrims, especially we who are young, to study and see what the cross is, and of what it is made, and what effect it has upon us. This is a lesson we should learn daily, so that we may be able to keep off those worldly spots which are getting upon many of us. If we are not very careful, they will get too thick, they will push off the cross. Then what are we? Disciples? Not by the quotation above, although we may linger along in the church with the cross nearly off of us. Then what good are we doing in the church to ourselves? Perhaps a stumbling block to others who may wish to become cross bearers.

"Take up the cross and follow me,
Nor think till death to lay it down,
For only he who bears the cross
May hope to wear the glorious crown."

Now if we are under the yoke of Jesus bearing our cross sincerely and devoutly, thus spiritually harnessed, we may go on, "adding to our faith virtue, and to virtue knowledge, and to knowledge temperance, and to temperance patience, and to patience Godliness, and to Godliness brotherly kindness, and to brotherly kindness charity. Now if these things are in us, and abound, they will make us that we will neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. But he that lacketh these things is blind and cannot see a far off, and hath forgotten that he was purged from his old sins." Where the above christian graces exist, we believe the cross is also borne. In connection with these things the spirit of Christ must be possessed, for we are told if any man have not the spirit of Christ, he is none of his. My opinion is in this fast age of the world, every thing has a tendency to draw us away from the cross of Christ. Pride, for instance, in its various forms and attitudes, is one of the greatest enemies of the cross. If we look at the great riches of our country, the great liberty, the great productions and bountiful advantages, we see it all has a tendency to exaltation and pride. This makes it dangerous to young pilgrims. We are so apt to go after the nice things of the world, and they are so various and numerous that it is hard to particularize; in fact, we think there is no better way than to turn our backs and say, get get thee behind me satan, for it is evident if we give satan the little finger he wants the whole hand; or if we allow him to put one spot of pride on us, he is not satisfied until he gets us all over spotted. He is so artful and cunning; he even has something to do with the watch chains, neckties, combing the hair, cutting the clothes, &c. Finally he gains us in little things and if we take them altogether, it makes a big thing and robs us of the cross. But says one, I don't believe the dress has anything to do with religion, if the heart is only right then all is right. Another one will say, why I would be ashamed to wear clothes like the Brethren do. O pilgrims let us not screen ourselves with such notions or ideas. Let us also shoulder our cross and march along, for Jesus called them out of the world and told them to be separate from the world, not only in uniform but also in walk, and in fact the whole career of our lives must be of a transformed nature, loving what we once hated and hating what we once loved. Seeking the things that are above and not on the earth. Loving our neighbor as ourself, doing to others as we would have them do to us. Bridling our tongues against all evil talk and with the poet say:

"Thus I'll resolve before the Lord,
Now will I watch my tongue,
Lest I let slip one sinful word,
Or do my neighbor wrong."

H. GARBER

New Lebanon, Ohio.

THE FAITH ALONE DOCTRINE ILLUSTRATED.

Some time since, one of our ministers in his droppings from the sanctuary, informed his hearers how a certain divine illustrated "The Faith Alone Doctrine." I will give that illustration in writing to the PILGRIM family, to which I will append some remarks of my own.

"I once attended a meeting in the southern part of Illinois, said our minister, where a certain divine labored to establish the doctrine, that we are saved by faith alone. In the course of his remarks, after having eloquently spoken on a certain passage of Scripture, which he thought favored the idea, he said he would illustrate it from something natural or common, so that the wayfaring man though a fool could understand it. In passing through the forest or wood in coming to meeting, he had obtained a hickery nut which he judged to be good. He took it from his pocket and taking the hull off said it represents those Christians who have a form of godliness—put a stress on an outward appearance, but just take this hull—outward appearance away, and all is gone. Then referring to the hard-shell he said that represents those Christians of like name, but just take away their hard shell and you have the end of the matter.

Taking a hammer, he said that as no virtue had been found in the hull, or hard-shell, he would crack it, informing his hearers, as he proceeded to do so, that the substance found in it would represent those Christians, whose creed was 'justified by faith' alone. The attention of the audience which was commendable all the time, now became riveted. He cracked the nut, and out rolled—what? A kernal? No, it was a loathing worm. In his unfair efforts to lessen the standing of the influential religious societies of the neighborhood, he foiled himself. The audience took him at his word."

Remark 1st. The faith alone doctrine like that nut is rotton in the core. "In the mouth of two or three witnesses every word shall be established." I shall produce two—Paul and James. Says James, "Faith without works is dead." This is conclusive. Anything that is dead is corrupt—rotten. Paul speaks of "a shield of faith." The ancients used shields to ward off the missiles of the enemy. If they ceased to use them, they put their lives in jeopardy. If Christians do not work, or use the shield of faith, they will not be able "to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked," and may make "shipreck of their faith," having a name that they live, but are dead.

Remark 2nd. Faith is indispensible. "Without faith it is impossible to please God." Says Paul again, "Whatsoever is not of faith is sin." James admonishes his brethren to ask in faith for wisdom. We should "walk by faith." All our works should be stamped with faith.

Remark 3rd. The life of faith is works. Why does any one object to works when the emphatic language of Paul is that "we are his workmenship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God has before ordained that we should walk in them." The Scriptures found in my first remark demonstrate that the life of faith is works. Paul's "great cloud of witnesses" in Heb. 11 present an incontrovertible mass of evidence to the same point. Examine their history and you will find that they all evinced their faith by "good works." Even Christ had to "work while it was day." We must "finish the work given us to do," for so did our Lord and Master, and we are to "follow in his steps." Paul rejected Mark from being his minister because he "went not with them to the work." Epaphroditus "was nigh unto death because for the work of Christ." We are to be "established in every good work." "Every man's work shall be made manifest." "The fire shall try every man's work." If any man's work abide, he shall receive a reward. "A doer of the work shall be blest." "No man can serve two masters," implies that if he serves the right one he will be rewarded. The man that built his house on a rock was secure. And in John's apocalyptic vision of the Great Day "they were judged EVERY MAN ACCORDING TO THEIR WORKS." "SHOW ME THY FAITH WITHOUT THY WORKS, AND I WILL SHOW THEE MY FAITH BY MY WORKS."

Remark 4th. The different expressions used in the Scriptures, "agree in one." Such expressions as "saved by grace," "saved by hope," "justified by faith," "justified by works," and "the blood of Jesus Christ cleanses us from all sin" do not clash. They who possess "wisdom from above" readily understand this. Like "the water, the spirit, and the blood," they "agree in one." There is a great unity, harmony and mystery here. "Without controversy great is the mystery of godliness." More anon.

JNO. CALVIN BRIGHT.

Dayton, Ohio.

A PRECIOUS STONE.

Kohinoor is the name of one of the most brilliant and purest of known diamonds. It first was so called by an Indian prince. He was so enraptured with the brilliancy of the beautiful gem, that he give it this name, which means, "The Mountain of Light."

It was found in the mines of Golconda, before the Christian era. At the time of Christ it was in the possession of Rajah of Oojen. For three hundred years it passed from father to son and kingdom to kingdom. It has been a trophy of war, and a guarantee of peace between nations. It has adorned the heads and sceptres of the great; it has been coveted by civilized and uncivilized nations

In the fourteenth century it was in the possession of Alladin who placed it among the treasures of Delhi. It was afterward won by a prince on a battle-field, was taken from him by his conqueror, Nadir Shah, and is now in England, and brilliantly blazes among other bright jewels of the Queen.

There is a universal desire among men to possess diamonds; they are displayed with the greatest pride and pleasure; great sums of money have been spent to preserve and beautify them. The diamond is the purest of all mineral substances.

But with all its purity and beauty and value, it falls far below a precious stone spoken of in the Word of God. It is called "A White Stone," "A Precious Stone," "A Tried Stone" "A Living Stone." Not only kings, but ordinary men, and women, and children have possessed it; and they have cried out, with glowing hearts, "Christ is to me a mountain of light."

Riches may buy rich and pure gems, but no money can buy this precious stone. Diamonds have adorned kings, and sceptres, and swords, and royal robes; this "Stone" enriches not only kings and sceptres, and royal robes, but it adorns all conditions of life. Purity, and beauty and worth, are enstamped upon all who possess it.

FREE MASONRY CONTRARY TO THE CHRISTIAN RELIGION.

BY SPECTATOR.

9. The Christian religion reqoires us to abstain from taking human life. The Divine command is, "Thou shalt not kill." Ex. xx: 13. "Whoso sheddeth blood by man shall his blood be shed." Gen. ix: 6. "He that killeth a man shall surely be put to death." Lev. xxiv: 17. These scriptures need no comment.

Freemasons, on the contrary, are governed by laws that require the taking of human life. This is universally confessed by all seceding Masons. In the initiation of a candidate as an Elected Knight of Nine, he goes through the form of murdering a traitor, and swears, "I will revenge the assination of our worthy Master, Hiram Abiff, not only on the murderers, but also on all who may betray the secrets of this degree," etc. In the degree of the Knights Adepts of the Eagle and Sun, there is an exposition of Masonic emblems. One of these emblems is that of a man peeping, of which the exposition is this: "The man peeping, and who was discovered, and seized, and conducted to death, is an emblem of those who come to be initiated into our secret mysteries through a motive of curiosity, and if so indiscreet as to divulge their obligations, we are bound to cause their death, and take vengeance on the treason by the destruction of the traitor." . . . . In pursuance of these diabolical principles many worthy men have been assassinated; among whom were the author of a book called "Three Distinct Knocks;" and the author of a book called "Jachin and Boaz," in England; William Miller, of Belfast, Ireland, for saying Jachin and Boaz was a true book; Smith, of Vermont, who republished Jachin and Boaz; Wm. Morgan, of Batavia, N. Y., who disclosed the first three degrees of Masonry; Murdock, of Rensellearville, N. Y., who was supposed to have revealed something of Masonry; and one Forgie, an Irishman, in a lodge in Canada; and certainly not less than three thousand loyal citizens in the rebel States since the close of the war. How many more have been hurried into eternity by Masonic executions will remain unknown until the day of judgment.

10. The Christian religion teaches us that there is no other way to God the Father, but Jesus Christ. "Jesus saith unto him, I am the way and the truth and the life; no man cometh unto the Father, but by me." John xiv: 6. The apostle Peter, in preaching Christ, said, "There is none other name under heaven, given among men, whereby we must be saved. Acts iv: 12.

Freemasons, on the contrary, approach God as the Great Architect of the universe, without the intervention of any mediator whatever. In this they err in two respects. First, they offer an indignity to God bordering on blasphemy by applying the term architect, which was never done by any of the inspired writers, and which is the official name of a man who lays down plans and directs workmen. Second, by approaching God without a mediator. But this is not all; they teach that all good Masons who will not disclose the secrets of the lodge will at last arrive at the Grand Lodge above, where God sits as Grand Master. God never did and never will hear the prayer of any man who rejects and despises the meditation of Christ; consequently, Freemasons are under a delusion about the "Grand Lodge" above. It is seriously to be feared that they are in the broad road to the grand lodge below, outside the gates of the new Jerusalem.

11. The Christian religion teaches us to pray to God the Father in the name of Christ. Our blessed Savior while instructing his disciples, said, "Ye have not chosen me, but I have chosen you, that ye should go and bring forth fruit, and that your fruit should remain; that whatsoever ye shall ask of the Father in my name, he may give it you." John xv: 16. Again, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, whatsoever ye shall ask the Father in my name, he will give it you." John xvi: 23. In conformity with this teaching, all Christian churches, so far as my knowledge extends, pray to God the Father, in the name of Christ.

Freemasons, on the contrary, carefully exclude Christ from all their prayers and ceremonies. In the Royal Arch degree the "High Priest" while reading a portion of Scripture 2 Thess. iii: 6–18, carefully omits the name of our blessed Savior. The name of Christ is cautiously omitted in the Masonic prayers in the secrecy of the lodge-room, and in their public assemblies. Should this be doubted or denied the reader is referred to the Grand Lodge of the State of Georgia for the year 1866, page 248, where it will be seen to be a regulation of the lodge that no Mason shall offend a Jew, Mohammedan or deist by praying to God in the name of Christ. The Master Mason, on his naked knees, with his two hands on the Holy Bible, square and compass, says: "Furthermore do I promise and swear that I will support the constitution of the Grand Lodge of this State, and conform to all the by-laws, rules and regulations of this or any other lodge of which I may at any time hereafter become a member." One of the rules is not to pray to God in the name of Christ. The Master Mason swears to conform to all the rules; consequently the minister of the Gospel who is a Mason has either renounced Christ as a Mediator with God, or he is perjured. He may take which horn of the dilemma he pleases.

To be Continued.

A Superfluous Life.

"I am quite sure of it," said the plaintive voice; "there never was any place for me in the world; there is none waiting for me. I was put here just to suffer—and I do. My life is all a mistake."

The speaker was a pretty and stylish young lady, seated in an easy chair, intent on a piece of worsted work. I knew to an extent her words were sincere; she was unhappy in the present, faithless for the future, and at twenty-five existence may be very bitter as well as very sweet.

The "golden mean" between affluence and want proved an irritating point in her lot. Poverty would have roused latent energies; greater wealth indulged wider tastes. As it was, I never met a more discontented person. Aside from the morbid sentiment which it was a luxury to indulge, I pitied sadly that undisciplined and strong nature pleading its own hungry need. The purposeless life cries out against itself did the Creator bid it take root on earth for naught?

There was only one woman speaking for that increasing number to whom one circumstance or another denies the destiny most natural of marriage—one woman, uttering the doubt, the fear, the discouragement which beset all who fail of a mission in the world. There is no misery so abject as that of forced inaction—no sweeter peace than that which follows real work. The doctrine is not new or original, but it might be reiterated daily and hourly while these mourners go about the streets, demanding why they were born, bewailing a fact never to be blotted out. True, it is hard for a girl or woman lacking special gift and bent of fancy to coax a choice. Yet even that may be done; and any service to which the best of one's force is given yields fair reward.

A superfluous life! Nay, Christ could have died for such. His broad ministry never included a single soul doomed "just to suffer," not also to strive, and toil, and overcome! The world is crowded full, but it has space for crime, and ignorance, and pain unspeakable; be sure it will also contain the helpful hands, the ready feet, the loving hearts, that ask only to comfort as he comforted.—Congregationalist.

PETTY ANNOYANCES

Suppose there should be a fellow so dexterous that, walking along the street, and seeing an old gentleman passing by, he could give him a nip in a manner so sly that no one could know how it was done; and suppose he should rejoice to see the old gentleman jump. Suppose there was a little boy so cunning that, stooping, he could hit the man so that he should not know who hit him, and he should laugh to see the man rise up and look around in amazement to see where the blow came from. Suppose one should throw a torpedo under a man's feet so deftly as not to be discovered in the act, and should enjoy seeing the man jump and look in vain to see who it was that threw it. Suppose there should be one who, for his own pleasure, everywhere he went, gave some annoyance to every one that passed by him, in ways so artful as not to be detected. Would you say that he was an expert fellow? Would you call him a perfect genius? If you should see a person sitting on a corner of a seat, and somehow making uncomfortable everybody who went by, and he should laugh, and for a half an hour tell you how he had fixed this man, and how he had played a trick on the man, would you not feel that there was not another such miscreant in society? And yet persons do the same thing mentally. They see all the little obliquities that there are in men, and use them as a means of annoying them. They see things which they ought not to see. There are many things in life which you ought to be ashamed to see, and which, if you do see them, you ought to pretend not to see. There is an amiable deception which I think will be forgiven. Do you suppose that at table you ought to see all things that happen? If a lady takes a swallow of tea before it is quite cool, ought you to know it? Never. A thousand little things are happening in life which a proper delicacy would lead you to act as if you did not see.—Beecher

HE GIVETH HIS BELOVED SLEEP

Why should we mourn for the sainted dead? For those loved ones of ours who have left this weary earth with all its cares and sorrows, and who have crossed the mystic Jordan of death, and are clothed in pure white garments? They now walk with the justified in that beautiful city whose builder and maker is God. Would we for one short moment of time, if we could, recall them to this sin-stricken world? O, no, we would not wish them here again to toil and suffer, but yet when we visit the graves of those who were dear to us by kindred ties, we feel a great pain at heart, knowing that we shall never hear the sweet music of their gentle voices. Their loving hearts are still, and the pale, cold hands are at rest.

We feel a strong agony of soul as we bend over the sleeping dust; but even while we mourn as though we would not be comforted, there comes, as it were, an angel to our sad and bleeding hearts saying, "He giveth his beloved sleep."

The blessed words come like healing balm to our wounded hearts, "He giveth his beloved sleep." The beloved of God! Their mission is fulfilled, and now they rest from all their labors. Although the clay casket may rest under the sod of the valley, yet the pure spirit basks in the smiles of the dear Savior's countenance, and drinks deeply of the water of the river of life. We know that it is well with the dead who die in the Lord, for he giveth his beloved sleep.

Is not their death a gain to those Whose life to God was given?
Gladly to earth their eyes they close
To open them in heaven.
—Church Advocate.

NOURISHMENT FOR THE NEW LIFE.

It is well, my child, to begin every day with God and His word. It is a sure sign of spiritual life and health. Let your first conscious moments be spent in his holy presence, and your first desires be expressed to him. Start on your daily course from the throne of grace; in the evening lose it there; yet never leave that sanctuary all day long.

"Child-like, attend what thou wilt say,
Go forth and do while 'tis day,
Yet never leave my sweet retreat."

We are only safe when trusting in him, and walking in the light of his countenance. Seek, by God's grace to be kept in the place of simple dependence on himself.

There is deep reality in communion with God, through the medium of his word, by the power of the Holy Spirit. "How sweet," says the Psalmest, "are thy words unto my taste! yea, sweeter than honey to my mouth!"

When our spiritual appetite is good, we are sure to grow. We need spiritual as well as natural food every morning, but we are more in danger of forgetting the former than the latter. Hence the importance of the exhortation, "as new born babes, desire the sincere (pure unmixed) milk of the word, that we may grow thereby."—Show that you heartily desire it; that it is sweet and pleasant to your taste; that you are nourished by it; that you are satisfied with it; and that you return to it with increasing delight.

Oh! that all the babes in God's family and all the lambs in Christ's flock thus relished their divine food. O to cleave to God's word for everything past, present and future! "Thy testimonies have I taken as my heritage forever."

May the Lord Himself be richly with you, my child, filling your heart with heavenly food and spiritual gladness, and causing you to sing for joy.—(Things New and Old.)

Youth's Department.

ALL FOR ONE.

"If you do that again, I'll kill you!"

The school-master overheard this among his boys one day in their playground at recess. He at once called them all in. The girls went out, and while the girls went out, and while the boys warmed themselves a moment at the stove, for it was winter, he had a talk with them. They were quite willing to hear what he had to say; for they had been called back into school almost as soon as they got out of doors that day.

"Boys," said the school-master, "what was that dreadful thing I heard just now from some of you when you were out?"

"Why, I don't know anything!" said one. "Nor I,"—"Nor I,"—said another and another with the utmost surprise.

"But I heard something very dreadful," said the school-master.

The boys looked as if they would like to know what.

"I heard a boy threaten to commit murder," continued the school-master gravely.

The boys looked shocked, but incredulous.

"Yes," said the school-master, "I heard one boy say—I don't know what boy it was, and I don't want to know—but I heard him say, 'If you do that again, I'll kill you!'"

The boys all laughed and looked greatly relieved. They thought their teacher had made a grand mistake in not knowing how to take boy's talk for what it meant.

"Why, Mr. ——," they all said together, "we don't mean anything when we say that. It's just talk."

"Not mean anything when you threaten to kill each other! Why, boys, it sounded horrible."

"Why, we were just in fun."

"In fun! How could I tell that? I thought I ought to call you right in, when I heard that. And, boys," the teacher said, "if I hear any such thing said ever again, I shall do the same, I shall call you all in. How can I know that it is in fun?"

The boys were bright-witted little fellows, and they knew well enough what the teacher meant. They were used to hear him say things for them to guess out for themselves. They thought now that the laugh was on themselves, and not on the teacher, for he understood them better than they did him when he first began to speak. But one of them said:

"Why call us all in, Mr. ——? Why not just call in the boy that says the bad thing?"

"That would seem fairer, wouldn't it?" said the teacher.

They all agreed that it would.

"But I shall not do in that way, boys, and I will tell you why. In the first place, you know, I could not always tell what boy it was, and I would rather not ask you to tell. In the second place, you might sometimes try to get one of your playmates provoked on purpose to have him called in for saying something in a passion that he ought not to say. But now, if I call you all in whenever any of you uses wrong words, then you will have an interest to keep each other from using wrong words I want you to learn that we, all of us in this world are better off for every one's doing what is right."

The boys were pretty well satisfied with the teacher's reasons. After that the teacher never once had occasion to call the boys in before their recess was done. But he did overhear them saying to one another:

"There, now, don't talk like that, or the teacher will call us in!"

Accuracy.

Boys, listen to what President Tuttle says: I saw a young man once in the office of a Western railway superintendant. He was occupying a position that four hundred boys in that city would have wished to get. It was honorable and "it paid well," besides being in the line of promotion. How did he get it? Not by having a rich father, for he was the son of a laborer. The secret was his beautiful accuracy. He began as an errand boy, and did his work accurately. His leisure time he used in perfecting his writing and arithmetic. After a while he learned to telegraph. At each step his employer commended his accuracy, and relied on what he did, because he was sure it was just right.

And it is thus with every occupation. The accurate boy is the favorite one. Those who employ men do not wish to be on the constant lookout, as though they were rogues or fools. If a carpenter must stand at his journeyman's elbow to be sure his work is right, or if a cashier must run over a book-keeper's columns, he might as well do the work himself as to employ another to do the work in that way, and it is very certain that the employer will get rid of such an inaccurate workman as soon as he can.

"PROMISE ME NOT TO SWEAR"

One day a gentleman observed a group of boys, bent on play, strongly urging another boy to join them. He was struck with a very decided "No" which the boy gave to their entreaties. Anxious to see the result he stepped into an entry, where he could hear and see, and not be much observed. "That boy has a will to resist the whole hand of them," he said to himself.—A last effort was made to induce him to come with them. "Now James, will you not come? you are such a good player."—"Yes," he replied; "but on one condition. Give me your hands that you will not swear, and I will go." They did so, and with joy all ran off to play. We are sure the game lost none of its interest for want of the swearing. Noble boy! not ashamed to show that he was on the Lord's side, even in the face of ungodly playfellows.—Youth's Temperance Banner.

HOME FRIENDSHIP

Our best friends are at home. Those who love us best, who would do most for us, who are most interested in our lives, and would weep the most bitter tears were we to die, dwell under our own roof, eat at our own table, and sleep under the shadow of our own protection. If they are our best friends, we should be theirs, and if we are their friends, we should show it. Concealed friendship does not do us much good.

If a mine of gold is on our farm, and we know it not, we are much better off for it. Many people have a strange way of showing their friendship to the members of their own home circle. They are exacting, surly, fretful and hateful in many ways; and all this to the friends they really love. They mean no harm; they mean not to break the corn of friendship, or its sweet symphonies; but some how forget that home friendship should be treated more delicately and kindly than any other, because it is better, and more immediately effects our happiness. It should be one of the constant objects for which we should live, to respect and improve, deepen and strengthen the home friendship. In this we live. It is the fountain of our sweetest pleasure, our best life. Into this fountain no bitter drugs, no poisonous drops should be put. We should keep it clear and pure.—Christian Instructor.

When we come to God for counsel we must be willing to put our whole case in his hands; take the up-hill step instead of the smooth one, should he point to it.

Circumstances form the character; but like petrifying matters, they harden while they form.

CORRESPONDENCE

A Reporter is wanted from every Church in the brotherhood to send us Church news, Obituaries, Announcements or anything that will be of general interest. To insure insertion, the writers name must accompany each communication. Our invitation is not personal but general—please respond to our call.

Dear Bros. Brumbaugh: —I shall try to comply with your request which was received last Saturday, and give you a report of our Lovefeast, &c. As was previously stated in the PILGRIM, the time appointed for our Lovefeast was Thursday and Friday, Sept. 19 and 20th. On Wednesday eve. previous we had the extreme pleasure of having Bro H. R. Holsinger address us at the schoolhouse at Eldorado, from 1 John, 3: 1, "Behold what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us," &c. He explained the great love the parents should have for their children, comparing this love to the All-abounding, never ending love the Great Father has for those who daily love and serve Him. By nature the children resemble the parents, so God has thus instilled in us a resemblance of Him. Let us be very careful that we do not by a profligate life lose this resemblance we have of our Heavenly Father. We can truly say that we were deeply impressed and well pleased with the sermon. Had also the pleasure of meeting sister H. and Lottie, and on this journey had for the first time a visit from the Companion family. On Thursday 2 P. M. the brethren and sisters met in Church council and disposed of church matters which could not be disposed of at our last church meeting. Following this, Bro. Brice Sell was called to the ministry, Bro. David S. chosen deacon, and Bro. Jas. S. ordained. What a lovely sight for that mother to behold her three sons and daughters who have taken such a great charge upon them. We trust they may prove faithful, especially the sisters, and greatly encourage their husbands of whom much is expected and required, and may they all with us, receive the crown of glory and a place at God's right hand. There were present of God's laboring brethren, H. R. Holsinger, L. Furry of New Enterprise, John Holsinger Alum Bank, Thomas Maddocks of Clover Creek, John Replogle of ———S. Cox, G. Myers, and those previously mentioned. The subject of self examination was treated upon by several of the brethren. Evening services. The 27th chapter of Matt. was read treating upon the sufferings and death of Christ, by H. R. Holsinger, and spoken upon by several of the brethren. Part of the 13th chapter of John was read by Bro. John Holsinger, and explained while the brethren and sisters were engaged in fully obeying the command of Feet-washing, denounced non-essential by many professing godliness. We wish they might all see as we do upon this all-important subject. The very important ordinances, viz. Lord's Supper, Feet-washing, Holy Communion and the Kiss of Charity were celebrated by a goodly number of God's people.

There were also present many from other branches of the church. I trust we have all renewed our covenant with God, from this time henceforward to live nearer the cross and with a brighter hope of Heaven. We can never expect to all meet again around the same table here below, for there were some with us at our last Lovefeast, not one year ago, but where are they now? Gone to reap the reward of their labors here. Little did we think that one dear Bro., who so touchingly addressed us at that time, should so soon be called to dwell in that world invisible to us. But we must all sooner or later pass through the same ordeal.

Friday, 9 A. M. the congregation again assembled for divine worship. 1 John, 8: 1,2,3 was taken for the text, L. Furry introducing, followed by brethren Cox, Maddocks, Replogle and H. R. Holsinger. Our feelings were deeply touched when the time of separation was spoken of, for we truly had a rich feast, and how much we enjoyed the sociability of the dear brethren and sisters from a distance as well as those of our own little band. Those of our loved ones, who pass from time to eternity, forcibly remind us of the question, will I be next to leave this world. Let us all be prepared for that eventful change when Christ shall call His children home to dwell with Him in that glorious land, the garden of Eden. Your sister in the hope of a glorious immortality.

E. R. STIFFLER.

FAITHFUL UNTIL DEATH.

Sister Francis Ciser, wife of Bro. G. M. Ciser is on earth no more. She fell asleep in Jesus on the evening of the 27th of September a victim of Consumption of the bronchia, having been afflicted for about three years Those who knew her best respected and loved her most. I being one of those who have had an acquaintance of long standing and knowing her worth feel called upon to deeply sympathize with our brother bereft, and to offer this humble tribute to her memory. About 18 years ago she was dedicated in my presence to the service of God. Living at a distance from the church, only a few brethren and no sister present, came boldly forward amidst fashionable circles, summitted to the bath of regeneration. Though she lived over twenty miles distant, in the pursuit of our labors, it was our lot frequently to share the hospitalities of sister Francis and the kind family. She was ever ready to minister to the necessities of the Brethren with that marked cheerfulness which indicates the sincerity of her motives, and the largeness of soul peculiar to genuine Christianity, always ready to encourage and assist in making arrangements for the preaching of the Gospel. She was the second wife, and step-mother of two children and becoming in time the mother of a number of children, often expressed herself in my presence that she knew no difference in affection and concern between her own and her step-children, which so endeared her to the latter that although they have arrived to manhood their affection for her as a mother, was unmistakably manifested by the flowing tears, and deep sobs indulged in during the funeral and burial services. About ten days before her death she called for the Elders to administer the annointing which she seemed to enjoy much. We remained with her a considerable time, conversed a good deal with her about approaching death, and her hopes and prospects, and such composure and even cheerfulness I scarcely ever witnessed. She spoke of death with as much cheerfulness as if she was going to take a trip of pleasure, and in speaking of her children, and her infant child twenty months old, said she had given them to the Lord and He would provide for them. We took our leave from her to meet no more on earth, and when returning to attend the burying, we were informed that in the hour of her death she requested the family to engage in devotion which was conducted by one of her step-sons and sorrowing husband. The burial was attended by the people en-mass of the almost entire community, thus exhibiting the respect in which she was held by all who knew her. May her noble example have a controlling effect upon her entire family and acequaintances. "Oh may I die the death of the righteous and may my last end be like theirs." The occasion improved by Bro. J. Grabill and the writer, from 1 Cor. 15: 26, and 2 Cor. 5: 1.

B. F. MOOMAW.

Beloved brethren: —I have unduly delayed writing you in regard to our feast. Our meeting is past, and a very pleasant and satisfactory one it truly was. The congregation was large, but good order and good attention was paid to the word preached. The preaching was done by brethren Solomon Garber and Jacob Miller of Rockingham Co., Va., E. Slifer of Maryland, George, and E. Shaver of Shenadoah, and J. Huffman from Page Co., Va. We had preaching on Friday eve. by Garber and Miller. On Saturday 10 A. M. the Lovefesat exercises commenced. The preaching was by E. Slifer and J. Miller, by whom the truth was set forth as it is in Christ Jesus, with such power that deep impressions were made on the minds of many of the hearers, and some determined that they would go with us. On Saturday one was reclaimed. On Sunday morning brother D. Baker was ordained to the office of bishop. The exercises were opened at 9 o'clock, and S. Garber and J. Miller spoke to a very large congregation and it was so well received that some have told me since that they enjoyed the meeting better than any they ever attended, which makes me think that the good spirit of the Lord was with us.

A few days previous to our meeting, we had an addition by baptism, and now since the much good preaching we had, we hope many may be deeply impressed and feel the need of a crucified Savior, and no longer procrastinate their salvation. Brethren and sisters, pray for us and all such as need help. As our ministry is weak, we ask the brethren to make us all the visits they can and help us break the tide.

Yours in love.

G. S. RISRIN.

Dear Pilgrim: —I will write some news for your columns. We have had some very dry spells of weather this Summer, and at times very seasonable. The wheat crop was good, oats were also good, corn tolerable.

Our church at Limestone has met with heavy loss during the past Spring and Summer by losing some of its foremost members. We hope our loss is their eternal gain. Their seats are now vacant but hope that others will fill their places, as we had 10 additions to the church during the Summer, but quite recently about a dozen members started for the far West, where they expect to locate.

HENRY M. SHERFY.

Dear Pilgrim: —It may be interesting to you to hear from our church and neighborhood. First, health is very good, and the church seems to be prospering and all seems to be peace and happiness. Of course we have some little difference of opinion, but hope that all will become of the same mind, that we can go hand in hand, onward and upward to perfection in the sight of our God, to whom be praise and honor through all ages, world without end.

JAMES A. RILEY.

DIED.

MILLER.—September 19th '72, at his residence, near the Beaver Creek Meeting-house Rockingham Co., Va., the well known Elder Martin Miller, aged 72 years, 2 mos. and 4 days.

He leaves a companion, and a large connection of friends and relatives to mourn their loss, yet they mourn not as those who have no hope. He bore his affliction with patience and Christian fortitude. He has been unable to speak in public for some time, now he is dead yet he speaks. The next day his remains were taken to the Meeting-house where a large congregation of people had gathered together and were addressed by Bro. Levi Garber and others, from 2 Tim. 4: 6.

BOWMAN.—The same day at her residence, in the same Co., near Harrisonburg, sister Rebecca Bowman, consort of Bro. John Bowman, aged 68 years, 5 mos., and 2 days.

She leaves an aged husband, and children, and a large connection of friends and relatives to mourn their loss. She left an example worthy of imitation. Funeral services improved by Benjamin Miller and others from John 5: 25.

S. N. WINE.

EDENS.—In Kanawha Co., W. Va., sister M. Amanda Edens, aged 40 years.

She was formerly of Franklin Co, Va., and her name before she was last married, was Smith. She left an infant 8 months old. She died fully rejoicing in a Savior's love and hope of a blessed immortality. Funeral services by the writer to a large concourse of people.

ROACH.—In Fayette Co., W. Va., May 25th, Samuel W., son of Bro. Isaac and Delilah Roach, aged 4 years and 8 months.

It was a loving and dear son, but God has called it to be a bright shining angel in Heaven. Funeral preached by the writer.

DAVIS.—In Fayette Co., W. Va, December 1st 1871, sister Harriet Davis, (late Smith) aged 49 years.

She died with a good hope of eternal life. Funeral services by the writer. J. S. FLORY.

STIFFLER.—Fell asleep in Jesus, Thursday eve., August 15th, '72, in Upper Alton, Ill., dear little Edward Leland, youngets child of Prof. Jas. M., and Jennie M. Stiffler, aged one year, 7 mos. and 18 days.

Dear parents, let us not grieve or murmur for he is at rest. He is truly a great loss to us here, but is a bright jewel gained in Heaven He was too pure, too lovely for this lower world. On Friday his lifeless body was consigned to the tomb in Upper Alton, Ill., amid a large concourse of friends, to await the calling forth of the saints on the great resurrection morn.

E. R. STIFFLER.

[Part of remarks crowded out.]

BRUBAKER.—In the Otter Creek Church, Macoupin Co., Ill., Henry L. Brubaker, aged 33 years.

He leaves a kind companion and four children with many friends to mourn his departure. He was a consistent member of the church, and by his Godly walk let a light so shine which proves he sought a home in Heaven. The subject of this notice came to his end as follows: he was working in a well when in lowering the box it came loose from the rope falling and striking him on the head, this was about 10 o'clock A. M., he lived until 5 o'clock P. M. How unexpected, how soon he was taken away. On the 6th his remains were conveyed to their last resting place, and the occasion improved by the brethren from John 11:28 latter part. This is another warning to us all to also be ready.

D. R. C. NEAD.

HOOVER.—In Enterprise, Bedford Co., Pa., October 4th '72, Martin, infant son of Bro. Jonathan and sister Mary Hoover deceased, aged 6 months and 5 days. Occasion improved by the brethren, from 1 Peter, 1 chapter, latter part.

BURGET.—Fell asleep in Jesus, October 3d, '72, in the Woodcock Valley Church, Bedford Co., Pa., sister Mary, wife of brother Samuel H. Burget, son of John Burget dece'd, aged 31 years, 3 mos. and 8 days. Occasion improved by the brethren from Rev. 14:12 13, to a large audience.

On March 26th, 1863, Bro. Samuel led Mary, then (Weaverling) to the Hymenial altar, the writer officiating. She soon after became a member of the Church. They lived happily together over 9 years, till severed by the icy hand of death, leaving a sad husband and four small children to mourn their loss. She was a consistent member, always cheerful even in adversity. It appears that she had a presentiment of her departure, as she desired the 611th hymn to be sung at her funeral while yet in health. She died of confinement fever on the 18th day, fully resigned to her lot, without manifesting any worldly care whatever. She was annointed with oil in the name of the Lord.

So fades the lovely blooming flower,
That spritely blossomed for an hour;
Whose gentle deeds her husband cheered
And kind monitions children reared.

Sweet Mary, thou hast gone to rest,
For Jesus called thee to the blest;
May this my consolation be,
Soon, soon in bliss to meet with thee.

Though sorrow stricken I do feel,
Your absence yet the Lord will heal;
Those wounds thy parting caused my soul,
Lord I do yield to thy control.

Lord grant me grace to do thy will,
My life on earth so to fulfill;
That I may meet my loving wife,
In Heaven, the glorious paradise.

(Visitor, please copy.)

LEONARD FUARY.

BRUMBAUGH.—In the Oak Haw Branch, Piatt Co., Ill., October 3d '72, our beloved brother John W. Brumbaugh, aged 52 years, 8 months and 25 days.

He leaves a widow and 7 children and a large number of friends to mourn their loss, but we hope our loss is his great gain. In the church he served in the office of deacon. He was a man who was well respected in the vicinity where he was known. His remains were followed to their last resting place by a large concourse of people. Funeral services by the brethren, from the 103 Psalm, and 14 to 18th verses.

D. D. SHIVELY.

MARRIED.

BRUMBAUGH—IMLER.—Oct. 5th, 1872 by the undersigned, Mr. John F. Brumbaugh to Miss Maggie Imler, both of S. Woodbury, Bedford Co., Pa.

LEONARD FUARY.

The Weekly Pilgrim.

JAMES OREEK, PA., Oct. 15th, 1872

A VISIT.

On last Friday morning, October 4th, we had the pleasure of a visit from H. R. Holsinger, his wife and daughter of the Companion office. Such visits should be more frequent, and hope they will, as we believe they would have a salutary effect upon the editorial character of our periodicals. We hope the time has arrived that we can look upon each other, not as competitors, but co-laborers in the great work of reforming and Christianizing the world.

Bro. Holsinger preached for us on Friday eve. and Saturday A. M., with much acceptance, and we trust, benefit. On Saturday P. M., he started for Tyrone, the birth place of the Companion,—hope he may have a happy association with kindred spirits and enjoy the familiar faces which will be presented.

THE GOSPEL VISITOR.—This very excel'ent magazine of October is on our table. In it we read a very interesting account, by Eld. Quinter, of the labors of the Committee appointed by the last A. M. to visit some of the churches of Northern Ind. and the Bloomingdale Church, Mich. The report is favorable and it should be a matter of general rejoicing that so much success attended the mission.

Brethren Quintes, D. P. Saylor, J. Wise and C. Long constituted the committee. B. F. Moomaw, H. D. Davy and D. Brower having failed to attend. Bro. Quinter expresses himself quite hopeful as to the result of their labors, from the fact that their decisions, in every case, were almost unanimously received by the churches visited. "Blessed are the peacemakers for they shall see God."

The following we clip from the New York Observer. That there is truth about it must be admitted, yet it does not speak very well for a christian government to have a set of law makers so immoral and unstable as to mar and pervert the character of the few Christians that may unfortunately be thrown among them.

A sect of Christians in Pennsylvani ealled "Dunkards," at ther late annual meeting, resolved that a "brother who suffers himself to be elected to the legislative assembly as a representative of the people, and to serve in it, cannot be retained as a member of the Church." Rather a severe rule, but perhaps the effect of such service upon the character of the members, has made the rule necessary. Verily, if any man prays, "Lead us not into temptation," he must keep his eyes about him if he goes to the Legislature.

ALL FOR OOOD.—So it is said and we believe the meek will realize it. When it became a matter of prudence for us to get our "Ministerial list" by our own exertion we thought it would prove a considerable disadvantage, but all is well that ends well, and so it was with this. By so doing we got a large number of names that we would not have otherwise received, and in the return of the circulars, we were made the recipients of quite a nice number of new subscribers.

NEW SECT.—A new religious sect, known as the "Amanians" and numbering about 1,500, has sprung up in Iowa. This new community is composed entirely of Germans. They have purchased about 30,000 acres of land of the Rock Island Railroad, and have built several mills and manufactories. All property is held in common, and the affairs of the society managed by fifteen "fathers." Each person is allowed to draw a certain amount from the co-operative stores yearly, and no member is given any wages or any money for personal expenses. Every day religious services are held. We do not learn what the theological belief of the sect is. Marriage is not forbidden but it is not encouraged; and the community is not likely, therefore, to perpetuate itself.

PERSONAL.

W. ARNOLD.—The tracts are sent. There is nothing back. Our account is squared.

WM. B. SELL.—That is right. We have given credit to the names given.

D. R. C. NEAD.—All right. Don't need to send it again.

QUERIES.—A number of queries will not appear this week for want of time to give them proper attention.

PLEASE NOTICE.—On account of different arrangements, all PILGRIMS will stop at the expiation of the time subscribed for.

JOHN HARSHBERGER.—The Vindicator containing the article referred to has been way laid and we cannot find it. If you send us the No. containing it, we will gladly comply with your request.

THIS MORNING, Oct. 10th, we take our leave of the editorial chair for a season, with the intention of attending a number of Lovefeasts. We expect our absence will the better prepare us for duty when we return.

ELD JOHN FORNEY, of Falls City, Neb., informs us that they have formed a new Church District, called the Poney Creek Church, having for its elder Jonathan Lichty and Daniel Fry and W. H. H. Sawyer assistant ministers.

J. H. MOORE. — Your work on Trine Immersion, and advertisement, was received this morning, but too late for insertion this week. Will appear next week. Thank you, dear brother, for the interest you manifest in behalf of the PILGRIM. We think your proposition a good one.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS.

JACOB H. FISHEL'S is changed from Batavia, Iowa to Arispie, Pottawattamie, Co., Kansas. Bro. Fishel wishes to know if there are any other brethren in the above county. If there are, he will give them a visit if they will give him their address. They live in Rock Creek township and are six in number.

AN IRISH TROUBLE.

The Potato Failure in Ireland.

In the late autumn, just a quarter of a century ago, there appeared in the London Times a letter which served at once to awaken the minds of the British public to an awful impending calamity. The communication alluded to came from the late Duke of Portland, who had, all his life, given the greatest attention to agriculture, and spoke with authority on all points connected with that important science.

His letter had been addressed to the Prime Minister, and was sent by that officer to the leading journal. It referred to the failure of the Irish potato crop, and enclosed a cheque for five thousand dollars, as a first installment of a subscription which the writer said would inevitably shortly be called for to meet a famine such as the British Islands had never yet experienced. How true a prophet the Duke proved is now a matter of history, and no one who experienced, in even the slightest degree, the life in Ireland from the autumn of 1846 to that of 1848 is ever likely to forget the horror of that heartrending period.

There seems too much reason to fear that a repetition of it in some degree is at hand. There appears to be no doubt that the potato crop, both in in England and Ireland, is this year a failure. The Prime Minister has once more come forward as with a warning voice to the coming calamity; the director of the Botanical gardens at Kew has, at his request, written to give the widest circulation to a plan for utilizing the diseased tubers, and beneath his receipt appears a letter relative to the Irish crop, in which the writer says:

"Private letters from different parts give the most discouraging accounts of the anticipated failure of this most important article of food. In the large parishes of Rathvilly, Baltinglass, Hacketstown and the neighboring country, the poor farmers are already seriously affected, and know not what to do. As for the cottagers and farm laborers, they foresee a terrible winter and spring. In these same districts last year the potato crop was scanty enough; this year the returns are nil."

There is, we believe, no cause to fear that the calamity will approach the proportions which it assumed a quarter of a century ago. The state of Ireland is, happily, widely different. A pauper gentry no longer paralyzes the soil, nor are the people destitute of resources to the same extent. Still, the circumstances are very serious, and all the more so when the frightful price of the necessaries of life in England, such as coal and meat are taken into account. We would suggest to those Irishmen who are doing well in this country that now is, above all others, a time to hold out a helping hand to their friends at home. Money will be well and wisely spent which assists families to reach the shores of this country, where their work is wanted, and a good days wages for it will not be grudged. The Irish are always generous in helping their friends in the "old country," and we fear there will be heavy demands upon their liberality during the next twelve months.—N. Y. Times.

GOOD BOOKS.

A large number of our patrons are receiving our books as noticed below, as premiums, and express themselves highly pleased with them. Others who are not agents, have enquired whether we keep them for sale. We have now made arrangements with Mr. Wells to furnish any of their publications post paid at publishers prices. Orders for books must be accompanied with the cash, and plain directions for sending them.

Hand-book for Home Improvement: comprising "How to Write," "How to Talk," How to Behave," and "How to do Business," in one vol. 2.25.

How to Live; Saving and Wasting, or Domestic Economy. By Solon Robinson. $1.50.

Life at Home; or, The Family and its Members. Husbands, Wives, Parents, Children, Brothers, Sisters, Employers and Employed, etc. By Rev. William Aikman, D. D. A work which should be found in every family. $1.50. Extra gilt, $2.00.

Man and Woman: Considered in their Relations to each Other and to the World. By Henry C. Pedder. 12mo, Fancy cloth Price $1.00.

Man, in Genesis and in Geology; or, the Biblical Account of Man's Creation, tested by Scientific Theories of his Origin and Antiquity. By Joseph P. Thompson, D. D., LL.D. One vol. 12mo, $1.00.

The Right Word in the Right Place. A New Pocket Dictionary and Reference Book. Embracing Synonyms, Technical Terms, Abbreviations, Foreign Phrases Writing for the Press, Punctuation, Proof-Reading, and other Valuable Information. Cloth, 75cts.

The Emphatic, Diaglott; or The New Testament in Greek and English. Containing the Original Greek Text of the New Testament, with an Interlineary Word for-word English Translation. A Work for Students in Theology, and S. S. Teachers. By Benjamin Wilson. Price, $4.00; extra fine binding, $5.00.

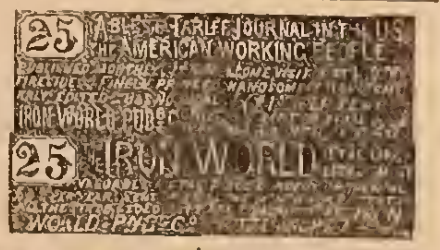
Oratory—Sacred and Secular; or, the Extemporaneous Speaker. Including Chairman's Guide for conducting Public Meetings according to the best Parliamentary forms. By Wm. Pittenger. $1.50.



$5to$20 per day! Agents wanted! All classes of working people, of either sex, young or old, make more money at work for us in their spare moments, or all the time, than at anything else. Particulars free. Address G. Stinson & Co., Portland, Maine.

SALEM COLLEGE.

The Fall term of Salem College will open for the reception of any number of students from all parts on the 4th of September, 1872. Ample accommodations and thorough instruction will be given all students who connect themselves with this College. Good board can be had in good families at $2.50 to $3.00 per week or students can board themselves in clubs at $1.25 to $1.50 per week as numbers have done with the consent of the faculty. Special care will be given students who are far from home.

For Catalogues, Scholarships and full particulars address

SALEM COLLEGE,
July 23, '72. Bonrhon, Ind.

WANTED BOOK Agents FOR THE GREAT INDUSTRIES OF THE UNITED STATES;

AN HISTORICAL SUMMARY OF THE ORIGIN, GROWTH AND PERFECTION OF THE CHIEF INDUSTRIAL ARTS OF THIS COUNTRY.

1300 PAGES and 500 ENGRAVINGS.

Written by 20 Eminent Authors, including

JOHN B. GOUGH, LEON CASE, EDWARD HOWLAND, JOS. B. LYMAN, REV. E. EDWIN HALL, HORACE GREELEY, PHILIP RIPLEY, ALBERT BRISBANE, F. B. PERKINS, ETC.

This work is a complete history of all branches of industry, processes of manufacture, etc., in all ages. It is a complete encyclopedia of arts and manufactures, and is the most entertaining and valuable work of information on subjects of general interest ever offered to the public. It is adapted to the wants of the Merchant, Manufacturer, Mechanic, Farmer, Student and Inventor, and sells to both old and young of all classes. The book is sold by agents, who are making large sales in all parts of the country. It is offered at the low price of $8.50, and is the cheapest book ever sold by subscription. No family should be without a copy. We want agents in every town in the United States, and no agent can fail to do well with this book. Our terms are liberal. We give our agents the exclusive right of territory. One of our agents sold 133 copies in eight days, another sold 368 in two weeks. Our agent in Hartford sold 397 in one week. Specimens of the work sent to agents on receipt of stamp. For circulars and terms to agents address the publishers.

J. B. BURR & HYDE, Hartford, Conn., Chicago, Ill., or Cincinnati, Ohio.

Menno Simon's COMPLETE WORKS.

In English, translated from the original Dutch or Holland, giving the whole of the great Reformers writings on the subject of Baptism. Price in full sheep $4.50; by mail $5.14.

Address, JOHN F. FUNK & BRO.
Elkhart, Ind.

New Hymn Books, English.

TURKEY MOROCCO.

One copy,	postpaid,	$1.00
Per Dozen,		11.25

PLAIN ARABESQE.

One Copy,	post-paid,	75
Per Dozen,	"	8.50

Ger'n & English, Plain Sheep.

One Copy,	post-paid,	$1.00
Per Dozen		11.25
Arabesque Plain,		1.00
Turkey Morocco,		1.25
Single German,	post paid	50
Per Dozen,		5.50

TRACTS.

"ANXIOUS BENCH RELIGION EXAMINED," BY ELDER J. S. FLORY. A SYNOPSIS OF CONTENTS. An address to the reader: The peculiarities that attend this type of religion. The feelings there experienced not imaginary but real. The key that unlocks the wonderful mystery. The causes by which feelings are excited. How the momentary feelings called "Experimental religion" are brought about, and then concludes by giving that form of doctrine as taught by Jesus Christ and recorded by his faithful witnesses.

COUNTERFEIT DETECTER
or
BAPTISM—MUCH IN LITTLE.

This work is now ready for distribution, and the importance of the subject will speak for it a large demand. It is a short treatise on baptism in tract form intended for general distribution, and is set forth in such a plain and logical manner that a wayfaring man though a fool, cannot err therein. Either of the above tracts sent postpaid on the following terms: Two copies, 10 cts, 10 copies 40 cents, 25 copies 70 cents, 50 copies $1.00, 100 copies $1.50.

1870 1872

DR. FAHRNEY'S

Blood Cleanser or Panacea.

A tonic and purge, for Blood Diseases. Great reputation. Many testimonials. Many ministering brethren use and recommend it. Ask or send for the "Health Messenger." Use only the "Panacea" prepared at Chicago, Ills., and by

Dr. P. Fahrney's Brothers & Co.,
Aug. 3-pd. Waynesboro, Franklin Co., Pa.

Trine Immersion.

A discussion on Trine Immersion, by letter between Elder B. F. Moomaw and Dr. J. J. Jackson, to which is annexed a Treatise on the Lord's Supper, and on the necessity, character and evidences of the new birth, also a dialogue on the doctrine of non-resistance, by Elder B. F. Moomaw. Single copy 50 cents.

HUNTINGDON & BROAD TOP RAIL ROAD

Summer Arrangement.

On an after Tuesday, June 4, 1872, Passenger trains will arrive and depart as follows:

Trains from Huntingdon South. — Trains from Bedford moving North.

MAIL. A. M.	ACCOM P. M.	STATIONS.	MAIL. P. M.	ACCOM A. M.
*le*8 20	LE6 00	Huntingdon,	AR5 25	AR9 10
8 28	6 06	Long Siding	5 17	9 0
8 45	6 19	McConnelstown	5 04	8 40
8 51	6 25	Pleasant Grove	4 58	8 39
0 05	6 37	Marklesburg	4 45	8 27
9 20	6 51	Coffee Run	4 33	8 11
9 27	6 58	Rough & Ready	4 20	8 40
9 39	7 10	Cove	4 12	7 5228
9 43	7 15	Fishers Summit	4 08	7 4810
10 03	7 35	Saxton	8 48	le 7 53
10 10	7 53			*ar*7 46
10 27	8 10	Riddlesburg	3 30	6 30
10 34	8 17	Hopewell	3 22	6 12
10 51	8 35	Piper's Run	3 06	6 00
11 10	8 55	Tatesville	2 48	6 56
11 22	9 08	Bloody Run	2 33	6 50
11 26	9 12	Mount Dallas	2 29	5 46
11 32	9 19	Ashcom's Mills	2 22	5 42
11 36	9 23	Lutzville	2 18	5 36
11 40	9 27	Hartley's Mills	2 14	5
[11 40	9 34	Jamesons	2 07	5
*r*11 22	*ar*9 40	Bedford	LE2 00	LE5 30

JOHN M'KILLIPS, Supt

SHOUP'S RUN BRANCH.

LE10 15	LE7 40	Saxton.	AR3 40	AR7 20
10 30	7 55	Coalmont.	3 25	7 05
10 35	8 00	Crawford.	3 20	7 00
AR10 45	AR8 10	Dudley	LE3 10	LE6 50
Bro'd Top City from Dudley 2 miles by stage.

Time of Penna. R. R. Trains at Huntingdon.

EASTWARD.			WESTWARD.
Hb'g Ac.	9 24	A. M	Cin. Ex.	2 10	A. M.
Mail	3 30	P. M	Pc'f Ex.	7 45	"
Cin. Ex.	6 55	"	Mail	5 40	P. M.
Phil. Ex	11 15	"	W. Pass.	11 52	A. M.

THE PILGRIM,

Published by J. B. Brumbaugh, & Co.

Edited by H. B. & Geo. Brumbaugh.

CORRESPONDING EDITORS.

D. P. Sayler, Double Pipe Creek, Md.

Leonard Furry, New Enterprise, Pa.

The Pilgrim is a Christian Periodical, devoted to religion and moral reform. It will advocate in the spirit of love and liberty, the principles of true Christianity, labor for the promotion of peace among the people of God, for the encouragement of the saints and for the conversion of sinners, avoiding those things which tend toward dissension or sectional feelings.

TERMS.

Single copy, one year,	$1.2.
Book paper, " "	1.50
Eleven copies, [eleventh for Agt.]	$12.50

Any number above that at the same rate,

Address.

H. B. BRUMBAUGH.
James Creek,
Huntingdon county Pa.

Merkin Pilgrim.

"REMOVE NOT THE ANCIENT LANDMARKS WHICH OUR FATHERS HAVE SET."

VOL. 3. JAMES CREEK, PENNSYLVANIA, OCTOBER 22, 1872. NO. 43

POETRY.

UNUSED SPICES.

"Now upon the first day of the week, very early in the morning, they came unto the sepulcher, bringing the spices which they had prepared."—Luke xxiv. 1.

What said those women as they bore
Their fragrant gifts away—
The spices that they did not need
That resurrection day?

Did Mary say within her heart,
"Our work hath been in vain;"
Or, counting o'er the spices bought,
Of so much waste complain?

Not so; for though the risen Lord
Their offering did not need
Not unrewarded was the love
That planned the reverent deed.

For, though unused their fragrant store,
Yet well might they rejoice
Since they the first who saw the Lord,
The first who heard his voice.

Sweet story, hast thou not some truth,
For my impatient heart—
Some lesson that shall stay with me,
Its comfort to impart?

Have I not gathered in the past,
In the days that are no more
Of spices sweet and ointment rare,
What seemed a precious store?

A little knowledge I had gained,
A little strength and skill;
I thought to use them for my Lord,
If such would be his will.

Alas! my store unused hath been,
The strength I prized hath gone;
My weary hands hath lost their skill,
And yet my life goes on

In all the busy work of life
I have but scanty share,
And scanty is the service done
For him whose name I bear.

So many plans and hopes have died,
In weariness and pain,
My heart cries out, in sore distress,
"Was all my work in vain?"

Be still, sad heart, thy hopes and plans
Are known to One divine;
He knoweth all thou wouldst have done,
Had greater strength been thine.

My unused spices! Dearest Lord,
They were prepared for thee;
Yet if for them thou hast no need,
Let love my offering be.

ORIGINAL ESSAYS.

CHRIST THE SURE FOUNDATION.

Other foundation can no man lay, than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ.—1 Cor. 3: 11.

The Apostle Paul in addressing his Corinthian brethren wished to impress upon their minds that Christ alone, was the only sure foundation of human hope. He had great difficulty in getting them to see the great propriety of the Christian religion, and to have their minds drawn after Christ. There seemed to be divisions and contentions among them, and also selfish and worldly in their feelings and conduct. He wanted to show the impropriety of their views, for while one saith I am of Paul, and another I am of Apollos, are ye not carnal? But that noted Apostle in the 5th verse of the above named chapter, goes on and reasons with them and says: "Who then is Paul, and who is Apollos but ministers by whom you believed, even as the Lord gave to every man?" He wanted to impress upon their minds that they, the Apostles, were only the servants of Christ, engaged in one common work, and not designed to be the heads of different parties. Their object was to convert men from the error of their way, and draw them to Christ; hence the language of Paul, "Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." The Savior of mankind came into this lower world, disrobed himself of all the glory he had with the Father, for the noble purpose of laying a foundation, that every son and daughter of Adam's posterity could build their hopes of eternal life upon it.

Isaiah the Prophet 28th chapter, says: "Behold I lay in Zion a stone, a tried stone, a sure foundation: he that believeth shall not make haste." Paul also in 2d Timothy 2, says, "Nevertheless the foundation of God standeth sure, having this seal, the Lord knoweth them that are his, and let every man that nameth the name of Christ depart from iniquity." Then we understand that is sure, one that we can rely upon as being safe; and as fallen humanity stood greatly in need of the means of grace, God rightly understood their wants, and supplied them with a soul saving medium. Why not then comply with it? It certainly is just as God in his infinite wisdom and mercy wanted it. When the children of men once became entirely submissive to the will of God, it will be a very easy matter to build upon that sure foundation, but if they are only willing to comply with such a portion of it as will best suit the carnal mind, they will not be serving God, but man. If they begin to pry about it with the intention of taking out some of the material, and put in place of it some of their own, they disregard the counsels of God, and consequently cannot expect to be in a saved condition.

For illustration: When we intend to put up a building we first count the cost. We all are aware that we must have a good foundation, we look around for a good site, and then we begin to dig and secure a solid foundation in order that the building may stand firm and secure. Just so in regard to the spiritual building, we first count the cost, and then dig deep until we find that Solid Rock, upon which we can build our eternal hopes. We can rest assured that our building will stand. In the 6th chapter of Luke, we read, "Whosoever cometh unto me and heareth my sayings, and doeth them, I will shew unto you to whom he is like. He is like a man which built a house, and digged deep, and laid the foundation on a rock: and when the floods arose, the storm beat vehemently on that house and could not shake it; for it was founded upon a rock." Let us further notice what he says: "But he that heareth, and doeth not, is like a man that without a foundation built a house upon the earth, against which the stream did beat vehemently, and immediately it fell; and the ruin of that house was great." Oh the solemn thought of being disappointed at that great and coming day in consequence of not having built upon the Rock, Christ Jesus.

Dear reader would it not be wisdom in us all to examine and see what we are standing on, and if we find that we are on a sandy foundation, stop and consider.. Do you not see the danger? Yes, methinks you do. You imagine you see the storm approaching and the floods arising, and if they overtake you, great will be your ruin. But is there yet hope? Yes, Jesus says, "he that cometh unto me, I will in no wise cast out. In him there is hope. Paul then would say to those who are united to Christ by Faith, "Now therefore ye are no more strangers and foreigners, but fellow citizens with the saints, and of the household of God; and are built upon the foundation of the Apostles and Prophets. Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone, Ephes. 2." Glorious thought! No more surrounded with fear; everything is calm around us though storms and floods of difficulty approach us, and even overtake us, we anticipate no danger, because we are founded on a rock, which it is said that the gates of Hell shall not prevail against; and we are laying up for ourselves in store a good foundation against the time to come, that we may lay hold on eternal life. Oh what a soul-cheering thought. If we do just as the Lord wants us, live according to his divine will, we have the promise of sharing the joys and felicities of Heaven.

Then I would say to the unconverted, seek the Lord while he may be found, call upon him while he is near, and if you call upon him with a contrite heart, he will hear. he is ever ready to extend his pardoning mercy to his most degenerate creatures, upon their faith and repentance toward him, and will restore them into his favor again.

DANIEL BOCK.

Miamisburg, Ohio.

A GOOD practical education, including a good trade, is a better outfit for a youth than a grand estate with the drawback of an empty mind. Many parents have slaved and pinched to leave their children rich. When half the sum thus lavished would have profited them far more had it been devoted to the cultivation of their minds, the enlargement of their capacity to think, observe and work. The one structure that no neighborhood can afford to do without, is the school-house.

AN ESSAY ON THE LORD'S SUPPER. No. 2.

Again, bread and wine cannot be the Lord's Supper from the following testimony: Luke 22d chapter 20th verse, after speaking of the giving of thanks for the bread, in the communion, says, "Likewise, also, the cup after Supper." Could the cup be included, if for argument's sake, we would admit the bread and wine to be the Lord's Supper? Certainly not, when it is so positively said that he took the cup after Supper. No, no, he means after that Supper they partook of, when seated around the table in that upper room. After he had washed his disciples' feet, and in the act of eating made known the traitor Judas Iscariot; that same identical meal he so much desired to eat with his disciples before his sufferings, and in reference to the same saith, "I will not any more eat thereof until it be fulfilled in the Kingdom of God." Paul, 1 Cor. 11: 25, refers to this occasion in almost the same words. "After the same manner he took the cup, when he had supped." German, after Supper. Here it is positively declared that the Savior himself had supped, which precludes the idea without controversy, that he had reference to the morsel of bread which was to represent his broken body. Would it not be absurd to believe that he partook of the emblems of his own broken body? Let sound reason answer that question. Scripture proof, in the affirmative, is out of the question. The bread and wine as emblems of his body broken and his blood shed is called Communion. Paul in 1 Cor. 10: 16, says: "The cup of blessing which we bless, is it not the communion of the blood of Christ?" The bread which we break, is it not the communion of the body of Christ? Koinonia, is the term used for communion, which also means fellowship. From the fact that Supper means a full meal in the evening, and that the Savior eat a meal with the disciples, as the representation of his Church under the gospel dispensation, and that he associates the same with feet-washing and the communion, which consists only in a morsel of bread and a sip of wine; we hold it to be a separate and distinct ordinance to be observed in connection with the other, until the end of the present dispensation.

The last proposition requires me to prove that the apostles observed it soon after the Church of Jesus Christ was fully organized through the assistance, guidance, and influence of the Holy Spirit, shed abroad into the hearts of the apostles. We read Acts 2: 46, "And they, the disciples, continuing daily with one accord in the temple, and breaking bread from house to house, did eat their meal with gladness and singleness of heart. Here it is evident that in addition to the bread broken, they ate a meal. Again, Acts 18: 21, while Paul was visiting the Churches he came to Ephesus, and when they desired him to tarry longer with them, he consented not, "But bade them farewell, saying, I must by all means keep this feast that cometh in Jerusalem." I am aware of the forced construction put upon this passage by our learned commentators, but I care not a straw what they say. Let sound reason with propriety and consistency speak. Yes, they say it was the feast of the Passover, or one of the other annual feasts. Should an apostle, who labored almost day and night to bring the Judaizing christian from the unnecessary observance of the ceremonial law, and who received from the Jews five times forty stripes, less one; thrice beaten with rods, once stoned and left for dead, thrice suffered shipwreck and a night and a day being in the deep, &c, for the very cause of preaching Christ and obeying him, turn round and keep one himself. I say no, emphatically no, common sense, and Christian consistency forbid to entertain such an idea. Jerusalem being the headquarter of the Christians and especially the apostles, he longed to be with them in the celebration of their Lovefeast, or feast of charity. In 1 Cor. 5th chap., Paul saith, "For even Christ our passover is sacrificed for us; Therefore let us keep the feast, not with old leaven, neither with the leaven of malice and wickedness, but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth.

Inasmuch then, as the passover is a type of Christ sacrificed for us, and as in the old law a feast followed as a memorial of their deliverance, so we shall keep a feast, but not according to the law, but as Christ has ordered it, without malice nor difference of taste, or rank, but in union, love, harmony and without distinction of persons, so that it may be a lovefeast indeed, and a true emblem of the marriage feast of the Lamb. Again, Peter 2: 13, speaking of immoral characters who have crept into the Church, refers to the same kind of feast, which shows conclusively that no wicked person should partake of it. "Spots they are and blemishes, sporting themselves with their own deceivings while they feast with you." Jude in the 12th verse, referring undoubtingly to the same wicked characters, says, "These are spots in your feasts of charity, when they feast with you, feeding themselves without fear; clouds they are without water, carried about of winds; trees whose fruit withereth, without fruit, twice dead, plucked up by the roots; raging waves of the sea, foaming out their own shame; wandering stars, to whom is reserved the blackness of darkness forever." Dreadful denunciation reaching to the dark prison of hell. Could it be possible, that such a dreadful woe would follow in consequence of eating, if the feast alluded to, were not of the utmost importance, and of Divine appointment? Brethren and sisters let us be careful, examine ourselves closely, that we may not make us guilty of such aggravating punishment.

We have now tried to prove our different propositions exclusively from the word of God. Human evidence might have been produced in sustaining our position, but, as in the main, they are unreliable, we have not done so. I will now submit this essay to the serious and impartial consideration of the reader. If sustained by logical arguments from the word of God, do not treat it lightly. Now the God of peace, that brought again from the Lord Jesus, that great Shepherd of the sheep, through the blood of the everlasting covenant, make you perfect in every good work, to do his will, working in you that is well pleasing in his sight, through Jesus Christ, to whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen.

May the sanctifying influences of the Holy Spirit lead us by the light of the Gospel to be of one mind, and one spirit, is the prayer of your unworthy servant.

LEONARD FURRY.

INDWELLING SIN.

There is a wisdom in the way of God with his people to whom he grants to know but in part, and to be renewed but in part. Were they, while here, wholly delivered from sin and had the unclouded vision of his face and full communion with their God, there would be nothing reserved for the day of glory. It is with them as with ancient Israel, among whom God wisely left some of the devoted nations, and destroyed even those whose land was divided by promise to excite their faith and stir up their endeavers to interpret them, and to be a means of preserving them from sinning. Now God has promised to subdue all our sins that they shall never condemn us, but such is the corruption of nature, which is sanctified but in part, and of creatures who know but in part, that it is but in part, that it is rare to be holy and humble, to be full of God and empty of ourselves. Even the great apostle Paul after he had been with God in a special manner, and seen unutterable glories in the highest heavens instead of having some of the heavenly host as his companions after his kind reception at the celestial court had a messenger of satan to buffed him lest he should be exalted above measure with the divine vision. Our very critical situation in this world might keep us humble. Corrupt nature like weeds among flowers is ready to spring up with every refreshing shower of grace and sun, blink of manifestation, if not into acts of sin, into pride, self-conceit and security. When we see things above us we are ready through the mist of remaining corruption to forget ourselves, and provoke God to show ourselves unto ourselves that we may not be puffed up with ourselves. For the high and lofty one, who delights to dwell with the humble, nothing is more abominable than pride, and no pride more odious to him than spiritual pride.

The soldier that is not a match for his enemy will always keep in camp, and under protection of his general. So the believer must dwell by faith, if he would be secure under the shadow of the Almighty. But it is impossible for us to be delivered wholly from indwelling sin in this world. This would be turning earth into heaven, grace into glory, and time into eternity before the great day of revelation. We must not be crowned with victory till we come off the field of battle, and this we cannot leave till our enemies are subdued before us, or we taken hence in triumph from them. We are still in the dominions of him who is the God of this world, in the territories of the prince of the powers of the air, and he will always be seeking whom he may devour, till the God of peace bruises satan under our feet, till the old serpent be bound for eternity and cast into the burning lake where there is no indwelling sin, no remains of corruption. Here the faith of the just is like the shining light that shineth more and more unto the perfect day. Where saints from the first moment of their conversion are set at liberty from all sin; where the divine victories from all triumphant grace by which God is glorified, and the saints prepared for the better inheritance. Had not an enemy and a giant defied the armies of Israel, the power and goodness of God could not have been displayed in killing him. So the divinity of grace in babes of the heavenly family shines in this, that they are enabled to resist temptations from the same deceiving serpent that beguiled our first parents in the state of innocence, that they are enabled to wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against the rulers of the darkness of this world, and against spiritual wickedness in high places. Were the case so with the saints the book of life were, in effect, laid open and who would anticipate the judgement which belongs to God alone. But indwelling sin, though subdued, is not slain and therefore breaks out in such a manner, even in eminent saints, as gives the enemy occasion for reproof, and also makes them doubt of their own state themselves. till God deals again with them after his loving kindness and tender mercies.

Now in the eyes of the poor penitent, a compassionate, returning and forgiving God is dear, beloved and amiable beyond expression, and divine things shine with an additional lustre. Thus even indwelling sin, contrary to its own nature, advances the glory of God and the good of the soul. Indwelling or the remains of corruption in the greatest saint makes them sympathize with others. They are men and not angels, so that they are to remember not only those who suffer afflictions, but those that are overtaken with a fault, as being yet in the body, yea, what comfort would it be to poor sinners if salvation were preached to them by any other than men of like nature, like infirmities, and like passions with themselves. How is our consolation brightened to hear them speak from experience. Paul says, "when I would do good evil is present with me, so the good that I would I do not, and the evil that I would not, that I do."

Indwelling sin keeps us humble and watchful, makes us cleave more closely to Christ and endeavor to make our calling and election sure; excites us to work while the day lasts before the night shall come wherein no man can work. It makes us go out of ourselves into Christ and ascribe the whole of our salvation to free grace. There we learn the goodness of God in making his grace sufficient for us, and his strength perfect in weakness. Also we are filled with wonder at the riches of his grace which is glorified to the highest in such patience towards offending sons and his repeated pardons of our daily sins.

A PILGRIM.

THE POWER OF LOVE.

If, every day of your life, you would think of God's love; estimate its power by looking at the incalculable amount of good accomplished by those having it shed abroad in their hearts, you would so frequently hear gently whispered, either in nature or through the spirit of God's revelation, the suggestion: "Not far from the Kingdom of God." Do you indeed desire "a closer walk with God" you will inevitably approach at least one step nearer Him by adhering strictly to every duty that will purify your heart through obeying the truth.

Have you but one friend whom you know to be a Christian, you have heard enough of his benevolent acts; conversed enough with him to know that he loves your soul as his own. You can't help loving him, because he loves you. Such persons have few enemies. Love overpowers them, makes them agreeable, so much so that we regret to be separate from them in any way. "I'm sorry to see you leave us." "How shall we get along without you," and a score of similar assertions, mingled with a thousand tears is frequently heard spoken in accents of tender love at the departure of kind friends. It is, indeed, removing, as it were, a link from affection's strong chain which holds together the best of Christian communities.

The social circle is neither refined nor beautified until once it has felt the power of love undefiled. There is, however, an unhallowed influence going abroad from impure love. And, though the very thought itself strikes us with terror, there is such a vast difference in the two, love defiled and undefiled, that they no more resemble than sin and true religion itself. Admitting, however, that there is no similarity here, we are glad to know that there is enough power in true love to plant the seeds of eternal peace and union in the most unhallowed places of discord, thus eradicating everything that is impure and unholy to the glory of Him whose pleasure is in the peace of the righteous.

F. M. SNYDER.

OUR LIFE WORK.

God has given us a work which will require the whole of our life to accomplish it.

This work consists in glorifying God, and doing good to our fellow creatures. This work we must perform if we wish to have His approval and be accepted of Him. There is a way by which we may acquit ourselves honorably and that in our judgment, is by looking well to the chart and compass which Jesus has given us. There is a meaningless strife that should come to an end. Let us have our hearts, brethren and sisters, filled with the love of God and then these feelings that engender bickerings and strife will not exist. We will then feel as Jesus feels, and His aims and purposes will be ours. Our light will then shine out to the world, and those of the household of faith will be encouraged and strengthened for their work. There is nothing that so much stands in the way of sinners, and has such a weakening and deadening effect on the Christian life as discord. It is the work of the adversary, and is often brought about by the criticisms that we are apt to make upon each other. It is not by criticising each other that the life-long work is accomplished, but by love which is the fulfillment of the law. If we would only do away with these hurtful and abominable schisms, and treat each other as actuated by the love of God, there would soon be a marked difference in our speaking, our writing and our actions. There would soon be a mingling of labor, a united effort to perform the great work, which would soon convince the world that we are Christian-like, and that there is in religion that which is sufficient to unite our hearts.

Brethren and sisters, let us get to work for the day may be far spent and the night approaching when no man can work.

"Work for the night is coming,
Work through the sun-set hours;
Work while the dew is sparkling,
Work mid springing flowers."

J. B. B.

DEATH-BED REPENTANCE.

Not long ago we overheard rather a vicious young man remark that he expected to repent before he died, but did not know how long before. He was, no doubt, making his calculations to spend the most of his days in wickedness, perhaps even until the fatal disease has prostrated him, and he feels assured that he must pass over the dark river of death. It is to be feared that there are many, very many calculations of this kind made, and indeed it is fearful to contemplate of the condition of such persons. God does not always give warning by laying a tardy hand of affliction upon us. The monster, death, often seizes upon its victim without a moments warning, and thus the soul is wafted into the spirit-world without having an opportunity for repentance. And besides the critical position such persons are in, there is connected with this idea of procrastination that which is mean and dishonest. We owe our service to God, He sent His own Son into the world to redeem us. He established the means by which we might be again reinstated into the favor and confidence of God, and when our existence is ended here, be transported to His presence and there remain with Him forever and ever. By complying with the means by which we are fitted for this glorious inheritance, we honor and glorify God, but how will it be with those who serve the devil, and thus rob God of that honor which is so justly due Him all the time allotted unto them for this purpose? We cannot help but be a little skeptical in reference to the genuineness of repentance that is purposely delayed until death is a stern and solemn reality. It is true, God is merciful, so much so that it seems almost unlimited, but He is also a God of justice, and it does seem to us that justice and mercy would meet. It is said that when we have done all, we shall say that we are unprofitable servants and have done only that which it was our duty to do. How much more unprofitable will those persons be who have dishonored God by rejecting His counsels, and served the arch-enemy of souls until the wrath of a just God stares them in the face! May God help all such persons who are thus delaying repentance towards God to see the critical condition they are in, and the unjustness of robbing God of that honor and glory that He so much deserves.

J. B. B.

FAMILY GOVERNMENT.

The chief difficulty in family government arises from the fact that so few parents ever learn to govern themselves. It was said of old that "he who ruleth his own spirit is greater than he who taketh a city." The fact is, that the ruling of his own spirit is about the last accomplishment ever arrived at by mortal man, and the remark is equally true as to mortal women. Hence, the government of children is poor enough, as a general thing. In fact, it is, in the many cases, no government at all, but simply the venting of some father's or mother's or teacher's spite upon a child that has done something to stir up the evil passions of one's nature. Some say that the more they punish their children, the worse they seem to grow. That may very well be, if parents punish them because they are annoyed or angered at something they have done. A parent should never punish a child when he is the least bit "put out" with it, or for any reason whatever except the highest good of the child itself.

FEMALE TASTE.

A cultivated taste marks a woman of elegance and refinement as decidedly as a knowledge of classical literature does a gentleman; and there is nothing in which female vulgarity is more clearly shown than in want of taste. This is an axiom that we think will not admit of dispute; but it is a question how far taste is natural, and how far it may be acquired. A delicate taste must, to a certain extent, depend upon the organization of the individual; and it is impossible for any rules to be laid down which will impart taste to persons entirely devoid of it. But this is very seldom the case with women, as it is one of the few points in which women naturally excel men.

Men may be, and probably are, superior to women in all that requires profound thought and general knowledge, but in the arrangement of a house and the introduction of ornamental furniture and articles of bijouterie, there can be no doubt of the innate superiority of women.

THE CONSTRAININO LOVE OF CHRIST.

Continued.

The love of Christ must and will constrain us to prayer. Praying without the heart, and from the mere constraint of habit, is no prayer. Praying, when danger and distress of soul, and when a feeling of sin and necessity constrains, is a very good prayer; but when the love of Christ constrains us to pray, that is the noblest and most excellent prayer. We often complain that we know not how to pray, that we have not a due desire for it, and that the time when we are engaged in it appears long, but this proceeds from the want of love to Christ. Let us give way to love, and love will constrain us to pray. We are glad to be alone a little with true friends; and if we love Christ cordially, we shall be willingly alone with him, nor will the time spent in his society easily appear long to us. If we love Christ, we shall always have something to say to him; if we have nothing to say to him, yet still we have something to love, and that is praying. Yes, my dear friends, we cannot believe what an excellent teacher of prayer the love of Christ is, which awakens in the heart of the pardoned soul such innumerable and inexpressible sighs. O, that it were only more carefully cherished, it causes many a tender aspiration to ascend from the bottom of the heart, frequently, involuntarily and almost unconsciously, though the lips be silent, yet the heart exclaims in sincerity at one time, "O, my God, O, my Lord Jesus," and at another, "I am forever thine, my God and my all," and a single one of these heartfelt ejaculations is of more value in the sight of God, and really includes in it more than a long prayer of another description, said from a book, or proceeding from the understanding alone. Love is like a continual fire, that descends from heaven upon the altar of the soul, in the temple of the heart, where the sweet incense of silent, spiritual, devotion gently ascends from the inward sanctuary, in a thousand acts of praise, and love, and offering, and of veneration, adoration and admiration of the ever blessed God, where a single one of such inward acts of faith and love, includes in it more life, peace, delight and blessedness than all the world can afford. The love of Christ constrains the soul, in one word more and more, by a blissful attraction, to communion and eternal union with the beloved. She has drank of the water of love which Christ has given her, and this will gradually become in her a fountain of water, springing up into eternal life. She feels that there is no more happiness for her here below in anything that is created and temporal; everything becomes so strange to her and so worthless in her sight, all that is within her longs after Christ and eternity; and Christ the divine centre of attraction, cannot long leave her here in sorrow, he draws her, and finally takes her to himself. "Father, I will that they also whom thou hast given me, be with me where I am, that they may behold my glory." John. 17: 24. See my friends, this blessedness, of which we have now imperfectly spoken, is laid up for you, and offered you in Christ, yea, it is for you, and for the weakest and most wretched among you. O, my dear friends, love God who thus loves you, and will eternally love you. Surrender yourselves unreservedly to the constraining and attracting influence of this beatific love of God, set no bounds to this love, it leads farther than the human understanding can reach; and there are greater wonders and blessings to be experienced and enjoyed in it, even during the present life, than the tongue of men or angels can express. O, the lamentable blindness and ignorance of mankind, in being so cold towards God, and so warm in the pursuit of other objects, and in letting the love of the world, sin and vanity, have more influence over the heart than the love of Christ, the love of the world need only give the hint, and the man is immediately on the alert, while the love of Christ constrains so long, and yet people do not follow it nor resign themselves to it. O, how many an unhappy worldling suffers himself to be constrained by the sinful love of the world, and driven from one sin, vice and vanity to another, he is like a slave, who is so constrained by his hard master, that he is almost unable to forsake his old habits, satan and the love of the world govern and constrain him, and will drive him into hell itself, if he did not consider in time, and let himself be constrained to repentance by the love of Christ.

DAVID NEGLEY.

FEEMASONRY CONTRARY TO THE CHRISTIAN RELIGION.

BY SPECTATOR.

12. The Christian religion teaches us that Christ claims, requires and demands the entire, complete and uninterrupted allegiance, homage and service of the whole human race. This he demands on two grounds. First, that he, as a God, is their Creator and they his creatures in absolute dependence on him. Second, on the ground that he assumed human nature and laid down his life on the cross as a ransom for them. His claim is therefore in strict accordance with unsofisticated reason and the eternal principles of justice. In perfect harmony with this the apostle Paul says: "Ye are not your own, for ye are bought with a price; therefore glorify God in your body and in your spirit, which are God's." I Cor. vi: 20.

Freemasons, on the contrary, reject, deny and repudiate all allegiance, homage and service as being due to Christ. All those oaths taken by them of absolute and unlimited obedience to unknown laws, powers and authorities, imply and include a rejection of Christ as their rightful sovereign and lawgiver. All those penalties that include the destruction of human life; such as to have the throat cut across, the tongue torn out by the roots, the left breast opened, the heart and vitals taken out and thrown over the left shoulder, the body severed into and divided to the north and south, the bowels burned to ashes and scattered to the four winds of heaven. All such penalties, I say, in their very nature, discard, reject and repudiate the legal authority and jurisdiction of Christ. Consequently every man who has taken Masonic oaths has announced his allegience to Christ as the Sovereign of the universe, head and Lawgiver of of the Church. This is so plain that every man who will not suffer his eyes to be blinded by the smoke of the bottomless pit, must see it.. If Christ is our rightful sovereign, as he most assuredly is, and our entire service due to him, can we without the highest degree of criminality and treason swear obedience to another master? Can we serve two masters at the same time? If our life belongs to Christ and is not our own, what right have we to put it in jeopardy or place it on a contingency? In other words what right have we to dispose of that which is not our own? The rejection of Christ is more clearly expressed in the order of the Cross. The candidate says, "I swear forever to give myself to this holy and illustrious order," etc. It legitimately follows that Freemasonry is an invention of the devil, designed to undermine the Christian Church and usurp its place, and by this means bring innumerable millions of the human race down to the dark regions of perdition.

NEARER TO GOD.

This is the sentiment of every Christian heart. It is the unwavering desire of all who love the Savior, to get nearer and still nearer to him. This is natural and it is right.

It is not best to "follow the Savior afar off," as did Peter. How many hearts can respond to this sentiment! The chilling frosts of these outskirt regions of Christianity, are anything but pleasant. Better by far be in the inner circle, where the warming rays of the Sun of Righteousness shall shine with full power upon your heart. Here the saint of God grows up like the tree planted by the river, clad with green foliage and burdened with luscious fruit. But if you stay away in the background, where you do not feel the warming influence of God's love beaming into your heart, ere you are aware of it, you will be frozen fast to some iceburg of formality or indifference, and in the end "become a castaway."

There is no danger of getting too near to God, but there is danger of thinking we are nearer than we really are. The prevailing in some parts, that it is possible for us to get so near to our Heavenly Father, as that we cannot get any nearer to him. And some even profess to be in this state, and therefore renounce the beautiful and gospel hymn that begins with:

"Nearer my God to thee."

Now this, it appears to me, is a false position, and there is danger ahead when the lovers of Jesus allow themselves to become hallucinated by it. To other sincere minds it may appear differently, but looking at it from my standpoint, it is certainly a dangerous position to occupy. The person's own individual success and safety as a Christian is endangered by it in my opinion. For instance, when a man is fully persuaded in his own mind that he is as near Christ, and therefore as nearly like him as it is possible for him to be, will not that conviction produce in his mind a moral apathy and lethargy, and have a tendency to make him a sluggard? My reader says no, perhaps. But it seems to me that if I were fully convinced that I was as good as I could be, in order to be consistent with my convictions, I should have to cease making efforts towards improvement and advancement. And then again, it seems to me that if I should cease working, I would become a sluggard, or drone in God's service. So then it is a dangerous position in that it imperils our own Christian safety.

We are exhorted in the Scriptures of truth, to "draw nigh to God" and there is no inspired law declared so far, that I have heard of, to disannul, or make void, this most wholesome admonition. It should therefore be the continual motto of our lives to draw near to the Lord. Let us be very careful not to exhalt ourselves, for if we do, we shall be abased; let us rather humble ourselves that in due time we may be exalted.—Advent Christian Times.

At best, life is not very long. A few more smiles, a few more tears, some pleasures, much pain, sunshine and songs, clouds and darkness, hasty greetings, abrupt farewells—then our little play will close, and injured and injurer will pass away. Is it worth while to hate each other?

PETTY ANNOYANCES OF LIFE.

Most temperaments can bear evils of magnitude with more patience than evils that are so small as to be reckoned among annoyances. A strong man will endure a fever without a murmur, but will fret over a "corn." A heroic woman finds it easy to risk her life for the sake of one whom she loves, but will fly into a passion at a sour look. Patience has been known to sit still —before the era of anæsthetics— during an amputation, who could not resist the bite of a flea or the sting of a mosquito. Great merchants have often calmly endured an entire break-down to their fortunes, after exhibiting the most violent anger over a trifling loss. In every-day life, important events seem to bring with them a power to calm the feelings and hold them in subjection, while little annoyances take us unawares and disturb us immoderately.

It is not easy to analyze the mind and heart so as to give a reason for all the shifting phenomena of existence. There is something great and noble and enduring in men, and there is also something small and mean and cowardly. Whatever appeals to our better nature is sure to be entertained with becoming composure and dignity—whatever strikes our weak sides arouses our selfishness and causes a pitiful display of idiosyncrasy. Man faces the heaven's, but stands upon the earth. The petty annoyances of life reveal us to ourselves and others, not in our high estate, as looking upward and forward, but in our low estate.

So far as our human happiness is concerned, our well doing does not depend so much on our deportment in the midst of great events, as our patience in managing the numberless and nameless trifles, the microscopic atoms of existence.

A JOYFUL THING.—It is a sweet, a joyful thing to be a sharer with Christ in anything. All enjoyments wherein he is not are bitter to the soul that loves him, and all sufferings with him are sweet. The worst things of Christ are more truly delightful than the best things of the world; his afflictions are sweeter than their pleasures, his approach more rich than treasures, as Moses accounted them. Love delights in likeness and communion, not only in things otherwise pleasant, but in the hardest and harshest things, which have not anything in them desirable but only that likeness. So that this thought is very sweet to a heart possessed with this love. What does the world by its hatred, and persecution, and revilings for the sake of Christ, but make me more like him, give me a greater share with him in that which he did so willingly undergo for me? "When he was sought for to be made a king," as St. Bernard remarks, "he escaped, but when he was brought to the cross, he freely yielded himself." And shall I shrink and keep back from what he calls me to suffer for his sake? Yea, even all my other troubles and sufferings I will desire to have stamped thus with this conformity to the sufferings of Christ, in the humble, obedient, cheerful endurance of them, and the giving up of my will to my Father's.—Archbishop Leighton.

Youth's Department.

REST.

The limpid mountain stream
While singing merrily
Through shade and sunny gleam,
Glides onward to the sea;
But ever in its silvery song
A sigh for rest is echoed long.

Down rugged mountain sides,
Where lies the frost and snow,
The tireless streamlet glides
To sunny vales below,
Until within the ocean's breast
It finds at last a peaceful rest

The blossom's snowy leaves
Fall trembling through the air;
The soft wind silent breathes
To them so frail and fair,
As though it gave a fond farewell
That human hearts could never tell.

Down slowly from the stem
They tremble one by one—
No longer need of them,
For their brief work is done;
Then let them find their rest beneath
In shady silence, dust and death.

How many weary feet
Now tread life's thorny ways!
How many sad hearts beat
Amid the tangled maze;
And in the throng how few are blest
With heaven's own gift—unbroken rest?

Be strong, O fainting heart;
Rest will be thine ere long;
Bear nobly thou thy part
Amid the world's great throng,
And thou the promised rest shall prove,
In heaven's eternal sea of love.

What though life's flowers fade.
Its blossoms droop and die;
Thy morning dark with shade,
Thy noon a clouded sky,
If but the evening-time be bright
To rest thee in its calm sweet light.

LOVE WINS LOVE.

"Mother, the birds all love father," said a little boy of five summers, as he stood with his mother watching the robins enjoying their morning meal of cherries from the old tree that overhung the house.

"Does anybody else love father, Charlie?"

"Oh, yes! I love him, and you love him; but we know more than the birds."

"What do you think is the reason the birdies love your father?"

Charlie did not seem to hear the question. He was absorbed in deep thought. "Mother," at last he said, "all the creatures love father. My dog is almost as glad to see him as he is me. Pussy, you know, always comes to him, and seems to know exactly what he is saying. Even the old cow follows him all around the meadow, and the other day I saw her licking his hand just like a dog would. What can be the reason, mother?"

"Think, Charley; try and find out a reason yourself."

"I think it is because father loves them, mother. You know he will often get up to give pussy something to eat; and he pulls carrots for the cow, and pats her and talks to her; and somehow I think his voice never sounds so pleasant as when he talks to the creatures."

"I think his voice sounds pleasant when he is talking to his little boy."

Charles smiled. "Father loves me," he said, "and I love him dearly. He loves the birds, too, I am sure. He whistles to them every morning when they are eating cherries, and they are not a bit afraid of him, though he is almost near enough to catch them. Mother, I wish everything loved me as well as they do father."

"Do as father does, Charley, and they will. Love all things and be kind to them. Do not speak roughly to the dog. Don't pull pussy's tail, nor chase the hens, nor try to frighten the cow. Never throw stones at the birds. Never hurt nor tease anything. Speak gently and lovingly to them. Feed them and seek their comfort, and they will love you, and everybody that knows you will love you too."—Tract Journal.

THE LEPER.

In a recent lesson of the "Uniform Series," Naaman, the leper, was a prominent character. Our readers will remember his healing by the prophet in the River Jordan. The leprosy is a most loathsome disease. It made outcasts and exiles of all its victims. But God's power can cleanse the leper's spots. The flesh of Naaman became "as the flesh of a little child."

In the New Testament we read of the leprosy, and how Jesus healed the leper by a touch. Mark makes record (i. 50–42), "And there came a leper to him, beseeching him, and kneeling down to him, and saying to him, If thou wilt, thou canst make me clean. And Jesus, moved with compassion, put forth his hand and touched him, and saith unto him, I will; be thou clean. And as soon as he had spoken, immediately the leprosy departed from him, and he was cleansed."

This is a sublime event most simply stated. What wonderful things are in the Bible! And this same Jesus has all power given unto him in heaven and earth. He is able and willing to cleanse the heart of sin. His blood cleanses from all sin. It is a blessed privilege to cry to him for healing and full salvation. He will hear, and he will help.—The Sunday School.

ROOT UP THE WEEDS.

Two boys, John and Will, were employed by a gentleman to keep the paths of his garden weeded. John contented himself with taking off the top of the weeds. He soon cried, "I have cleared my path;" and, having swept away the leaves, he went off to play.

Will was much longer at work, for he stopped to take all the weeds up by the roots, and he was well tired when he went home.

But the rain came down in the night and all the next day, and, when the boys master went to look a few days after at the two paths, John's wanted weeding as much as at first, while Willie's was clear and only needed a few turns of the roller to make it quite neat. So John was sent back to do his work properly, and very tired he would have been had not Will good naturedly helped him to finish his task.

Only thorough work is worth doing. Faults only half uprooted will appear again, and we shall almost despair of curing them. Will you remember this?

CHEER HIM.

In one of our large cities a fire broke out in a lofty dwelling. It was near mid-night, and the flames had made headway before they were discovered. The fire companies rallied, but the smoke had become so thick that the outlines of the house were scarcely visible, and the fiery element was raging with fearful power, when a piercing cry thrilled all hearts as they learned that there was one person yet unsaved within the building. In a moment a ladder was swung through the flames and planted against the walls and a brave fireman rushed up its rounds to the rescue.

Overcome by the smoke, and perhaps daunted by the hissing flames before him, he halted and seemed to hesitate. It was an awful scene. A life hung in the balance, and each moment seemed an age.

"Cheer him!" shouted a voice from the crowd, and a wild "hurrah" burst like a tempest from the beholding multitude. That cheer did the work, and the brave fireman went upward amid smoke and flame, and in a moment descended with the rescued one in his arms.

Friend, brother, when you see a brave soul battling with temptation, struggling under the cross, rushing forward to rescue dying men, and yet faltering in an hour of weakness or a moment of peril, then "cheer him!" And as a pebble's fall may change a river's course, so your words of sympathetic kindness may uplift a drooping heart, and fix its faltering purpose for a noble life.—Prot. Methodist.

CORRESPONDENCE

A Reporter is wanted from every Church in the brotherhood to send us Church news, Obituaries, Announcements or anything that will be of general interest. To insure insertion, the writers name must accompany each communication. Our invitation is not personal but general—please respond to our call.

Notes of Travel, or Jottings by the Wayside.

KANSAS CITY, MO., October 11th 1872.

Dear Pilgrim:—I think I last wrote you from Lewisburg Kansas. Sunday the 6th preached in the town of Lewisburg to a crowded house and an attentive people. 7th had a pleasant horse-back ride across the prairies 12 miles to Paola, the county seat of Miami Co. In Paola met with Bro. Daniel Longenecker. Paola is quite a thriving town, a very extensive and costly house of learning is just being completed at that point, several Railroads are built to said point. Returned in the evening to near Lewisburg, 8th completed our business in said section and at 4 P. M. took the train for Center View Mo. Owing to the fact the Express did not stop at Center View, we lay over at Holden until morning and then went by first train to Center View, arriving there, we soon had the pleasure of meeting with Bro. A. Hutchison and family living in town. In the afternoon took a buggy ride into the country with Bro. H., and also went to Bro. A. Stoners, where one of my sister-in laws are living, enjoyed the kind hospitalities of Bro. Stoner and family until night when we returned to Center View and preached in the Methodist Church and met with dear brethren and sisters of the household of faith. Accompanied Bro. Jacob and sister Susan Crumpacker to their home. Sister Susan is also one of my wife's sisters, had a pleasant sojourn with them. Next day in company with said brother and sister went to brother Peter Kinsor's with whom we dined and then made a call at the home of Bro. Wm. Killingsworth, and also at Bro. Skaggs of W. Va., at whose house we found our friend Miss Mary Williams confined to her bed with the fever, but cheerful and in a fair way to soon be around. Spent the night with Bro. Repp and family whore we met with sister Mary J. Wolf of Washington Co., Md. In the morning we repaired to Center View to take the Western train. We were loath to leave those who were so kind to us and with whom we had such pleasant communications, but duty said go, therefore we were soon wending our way by rail to this city where we arrived about 10 o'clock P. M., and are now awaiting the train to take us East. This is the first opportunity I have ever had of taking a walk through this place. I find it truly as represented a business and thriving city. There seems to be more building going on here than any city I have visited for a long while, notwithstanding it is a hilly location, the energy and enterprise of man is leveling down the rugged hills and rearing up fine and grand edifices. Everything must go western fashion here to all appearances. There is quite an emigration still rolling on West and this place is truly one of the great centers from which emigrants go out in various directions to their destination. We now close amid the din and confusion of business in this Western Metropolis with the evidence that this is a fast age, and we are hasting on to a most momentous era.

J. S. FLORY.

Dear Pilgrim:—I am pleased to inform your readers of our recent visit to the brethren near Lathrop, Cal., where they had made the necessary preparations to hold a Communion. I left home in Brooklyn, with my family on Friday morning September 13th on the 8 o'clock overland train. We had a very pleasant trip to Lathrop where we got off at 11 A. M. We found Bro. J. P. Wolf waiting with conveyance which we took and set out two miles to his father's Eld. G. Wolf, where we were very kindly received and cared for.

When the evening drew on we assembled at the place appointed for worship, where we met a goodly number of brethren that we had not seen for more than a year, and some that we had never seen—was glad to meet all and talk of our hopes and prospects in this life and that which is to come. After a season of singing and prayer Bro. Wolf led off and preached a good discourse. Bro. Broadherst followed with a warm exhortation to the brethren and friends. The meeting was closed by singing and prayer. Saturday at 11 o'clock we came together again. After the usual season of singing and prayer, Bro. Prater led off to the satisfaction of all, followed by the writer.

In the evening we again assembled. By this time there seemed to be quite an interest felt, both in and out of the church. It fell to my lot to lead off which I tried to do according to the ability the Lord gave. Brethren Prater and Wolf followed with very appropriate remarks. Sunday at 11, Bro. Wolf led off with the 9th verse of 2d Col. for a text. "For in Him, (Jesus) dwelleth all the fullness of the Godhead bodily." Bro. Wolf looked at the subject as the Apostle John did, that "In the beginning was the word, and the word was with God." Even before the world was that light that was to shine forth in the darkness of the world was, and in the fullness of time was made manifest in the flesh delegating all the power of a triune God in the person of Jesus Christ our Lord.

We again assembled early in the evening when Bros. Prater and Wolf discoursed to us ably on the subject of self-examination, not to examine each other but to examine ourselves and so eat. There was a short intermission while the brethren put the Supper on the table, then came in order Feetwashing, the Lord's Supper and Communion, after which we sang a hymn and "went out."

Thus the meeting closed, and we bade each other farewell and returned to our homes, feeling that it was a refreshing season from the presence of the Lord.

JONATHAN MYERS.

Dear Brethren of the Pilgrim:—As I am a reader of your paper and read news from most all the churches but ours, I thought I would give a little news from here too. Our Communion on Musquito Creek, about 5 miles Southeast of Sidney, Shelby Co., Ohio, is past. It was the 18th and 19th of September. We had a good meeting although there were not so many in attendance as at some Communions. There was good order. The ministers present were brethren Joseph Coffman, Eld. Samuel Mohler, Samuel Murray, Isaac Studabaker and Benjamin Kiser. We believe the Lord was with us.

Brother Benjamin Kiser is our preacher on Musquito Creek, but he is getting too old to speak much. Other ministers frequently visit us. There has been six additions to the church here this Summer, one of whom was a cripple. He was struck with the palsy when young, and another stroke lately which has almost kept him from walking. Suppose the church here will have to take care of him. Oh how thankful we ought to be for having the use of all our limbs, and brethren, I believe we should try and do more for those that are crippled, or sick, or in distress, than we do. We should pray earnestly for them that God may bless them and take care of them, and let us do our part too, and not want God to do all. May God in His wisdom see fit to bless us all, and help us all to meet in Heaven.

ELLEN MOORE.

Dear Brethren:—According to request I send you the names of our ministering brethren. I am no minister, how it got circulated around that I was, I know not, I am only an unworthy deacon. Have no duly installed Elder here. Bro Jacob D. Haughtelin acted as overseer here until last June, Bro. Samuel Longenecker moved among us, and he being older in the ministry, Bro. Jacob resigned his commission to him. He is now acting as overseer, but is not an installed Elder according to the order of the Brethren. I expect he will be before long. Brother Christian Long, of Dallas Co., is the regular installed Elder for this western District of Iowa. As it has been laid out, we are now in the middle district of Iowa as regards holding district council, but not so in regard to holding our regular council meeting. Bro. Long has charge of the Brotherhood as far West as the Missouri River, and beyond, where there are brethren or churches that need his assistance.

We have added none to the church by baptism this year nor none forwarded in office. The congregation is small and scattered here. Only about 35 or 40 members, and very few traveling brethren reach us on their preaching tours, so that we have to depend altogether on ourselves for preaching except some chance times a brother may happen to pass this way. At our Communion meetings we sometimes have several speakers from a distance. We have no meeting house yet, preach in school-houses. The last five Communion meetings have been held at my house, having no other place as convenient. We have a pretty and good country. Brethren coming West ought to come and see this first.

B. E. PLAINE.

Panora, Iowa.

Dear Brethren Editors:—In obedience to your request I will try and give a little church news. About the close of last year our church in Franklin Co., Va., was laid off in three separate districts. Our arm will be known as the Black Water Congregation, leaving us only one minister and three deacons. We are glad to say that our church is in a prosperous condition. There has been several added to our band this Summer by baptism, and the brethren seem to be striving for the welfare of the church and the cause of our blessed Redeemer. In the commencement of this year we had an election for ministers and deacons. There were two elected to the ministry and two to the deaconship.

J. H. FLORA.

Dear Pilgrim:—Our little band is still growing larger and larger. Only two or three years ago there were but two or three members here, and now the number has increased to between seventy and eighty. There were four added to the church by baptism on the 29th of last month, and still more are making application. May the Lord's work be carried on here and elsewhere is the prayer of your unworthy servant.

I will do all I can for you the coming year in getting subscribers.

DAVID ADAMS.

Belington, W. Va.

Dear Pilgrim:—Please announce that the brethren intend holding their Lovefeast on the 30th and 31st of October at the Ball Hill Meeting-house in Wirt county Va. We give an invitation to all the brethren, and a special one to the ministers. Inquire for Elizabethtown, that is the county-seat, then the meeting-house is 8 miles from the county-seat at the head of Tuckers Creek.

JACOB GAULT.

Dear Pilgrim:—Please announce that there will be Communion services in the Tenmile Congregation, Washington Co., Pa., commencing on the 2d day of November, at 1 P. M., at the "Old Brick." The usual invitation to all, especially ministering brethren.

JOHN WISE.

MARRIED.

McDANIEL—BRUMBAUGH.—Oct 3d, by S. A. Moore, at the residence of the brides' parents, brother Matthew McDaniel to sister Nancy R. Brumbaugh, all of Bedford Co. Pa.

MILLER—FURRY.—On October 10th, by John S. Holsinger, at his residence, brother J. B. Miller to sister Elizabeth Furry, all of Bedford Co., Pa.

DIED.

FRIEND.—In the Tenmile Congregation, Washington Co., Pa., September 15th 1872, of Consumption, sister Mary Ann Friend, consort of A. J. Friend, aged 33 years.

Also in same place and son of the above parents, March 23d, '72, Thomas S. Friend, aged 7 years and 8 months. Disease Diphtheria.

Also son of same parents and of same disease April 1st, '72, Ralph W. Friend, aged 4 years, 9 months and 17 days.

CRUMRINE.—Also in same place of Asthma, and heart disease, Aug. 22d, '72, our aged and beloved sister Nancy Crumrine, (widow of George Crumrine), aged nearly 70 years. Funeral text, Rev. 14: 13.

JOHN WISE.

RITCHEY.—In Bedford co, Pa., Oct. 13th, John, son of Isaac Ritchey, aged 2 years, 2 months and 7 days. Funeral services by H. Hershberger from Mark 10: 13.

STAYER.—In the Yellow Creek Congregation, Bedford co., Pa., sister Rebecca, wife of Bro. John Stayer, aged 47 years, 4 months and 22 days. Funeral by the editor, and Eld. Jacob Miller in the German.

Sister Stayer was a consistent christian mother and a good neighbor, and died in the hope of a blessed immortality. She had a large number of relatives and friends which were the cause of quite a large funeral. We hope that the bereaved husband and father will be consoled in the hope of a reunion with his dearest earthly friend, in that blessed land where parting shall be known no more.

The Weekly Pilgrim.

JAMES OREEK, PA., Oct. 22nd, 187

PROSPECTIVE.

As the present volume is rapidly drawing to a close, we now begin to look forward to the future. What can we do, or what method shall we pursue that will best promote the work in which we are engaged, is the question that now engages our attention. This query becomes important to us from the importance and magnitude of our work. Our labors are intended for the upbuilding and advancement of the Redeemer's Kingdom, the most important and beneficent engagement of which we can conceive. That the PILGRIM has been a means by which a little advancement, at least, has been made, we have unmistakable evidences, and in view of this, we are nerved afresh for the performing of our labors. But there is one thing that we have to regret. The PILGRIM has been muzzled from performing the amount of good that it otherwise might have done. Many a poor famishing soul might have been fed and cheered by its visits, if we could have sent it to their homes. But this we were unable to do. "The laborer is worthy of his hire," and we believe the PILGRIM's work is worthy of its hire, and feel free when we do all that we can. But dear readers, the language is, "thou shalt not muzzle the mouth of the ox that treadeth out the corn." By this we must certainly understand that we are not to stand in the way of any lawful means for the spreading of truth by withholding that which is intended for the sustenance and maintenance of life. We hope that our readers will think of these things and that, in the future, all will make a greater effort to have the PILGRIM visit the homes of the poor, and also have its field of work enlarged. This is now engaging our attention, and we would much desire to hit upon some plan to more speedily accomplish this end. Will not our brethren and sisters help us? We are determined to enter the field the coming year with renewed energy; we will do all we can, the best we can, and if we can have the united efforts of the faithful, we feel assured that there can be a good and glorious work accomplished.

We have remarked that our work becomes important to us from a consideration of its greatness and importance but we do not think that it really is, or should be, of any more importance to us than to our readers.

In any means that is intended for the promotion and advancement of the Redeemer's Kingdom, we are all alike interested. "We are laborers together with God, and every man shall receive his own reward according to his own labor." The more we labor the greater will be our reward, and this thought should stir up every lover of Jesus to apply all his power to the performing of the great work of disseminating truth and exposing error. Will not then our brethren and sisters feel it their duty the coming year to make a greater effort, a longer effort, and a more determined effort, to have the PILGRIM circulated, and not only so but to have its pages filled with interesting and instructive matter.

A few weeks more and we will send out our prospectus for the coming year. It always requires some time to get ready for any work, and we make this announcement so that our agents and friends may be ready to take hold of the work at once. Look around and see who is not reading the PILGRIM, think of those who might and ought to take it, and then when the time comes to canvass, go at it with energy and perseverance.

We have had many letters that gave us encouragement. Quite a number of our agents say they have good prospects of enlarging their lists the coming year. The PILGRIM has also been introduced into new places that promise fair for good lists, and on the whole indications are fair for an increase. This we should have in order to make the PILGRIM useful and successful.

In reference to improving the mechanical part we do not like to promise much at present. We expect to use all good paper the coming year and make a few other changes. We appreciate the interest our friends have taken in behalf of the PILGRIM. We hope you will still be interested and we shall be truly thankful.

THE AUGHWICK MEETING.

We have just returned home from attending a number of communions. This week's PILGRIM is about closing and will therefore have but a short time to write which we will use in giving a sketch of our trip to the Aughwick Brethren. On Thursday morning, Oct. 10th, we, ourself, wife and little son, Harvey, took the train for Augwick. At Huntingdon we had the pleasure of meeting Bro. H. R. Holsinger and family who also were enroute for the meeting. At Mt. Union, we were met by Bro. Wakefield, a resident minister, and conducted to his home for dinner. After having our bodily wants attended to we made our way for the meeting but arrived too late for the opening, as preaching had already been commenced by our respected brother Samuel Zug, of Lancaster co., Pa.

The opening services were ably conducted, interesting and we believe profitable to those present, but the attendance was not large. In the evening, the attendance was much larger and quite orderly and respectable. The services were interesting, solemn and impressive, and we trust will prove beneficial not only to the saints, but also to those who have not yet entered the covenant of grace.

After services we were conducted to the house of Bro. P. L. Swine, where we were well cared for during the remainder of the night. Bro. Peter is in the fruit business and as this was a fruit year, his labors were crowned with success. He informed us that he had about 400 bushels of first-class peaches, and will have, all told, several tons of grapes. Of the qualities of the latter, we had the pleasure of testing and can pronounce them No. 1.

To be Continued.

PERSONAL.

We now inform our readers that our labors in the PILGRIM office are about to close for awhile. The coming week, no providential interferance, we expect to start to Millersville, Pa., for the purpose of attending school. We have never had the privilege of attending school much, and have long felt the want of better mental attainments. How long we shall attend school we do not know, but if our health permit, and we can be spared in the office at all, we may continue for some time. We hope this move will be for our good, and that all the faithful will remember us at a throne of grace. J. B. B.

This week's PILGRIM will be issued a day earlier than usual so as to have our work done when our brethren come to us, for the purpose of attending our Lovefeast which commences on Saturday next. We hail the approaching time with joy as we expect to have our souls fed with the heaveoly manna.

ORDERS for tracts are coming in quite copiously. This morning's mail brings a number of orders of from 25 up to 150. We still have a good supply and we can assure our readers that they cannot spend a dollar to a better purpose than sending for these tracts and distributing them.

We are informed by sister Clark, who attended the Lovefeast at Spring Run, that the attendance was large. Brethren S. Zug, H. R. Holsinger, John Beaver, John B. Garver and R. Wakefield were the ministerial force, with the addition of the Dry Valley brethren.

Bro. Adam Rupert was elected to the deaconship, and Abram Myers ordained to the eldership.

BRO. D. D, SHIVELY of Cerro Gorda, Ill, says that he thinks the PILGRIM enlarged so as to give the general news would be just the thing the brethren need. For his part he would be in favor of giving it a trial.

THE names of our ministers are still coming in quite rapidly. We are not sure that we can get them all in this year's Almanac. For this we will be sorry as we did want a complete list.

REPORTS: As the Lovefeasts are now about over, we hope soon to have a number of reports. Such reports are always interesting and we hope some one will attend to it.

Bro. J. R. Miller wants to know why there is so little correspondence from Northern Indiana, in the PILGRIM. Can any of the brethren there give a reason?

Mormons and Gentiles.

The mormon ladies show a decided preference for the society of Gentiles. Possibly, holding women in a higher light than the polygamist, they are more gallant and deferential. Then the Mormon has not been accustomed to sue for ladies' favor, and the Gentile knows well the value of tender speeches. The Mormon, in nine cases out of ten, has never been outside the boundaries of Utah. The Gentile converses of New York, San Francisco, fashions, balls, &c., and that has all the fascination of a traveler. And from this leaning toward the unbeliever the Church was at one time sadly perplexed, and a large number of grass widows were thrown upon the community. From the mines came a host of Gentiles, young, stalwart fellows, who were frozen out in a hard winter, and sought food and shelter, dead broke in the City of Saints. They held a meeting to decide upon what was to be done. One long-headed fellow proposed that they should join the Church, marry and settle down until the winter was over. This was unanimously agreed to by the rest, and they presented themselves to the elders, and professed to be anxious to embrace the faith.

A lot of fine young men was not to be refused, and accordingly they were baptized, admitted to the society of the Saints and the twelve Apostles, and all provided with wives. They lived happily together, attended church regularly, and were quite looked up to as model converts. But, alas! when the summer came these ruthless birds of passage took wing one morning for their old camping grounds, and left their disconsolate families to mourn their flight.

Fifteen years ago the daughter of a well-known and highly respected citizen of Hartstown, Crawford county, now dead, suddenly disappeared. The girl was but fourteen years of age, and there was much conjecture over her mysterious disappearance. Every search was made for her, but without success and every effort to obtain any clue to her whereabouts proved unavailing. Last Monday the supposed dead girl made her appearance in Hartstown, a handsome and fashionably dressed lady. She stated that she was now proprietress of a dry goods store in San Francisco, and being on her way to New York to buy goods, thought she would stop at the scenes of her youth and see how everything was. It is said that she declined to give any statement of her life from the time she disappeared from home. As might be expected the affair creates considerable talk in the locality.—The Pennsylvanian.

GOOD BOOKS.

A large number of our patrons are receiving our books as noticed below, as premiums, and express themselves highly pleased with them. Others who are not agents, have enquired whether we keep them for sale. We have now made arrangements with Mr. Wells to furnish any of their publications post paid at publishers prices. Orders for books must be accompanied with the cash, and plain directions for sending them.

Hand-book for Home Improvement: comprising "How to Write," "How to Talk," How to Behave," and "How to do Business," in one vol. 2.25.

How to Live; Saving and Wasting, or Domestic Economy. By Solon Robinson. $1.50.

Life at Home; or, The Family and its Members. Husbands, Wives, Parents, Children, Brothers, Sisters, Employers and Employed, etc. By Rev. William Aikman, D. D. A work which should be found in every family. $1.50. Extra gilt, $2.00.

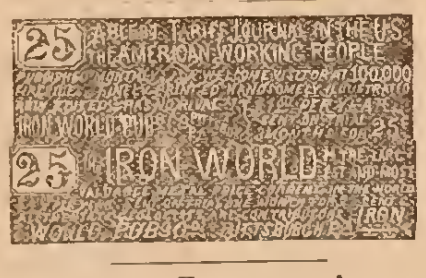
Man and Woman: Considered in their Relations to each Other and to the World. By Henry C. Pedder. 12mo, Fancy cloth Price $1.00.

Man, in Genesis and in Geology; or, the Biblical Account of Man's Creation, tested by Scientific Theories of his Origin and Antiquity. By Joseph P. Thompson, D. D., LL.D. One vol. 12mo, $1.00.

The Right Word in the Right Place. A New Pocket Dictionary and Reference Book. Embracing Synonyms, Technical Terms, Abbreviations, Foreign Phrases Writing for the Press, Punctuation, Proof-Reading, and other Valuable Information. Cloth, 75cts.

The Emphatic, Diaglott; or The New Testament in Greek and English. Containing the Original Greek Text of the New Testament, with an Interlineary Word for-word English Translation. A Work for Students in Theology, and S. S. Teachers. By Benjamin Wilson. Price, $4.00; extra fine binding, $5.00.

Oratory—Sacred and Secular; or, the Extemporaneous Speaker. Including Chairman's Guide for conducting Public Meetings according to the best Parliamentary forms. By Wm. Pittenger. $1.50.



Trine Immersion
TRACED
TO THE APOSTLES.

Being a collection of historical quotations from modern and ancient authors, proving that a THREE-FOLD Immersion was the only method of baptizing ever practiced by the Apostles and their immediate successors. The author, after proving Trine Immersion to have been the prevailing practice, in baptism, the first 1500 years of the Christian era, commences with the fifth century, and traces a Three-fold Immersion, to within 33 years of the apostle John's death, and then proves it to have been the Apostolic method of baptizing, while Single Immersion was invented not less than 326 years after the death of Christ.

Put up in a neat pamphlet form, with good paper cover, and will be sent, postpaid, on the following terms: One copy, 25 cts; Five copies, $1.10; Ten copies, $2.00.

Address, J. H. MOORE,
Urbana, Champaign co., Ill.

Oct. 22.

SALEM COLLEGE.

The Fall term of Salem College will open for the reception of any number of students from all parts on the 4th of September, 1872. Ample accommodations and thorough instruction will be given all students who connect themselves with this College. Good board can be had in good families at $2.50 to $3.00 per week or students can board themselves in clubs at $1.25 to $1.50 per week as numbers have done with the consent of the faculty. Special care will be given students who are far from home.

For Catalogues, Scholarships and full particulars address

SALEM COLLEGE,
July 22, '72. Bourbon, Ind.

WANTED BOOK Agents FOR THE GREAT INDUSTRIES
OF THE UNITED STATES;

AN HISTORICAL SUMMARY OF THE ORIGIN, GROWTH AND PERFECTION OF THE CHIEF INDUSTRIAL ARTS OF THIS COUNTRY.

1300 PAGES and 500 ENGRAVINGS.
Written by 20 Eminent Authors, including
JOHN B. GOUGH, LEON CASE, EDWARD HOWLAND, JOS. B. LYMAN, REV. E. EDWIN HALL, HORACE GREELEY, PHILIP RIPLEY, ALBERT BRISBANE, F. B. PERKINS, ETC.

This work is a complete history of all branches of industry, processes of manufacture, etc., in all ages. It is a complete encyclopedia of arts and manufactures, and is the most entertaining and valuable work of information on subjects of general interest ever offered to the public. It is adapted to the wants of the Merchant, Manufacturer, Mechanic, Farmer, Student and Inventer, and sells to both old and young of all classes. The book is sold by agents, who are making large sales in all parts of the country. It is offered at the low price of $8.50, and is the cheapest book ever sold by subscription No family should be without a copy. We want agents in every town in the United States, and no agent can fail to do well with this book. Our terms are liberal. We give our agents the exclusive right of territory. One of our agents sold 133 copies in eight days, another sold 368 in two weeks. Our agent in Hartford sold 397 in one week. Specimens of the work sent to agents on receipt of stamp. For circulars and terms to agents address the publishers.

J. B. BURR & HYDE, Hartford, Conn., Chicago, Ill., or Cincinnati, Ohio.

Menno Simon's
COMPLETE WORKS.

In English, translated from the original Dutch or Holland, giving the whole of the great Reformers writings on the subject of Baptism. Price in full sheep $4.50; by mail $5.14.

Address, JOHN F. FUNK & BRO.
Elkhart, Ind.

New Hymn Books, English.

TURKEY MOROCCO.

One copy,	postpaid,	$1.00
Per Dozen,		11.25

PLAIN ARABESQE.

One Copy,	post-paid,	75
Per Dozen,	"	8.50

Ger'n & English, Plain Sheep.

One Copy,	post-paid,	$1.00
Per Dozen		11.25
Arabesque Plain,		1.00
Turkey Morocco,		1.25
Single German,	post paid	50
Per Dozen,		5.50

TRACTS.

"ANXIOUS BENCH RELIGION EXAMINIED," BY ELDER J. S. FLORY. A SYNOPSIS OF CONTEETS. An address to the reader: The peculiarities that attend this type of religion. The feelings there experienced not imaginary but real. The key that unlocks the wonderful mystery. The causes by which feelings are excited. How the momentary feelings called "Experimental religion" are brought about, and then concludes by giving that form of doctrine as taught by Jesus Christ and recorded by his faithful witnesses.

COUNTERFEIT DETECTER
or
BAPTISM—MUCH IN LITTLE.

This work is now ready for distribution, and the importance of the subject will speak for it a large demand. It is a short treatise on baptism in tract form intended for general distribution, and is set forth in such a plain and logical manner that a wayfaring man though a fool, cannot err therein. Either of the above tracts sent postpaid on the following terms: Two copies, 10 cts, 10 copies 40 cents, 25 copies 70 cents, 50 copies $1.00, 100 copies $1.50.

1870 1872
DR. FAHRNEY'S
Blood Cleanser or Panacea.

A tonic and purge, for Blood Diseases. Great reputation. Many testimonials. Many ministering brethren use and recommend it. Ask or send for the "Health Messenger." Use only the "Panacea" prepared at Chicago, Ills., and by

Dr. P. Fahrney's Brothers & Co.,
Aug. 8-pd. Waynesboro, Franklin Co., Pa.

Trine Immersion.

A discussion on Trine Immersion, by letter between Elder B. F. Moomaw and Dr. J. J. Jackson, to which is annexed a Treatise on the Lord's Supper, and on the necessity, character and evidences of the new birth, also a dialogue on the doctrine of non-resistance, by Elder B. F. Moomaw. Single copy 50 cents.

HUNTINGDON & BROAD TOP RAIL ROAD
Summer Arrangement.

On an after Tuesday, June 4, 1872, Passenger trains will arrive and depart as follows:

Trains from Huntingdon South. — Trains from Bedford moving North.

MAIL. A. M.	ACCOM P. M.	STATIONS.	MAIL. P. M.	ACCOM A. M.
*le*8 20	LE6 00	Huntingdon,	AR5 25	AR9 10
8 28	6 06	Long Siding	5 17	9 00
8 45	6 19	McConnelstown	5 04	8 40
8 51	6 25	Pleasant Grove	4 58	8 39
9 05	6 37	Markleshurg	4 45	8 27
9 20	6 61	Coffee Run	4 33	8 11
9 27	6 58	Rough & Ready	4 26	8 40
9 39	7 10	Cove	4 12	7 52
9 43	7 15	Fishers Summit	4 08	7 48
10 03	7 35	Saxton	3 48	le 7 58
10 10	7 53			*ar*7 46
10 27	8 10	Riddlesburg	3 30	6 30
10 34	8 17	Hopewell	3 22	6 12
10 51	8 35	Piper's Run	3 06	6 0
11 10	8 55	Tatesville	2 48	6 56
11 22	9 08	Bloody Run	2 38	6 50
11 26	9 12	Mount Dallas	2 20	5 46
11 32	9 10	Ashcom's Mills	2 22	5 42
11 36	9 28	Lutzville	2 18	5 36
11 40	9 27	Hartley's Mills	2 14	5
11 46	9 34	Jamesons	2 07	5
*ar*11 22	*ar*9 40	Bedford	LE2 00	LE5 30

JOHN M'KILLIPS, Supt

SHOUP'S RUN BRANCH.

			AR8 40	AR7 20
LE10 15	LE7 40	Saxton.
10 30	7 55	Coalmont.	3 25	7 05
10 35	8 00	Crawford.	3 20	7 00
AR10 45	AR8 10	Dudley	LE3 10	LE6 50
Bro'd Top City from Dudley 2 miles by stage.

Time of Penna. R. R. Trains at Huntingdon.

EASTWARD.			WESTWARD.
Hb'g Ac.	9 24 A. M	Cin. Ex.	2 19	A. M.
Mail	3 30 P. M	Pc'f Ex.	7 45	"
Cin. Ex.	6 55 "	Mail	5 40	P. M.
Phil. Ex	11 15 "	W. Pass.	11 52	A. M.

THE PILGRIM,

Published by J. B. Brumbaugh, & Co.

Edited by H. B. & Geo. Brumbaugh.

CORRESPONDINO EDITORS.

D. P. Sayler, Double Pipe Creek, Md.

Leonard Furry, New Enterprise, Pa.

The Pilgrim is a Christian Periodical, devoted to religion and moral reform. It will advocate in the spirit of love and liberty, the principles of true Christianity, labor for the promotion of peace among the people of God, for the encouragement of the saints and for the conversion of sinners, avoiding those things which tend toward disunion or sectional feelings.

TERMS.

Single copy, one year,	$1.2.
Book paper, " "	1.50
Eleven copies, [eleventh for Agt.]	$12.50.

Any number above that at the same rate,

Address.

H. B. BRUMBAUGH.
James Creek,
Huntingdon county Pa.

Brethren Pilgrim.

"REMOVE NOT THE ANCIENT LANDMARKS WHICH OUR FATHERS HAVE SET."

VOL. 3. JAMES CREEK, PENNSYLVANIA, OCTOBER 29, 1872. NO. 44

POETRY.

THE STRIVING OF THE SPIRIT.

SELECTED BY KATE BRENIZER.

Say, sinner, hath a voice within
Oft whispered to thy secret soul,
Urged thee to leave the ways of sin,
And yield thy heart to God's control?

Hath something met thee in the path,
Of worldliness and vanity;
And pointed to the coming wrath,
And warn'd thee from that wrath to flee?

Sinner, it was a heavenly voice,
It was the spirit's grievious call;
It bade thee make the better choice,
And haste to seek in Christ thine all?

Spurn not the call to life and light,
Regard in time the warning kind;
That call thou mayest not always slight,
And yet the gate of mercy find.

Sinner, perhaps this very day,
Thy last accepted time may be;
Oh, should'st thou grieve him now away,
Then hope may never beam on thee.

TRUST AND TRY.

Should your trusted friend betray you,
Brother mine,
Deem not all men false, I pray you,
Brother mine,
Ever heed this truth divine,
That among life's motley crew
Hearts there are which still are true—
Hearts to feel for you—for you!

Should misfortune overtake you,
Try again;
Bolder let misfortune make you—
Try again,
You shall strive not all in vain.
Let your aim be pure and high—
Gentle hope still whispering nigh—
Brother, sit not down and sigh!

ORIGINAL ESSAYS.

ORDER.

Nothing can be well done, generally speaking, unless it is done thro' a system of order. If we go to our county courts, where, as a general thing, unconverted men rule, we see a system of order, and that system is carried out. If we go to any respectable worldly gathering, where necessity sometimes calls us, we find a system of order; but when we go to our Council Meetings, we find very little order there. That is the point I am aiming at. Brethren and sisters, I hope you will bear with me in thus giving my mind, as I have been pressed with a sense of duty for several years to write something on this subject, and the Scripture says, "quench not the spirit." I will now give my views in regard to order at our Council Meetings. First, after the meeting has been opened by singing and prayer, when a case is taken up; that case should be fairly and plainly stated; then if any one has anything to say, let him or her, speak, and all the rest be quiet until he or she is through; then if another has something to say, proceed in the same manner, and so on, till all who have anything to say, have given their views, then if necessary take the voice of the church, and that case is settled. Proceeding in that way a case can soon be disposed of. Why, says one, that is the way we do. To the unobserving, and unthinking mind, that may appear so, but I will now try to picture to the mind the way in which our Council Meetings are conducted. I have allusion, only, to those which I have attended; but as a general thing, I think the Brethren will agree that the picture is a pretty fair one. First then, after a case has been stated and perhaps one has given his views on it, then the disorder and confusion commences; two hang their heads together here, two there, and two at another place discussing the case between themselves and thus it goes on until some one calls for order, then the confusion ceases for a short time only to be commenced again, if possible, with renewed vigor, and when the voice is taken, many are not decided, and have nothing to say. I will just here state that the private conversation or discussions in most cases commences at the table. I am aware that some of the official brethren contend that it is sometimes necessary for them to consult among themselves, but I will take the liberty to differ on that point, from the standpoint that all the members have an equal right to know all that is going on in council, and also to give their views if they feel so disposed, and if it is necessary for the official brethren to consult in order to get a full understanding of the case in question, so that they can rightly judge, is it not equally necessary for all to have the same advantage, by hearing their consultations? The reasonable conclusion is in the affirmative. If our Council Meetings were conducted through a regular system of order, brethren who have a considerable distance to go, would not be necessitated to leave before council is over, in order to get home by daylight, inasmuch as business would be done in half the time. I think it would be altogether proper for the official brethren to see that order is kept, and to speak as soon as any disorder is manifest, inasmuch as their influence would have more effect than a lay members. As I am writing about order I will just mention another practice of disorder which the Brethren are thoughtlessly guilty of, and that is the practice at our regular meetings, of spending the time before services commences in conversation, so much so as to cause a continual, murmuring, rolling sound all through the house. These things ought not to be so. Spectators at our meetings, Lovefeasts excepted, manifest far more regard to order in this respect than the members. The thought should cause us to blush. It has been said "a hint to the wise is sufficient." but whether this hint will tend to a reformation in this respect I am unable to say, hope it may. What I have written has not been done through a spirit of fault-finding, but through a sense of duty, seeing the great necessity of reform among us in regard to order.

A LOVER OF ORDER.

THE FINER FEELINGS.

Although the mariner may not understand the combination of causes that produce the evening rainbow, and may waste his rude philosophy on it in vain, yet as soon as it appears, he hails it as the harbinger of a bright sky to-morrow. Just so the finer feelings may not have been investigated and comprehended by all, and although, we may not have the same opinion regarding what they are, yet when they appear we are ready to acknowledge their charms.

By the finer feelings, we do not mean that it is to have a delicate perception of beauty of face or figure, or in the selection of finery, which is sometimes mistaken for cultivation, but we mean those nobler feelings which spring from the deep recesses of the heart, pure and unalloyed by selfish motives. Among the principal of these worthy emotions is a past acknowledgment of worth and talent in others. In this world, we are one vast brotherhood; we are told that one is not better than another; but upon some, greater endowments have been munificently showered by an All-wise Providence than upon others. But beautiful and winning as may be the qualities of the mind to disinterested virtue, when viewed through the media of envy and jealousy, their charms are lost. How low must the person have fallen who cannot look upon the faults of another without magnifying them into many times their true proportion; but how much lower must he have fallen who cannot see true worth in another, without having the worst passions of nature rising in wild repinings. But on the other hand, how different, how elevated, how true to his own best interests the person who can as easily make excuses for, as detect faults in others; who dares step boldly forward and without flattery from wealth and power, and bestow it upon well earned victory, or true greatness, who can see and appreciate merit no matter where it is found. We at once admire the feeling of gratitude. How hurt we feel when one who has received favor at our hands seeks to injure us. The sweetest of these feelings are those arising from the social relation. What is dearer to the heart of every one than the influences of a happy christian home. Nothing in the world can fill the void that is made by its removal. The author "Sweet Home" was a wanderer in foreign lands, but the influences so dear to all, filled his heart with the sentiment which gave expression to one of the most sublime songs in our, or indeed any other language.

MAGGIE STIFLER.

Lewisburg, Pa.

ON BAPTISM—ITS DESIGN.

I notice in the PILGRIM, April 16, information wanted in regard to the design of water baptism; and also the opinion of the greater portion of the fraternity given as an explanation of said wanted information. But as there are different views entertained by some of us; I will also give my own views and that of some others on this point; I have given it as much thought, probably, as any other brother, and my own feelings have been hurt by my brethren preaching and contending for their experience and peculiar opinion of the Scriptures at the expense or sacrifice of his brother, who, probably, has as much scripture to sustain him as they have.

Now I see no use in contending for these points, whether the spirit be received before or after baptism, unless we wish to cause divisions; and this I hope is not the case. Therefore, for the purpose of reconciling these extremes, I have taken my pen to notice the arguments on both sides, and see if a union of sentiments, as well as experience cannot be gained, with a great deal of scriptural argoment in its favor. Those that contend that baptism is for the remission of sin, or in other words, to get them remitted, argue thus: that no one can receive the Holy Ghost before his sins are remitted; and that we must be baptized, before we can get them remitted; in proof for which they refer you to the baptism of our Savior, at which time the spirit was received after baptism, and again they refer you to St. Mark, 16: 16. also Acts, 2: 38; 8: 14; 19: 1, 7; 22: 16. Also Rom. 6: 3 5; Gal. 3: 27; also, Col. 2: 12; 1 Peter, 3: 21. They also contend that inasmuch as John baptized for the remission of sins, and that our Savior told Nicodemus that he must be born of water first, that there is no promise until we are baptized, John 3: 5. They also argue that God has a plan and that the conditions are first, Faith, and then repentance and baptism; and that nothing short of this will do on our part, and that if we do our part, God will be as good as his word and he will do his, which is to pardon our sins; and give us the gift of the Holy Ghost.

The opposite tell us that inasmuch as we are all sinners by nature, we must be born again and that like our Savior we should be born of the spirit first; and that then, to fulfill all righteousness we should or must be born of water or be baptized as an outward figure of an already inward regeneration. In proof of which, they refer you to Matt. 1: 20; 3: 11; Mark, 1: 8; 16: 16; John 1: 33; 3: 5-17; &c.

They argue that the reception of the Holy Ghost is through faith, and faith alone; and that the remission of sin and the reception of the Holy Spirit (or Ghost), is an instantaneous act and they separate it from water baptism, referring us to the language of John the Baptist; also, Acts 8: 14-18; 19: 1 7. The reason they give for them not receiving the Holy Ghost before John's baptism, is the 39th verse of the 7th chapter of John's Gospel. They contend that remission of sin and the gift of the Holy Ghost is the special gift of God, referring us to Eph. 2: 8. They claim that God has a plan of salvation and that Paul taught it; which was repentance toward God and faith in the Lord Jesus Christ; and that Peter, who was formally a Jew, and put a great deal of stress in works, was miraculously convinced, by the sheet let down from Heaven, that God was and is no respector of persons; and that if Peter formally believed that baptism was for the remission of sin and the gift of the Holy Ghost, he must have changed his mind, or he would not have baptized Cornelius. Acts 10: 47, who had received the Holy Ghost, unless for the purpose of carrying out God's plan of salvation; and if so, we see that baptism follows the gift of the Holy Ghost.

Thus my brethren, you can see that both parties have a "thus saith the Word," for their positions. And while we are contending for either of these plans, which are our own experience, and limit God's power to save; we offend each other, and oft do injustice to the truth or word of God. Therefore, I hope to be heard on these important subjects. One is baptism of water, and the other is baptism of the Holy Ghost; and to get an understanding of these subjects, we must find the design of water baptism, and the method of obtaining the Holy Ghost.

In the first place we see that in order to reconcile scripture we must look at some passages as being figurative and others not, or else we would make God a changeable being, and partial. Yes, if we do not admit of using passages in a figurative sense, there would be a flat contradiction in the scripture, and I, for one, would be an unbeliever. But thanks be to God, it is easily reconciled to the impartial seeker, whose eyes have been opened; who has tasted of the good word of the Lord, and who has the witness of the spirit in his breast.

First, Baptism or the design of it, in many passages, must be considered in a figurative light to denote our internal cleansing, and thus becomes a beautiful emblem of our moral porification. Hence, Peter speaks of being baptized for the remission of sin, Acts 2: 38, and of its being the answer of a good conscience toward God. 1st Peter, 3: 21. Ananias says to Saul, arise and be baptized and wash away thy sins, calling on the name of the Lord. Acts, 22: 16.

2d. Again in baptism is made a formal and practical profession of christianity. On this account the convert is said to baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus, Acts 2: 38; 8: 16; 10: 48; also, 19: 5; i. e., into an acknowledgment of his authority and character. Having this understanding as to the design of baptism, Paul, in order to quell a difficulty, respecting ministers at Corinth, reminds the Corinthians that they were baptized into Christ, and not in the name of Paul.

3d. Baptism constitutes a visible line of demarkation between the Church and the world. Those who become Christ's disciples are required to "confess him before men," and identify themselves with his people. Jesus taught the entire separation of his Church from the world in many passages, John 15: 19; 17: 6, 9, 20, 21, 18: 36. So did his disciples teach, 2d Cor, 6: 14-18. The baptized having thus came out from the world, are said to have put on Christ, Gal. 3: 27. Also baptism is represented as a symbol of death to sin and resurrection to newness of life. Such is the representation in Rom. 6: 1-5; Col. 2: 12; "Baptized unto his death, i. e. into a conformity to Christ, with respect to his death." &c.

Thus we can plainly see that it is an outward figure or sign of an inward regeneration; and cannot produce the internal, as is frequently argoed by some, neither should we argue that the internal should be felt before baptism, but teach that God giveth the internal, (or spirit), and that his power is not limited by any figurative passage of scripture, but that he will impart the Holy Ghost to all them that ask for it, Matt. 7: 8; also, Luke, 11: 13, Seek for it, Matt. 7: 7-8; Luke 11: 9-10, and strive for it, Luke 13: 24. Yes my dear brethren, it is the special gift of God; as was predicted by the Prophet Joel, 2: 28; Acts 2: 14-18, and was promised by Christ, John 16: 7, and was acknowledged by Peter, Acts 10: 34-48; also, 11: 15-19. Yes the effects of it was seen by the apostles, exactly as the blessed Savior, said: John 3: 8, and should not the same signs follow now that it did then? It was an instantaneous act of the Almighty then, and should it not be now?

Read, Acts, 2: 4-19; 4: 8, 31; 5: 32; 6: 3; 7: 51-55; 8: 15, 17, 19; 9 - 17; 10: 44-48; 11: 15-17; 13: 2, 4, 9; 15: 8, 28.

After reading those passages of scripture, who can deny but that it was felt by the receiver, and seen (or the effects of it), by the spectator? Can all of our brethren testify to the time when they received the spirit? If not, they are behind the Apostolic mark. How seldom do we hear the language of the patient Job, "I know that my Redeemer liveth." Or that of the Apostle Paul, "For we know," &c., Cor. 2: 5. How seldom do some of our preachers, select a passage of Scripture relating to the internal nature? And if by chance, they do, what great stress is put upon some word, on water, for instance, before spirit in John 3: 5; while the following Scripture, show to the unbiased mind that the birth the Savior spoke of was a spiritual one.

I might write a great deal more on this subject, but I do not wish to trespass but merely to do my duty, which duty is to correct any error that may exist in our own fraternity. This I have done in love.

And now in conclusion, I would say to all who wish to gain a spiritual relationship with Christ, seek, ask, strive and knock, and unless you can exercise faith it will all be in vain Faith is the key that unlocks the door to our hearts; therefore my advice would be to wrestle like Jacob of old, or like the woman who troubled the judge. Continue to ask until you can lay hold on the promise by faith. Paul says, in Romans 5: 5, "Because the love of God is shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Ghost which is given unto us," also 8; 15, "For ye have not received the spirit of bondage again to fear, but ye have received the spirit of adoption whereby ye can cry Abba Father. The spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit that we are the children of God." Also 2d Cor. 1; 22, "Who hath also sealed us, and given the earnest of the spirit in our hearts."

Reader, have you this witness, this knowledge of your acceptance in the beloved? You may call it enthusiasm, but I assure you it is the height of enthusiasm to expect to be saved without experiencing those evidences of Divine favor. Oh! do not, therefore, conclude yourself a Christian, merely because you have had some sorrow for sin, have externally reformed, have been baptized, and because you belong to the church, and partake of her ordinances. All these things are good in their place, but you must go farther. To have the comforts and advantages of religion, you must have a real change of heart, and when this change is wrought by the eternal spirit, you shall have the inward testimony of the Holy Spirit, that you have passed from death unto life. Has this radical change been wrought in you? Examine impartially, search deep, build not upon the sand of a false hope.

Thus my brethren, I leave the matter with you, your God and my God. If I have failed in this or any other respect, I wish to be apprised of it, for I know that we must work while it is day, for the night will soon come when we must render an account of our stewardship.

JOHN F. STAMY.

REMARKS. We publish this production because he desires to be heard, and believe him to be honest in his convictions, though like a great many other good people, a little wrong shipped. We do not wish to rob our dear brother of the consolation of the Holy Spirit, but he should be careful not to ignore the terms upon which it is promised. Brethren, let us ever remember that obedience is better than sacrifice. This thing of asking, wrestling and praying for a thing before we are willing to comply with the terms upon which it is promised does not speak well of the applicant, neither is it in harmony with the teachings of Christ. It was all right with those who were not informed of the conditions, but to us who have the plan of salvation revealed it is said, "Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ, for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost." All this jangling about when we are to receive the Holy Ghost and its effects is from a misunderstanding of terms, and all that is needed to reconcile the whole matter is to give the subject an intelligent, careful and prayerful consideration. Is the Godhead divided? Most certainly not, but it has different offices, and differworks to perform to accomplish the same end.

The first office of the spirit is to reprove the world of sin. Jno. 16: 8. In other places this is termed the drawings of the Father. "None can come unto the Son except the Father draw them." This "reproving" and "drawing" is the first moving cause of the sinners turning to God or his conviction, repentance and conversion. Conviction and conversion are frequently taken for regeneration, hence the different opinions in regard to the reception of the Holy Ghost. The reprovings of the spirit and conviction of the sinner produces results governed by circumstances. If a man be grossly wicked or altogether indifferent to religion, or wrongly taught, the light of the spirit will be so powerful as to strike him down as it did Paul, but to such as have been bro't up in the true faith and properly taught, the effects will be quite different. In this condition, the soul is led by the spirit to Christ the same as the children of Israel were led out of Egypt by Moses, to the Red Sea, a beautiful figure of baptism, but they received not the law until they were baptized unto Moses in the cloud and in the sea, neither has the sinner the promise of receiving the gift of the Holy Ghost in its second office until after he is buried with Christ in baptism. It is not rational, or reasonable that a child should receive a law before it is born, and just so little can an unborn sinner receive the gift of the Holy Ghost, which is to lead him into all truth, before baptism. Here comes in a nice point and one that has given rise to all the different opinions in regard to this mooted question. It is the same spirit performing different offices. In the first place it, like Moses led the children of Israel from under the Egyptian bondage through the sea of deliverance, leads the sinner from under the bondage of satan through faith, repentance and baptismal regeneration. As the Israelites were delivered from their enemy in their baptism, so the sinner is delivered from the power of sin through his burial with Christ in baptism. As Moses delivered the law unto them and led them towards the promised land, after their birth, so the Holy Spirit unfolds to the new born child the truths contained in the plan of salvation, and leads it toward the heavenly Canaan. What the feelings of the Israelites were when informed of their conditional salvation, we are not told. Those of an excitable disposition may have shouted and made visible demonstrations of joy, while others may have accepted it in a regular practical way and entered the journey with a good will, after making the necessary calculations. Just so it is with sinners when the power of salvation is first impressed upon their minds, some are all feelings while others are all practical. There is not so much in how a man receives a message, or what his feelings are, as how he carries out the spirit and direction of that message. So it is with the sinner. It does not matter whether, at his conviction, he shouts, cries or prays, but if he wishes to be saved he must accept the terms contained in the message of salvation.

We do not fully understand the position of our brother, but if he thinks a man can receive that spirit, which is to lead into all truth, before he is born, we will most certainly differ with him, but if he will accept the spirit in its different offices, first, as a leader, and secondly, as a teacher, then we will call it only a difference of comprehension, and hope that by a friendly interchange of ideas we may all be enabled to see eye to eye.

Our dear brethren should be careful in expressing their views on that subject as we may entertain extreme views on either side. Let us preach the Word, and if that is accepted the Holy Spirit will be given, and we know of no better evidence that we are in possession of that spirit and that the love of God is shed abroad in our hearts, than that given by our Savior; "If ye love me, keep my commandments."

DEATH.

What a solemn thing is death. All must die, there is no alternative, but how many live as though they were to live always on this earth. The grass of the field and the leaves of the forest all tell us they are passing away to return no more until gentle Spring comes again. So with us, we are passing away, soon the time and place that now knows us will know us no more. Soon these bodies of ours will lie in the cold embrace of death; soon, ah, perhaps very soon, the hand that writes these few imperfect lines will soon be still and cold in death. These eyes that are now permitted to look abroad upon the works of nature will perhaps soon be closed to the things of this world; this heart that now throbs so freely will soon be stopped; this body will be but a lifeless lump of clay, fit only to dwell in the silent grave and be food for worms. But where will the spirit go? If prepared it will go to the bright mansions on high, if unprepared, it will have to take up its abode in the dark dungeons of despair. What a good thing to be prepared to die, and what an awful thing to be unprepared. Those of us who profess to be pilgrims and strangers on earth, let us take courage, and march boldly on, the warfare will soon be ended and the victory won.

And you my friends who are still sporting upon the barren fields of sin and folly, let me entreat you to make haste and make your peace calling and election sure. What would be your awful condition if called upon to leave this world? Serve the Lord while you are young, you will never regret it. One day spent in the service of God is better than a thousand spent in sin. Perhaps you may think you have a long time to live in this world,—that it is time enough for you to be a Christian, but you may be mistaken, ere you have time to think you may be hurled into eternity. You know not what hour death may come and claim you as his victim. How many when they come upon their dying beds would give the whole world, if they possessed it, for just one hour of time to make their peace with God, but it is not granted them. How would your fathers and mothers, brothers and sisters and friends rejoice to see you turn from your evil ways, and best of all the angels in Heaven would rejoice over you. Make haste and delay not for the hour of death may be near, much nearer than you think.

"Turn mortal turn, thy danger know,
Where'er thy foot can tread,
The earth rings hollow from below
And warns thee of her dead."

M. C. K.

YOUTHFUL SMOKERS.

What can be more disgusting to a person while walking along the streets than to see boys scarcely fifteen years of age, standing upon street corners puffing lighted cigars, with volumes of smoke issuing from their mouths. If there is anything I dislike it is to see a young man the victim of this terrible habit, which helps to cut down youth in its vigor. The use of tobacco in most cases, creates a taste for intoxicating liquors, and leads its victims down the broad path of destruction, finally plunging them into the most slavish of all habits—intemperance.

I will close by giving the boys a little advice, which is, don't smoke, or hang around street corners. If you do, you will learn to swear, steal, talk slang, etc., and your good character will leave you in a short time.—Young Folk's Rural.

SILENT MINISTRY.

There is much of this in the world; much faithful, loving service approved only by God. Of such the Master says: "It shall in no wise lose its reward." This silent and effective ministry is well illustrated in the following anecdote:

"There was once," says Dr. Smith, "a colored woman who used to sit in one corner of the gallery on the Sabbath, and single out some young man as he came in at the door, and pray for him till she saw him come forward to join the church. Then she dropped him and singled out another, and prayed for him in like manner, till she witnessed a similar result. Then she dropped him and took a third, and so on, till at the end of twenty years she had seen twenty young men join themselves to the Lord in a perpetual covenant—young men with whom she had no personal acquaintance whatever. This fact was disclosed to her pastor on her death bed."

He that is good, will infallibly become better, and he that is bad will as certainly become worse; for vice, virtue, and time, are three things that never stand still.

INNATE INNOCENCE.

Adam's Guilt not Imputed to his descendants.

CHRIST'S VICARIOUS SACRIFICE NECESSARY ONLY FOR ACTUAL SIN.

"As by the offence of one, judgement came upon all men to condemnation; even so by the righteousness of one, the free gift came upon all men unto justification of life." Rom. V. 18.

"As in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive." 1 Cor. xv. 22.

Many similar passages all have the same meaning. Adam's transgression, and Christ's atonement are frequently contrasted and compared. Sin and salvation are often placed in antithesis. From the first clause of the antithesis is deduced the doctrine of Original Sin, Total Depravity, or Universal Condemnation. If this be admitted, the second clause must establish the doctrine of Universal Salvation: for as with one, even so with the other. No one, but a universalist, contends that all men shall actually be saved through Christ's atonement, whether they will or not. Only such as accept his terms can hope for his promise.

Lo, no man sins, save through his own will and choice; knowingly, just as Adam did. The true meaning is, that, like Adam, all men may sin; so through Christ may all such be saved. If the common dogma be received, that one man damns us all without our fault or knowledge, there is no escape from the conclusion that another man saves us all without our knowledge or effort. But this conclusion is wrong: hence the promise is false. Adam's guilt is not imputed to his descendants.

Whether the account of Adam and his Fall be a strict statement of actual fact in every particular, or a mere moral fable, matters not.

The lesson taught is the same, viz: that man is born guiltless, but that he may become guilty by his own conduct. Every infant is as innocent as Adam was before his fall. Each descendant of Adam partakes of his qualities and characteristics: that is, each one of us is created pure and innocent; with the germ of sin, or evil tendency, it is true: but also with the germ of virtue, or good tendency. As in Adam's, so in each one's individual case, the contest between this Good and this Evil Spirit is decided for himself alone. And each one is held guilty, only so far as the evil overcomes the good in his particular individual case. The choice of Good or Evil is offered to each one for himself: and he alone is responsible for that choice. He is accountable only for his own "Actual Sin," and not for the "Imputed Sin" of Adam. "God will render to every man according to his deeds." Ro. II. 5-11. Adam's guilt is not transmitted any more than the guilt of our immediate parents. What an intolerable burden of guilt would crush each one of us, if the accumulated load of all our forefathers were imposed upon us! Truly, then, each child, in the language of the old divines, were "a lump of sin," and "worthy of God's wrath!"

What a fetid stream of evil, concentrated from all the innumerable crimes of all our ancestors, must flow through the heart of each of us!

What an inexhaustible fountain of corruption must have swelled and sprung up in Adam, that he could have contaminated and poisoned all the numberless rivulets of human life!

What a monster of vice must Adam have been! What imps of Satan must each of us be!

"The son shall not bear the iniquity of the father." Ezek. XVIII, 20.

Certainly, physical consequences are visited upon the children, as well as moral qualities or dispositions. The child of a drunkard is apt to inherit the depraved appetite of his father.

But can any justice condemn that child for being a drunkard, unless he actually becomes one?

The tendency to crime may be transmitted by inheritance; but not the crime itself, or the guilt thereof.

The sins of the fathers, and the virtues also, be it remembered, are visited upon the children by example more than by blood. Especially is this fact observable in religious opinions and forms of worship. In such matters, early education enforced by the father, and sanctioned, yea, sanctified by the mother, is apt to make a lasting impression. Hence the 2d commandment was particularly applicable in those times of idolatry.

It will be observed that vice and virtue are again here placed as correlatives. The virtues of the parents are shown in the children even by a more extensive promise; as to thousands: while the evil influence seems to be comparatively limited: as to the third and fourth generations.

The stronger tendency as well as the stronger inducement to virtue is frequently set forth. St. Paul repeats that while, like Adam, many will give offence, much more shall the grace of God, through Jesus Christ, abound unto many. Not only declaring that many more persons in number will receive the blessing than the curse; but also that the punishment will not be commensurate with the reward—the reward so far exceeding.

Two conditions are necessarily precedent to the commission of sin, or violation of God's will, in every man's case:

1st. He must be compos mentis, of a sound mind; capable of judging right from wrong.

2nd. He must be informed as to what is right, and what is wrong: must know the will of God.

Infants escape condemnation under both conditions: the heathen under the latter surely; for they have had no Revelation. St. Paul says, "Sin is not imputed where there is no law." Ro. V. 13.

It is perfectly plain that Christ's sacrifice was not necessary for either of these two classes. They cannot be "sinners." "He died for "sinners" alone. "The whole need not a physician. I am not come to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance." Matt. IX. 12. Mk. II. 17. Lu. V. 31.

As in the commission of sin, even so in the acceptance of salvation, two conditions are necessarily precedent.

1st. The person must have discretion.

2d. He must have a knowledge of the terms offered by Christ.

Else how can he believe?

As we can be saved only by believing on Christ, and complying with the offer of his redemption; so we can sin only by knowingly and willfully violating God's law. Knowledge and discretion are in each case presumed to exist. The choice is offered to us all: we can sin or not, as we will; we can accept salvation or not, as we will. As salvation through Christ is not forced on any one without his knowledge or consent; so sin through Adam is forced on no one without his consent.

This view of our creation and redemption does away with the necessity of those fictions of the Fathers of the Church, as that we are created deserving of God's wrath; the doctrine of total depravity or original sin; its horrible consequent infant damnation, and in return its humane consequent baptismal regeneration.

Man's sense of justice revolted at the dreadful dogma of condemnation of the innocents, and forced the said Fathers to provide an easy though absurd method for their salvation, viz: baptismal regeneration. (See Epis. Prayer Book, infant baptism.)

Or, if universal condemnation be insisted upon, then the heterodox view of universal salvation would seem the most logical, as well as the most agreeable. The true interpretation of the scriptures discards all such human inventions. We would raise no doubt as to the authenticity or credibility of the Holy Word. God's will is certainly revealed so plainly, that none need err therein. But the Bible, as we now have it, has passed through many languages and many hands, and consequently many different versions and renderings exist.—The authorized version of the English Church, known as King James' Bible, the one now in general use with Protestants, was not made till the 17th century. In it there are many recognized mistakes, inaccuracies and interpolations; many passages regarded as by no means "inspired."

In 2 Timothy, III. 16., the translation is, "All scripture is given by inspiration of God." There is preponderance of authority in favor of the rendering—"Every writing, which is inspired, is also profitable, &c." An assertion which no one could doubt. (Vid. Smith's Bible Dict. Scripture, Bible, Version, &c.)—It must be borne in mind that St. Paul wrote that passage long before the "canonical" scriptures were separated from the "apocryphal," yes, even before some of the "canonical were written. He could not have included the whole of one Bible, or excluded every other writing. The Jewish apocryphal books are still received by the Roman Catholic Church as canonical, but not by the Protestants. While Protestants agree generally as to what books are canonical; they differ radically as to the interpretation of many passages. Which interpretation is inspired? Is it contended that the collection, translation, selection, and compilation of the authorized version alone were all inspired? However, the fundamental truths of the Gospel are plain; and all other inspired writings will adapt themselves to them. God says, "It is not good that man should be alone."—Gen. II. 18. Paul says, "It is good for a man not to touch a woman."—2 Cor. VII. 1 God commands us to multiply and replenish the earth. David says that he was "shapen in iniquity and conceived in sin." Now shall we yield obedience to God's express authority, and to the demands of our very nature; or defy both and cease to propagate our kind, through some fanciful interpretation of the opinions of our fellow men? Plainly, these opinions, if inspired, have been grossly misinterpreted; as the doctrine usually taught from them is anything but inspired. They must be made to conform to the order of God and nature, or they must be set aside as uninspired. It is difficult to understand how any christian who adopts Paul's doctrine, as taught in the IX Article of Religion of the P. Episcopal Church, can conscientiously do otherwise than follow his example also, and lead a life of celibacy. If David's writings are all inspired one would suppose his deeds were also, for actions speak louder than words.—And while we admit that instruction may be gained from both, surely we are not taught to imitate his conduct in all things. Examples of vice are given for our avoidance, as well as examples of virtue for our guidance.

The LI Psalm which contains the words referred to, was written by David just after he had committed his great crime, and Nathan had condemned him therefore so plainly by parable. Hence David's deep contrition and ardent temperament would naturally seek relief in extravagant poetical expressions. If we will understand him to assert that he inherited a disposition or liability to sin, all apparent contradiction to our theory is reconciled. The Jews drew from this beautiful Psalm no such dogma as the crime of conception; the corruption of the mysterious Holy of Holies of our nature. There is ample ground for the explanation of the expression of David's remorse or of Paul's asceticism.

The germ of good and the germ of evil are inborn with every one. And the strife between the two for development is made in every one's life. "When I would do good, evil is present with me." Yes, and when I would do evil, good (in the form of consoience) is present with me. There is original virtue as well as original vice.

Christ says of those who have not already developed this original germ of sin, that they are of the Kingdom of Heaven, and he assures us that we can in no wise enter therein except we become as innocent as those little ones.

Youth's Department.

A WORD FITLY SPOKEN.

A wonderful deal of good comes from what Solomon calls a word "fitly spoken." The Hebrew for "fitly spoken" here means "set on wheels." All our words are set on wheels. If they are good words, they are wheeling on for good, if they are evil words, they go wheeling on for evil. Remember this.

One day a boy was tormenting a kitten. His little sister, with her eyes full of tears, said to him, "O Philip, don't do that, it is God's kitten!"

That word of the little girl was not lost. It was set on wheels. Philip left off tormenting the kitten, but he could not leave off thinking about what his sister had said.

"God's kitten, God's creature—for he made it," he said to himself; "I never thought of that before."

The next day on his way to school he met one of his companions beating unmercifully a poor half-starved-looking dog. Philip ran up to him and before he knew it, was using his sister's words, saying, "don't do that, Ned, it's God's creature."

The boy looked ashamed, and tried to excuse himself by saying that the dog had stolen his dinner.

"Never mind," said Philip, "you shall have a half of mine."

So they went on their way to school together and soon forgot all about the dog.

But Philip's words had been set on wheels again, and much good was to follow from them.

Two persons were passing just as Philip spoke, and they heard his words. One was a young man in prosperous business in a neighboring town; the other was a dirty, ragged, miserable looking creature. He had got into the habit of drinking, and in consequence of this had just been dismissed from his employer, and was going home, feeling very unhappy and despairing.

"God's creatures!" said the poor fellow, and it seemed a new idea to him too. "If that dog is God's creature, then I'm God's creature too, and he will help me if no one else will."

Just then he came to the tavern where he had been in the habit of wasting his money, and then going home to abuse his family. He stopped a moment—the temptation was very strong to go in, but the new thought was stronger. "No, I'm God's creature," he said to himself, "I'll go in there no more." And he went on toward home.

His wife was astonished to see him come home sober, and still more when he burst into tears, saying that he was a ruined man, but was determined to give up drinking, and try, by God's help, to be a better man.

Just then a knock was heard at the door. It was the gentleman of whom we have just spoken. He had heard Philip's words too. They were words on wheels to him. They went rolling after him. He could not get away from them.

"This is one of God's creatures, too, he said to himself, as he looked at the poor ragged man who was walking before him. 'He looks as if he needed help," he went on to say, and perhaps I can give it to him."

This led him to follow the poor man to his home. He offered him work. This was thankfully received, and faithfully done. This poor fellow kept his resolution. He never was found in the tavern again, but became a sober, industrious, useful happy man. And the simple words which that little girl set on wheels when she spoke to her brother were the means of doing all this good.—Dr. Newton.

ONE THING AT A TIME.

BY C. C. VAN HORN.

If you would be successful in any occupation, never commence any piece of work to leave it and begin something else, but stick to one thing till it is done. This plan will prove decidedly advantageous. We often hear men, farmers especially, complain of having so much work to do that they don't know where to begin. There is where they are delinquent. Every farmer should the first thing in the morning, make a programme in his mind of the work to be done during the day. Then work with energy and determination until that plan is completed.

Thus you see, he will know just what to do first, and when night comes he can say, with the poet, "Something attempted, something done." But the men who are always commencing and seldom finishing, though they are exact in everything else, will never be very prosperous.

Boys are apt to mix work and play together a little more than is considered beneficial by their parents or teachers. "One thing at a time," boys. If you have a lesson to learn, go to work, study diligently till you have mastered it; after which, if you have any time to play you will enjoy it wonderfully.

"Work when you work,
Play when you play,
This is the way
To be happy and gay!"

LOVE OF HOME.

The heart has memories that never die. The rough rubs of the world cannot obliterate them. They are memories of home—early home. There is magic in the very sound. There is the old tree under which the light-hearted boy swung many a day; yonder the river in which he learned to swim; there is the house in which he knew a parent's protection; nay, there is the room in which he romped with brother and sister long since, alas! laid in the cemetery in which he must soon be gathered, over-shadowed by yon old church, whither with a joyous troop like himself, he has often followed parents to worship. Why, even the very schoolhouse, associated in youthful days with thoughts of tasks, now comes to bring pleasant remembrances of many occasions that call forth some generous exhibitions of the noble traits of human nature. There is where he learned to feel some of his first emotions. There, perchance, he first met the being who, by her love and tenderness in life, has made a home for himself, happier even than that his childhood knew. There are certain feelings of humanity, and those, too, among the best, that can find an appropriate place for their exercise only by one's own fire side.

Let your prayers be as frequent as your wants and your thanksgivings as your blessings.

The pebbles in our path weary us and make us foot-sore more than the rocks which only require a bold effort to surmount

OUR CORRESPONDENCE

A Reporter is wanted from every Church in the brotherhood to send us Church news, Obituaries, Announcements or anything that will be of general interest. To insure insertion, the writers name must accompany each communication. Our invitation is not personal but general—please respond to our call.

Notes of Travel and Jottings by the Wayside.

BY J. S. FLORY.

On account of an unusual number of visitors last week, we got our correspondence a little mixed. The following "Notes of Travel" should have been inserted last week, and those of last week should have followed. Editor.

Dear Pilgrim:—On the morning of the 23rd of August took the train, at Falls of Kanawha for Charleston, where I arrived after a few hours ride. Met with brother Starkey, who took me to Twomile school-house, preaching at 11 A. M. and 4 P. M. Preaching at Methodist church, some two miles up. Sunday 25th, at 11 o'clock, preached the funeral of sister M. A. Edens to a large concourse of people at Piny Point school-house. Sister Edens came from Franklin Co., Va., a few years ago, to Kanawha, W. Va. Her name formerly was Smith. She died June 12th, 1872, aged 40 years. Left an infant eight months old. She died rejoicing in the strong hope of a glorious inheritance in Heaven. Her last words were,

"Sing, Children of the Heavenly King."

At night preached in a school house in another neighborhood, to a good congregation of attentive people. Went home with brother Starkey to Charleston. Meeting in the city next day at 11 o'clock A. M. After meeting, brother Perry took me to his home, nine miles down the river. Preaching at night in the school-house near by. Went home the next day with brother Starkey. Spent some hours with sister M. Haws and friends in Charleston. In the evening took the train and returned to the Kanawha Falls. Set out on foot after night with company, and crossed the Cotton Mountain. Arrived at brother David Harshbarger's at 12 o'clock at night. Home next day found all well.

September 7th, in company with brother Joseph Hutchison set out for Summers county. Meeting at 11 o'clock A. M. at brother J. Martin's. At night at Lick Creek meeting-house. Next day at the same place Methodists were carrying on quarterly meeting, and inasmuch as I had given away upon former occasions to them, many of the people urged we should ask for a division of time upon the occasion as he had an appointment elsewhere in the afternoon. I, as courteously as I could, made the request. But, nay! The presiding elder, in whom self-esteem seemed to have the ascendency over "Do as you wish to be done by," in an abrupt manner, proposed to leave the house, unless the trustees would grant him full privileges. But one trustee was present. He refused to decide the matter in that way. Seeing the confusion about to arise I yielded all rightful claims I had to the hour to the unyielding party. But no, the Rev. Elder would not condescend to accept of it from us, so he "Bolted," giving evidence that anger had the place charity should occupy. A number (to his eyes no doubt distressingly small) went with him. The house which was quite commodious, was left to us full of people, with some about the doors and windows. So we had nothing more to do than to attend to the services, trusting in the Lord. Much interest was manifested. I much regretted the occurrence that took place there, but I was assured on every hand that I was not to blame. At 4 P. M. had meeting at Hutchison's, school-house, from which neighborhood next day brother Hutchison returned home. I went to Greenbriar county, and returned home Tuesday night.

Following Friday, the 13th, in company with wife and others, set out for Meadow bluff, Greenbriar county. At 3 o'clock P. M. attended meeting at brother C. Masters'. Next morning "as it began to dawn toward the heat of day," in company with brother A. Evans, we set out on our route. At 12 o'clock we had distanced near 30 miles, and at 2 we were at the Blue Sulphur Springs. Preached to a large congregation, baptized two persons and willing ones, and returned to brother John Forren's. Wife, and the rest of the company we had left back, arrived about 3 o' clock; also brother C. Masters with them. Public preaching announced at 4 P.M. At night had a communion season with the dear members of the section. We felt it was good to be there. Had indeed a good meeting, but we were much disappointed in not meeting "strange" ministering brethren, as we expected. Next day had two meetings at a school-house near by. Good turn out of people. All night with friend D. Huff. Early next morning set out "homeward bound." At 2 P. M. arrived at sister Master's, Fayette county. At 4 P. M. public service commenced. At night had a lovefeast, or communion season. In spirit we enjoyed the sweet communion we there had with fellow citizens of the saints of that household of God. But in body we were in a suffering condition, having contracted a severe cold, and having to labor so much, owing to which we had to recall our next day's appointment at same place. This we done much to our regret, as well as to that of many others. Returned home next morning, Tuesday. Thursday following our communion meeting commenced at our meeting-house. Met with brother Wm. Baily, of Raleigh, who was just recovering from severe injuries received by a fall owing to which he could not labor in the word as freely as he otherwise could. Had a good meeting, but, owing to considerable sickness in the neighborhood, the congregation of spectators was not so large as usual. Meeting next day and choice for deacon. The lot fell on brother Alexander Evens. Next day, Saturday, we went, in company with other brethren, to Raleigh county, to attend their communion. Public service commenced at 2 P. M. Had an excellent meeting, and as good order as we ever saw on such an occasion. A large congregation was out. Next day, after the meeting closed, we returned to Fayette county. Next day preached the funeral of a little son of brother Isaac and Dehlia Roach, who, had he lived until that day, the 23rd of September, would have been five years old. Yesterday, 29th, preached the funeral of sister Harriet Davis, (lately Smith) aged 49 years. After meeting returned home much fatigued and worn by continued labors in the Master's cause. In the four communion meetings above mentioned the burden of ministering in word and the sacrament fell to the lot of your unworthy writer. The past summer's campaign has been to me one of unusual activity in the field of the Lord, and now we feel like a few weeks' of recreation and rest to our tired energies will be in place. To-day we start on a traveling tour, and next you may hear from me from the plains of the "Far West." Until then, farewell, hoping the grace of God, who, deserves all praise for His goodness, will be with us and you all now and forever.

J. S. FLORY.

HAMILTON, Mo. }
Oct 11th, 1872. }

Dear Editor of the Pilgrim:—The long looked for time of our Lovefeast is about here. Preparations are made and we are having pleasant weather, and already we have the soul cheering news that our beloved brother, J. S. Flory will stop with us on the evening train and still more brother Peter Overholtzer is in town ready to go along to meeting in the morning. We retire for the night, feeling refreshed in our souls, assured, if the Lord will, and we live, we shall have a feast of love indeed and one long to be remembered.

Saturday Oct. 12th after some refreshments, preaching at 2 o'clock, good meeting. Evening, large congregation and good attention to the word spoken, after which some said, the Brethren spoke the sentiments of their mind exactly.

Sabbath Oct. 13th, preaching at 10 o'clock by Bro. Overholtzer, Gibson, Glick and others. After some refreshments were set forth, many of our brethren from a distance returned home much refreshed, Bro. Flory remaining to preach for the Lord and for us at 3 P. M. As for a foundation of his remarks he took, "Where art thou?" He spoke in demonstration of the spirit and with power. Where art thou, O Brethren? Let us be up and doing, there may soon be ushered in, one of the most memorable events in our dispensation. Where art thou? O think of this, aged parents, you whose locks are white with the frosts of many winters. Dear young friends, brethren and sisters, let us think of these things and consider the important question, where art thou? and act wisely, and it shall be well with us both in time and in eternity, where there shall be no more sickness nor separation, pain nor grief, sorrow nor sighing, but there, in that blissful sphere no scalding tear shall ever flow o'er the mourner's cheek and there shall be no sorrowing there.

At the close of our meeting we sang together that good old hymn, "My dearest friends in bonds of love," &c., which we have many a time sung with our beloved brethren and sisters and friends in the meeting house at Duncansville, Blair Co., Pa. upon such occasions. The members there, no doubt remember us yet and our old mother, who so often spoke of them since we left there, but she has gone to reap the rewards of her labors. Our brethren and sisters there may think we have forgotten them but we often talk of you. We lived long among and have many fond recollections of the past. "Love is the sweetest bud that blows." Let love be without dissimulation. Bro. Flory returned to Hamilton with us and remained over night. Took the morning train at 10:35 A. M., homeward. May the God of love and mercy and his blessing accompany him through life and finally bring us all together in the mansion of eternal rest is my prayer.

If the Brethren will drop us a line as they travel through, we will arrange appointments accordingly.

DANIEL B. SELL.

PILGRIM OFFICE, JAMES CREEK PA.
Oct. 19th, '72.

To all my dear and much beloved children, and brethren and sisters in the Union Church in Marshall Co., Indiana, and all others who would like to hear from me. I in the first place will let you know that I received a kind letter this morning from my dear children. The letter came to the office after I arrived there, and I was very glad to hear from you all once more, and am truly thankful to God our Heavenly Father, that you were all well when you wrote, also all of the dear members and neighbors. I do hope and pray that you all will keep well until I shall be permitted to see you all again, if the Lord will grant it to be so. Now I will say to you that I am as well as I ever was, thank God for it.

I will let you know that I got through. I started for Delphi with Bro. John Snowberger and his wife their pleasant little babe, and sister Dillinger, got there in good time for the train, left Delphi at 9 o'clock in the forenoon and got to Ft. Wayne in time for the Express train. Arrived at Altoona on the 15th, at about 7 o'clock, thence to Martinsburg where we were taken to brother Isaac Replogle's for dinner. Thence to the Lovefeast at Yellow Creek, Bedford Co., Pa., commencing at 4 o'clock, met many of our dear brethren there that we had previously known, and finding so many dear beloved members it gave me much pleasure, especially when I got into the church and cast my eyes over the many members, all in order, and seeing the Editor of the PILGRIM and many more that I knew, I thought of entering the door of Heaven, where we shall meet all our dear members, and where we will meet father and mother and all our dear children, O, what a joyful thought! Brethren and sisters and dear children, let us all be ready and prepared that we may be there that sight to see, and be together in the home in Heaven. We had a very good meeting and good order.

I am now at the PILGRIM office, and am well entertained. I hope that my dear children and members will read and take the PILGRIM as I believe it to be the best we can do for our children. I do wish the members in the Union District to do all for the brethren they can.

I think to write every week to let you know where I am and what I am doing. From here I think to go to Dale City to a Lovefeast, and then back to the Yellow Creek Church. I hope dear children you will let me know how you are getting along and give me all the news. Direct your next letter to New Enterprise, Bedford Co., Pa. I will not be home until the last of November. I will now close wishing you all the blessings of God. From your weak but well-wishing father and brother,

JOHN KNISLEY.

Dear Pilgrim:—Would it not be advisable and beneficial to have a church library in each congregation, or at least in each one that choose to have it, thereby giving a greater opportunity for reading matter, especially for those who are scarcely able to buy? But how are those libraries to be furnished with books? Why in the following manner: First, let each congregation have one person to send for all the Gospel Visitors said congregation wants, another person send for all the C. F. Companions the congregation wants, a third send for all the PILGRIMS wanted in said congregation, a fourth send for all the Vindicators wanted in said congregation, and as they all offer premiums for clubs, let them take the extra copies or pamphlets or books according to the amount of subscribers. Second, let those who have in possession books that they can dispose of for a season, lone them to the librarian by taking note or memorandum of the same as a pledge for the return of the same in a reasonable time after demand has been made. Let each person getting a book and not returning it within 30 days pay 5 cts.; if not returned within 60 days pay 10 cents, and if not returned within 90 days 15 cents, and no one to keep a book more than 120 days unless he forfeits the price of the book. There ought also to be a treasurer who should receive all the monies received for the use or price of books, also donations given by those who are favorable to the development of the mind of the children of men. In this way I believe, in a short time, a reasonable library might be established in every congregation that would go into the work earnestly and with a pure motive. And would not such libraries afford something for Sunday Schools and much more for those who are opposed to Sunday Schools?

PRO BONO PUBLICO.

EXTRACT.

Dear Pilgrim:—In giving the ministers names I also inform you that Jeremiah Barnhart is no more. He was a preacher in Roanoak Co., Va. for many years, but is now resting with the holy ones of the Lord. This hope should create within us, at all times, a greater firmness in trying to walk in the way our fore fathers did. When we reflect on the shortness of our time in this unfriendly world, that it is not our home, it should admonish us all to prepare for death and the joys of the world to come.

Our hearts are made glad to hear from the great brotherhood through the welcome PILGRIM which we receive every week. All hands are ready to take hold of it to see what it has to tell us, and when we find our dear brethren so nearly alike in sentiment and practice it makes us feel that the merciful hand of the Lord is greatly displayed amongst us, though scattered all over the country and seperated by many hills and mountains, but the time is soon coming that we all may meet in that happy place where parting will be no more, so let us all try and be more faithful as the crown is not at the beginning, nor in the middle but at the end.

JOHN MONTGOMERY.

Dear Brethren Editors:—Bro. Flory's tract on baptism, which you sent me, is, in my estimation an able production. By it being circulated, much good might be done, many precious souls brought from darkness to light and from the power of satan to God. I, for my part cannot see how persons after reading it and comparing it with the Word, can still insist on wandering on in their sinful ways on the barren hills of folly and misery. You may send me eight more on baptism, and two on "Mourner's Bench Religion."

H. FRANK ROSENBERGER.
Allentown, Pa.

The Weekly Pilgrim.

JAMES CREEK, PA., Oct. 29th, 1872

THE AUGHWICK MEETING.

Continued.

Next morning at 9 o'clock we again met for worship and preaching. The services were well accepted by an attentive and respectable audience, and we hope there may have some good seed dropped which may bring forth a profitable harvest in due season. The members appeared to be warmed up, active and alive to duty, and we hope the time may not be far distant when there shall be a general shaking of dry bones, and we shall have a goodly report to give of the Aughwick Church.

This church is noted for turning out a large number of ministers, many of whom are now scattered over the Western States and are doing good service for the Master's Kingdom, but like the mother of many children, she has felt the pangs and being necessitated to rally so often from losses, she became somewhat depressed, but we hope her quota is now filled and that the present force may feel content to labor at home.

The present ministers are as follows: Andrew Spanogle, now superannuated, who formerly, was the acting bishop, but now superceded by John G. Glock, who of late is assisted by A. L. Funk and John Spanogle, they having been advanced to the eldership. Next in office is J. R. Lane P. L. Swine, J. B. Garver, Isaac Book, and lately, R. M. Wakefield.

The old stone church which has been standing for several ages, has recently been remodeled and nicely fitted up, with seats, provided with that very necessary part, 'the back," well painted and elevated at the one side and the ends. The aisles are covered with a plain matting which, though it may be considered an innovation upon our time honored customs, seem to be quite a necessary improvement. It is quite as plain as a bare floor, and so completely deadens the foot-falls that persons can pass in and out without either disturbing the speaker or the congregation. We cannot see why a thing of such real benefit is not generally adopted.

After our bodily wants were attended to and the parting hand given, we were taken to the home of brother John E. Garver, where we enjoyed, for a short time, the hospitalities of this kind family (sister Annie makes people feel at home when in her house), after which we were conveyed to Mt. Union where we took the train and before nightfaring, we were at home, feeling well pleased with the trip to the brethren of Germany Valley.

All along the road from Mt. Union to Shirleysburg a large number of men were engaged in constructing a Railroad, and it is expected by the time of another Communion season at Aughwick, we may have the pleasure of going there by steam power. This road will be a great advantage to their community and we hope that their brightest expectations will be realized.

THE HOPEWELL MEETING.

After spending a pleasant night at home and a short time in the office, we again took the train (Saturday morning) for the Hopewell Lovefeast. By 10:30 we arrived at Hopewell where we were met by friend M. Miller, who is a PILGRIM reader and should be a pilgrim, and conveyed us to the home of Eld Jacob Steel where we were kindly cared for until time of meeting which commenced at 4 o'clock P. M. Here we again met a large number of brethren and sisters who convened to participate in the memorable and life giving feast. Here we had the pleasure of meeting our much esteemed brethren Eld. John Knisely and J. S. Snowberger of Ind., who, in addition to Grabill Myers were the ministerial force from abroad. The ministers of Yellow Creek and Snake Spring were also present. The evening exercises were interesting, well attended and good order maintained, and to those who hungered for righteousness it was surely a feast of fat things. After the exercises were concluded we were taken, in company with Bro. and sister H. Harshberger, by their mother-in-law, sister Steel, to her home where we were kindly cared for during the night. The next day, Sunday, we had quite a large and interesting meeting, one baptized and two applicants. This congregation formerly, was quite large but of late has been divided, the new congregation being named Snake Spring and this one Hopewell. If we had any authority we would protest against both of these names, the former on account of its extreme ugliness and the latter on account of locality. The Church is situated near a little village called Yellow Creek, having a post office of the same name, therefore it by all means should be called Yellow Creek Church and probably would have been had not the adjoining district been so named, but this might easily be obviated by naming that New Enterprise Church, after their post office and thriving village near by. Think of it brethren and see if you cannot find a prettier name as a substitute for Snake Spring, and change the other two. It may be the means of avoiding future inconveniences and give to each a proper postal location.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Remember, all subscriptions will run out at the end of the year, or the time subscribed for. Those wishing to continue their subscription will please do it in good time so that we can have the names all properly booked and be ready to commence with the new volume for 1873.

PILGRIM ALMANAC, 1873.

Almost every day we are getting orders for Almanacs from parties who wish to sell them for us. We hereby inform one and all, that they are not intended for sale, but for free distribution among our subscribers. EVERY subscriber for 1873 will get a Pilgrim Almanac FREE. These must be supplied first, and then if we find that we will have any to spare, our friends may sell for us. Our agents will all receive sample copies of the Almanac as soon as they are ready for distribution. In some cases we do not know who are agents, therefore if any should not receive sample copies, please inform us. Also, all who wish to become agents will be supplied with copies of both PILGRIMS and Almanacs by informing us of their wishes. The Pilgrim Almanac, in some respects, will be the best ever put out by the Church. It is gotten up after the old German or Lancaster Almanac style containing all the signs and everything belonging to a regular family Almanac. The astronomical calculations are made by Prof. Ibach successor to Eagleman, the man of Almanac renown. It contains the Centennial or Hundred year Almanac. A number of biographies of our ministerial brethren never before published. A comprehensive ministerial list giving the county to each address. This is an important feature and will greatly aid in determining location, and is also a requisition of the late postal law. On this list we bestowed a vast amount of labor, as can be testified by those brethren who visited our office and examined the hundreds of sheets of manuscript containing the addresses and other information intended for the Almanac. A history of the Brethren, also some old German documents concerning the early churches of Lancaster and adjoining counties, sent by C. Bomberger, and time and place of the Annual Meeting and a large number of District Meetings and much other religious and instructive reading. In every respect, it is a first class Almanac and should be placed in the hands of every brother and sister in the brotherhood and all others who wish a good family Almanac. Remember, every subscriber to the PILGRIM for 1873 gets one FREE. Please inform the brethren and sisters of this fact and ask them to subscribe for the PILGRIM and get an Almanac FREE.

PERSONAL.

ADDISON BAKER:—We have sent this day, Oct. 18th, to your address, Carthage, Jasper Co., Mo., one copy of the "Emphatic Diaglott."

CROWDED OUT.—There is an unusual amount of interesting matter crowded out this week—correspondence, obituaries, marriages, &c., will appear next week.

JACOB HOLSOPPLE:—Send us whatever he may feel able to pay. If he does not feel able to give you anything, we will expect nothing from you. Thank you for favor received.

Bro. Joseph Amich of Burnettsville, Ind., says that Bro. Quinter was with them at their Communion, had a good meeting, one added to the Church and the spiritual strength of many renewed.

QUERIES.

Did Adam die a temporal death when he partook of the tree of the Knowledge of good and evil? If not, was temporal death pronounced against him after is transgression?

JACOB ZIGLER.

Please give, through the PILGRIM, our reasons for holding close Communion as there are some who are anxious to know why we hold it as we do. G. S. RINKEN.

Why is blasphemy against the Holy Ghost, a greater sin, than blasphemy against the Son? Luke 12: 10.

If a spiritual application of Luke 12: 58, can be made, who are the magistrate, the judge, and the officer and what constitutes the prison.

S. MYERS.

ONIONS FOR POULTRY.

It seems strange that this esculent is so little appreciated, not only for use by the human family, but for poultry. Its curative properties do not seem to be understood, or else are much underrated. And as a preventive, also, it has no superior. A few raw onions, chopped up fine and mixed with feed for young chickens, act like a tonic, and are equally good for old fowls. The tops too, are good. Chop up onion tops and cives for the young turkeys. They are a certain specific against gaps, pip, and other ills that fowldom is heir to. Three times a week is not too often to give them a taste—not merely a taste, but a good bite also. Were the use of green food more common among poultry raisers, we should hear of less cases of cholera, roup, gapes, pip, etc.

If sameness of food will engender disease in man, why not in fowls? Feed your fowls as you do yourself. Give them change, variety. Give them onions mixed with other food at least twice a week. It is better than a dozen cures for chicken cholera.

Fowls exposed to dampness are apt to be troubled with catarrh, which will run to croup if not attended to. Red pepper mixed with soft feed, fed several times a week, will remove the cold. Pulverized charcoal, given occasionally, is a preventive of putrid affections, to which fowls are very subject. Pulverized chalk administered with softer feed will cure diarrhœa. This disorder is caused by want of variety in food, or by too much green food. Garlic placed in water which fowls drink is excellent.

SEED CORN.

No one will deny that great care should be observed in selecting seed corn to plant, and yet numbers of farmers never see their seed corn until it is carried to the field at planting time. We think the best plan is to place a barrel in a corner of the crib and throw into it every large and vigorous ear. Shell off about two inches of the large ends, in order to get the largest and most prolific grains. This produces a large and healthy plant, that grows much faster than small ones do.

At husking time select the best ears, and place them where the air will have free access, and the rain touch them not, and there will be no trouble in having good seed for future use

GOOD BOOKS.

A large number of our patrons are receiving our books as noticed below, as premiums, and express themselves highly pleased with them. Others who are not agents, have enquired whether we keep them for sale, We have now made arrangements with Mr. Wells to furnish any of their publications post paid at publishers prices. Orders for books must be accompanied with the cash, and plain directions for sending them.

How to Live; Saving and Wasting, or Domestic Economy. By Solon Robinson. $1.50.

Life at Home; or, The Family and its Members. Husbands, Wives, Parents, Children, Brothers, Sisters, Employers and Employed, etc. By Rev. William Aikman, D. D. A work which should be found in every family. $1.50. Extra gilt, $2.00.

Hand-book for Home Improvement: comprising "How to Write," "How to Talk," How to Behave," and "How to do Business," in one vol. 2.25.

Man and Woman: Considered in their Relations to each Other and to the World. By Henry C. Pedder. 12mo, Fancy cloth Price $1.00.

Man, in Genesis and in Geology; or, the Biblical Account of Man's Creation, tested by Scientific Theories of his Origin and Antiquity. By Joseph P. Thompson, D. D., LL.D. One vol. 12mo, $1.00.

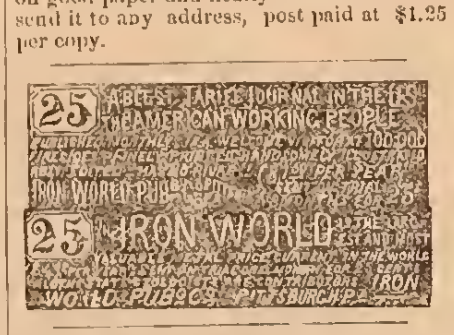
The Right Word in the Right Place. A New Pocket Dictionary and Reference Book. Embracing Synonyms, Technical Terms, Abbreviations, Foreign Phrases Writing for the Press, Punctuation, Proof-Reading, and other Valuable Information. Cloth, 75cts.

The Emphatic, Diaglott; or The New Testament in Greek and English. Containing the Original Greek Text of the New Testament, with an Interlineary Word for-word English Translation. A Work for Students in Theology, and S. S. Teachers. By Benamin Wilson. Price, $4.00; extra fine binding, $5.00.

Oratory—Sacred and Secular; or, the Extemporaneous Speaker. Including Chairman's Guide for conducting Public Meetings according to the best Parliamentary forms. By Wm. Pittenger. $1.50.

TUNE BOOK.

The Brethren's Tune and Hymn Book, is a compilation of Sacred Music adapted to all the hymns in the Brethren's New Hymn Book. It contains over 350 pages, printed on good paper and neatly bound. We will send it to any address, post paid at $1.25 per copy.



Trine Immersion

TRACED

TO THE APOSTLES.

Being a collection of historical quotations from modern and ancient authors, proving that a THREE-FOLD Immersion was the only method of baptizing ever practiced by the Apostles and their immediate successors. The author, after proving Trine Immersion to have been the prevailing practice, in baptism, the first 1500 years of the Christian era, commences with the fifth century, and traces a Three-fold Immersion, to within 33 years of the apostle John's death, and then proves it to have been the Apostolic method of baptizing, while Single Immersion was invented not less than 326 years after the death of Christ.

Put up in a neat pamphlet form, with good paper cover, and will be sent, postpaid, on the following terms: One copy, 25 cts; Five copies, $1.10; Ten copies, $2.00.

Address, J. H. MOORE,
Urbana, Champaign co., Ill.

Oct. 22.

SALEM COLLEGE.

The Fall term of Salem College will open for the reception of any number of students from all parts on the 4th of September, 1872, Ample accommodations and thorough instruction will be given all students who connect themselves with this College. Good board can be had in good families at $2.50 to $3.00 per week or students can board themselves in clubs at $1.25 to $1.50 per week as numbers have done with the consent of the faculty. Special care will be given students who are far from home.

For Catalogues, Scholarships and full particulars address

SALEM COLLEGE,
July 22, '72. Bourbon, Ind.

WANTED BOOK Agents FOR THE GREAT INDUSTRIES

OF THE UNITED STATES;

AN HISTORICAL SUMMARY OF THE ORIGIN, GROWTH AND PERFECTION OF THE CHIEF INDUSTRIAL ARTS OF THIS COUNTRY.

1300 PAGES and 500 ENGRAVINGS.

Written by 20 Eminent Authors, including

JOHN B. GOUGH, LEON CASE, EDWARD HOWLAND, JOS. B. LYMAN, REV. E. EDWIN HALL, HORACE GREELEY, PHILIP RIPLEY, ALBERT BRISBANE, F. B. PERKINS, ETC.

This work is a complete history of all branches of industry, processes of manufacture, etc., in all ages. It is a complete encyclopedia of arts and manufactures, and is the most entertaining and valuable work of information on subjects of general interest ever offered to the public. It is adapted to the wants of the Merchant, Manufacturer, Mechanic, Farmer, Student and Inventor, and sells to both old and young of all classes. The book is sold by agents, who are making large sales in all parts of the country. It is offered at the low price of $3.50, and is the cheapest book ever sold by subscription. No family should be without a copy. We want agents in every town in the United States, and no agent can fail to do well with this book. Our terms are liberal. We give our agents the exclusive right of territory. One of our agents sold 133 copies in eight days, another sold 368 in two weeks. Our agent in Hartford sold 397 in one week. Specimens of the work sent to agents on receipt of stamp. For circulars and terms to agents address the publishers.

J. B. BURR & HYDE, Hartford, Conn., Chicago, Ill., or Cincinnati, Ohio.

Menno Simon's COMPLETE WORKS.

In English, translated from the original Dutch or Holland, giving the whole of the great Reformers writings on the subject of Baptism. Price in full sheep $4.50; by mail $5.14.

Address, JOHN F. FUNK & BRO.
Elkhart, Ind.

New Hymn Books, English.

TURKEY MOROCCO.

One copy,	postpaid, - -	$1.00
Per Dozen,	- - - -	11.25

PLAIN ARABESQE.

One Copy,	post-paid, - - -	75
Per Dozen,	" - - -	8.50

Ger'n & English, Plain Sheep.

One Copy,	post-paid, - -	$1.00
Per Dozen	- - - -	11.25
Arabesque Plain,	- - -	1.00
Turkey Morocco,	- - -	1.25
Single German,	post paid -	50
Per Dozeo,	- - - - -	5.50

TRACTS.

"ANXIOUS BENCH RELIGION EXAMINIED," BY ELDER J. S. FLORY. A SYNOPSIS OF CONTEETS. An address to the reader: The peculiarities that attend this type of religion. The feelings there experienced not imaginary but real. The key that unlocks the wonderful mystery. The causes by which feelings are excited. How the momentary feelings called "Experimental religion" are brought about, and then concludes by giving that form of doctrine as taught by Jesus Christ and recorded by his faithful witnesses.

COUNTERFEIT DETECTER
OR
BAPTISM—MUCH IN LITTLE.

This work is now ready for distribution, and the importance of the subject will speak for it a large demand. It is a short treatise on baptism in tract form intended for general distribution, and is set forth in such a plain and logical manner that a wayfaring man though a fool, cannot err therein. Either of the above tracts sent postpaid on the following terms: Two copies, 10 cts, 10 copies 40 cents, 25 copies 70 cents, 50 copies $1.00, 100 copies $1.50.

1870 1872

DR. FAHRNEY'S

Blood Cleanser or Panacea.

A tonic and purge, for Blood Diseases. Great reputation. Many testimonials. Many ministering brethren use and recommend it. Ask or send for the "Health Messenger." Use only the "Panacea" prepared at Chicago, Ills., and by

Dr. P. Fahrney's Brothers & Co.,

Aug. 3-pd. Waynesboro, Franklin Co., Pa.

Trine Immersion.

A discussion on Trine Immersion, by letter between Elder B. F. Moomaw and Dr. J. J. Jackson, to which is annexed a Treatise on the Lord's Supper, and on the necessity, character and evidences of the new birth, also a dialogue on the doctrine of non-resistance, by Elder B. F. Moomaw. Single copy 50 cents.

HUNTINGDON & BROAD TOP RAIL ROAD

Summer Arrangement.

On an after Tuesday, June 4, 1872, Passenger trains will arrive and depart as follows:

Trains from Huntingdon South. — Trains from Bedford moving North.

MAIL. A. M.	ACCOM P. M.	STATIONS.	MAIL. P. M.	ACCOM A. M.
*le*8 20	LE6 00	Huntingdon,	AR5 25	AR9 10
8 28	6 06	Long Siding	5 17	9 05
8 45	6 19	McConnelstown	5 04	8 40
8 51	6 25	Pleasant Grove	4 58	8 30
9 05	6 37	Marklesburg	4 45	8 27
9 20	6 51	Coffee Run	4 33	8 19
9 27	6 58	Rough & Ready	4 26	8 41
9 39	7 10	Cove	4 12	7 52 29 20
9 43	7 15	Fishers Summit	4 08	7 48 18
10 03	7 35	Saxton	3 48	le 7 50
10 10	7 53	Saxton		*ar*7 43
10 27	8 10	Riddlesburg	3 30	6 36
10 34	8 17	Hopewell	3 22	6 10
10 51	8 35	Piper's Run	3 06	6 02
11 10	8 55	Tatesville	2 48	6 56
11 22	9 08	Bloody Run	2 33	6 50
11 26	9 12	Mount Dallas	2 29	5 46
11 32	9 19	Ashcom's Mills	2 22	5 42
11 36	9 23	Lutzville	2 18	5 36
11 40	9 27	Hartley's Mills	2 14	5
11 46	9 34	Jamesons	2 07	5
*r*11 22	*ar*9 40	Bedford	LE2 00	LE5 30

JOHN M'KILLIPS, Supt

SHOUP'S RUN BRANCH.

LE10 15	LE7 40	Saxton.	AR3 40	AR7 20
10 30	7 55	Coalmont.	3 25	7 05
10 35	8 00	Crawford.	3 20	7 00
AR10 45	AR8 10	Dudley	LE3 10	LE6 50
Bro'd Top City from Dudley 2 miles by stage.

Time of Penna. R. R. Trains at Huntingdon.

EASTWARD.			WESTWARD.
Hb'g Ac.	9 24	A. M	Cin. Ex.	2 19 A. M.
Mail	3 30	P. M	Pc'f Ex.	7 45 "
Cin. Ex.	6 55	"	Mail	5 40 P. M.
Phil. Ex	11 15	"	W. Pass.	11 52 A. M.

THE PILGRIM.

Published by J. B. Brumbaugh, & Co.

Edited by H. B. & Geo. Brumbaugh.

CORRESPONDING EDITORS.

D. P. Sayler, Double Pipe Creek, Md.

Leonard Furry, New Enterprise, Pa.

The Pilgrim is a Christian Periodical, devoted to religion and moral reform. It will advocate in the spirit of love and liberty, the principles of true Christianity, labor for the promotion of peace among the people of God, for the encouragement of the saints and for the conversion of sinners, avoiding those things which tend toward disunion or sectional feelings.

TERMS.

Single copy, one year,	$1.25.
Book paper, " "	1.50.
Eleven copies, [eleventh for Agt.]	$12.50.

Any number above that at the same rate,

Address.

H. B. BRUMBAUGH.
James Creek,
Huntingdon county Pa.

Anvil and Pilgrim.

"REMOVE NOT THE ANCIENT LANDMARKS WHICH OUR FATHERS HAVE SET."

VOL. 3. JAMES CREEK, PENNSYLVANIA, NOVEMBER 5, 1872. NO. 45

POETRY.

TRUST ONE ANOTHER.

Look into your brother's eyes, man,
And bid him read your own;
One half the strife of human life
Is born of guile alone!
Deceit creates full half our hates,
And half our love it slays;
Look in each other's eyes, men,
And meet each other's gaze!

Pardon your brother's faults, man,
And ask that he forgive;
Could human sin no pardon win,
No mortal soul might live.
No need of Heaven were none forgiven,
For none would reach its doors;
Pardon your brother's faults, man,
And bid him pardon yours.

Stand by your brother's side, man,
And bid him clasp your hand;
To him be just, and yield the trust
That you from him demand.
How simply wise, with soul and eyes,
To trust and still be true—
Doing to those we love, man,
What we would have them do.

REVERY.

BY MRS. S. H. JAMES.

How I love the hour of twilight,
Twilight dusky, dim and gray,
When the night, with moon and starlight
Gently clasps the hand of day.

Just enough of sunshine lingers;
Just enough of night gloom falls;
Fairy forms, with noiseless fingers,
Loose the doors to memory's halls.

And with reverential feeling,
Pass I through the entrance wide;
While a soft light, often stealing,
Lights the faces, either side.

When I cross death's darkling river,
When my father's voice shall call,
May the golden life chords sever
When the twilight shadows fall.

Wisconsin.

ORIGINAL ESSAYS.

MY LANTERN.

Under the sun, as the saying runs, there are many things: some good, some ordinary, while others are positively bad. I am no cynic, neither am I disposed to undervalue the abilities of any; but sometimes talk a little to show how to use our abilities to the best advantage. You will please excuse me for carrying my "lantern" in broad daylight, but you see, we are living in an age of spiritual darkness, therefore it is dark all the time, only where my lantern is used. Its rays are so brilliant that darkness can have no communion with it, therefore it is a real pleasure to open it and see the imps and hobgoblins fleeing from its presence. It may seem a little strange that I should have the boldness to use it right in the midst of the camp of the saints, but a man told me the other day, that the room for improvement is the largest room in the world, and as we the Brethren, have our full share of that room, we might as well step in and make as good use of it as possible.

Before opening my lantern I must tell my brethren that it makes light so powerful that nothing can be hid from it. I first made use of it at home, and it pleased me so well that I concluded to take it along to the Church. I did not think of opening it along the way, but I was not gone far until I noticed brother A. and B. on their way to church. How nice, thought I, it would be just to open my lantern a little and see what was the subject of the morning, and how ran the conversation.

A. "There is a splendid field of corn, farming such land pays. Now just look at it that field will average, at least, 60 bushels of shelled corn to the acre—put that at the low figure of 50 cents per bushel, and we have $30,00 as the production of one acre."

B. "That looks like making money, but you should remember that to buy such land, you pay $150,00 per acre. The interest for that money is worth $9,00, and then, again we take off the cost of cultivation and pay the taxes, the profit becomes considerably reduced."

A. "Yes, farming on the best of land, is a poor business this year, and was it not that we raise our own productions, we would starve."

B. "Brother C. understands his business and knows how to make the best of everything. Did you notice those large steers he is feeding? On those eight steers he expects to clear $150.00 and he will do it to, if not in dollars and cents, he will do it in a crop of corn and wheat as a result of stall feeding."

A. "Here we are, why how short the distance appeared. There will be a large turn out to-day, I wonder who will do the preaching."

B. "I do not know, but I hope it will not be brother D. I do not know that I have any particular objection to his preaching, but it is so tedious that I can not keep myself awake, how I wish brother E. would preach."

Just here I closed my lantern, thinking how different were the feelings of good old David as he approached the house of the Lord.

I am now inside of the church, but services are not yet commenced. Again I open my lantern, and O, what a sight! I shall not attempt to describe—but the time has come for the opening—the hymn is sung, the prayer offered, and we will now turn our lantern towards the ministers. Behind the desk sits five, representing the hoary head of three-score and ten down to the young man of twenty-two. The old father does not wish to preach and says: "Now brethren there is liberty, and some of you will be to preach to-day."

No. 2. "Brethren, I am not prepared to preach to-day."

No. 3. "I have nothing—nothing at all—did not expect to preach to-day." (Turns to No. 4, "Will you not preach to day?"

No. 4. "I have nothing. (No. 1 sees the congregation getting fidgety and calls out, "Brethren, sing a few verses." The congregation sings and the parlance continues.) not at all prepared to preach to-day, there is no subject seems to present itself, don't feel very well have a bad cold, and don't feel at all, in order for speaking. (Leans over to No. 5.) will you not preach to-day?"

No. 5. "O, brethren don't call on me to speak when there are so many older ones here that can preach much better than what I can."

(A whole hymn is now sung and no preacher yet. No. 1 calls upon No. 3 thinks it is his turn—and he seeing the invitation has passed around once, now takes the Bible to find a subject.)

No. 1. "Brethren, sing a few more verses." (The congregation sings—a subject is found—No. 3 arises.)

No. 3. "Brethren—sisters—and friends, it appears to fall to my lot to speak to-day, but I can assure you that I am not, at all, prepared. I did not think it would be my turn—would much rather hear my brethren speak, but to show obedience to the elder brethren I will make the attempt. ——

(He now reads his text and then continues.) I would much rather have kept my seat as I have had a bad cold for several weeks and do not feel in order for speaking, my mind is somewhat confused and seemed to settle on no particular portion of Scripture. The subject which I read just came to my mind while sitting here, and what I may be enabled to say upon it I know not, but by the grace of God I shall try and say a few words, but much I do not promise you, and therefore, if I fail I hope you will not be disappointed, &c.

After a half hour of excuses and fifteen minutes on the subject he concludes by saying: "I did not think to take up so much time—will now give it over, hoping that my brethren, who are more able than what I am, will take up the subject and carry it out more fully.

(He now takes his seat and freedom is again given. No. 2 is ready and arises.)

"My lantern" has now disclosed enough for once, so I will now close it with the expectation of opening it again to give the remainder of this meeting. I do not wish to have you believe that all our meetings are after this style, but it so happened that "my lantern" was opened on this one, and thought it might be for their benefit and others of the same stamp, if there be any, to see their proceedings and then draw their own conclusions. "My lantern" will open occasionally for some time and may reveal some strange things.

PRIDE AND ITS EFFECTS.

Pride, like many other evil things proceeds from within, out of the heart and defiles the man. Mark 7; 23. Its origin is of Satan who was the first that fell thereby, and because he was envious and lost he towards man, who was created noble and glorious, he endeavored to deceive our mother Eve and by cunning and deceit, persuaded her that they would not surely die by eating the forbidden fruit, and by his haughty and deceitful spirit, he planted in her heart the seeds of pride, for by persuading her that she and Adam, by eating of the fruit, would become wise like God he excited in her a desire to become wise and when the woman saw that the tree was good for food, and that it was pleasant to the eye and a tree to be desired to make one wise, she took of the fruit thereof and did eat." O dear sisters, are we clear of partaking of the forbidden fruit to-day, or are we still partaking of it and handing it to our husbands by insisting on them to build us a very large and fashionable house and have it furnished with all new fashioned and costly furniture, and to have our floors overspread with brilliant and showy carpeting the windows decorated with fine drapery and so on? And when we get all this, we still are not satisfied but we will say; can we not also have a splendid carriage? The husband says "yes wife we are able, we can have it," and goes and gets a grand and ornamental carriage. They ride in it a time or two very nicely with their plain clothes, but now the sister thinks they are not quite fine enough she says "husband shall I make you a nice plaited bosom and a very nice rolling collar on your coat to correspond with our nice carriage? You will look much better when you are to stand and preach the gospel to the people." The husband says; yes you may, I believe I would feel better if I was not quite so old fashioned.

Thus we can see how both parties agreed, the one to hold out and offer the forbidden fruit, and the other receives and partakes of it. Thus men and women fall from the blessed state of humility for God resisteth the proud and giveth grace to the humble. Here we fell through pride, for if we had remained steadfast in humility we would not have fallen, hence pride was the first sin and will be the last to be overcome. O, detestable vice, the source of so great an evil! on which none but the Lamb of God can deliver us! Dear sisters, as we know that Christ has suffered and died and bore our transgressions on His holy head that we might be saved, and we only have the promise if we continue in the faith. Then let us try with all our soul, mind and strength to be faithful in discharging our every duty. Let us try to regain our dear husbands whom we have induced to go so far away from God our Heavenly Father; and O where are our sons and daughters who are going astray and spending their lives in pride and in the gay fashions of a proud world? Like the prodigal son, they will soon come to want—when sickness and death comes.

Yes, dear readers, at this moment we received the intelligence of a young married man being killed instantly. He was a son of John Brenneman, a minister of the Mennonites. Yes, "Be ye also ready for in an hour that ye think not, the Son of man cometh." How the forked lightnings fly and the thunders roar, and the rain in torrents fall! O, how terrible, man and timber being shivered by its power! How awful it must be to the unprepared to see the power of God in this shape. Yes, dear young readers here you can see the necessity of being ready at all times, only make up your minds and say; I will leave all the pleasures of sin and of a proud world and I will arise and go to my Father. Yes, we hear what the loving Savior says: "Behold I stand at the door and knock, if any man hear my voice and open the door, I will come in unto him and sup with him and he with me." O, what a feast, to sup of his divine spirit, which is humility and and love and passeth all knowledge, and which will guide us into all truth. Yes, if we have the spirit of Christ, we will desire to walk in all the commandments of the Lord blameless, and we will desire to work righteousness in humility. David says; "Though the Lord be high, yet hath he respect unto the lowly, but the proud he knoweth afar off. Better is it to be of an humble spirit with the lowly, than to divide the spoil with the proud."—Prov. 16; 19. If we are of a lowly mind, it will be altogether unnatural for us to aspire after high things. Then dear brethren and sisters, is it not greatly to be deplored that this fearful vice, pride, has been so prevalent among us, and like a contagious disease, is carrying off such vast numbers? Daily, we see it increasing and men seeking only great honors in the world. Can we thus gain Heaven? O, could we but take to heart St. John's admonition, "Love not the world neither the things of the world, if any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him. for all that is in the world, the lust of the flesh, and the lust of the eye and the pride of life is not of the Father but is of the world." Do we not see but too plainly, the pride of life holding many of the so-called brethren under its sway, and is this not a clear evidence of lukewarmness in religion? But God has plainly threatened such to spew them out of his mouth.

I do not believe that religion is alone in plainness of dress, but it is faith and repentance and the leaving off of sin, and to be born of the spirit of God, and then to walk humbly before him and obey every known duty which he has commanded us, but I do maintain that an humble heart no longer desires these useless, gaudy and fashionable decorations, and that we ought to be able to distinguish, at least, the humble Christian from a proud world in general, by their outward department. Therefore, O, ye watchman of Zion, we beg you ever to be mindful of your duty in this your important calling, that you warn the people in due season.

Is it not to be feared that the watchman are oftentimes in fault, that this detestable vice has made such havoc in our churches on the account of slothfulness in warning the people? O, that you would therefore reprove, rebuke, exhort with all long suffering and doctrine wherever you see that it is necessary, whether they will hear or whether they will forbear. Cry aloud and spare not, and lift up your voices like a trumpet and show the people their transgressions and their sins, lest you be found to be like those watchman described in Isaiah 59; 10. I fear that the reason why the watchman are dumb and cannot reprove, is because so much evidence of pride is still found existing in their own houses, in themselves and in their families. If a man knows not how to rule his own house, how shall he take care of the church of God.

And now dear Elders, a word to you. I suppose you have not forgotten the great assemblage at our late Annual Conference, and what a great expense it was to the Brotherhood, but to meet with so many dear brethren and sisters in the faith, it repaid us for the expense. We were truly glad to see you all, and to hear your good and wholesome counsels, and now it is our duty to obey, and I do think dear elders and shepherds over every flock, that it is your duty to watch over all your flocks and, see that the counsels are adhered to as much as possible, not pride only, but every other evil that is calculated to cause disunion in the church. The query came up before the last A. M., Does this District understand the A. M. to mean that we should dispose of our likenesses entirely when it advises us to put them away? See Minutes 1869 Article 21. This A. M. understands the phrase "put them away" to mean to put them out of public sight. The answer is right, but Brethren, why did you not say on the Minutes, and take no more? The young members already say that the A. M. does not say that we shall not have our likenesses taken, but that we should only put them out of public sight. Young members do not go to much pains to hunt up back Nos. to find something that will condemn them, therefore they should be heartily admonished to abstain from every appearance of evil, especially from vain and lifeless pictures. Some may be seen which are very unsuitable, such as portraits of military heroes and officers armed with instruments of death. The tables also are often strewed over with likenesses of deceased persons which parents, children and friends had taken, although it is strictly forbidden, see Exodus 20; 4, Deut. 4; 16, 5; 8. These lifeless pictures must be frequently looked at and exhibited to others. This I fear is a lust of the eye. Oh that we were so intent also on regaining the lost and noble image of God and willing to labor that Christ may be formed in us. I believe sincerely that if this image of God be effectually and truly formed within us, we shall feel but little concerned about these vain and perishable likenesses.

Now brethren and sisters, let us hold fast the profession of our faith without wavering, for he is faithful that promised. Let us consider one another to provoke unto love and to good works. Let us be of a meek and humble heart for God is the searcher of our hearts, and all our thoughts are open to his sight and known to him. If we are truly humble in heart, then without doubt, that which is highly esteemed among men and which is an abomination in the sight of God will also be an abomination to us, for if we are truly humble we have obtained his grace, and if we have his grace, we have also his spirit, and if we have his spirit, we are also his children, and we are his children, we are also partakers of his divine nature, and if so, it is indisputably true that that which is highly esteemed among men, and which is an abomination in the sight of God must also be abomination to us. Let us then candidly, as in the sight of God, examine whether we do not still take too much pleasure in that which is highly esteemed among men. God, the searcher of our hearts knows what is in them.

HARRIET EARLY.

Lima, Ohio.

SUNDAY SCHOOL BOOKS.

Dear brethren and sisters in the fear of God, and for the advancement of Christ's kingdom, I submit a few thoughts for publication, in relation to the above subject. There seems to be a want of enterprise in the brotherhood relative to this important question. Whether the books used by the brethren, (on the whole) are adapted to the wants of our children in order that their spiritual welfare may be promoted. I fear that some of the books chosen by our brethren in their Sunday School organizations are not appropriate, neither consistent with the School of Christ.

But what are we to choose, may be asked. Some say the Bible, only. This is correct in point of character, but for those of our children under twelve years of age, we need the "milk of the word," so divided and arranged, that their young minds can digest it.

Now because the church has not prepared such books, brethren have chosen books written by carnal minded men, upon carnal subjects, which cannot tend towards bringing up our children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. Such books as Bonaparte's life and character, the life of Washington, Alexander the Great, and a host of other fabulous tales drawn not from the Bible, but drawn out of a carnal conception, should not be chosen for our children's minds to work upon on the Lord's day.

The books that I propose should be used by the brethren should consist of 1st, a simple and progressive series of primers, spellers and readers for class recitations, for all those that cannot read in the Bible. The words in the primary department should consist of the names of familiar objects with numerous illustrations, so as to make it attractive and interesting. Then simple reading lessons drawn from the Bible, followed by lessons more advanced in words, and forms of construction of sentences. Three books of this kind might be sufficient for those that are not advanced sufficient to read in the Bible. Thus we could easily have a simple and progressive series of books adapted to class recitations; so drawn from the Bible that the little learner would get many truths that he otherwise would not receive.

2d. A series of books for the library and for distribution. These books should be suited for small and large pupils. They might be historical in form; giving the life and character (not of Bonaparte) of the Prophets, Judges, Patriarchs and Kings of Israel. For an example, the life of Moses might be narrated—beginning with his birth; his discovery in the basket, and ending with his death on Mount Pisgah. His many miracles could be given and illustrated so as to leave lasting impressions on the mind. The life of Christ could then be introduced of which Moses was a type. His nativity, birth, baptism, miracles and ordinances could be very beautifully presented to the mind, so much so that what might thus be learned in youth, would be practically observed in after years, even to the saving of the immortal soul.

The lives of the Apostles, their acts, privations, trials, sufferings and deaths could be given, &c. Thus we would have books consistent with the character and school of Christ; books presenting so many avenues leading into the Book of all books, and unto the "all things" contained therein. The Brethren's hymn and tune book would be an excellent companion of such a collection of books.

Now this result may be effected, if our brethren and sisters will think and then publish their thoughts upon this important matter during this winter, and then bring the subject up before our spring councils, and from thence to the district councils, and terminating in the appointment of committees to compile and publish the books, by the annual council of the Church.

Such books would be patronized and received by the brethren cheerfully. Many would be bought where there are no schools organized and many schools would be organized where there are now none.

In conclusion brethren think, pray, and then let us reason together knowing;

"That nothing great is lightly won,
Nothing won is lost;
Every good deed nobly done
Will repay the cost.

JOHN ZUCK.

Shady Grove, Pa.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Continued from 357th page.

wonderful piece of workmanship. Tarried a short time at the Quincy depot and then was off again. About 11 o'clock at night, I was awakened out of sleep at Jacksonville, Ill., by a concert of loud voices coming from a number of hackmen eager for passengers. On looking out the car window which pointed north, my eyes beheld a sight terrible and yet sublime. The Northern Lights or Aurora Borealis were blazing with wonderful brightness and magnificent column after column would shoot up, first white, then turn red, and then mingle and run into each other and cause the sky to look as if dipped in a vesture of blood. This panoramic view was continually changing and interchanging, causing the whole northern heavens from the horizon up to an unusual height, to be deeply tinged, below with light like the glow of a great fire and above, in crimson red. The stars were to be distinctly seen through the deepest hue, except, where near the horizon a few scattered clouds streaked the sky, adding variety to the scene. Never did I behold such a scene in nature's paintings; and to add to the scene the moon was shining in her glory. The cars went rolling and thundering on, the dark black smoke ascended up a short distance then spread out in detached bodies, the glowing fire sparks from the engine fell in profusion all around. Beautiful farms and farm houses were passed in swift succession. Here and there herds of stock were disturbed, by the rumbling and whistling train, from their quiet repose and seen fleeing from the road. I imagined that the inmates of the white farm houses were quietly wrapped in the arms of sleep, and I also thought, so shall it be in the great day of God's Judgment. Many shall be quietly reposing upon their beds of ease knowing not the glowing fire of God's wrath is setting the elementary heavens on fire until they be wrapped in its burning embrace and destroyed with all the works of darkness. Many were my thoughts during the wakeful hours of that moonlight ride, while beholding nature playing with the heavens and seeing sublunary things fleeting before my eyes.

As the morning began to dawn, I heard the brakemen cry out, "Cerro-Gorda." How I just then should like to have stopped a while and seen the dear Brethren that live near there, but we kept on, and, at Danville, met with close connection, and at 9 25 A. M., was at Indianapolis where we lay a few hours, and then came on to Cincinnati, were we arrived Tuesday evening at about 5 o'clock. Owing to the low stage of water we have been detained here for now, about 24 hours, in which time we have been looking around in the city, and now we are just leaving the busy wharf to start up the river on the steamer "Jessee." Through the grace of God we expect to soon arrive at home, when,—"more anon."

Brother Brumbaugh:—If you think my correspondence is worth room in your paper, and will be of any interest to the readers of the PILGRIM I will willingly forward to your address, a few such items of news as may from time to time, come to my mind. As many of our readers already know, I live in the Conemaugh branch of the Church, in Cambria County, Pa. Said church, in our boyhood, say 25 years ago, was under the supervision of Elder John Menely who died about 1850. Elder Jacob Stutsman was his successor in office, who died some time after Menely. Then the church was in the care of Elder Levi Roberts, who died a few years later. These old brethren many of your readers were well acquainted with in former days. Still later, Elder Abraham Stutsman had charge of the church for several years, until he moved West, when Solomon Benshoof and Samuel Brallier were ordained and the Conemaugh Church is at present under their care. The above named church district lies in and around Johnstown and numbers about 300 members, with seven Preachers and a sufficient number of Deacons to carry on the work at present. There are four meeting houses and different other suitable places for worship.

Friday Sep. 13th was the day of our Love Feast, had a very good meeting. H. R. Holsinger and E. J. Blough remained with us over Sunday and preached several interesting sermons for us. Success go with them where-ever they go.

Sunday 22nd, meeting at 10 A. M. tried to preach a few minutes to the people assembled.

Sunday 29th, went to the Union meeting house near Conemaugh, met a reasonable large congregation who listened very attentively to the word preached.

Monday 30th, attended the funeral of brother Jesse Berkeybile's little son who was almost instantly killed by a sled falling on him.

Sunday Oct. 6th, by request visited brother Joseph Burchart of Mineral point, found him quite unwell.

Tuesday 8th, by request went to Conemaugh to the house of Wm. Horner whose wife was sorely suffering with pains in the body, but appeared to be perfectly willing to die. She was a member of the Disciple Church. At 4 o'clock P. M. received the news of the death of Mrs. Horner.

Wednesday 9th, Preached the funeral Sermon for the above to a very attentive audience.

Sunday 20th meeting at the same place, not a very large turn out—tried to preach from Matt. 7; 21. In the afternoon attended Sunday school, delivered a short address to the school.

STEPHEN HILDEBRAND.

We extend to you the hand of fellowship, and gladly welcome you to the PILGRIM band of contributors, and shall be glad to hear from you often. The name Menely will sound quite familiar to the brethren of James Creek and surrounding churches, as the old fathers now living, often speak of him. Our Grandfather, Elder George Brumbaugh, and he often stood side by side in unfolding the precious promises of Jesus, but he too, has long ago, been gathered home to the fathers, peace, yea, blessed peace be theirs.

Bros. Brumbaugh's:—I once more drop you a few lines to tell you something about the prosperity of Zion in this little arm of the Church called the Wissinoming district. We have received six by baptism and one by letter, and still prospects for more. We have three speakers in the second degree and one in the first. Bro. John Knisely of the Union district, is our presiding Elder. The PILGRIM seems to be very favorably spoken of so far as read by the people in our section of country. As to enlarging the PILGRIM I for one, would be pleased to see it large enough to give the general news of interest. My prayer is that you may be blest in sending forth the "Good News" so that all may come to know the Lord from the least to the greatest.

DANIEL R FREEMAN

Please announce that the Brethren of Cerro Gorda District will hold a Lovefeast on the 15th and 16th of November commencing at 10 o'clock, the usual invitation is given. By order of the Church.

JACOB TROXEL

The Brethren in Mersaide county Cal., have appointed a Communion on the 10th of November.

ELD. JONATHAN MYERS.

NO TEARS AND NO DEATH IN HEAVEN.

BY REV. S. A. MOWERS.

Unless we knew something of heaven we should not desire it nor prepare for it. What we do know is comparatively little, and that little is rather negative than positive. The revelator says, "And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes, and there shall be no more death." If there were no other description given in the word of God of the saint's final home, this alone would teach us that the state of God's people in heaven will differ very materially from their state on earth. It is most certain that tears are not strangers to God's people here. A state of grace on earth does not dry up our sensibilities, but rather widens and enlarges. Religion does not produce in the heart stoical indifference, but increased tenderness. It softens the hard heart and bids it weep with those that weep. The pious of all ages have gone forth weeping, bearing precious seed. Job says, "Mine eye poureth out tears unto God." David says, "I water my couch with tears all night." Again he says, "My tears have been my meat day and night." Hagar wept. Joseph wept. Naomi kissed her daughters and wept. Hannah wept. By the rivers of Babylon the children of Israel wept. Peter wept. Martha and Mary wept. Paul's brethren fell on his neck and wept. Jesus wept. And where is the child of God that has not wept. But though the Christian weeps here, his weeping time shall end. God shall wipe away all tears from his eyes I do not understand by this that God will so change us that there will be no more sensibility. Grace will never do in heaven what it has not begun on earth, so far as the soul is concerned. It will introduce no new elements, but develop the elements already introduced. It seems to me that God will wipe away all tears by wiping away all cause for tears. Secular disappointments produce tears here, but in heaven there will be no secular disappointments. Social trials, such as sympathy in sorrow, defection in friendship, or bereavement, produce tears here, but in heaven there will be no social trials. Bodily pains produce tears here, but in heaven there will be no pain. Moral imperfections produce tears here, but in heaven there will be no moral imperfections. The sins of those around us produce sin here, but in heaven there will be no sinners. All the other various causes that produce tears here will be removed, and thus all tears will be wiped away. Go forth, child of God, weeping, bearing precious seed, assured that you shall return again rejoicing, bringing your sheaves with you. Be comforted with the assurance that weeping may endure for the night, but joy cometh in the morning.

There shall be no more death. This teaches the same truth that the state of God's people in heaven will differ materially from their state on earth. It is certain that God's people are not exempt from death here. I suppose it would have been possible for God to have so arranged it that his people should not die, but that, like Enoch and Elijah, when their work is done be taken directly to heaven, soul and body. To the divine mind there are reasons why this should not be done. To the human mind there appear some reasons why this was not done. The love of life is so strong that to hold out exemption from death as a reward of piety would destroy man's free agency. But whether the finite mind can comprehend it or not, the mind of the Infinite has decreed that death shall be the common lot of all. Hence the good died. Abraham died. Jacob died. Job died. Our fathers, where are they? and the prophets, do they live forever? where are the good of our own generation? How many of us have seen the goodly man perish from off the face of the earth? But in the Christian's future home there shall be no more death. I do not understand by this that a new life, different from this, will be given, nor that any new elements will be introduced. I can not conceive why the same kind of physical life we have here might not, under certain circumstances, be perpetual. I can not conceive why the same life that begins here in the child, and develops to boyhood and to manhood, might not under certain circumstances continue developing forever. The termination of a physical life here is not the result of any internal defect, but of external circumstances. Death is passed on us here because of sin. Take sin out of this world, with all its blighting influences, and we would never die here. Hence in heaven there will be no death; not because of any new order of life, but because of the absence of all death-forces—the absence of sin with all its direful consequences. Happy thought, that our bodies shall be free from death. No little Shunemite will run there to his mother, and sit on her knee till noon and then die. No patriarch will say "Joseph is not, and Simeon is not, and ye will take away Benjamin also" No David will say, "O Absalom, my son Absalom, would to God I had died for thee! O Absalom, my son, my son!" No Martha and Mary will go to the Savior in tears and say "Lord, he whom thou lovest is dead." No Rachel, weeping for her children, and refusing to be comforted, for they are not. There will not only be no physical death in heaven, but there will be no spiritual death there. "Once in grace always in grace" will be eminently true in that life home. No Peters will be there, denying their Master with curses. No leaving Christ there until in pitying tones the Savior says, "Will ye also go away?" No thank God, there is no spiritual death there. Not that the child of God shall have any kind of new spiritual life in heaven. Christ said to the woman of Samaria, "Whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst, but the water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water, springing up into everlasting life." Thank God for the prospect of being where there are no tears and no death. No wonder a feeling of homesickness comes upon the child of God when contemplating the home of the pure and the good, for there are no tears and no death in heaven.

BEGIN WITH GOD.

In every affair of life, begin with God. Consult him in everything that concerns you. View him as the author of all your blessings and all your hopes, as your best friend and your eternal portion. Meditate on him in this view, with a continued renewal of your trust in him, and a daily surrender of yourself to him, till you feel that you love him most entirely, that you serve him with sincere delight, and that you cannot live a day without God.

You know yourself to be a man, and indigent creature, and a sinner, and you profess to be a christian, a disciple of the blessed Jesus; but never think you know Christ or yourself as you ought, till you find a daily need of him for righteousness and strength, for pardon and sanctification; and let him be your constant introducer to the great God, though he sit upon a throne of grace. Remember his own words, "No man cometh to the Father but by me."

Make prayer a pleasure, and not a task, and then you will not forget it. If ever you have lived in a praying family, never let it be your fault if you do not live in one always. Believe that day, that hour, or those minutes to be all wasted and lost which any worldly pretenses would tempt you to save out of the public worship of the church, the certain and constant duties of the closet, or any necessary services for God and godliness. Beware lest a blast attend it, and not a blessing. If God had not reserved one day in seven to himself, I fear religion would have been lost to the world; every day of the week is exposed to a curse which has no morning religion.

See that you watch and labor as well as pray. Diligence and dependence must be united in the practice of every christian. The hand of the diligent, and the blessing of the Lord, join together to make us rich in the treasures of the body or mind, of time or eternity.—Christian Banner.

WHAT IS NEEDED.

Not eloquence in the pulpit nor wealth in the pews, but the reviving influence of the Holy Spirit. Spurgeon says—"The Holy Spirit is able to make the word as successful now as in the days of the apostles. He can bring in by hundreds and thousands as easily as by ones and two's. The reason why we are not more prosperous is, that we have not the Holy Spirit with us in might and power as in early times. If we had the Spirit sealing our ministry with power, it would signify very little about our talent. Men might be poor and uneducated; their words might be broken and ungrammatical; there might be none of the polished periods of Hall or glorious thunders of Chalmers; but if the might of the Spirit attended them, the humblest evangelist would be more successful than the most eloquent of preachers. It is extraordinary grace, not talent, that wins the day. It is extraordinary spiritual power that we need. Mental power fills a chapel; but spiritual power fills a church. O, we know some before whom we shrink into nothing as to talent, but who have no spiritual power, and when they speak they have not the Holy Spirit with them; but we know others—simple hearted, worldly men, who speak their country dialect, and who stand up to preach in their country place, and the spirit of God clothes every word with power. Hearts are broken, souls are saved and sinners are born again. O, Spirit of the living God, we want thee! Thou art the life, the soul, the source of the people's success. Without thee they can do nothing; with thee, they can do everything."—Herald of Truth.

LOOK AFTER THE YOUNG.

Look after the young. Young friends are long friends. The parents are passing away; lay hold on the children. Soon the aged may no more give you welcome to their dwelling, but if you watch over the young and seek to guide and help and bless them, you will find their greeting as hearty, and their love as tender, as has been that of the friends you have cherished in days past.

Those who would do good in the world must not forget the young. Under sunny faces there are often sad hearts; and even the outside trifling of the gay and mirthful may hide an inward longing for the great salvation, which it would thrill your soul to know. Do not by austerity close up the approaches to the minds of the young, nor by unseemly levity lose your power and influence over them. Be calm, genial, friendly, sympathetic and earnest,—always gentle, patient, and kind; and you will find that many a young person will give you their confidence, and perhaps may be led by you to give the Lord their hearts. —The Christian.

Youth's Department.

"FATHER, TAKE MY HAND."

The way is dark, my Father! Cloud on cloud
Is gathering thickly o'er my head, and loud
The thunders roar above me. See, I stand
Like one bewildered! Father, take my hand
And through the gloom
Lead safely home
Thy child!

The day goes fast, my Father! and the night
Is drawing darkly down. My faithless sight
Sees ghostly visions. Fears, a spectral band,
Encompass me. O Father! take my hand,
And from the night
Lead up to light
Thy child!

The way is long, my Father! and my soul
Longs for the rest and quiet of the goal;
While yet I journey through this weary land,
Keep me from wandering. Father take my hand;
Quickly and straight
Lead to heaven's gate
Thy child!

The path is rough, my Father! Many a thorn
Has pierced me; and my weary feet, all torn
And bleeding, mark the way. Yet the command
Bids me press forward. Father, take my hand;
Then, safe and blest,
Lead up to rest
Thy child!

The throng is great, my Father! Many a doubt
And fear and danger compass me about,
And foes oppress me sore. I cannot stand
Or go alone. O Father! take my hand,
And through the throng
Lead safe along
Thy child!

The cross is heavy, Father! I have borne
It long, and still do bear it. Let my worn
And fainting spirit rise to that blest land
Where crowns are given. Father, take my hand;
And reaching down,
Lead to the crown
Thy child!

CHANGING SEASONS.

Time has been passing, passing, and the Summer is now gone. The Autumn frosts have nipped the pretty flowers and changed the beautiful green forest into many gay and pleasing colors, and was it not a token of their dropping and fading away, it would be ever so nice. Some how, when we think of the pleasant Summer breezes, the lovely singing of birds, the beautiful flowers, the green meadows and shady groves, it makes us feel so sadly to see them all blighted and now passing away, yet if we are good and love to learn from our great Father, Autumn and its changing scenes presents many lessons for our instruction.

The first one is that time is passing. Eight months ago, and this now beautiful earth was bound in the icy fetters of stern winter. The rippling waters and green fields were covered with a mantle of snow, but soon the sun's rays became warmer and warmer until the icy bands of winter began to loosen, a few weeks more, and Spring-time in all its beauties was ushered in. For a season we enjoyed the resurrection of nature, the budding and blooming, the shooting forth of leaves and the tiny spears of grass from their wintry nap. Then the plowing and sowing, soon followed by mowing and reaping, after which the large wagons went forth to gather in the ladened sheaves. These scenes are all in the past, and now the large stocks of corn are being torn down and the golden ears are gathered into the large cribs to feed the farmers family during the cold and blustery winter months, which consists of his horses, cows, sheep, pigs, turkeys and chickens, also boys and girls. These use it in the shape of mush, cakes and pones--but really, I am getting off the subject, I intended saying were it not for these changes, time would pass unobserved.

Again, it teaches us that we too, are passing away. Our lives, or their duration, are composed of time, and each of these changes represent a part of that time. So, as they pass away, we are taught, our days being numbered, that our time is growing shorter, and how many times our eyes, though young, may be permitted to see the leaves changing and dropping is quite unknown.

Again, as the blighted flower wilts and withers away and the tiny little seed drops into mother earth, there to remain until called forth by Spring-time's sunny days, so these bodies will soon be nipped by the cold chill of death, will, fade away and be placed in the earth, but the soul, like the little seed, will rest until called forth in a renewed and glorified body by the sound of the trump and the shouts of the heavenly hosts.

If such are the lessons taught by the changing seasons and dropping leaves, we need not feel so sadly after all, because when we are happy in Jesus, December will be as pleasant as May.

In my next, I will have something to say about the enjoyments of the Winter months.

A GOOD NAME.

In the school of Dr. Woods none were allowed to enter the conservatory without leave; but a boy's handkerchief with his name upon it, had been found there. Just at the close of the school the Dr. called the name of James Howard. The whole school became silent with suspense.

"James Howard! What has he done? Such a noble boy! Such a good boy!" all thought. Dr. Woods himself believed he must have been sent into the conservatory by the teacher of botany; so he asked—

"James Howard, have you been into the conservatory to-day?"

"I have not, sir," replied James in a clear, calm tone.

"I believe you, James," said Dr. Woods, "although your handkerchief has been found there. You are not the boy to tell an untruth."

So James sat in his seat unmoved. Every boy in the school believed him, and almost envied his good name.

Dr. Woods said no more on this subject, except these few words. Let every boy learn from this incident the worth of a good name, especially when appearances are against him.

How came James' handkerchief in the conservatory? for as I have said, it was contrary to the rules of the school for a boy to enter there unbidden. James had lent it to a small boy named John Rand, to tie up some nuts the day before, when they had a little ramble together. The boy forgot to return it. He also forgot the rule of the school against entering the conservatory, but seeing the door open, rushed in to look at some rare flowers. The handkerchief being partly out of his pocket, dropped upon the ground.

See here the evils of heedless forgetfulness. The boy had exposed a schoolmate to censure; and had it not been for James Howard's good name, his teacher would surely have thought him to be the offender. At least, so thought John Rand.

How ashamed he felt when Dr. Woods said these words about a good name. The words kept ringing in his ears. He had broken a rule of the school, and was afraid to own it. He thought the Dr. would despise him if he knew, and so would the boys. All the day, all that night, he had no peace. At length he went to see James, He was not afraid to tell him all about it.

"I did forget it, James, truly, honestly I did," said the child; "but I'm afraid the Doctor won't believe me as he does you."

"Yes he will" replied James. "You have been so short a time in school, there's some excuse for you. Go at once and own up; for the longer you put it off the harder it will be. Always own a fault at once. Don't be afraid; the Doctor will forgive you."

Thus encouraged, the boy went to Dr. Woods, confessed his fault, and was forgiven; but he learned a lesson against forgetfulness which he always remembered.

ETIQUETTE FOR CHILDREN.

Always say Yes, sir. No, sir. Yes, papa. No, papa. Thank you. No, thank you. Goodnight. Goodmorning. Use no slang terms.

Clean faces, clean clothes, clean shoes, and clean finger-nails indicate good breeding. Never leave your clothes about the room. Have a place for everything, and everything in its place.

Rap before entering a room, and never leave with your back to the company.

Always offer your seat to a lady or old gentleman.

Never talk or whisper at meetings or public places, and especially in a private room, where any one is singing or playing the piano.

CORRESPONDENCE

A Reporter is wanted from every Church in the brotherhood to send us Church news, Obituaries, Announcements or anything that will be of general interest. To insure insertion, the writers name must accompany each communication. Our invitation is not personal but general—please respond to our call.

Notes of Travel and Jottings by the Wayside.

BY J. S. FLORY.

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 16, 1872.

Last wrote from Kansas City, the 11th inst. Before leaving the city we seen a house partly burn. There was quite an exciting time among the large crowd of people that soon gathered, and by the firemen with their steam engines, and scaling ladders, the fire was partly arrested; when we left and hurried to the depot, and were soon on our way again, homeward-bound.

We concluded to stop over with the Brethren at Hamilton, Mo., where we arrived about 8 o'clock at night; was met at the depot by Bro. Geo. Witwer, who resides in town, and is the Elder in the district in which he resides, we were soon enjoying the hospitalities of his home and the kindness of his family, with whom we tarried until next day when Bro. Peter Overholtzer, of Andrew Co., took us to Bro. William B. Sells, place of meeting, where we met with a number of brethren and sisters. The ministering brethren from other congregations, were, Daniel Gibson of Clinton Co., Peter Overholtzer and Daniel Glick, of Andrew Co. Had public preaching at 2 p. m., and the usual services at night. We for our part, felt truly rejoiced that we had such a feast of love with the dear ones of the household of Faith. The order of the congregation was commendible indeed. I went home with Bro. Abraham Sell,—next morning public preaching again, also at 3 p. m., after which we took the parting hand from those who did not return with us to Hamilton. In the evening at the house of Bro. Witwer, had a season of social worship with the family and a few neighbors that were invited in, after which we accompanied Bro. Daniel B. and sister Sell to their home in town. (sister Sell is the eldest daughter of Bro. Witwer.) With them we tarried until next day, and must say we never enjoyed a short sojourn with brethren and sisters to a greater degree than while with all those whose acquaintance we made while stopping over those two days at that point. Words cannot express the gratitude we feel for their kindness manifested to us, and we hope the associations there experienced will have impressions of union and love of an enduring nature. We stopped there a stranger among strangers, but left with the assurance we had formed friendly acquaintances, where hearts were full of Christian regard far above our discernings.

At half past 10 we were off again on the train. Just at sundown we came to the Mississippi river at Quincy, and crossed on the great iron bridge, which is truly a great and

The Weekly Pilgrim.

JAMES CREEK, PA., Nov. 5th, 1872.

YELLOW CREEK MEETING.

In our last, we left off at the Hopewell Meeting. We intended telling our readers that this church is presided over by Eld. Jacob Steel, assisted by Henry Clapper, and lately, David Clapper, who promises to become an efficient help in the ministry.

After dinner, Jacob Furry, (son of Leonard) kindly offered us a seat in his buggy and took us to his home near New Enterprise. After spending a short time with Bro. Jacob, who is quite an active deacon, and also superintendant of their Sabbath school, we were taken to their Social Meeting, or Bible Class which, on account of the inclemency of the weather, was unusually small, numbering about sixty, which we were told was about half the average attendance. As many of our readers may wish to know how this class is conducted, we will therefore give a short sketch. The class consists principally of the young men and women of the neighborhood, also a number that are heads of families, and are, largely, members of the church. The meeting is conducted by Jacob Furry and C. Snowberger, and is opened and closed by the ministers, when present, the same as our regular meetings. The evening we were there, Eld. D. Snowberger and S. A. Moore were present. After singing and prayer, the number were divided into four classes, two of each sex, and the 2d chapter of Heb. read by each class at the same time. After this was done, the Superintendant or foreman read the same chapter in parts two and three verses at a time, or such part as seemed to be more directly connected. After reading each part, liberty was given to all present to ask such question as might have been suggested in the part read. The following questions were proposed and answered by the class, from the chapter read. What things were heard? Why is it said, therefore? What has been said in the former chapter? Were the words spoken by angels steadfast? What salvation is referred to? Who was the Lord? To whom did God bear witness? What were those signs and wonders? What world has he reference to? Who was that man? Why was man a little lower than the angels? How did He taste death for every man? Why did it become him? Why, all of one? Who were subject to bondage all their lifetime? Was it a natural or spiritual death? What is meant by High Priest? In answering these questions, many ideas were presented and some quite new. The spirit of the meeting was so pleasant and the conduct so honorable that we were highly pleased and well entertained, and come to the conclusion that such meetings, if carefully conducted, will most certainly be a lasting benefit to the church and neighborhood.

After the meeting, we went along home with Eld. D. Snowberger where we spent a very pleasant evening. Bro. Daniel and his daughter Rosa, know how to entertain and you do not need to be there long until you find it out.

On Monday morning he took us to the funeral of sister Stayer, whose obituary was noticed last week, and were called upon to speak on the occasion. After the funeral, we were taken to the house of the bereaved father where we met some of the friends who are PILGRIM readers, but, some we believe do not claim to be pilgrims. May not this dispensation be the means of your returning to God? We hope so.

In the evening we again returned with Bro. Daniel—took supper and then went to see our esteemed brother S. A. Moore where we had an interchange of some pleasant ideas and enjoyed ourselves much during our short stay with him.

Next morning visited Eld. Leonard Furry and his interesting little family, with whom we enjoyed quite a pleasat time. This being meeting day our company soon increased. First, H. Hershberger and daughter, sister Fannie, who brought with them Bro. D. Buechly and daughter of Dale City, then came Eld. J. S. Holsinger and wife of Alum Bank, and a number of others that we cannot now remember. At 4 o'clock P. M. came the time for opening the meeting. The meeting was largely attended and the number of members so great that, notwithstanding the large house, there was but little room left for strangers. Here is the place we first met brethren John Knisley and J. S. Snowberger, instead of at Hopewell, as reported last week, we got our report a little mixed. In addition to these, there were present, J. S. Holsinger of Alum Bank and David Hilderbrand of Conemaugh, and some neighboring ministers. The evening services were edifying and we trust profitable to all present.

After service we were taken to the home of Bro. Samuel Teeter where we were well cared for during the night. Bro. Samuel is well posted in his "Detector" the Bible, and the man that misquotes in his presence does it at the risk of losing his reputation as a scripturist.

Next day, had quite an edifying meeting. Preaching by Bro. Knisely, Hildebrand, J. S. Snowberger and others.

This Church, at present is under the supervision of Eld. Jacob Miller, (who is much loved and respected by those who know him best)—assisted by L. Furry, D. Snowberger, Jacob Eshleman, S. A. Moore, John Replogle and lately, Joseph Z. Replogle.

Afternoon, was taken to George Brumbaugh's in Waterside, where there was an appointment made for the evening in the new church. The meeting was opened by J. S. Snowberger, when we tried to preach, followed by brother Knisely, and closed by brother Hildebrand.

Next morning was taken to Pattonsville where we took the "Hack" train to Hopewell, where after a few hours waiting, took the H & Broad Top, and by 3 o'clock P. M. was at home again.

JAMES CREEK MEETING.

According to previous announcement, our Love feast came off on the evening of the 19th of Oct. In the early part of the day our office was visited by Bro. L. Furry, soon after had the pleasure of a visit from Eld. J. Knisely of Ind. and sister E. R, Stifler of Hollidaysburg, Pa. At 2 P. M. was the time for opening our meeting. There was quite a respectable number of brethren, sisters and friends present for the services.

The following ministering brethren were present: Elds. J. R, Hanawalt of Spring Run, Leonard Furry and D. Snowberger of Yellow Creek, John Knisely of Indiana, Jacob Steel of Hopewell and John Spanogle of Aughwick. Also, David Hilderbrand and John B. and Joseph Z. Replogle. Late in the evening the number increased by the coming of H. R. Holsinger and George Hanawalt. The evening services were so largely attended that the accommodations proved insufficient for the entertainment of all present.

Next morning, Sabbath, met again for public preaching. Bro. L. Furry led in preaching followed by George Hanawalt and others. After services, we returned home and took with us Eld. John Spanogle and wife, by whom we were pleasantly entertained during the afternoon in way of social and religious conversation. In the evening, we again returned to the church, where a large and appreciative audience was profitably entertained by Bro. John Spanogle, followed by H. R. Holsinger and concluded by Jacob Steel. After preaching, quite a number came home with us and put up in the PILGRIM's home. The visit was highly appreciated, and hope that our associations will tend to enhance our love and regard for each other and be for our mutual benefit and encouragement on our way to Zion. Next morning, we accompanied a number of our guests to the station, when we received another delegation of members bound for the PILGRIM office. These also have our thanks in remembering us by way of a personal visit. We are always glad to receive our brethren, sisters and friends, and hope none will pass us by without giving us a call. We would have much more to say about our meeting but space seems to forbid.

OUR PROSPECTS.

Our prospects for the coming volume are encouraging, and the PILGRIM's future presents a hopeful appearance. The only objection brought against it was the inferior quality of paper. A few more issues, and the cheap paper will be all. We shall then finish the volume with a good 25 lb rag paper, but are now having made to order a good 28lb book paper for 1873. This we know will give universal satisfaction. There will also be other improvements on the PILGRIM. We are determined to avail ourselves of every opportunity to increase the PILGRIM's circulation and usefulness. Some of our friends pretended surprise at our saying the other week that we intended to inform 200,000 people that there was a PILGRIM published, but it is a fact nevertheless. We have advertised in periodicals that their combined circulation is 180,000. Give these an average of three readers each, and we have 540,000. Whether we will get paid for this outlay of money is yet to be told, but it is hoped that it may be the means of planting the cross in places where the "good news" was never preached in all its purity. Only the other day we were informed that our doctrine was introduced by the PILGRIM, into a community where there was nothing known of the Brethren, and now there are some twenty members there. By reading the PILGRIM, they learned of our doctrine, then there was a all for preaching which resulted in the conversion and we trust, regeneration of many. May we not hope for many similar results from our extensive advertising? Brethren and sisters pray for the extension of the Redeemer's Kingdom.

ALL GOOD PAPER FOR 1873.

We are glad that many of our readers are calling for a better quality of paper, as we are getting out of patience in using it, and have determined for 1873 to use all good paper, making our price $1.50 per year. In doing this, we do not raise the price of the PILGRIM, but use a better material. For $1.50 we use all good book paper and in addition, give every subscriber a Pilgrim Almanac free of charge, that is really worth the extra 25cts. to every family in the brotherhood, for the important information that it will contain.

We make this change, first because we can not do good work on the cheap paper. It is so full of fuzz and dirt that the type soon fills and makes the whole form a mass of blurs.

Second, to have a uniform price, and save the inconvenience of using two kinds of paper. Several times we had not enough of book paper to supply all who paid for them, thus vexing our patrons as well as ourselves. In using all one kind of paper we avoid such unpleasant occurrences.

Third, because we can get no paper cheap enough that is fit to send out to give us a living profit at $1.25. This is an important reason and one by which we must be governed or fail.

THAT DEBATE.

We still get an occasional rub about the debate we promised to publish in the PILGRIM, therefore we give one more explanation. In the early part of '72, Bro. Jesse Calvert wrote us, wishing to know whether or not we would publish it. We answered that we would. In a short time we received another letter informing us that it would be sent as soon as it could be prepared. We then made the announcement of its publication in the PILGRIM. At the A. M., we saw both Calvert and R. H. Miller and then learned that it was not a regular report, but was taken by Bro. Calvert, and some notes that Bro. Miller had made preparatory to the debate, and that it would take considerable labor to prepare a report that could do justice to both parties. Bro. Calvert still thought they could fix it up and have it published, but since then, we have heard nothing further about it, and what disposition they have or intend to make of it we know not, but we are still willing to fill our part of the contract. Hoping that this will be satisfactory to all, we will promise to publish no more debates until we can have the assurance that we can fulfil the contract.

THE CASH SYSTEM.

Different ones of late are inquiring whether we intend adopting the cash system. We answer, yes, with as many as have the cash and are willing to give it, but there are a large number that may not have the money at the time of subscribing but can get it during the year. To such, we offer the same inducement for 1873 as we did last year, pay during the year, with the understanding that there is no unnecessary delay. We have been working by this system since we commenced and still we live and expect to continue to do so as far as money is concerned, although there are quite a number, who have not yet paid for 1872. We kindly inform such, that five more numbers will complete the volume, and during that time we expect to receive all that is due us on old subscriptions. Send it in NOW and we will favor you again for the coming year.

CROWDED OUT.

Again we are compelled to crowd out a large amount of interesting correspondence, &c, but we will soon have room for it all. Do not let this be the cause of any holding back as such contributions are always acceptable.

PLEASE NOTICE; Every subscriber to the PILGRIM for 1873 will get the Pilgrim Almanac free. New subscribers will also get the remaining Nos. of 1872—will commence as soon as the names are received.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Remember, all subscriptions will run out at the end of the year, or the time subscribed for. Those wishing to continue their subscription will please do it in good time so that we can have the names all properly booked and be ready to commence with the new volume for 1873.

PILGRIM ALMANAC, 1873.

Almost every day we are getting orders for Almanacs from parties who wish to sell them for us. We hereby inform one and all, that they are not intended for sale, but for free distribution among our subscribers. EVERY subscriber for 1873 will get a Pilgrim Almanac FREE. These must be supplied first, and then if we find that we will have any to spare, our friends may sell for us. Our agents will all receive sample copies of the Almanac as soon as they are ready for distribution. In some cases we do not know who are agents, therefore if any should not receive sample copies, please inform us. Also, all who wish to become agents will be supplied with copies of both PILGRIMS and Almanacs by informing us of their wishes. The Pilgrim Almanac, in some respects, will be the best ever put out by the Church. It is gotten up after the old German or Lancaster Almanac style containing all the signs and everything belonging to a regular family Almanac. The astronomical calculations are made by Prof. Ibach successor to Eagleman, the man of Almanac renown. It contains the Centennial or Hundred year Almanac; A number of biographies of our ministerial brethren never before published, A comprehensive ministerial list giving the county to each address. This is an important feature and will greatly aid in determining location, and is also a requisition of the late postal law. On this list we bestowed a vast amount of labor, as can be testified by those brethren who visited our office and examined the hundreds of sheets of manuscript containing the addresses and other information intended for the Almanac. A history of the Brethren, also some old German documents concerning the early churches of Lancaster and adjoining counties, sent by C. Bomberger, and time and place of the Annual Meeting and a large number of District Meetings, and much other religious and instructive reading. In every respect, it is a first class Almanac and should be placed in the hands of every brother and sister in the brotherhood and all others who wish a good family Almanac. Remember, every subscriber to the PILGRIM for 1873 gets one FREE. Please inform the brethren and sisters of this fact and ask them to subscribe for the PILGRIM and get an Almanac FREE.

THE PHRENOLOGICAL JOURNAL, for November, has made its welcome appearance in our sanctum, and, as usual is full of first-class reading. We have so often recommended this journal in our columns, that our readers will soon think that we place upon it, a very high estimate, and that is just what we do. There is no other publication comes to our office that we can so freely recommend to the reading public, as the Phrenological Journal, because to it we are indebted for much of our intellectual and scientific knowledge. No man can read it for a year without being greatly benefitted and elevated in the sphere of intellectual improvement. Published by S. R. Wells, 389 Broadway, New York, at $3.00 per year.

☞ In order that our readers may have an opportunity of reading this very excellent Journal for 1873, we have made arrangements to send it and the PILGRIM, one year for $3.50.

THE YOUNG FOLKS RURAL is a finely illustrated sixteen page monthly literary and rural paper for the young and is rapidly growing in favor everywhere. A pair of beautiful chromos (mounted and varnished) sent post paid as as a gift for all subscriptions received before January 1st, 1873. Terms $1.50 per year. Address H. N. F. Lewis, 407 W. Madison St., Chicago.

MARRIED.

CURFMAN—SHAFFER.—October 17, at the residence of the undersigned, Mr. John W. Curfman, to Miss Sarah E Shaffer, both of East Sharpsburg, Blair co., Pa. S. A. MOORE.

SHOEMAKER—BULGER.—On the 27th of October, 1872, by the undersigned, at his residence near New Enterprise, Bedford co., Pa., Mr. Benjamin F. Shoemaker of Blair county, to sister Sarah Bulger of Bedford co. LEONARD FURRY.

FUNCK—STUMP.—October 16th, 1872, at the residence of the bride's parents, by Rev. C. Forney, I. W. Funck, (formerly of Huntingdon co., Pa.,) to Miss Sue Stump of Falls City, Neb.

DIED.

BURGERT.—In the Hopewell Congregation, Bedford co., Pa., on the 17th of October, 1872, Mary, infant daughter of brother Samuel and sister Mary Burgart, deceased, aged 1 month and 1 day.
H. W. C.

SMITH.—Flat Rock, Bourbon co., Kansas, on the 8th of October, 1872, sister Laura, wife of Brother George L. Smith, formerly of Ohio. She was a consistent member of the Church, and died in the hope of a glorious resurrection. She leaves a husband, two little children, and a large circle of friends to mourn their loss. Disease, congestive chills. Funeral services by Brother Hodgden, and the writer, from Rev. 14: 12, 13.
JOHN J. HOOVER.

VANSCOIK.—In Yellow Creek Church, Elkhart co., Ind., Mary, daughter of Harvey D. and Catharine Vanscoik, of the lingering disease consumption on the 7th of October, 1872.

On the 9th she was conveyed to the graveyard by a large concourse of relatives and friends, with about 60 vehicles to her last resting place, and then to the Meeting-house, where the occasion was improved by Daniel Shively and others, from Rev. 14: 13. Aged 16 years, 11 months and 9 days. She was a consistent member for several years. P. H. KURTZ.

WATTERS.—In the Dry Creek Congregation, Linn co., Iowa, Oct. 20th, 1872, our much esteemed Elder, Jacob O. Watters, aged 69 years, 3 mos. and 26 days. Funeral services by the brethren, from Rev. 14: 13.

The subject of the above notice worked on Saturday, as usual, ate a hearty supper, and feeling somewhat fatigued from the labors of the day, he retired early, where he was found next morning by the family, sleeping that sleep that knows no waking, until the trump of God shall sound. Truly in the midst of life we are in death. He leaves a wife and seven children to mourn their loss, but we hope their loss is his eternal gain. JACOB BOCK.

BREWER.—In the Welsh Run Congregation, Oct. 10, 1872, after a protracted illness of a year, sister Elizabeth wife of Henry Brewer, and daughter of Elder Daniel Reichard, dec'd, in the 64th year of her age.

She was a faithful and consistent member in the church of the Brethren for upwards of forty years. She bore her affliction with christian fortitude, and died in the hope of a blissfull immortality. Funeral services from Rev. 20: 6, by Eld. C. Keiffer and Bro. D. Wolf.

Dear children, let Faith's consoling power
Forever restrain your tears of love,
For, O, who that witnessed my parting hour
Could wish my enraptured soul from above.

Dear as thou wast mother, and justly dear,
From mourning our loss we cannot refrain;
But one thought may oft check the starting tear,
It is, the hope we have to meet again.

E. S. MILLER.

(Visitor please copy.)

MONEY LIST.

W. Arnold,	$7.00	Eli Massimore	1.25
D. R. C. Nead	3.75	Dan'l Beachley	2.50
Wm. Sadler	3.30	S. J. Garber	1.25
David Miller	6.00	Leonard Furry	1.25
D. Brumbaugh	1.25	Wm. B. Sell	6.10
J. S. Flory	1.50	Abram Troxel	1.10
D. Bosserman	1.25	L. C. Newcomer	1.00
Jas. Rigley	1.25	John Clapper	3.55
Samuel Lutz	5.60	Sam'l Ritchey	1.25
W. B. Sell	6.00	Jno. K. Miller	1.50
G. S. Rinken,	5.00	David Adams	1.25
J. S. Flory	.50	J. B. Miller	1.00
Jacob Holsopple	5.00	John B. Smith	1.25
J. Rittenhouse	1.50	Jos. H. Amich	6.00
Hannah Rinker	1.25	John Arnold	6.25
R. M. Wakefield	1.25	D. B. Mentzer	.50
John Garver	1.25	John Clapper	1.25
H. Hershberger	9.50	— Wareham	1.25
D. Snowberger	1.50	J. L. Beaver	4.25
S. A. Moore	5.00	Jacob Stone	3.55
J. S. Holsinger	2.75	John Rogers	1.25
R. Replogle	1.50	H. Brumbaugh	1.25
Christian Hankle	1.25	D. R. Freeman	8.00

CENSUS OF BEES.—The Massachusetts Ploughman has been writing up bee statistics, and gives them thus: "Uncle Sam has bees enough to give us all a sting! There are two million bee hives in the United States. Every hive yields on an average a little over twenty-two pounds of honey. The average price at which honey is sold is twenty-five cents a pound. So that after paying for their own board, our bees present us with a revenue of over $8,8000,000. To reckon it another way, they make a clear gift of over a pound of pure honey to every man, woman and child in the vast domain of the United States. In 1860, over twenty-three and one third million pounds of wax were made and given to us by these industrious workers. The keeping of bees is one of the most profitable investments that our people can make of their money. The profits arising from the sale of surplus honey average from fifty to two hundred per cent of the capital invested."

HOW BUTTER IS SPOILED.—A farmer's wife writing to the Ohio Farmer says: "Of all the products of the farm, butter is most liable to be tainted by noxious odors floating in the atmosphere. Our people laid some veal in the cellar, from which a little blood flowed out, and was neglected until it commenced to smell. The result was, that a jar of butter which I was then packing, smelled and tasted like spoiled beef." Another lady reader observes that there is a pond of filthy, stagnant water a few hundred feet from their house, from which an offensive effluvium would be borne on the breeze directly to the milkroom, when the wind was in a certain direction, the result of which was that cream and butter would taste like the disagreeable odor coming from that pond. As soon as the pond was drained we had no more damaged butter.

GOOD BOOKS.

A large number of our patrons are receiving our books as noticed below, as premiums, and express themselves highly pleased with them. Others who are not agents, have enquired whether we keep them for sale. We have now made arrangements with Mr. Wells to furnish any of their publications post paid at publishers prices. Orders for books must be accompanied with the cash, and plain directions for sending them.

How to Live; Saving and Wasting, or Domestic Economy. By Solon Robinson. $1.50.

Life at Home; or, The Family and its Members. Husbands, Wives, Parents, Children, Brothers, Sisters, Employers and Employed, etc. By Rev. William Aikman, D. D. A work which should be found in every family. $1.50. Extra gilt, $2.00.

Hand book for Home Improvement; comprising "How to Write," "How to Talk," How to Behave," and "How to do Business," in one vol. 2.25.

Man and Woman; Considered in their Relations to each Other and to the World. By Henry C. Pedder. 12mo, Fancy cloth Price $1.00.

The Right Word in the Right Place. A New Pocket Dictionary and Reference Book. Embracing Synonyms, Technical Terms, Abbreviations, Foreign Phrases Writing for the Press, Punctuation, Proof-Reading, and other Valuable Information. Cloth, 75cts.

Man, in Genesis and in Geology; or, the Biblical Account of Man's Creation, tested by Scientific Theories of his Origin and Antiquity. By Joseph P. Thompson, D. D., LL.D. One vol. 12mo, $1.00.

The Emphatic, Diaglott; or The New Testament in Greek and English. Containing the Original Greek Text of the New Testament, with an Interlineary Word for-word English Translation. A Work for Students in Theology, and S. S. Teachers. By Benamin Wilson. Price, $4 00; extra fine binding, $5.00.

Oratory—Sacred and Secular; or, the Extemporaneous Speaker. Including Chairman's Guide for conducting Public Meetings according to the best Parliamentary forms. By Wm. Pittenger. $1.50.

Conversion of St. Paul. By George Jarvis Geer, D D. 12mo. fine edition, $1. Plain edition, 75 cents.

Hopes and Helps for the Young of both sexes, Relating to the Formation of Character. Choice of Avocation, Health, Conversation, Cultivation of Intellect, Moral Sentiments, Social Affection Courtship and Marriage. By Rev. G. S. Weaver. Muslin, $1.50.

TUNE BOOK.

The Brethren's Tune and Hymn Book, is a compilation of Sacred Music adapted to all the hymns in the Brethren's New Hymn Book. It contains over 350 pages, printed on good paper and neatly bound. We will send it to any address, post paid at $1.25 per copy.

25 Ablest Tariff Journal in the U. S. THE AMERICAN WORKING PEOPLE.

Published monthly, is a welcome visitor at 100,000 Firesides. Finely printed, handsomely illustrated, ably edited—has no rival! $1.50 per year, sent on trial 3 months for 25 cents.

IRON WORLD PUB. CO., Pittsburgh, Pa.

25 THE IRON WORLD is the Largest and most Valuable Metal Price Current in the world. $1.00 per year. Sent on trial one month for 25 cents. All the State Geologists are Contributors. IRON WORLD PUB'G CO., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Trine Immersion

TRACED

TO THE APOSTLES.

Being a collection of historical quotations from modern and ancient authors, proving that a THREE-FOLD Immersion was the only method of baptizing ever practiced by the Apostles and their immediate successors. The author, after proving Trine Immersion to have been the prevailing practice, in baptism, the first 1500 years of the Christian era, commences with the fifth century, and traces a Three-fold Immersion, to within 33 years of the apostle John's death, and then proves it to have been the Apostolic method of baptizing, while Single Immersion was invented not less than 326 years after the death of Christ.

Put up in a neat pamphlet form, with good paper cover, and will be sent, postpaid, on the following terms: One copy, 25 cts; Five copies, $1.10; Ten copies, $2.00.

Address, J. H. MOORE,
Urbana, Champaign co., Ill.

Oct. 22.

SALEM COLLEGE.

The Fall term of Salem College will open for the reception of any number of students from all parts on the 4th of September, 1872. Ample accommodations and thorough instruction will be given all students who connect themselves with this College. Good board can be had in good families at $2.50 to $3.00 per week or students can board themselves in clubs at $1.25 to $1.50 per week as numbers have done with the consent of the faculty. Special care will be given students who are far from home.

For Catalogues, Scholarships and full particulars address

SALEM COLLEGE,
July 22, '72. Bourbon, Ind.

WANTED BOOK Agents FOR THE GREAT INDUSTRIES OF THE UNITED STATES;

AN HISTORICAL SUMMARY OF THE ORIGIN, GROWTH AND PERFECTION OF THE CHIEF INDUSTRIAL ARTS OF THIS COUNTRY.

1300 PAGES and 500 ENGRAVINGS.

Written by 20 Eminent Authors, including

JOHN B. GOUGH, LEON CASE, EDWARD HOWLAND, JOS. B. LYMAN, REV. E. EDWIN HALL, HORACE GREELEY, PHILIP RIPLEY, ALBERT BRISBANE, F. B. PERKINS, ETC.

This work is a complete history of all branches of industry, processes of manufacture, etc., in all ages. It is a complete encyclopedia of arts and manufactures, and is the most entertaining and valuable work of information on subjects of general interest ever offered to the public. It is adapted to the wants of the Merchant, Manufacturer, Mechanic, Farmer, Student and Inventor, and sells to both old and young of all classes. The book is sold by agents, who are making large sales in all parts of the country. It is offered at the low price of $3.50, and is the cheapest book ever sold by subscription. No family should be without a copy. We want agents in every town in the United States, and no agent can fail to do well with this book. Our terms are liberal. We give our agents the exclusive right of territory. One of our agents sold 133 copies in eight days, another sold $68 in two weeks. Our agent in Hartford sold $97 in one week. Specimens of the work sent to agents on receipt of stamp. For circulars and terms to agents address the publishers,

J. B. BURR & HYDE, Hartford, Conn., Chicago, Ill., or Cincinnati, Ohio.

Menno Simon's

COMPLETE WORKS.

In English, translated from the original Dutch or Holland, giving the whole of the great Reformers writings on the subject of Baptism. Price in full sheep $4.50; by mail $5.14.

Address, JOHN F. FUNK & BRO.
Elkhart, Ind.

New Hymn Books, English.

TURKEY MOROCCO.

One copy,	postpaid,	$1.00
Per Dozen,		11.25

PLAIN ARABESQUE.

One Copy,	post-paid,	75
Per Dozen,	"	8.50

Ger'n & English, Plain Sheep.

One Copy,	post-paid,	$1.00
Per Dozen		11.25
Arabesque Plain,		1.00
Turkey Morocco,		1.25
Single German,	post paid	50
Per Dozen,		5.50

TRACTS.

"ANXIOUS BENCH RELIGION EXAMINIED," BY ELDER J. S. FLORY. A SYNOPSIS OF CONTENTS. An address to the reader: The peculiarities that attend this type of religion. The feelings there experienced not imaginary but real. The key that unlocks the wonderful mystery. The causes by which feelings are excited. How the momentary feelings called "Experimental religion" are brought about, and then concludes by giving that form of doctrine as taught by Jesus Christ and recorded by his faithful witnesses.

COUNTERFEIT DETECTER
or
BAPTISM—MUCH IN LITTLE.

This work is now ready for distribution, and the importance of the subject will speak for it a large demand. It is a short treatise on baptism in tract form intended for general distribution, and is set forth in such a plain and logical manner that a wayfaring man though a fool, cannot err therein. Either of the above tracts sent postpaid on the following terms: Two copies, 10 cts, 10 copies 40 cents, 25 copies 70 cents, 50 copies $1.00, 100 copies $1.50.

1870 1872

DR. FAHRNEY'S

Blood Cleanser or Panacea.

A tonic and purge, for Blood Diseases. Great reputation. Many testimonials. Many ministering brethren use and recommend it. Ask or send for the "Health Messenger." Use only the "Panacea" prepared at Chicago, Ills., and by

Dr. P. Fahrney's Brothers & Co.,

Aug. 3-pd. Waynesboro, Franklin Co., Pa.

Trine Immersion.

A discussion on Trine Immersion, by letter between Elder B. F. Moomaw and Dr. J. J. Jackson, to which is annexed a Treatise on the Lord's Supper, and on the necessity, character and evidences of the new birth, also a dialogue on the doctrine of non-resistance, by Elder B. F. Moomaw. Single copy 50 cents.

$5 to $20 per day! Agents wanted! All classes of working people, of either sex, young or old, make more money at work for us in their spare moments, or all the time, than at anything else. Particulars free. Address G. Stinson & Co., Portland, Maine. sep. 17.

HUNTINGDON & BROAD TOP RAIL ROAD

Winter Arrangement.

On and after Tuesday, Oct. 4, 1872, Passenger trains will arrive and depart as follows:

Trains from Huntingdon South.				Trains from Mt. Dal's moving North.
MAIL A. M.	ACCOM P. M.	STATIONS.		MAIL P. M	ACCOM A. M.
*le*8 00	LE5 50	Huntingdon,	AR3 20		AR9 00
8 08	5 57	Long Siding	3 12		8 43
8 24	6 10	McConnelstown	2 56		8 37
8 30	6 17	Pleasant Grove	2 50		8 30
8 45	6 30	Marklesburg	2 37		8 17
9 00	6 44	Coffee Run	2 23		8 01
9 07	6 52	Rough & Ready	2 15		7 53
9 20	7 05	Cove	2 01		7 40
9 24	7 10	Fishers Summit	1 57		7 35
9 44	*ar*7 30	Saxton	1 37		le 7 15
9 54
10 10		Riddlesburg	1 19
10 17		Hopewell	1 12
10 34		Piper's Run	12 56
10 52		Tatesville	12 38
11 05		Bloody Run	12 24
*r*11 10		Mount Dallas	12 20

JOHN M'KILLIPS, Supt

SHOUP'S RUN BRANCH.

LE10 00	LE7 40	Saxton.	AR1 30	AR7 10
10 15	7 55	Coalmont.	1 15	6 53
10 20	8 00	Crawford.	1 10	6 50
AR10 30	AR8 10	Dudley	LE1 00	LE6 40
Bro'd Top City from Dudley 2 miles by stage.

Time of Penna. R. R. Trains at Huntingdon.

EASTWARD.			WESTWARD.
Hb'g Ac.	9 24	A. M	Cin. Ex.	2 19	A. M.
Mail	3 30	P. M	Pe'r Ex.	7 45	"
Cin. Ex.	6 53	"	Mail	5 40	P. M.
Phil. Ex	11 15	"	W. Pass.	11 52	A. M.

The Weekly Pilgrim.

Published by J. B. Brumbaugh, & Co.

Edited by H. B. & Geo. Brumbaugh.

CORRESPONDING EDITORS.

D. P. Sayler, Double Pipe Creek, Md.

Leonard Furry, New Enterprise, Pa.

The Pilgrim is a Christian Periodical, devoted to religion and moral reform. It will advocate in the spirit of love and liberty, the principles of true Christianity, labor for the promotion of peace among the people of God, for the encouragement of the saints and for the conversion of sinners, avoiding those things which tend toward disunion or sectional feelings.

TERMS.

Single copy, Book paper. $1.50
Eleven copies, [eleventh for Agt.] $15.00
Any number above that at the same rate,

Address.

H. B. BRUMBAUGH.
James Creek,
Huntingdon county Pa.

Mrkly Pilgrim.

"REMOVE NOT THE ANCIENT LANDMARKS WHICH OUR FATHERS HAVE SET."

VOL. 3. JAMES CREEK, PENNSYLVANIA, NOVEMBER 12, 1872. NO. 46

POETRY.

JESUS ONLY.

O Thou, dear Lord, who stayest
When all the guests are gone,
When, in its silent chambers;
The soul alone sits down.

Our garlands all are withered,
Our sweetest congs are sung;
The lamps which lit our feasting
Have gone out one by one.

Yet thanks to Thee that ever
Thou comest at our will;
Thy voice is heard the clearer
When all the house is still.

As on the Throne of Vision,
Amid the shining three,
The overawed disciples
Looked up and say but Thee.

So we, our brightness faded,
Our sweet companions flown,
Lift up our troubled faces
To find Thou art not gone.

Thanks to Thy name that ever
Thou dost in grief appear,
That by each deepening shadow;
We know thy sunshine near.

Be ruler of our feasting,
Thou Son of love alone;
O Thou, dear Lord, who stayest
When all the guests are gone.

ORIGINAL ESSAYS.

THE PREPERATION.

"Prepare to meet thy God, O, Israel."—Amos 4 ; 12.

God's spirit will not always strive with man. His love is unbounded to those who obey Him. But to those who know Him not by reason of stubbornness or to those who have forgotten Him, His love and mercy are by and by succeeded by His wrath and vengeance unless they repent. His heated breath shall come hissing with piercing point and destroy them as it did the cities of Sodsam and Gomorrah. Their carnal pleasures, no matter by what they are occasioned, will resolve into an unceasing trickling remorse. "Our God shall come and He shall not keep silent." Suddenly from His throne,thousands of angels proceed at once to declare His statutes, His love and mercy and judgments, goodness and severity—His goodness to those who obey the command "Prepare to meet thy God," and His severity to those who are negligent and thus unprepared to meet Him. In this condition they will call upon the mountains to fall upon them and hide them from the presence of God. At the time of the meeting to which the prophet referred, no pitiful cries for mercy will be heard. The season of grace will then be past. There is no repentance in the grave. "Life is the time to serve the Lord," therefore it is the time to prepare to meet Him. How very dreadful and dark the future is to those who live consciously unprepared to meet God! As they are hurled irresistably—swiftly along by the wheels of time, darker clouds arise. Death and eternal destruction play like fierce lightning along the gloomy lowering sky. Oh, how dreadful! What a horrid prospect! The thoughts of Heaven often rush through their nerves. The awful thought of being forever banished from the presence of God and the angels and friends gone before, often sting them to the very heart. Many a vain resolve to "prepare to meet God" is made by them. What despair, what horror fills their minds when they receive the unwelcome denunciation "Depart from me ye workers of iniquity!" Oh, what anguish fills their souls! When for the vain delusive hope which fancy feigned to be the glories of Heaven, they meet a dreadful abyss of endless misery, "Where the worm dieth not and the fire is not quenched," while around them, an eternal night is closing fast, and every scorching blaze of the fiery tempest renders the awful darkness more wild. Then the glorious privileges lost, throng busily and rapidly into their minds. Privileges of fleeing "the wrath to come," of laying up "treasures in Heaven," of privileges—golden opportunities forever lost. These hurry their awful descent, as downward they sink beneath the wrath of an offended God, pondering as they go, over all the bitter woes of hell. In vain they plead now with tears of artless innocence. Alas! all hope is fled. The deadly hungry demons seize on every soul and lay them along the embers—damned culprits stretched out and burning in the nethermost pit.* * *

But how different is the prospect of those who obey the heavenly mandate "Prepare to meet thy God." Though, in this life persecuted, mocked derided and encircled by the resistless icy arms of death, still they have a source of unspeakable happiness. The avenue that leads to immortal glory lies open and unobstructed before them. They see with the far-reaching eye of faith the fount of life, their Father's house. Their hopes grow stronger. Their fears vanish away, 'till at the great judgment day they hear the welcome plaudit "Come in ye blessed of my Father inherit the Kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world." They gently fall into the arms of their Savior God, and now is their joy unspeakable and full of glory. What blessed anticipations fill their souls! When they are "changed" when their understanding is "opened"—enlarged and enlightened, when they behold Jesus as He is, their cup of bliss is full and overflowing. Angels carry them into the golden city where they recline, basking in the glorious light of immortal bliss.

J. B. GARVER.

Shirleysbury Pa.

CHANGE OF HEART.

In olden times the functions of the brain were very imperfectly understood, and the heart was supposed to be the organ of thought: hence even at the present time, the phrase "change of heart," would imply change of mind.

It is very often asserted by revivalists, that certain denominations do not believe in a "change of heart," or as they sometimes call it, "experimental religion" that is certainly a misrepresentation of at least some of the Baptist churches, for many of them do not only believe in one change but in three, and some have a fourth: First, there is an intellectual change, which is FAITH. This does not come suddenly, but as we read: "Faith cometh by hearing (not by praying) and hearing by the word of God." We farther read, that "without faith it is impossible to please God." Of course, we are not to believe as the Pagans believe in their gods. Nor will a true Christian believe in Christ as a Mahometan believes in Mahomet nor as a Morman would believe in Joe Smith, without proof of a divine origin; but an intelligent faith requires to understand the purpose of Deity—"the things concerning the Kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ;" in short, the plan of salvation.

The second is a moral change, known as REPENTANCE; not necessarily remorse of conscience, nor "Godly sorrow for sin," but a change from wrong to right; to "Go thy way and sin no more." A man may undergo the intellectual change, and yet remain indifferent and disregard his duty to God. A valuable lesson may be learned in the parable of the sower.

The third change is a legal change, known as BAPTISM: and is one of the requirements of New Testament Law. We have many examples on record where this law was obeyed, even by Jesus Himself. Though Abraham was justified by faith alone, it is evident that his faith was made perfect by works, James ii. 22. Christianity without this legal requirement is no Christianity at all.

The fourth is a Physical change, which is supposed to take place at the RESURRECTION or SPIRIT BIRTH of the saints. Jesus was the first to undergo this change, a little more than three years after his Baptism, and just three days after his burial, when he triumphantly arose from the tomb. Before he had been a natural body, but now he is a spiritual personage; before blood flowed in his veins, now some other life-giving substance animates the Son of man, for we have evidence that his blood was shed upon the cross; before he was a mortal but now he is an immor-

ed man. He was the first fruits of the resurrection, and the first to bring life and immortality to light. We are commanded to seek immortality. Then how important it must be to make our calling and election sure by undergoing all these changes; namely Faith, Repentance, and Baptism, and last, but not least, the Physical change—to be born of the Spirit. See conversation between Jesus and Nicodemus. P. FAIRNEY.

Chicago and Dale City.

AN INTERESTING CIRCUMSTANCE.

Dear Pilgrim:—What I here communicate is to me, one of the most interesting circumstances that I ever witnessed.

About ten days ago, I received a message from a young woman, who for some time past, was supposed by all who saw her to be in the last stage of consumption of the lungs, requesting me to pay her a visit. Accordingly, when on my way to a Communion meeting in an adjoining county, I called to see her. She being a member of the Missionary Baptist fraternity informed me in the first place, that she had an interview by special request, with her pastor, informing him of her dissatisfied state of mind on account of the delinquency of his church in not obeying the commands nor keeping the ordinances required by the gospel, and the indulgence in superfluities, vanities and pride as well as the division in the church, some washing feet and others separated off in groups, sneering at the performance, she telling him that they being thus divided must come to desolation, "that a house divided against itself cannot stand" and then informed him of her intention to withdraw from his church and unite with the Brethren, and so they parted.

She then declared her intention to me, and requested to be baptized, saying that she could not die satisfied without it. So I left her, promising to attend to her on my return, which I did on Monday last, that is I called to see her on my return. She was very weak in body, but strong in her resolution. In the interval however some of her neighbors and some of the family, discouraged her, saying she was too weak to undergo the service, some of them saying that for the respect they had for her they would be present but did not want to see her die in the water. "But none of these things moved her," she saying that if she died in the water, she died in a good cause, and I thank God that my faith was equal to the trial, and so arrangements were made to baptize her the next day, Tuesday. Collecting a few members, and giving the appointment as much publicity as we could, we met at the time appointed and after a little season of devotion, and attending to the usual preliminaries, we carried her on a chair to the water, about one hundred yards distance, where we baptized her, she receiving it with as much calmness and composure as I ever witnessed, and when she arose from the water she smiled and pleasantly praised the Lord. After being carried back to the house and her raiment changed she seemed much revived and when urged to lie down, said she would to gratify her friends but otherwise preferred sitting up. Before we left she expressed a desire to partake of and practice the sacramental ordinances. Saturday following, was the time of our Communion and on Sunday evening we took some of the emblems, assembled a few members, with whom we celebrated the Holy Communion, and afterwards at her request we administered the anointing in the name of the Lord, all of which she seemed to enjoy very much. Truly it was to all, a solemn and impressive scene. She appears to be entirely resigned and indeed to all human appearance, she seems to be decidedly improved physically, and was there hope for a consumptive we might suppose she was convalescent, and truly nothing is impossible with God.

Permit me here to exhort all under whose notice this scrap of history may come, to be honest with themselves, make the necessary sacrifice, at once, lay aside all vanity, deny thyself and at once take up thy cross, come out from among the world and secure covenant relation with Christ while you may. It may not be your privilege to be indulged with protracted illness like the subject of this narrative. There was one young lady present at this little "Lovefeast" who was not a Christian but thank the Lord the occasion was sanctified to her, and the fountains of her soul were broken up, and the tears of penitence flowed copiously from her weeping eyes, and in reply to the inquiry as to the cause of her grief, she said she wanted to be a Christian May the good Lord give her grace to conquer, and that she may be a star composing the crown of the blessed Redeemer.

In this little Lovefeast was discovered rather a singular coincidence. Just thirteen present, the number present when these institutions were first celebrated by Christ and his twelve Apostles. Of course altogether accidental, and not claimed to be significant.

B. F. Moorman.

Procrastination is the thief of time.

THE UNCONCERNED SPECTATORS.

Sorrow is the continual attendant on human life. Every day some poor sufferer is darkened with distress, and yet the spectators are frequently no more concerned than if the patient was only to set out from the city to his country seat. Were a King coming to sit in judgment on a beloved friend, and to examine strictly, his actions upon life and death, could we shake ourselves free from a thousand agitating thoughts or dislodge our breasts of anxious fears and many a fervant wish? Now when a person is pining on a sick bed, or expiring on a death bed, the King of Kings seems to mount His judgment throne and order this arrested pannel into His tremendous presence, where the examination will be strict and the trial issue in eternal life or death, and yet, how trifling, often is the discourse of the attendants? How jocular and sportive their talk! But O, if the invisible world of spirits would flash full in their face, if all the disembodied souls of their acquaintance would start up around them, how would they stare? Though they can now dance about the grave and laugh amidst the glooms of death, to this invisible world their friend seems fast going, and they in spite of all their stupidity, are fast falling. When I look on the bed and see my poor fellow creature in that humble state, it excites my sorrow, but when I look around the company, in their apparent incredulity of a future state, it so moves my compassion that I am at a loss whether most to pity the dying or deplore the living. But my soul, be thou not an idle spectacle. Also know the sentence that all must die, reaches you as well as others, perhaps death is filling his quiver with arrows for the decisive battle. Now he may be placing an arrow on the bended bow to sink the sickening shaft into thy heart strings. "Man that is born of woman is of few days, (this all the nations know) and full of trouble." (This I daily find. "He cometh forth as a flower (frail and fading). He fleeth also as a shadow. Quickly gone and quite forgotten. I carry death in my mortal body, which, like a fiery spark concealed within, will sooner or later, lay the house in ashes. It is but a small thing to grapple with death, to enter the list with the king of terrors or be enclosed in the gloom of the grave, but it is another thing to enter into a world of spirits, to launch into unknown and endless eternity, to see God face to face. Roman fortitude may dismantle itself of clay, defy the grave, and brave death, but nothing short of a well grounded faith can carry one calmly, cheerfully and comfortably into a future state. The things of life are of little account at death. What can riches do but encumber with too much splendid care and troublesome attendance? What can a character do but publish his decease? What can opulance and honor do, but give a pompous funeral and a costly tomb? What can friends do but weep about the bed and bewail their dying relative? But thy loved dear Lord, can enlighten my passage through death and lead me safely to my Father's house. A. PILGRIM.

MY LANTERN.—No. 2.

"I can truly say, with my brother, that I would much rather have kept my seat and heard my brethren preach but will try to bear a little evidence to what has been said. We have heard much to day, and many wholesome truths, and as far as I am able to judge, all that has been said was according to the word, but as I do not wish to detain you long or draw your attention from the very interesting truths which we have heard, I shall not detain you long, &c.

(He now commences telling the congregation what the other brother said, and in addition, tells them that it is all true and according to the gospel, consuming full half an hour, and then continues:) I really did not think of taking up so much time as there was already a sufficiency said. Truly brethren, sisters and friends, we have heard many wholesome truths to-day (It consisted, generally, of excuses and what the other brother said.) I will now give the subject over to the other brethren, hoping that they may have something to say on the same subject."

No. 2, Takes his seat, No. 4, gets up and continues the same subject—what the others said—until some of the weary ones are sound asleep and others who were not sleepy commenced going out. No. 4. After speaking on the same subject for 10 minutes longer. "As the time is now about up, I will not weary your patience, as I think we have heard a sufficiency for to-day, &c." (Takes his seat.)

No. 1. Lines a hymn and No. 5. makes some introductory remarks to prayer, by continuing the same subject.

The meeting is now concluded after the usual manner, and A. and B. are on their way home.

A. "Just as I expected, the meeting kept up again until almost dinner time and nothing said after all. I become weary of such preaching, therefore cannot blame others if they go to sleep or get up and go out."

B. "Well, Bro. A. I confess that the meeting was not as interesting as it might have been, but whose fault do you suppose it is?"

A. "Whose fault? Why their own, most certainly. Did not the Church set them apart to preach, why not study and prepare to preach so that when we go to Church we can hear something that is worth going after?"

B. "You are right, the Church has called them to preach, but I sometimes fear that we do not properly equip them for the work. If I would call you to plow my field for me and give you neither plow nor horses, you could not plow it very well, could you?"

A. "That is quite another thing. When we call a brother to preach, he does not need horses and plows to do that, the Bible is the equipment he needs, and he has nothing to do but go and preach the truth."

B. "If I tell you how to plow that knowledge alone will not do the plowing, will it?"

A. "Certainly not, but do you not see that preaching is quite different from plowing? All a man needs to preach, is to know how."

B. "Perhaps the difference is not so great as you may suppose. You noticed that brother D. did not seem to be well, and also, that he was not prepared to preach."

A. "Yes, I noticed that he was not quite well, but we cannot help that, and as to not being prepared, I suppose he did not read his Bible as much as he should have done."

B. "You should remember that Bro. D. has a large family to support and to do this, he must labor hard from Monday morning until Saturday evening. This constant wear is pulling him down. When Sunday morning comes, he is tired and stupid like an overworked horse. In this condition he takes his Bible to prepare himself for the important duty of preaching, but the mind is fagged, it won't work, the nerves had been overtaxed and no ideas are conveyed. He goes up to the house of worship, spiritually asleep and the result is, soon the congregation, or part of it, is naturally asleep. If it does not take horses and plows to preach; it takes recreation and time to study, and I believe if Bro. D. would have had a little of that before coming up to preach this morning, we would not have had as much room for complaining as we have just been doing."

A. "Well now I declare I never looked at this thing of preaching in that light before, and I believe you are about right for, just the other day, I heard Bro. D. say that he wished that he could have a little more time to study his Bible, and that there were several other good books that he would love to read if he was able to buy them. It is very true that a man, after working hard all day, cannot come much speed at reading, and unless he can read and learn something he will not have much to preach for we cannot expect much to come out where little goes in, that's certain, I am real sorry that I talked as I did, as I see the fault of poor preaching is as much with me as it is with the preachers, and I fear, a little more."

B. "I am glad that you see things in this way and hope that a move will soon be made to place our ministers on an average, so that they can have, at least, as much time to prepare their work as we have for ours, but here is our parting place, good-afternoon Bro. A."

A. "Good afternoon. (He rides on a short distance, stops his horse and calls.) see here, Bro. B., I was just thinking—tomorrow, you know, Bro. D. has a funeral to attend, has no help and is already behind time with his work, suppose we send our hands over to-morrow while he is gone and husk his corn for him, what say you?"

A. "I am quite glad you thought of that, I will send all the force that I have and will go along myself."

B. "Good afternoon, and if the Lord wills, we meet to-morrow morning in Bro. D.'s cornfield."

(They part and "My Lantern" closes."

Now brethren, if my observations suits any of your cases, please step into the "room of improvement," where "My Lantern" is always open, and take knowledge from the past, to benefit the future.

DOMESTIC LIFE.

Domestic life is the school of patience. Its duties, its difficulties, and its delights, too, are constantly recurring. Only the work of to-day can be done to-day. There is a sameness, also, in the mere exteroal form, an ever-recurring round that must disgust, or make one a mere mechanical drudge, unless the heart is put into the work, and the little, common, trivial acts are made the embodiment of noble ends. Step by step, stitch by stitch, stroke by stroke, the work goes on. One round of duty is completed only to commence another. Every day is a lesson and a practical exercise in patience. It is a good lesson, and we need to learn and practice it. It helps us to do another work which is absolutely necessary to the perfection of human character and the happiness of home, and that is the surrender of self. When two persons unite in the marriage relation they become one by mutual concessions. They mutually approach each other. There is much to give up as well as to give on both sides. There are many sharp corners to be rounded off, many rough surfaces to be made smooth, and many crooked ways to be made straight, and irregularities to be adjusted. Some of these are in the very grain of the constitution; some of them have been confirmed and hardened into habit, and it is difficult to make any impression upon them. Neither must seek to make self the standard, and to exact all the surrender and conformity from the other. Neither must seek to become the other, but something better than either. When two substances unite, chemically, the result is a substance different from either of its components.

So it should be in marriage. The result should be favorable to husband and wife. Each one should become freer, nobler, stronger, purer, and wiser—should attain a higher excellence than either could attain alone. This will always be the result when the rule of action is mutual surrender, accommodation and help. Each should inquire, What can I yield? In what respect and how far can I reform?

Every day will bring occasions to put our priciples to the test. there are diversities of taste, of feeling, of judgment and of principle. Happy are those who can yield their own preferences so cheerfully that the diversities of character are softened and shaded off into harmonious varieties, and not hardened into irritating and hostile opposition.

A great part of the sum of domestic misery is caused by this want of mutual accommodation, in apparently trivial things. It is as though the builder had left here and there in the floor, partitions and passages, the sharp points of nails to pierce the feet and rend the garments; or as though a thousand rough surfaces and sharp corners were fretting the inmates, and loose, ill-fitting joints were annoying them. If we could see the spiritual house as we see the natural, we should discover all these defects in the very walls. We would see the marks and scars of painful collisions; the want of proportion and harmony in the various apartments. I repeat, then, if we desire to have the work in our spiritual building to go on harmoniously, to a successful and noble issue, we must seek harmony in little things. Our intercourse must be courteous and respectful. We must be filled with that worthy fear which is the offspring of love—not fear of each other, but fear for each other; fear for ourselves that we may be wanting in some attention or respect; fear that we may do less for each other and exact more from each other than we ought. In a word we must seek the good of each other and of all in the house, and around that end as a center the life of each and all should revolve in freedom.—REV. C. GILES, in New Jerusalem Messenger.

Bury not your faculties in the sepulcher of idleness.

A divided family can no more stand than a divided commonwealth

"SHUT THY DOOR."

Souls often grow lonely in a crowd, and starve in the midst of temples, worshippers and ordinances. God would have us alone with Him sometimes. Coming to church is not coming to Christ. "Enter into thy closet, and shut thy door." Shut out nonsense, business, care, and pleasure. Shut out flatteries and frowns. Shut out strangers and acquaintances. Shut out friends and foes. Shut out this world, and open the window that looks out upon the next. Give the mind rest. Give the ear quiet. Give the tongue silence. Give the heart meditation. Give the soul communion with God; look up, there are blessings waiting for you. Listen, God speaks in His still small voice. Ask; God waits to hear. See that your soul is at peace with God. See that no shade of sin hides from your sight the Heaven'y Father's face.

Settle the questions of peace, pardon, and duty, in secret before the Lord. Then bring everything that concerns your heart and life, for time or for eternity, and lay it before the mercy-seat. "In everything, by prayer and supplication, with thanksgiving, let your requests be made known unto God, and the peace of God that passeth all understanding shall keep your heart and minds, through Jesus Christ."—The Christian.

A WORD TO TRAVELERS.

Travelers going west are often puzzled to know which would be the best route to take, the different companies all claiming their route to be the best. I have had experience in travelling over different routes and I hesitate not in claiming a preference for the great through lines of the Indianapolis, Cincinnati and Lafayette R. R. Co. They have lines from Cincinnati direct to Kansas City, or St. Joseph via Indianapolis, also to St. Louis and Chicago. No change of cars from Cincinnati, Indianapolis or Lafayette to Kansas City, as their trains pass over the Mississippi river on the great Iron Bridge at Quincy and over the Missouri river on a like bridge at Kansas City. The officers of the road, I have found to be upright and very obliging so that travelers or their baggage are not apt to go amiss while travelling on their road. Brethren, if you contemplate going west, or coming from the west, east, and want to travel on a good, safe and reliable road, be sure you take the Indianapolis, Cincinnati & Lafayette R. R.

J. S. FLORY.

Orchard View, W. Va.

Modesty is one of the chief ornament of youth.

Life is the time to serve the Lord.

REVISION OF THE SCRIPTURES

Some of the leading scholars and divines of this country have made arrangements to unite with the Convocation of Canterbury, in England in a complete revision of the English Bible. The names of the American gentleman who have organized themselves into two committees, one on the old Testament and one on the New, are a sufficient guaranty that, so far as they are concerned, the work will be carefully and reverently done. Probably these gentleman will not take the leading part in the work of revision, since the English revisers were organized in 1870, and have been at work ever since, and have already printed provisionally for criticism two or three books of each Testament; but the fact that some of the most prominent clergymen in all the Protestent denominations are on the American committee, holds out the hope that the revised translation, whether mainly made in England or America, may be accepted by all English-speaking Protestants. It would be a great point gained if the Catholics also, would be willing to co-operate with the others, that so there might be a standard English Bible for all Christians who read English; and the differences between the Catholic version of Douay and other English versions are so slight that there would seem to be no inseparable difficulties in the way of reaching so desirable an end.

The names of Dr. Conant and Dr. Hackett, upon this committee, who have been the principal translators of the American Bible Union, an organization which has been mainly supported by the Baptist denomination, of which these two gentleman are eminent members, may possibly imply that the work of that organization may be brought into harmony with the new revision, and so the immense labor already bestowed upon that may be brought to bear in a wider field of usefulness. We venture to suggest, however, the hope that the idioms of the old translation from which Dr. Conant so often departed may be preserved in the new revision, as much of the popular reverence for Scripture may be lost in changes into the ordinary terms of speech of passages which have a certain antique dignity of expression, and have become familiar as household words. It will be gratifying to many who know about the late translation of the Scriptures into Arabic, accomplished under the direction of the veteran missionary to Syria, Rev. Dr. Van Dyck, which has been said to be the best translation of the Bible ever made, that he is one of the Old Testament company and that the revision consequently will have all the light that can be cast upon it by his Arabic eruditon. Dr. Ezra Abbott, of Cambridge, who became the editor of the late Professor Noyes, admirable translation of the New Testament, is another name upon this committee of revision with which is associated the highest scholarship and a catholic Christian spirit.

It is a common though not universal belief that the time is ripe for a thorough revision of the English Bible. The Word of God deserves the best dress in which it can be clothed. However excellent our common version may have been, as estimated by the standards of two hundred and fifty years ago, there has been such progress made in both Greek and Hebrew learning since that time, the more recent study of the other Semitic languages has thrown such a clear light upon the Hebrew, Geographical, archæological and general linguistic research have been found so fully to illustrate every portion of both Testaments, that many scholars and thoughtful readers think that with all these helps a better version can be made, and ought to be made now. The books as they stand in our common Bibles were translated by many different hands, at widely different times. Who the translators were is in many cases entirely unknown. Their work has varying degrees of merit; the same word in the original is rendered in different books, and even in the same book, by quite different English words, and the revision of the books by King James' translators, appointed in 1606 was not such as to essentially reduce the want of uniformity and harmony.

The principle, too upon which all the translators appears to have proceeded, of translating word for word without any regard to the difference of idiom between the languages is a principle that is rarely adopted in translating other books, and ought never to be adopted at all. The Hebrew prophets wrote in the idiom of their own language, and the apostles in Aramaic Greek; what their readers want to get at is the precise thought of the writers so expressed in English as best to convey it. The literal translatin of word for word frequently violates the English idiom and sometimes fails to give a proper sense. The famous John Seldon, a contemporary of the authorized version, says of it in his table talk: "No book in the world is translated as the Bible is word for word. This is well enough so long as scholars have to do with it, but when it comes among the common people, what gear do they make of it?" The worst thing, however, about this method of translation is that no attention is paid to the flow of the thought from paragraph to paragraph. The particles of transition, if translated as mere words, and are not treated as the links that bind the whole discourse together. There are accordingly in our common versions abrupt transitions, jolts and jerks, fits and starts in the discourse, which do great discredit to the original, and are a constant stumbling block to the earnest reader who strives to reach the sense, and who rightly supposes that Scripture writers, like all other writers, follow the common associations of ideas.

As an instance of this, as well as of the great fault of translating the same original word in contiguous sentences by different English words, we will cite a passage in John's Gospel; "Every branch in me that beareth not fruit he taketh away; and every branch that beareth fruit he purgeth that it may bring forth more fruit. Now ye are clean through the word which I have spoken unto you." If violence ever was done to a beautiful passage it is done in this translation, by rendering the same original word "purge" in one verse and "clean" in the next, and by paying no attention to the particle of transition. Dr. Noyes renders the passage elegantly and exactly thus: Every branch in me that beareth not fruit he taketh away; and every branch that beareth fruit he cleanseth, that it may bear more fruit. Ye are clean already by reason of the word that I have spoken to you."

We venture to express the hope that these revisers will arrange the biblical books, so far as possible, in chronological order, and thus be able to give a better reason for the arrangement of the Epistles; for example, than that Rome was the largest city, and, therefore, the Epistle to the Romans must come first; Corinth the next largest, and hence the Epistle to the Corinthians must come next, and so on. We hope also that the revisers will not be deterred by any mere conservatism from making all changes which the the text and the sense really demand. Any changes which they may deem necessary to make will come before the public under favorable auspices, since President New Haven, is chairman of the New Testament company, and Professor Green, of Princeton, is chairman of the other.—N. Y. Post.

Happiness is like manna; it is to be gathered in grains, and enjoyed every day. It will not keep; it cannot be accumulated; nor have we got to go out of ourselves nor into remote places to gather it, since it has rained down from heaven, at our very doors or rather within them.

Youth's Department.

HOW TO SPEND THE WINTER EVENINGS.

Last week we were talking about the passing of time, and the changing of seasons. Through these changes we have passed, except the last one which we are now entering, and as the bulk of the out door labor is done, the days growing shorter and the evenings longer, the question to many of our young readers, no doubt, is where and how shall we spend the evenings. There are two general resorts. The one, is the country store, post-office and village bar-room or still worse, the gambling and drinking saloon, while the other is home, sweet home.

The object of our creation is: first, to become wise.

Second, to do good.

Third, to prepare for death, heaven and eternal happiness. Now at which ever place we can learn to be wise, and to do good, is the place we should spend our evenings, but who is it that lounges at the country stores and the grog shops?

First, it is the husband that does not love the society of his wife and children quite as well as he does that of those who usually gather at such places.

Second, The father that is not interested, and does not care for the welfare of his children.

Third, They that love idle gossip and fabulous tales better than to read the Bible and other useful books.

Then comes in the talebearer, the liar, the swearer and lastly the drunkard. These combined together, compose the element of "away from home society." And as they are all led away from home through wrong motives, there cannot be much good expected from it. It is positively a poor school for young men and boys, and with hundreds and thousands, it has proved to be the first downward step, and the school wherein was learned the way to ruin. Spend one evening in such a school and your soul is contaminated and the mind polluted. Here is the school where boys get their first lesson in filthy conversation. This is the school where they first learn to smoke and chew. Here is the place that the tongue is polluted by uttering the first oath, and here the first cup is taken that often ends in the destruction of the body and the condemnation of the soul. No wisdom to be learned in this school, no goodness and no salvation to be obtained. Then, this is not the place for boys and young men to spend their evenings.

We now turn to the christian home. There is the father and mother, there the brothers and sisters, the cheerful fireside, the Book of books, the family altar. There it is that wisdom shines forth in all its beauty. The school hours are over, the happy band, with light hearts and smiling faces, return to that most dear spot on earth called home, the little chores are done and the family surrounds the evening table, a blessing is asked and then kindred spirits unite. Oh how visions of the past just now crowd in upon us, and tears unbidden start when we think how things have changed.

Excuse us for getting so far away, our boyhood days have returned and have shifted our mind. The dishes are now washed, the children's romp is over and the family table is again surrounded and the home school commences. The larger ones are employed with their arithmetics and grammars while the younger are telling mother where arethe Patagonians, away dowo in South America, or point out to her the isles of Cuba, Hayti and Jamaica from whence comes our sugar, coffee and spices, and little Annie and Willie are busy with their pretty primers—just now we can almost hear them spell, b-a-t, bat, c-a-t, cat, h-o g, pig. How familiar it sounds and how ready we are to excuse their little mistakes. Over this group, father presides. Though the older sons may be diving into branches of sciences that father never learned in his school days yet his well trained mind and matured judgement often unties knots for which their tender minds are too weak. We just now think of our own "home school." Our father was no scholar, not of choice but for a lack of opportunity—never went, perhaps, beyond "Long Division," but many a night he sat up with us until the midnight hour, and led us through some of the most complex and abstruse problems of mathematics. From that "home school" we took our first step onward and we trust upward, not toward worldly greatness, but towards the Kingdom of Jesus, and that wisdom which cometh down from above, and our motto is now,and ever shall be, onward and UPWARD.

Again we have left our subject and once more return. The "home school" is now closed, the Bible is opened and from its pages flow the "living water," then they surround the "mercy seat," a blessing is implored and they retire. O, what a lovely,what a blessed school; and how different from that which we first described. This dear young readers is the school we advise,and if you attend it and take advantage of its benefits you will become wise unto salvation.

Never overlook any one when reading or writing, nor talk or read aloud while others are reading.

CORRESPONDENCE

A Reporter is wanted from every Church in the brotherhood to send us Church news, Obituaries, Announcements or anything that will be of general interest. To insure insertion, the writers name must accompany each communication. Our invitation is not personal but general—please respond to our call.

Notes of Travel and Jottiags by the Wayside.

BY J. S. FLORY.

I last wrote just as we were leaving the wharf at Cincinnati. The boat that we took passage on was so crowded that we did not fare so well, but in public conveyance we have long since learned the best way to get along is to take matters as they come without grumbling. The boat got along very well only striking the bed of the river two or three times during the night and was but little detained thereby. We passed one large boat that was aground and had been for six or eight days. A few of her many passengers were transferred to our boat, also the following evening a few more lady passengers were transferred from a large boat to ours. I was made to think how true it is travelers rather choose to take the largest, greatest and swiftest boats and on which they get the best fare and seem to look down with contempt upon the smaller crafts at such times when the rivers are flush and the waters deep but when the rivers are "run down" and waters are shallow they are often willing to leave the popular boats and be content to suffer privations on the smaller and humbler boats. So it is in traveling down the stream of time. While the waters are flush—life buoyant—we are so prone to sail in the most popular and grand crafts of either a worldly or religious nature—where we may fare the most sumptuously—but ah! when the waters of our natural life are ebbing low we then are willing to take passage aboard the humble and world disliked craft that we may reach the destination of our hopes—a harbor of safety upon the shores of eternity.

Friday morning about 2 o'clock we arrived at Huntingdon and put up at the Merchant's Hotel. At 7 A. M. took the cars for Charleston where we arrived at 11 o'clock. Took dinner with the family of Bro. J. Starkey. Through the kindness of sister Starkey I was prevailed on to stay until after supper when I started for the depot, where I found quite a crowd of persons awaiting the train. The state fair was going on at Charleston so there were stirring times and from the conversation of visitors I imagine there was more attention paid to horse-racing than other matters. At 8 o'clock at night we arrived at the Falls of Kanawha and next day home and found ours all well. Thanks to the Lord for his protecting mercy over us all. Death has been a visitant of our neighborhood in our absence. One young man had died unexpectedly with measles, and two children of one family of the diptheria. The health of the neighborhood at this time seems good. Our health we think has improved considerable and we trust our trip was to some good advantage. While we feel thankful indeed to all the dear ones who we were permitted to associate with and who so readily did acts of kindness toward us, we must ascribe all the praise and honor to God our heavenly Father.

Trip to Carroll Via. Frederick County, Maryland.

Having long since had a desire to go on a mission of love among the brethren in the east, from whence the west has become populated and inoculated with the religion of the Lord Jesus Christ, as taught in the Scriptures and practiced by the Brethren. This desire has lately been gratified.

On Friday the 11th day of October I took the train at Meyer's Mills at 12 M. to Cumberland where I arrived on time. After having procured passage for Hagerstown, Md., the train from the west on the B. O. R. not being on time, gave me about ½ of hour to look at the sights. However, the train soon came dashing along and by 6:50 brought me safe to Weaverton, the junction of the Washington county branch. This train was on the track waiting for the western bound train which was a few minutes late, but as soon as it arrived, the train upon which I took passage pulled out, and at 8 o'clock bro't its freight of human beings to the terminus of said road, which at present is Hagerstown. Put up for the night at the Franklin House, where I met for the first time, brother Oller from Waynesboro. After a few remarks, he left for his home with his son. After he was gone I was entirely alone again, in a strange land and among strangers. After a good night's rest I started for the Western Maryland depot. Just as I was entering the station house, I saw a man that I took to be a brother (because of his coat and general appearance) and two ladies. See 2d Epistle of John, 1 chapter, first verse, for so they proved to be, also coming to the same station,brother Wolf as it proved to be, brought the sisters to this station to take passage for the same place I was going. After the introduction was over, and this does not take long among the members of our fraternity — whenever we hear the word brother, or sister we already begin to think of the Father. The brother having given the sisters under my care, left us to ourselves and to God. My company now was the two sisters referred to, from Cumberland county, Pa., from Moses Miller's charge. Oh would to God that all our young and old sisters we meet with, were as these were, a plain dress, plain bonnet and a beautiful white cap upon their heads. Sister Mohler and sister Condre need not ask the question, is it needful to wear a covering when not in the house of God. To young sisters everywhere, when the question was put, do you always wear the covering? the answer was without any reservation, yes, we do. Some of our young sisters sometimes go away from home to attract attention. Whether sister Leah and Hettie did or not I know not, but one thing I do know, they drew the admiration of all the brethren and sisters where we were, because of their humble and perconsequence angel-like appearance. Sisters depart not from that and the God of all the earth will reward you for it.

At Westminster we were met and conveyed to place of meeting. The first exercises were over and the ordination of brother Senseny was about through with, when I looked over the large mass of human beings, and of all that number I saw but a few faces that I could recall, those of D. P. Saylor, J. D. Trostle, D. F. Good and E. Stoner. This meeting was largely attended and good order pervaded the house—a large representation of membership present and all in perfect order. By next morning we had added a long list of preachers names, and also others of the members. Preaching that evening at Union Bridge; next day at Pipe Creek meeting house; same evening in New Windsor. These meetings were all well attended. On Tuesday we met at Sam's Creek meeting house for lovefeast, and a good meeting we had. Preaching next morning at same place, and in the evening at Union Bridge. This closed the meetings at this place. So far as my judgement goes we had all good meetings, and meetings long to be remembered by me.

The members in this branch are alive to the cause, and manifest much love, union and harmony among each other. We bid them farewell, entrusting them unto the Lord, not expecting to meet them any more as we did on these occasions, in this life. I arrived in due time in the Manocacy Branch of the church. This church is in charge of Eld. D. P. Saylor. By the time the hour of preaching arrived the meeting house was well filled. The meeting was opened in the general form. After spending about 2 hours in worshipping God, the meeting closed for a little season. When all was ready the Father's children seated themselves down to the tables in good order, and after the seats were all occupied, the word came to the house keeper, D. P. Saylor, not room enough for the children. After considerable manœuvering and planning by Bro. Saylor there was arrangements made for all to commune and that wished to commemorate the death and sufferings of Christ. Would to God that all our meetings of this kind were just as this one was, every member at his place, no such thing as sitting back from the tables, but all, all at the tables. Oh what a good meeting this was! I cannot help but think that some of the spectators were struck with the idea that God must certainly be among this people. Preaching was continued until the morning of the 20th. The meetings were all well attended.

On the morning of the 21st I set out for home in company with D. P. Saylor and Bro. Showalter, music teacher—who is introducing the Brethren's Tune and Hymn Books, and the two sisters already referred to. Arriving at Hagerstown, I bid these dear members farewell, perhaps forever. At 5:45 P. M. I took leave of this place all alone,for home where I arrived at 11:45 A. M. next day, safe and in usual health—found my little family also in their usual health, for all of which we tried to feel thankful.

And now to the brethren in the counties referred to, with whom I have met, and whose kindness and hospitalities I had the pleasure of sharing, please accept my heartfelt thanks, and may God bless you all, Amen.

Let me conclude by saying that I did not spend a more pleasant time all this season than I spent among you at your feasts. May God keep us in the one faith until death.

C. G. LINT.

NEW ENTERPRISE PA. }
October 31st 1872. }

In the first place, I will say to my dear children and much beloved brethren and sisters in the Union District, and all the members that wish to hear from me, that I am well and enjoying myself very well, thanks be to God our Heavenly Father for His great love confered upon me. Since I left home, I have been quite well, and have nothing to complain of as all the dear members are very good and kind to me in taking me from place to place. Now I do sincerely hope that the good Lord will bless them all for their kindness shown to me. I hope dear children and respected members, that when this comes to your notice that it will find you all well. I am at present with our much beloved Bro. Leonard Furry and the kind sister. I enjoy myself very much with them. I looked for a letter here at New Enterprise, but did not get any. I would have written sooner but I waited for a letter from home, but have received none since I left James Creek. O, how I would like to hear from my dear children and members. I hope they will write for the PILGRIM every week so that I can hear from them wherever I stop with the members as most of the brethren are taking it. Let one write every week. Will not Bro. Wm. Cook write and give us all the news and let us know how all are getting along, whether any have been received into the Union Church since I left home, it would give me much joy to hear that there has been. I hope our old members that have been in the church for some time, will visit the young members often and encourage them to be faithful. I know it will help them much, as children like to be visited, and if we bring good things they will never forget it. The good admonitions that our dear old brethren gave to me when I was young gave me much strength and I have not forgotten them although they are no more. I think if we would do our part and often visit our lambs we would do much good. O, let us show our love to each other, dear brethren and sisters. Let us all preach by our conduct in all we do. Yes, let us have a regard for each other and for all mankind, as God cares for us. We should and will if we are truly born of God.

From the Yellow Creek Lovefeast I went to Clover Creek, met many of our dear brethren and sisters there and had a very good meeting and good order. Here our beloved Bro. John S. Snowberger and I parted, I went to James Creek Lovefeast and he to Dunnings Creek. We had a very pleasant meeting at James Creek. From here I went to the Lovefeast at Dale City, in the Elk Lick Church. Met with many dear members—had a very good meeting, though it rained while the meeting lasted, which made it disagreeable. From Dale City I, with other members, went back to Bedford where I again met with Bro J. S. Snowberger and his wife and sister Dillinger who traveled with me from Ind. Had a meeting in Bedford, preached in the court house. On account of it being very rainy we had a small congregation, but very good order and found quite friendly people who wished us to stay longer and hold several more meetings. On the 27th of this month had meeting in Eld. Andrew Snowberger's district. Then was taken to Bro. Jacob Steel's Church where we had four meetings. Here we left J. S. Snowberger and family, expecting to meet them again on the 4th of November at Clover Creek. From there I think to go to James Creek and remain 'till the 10th or 11th of Nov., and then go to Philada. and Germantown. I will now close, hoping to hear from my family and members from the Union Church soon. From your well wishing Bro. and father. When I get home I will give a full report of my visit through the PILGRIM. JOHN KNISLEY.

Dear Pilgrim:—Inasmuch as you are calling for reports from churches concerning Lovefeasts, and as we have not had any in our arm this year, because of the brethren trying to build a house of worship, I will give some of my experience in visiting others.

On the fifteenth of October my wife and self started at three o'clock A. M. for Arcadia, and found by cool experiment, just what frosty Autumn mornings will do for a person in this latitude, viz. chill them. We also found the thirty miles between our dwelling place and the meeting to be very long, but, like all mundane things, they had an end, which we reached a few minutes before ten o'clock, (the hour for meeting), which few minutes we spent in observation.

We found the brethren located in a good, well improved country, almost every farm having that quiet, home-like appearance so desirable in a place of residence, and which none know better how to impart than the brethren. We found also a good commodious house to worship in, and a tolerable large membership, presided over by Elds. Eli Caylor and Joseph McCarty.

You know, PILGRIM, that at times of Communions the brethren and sisters always expect a number of ministers to visit them and have some big preaching. Well we looked around to see who constituted the ministerial force, and found it to consist of Bro. John H. Caylor, and when your humble servant was added the addition was smaller intellectually, than numerically, and when I realized the situation I hung down my head and began to think. Would you know the burden of my thoughts? I will tell you. I thought of how, before I was placed in the position I now occupy, I had heard brethren talk on such occasions. One would meet another and say: "Well brother we have a good congregation to day." The other would say: "Yes, and Oh! if we just had somebody that could preach." Another would say; "Well brother, we have a heavy team today," &c. Now as Bro. Caylor would not want to do all the talking himself, and I being entirely strange to many present, I would have to take part, and perhaps the brethren and sisters talking in this way about me. I tell you PILGRIM, for one bitter moment we wished ourself at home husking corn. But on lifting my head and looking at those around me I thought that their countenances betokened more charity than to talk as I had heard others talk, and also tho't that if the Good Master had wanted better preaching than those present could do, He would have provided somebody to do it. We also remembered having read that "all things work together for good to them that love God," therefore determined, Heaven helping, to cast behind me these extraneous influences and stand still and see the salvation of the Lord, so that if in the course of events, anything presented itself for me to do, "to do it with my might." I will here say to young ministers who may find themselves in like circumstances, do not yield to the tempter, no matter whether he presents himself with the uncharitable words of brethren in his mouth or with something else to hinder you, his object is the same, but just "Cast your cares on Jesus,

And don't forget to pray."

The hour for preaching having arrived, Bro. Caylor selected a subject and spoke acceptably and, I believe, profitably and I followed with such light and liberty as was given me. Late in the afternoon, two brethren from Elkhart Co., came to us and assisted in the services of the evening, during which we were pleased with the more than usual quiet and good order observed by the members, each one seeming to feel, with more than ordinary sensitiveness, that they were practicing in the example left by their Savior in "washing one anothers feet," that they were partaking of that figurative Supper which each one seemed to desire to see fulfilled in the evening of this world, and that they were commemorating the sufferings and death of their crucified Redeemer, whom to know aright is life eternal, while I was observing all this, I felt that the presence of our Lord was among us and that it was good for us to be there. I was sorry when the hour arrived on the following day, after the farewells were spoken, to separate from the dear brethren and sisters, some of whom we may never meet again on earth, but it is ever thus in this lower world, first a smile and then a tear. Whether we meet again on earth or not we pray God's blessings on them and theirs.

On the 18th we were at Stony Creek. That church is under the oversight of Eld. John H. Caylor. There we met quite a number of ministering brethren, among whom were H. D. Davy and R. H. Miller. Most of the readers of the PILGRIM will understand without us telling them, that the preaching at that place was considerably more than ordinary.

After 10 o'clock meeting, on the first day, one soul expressed a willingness to turn her back to a frowning world and her face toward Jerusalem, and was immersed beneath the wave in the names of the Triune God. In the evening, we had the pleasure and, we trust profit, the benefit too, of joining in with the members present in attending the ordinances of the Lord's house. Good order was observed by all, and good attention given to the doctrines as expounded by the brethren. God grant that it may have fallen into good ground and produce an hundred, sixty, or at least, thirty fold. We certainly had a rich feast of good things from the presence of the Lord, for which we feel to thank a kind Father, and pray for a continuation of mercies.

After the meeting, proper, closed, Bro. Davy continued with a series of meetings lasting over Sunday, and we had the pleasure of hearing him until after the first sermon on Sunday, when we reluctantly bade him farewell feeling that we were witnesses to the sowing of much good seed by our brother which we hope may bare fruit here on earth and ripen in Heaven. May God sustain and comfort Bro. Davy in the arduous duties devolving upon him and spare him long, to the Church militant, and when his pilgrimage on earth is over, may he receive souls for his hire and eternal life for a reward, and may He also remember the Stony Creek brethren in mercy and prosper His cause amongst them.

MARTIN J. MCCLURE.
Lower Fall Creek, Ind.

Dear Pilgrim:—We will give you an account of the Lovefeast we had in the Claar Meeting-house on the 22d of October. We came there at noon that day when the brethren and sisters were already fast gathering in, being a pleasant day, and in a few hours quite a number of our friends in addition to the members had gathered, indicating to be an interesting and a pleasant waiting before the Lord. We were encouraged to hear that there were five applicants, four young girls and one young married woman, they were received before preaching. The speakers outside of our own district were brethren Samuel Cox and Conrad Imler from Tuckahoe, James A. Sell from Duncansville, Joseph Berkey from Shade, and John Miller from Dunnings Creek. Meeting opened for examination at 4 P. M., appropriate and impressive remarks were made on the subject, and we felt happy knowing the Lord was with us, and that He has not yet forsaken His people, though we are so apt to forget Him and get careless and dilatory in our service so justly due to Him. About a hundred members communed, witnessed by a quiet and attentive audience. Truly we had a pleasant waiting while attending to the ordinances of the Lords house. We experienced sweet communion with the Lord while sitting together in heavenly places. Some good impressions and we hope lasting ones have been made upon some of the spectators, hope more will soon join in with us on our march towards "Canaan's fair and happy land" Where our possessions lie."

O what a transporting rapturous scene rises before our eyes! when in anticipation, and with soul-cheering hope, we look forward to the time when the redeemed of the Lord shall return from Zion with gladness and rejoicing; everlasting joy shall be theirs, and sorrow shall be known no more, and we the brethren and sisters; unite with them to celebrate the great Marriage Supper of the Lamb, of which this Supper of the Lord's appointment is an emblem.

The morning of the 23d opened with rain, the day not being so pleasant, hence the crowd was not great, mostly members and members children, yet we had a pleasant meeting and felt revived, and much refreshed from the reception of the bread of life so liberally dealt out by our loving brethren who visited us. That the Lord will reward them for their kind labors at the resurrection of the just is our prayer. The question often arises while engaging in the delightful services our hearts filled with joy, our love to one another overflowing, tasting the sweetness of heaven with the songs of the redeemed and angelic choir ringing in our ears at such communion seasons; Can it be possible that one soul can bear the thought of any longer serving the god of this world and of feeding on the barren mountains of sin and folly, which assuredly will starve him to death, yea to everlasting death and misery? Then come sinner, go with us, for the Lord has spoken good concerning Israel.

Yours in the bonds of the fraternity.

LEONARD FURRY

Brumbaugh Bro's.—Preparatory to celebrating the sacred feast, a general visit of this branch of the church was proposed and made, and the reports of the several visiting committees were heard at a council meeting appointed for that purpose.

It was a matter of congratulation that no disorder was found to prevent us holding the proposed feast. Whether we were in such a state spiritually that we could not see the little wolves and foxes that prey on the vines or not, I will not take it on me to say.

Accordingly we appointed the time as reported heretofore in the PILGRIM. That time has come and passed and we are glad we can report a pleasant season.

Bro. G. Fleshman of Monroe, and brethren John and Moses Brubaker, Henry Beahm and John Eller of Roanoke came to our aid as ministers of the Word.

We commenced our services at an earlier hour than the Brethren usually do. Feet-washing was ended before dusk and by 8:30 P. M. we had sung the dismissal hymn. As one of the good results we had the most satisfactory order, both among the members and spectators. The latter by their exemplary deportment elicited the warmest praise from the neighboring brethren present. We hope that the churches generally will adopt the practice of announcing the ordinances at least an hour in advance of the usual time. It wants only a trial to commend itself to the prudence of the Brotherhood. Our ministerial corps labored faithfully and ably in defence of the despised doctrines of the Gospel and we look hopefully to the future for the fruits of their labors. Some of them are youthful in the office but by diligent application to study and the practice of the virtues of the Gospel will eventually become eminent. May the Lord of the Vineyard reward them for their self sacrificing labors.

My health is still improving and I now can add to attend regularly to the work of the ministry without experiencing any discomfort. Bro. A Crumpacker continues to improve and is also able to share equally in the labors of the church. His son is greatly afflicted with spasms which embarrass his labors to a considerable extent. May the Lord give him grace sufficient for his trials, and it be his good pleasure, to restore the afflicted child to perfect soundness. Let us who are blessed with the good gifts of the world remember those that are not thus favored, as though we were partakers with them.

D C. MOOMAW.

Blacksburg, Va.

DRY CREEK, IOWA,
October 14th '72.

Dear Pilgrim:—As there has never yet any church news appeared in your columns from the Dry Creek congregation, I take the liberty of giving some, which you may publish if you think proper.

We held our Communion meeting on last Saturday and Sunday, and we truly had a refreshing season. The ministers present from abroad, and by whom we were ably addressed were brethren E K., and Benjamin Buechly from Black Hawk Co., and Peter Forney, and Eli Froxel, from Benton Co, this State.

The ark of the Lord is still slowly moving forward in this place; during the meeting one soul was made willing to come out from among the world and enlist under the blood-stained banner of King Immanuel, an aged woman whose head has long been blooming for the grave. This makes five that have "chosen that good part that shall never be taken away from them," during the summer, one of whom has since gone to that bourn from whence no traveler ever returns. We feel to rejoice that still a few more are "willing to have the man Christ Jesus to reign over them," but let us earnestly pray God for a greater increase that the borders of Zion may be enlarged, and Satan's kingdom diminished.

Your unworthy brother.

JACOB BOCK.

DIED.

AYERS.—In the Pleasant Grove Congregation, October 7th, 1872, Ella D. daughter of Bro. John H., and sister Hannah E. Ayres, aged 1 year, 8 months and 25 days. Occasion improved by Bro. Geo. Myers and Bro. Clark.

JOHN H. AYRES.

SNYDER.—In the Logan Church District, Logan co., Ohio, Oct. 26, 1872, brother George Snyder, aged 26 years, 10 months and 13 days.

He leaves a kind widow, sister in the church, and one child to mourn their loss. He bore his sickness with fortitude and resignation, and we hope their loss is his great gain. Funeral conducted by the writer to a large concourse of relatives and friends, from Philippians 1: 21. J. L. FRANTZ.

SPEILMAN.—In the Sylbesport District, Alleghoney co., Md., Oct. 23, friend David Speilman, aged 93 years, 5 months and 20 days.

He was a member of the Methodist church but was a warm friend of the Brethren, and would attend our meetings regularly if in reach. I met him a few months ago, when he requested me to come and preach in their school house, but it was neglected, and on the 23d inst., I received the message to attend his funeral. The exercises were attended to by the writer and Mr. Sharp, Methodist minister, from Dan. 12: 13.

JOSIAH BRUMLY.

The Weekly Pilgrim.

JAMES CREEK, PA., Nov. 12th, 1872.

☞ HOW TO send money.—All sums over $1.50, should be sent either in a check, draft or postal order. If neither of these can be obtained, have the letter registered.

☞ WHEN MONEY is sent, always send with it the name and address of those who paid it. Write the names and post office as plainly as possible.

☞ Make all checks and and drafts payable to H. B. Brumbaugh, and the postal orders make payable at Huntingdon.

☞ IF ANY of our agents have been overlooked in receiving no prospectus, or any wish to become agents, let us know and we will send one, also sample copy of the Pilgrim Almanac.

☞ EVERY subscriber for 1873, gets a Pilgrim Almanac FREE.

OUR PROSPECTUS.

With this number we send out our prospectus to all our known agents, and to a large number of single subscribers. Each of these we hope will work a little in our behalf and send us, at least, one new name. This we know you can do by making a little effort. At a number of offices we cannot tell who was agent for us. In such cases we sent them at random. We kindly ask those who may receive them and do not feel to act, to hand it to some one who will labor for us. If any have been slighted by receiving no prospectus, we assure them that it was not intentional and hope they will write to us immediately and get supplied.

In sending out this prospectus we make another appeal to all who have been, or are willing to be agents for us to commence the work at once and gather all the names you can, both old and new. Those who have the money, let them pay at once, but if there are those whom it does not suit to pay now, and will pay at some other time send us their names and let them pay it as soon as they can. In order to compensate those who work for us, we offer some of the best and most useful books published, as premiums. The books will be sent as soon as the stipulated amount of money is paid. Those who do not wish books can retain the percentage.

We shall make no rash promises to the improvement of the PILGRIM for 1873, but we do expect to improve it and think that No. 1 for 1873 will speak for itself. Our field of labor is being greatly enlarged and already we are receiving letters from all parts of the United States. The fact of it being introduced where the truth as we hold it was never known, as it will create a large field of inquiry, which will be noticed in our columns. We have gone to the trouble and expense of getting up a first class Almanac for free distribution, as an inducement to have our list largely increased. We are also offering a splendid lot of books as premiums to those who will work for us. May we not hope that our efforts will be a success and our list for 1873 largely increased. We will hope and wait for the result.

CHRISTMAS & NEW YEAR, is rapidly approaching and as we generally receive articles suitable for these events just a little too late, we wish to call the attention of our contributors to this fact in time so that the same thing may not occur this year again. We solicit a number of good articles suitable for these occasions, who will accommodate us? We wish those intended for the Christmas No. about the first of December, and the others, soon after.

Please Notice; Every Subscriber for 1873 will get the Pilgrim Almanac free. New subscribers will also get the remaining Nos. of 1872—will commence as soon as the names are received

---

For 25 subscribers and $37.50 we give as a premium, "The Great Industries of the United States" containing 13,04 pages. This is the most interesting and instructive work of the day.

For 27 subscribers and $40.50 we give the Emphatic Diaglott, or the New Testament in Greek and English, price $4.00.

For 15 subscribers and $22.50 we send the "Hand Book for Home Improvement," price $2 22. Every young man and woman in the country should read this book.

DANIEL MILLER.—The Tracts were sent in two packages, 85 was only one half of them. If you inform us of which kind you received, we will send again.

J. H. MOORE.—Your ad, and contribution for the Almanac is too late. It is in press and will be out in eight or ten days.

THE DUCHESSE D' ANGOULEME PEAR.—A French nobleman, observing his tenant about to destroy a fine thrifty pear tree, inquired the cause. He was told that it was a chance seedling, and had borne no fruit in twenty years. He had already cut its roots preparatory to the first stroke, but was ordered to let it remain. He did so, and in the following year it was loaded with superb fruit of an entirely unknown variety, which at once became celebrated. The root-pruning the gardener had given it worked like a charm. Not many years afterwards, when the Duchess of Angouleme was passing through Lyons, its inhabitants sent to her their hospitalities. Nine fair maidens presented the Duchess with golden salvers, on which lay heaped this precious fruit, and begged her to bestow on it her name; and the pear now recognized as the crowning glory of all fruits was thenceforward known as the Duchesse d' Angouleme.

PERSECUTION IN INDIA.—Two cases of persecution are reported from Bangalore, where Miss Anstey, of the London Mission is successfully at work among the native girls. In one case the parents of a girl about to be baptized made an effort to kill her, by trying to persuade her to eat a piece of cocoa nut which had been poisoned. Happily, she did not; but it was thus made clear that her parents would rather see her dead at their feet than a Christian. In the other case the poor girl had been repeatedly beaten with inhuman cruelty. Attempts were made to deliver her, since which she has never been seen or spoken to by any Christian.

GOOD BOOKS.

A large number of our patrons are receiving our books as noticed below, as premiums, and express themselves highly pleased with them. Others who are not agents, have enquired whether we keep them for sale. We have now made arrangements with Mr. Wells to furnish any of their publications post paid at publishers prices. Orders for books must be accompanied with the cash, and plain directions for sending them.

Wayer's Works for the Young. Comprising "Hopes and Helps for the Young of both Sexes," "Aids and Aims for Girls and Young Women," "Ways of Life; or, the Right Way and the Wrong Way." $3

Life at Home; or, The Family and its Members. Husbands, Wives, Parents, Children, Brothers, Sisters, Employers and Employed, etc. By Rev. William Aikman, D. D. A work which should be found in every family. $1.50. Extra gilt, $2.00.

Hand-book for Home Improvement: comprising "How to Write," "How to Talk," How to Behave," and "How to do Business," in one vol. 2.25.

Man and Woman: Considered in their Relations to each Other and to the World. By Henry C. Pedder. 12mo, Fancy cloth Price $1.00.

The Right Word in the Right Place. A New Pocket Dictionary and Reference Book. Embracing Synonyms, Technical Terms, Abbreviations, Foreign Phrases Writing for the Press, Punctuation, Proof-Reading, and other Valuable Information. Cloth, 75cts.

Footprints of Life; or, Faith and Nature Reconciled.—A Poem in three parts. The Body. The Soul. The Deity. By Philip Harvey, M. D. $1.25.

Man, in Genesis and in Geology; or, the Biblical Account of Man's Creation, tested by Scientific Theories of his Origin and Antiquity. By Joseph P. Thompson, D. D., LL.D. One vol. 12mo, $1.00.

The Emphatic, Diaglott; or The New Testament in Greek and English. Containing the Original Greek Text of the New Testament, with an Interlineary Word for-word English Translation. A Work for Students in Theology, and S. S. Teachers. By Benamin Wilson. Price, $4.00; extra fine binding, $5.00.

Oratory—Sacred and Secular; or, the Extemporaneous Speaker. Including Chairman's Guide for conducting Public Meetings according to the best Parliamentary forms. By Wm. Pittenger. $1.50.

Conversion of St. Paul. By George Jarvis Geer, D. D. 12mo. fine edition, $1. Plain edition, 75 cents.

Hopes and Helps for the Young of both sexes, Relating to the Formation of Character. Choice of Avocation, Health, Conversation, Cultivation of Intellect, Moral Sentiments, Social Affection Courtship and Marriage. By Rev. G. S. Weaver. Muslin, $1.50.

TUNE BOOK.

The Brethren's Tune and Hymn Book, is a compilation of Sacred Music adapted to all the hymns in the Brethren's New Hymn Book. It contains over 350 pages, printed on good paper and neatly bound. We will send it to any address, post paid at $1.25 per copy.

25 Ablest Tariff Journal in the U. S. THE AMERICAN WORKING PEOPLE.

Published monthly, is a welcome visitor at 100.000 Firesides. Finely printed, handsomely illustrated, ably edited—has no rival! $1.50 per year, sent on trial 3 months for 25 cents.

IRON WORLD PUB. CO., Pittsburgh, Pa.

25 THE IRON WORLD is the Largest and most Valuable Metal Price Current in the world. $4.00 per year. Sent on trial one month for 25 cents. All the State Geologists are Contributors. IRON WORLD PUB'G CO., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Trine Immersion

TRACED

TO THE APOSTLES.

Being a collection of historical quotations from modern and ancient authors, proving that a THREE-FOLD Immersion was the only method of baptizing ever practiced by the Apostles and their immediate successors. The author, after proving Trine Immersion to have been the prevailing practice, in baptism, the first 1500 years of the Christian era, commences with the fifth century, and traces a Three-fold Immersion, to within 38 years of the apostle John's death, and then proves it to have been the Apostolic method of baptizing, while Single Immersion was invented not less than 326 years after the death of Christ.

Put up in a neat pamphlet form, with good paper cover, and will be sent, postpaid, on the following terms: One copy, 25 cts; Five copies, $1.10; Ten copies, $2.00.

Address, J. H. MOORE,
Urbana, Champaign co., Ill.

Oct. 22.

SALEM COLLEGE.

The Fall term of Salem College will open for the reception of any number of students from all parts on the 4th of September, 1872. Ample accommodations and thorough instruction will be given all students who connect themselves with this College. Good board can be had in good families at $2.50 to $3.00 per week or students can board themselves in clubs at $1.25 to $1.50 per week as numbers have done with the consent of the faculty. Special care will be given students who are far from home.

For Catalogues, Scholarships and full particulars address

SALEM COLLEGE,
July 22, '72. Bourbon, Ind.

WANTED BOOK Agents FOR THE GREAT INDUSTRIES

OF THE UNITED STATES;

AN HISTORICAL SUMMARY OF THE ORIGIN, GROWTH AND PERFECTION OF THE CHIEF INDUSTRIAL ARTS OF THIS COUNTRY.

1300 PAGES and 500 ENGRAVINGS.

Written by 20 Eminent Authors, including

JOHN B. GOUGH, LEON CASE, EDWARD HOWLAND, JOS. B. LYMAN, REV. E. EDWIN HALL, HORACE GREELEY, PHILIP RIPLEY, ALBERT BRISBANE, F. B. PERKINS, ETC.

This work is a complete history of all branches of industry, processes of manufacture, etc., in all ages. It is a complete encyclopedia of arts and manufactures, and is the most entertaining and valuable work of information on subjects of general interest ever offered to the public. It is adapted to the wants of the Merchant, Manufacturer, Mechanic, Farmer, Student and Inventor, and sells to both old and young of all classes. The book is sold by agents, who are making large sales in all parts of the country. It is offered at the low price of $3.50, and is the cheapest book ever sold by subscription No family should be without a copy. We want agents in every town in the United States, and no agent can fail to do well with this book. Our terms are liberal. We give our agents the exclusive right of territory. One of our agents sold 133 copies in eight days, another sold 368 in two weeks. Our agent in Hartford sold 397 in one week. Specimens of the work sent to agents on receipt of stamp. For circulars and terms to agents address the publishers.

J. B. BURR & HYDE, Hartford, Conn., Chicago, Ill., or Cincinnati, Ohio.

Menno Simon's COMPLETE WORKS.

In English, translated from the original Dutch or Holland, giving the whole of the great Reformers writings on the subject of Baptism. Price in full sheep $4.50; by mail $5.14.

Address, JOHN F. FUNK & BRO.
Elkhart, Ind.

New Hymn Books, English.

TURKEY MOROCCO.

One copy,	postpaid, - -	$1.00
Per Dozen,	- - - -	11.25

PLAIN ARABESQE.

One Copy,	post-paid, - - -	75
Per Dozen,	" - - -	8.50

Ger'n & English, Plain Sheep.

One Copy,	post-paid, - -	$1.00
Per Dozen	- - - -	11.25
Arabesque Plain,	- -	1.00
Turkey Morocco,	- - -	1.25
Siogle German,	post paid -	60
Per Dozen,	- - - - -	5.50

TRACTS.

"ANXIOUS BENCH RELIGION EXAMINIED," BY ELDER J. S. FLORY. A SYNOPSIS OF CONTEETS. An address to the reader: The peculiarities that attend this type of religion. The feelings there experienced not imaginary but real. The key that unlocks the wonderful mystery. The causes by which feelings are excited. How the momentary feelings called "Experimental religion" are brought about, and then concludes by giving that form of doctrine as taught by Jesus Christ and recorded by his faithful witnesses.

COUNTERFEIT DETECTER
or
BAPTISM—MUCH IN LITTLE.

This work is now ready for distribution, and the importance of the subject will speak for it a large demand. It is a short treatise on baptism in tract form intended for general distribution, and is set forth in such a plain and logical manner that a wayfaring man though a fool, cannot err therein. Either of the above tracts sent postpaid on the following terms: Two copies, 10 cts, 10 copies 40 cents, 25 copies 70 cents, 60 copies $1.00, 100 copies $1.50.

1870 1872

DR. FAHRNEY'S

Blood Cleanser or Panacea.

A tonic and purge, for Blood Diseases. Great reputation. Many testimonials. Many ministering brethren use and recommend it. Ask or send for the "Health Messenger." Use only the "Panacea" prepared at Chicago, Ills., and by

Dr. P. Fahrney's Brothers & Co.,

Aug. 8-pd. Waynesboro, Franklin Co., Pa.

Trine Immersion.

A discussion on Trine Immersion, by letter between Elder B. F. Moomaw and Dr. J. J. Jackson, to which is annexed a Treatise on the Lord's Supper, and on the necessity, character and evidences of the new birth, also a dialogue on the doctrine of non-resistance, by Elder B. F. Moomaw. Single copy 50 cents.

$5 to $20 per day! Agents wanted! All classes of working people, of either sex, young or old, make more money at work for us in their spare moments, or all the time, than at anything else. Particulars free. Address G. Stinson & Co., Portland, Maine. sep. 17.

HUNTINGDON & BROAD TOP RAIL ROAD

Winter Arrangement.

On and after Tuesday, Oct. 4, 1872, Passenger trains will arrive and depart as follows:

Trains from Huntingdon South.			Trains from Mt. Dal's moving North.
MAIL.	ACCOM	STATIONS.	MAIL.	ACCOM
A. M.	P. M.		P. M.	A. M.
*le*8 00	LE5 50	Huntingdon,	AR3 20	AR9 00
8 08	5 57	Long Siding	3 12	8 53
8 24	6 10	McConnelstown	2 56	8 37
8 30	6 17	Pleasant Grove	2 50	8 30
8 45	6 30	Marklesburg	2 37	8 17
9 00	6 44	Coffee Run	2 23	8 01
9 07	6 52	Rough & Ready	2 15	7 53
9 20	7 05	Cove	2 01	7 40
9 24	7 10	Fishers Summit	1 57	7 35
9 44 ar	7 30	Saxton	1 37 le	7 15
9 54
10 10		Riddlesburg	1 19
10 17		Hopewell	1 12
10 34		Piper's Run	12 56
10 52		Tatesville	12 38
11 05		Bloody Run	12 24
*r*11 10		Mount Dallas	12 20

JOHN M'KILLIPS, Supt

SHOUP'S RUN BRANCH.

LE10 00	LE7 40	Saxton.	AR1 30	AR7 10
10 15	7 55	Coalmont.	1 15	6 55
10 20	8 00	Crawford.	1 10	6 50
AR10 30	AR8 10	Dudley	LE1 00	LE6 40
Bro'd Top City from Dudley 2 miles by stage.

Time of Penna. R. R. Trains at Huntingdon.

EASTWARD.			WESTWARD.
Hb'g Ac.	9 24 A. M	Cin. Ex.	2 19	A. M.
Mail	3 30 P. M	Pc'f Ex.	7 45	"
Cin. Ex.	6 55 "	Mail	5 40	P. M.
Phil. Ex	11 15 "	W. P'ass.	11 52	A. M.

The Weekly Pilgrim.

Published by J. B. Brumbaugh, & Co.

Edited by H. B. & Geo. Brumbaugh.

CORRESPONDING EDITORS.

D. P. Sayler, Double Pipe Creek, Md.

Leonard Furry, New Enterprise, Pa.

The Pilgrim is a Christian Periodical, devoted to religion and moral reform. It will advocate in the spirit of love and liberty, the principles of true Christianity, labor for the promotion of peace among the people of God, for the encouragement of the saints and for the conversion of sinners, avoiding those things which tend toward disunion or sectional feelings.

TERMS.

Single copy, Book paper,	$1.50
Eleven copies, [eleventh for Agt.]	$15.00

Any number above that at the same rate,

Address.

H. B. BRUMBAUGH.
James Creek,
Huntingdon county Pa.

Weekly Pilgrim.

"REMOVE NOT THE ANCIENT LANDMARKS WHICH OUR FATHERS HAVE SET."

VOL. 3. JAMES CREEK, PENNSYLVANIA, NOVEMBER 19, 1872. NO. 47

POETRY.

NEED OF ME.

One thought sublimely sweet,
Where'er my wanderings be,
One star to guide my feet;
The Lord hath need of me.

When friends are cold or far,
Whate'er of life betide,
Thou art my guiding star,
In Thee I still abide.

When tears on some sad face
In lonely vale I see,
The Lord is in that place,
Some soul hath need of me.

My longing soul when thrilled
By some sweet-sounding chord,
Or with deep sorrow filled,
To dwell with Christ my Lord.

A voice serenely sweet
Through silence comes to me;
"Here at my bleeding feet
I still have need of Thee."

Dear Lord, I work and wait,
Where'er thy footprints be;
When at thy pearly gate,
Still, Lord, have need of me.

—Liberal Christian.

THE INVITATION.

Come unto me, ye weary,
The Savior smiling said;
Come unto me, ye hungry,
And feed on Heavenly bread.

Come unto me, ye weary,
And drink of living streams;
Come, ye who dwell in darkness,
Where light eternal beams.

Come, ye who're sick of sinning,
And I'll your sins forgive;
Come unto me, ye dying,
Come, and forever live.

Come, ye who have afflictions,
Cast your care upon the Lord,
And He will help you bear them—
He'ee promised in His word.

Those who in Him do rest their hope,
Shall have a lasting home,
(When present things are passed away),
In that bright world to come.

DON'T CROWD.

Don't crowd, the world is broad enough
For you as well as me.
The doors of art are open wide—
The realms of thought are free.
In all earth's places you are right
To choose the best you can—
Providing that you do not try
To crowd some other man.

Don't crowd good feelings from your heart,
By fostering all that's bad,
But give to virtue every room—
The best that may be had;
By each day's record such a one
That you may well be proud;
Give each his right, give each his room,
And never try to crowd.

—Charles Dickens.

ORIGINAL ESSAYS.

PRACTICAL CHRISTIANITY.

ELD. J. S. FLORY.

Instead of Christianity raising and elevating the human race to a higher and more enobling position in the world than it was some years ago, it is admitted, by many sound thinking and prudent minds that we are in the deceending scale. 'Tis true, science and learning are making great boasts of our prosperity in a scientific point of view, and this itself, boldly and graphically shows that the principles of the religion of Jesus Christ are receding or losing their renovating power.* That we are retrograding morally and religiously is a fact too apparent to deny, notwithstanding liberalism boasts of the near approach of the millenium to be brought about by and through the influence of Christianity. We have a great deal of preaching and an abundance of printing—an age that read almost as free as they breathe, and we have much praying, and more than a little singing of Jesus and him crucified, and in addition we have "fiddlings" of God's mercies to a sinful world. In the face of all this infidels and scoffers are accumulating like the plagues did in Egypt. The light of the gospel sun is waning and lowering behind the thickening fogs of a mingled mass of issues too "numerous to mention." Why is such the fact? There must be a cause. Such results and effects so momentous in their bearings must follow from a cause noticable in a marked degree. We need not search in the uncertain labyrinths of the past for the cause. Nay it walketh as "a strong man armed" in our midst. We have joined hands with the monster; What! Is it I? Yea, "thou art the man!" comes in answer to thousands, and those thousands members of Church organizations! Listen while I proclaim it as from the house-top, It is, it is for the want of a practical Christianity! We have a preached christianity, a published christianity, christianity in precept and theory, but we lack, most woefully lack a living, practical christianity, we want "Jesus crucified" in our practice as well as in our mouths, want a cross in our daily lives as well as at the point of our pens, we want God's mercies to fill our hearts with melody and praise as well as to be in our vocal organs, we want our fingers to get used to playing charity tunes to the comforting of the poor, rather than the car-tickling strains from money sacrificing instruments. We want men and women by the thousand to consecrate themselves in deed and truth to the glorious religion of Jesus. Not men and women to be christians by profession and in practice be votaries of the world-bow to worldly honor and praise-worldly riches and worldly pleasures. No, no, we have had too many of that kind already. Let us have upon the christian theatre of action a christianity after the pattern of the Apostles and their confederates, male and females, that are willing to live out the principle of Jesus and him crucified, and we would soon see what an influence it would have upon the world, and then the church could be discovered and seen as a bright rising sun of glory that would dispel the widespreading mists of infidelity and cause them to flee to the chambers of darkness instead of hovering over and around professed christianity as now and as we see bringing the name of Jesus into sad repute and causing satan to rejoice in his work of deceivableness.

Brethren nothing under heaven but a more thorough, practical application of the principles of "the Faith once delivered to the Saints," can save the church from losing the salutary influence that should ever characterize her. Faith, hope and charity is the essential sum and substance of the religion we profess. Is our actions such that we show to every one that our faith is grounded and founded upon the rock Christ? Are our hopes such that we have cast anchor sure and steadfast for Christ through every storm? And does our charity suffer long? Is it kind? Does it envy not? Does it cause us not to be rash or puffed up? Does it cause us to behave in a proper manner and to seek not so much our own good or interest as our brothers? Is it not easily provoked or thinketh no evil? Does it cause us not to rejoice in iniquity, but rejoice in the truth? Does it bear all things, believe all things, hope all things, endure all things and never fail? Oh what a work here to make a practical application of in our lives while we live! and yet we must strive to do it or we shall be "nothing," or only as sounding brass or tinkling cymbals.

To make the whole church an effective bulwark against innovation or adverse influence and an engine of God's power to demolish the works of darkness it is only necessary for every member to consecrate themselves wholy to Christ so that they become practically a Christian of Bible stamp. We would by no means want a practical christianity without the spirit thoroughly inculcated throughout the heart. So that all that was done was done "from the heart." O, then brethren and sisters let us go to work and pray and labor for more of the grace of God so that each one may do their part. Seeing there is so much to be accomplished through the church when she once becomes a unit in presenting to the world a practical christianity of Divine origin which is able to save the soul and eventually elevate man to a higher and nobler sphere and fit him to associate with the intelligent beings of Heaven.

*The more we have of science the more we hear that the Bible is not true.

Never lose an opportunity of seeing anything beautiful. Beauty is God's hand-writing—a wayside sacrament; welcome it in every fair face, every fair sky, every fair flower, and thank Him for it, and drink it in simply and earnestly, with your eyes—it is a charmed draught, a cup of blessing.

THE LITTLE GRAVES.

Lines selected upon the death of my little nephew, Eddie L. Stifler, who died at Upper Alton, Ills. August 15th, 1872.

E. R. Stifler.

"It's only a little grave," they said,
"Only just a child that's dead,"
And so they carelessly turned away
From the mound the spade had made that day.
Ah! they did not know how deep a shade
That little grave in our home had made.

I know the coffin was narrow and small,
One yard would have served for an ample hall;
And one man in his arms could have borne away
The rosewood and its freight of clay.
But I know that darling hopes were hid
Beneath that little coffin-lid.

I know that a mother stood that day
With folded hands by that form of clay;
I know that burning tears were hid
'Neath the drooping lash and aching lid;"
And I know her lip, and cheek, and brow,
Were almost as white as her baby's now.

I know that some things were hid away,
The crimson frock and wrappings gay;
The little sock and half-worn shoe,
The cap with its plumes and tassels blue;
And the empty crib, with its covers spread,
As white as the face of the sinless dead.

'Tis a little grave, but oh! have care!
For world wide hopes are buried there;
And ye, perhaps, in coming years,
May see like her through blinding tears,
How much of light, how much of joy,
Is buried up with an only boy!

—Mother's Journal.

THE BRETHREN.

Of late there seems to be a more general inquiry after this "hidden church" and although it is as a sign everywhere spoken against, yet its heaven-born principles are sought after and loved by all such as are honest and have a love for the truth.

It is growing in loveliness, putting on its most beautiful robes, and becoming as a light upon a hill that cannot be hid. It knows nothing but Christ and Him crucified and is founded upon the "Rock of Ages," and as there is but one foundation, "other foundation can no man lay than that which is laid," all who wish to build upon the "sure foundation," must finally embrace its principles. But what are the principles of the "Brethren," or their "Confession of Faith?"

1st We believe that the New Testament is the plan of salvation and the only safe rule of faith and practice.

2d That our salvation and justification is the result of the suffering, death and resurrection of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

3d We believe that all those who are regenerated and keep all the commandments shall be saved.

4th We believe that the righteous and the wicked will be rewarded according to their deeds. Rom. 2; 6, Matt. 16; 27.

5th We believe that repentance, faith and baptism, by trine immersion are the terms upon which the gift of the Holy Ghost and salvation is promised.

6th We believe that Feet-washing, the Lord's Supper and the Holy Communion are standing ordinances of the Lord's house, and are to be be observed by His people.

7th We believe in the resurrection of the body, both of the just and the unjust, but each in their order.

First, those that die in the Lord.

Second, those that are His at His coming. These constitute the first resurrection and will enjoy the Millennial dispensation.

Third, at the expiration of a thousand years will be the general resurrection, when all shall come forth and be judged according to the works which they have done.

8th We believe that Non-conformity, Non-swearing and Non-resistance are principles taught in the Scriptures and should be observed in the Church of Christ,

9th We believe that believers only are fit subjects for baptism. "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved," and that infants and those that are not capable of believing, come under the covenant of grace.

10th We believe that religion is practical and progressive "The crown is not at the beginning, nor in the middle, bot at the end of the race."

11th We believe it the duty of Christians to be subject to the "higher powers" to love our neighbors and pray for our enemies.

These are some of the tenets of the faith of that peculiar people called "Brethren" and they harmonize so beautifully with those of Jesus Christ and the apostles that every candid reader of the Scriptures must admit that they are the people of God. If so, why not all become Brethren? The first reason is on account of wrong teaching. Thousands upon thousands are deceived by teachers who promise salvation on their own terms.

The second reason is, that they make flesh their arm instead of God, and give more heed to the teaching of man than that of God.

The third reason is, they fear the cross, are not willing to suffer the reproach of the wicked for a season but prefer to remain in the tents of the wicked.

Dear reader, our Captain is gone before and the call to us is, "follow me." The way to Heaven is strait and narrow, while broad is the gate and wide the way that leads to destruction and many there be that go in thereat. Therefore take heed to your ways and turn your feet to the the sure testimonies of the Lord, stand in the way and inquire for the good old way, and walk therein and you shall find rest unto your souls.

Dixie.

THE HOLY CALLING.

"God has not called us to uncleanness, but unto holiness."—1 Thess. 4; 7.

We that profess to be followers of God, and are members of the true church, are called of God through the voice of inspiration to a life of devotedness unto God. We enter on duty of a Christian life to go forward unto perfection, and should ever keep in view the prize that is set before us. Our calling is from Heaven, it is a holy calling, it is an honorable calling, one that brings us into the family of God; which family is connected with the family in Heaven. Oh, what a relationship—what a lovely association is that of the Christian's. Heb. 3; 1. But lamentable to say, all do not honor the call, yea, few in comparison do hearken to the call. How often do we hear the solemn invitation "Come." Truly the minister of God labors zealously to convince sinners of the error of their way. If poor sinners would hear the Heavenly calling, what great encouragement it would be for the messengers of God.

An important matter is to consider how we are called, and unto what we are called. Not unto uncleanness—uncleanness is impurity. Our first parents were created in the image of God, pure and clean. Who calls to uncleanness? Satan. Adam was first clean but by hearkening to the voice of satan he violated the law of God, the cause of his fall (disobedience) and unto uncleanness. First clean, then unclean, truly, he became estranged to God, feared the Lord and hid himself, Why? Because he felt the condemning power of a violated Law. Oh, what an unsaved condition man has placed himself in! What a horrible condition the human family was placed in by the fall! But thanks be to God that His great mercy moved the Lord to give a promise of a Savior. "The work of the flesh are manifest."—Gal. 5; 19. "The old man." Col. 3; 5-8. But unto holiness are we called.

Let us view our original innocence and purity, truly sin made us unclean, separated us from God and His favor. It closed up the communication with Heaven. Man could no longer speak with God on account of the defilement of sin. But in the midst of all this, the Lord has produced a fountain for sin and uncleanness. The call is unto all "Come wash" our robes (lives) in that fountain, the precious blood of Christ. Then we are called unto holiness which only can be perfected alone through the merits of Christ. The sacrificial offering of Christ and shedding of His precious blood has effected our salvation and redemption. Jesus, the only name given among men whereby we can be saved. He came to save us from our sins, yea, to make us clean. He opened the way unto life, and will help us. We are also called unto "newness of life," to be a "new creature" in Christ, the embodiment of purity through the means of grace. Then He dwells in us and we dwell in Him, and through the blessed means which he has provided in His Word and spirit, we are sensibly impressed and zealously affected to press onward, so that we may receive the reward that is promised. We cannot expect to serve two masters, uncleanness, (satan), and holiness (God). Holiness must be written upon our hearts "without it we never shall see the Lord. Then dear brethren, let us double our diligence in the service of the Lord. Let us encourage one another in love and good works. Let the fruits of the spirit dwell richly in us that we may thereby sanctify the Lord God in our hearts, and be ready always to give an answer to any man that asketh you a reason of the hope that is in you with meekness and fear. 1 Peter 3; 15. Oh, how great the evil that sin has produced in the world! How often are we made to mourn and weep over the destroying influence that sin has upon the human family, and indeed when it reaches our own household it causes our children to disobey the parents and go into the vices that are held out to the young of our day to lead them away from what is right. Oh dear brethren and sisters, let us all come to the help of the Lord, that we may be strong in the Lord and in the might of His power. Let us often be found at a throne of grace pleading with God for ourselves and our children, and for our fellowmen everywhere, "The prayer of the righteous availeth much." Prayer makes the Christian's armor bright. Prayer makes satan tremble when he sees the weakest saint upon his knees. May the service of the Lord be our delight.

J. F. Oller.

Waynesboro, Pa.

Charity should begin at home but not end there.

DISCIPLINE.

"Tell it unto the Church."

It is truly wonderful and astonishing to behold the great wisdom with which every part of the plan of salvation was laid down by our blessed Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. When He said to all individually, "If thy brother tresspass against thee go and tell him his fault between thee and him alone." He was well aware that there was a possibility that brethren would judge, that their brethren were tresspassing against them when they were not. Therefore the accused brother is at liberty and under obligations to use his abilities in judging of the justice or injustice of his transactions relative to the alleged transgression. If the contending parties continue to disagree, one or both of them are in error. When according to the directions a third party is called upon to assist in convincing the supposed or real aggressor of real or imagined error, then if he be a true follower of the truth as it is in Jesus, he will hold fast and firmly to the truth, or if he be in error he may think he is not and continue steadfast in his opinion, or he may yield to their wishes and be acquitted or condemned by the Most High God. At this critical juncture of the case, the accuser is commanded to "tell it unto the church." This he will next essay to do if he obeys Jesus and if he has been really aggrieved, and of course if the parties still disagree, but it can be seen at a glance that it is possible for him to do all this and at the same time be an "enemy of all righteousness." Should he be so then it is also easily seen that if the thing he tells it to, is the Church, themembers of the body of Christ, then the spirit of his language will be blown away by the breathing of the church as chaff is blown away from wheat by the wind. But what is the church, or what does the Savior mean that the aggrieved party shall do when He says "tell it unto the church?" Of course, as upon all other occasions, He means what He says, but men often say He means what He does not. He does mean that the church, the members of his mystical body upon earth shall be told. The exact time and manner of doing it, as is the case with many other commands, are things which He has left for circumstances to determine. It may be told by the accuser himself to each individual member, or he may tell it orally or in written language to the whole church at once, or he may employ some one else to do it for him at any suitable assemblage of a sufficient number of members. Nature, reason and Christ teach that it should be told in that way and time in which it would be the most likely to be best understood by the church. When a time is appointed and all the saints are notified to meet at one place, then those who meet in the name of Jesus are the church, provided there be as many as two, one of them can be the accuser and tell it to the other as the church who will judge "righteous judgment," and whatever they agree upon will be sanctioned by Heaven. But alas! how often we fail to see much resemblance of the Church of Christ even in assemblies that claim to represent Him. The command to judge the tree by its fruit is as applicable to whole assemblies as to individuals. Often the failure to see good fruit is caused by the blindness of the looker. There are hints of my apprehensions of the spirit in the words tell, and church, in the command "tell it unto the church."

J. B. GARVER.

Shirleysburg, Pa.

A HOME IN THE WEST.

Dear Brethren:—The object of this communication is to call the attention of those who are seeking a home int he West, to this part of the state of Illinois. As many who contemplate changing places of abode are not acquainted with this county, we are somewhat anxious that they be apprized of the advantages secured by settling here.

CHAMPAIGN COUNTY; for fertility of soil and facilities of transportation is one of the best counties in the state, having four railroads passing through it, and also direct communication with Chicago without change of cars.

Quite a number of farms here, are now offered for sale, ranging in price from $30 to $55 per acre, within four and eight miles of Champaign City and Urbana—two flourishing towns affording all the market facilities necessary. All these farms are improved, and some of them in good condition.

THE CHURCH here was organized about five years ago with only eight members, and now consists of more than seventy, in a healthy and flourishing condition and bids fair to be a stronghold in the Lord. We invite the attention of the brethren to this part of the country, thinking that those who desire homes in settled parts where there is an organized church, may find a safe resting place among us.

J. H. MOORE.

Urbana. Ill.

Daring distress God comes; and when he comes there is no more distress.

The strongest temptations are no warrant for the commission of sin.

GENERAL INTELLIGENCE.

A PILGRIM PRESENT.—A number of our brethren and sisters desire to send the PILGRIM as a present to some of their relatives and wish to know whether we charge full price in such cases. For such purposes we will send the PILGRIM for $1.25 or less according to the ability of those who wish to send them. Here brethren and sisters, is an excellent opportunity of presenting a valuable gift which might result in the salvation of some precious souls. Who is it, but what has some dear relative or friend in whose salvation you are deeply interested? Send them the PILGRIM a year and it may, under the blessing of God, have the desired effect. Try it.

TRINE IMMERSION TRACED TO THE APOSTLES.—This is the title of a nicely gotten up little work on the above subject by J. H. Moore, a notice of which will be found on the outside page. We had not time to give it a perusal until of late and to say the least, we are well pleased with it. It is gotten up on the Multum Parvo style and is worthy of a careful reading by all who may be interested on this important subject. Send 25 cts. tot he publisher and read it.

CANADIAN LIBERALITY,

From the Herald of Truth we learn that Canada has sent an agent to Russia with the offer of perpetual freedom from military duty, to the persecuted Menonites on account of their nonresistent principles, also 160 acres of land to each settler and traveling expences paid. This seems quite generous of the government and no doubt will be a considerable inducement for the Mennonite brethren to make Canada their future home.

THE BEECHER—TILTON SCANDAL CASE.

In Woodhull & Claflin's Weekly of Nov. 2nd appeared an article under the above caption from the pen of Victoria C. Woodhull. It is a bold attack on the character and standing of the Rev. Henry Ward Beecher and has caused intense excitement throughout the length and breadth of the land. As a result, Mesdames Woodhull, Claflin and others are now in the Ludlow street Jail for libeling.

BOSTON BURNED.

On the 10th inst., Boston underwent one of the most terrible calamities that ever happened in its midst. The heart and wealth of the city is laid in ashes. The extent of territory consumed is about three-quarters of a mile in length and half a mile in width, and includes Pearl, Federal, Coogress, Purchase, High, Summer, Arch, Otis, Winthrop and Devonshire streets, besides the smaller avenues. The loss of life is reported to be twenty five or more persons, but as yet it is impossible to say with any degree of accuracy. The amount of loss is variously estimated, some placing it as high as $200,000,000, to $250,000,000.

CLOSE COMMUNION.

This subject is being considerably discussed and through a false idea of Christian liberality, a few of the Baptists declared in favor, but they are beginning to learn that by so doing they give encouragement and admit as valid, a form of sacrament which they know to be wrong, consequently the Brooklyn Baptists have had a definite statement in regard to their tenets of faith, and have declared their adherence to the doctrine of "Close Communion." The following is a report of a conference of Baptist clergy in Boston on Close Communion.

First: That Christian baptism is the immersion of a believer in water, in the name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost, and is a profession of his faith in Christ. Second: That Christian churches ought to be composed of such regenerate persons only as have been baptized on the profession of their faith in Jesus. Third: That the Lord's Supper ought to be observed by Christian churches only. Fourth: That invitations of courtesy to partake of the emblems should be given to none but orderly members of churches properly constituted.

IMMERSION.—During the proceedings of the Southern Synod of Kentucky, recently, a complaint was tried against the action of West Lexington Presbytery, in licensing a candidate who stated that he might, under certain circumstances, baptize by immersion, brought up the question whether a Presbyterian minister has a right to baptize by immersion. When it came to the vote, two voted for sustaining in part, and thirteen for not sustaining. The following minute was afterward adopted:

The Synod intend by their vote to sustain in part the complaint against West Lexington Presbytery, mean simply to condemn any and all action on the part of Presbytery which might seem to countenance the right of ministers of our Church, in any case, to administer baptism by immersion.

On this question the rules of the Church North seem to allow ministerial liberty. The Constitution says: "Dipping of the person into the water is not necessary, but baptism is rightly administered by pouring or sprinkling water upon the person."

CHRIST, THE MERCY.

SELECTED BY D. NEELEY.

"To perform the mercy promised to our fathers," Luke . ; 72.

Let us inquire what kind of mercy Christ is, and we shall find many transcendant properties to commend him to our souls.

1st He is free and undeserved mercy, called upon that account "The gift of God," John 4 ; 10, and to show how free this gift was, God gave Him to us when we were enemies. Rom., 5 ; 8. That mercy must be free which is given, not only to the undeserving but to the ill-deserving. The love of God was the sole cause of this gift.

2d. Christ is a full mercy, replenished with all that answers to the wishes or wants of sinners. In Him alone is found whatever the justice of God requires for satisfaction, or the necessities of souls require for their supply. Christ is full of mercy ; in Him are all kinds of mercies : "for it pleased the Father that in Him should all fullness dwell." Col. 1 ; 19.

3rd. Christ is the seasonable mercy, given by the Father to us in due time, in the fullness of time, a seasonable mercy in His exhibition to the world in general, and in His application to the soul in particular. The wisdom of God fixed upon the best time for His incarnation, and takes the best for its applications. When a poor soul is distressed and ready to perish, then comes Christ. All God's works are done in season, but none more seasonable than this great work of salvation by Christ.

4th. Christ is the needful mercy. There is an absolute necessity for Jesus Christ ; hence in Scripture He is called the "bread of life," John 9 : 35, He is bread to the hungry. He is the "water of life," Rev. 22 ; 17 : as cold water to the thirsty soul. He is a ransom for captives, Matt. 20 ; 58, a garment to the naked, Rom., 13 ; 14 : bread is not so necessary to the hungry, nor water to the thirsty, nor ransom to the captive, nor a garment to the naked, as Christ is to the soul of a sinner, the life of our souls is in Jesus Christ.

5th. Christ is a fountain of mercy, and all other mercies flow from Him. A believer may say of Christ, "all my springs are in thee." From His merit and His spirit flow our redemption, justification, sanctification, peace, joy in the Holy Ghost, and blessedness in the world to come ; "In that day there shall be a fountain opened," Zach. 13 ; I.

6th. Christ is a satisfying mercy. He that is full of Christ can feel the want of nothing. "I determined not to know anything among you save Jesus Christ and Him crucified." 1 Cor. 2 ; 2. Christ bounds and terminates the vast desires of the soul ; He is the very Sabbath of the soul. How hungry, empty and straitened on every side, is the soul of man in the abundance and fullness of all outward things 'till it comes to Christ. The weary motions of a restless soul, like those of a river, cannot be at rest 'till they pour themselves into Christ, the ocean of blessedness.

7th. Christ is a suitable mercy, suited in every respect to all our needs and wants, 1 Cor. 1 ; 30, in whom the admirable wisdom of God is illustriously displayed, "Ye are complete in Him." Are we enemies ? He is reconciliation.. Are we sold to sin and satan ? He is redemption. Are we condemned by the law ? He is the Lord our righteousness. Hath sin polluted us ? He is a fountain opened for sin and for uncleanness. Are we lost by departing from God ? He is the way to the Father. Rest is not so suitable to the weary, nor bread to the hungry, as Christ is to the wants of the sinner.

8th. Christ is a wonderful mercy ; His name is called Wonderful, Isaiah 9 : 6 ; and as His name is, so is He a wonderful Savior. His person is a wonder, " Great is the mystery of godliness, God was manifest in the flesh" I Tim. 3 : 16 ; His abasement is wonderful, Phil. 2 6-8 ; His love is a wonderful love ; His redemption full of wonders ; angels desire to look into it. He is and will be admired by angels and saints to all eternity.

9th. Christ is an incomparable and matchless mercy. Draw the comparison how you will between Christ and all other enjoyments, you will find none in heaven or on earth to equal Him. He is more than all externals, as the light of the sun is more than that of a candle, nay even the worst of Christ is better than the best of the world. His reproaches are better than the worlds pleasures Heb. 11 25-26. He is more than all spirituals, as the fountain is more than the stream. He is more than all peace, all comfort, all joy, as the tree is more than the fruit. Nay draw the comparison between Christ and things eternal, and you will find Him better than they : for what is heaven without Christ ? Whom have I in heaven but thee ? Psa. 37 : 25.

10th Christ is an everlasting mercy ; the same yesterday, to-day and forever. All other enjoyments are perishable ; time, like a moth, will fret them out, but the riches of Christ are durable riches, the graces of Christ are durable graces, John 4 : 14. "All creatures are flowers that appear and fade in their month ; but this rose of sharon, this lily of the valley never withers, thus you see the mercy performed with its desirable properties.—Method of Grace by I. Flavel.

THE COVENANT WITH NOAH.

What God had said in his heart as the smoke of Noah's sacrifice arose (Gen. 8 ; 20-22), he now openly declares, in a form to give implicit confidence to the race. "I will not smite again everything living as I have done." And the ground on which he thus proposes to deal is two-fold. First, he will not, "though the imagination of his heart," &c., deal with men according to their works. His rain shall descend on the evil and the good. It is a great truth that ought to keep men from interpreting providences as they do, to mean that Galileans are smitten because they are greater sinners. The other reason why he changes his plan, is out of regard to that great sacrifice which Noah's sacrifice prefigured. It was in reference to this sacrifice that he made the promise. It is, therefore, simply for that reason that the world continues at all. The historians and philosophies of history seem never to recognize this fact. The Church of God—her aim, her work—is the merest incident with them. Nay, it seems to be even a sort of anomaly in their great theories of human nature and human society. But the true statement of the case is, that the world is kept in being and held up, in spite of its hellward tendency, simply because it is needed as a theatre for the vast scheme of redemption. When that is done—when the last sinner is gathered in—then he will let go his hold, and it will rush on in its natural direction ; the stars fall, the sun fades, the heavens roll together, and the elements melt with fervent heat.

It is, therefore, merely an abeyance of judgment. Storms may desolate, as tokens of what is to come, but not destroy. And now, as, an antidote to the natural fear which consciousness of sin generates of such judgment he solemnly covenants by oath to assure the race, and appoints the bow in the cloud to be the seal or sacrament of the covenant, just as the tree of life was of the first covenant, just as the wine and bread are the seal of the new covenant. For the philosophy of all this matter of covenants is that it is a condescension to our modes of thought. God binds himself as with a bond. When the covenant concerns the great idea of worship, he makes a seal to bind also his people. We know that this covenant is in the nature of an oath, for in Isaiah he tells us, "I have sworn that the waters of Noah shall no more go over the earth"—Isaiah 5 ; 9. It is not necessary to suppose that the bow now first occurred as a phenomenon in nature, because now first taken as a seal, any more than that the tree of life, or that the water, or the bread and wine, are taken as seals of other covenants.

Then it stands preaching the fact that, for the sake of redemption, the world is spared. Hence it is that we find the seal of the covenant, as part of the symbols of redemption, figuring in the prophetic views of the glory of the incarnate God. When Ezekiel had his vision among the captives of the Chebar, that vision of the real worship of the Universe, though the temple had been destroyed, he saw above the living creatures, and above the firmament over their heads, that there was a throne and the appearance of a man upon it, and round about the throne Ez. 1 ; 23, "as the appearance of the bow that is in the cloud in the rain, so was the brightness round about." So when John, in the apocalyptic vision, saw the door opened in heaven Rev. 4 ; 1, beheld "a throne set in heaven, and One sat on the throne ; and there was a rainbow round about the throne." And so, again 10 ; 1, he saw at the end, of all the visions, the angel come forth to "swear by him that sitteth on the throne" that time should be no longer. He, as it were, plucked from its place the seal of the great covenant, and came with cloud and rainbow upon his head.

Thus do the emblems of redemption hang as beautiful mnemonics in nature, and exhibit the harmony of the Kingdom of Nature with the Kingdom of Grace. The religion, therefore, which seeks to put the worship of God in nature in antagonism to worship under the Gospel of grace, is all a miserable sham and hypocrisy.—Stuart Robison, D. D.

THE DUTIES OF A MOTHER.—We wish we knew who wrote the following beautiful thoughts ; for they are so true, so inspiring, that no one can read them unmoved.

"By the quiet fireside of home, the true mother, in the midst of her children, is sowing—as in vases of earth, the seeds of plants that sometimes give to Heaven the fragrance of their blossoms, and whose fruit shall be as a rosary of angelic deeds, through the ever ascending and expanding souls of her children, to her Maker. Every word that she utters goes from heart to heart with a power of which she little dreams. Philosophers tell us in their speculations that we cannot lift a finger without moving the distant spheres. Solemn is the thought, but not more solemn to the Christian mother than the thought that every word that falls from her lips, every expression of her countenance, even in the sheltered walk and retirement of home, may leave an indelible impression on young souls around her, and form, as it were, an underlying strain of that education which peoples Heaven."

Youth's Department.

THE LITTLE PILGRIM.

I'm a little pilgrim,
And a stranger here,
Though this world is pleasant,
Sin is always near.

Mine's a better country,
Where there is no sin,
Where the tones of sorrow
Never enter in.

But a little pilgrim
Must have garments clean,
If he'd wear the white robes,
And with Christ be seen.

Jesus, cleanse and save me,
Teach me to obey;
Holy Spirit guide me
On my Heavenly way.

I'm a little pilgrim,
And a stranger here;
But my home in Heaven
Cometh ever near.

MARY TESCALEET.

VERDICT OF A JURY OF BOYS.

When Dr. Nathaniel Prentice taught a school in Roxbury, he was very much of a favorite, but his patience at times would get nearly exhausted by the infraction of school rules by the scholars. On one occasion, in a rather wrathy way, he threatened to punish, with six blows of a heavy ferule, the first boy detected in whispering, and appointed some as detectors. Shortly after, one of these detectors shouted:

"Master, John Zeigler is whispering."

John was called, and asked if it was a fact. (John, by the way, was a favorite, both of the teacher and his schoolmates.)

"Yes,' answered John; "I was not aware what I was about. I was intent on working out a sum, and requested the one who sat next to me to reach me the arithmetic that contained the rule I wished to see."

The doctor regretted his hasty threat, but told John he could not suffer him to whisper and escape the punishment, and continued:

"I wish I could avoid it, but I cannot without a forfeiture of my word, and a consequent loss of my authority. I will leave it," continued he, "to any three scholars you may choose, to say whether or not I shall remit the punishment."

John said he would agree to that, and immediately called out three boys.

The doctor told them to return a verdict; this they soon did, after a consultation, as follows:

"The master's word must be kept inviolate. John must receive the threatened punishment of six blows of the ferule; but it must be inflicted on volunteer proxies, and we, the arbitrators, shall share the punishment by receiving each of us two of the blows."

John, who had listened to the verdict, stepped up to the doctor, and, with outstretched hand, exclaimed:

"Master, here is my hand; they shan't ..e struck a blow; I will receive the punishment."

The doctor, under pretense of wiping his face, shielded his eyes, and telling the boys to go to their seats, said he would think of it. I believe he did think of it to his dying day, but the punishment was never inflicted.

POWER OF LOVE.

Two girls were going to a neighboring town each carrying on her head a heavy basket of fruit to sell. One of them was murmuring and fretting all the way, and complaining of the weight of her basket, and the other went along smiling and singing, and seeming to be very happy.

At last the first got out of patience with her companion, and said, "How can you go on so merry and joyful? Your basket is as heavy as mine, and I know you are not a bit stronger than I am. I don't understand it."

"O!" said the other, "it's easy enough to understand. I have a certain little plant which I put on the top of my load; and it makes it so light I hardly feel it."

"Indeed! That must be a very precious little plant. I wish I could lighten my load with it. Where does it grow? Tell me. What do you call it?"

"It grows wherever you plant it and give it a chance to take root; and there's no knowing the relief it gives. Its name is 'Love'—the love of Jesus. Jesus loved me so much that He died to save my soul. This makes me love Him. Whatever I do, whether it be carrying this basket, or anything else, I think to myself, I am doing this for Jesus, to show that I love him; and this makes everything easy and pleasant."—Bible Jewels.

THE LORD'S PRAYER.

The spirit of the Lord's prayer is beautiful. This form of petition breathes—

A filial spirit—Father.

A catholic spirit—Our Father.

A reverential spirit—Hallowed be Thy name.

A missionary spirit—Thy kingdom come.

An obedient spirit—Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven.

A dependant spirit—Give us this day our daily bread.

A forgiving spirit—And forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors.

A cautious spirit—And lead us not into temptation; but deliver us from evil.

A confidential and adoring spirit—For thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, forever. Amen.

CORRESPONDENCE

A Reporter is wanted from every Church in the brotherhood to send us Church news, Obituaries, Announcements or anything that will be of general interest. To insure insertion, the writers name must accompany each communication. Our invitation is not personal but general—please respond to our call.

Dear Pilgrim:—I thought I would give you a little sketch of our Lovefeast held at the Manor Meeting-house commencing Oct., 22nd at 2 P. M. and continuing until the next day at noon. The services were very good, and largely attended by many people, and we trust some good impressions were made after hearing the word of God so ably preached to them.

Our membership at this Church is very large, and in addition to our own we were joined by a great many from other parts. The ministers present were D. P. Saylor, Jesse Roop, J. F Oller and others. There were a large number communed, how many I cannot state, but the house was crowded, and during the meeting there was great silence reigned, the spectators maintaining due decorum.

There were a great many surrounded those tables for the first time to commemorate the sufferings and death of our beloved Savior. I can not express how happy it made me feel to see so many of my young friends come out before the world and prove by their walk, talk and conversation that they are trying to serve the Lord, and I trust that they may prove faithful, and may the prayers of God's people support them. It was truly a feast to me, and not myself alone but I trust to others also. While sitting there how forcibly it was impressed upon my mind, will we all commune together again in this old Manor Meeting house? and as I looked over the congregation I missed many that enjoyed this privilege with us when last we met, some have moved away and others have fallen victims to the relentless hand of death, but we trust they are at rest, that God has taken them to form a part of the congregation at His right hand in heaven. And again on the other hand there are those that are near and dear to me that are still living strangers to God and His grace, and as the thought of them crossed my mind it made my heart ache, but I still hope and pray that they may soon see their condition, and turn to God before it is too late.

There is no part of the meeting so deeply impresses my mind, as in the evening, after they are seated around the tables; it truly represents Christians. There is no distinction then; no rich, no poor, but we are all as one, as our Heavenly Father would have us to be. I never feel better and happier, than when complying with that humble command of our Savior, of Feet-washing. I never feel ashamed to do as our Savior did before us, and I trust none of my brethren or Sisters do. There were a great many there that were melted to tears, some for joy that they were able to be there, others for those that are near and dear to them, by the ties of nature, who do not surround those tables, but sit back as spectators. But we trust the time will soon come when they will be willing to leave the paths of sin, and turn to God and obey His commands, that when they are done meeting and parting in this God's earthly tabernacle they will all be gathered home to enjoy eternal blessings at God's right hand.

I hope that our meeting will long be remembered by each and every one of us, and if we never meet again on earth may we meet in our Father's mansion, to praise Him forever and ever.

LIZZIE BUZZARD.

Fairplay, Md.

REPORT OF COMMUNIONS.

Permit me to tresspass on your columns and give you a little information as to the Master's cause in our Co. Our Communion meetings are over for the present year. The first of the series was held at the Plumcreek Meeting-house at 2. P. M. of August 10th, and closed with the P. M. service of Sunday 11th. One was added by baptism. The meeting was truly a pleasant one, we think, to all interested. The ministers present were L. Kimmel and Jacob Kelso of the Plumcreek congregation, Levi Wells and Robert Whitacre of Cowanshannock, and the undersigned of Redbank.

The next of our meetings was held in the Redbank congregation, commencing on Thursday evening Sept. 5th, and closed on Sunday night the 8th. We had many pleasant seasons together, as our brethren preached to us the blessed truths of Jesus. The ministers present were Eld. C. G. Lint and Jos. W. Beer of Dale City, L. Kimmel and J. Kelso of Plumcreek and Levi Wells of Cowanshannock. Two were added by baptism and an applicant left. This congregation has had a number of additions during the year.

The last of our meetings was held by the brethren of the Cowanshanock branch. This meeting was a pleasant one and was enjoyed by all interested. The ministers present here were Eld. J. I. Cover and Wm. Johnston of Fayette co., Pa., L. Kimmel and J. Kelso of Plumcreek and the undersigned from Redbank. The meeting opened on Friday night and continued over Sunday, during which time many good words were spoken by our brethren. One precious soul was here added by baptism on Sunday evening. This congregation has also received a number of additions during the year, and two of our dear sisters from this branch have gone to their reward.

I write this report from Juniata co., Pa., where I have been holding meetings for two weeks past, but hope, by the permission of Providence, to start for my home in Armstrong co., Pa., on Monday 11th of this month.

Your brother in Christ,
J. P. Hetric.

Walnut, P. O., Pa.

Marmaton City,
Bourbon Co., Kansas.

Dear Editors: —and brethren and sisters in the Lord, inasmuch as we love to read the church news, and to hear from the different arms of the church, how the Lord is prospering them, we have thought it would not be out of place to drop you a few lines informing you of our progression in our Master's cause, and as we have lately moved from the East to this place, we know that there are many dear readers of the Pilgrim, that are anxious to hear from us, we take this method to inform them how we are prospering in the world as well as in the Lord. By reading the heading of this, you learn of my whereabouts in the world, and as some of the brethren intimated that they had fears of our going West and growing wild, we will inform those, if they in reality, did entertain such fears, to cast them all aside; for the harvest indeed is great but the laborers few, and instead of causing to grow wild we think it will rather tame, and here say if any of your benches behind the table anywhere in the East are too short to contain your ministers, for mercy's sake do not splice them, but send some of them where they are needed.

Our communion season has just passed, and we were blessed with fair weather and good speakers. Elder Isaac Hershy residing about fifty miles from here, Bro. Isaac Studebaker of West Charleston Miami county Ohio, Bro. Jesse Studebaker of Andrew Co. Kansas Bro. Buck of this state, who came one hundred miles with his companion in a two-horse wagon, and others were here to labor for our good. We had a very refreshing season. The brethren labored faithfully and caused the word to sink deep into many hearts. One poor soul acknowledged that by the preaching that he had heard on that occasion, had raised the dark clouds, and let the true light shine upon his soul, and came out and was received by baptism on the afternoon of the second day of our meeting. There was also a dear sister added to the church at our Council meeting, and we have cause to believe that many more were almost persuaded to become followers of Christ. And may the Lord bless our dear brethren that come so far and labored in our Master's cause, may He also bless their labors, that the good seed sown by them may be as bread cast upon the waters, to be gathered up many days hence.

Dear brethren and sisters in the Lord, there being many calls made that we are not able to fill, and when we do fill them and rise before an audience, to see so many longing eyes so many hungry souls, and knowing our weakness and what is expected of us, we sometimes almost feel like shrinking from the task, but knowing the Lord will help in time of need, we proceed, and after closing, Oh the many greetings, not only members but friends! "We were so glad to hear you; have not heard any of the brethren for so long, not since I left the East, and I can now write to father and mother and the brethren that I have heard a Dunkard preacher," also many exclamations of gratitude on every side, that I long to hide myself and weep for a season, when I think of the many hungry souls here, and the many long benches filled with able ministers in the East. It appears to me that the brethren in the West are not treated fairly.

May the Lord put it into some of their hearts to come this way and work where they are needed worse than where they now are, and may He also bless and prosper us all is my prayer.

Yours in love.
John J. Hoover.

James Creek
Nov., 9th 1872.

Dear Children, and readers of the Pilgrim, I will once more inform you where I am and how I am getting along. I am at present with our dear old Bro. Jacob Brumbaugh and his kind daughter, a sister, who resides near the James Creek Church. I am very well cared for here, and when I see the tenderness of the daughter towards the old father I think, O how pleasant it is for children to love and respect their parents, which also reminds me of the kindness shown to me by my children, brethren, sisters and friends.

I was made glad by the reception of a letter from my dear children informing me that they were all well also the dear members and friends. To all concerned, I will now say, I am well, and have been since I left home. I expect to remain at James Creek until Tuesday the 12th, after which I expect to start to Philada, and Germantown where I expect to remain some 6 or 8 days, then return back again and visit some of the churches along the way —expect to stop 5 or 6 days with Eld. Joseph R. Hanawalt near McVeytown Pa., and from there, I have not fully determined where I will go. I am requested to return to the Cove again. In case I do this, I will not get home much before Christmas. I would be pleased if our brethren of the Union District would arrange to hold a series of meetings to commence on the evening before Christmas, at which time I expect Bro. James Quinter to be with us. If he cannot at that time, I hope he will inform us and let us know when it will suit him to labor for us.

I would be much pleased if some of our dear members would send a weekly report for the Pilgrim or Companion giving the news of the church &c. It is so pleasant when we stop with our dear members, if we can see a report in our periodicals from our church. Dear children, live in peace and the God of love and peace will be with you. On my mission of love, I have found peace everywhere, and hope if the Lord permits me to return home again, I may find it abiding there.

To my dear laboring brethren I would say, take care of the young and tender lambs and feed them with the sincere milk of the word that they may grow and become strong in the faith, and to all our respected brethren and sisters—may the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God and the communion of the Holy Spirit be with you all, Amen.

From your well-wishing father and brother. John Kniseley.

Brethren Brumbaugh's: —Time with its ceaseless rapid flight, is bearing upon its bosom the usual variety of joy and sorrow, of light and shadow, of rejoicing and mourning. Since our last writing our congregation has been blessed with a refreshing from the presence of the Lord.

On the 1st Sabbath in Oct. at the close of our regular services, one soul made a public declaration of his faith and purposes, and, as in the case of the Phillipian convert, he was baptized that same hour.

On the 2d Sunday of the same month, three others were inducted through the holy rite of baptism, into the church. On that day at 11 o'clock at John's school house, where our regular appointment for the 2d Sunday is held, Bro. J. C. Moomaw of Botetourt Co., preached the funeral of Bro. Peter Garman, who died last Spring.

In the evening at 3 o'clock he preached at our house to an attentive congregation. His subject was, our degredation and our restoration. "As in Adam all died so in Christ shall all be made alive." I would like to be able to give a verbatim report of the discourse, but a brief synopsis must suffice.

First: He gave a description of the joy and peace of the Garden before it was cursed with sin, of the enjoyment and happiness present and prospective. Then he portrayed the introduction of sin, the blight that fell on our progenitors, on the lovely garden, and through them, on all the earth and the inhabitants thereof. It made our hearts bleed to hear of our joyous heritage so terribly ruined, and we hope it will make us look on sin as exceedingly sinful, and enlist us more determinedly in our purposes to check its further progress.

After rehearsing the matter from the beginning to show us the deformity of sin, the consequences of sin, the ultimate results of sin, he turned the picture around from the shadow to the light, and told us of the balm in Gilead, of the All healing liniament composed of Jesus' blood, of the great sacrifice for sin, of the ultimate glory that will revisit this world again in the latter days, when the kingdoms of this world will become the kingdoms of our Lord. May we be ready for that happy period.

As ever, yours,
D. C. Moomaw.

MARRIED.

MILLER—HOLSINGER.—On the 12th inst., at the residence of the bride's parents, by Bro. Abram Golley, Jacob J. Miller, of Newville, Cumberland co., Pa., to sister Mollie Holsinger, of Waynesboro Franklin co, Pa.

DIED.

GREENAWALT.—Fell asleep in Christ, October 27, 1872., in the Cedar Creek Church, Allen co., Ind., our dear old sister and mother in Israel, Rosanna Greenawalt, aged 80 years, 7 months and 6 days.

She lived to be a good old age and was a faithful member in the church. She was left a widow quite a number of years ago, raised a large family, no doubt had many ups and downs in the world, was afflicted much, but was always found cheerful. Notwithstanding her afflictions she bore it all with christian fortitude, and when conversing with her a few days before her death, she spoke of her home in heaven and longed to be there. Funeral discourse by the writer from Rev. 14th chap. and 13th verse. Eld. Jeremiah Gump.

DENNISOR.—In the Aughwick Branch, Huntingdon co., Pa., Sept. 15, 1872, our aged and faithful sister Sarah, widow of Fred. Dennisor, dec'd, aged about 82 yrs. Funeral by the brethren from Rev. 14th chap. 12, 13 ver.

A. L. Funck.

(Companion please copy.)

MOURER.—Near Upton, Franklin co, Pa., sister Catharine, wife of bro. Peter Mourer, aged 33 years, 4 months and 8 days.

Sister Kate was suddenly called for, by the heavenly messenger, and left a kind husband and many sorrowing friends to mourn her sudden departure; which truly was in the full triumphs of faith in a glorious immortality. Funeral services by D. F. Good of Antietem and the dear brethren of this arm of the church.

At the same place, Oct. 11th, Geo. H. infant son of Bro. Peter and sister Catharine Mourer, aged 15 days.

The little infant survived the mother a few days but now is sweetly sleeping at its mother's side.

Sweet little George sleeps on Jesus breast
Safe in the Shepherd's arms he'll rest;
No pian can reach, no harm come nigh
The lambs that in his bosom lie.

Yes they are gone do not distrust,
But meekly to his wisdom bow,
He's laid the loved ones in the dust,
With angel spirits resting now.

D. F. G.

MONEY LIST.

John Barnhart,	$1.25
Michael Beshore,	4.75
D. H. Bonebrake,	3.85
P. Corl,	.60
D. B. Wineman,	.50
A. B. Shinefelt,	1.00
Thomas L. Enyeart,	2.50
Daniel Glick,	2.50
Daniel Snowberger,	1.50
Abram Ritchey,	1.50
J. M. Fisher,	1.25
Daniel Wolf,	1.25
Daniel Bock,	1.25
Maggie Miller,	1.25
D. G. Varner,	1.25
David S. Clapper,	3.35
John F. Stamey,	1.50
D. F. Good,	5.00
Jacob Showalter,	1.25

The Weekly Pilgrim.

JAMES CREEK, PA., Nov. 19th, 1872.

☞ How to send money.—All sums over $1.50, should be sent either in a check, draft or postal order. If neither of these can be obtained, have the letter registered.

☞ When Money is sent, always send with it the name and address of those who paid it. Write the names and post office as plainly as possible.

☞ Make all checks and and drafts payable to H. B. Brumbaugh, and the postal orders make payable at Huntingdon.

☞ If any of our agents have been overlooked in receiving no prospectus, or any wish to become agents, let us know and we will send one, also sample copy of the Pilgrim Almanac.

☞ Every subscriber for 1873, gets a Pilgrim Almanac Free.

A SHORT VISIT.

At different times we promised to give the brethren residing in the neighborhood of Saxton, Bedford co., Pa., a visit, partly to preach and partly to see some of our relations residing there, and as the Brumbaugh family is scattered over a large territory, a report of our visit may be especially interesting to them.

On Saturday morning, in company with old Uncle David, as we call him, though really not quite that relation to us, but brother to our grandfather, we took the train for Saxton where we arrived about 10 a. m., when we steered for Stonerstown, only a short distance, to the house of Abram Ritchey, whose wife is a daughter of Bro. Samuel Brumbaugh, brother to David our travelling companion. Here we were kindly received, dined with them and then started in company with sister Ritchey, for old Uncle Samuel's house, and after a pleasant walk of two miles we reached the place of our intended visit, where we found all well and awaiting our arrival. This family, at present, consists of old Bro. Samuel, his daughter, (Maria Snyder) and grand-daughter, Maggie, all members of the household of faith. The old brother seems to enjoy good health and, for his age, is quite smart on the feet, having walked, on Sunday, two miles to meeting and back again. This he done because he preferred walking to that of riding. Like many of his age he is entering what is generally termed the third stage of life. Towards evening the family was increased by the addition of his youngest daughter Caroline, now sister Fluke.

In the evening we had meeting in their school house on the farm, where we met a number of brethren, sisters and friends who seemed to enjoy the meeting by giving heed to the word preached. Here we met Eld. Jacob Steel, this being in his district, also our young brother and minister, David S. Clapper who promises soon to become an efficient help in the ministry. After preaching we returned to the same place.

On Sunday morning we were taken up to the Crofford school house where we had quite a pleasant meeting. From here we were taken to the home Bro. Crofford for the first time and made the acquaintance of sister Crofford, never having met her before. We also had the pleasure of the company of their two daughters, sisters Julia and Sudie and Sister Sudie Ritchey. The family company proved to be interesting and made us to enjoy quite a pleasant afternoon.

In the evening there was another appointment made for us in the Brumbaugh School house. Here we again met an interesting and orderly congregation who seemed to enjoy the meeting. After preaching went to Jacob Brumbaugh's, son of Samuel.

On Monday morning, we again stopped a short time with our old brother and daughter. For the satisfaction of that part of the family residing in Nebraska, we will here say, that we saw all of the family residing in the neighborhood and found them well. From here, we again went to Stonerstown and took dinner with Bro. Ritchey, after which we went to Saxton to embark for home. We were aboard only a short time until we heard a racket underneath which caused a general consternation among the passengers, some were ready to faint, others prayed while a few seemed to enjoy the change things had taken. On looking out the window, we noticed that the front wheels of the baggage car had gotten off the track and that we had been making a curve on a trestle some twenty feet high. The idea of an upset at such an elevation was not at all pleasant, but we could not pursuade ourselves to be alarmed about it. The train wes stopped and then followed a rush for the door. We kept our seat, wishing to make some observations. On such occasions we can learn the power of religions, we say religions, because there are different kinds.

The cry of a number, who were robed in fashions latest cut, was, "Oh let me out, I'm not prepared to die." They, no doubt, were good christians at home and their religion answered for display and church going purposes, but it would not answer no how, for a railroad collision. In a few minutes all was righted and by some persuasion, all aboard again, but when we saw the abject misery some endured through fear, we pitied them. "Are not two sparrows sold for a farthing?" How slow we are to learn that we are of more value than they? Nothing but a compliance with the terms of salvation and an abiding faith in Jesus will give us that knowledge in its saving power. In a short time we arrived at our station and was home again where we again met our respected Bro. John Knisely who came to us on Friday and remained with the James Creek brethren over Sunday. We were quite glad to meet him as he is a man of developed sociability. In the evening, with the addition of brother and sister Mason, we had a pleasant and interesting social meeting which will not soon be forgotten by these who were present.

THE POOR.

The Pilgrim has been the poor man's friend since its commencement, but it is feared that since we have put the price at $1.50, some cannot raise the extra 25 cts. If they cannot, we will be satisfied with 25 cts. less and to such as are really poor, we will take anything they are able to give. Our agents in gathering subscribers will please remember this so that none need do without the Pilgrim on the plea of poverty, but there are very few who have sound limbs but what can raise $1.50, especially, when they have nearly a whole year to pay it in. Never was there better times for laboring hands than the present, and all those that are willing to work can have it to do, and get good wages for it, therefore we feel assured that those who love Jesus and to read the Pilgrim will not be willing to do without it. Then, to the poor, we say, give us all you can and we will trust to God for the balance.

INFORMATION WANTED.

From a letter received from Joseph C. Hershberger, who has a brother whose whereabouts is not known, it appears that a copy of the Pilgrim was given to him by a Bro. Hess. On reading our report of the Yellow Creek Meeting he saw the name of H. Hershberger and thinking it might be his lost brother wrote to us about it requesting us to give his address. Of course Bro. Hershberger is not the man, but we will give his address which is, in full; Henry Hershberger, Bloody Run, Bedford Co. Pa.

To aid our friend we will give him further publicity. The lost brothers name is H. R. Hershberger, his fathers name is John. Having two women, the first ones name was Margaret, and the second Mary, he is of the first. He left home in the Spring of 1866 and has not been heard from since. There is a legacy left him by will of his father. If any of our readers know of such a person they will much oblige his brother, by informing him of it and giving his address.

Address, Joseph C. Hershberger, Fairview, Washington Co., Md.

To Our Old Subscribers.—We wish you all to continue the Pilgrim for 1873, and kindly ask you to send in your names in good time so that you may receive your Almanacs. The last form is now in press and will be ready for distribution soon after the middle of this month. Therefore send your names, or have them sent early and get your Almanacs before the New Year comes in. Our edition is large enough to supply all, but first come first served will be our rule.

Get to Work.—Gather the names as fast as you can and send them along, old and new. The money can be sent when you get it together. Take all you can get that you know will pay as soon as they can or during the year, but do not take such as you would not be willing to trust yourselves. We want all names sent in for 1873 as early as possible so that they can get their Almanacs. Our agents will receive a copy of it as soon as it is ready.

Dear Brethren:—Please announce in the Pilgrim, that we intend, the Lord willing, to have a series of meetings in the Dry Valley Meetinghouse, Mifflin co., Pa., commencing on the evening of the 2d day of January, 1872, and to continue about one week. We give an invitation to all who have a desire to be at our meeting. Especially to ministers, and more especially to the ministers of the different arms of our Church around us.

Jacob Mohler.

Phrenological Journal.—By special arrangement, we send the Phrenological Journal, price $3.00, and Weekly Pilgrim together for $3.50. Every person wishing to read the best journal published for general information should order it a year through us.

Correction.—By a slight misconstruction of copy, we made it appear in No. 44, that Bro. Jeremiah Barnhart was dead. This is not the case, and we gladly make the correction.

Please Notice; Every Subscriber for 1873 will get the Pilgrim Almanac free. New subscribers will also get the remaining Nos. of 1872 —will commence as soon as the names are received.

For 25 subscribers and $37-50 we give as a premium, "The Great Industries of the United States" containing 13,04 pages. This is the most interesting and instructive work of the day.

ARRIVAL OF 600 MORMONS.

Our foreign papers last week contained an announcement of the embarkation, on a single steamer at Liverpool, of six hundred Mormons for this port. They arrived on the 16th, and have already left by a special train for Utah. They are in charge of Mormon agents from the time of their leaving Europe until they reach their destination, and have been joined by a few Mormons from this vicinity who will accompany them to Salt Lake. There are in the company just arrived 256 Scandinavians, 25 Scotch, 12 Welch, 4 Irish, 295 English and 6 returning missionaries.

It is sad to see many fresh recruits brought under the power of this gross delusion and led away to join the ranks of Brigham Young's subjects. Many will doubtless awake to their delusion when they reach Mormon territory, as many have gone before them. The mass of them are probably like the thousands which have previously arrived, ignorant and led astray with the promise of plenty in a new and unknown region. The converts to this base form of religion are nearly all of this class upon whom it is easy to impose—unenlightened and incredulous. They are not Americans who join the rank, but Scandinavians and ignorant English. Mormonism is not an excrescence of American growth, though on our soil it receives its strength and increase from abroad. Now that these people are in our land, one thing should be done for them, and that is give them the gospel. The Christian Church should greatly enlarge its missionary efforts in this direction.—N. Y. Observer.

GOOD BOOKS.

A large number of our patrons are receiving our books as noticed below, as premiums, and express themselves highly pleased with them. Others who are not agents, have enquired whether we keep them for sale. We have now made arrangements with Mr. Wells to furnish any of their publications post paid at publishers prices. Orders for books must be accompanied with the cash, and plain directions for sending them.

Wayer's Works for the Young. Comprising "Hopes and Helps for the Young of both Sexes," "Aids and Aims for Girls and Young Women," "Ways of Life; or, the Right Way and the Wrong Way," $3

Life at Home: or, The Family and its Members. Husbands, Wives, Parents, Children, Brothers, Sisters, Employers and Employed, etc. By Rev. William Aikman, D. D. A work which should be found in every family. $1.50. Extra gilt, $2.00.

Hand-book for Home Improvement: comprising "How to Write," "How to Talk," How to Behave," and "How to do Business," in one vol. 2.25.

Man and Woman: Considered in their Relations to each Other and to the World. By Henry C. Pedder. 12mo, Fancy cloth Price $1.00.

The Right Word in the Right Place. A New Pocket Dictionary and Reference Book. Embracing Synonyms, Technical Terms, Abbreviations, Foreign Phrases Writing for the Press, Punctuation, Proof-Reading, and other Valuable Information. Cloth, 75cts.

The Emphatic, Diaglott; or The New Testament in Greek and English. Containing the Original Greek Text of the New Testament, with an Interlineary Word for-word English Translation. A Work for Students in Theology, and S. S. Teachers. By Benamin Wilson. Price, $4.00; extra fine binding, $5.00.

Oratory—Sacred and Secular; or, the Extemporaneous Speaker. Including Chairman's Guide for conducting Public Meetings according to the best Parliamentary forms. By Wm. Pittonger. $1.50.

Conversion of St. Paul. By George Jarvis Geer, D. D. 12mo. fine edition, $1. Plain edition, 75 cents.

Hopes and Helps for the Young of both sexes, Relating to the Formation of Character. Choice of Avocation, Health, Conversation, Cultivation of Intellect, Moral Sentiments, Social Affection Courtship and Marriage. By Rev. G. S. Weaver. Muslin, $1.50.

Man, in Genesis and in Geology; or, the Biblical Account of Man's Creation, tested by Scientific Theories of his Origin and Antiquity. By Joseph P. Thompson, D. D., LL.D. One vol. 12mo, $1.00.

TUNE BOOK.

The Brethren's Tune and Hymn Book, is a compilation of Sacred Music adapted to all the hymns in the Brethren's New Hymn Book. It contains over 350 pages, printed on good paper and neatly bound. We will send it to any address, post paid at $1.25 per copy.

25 Ablest Tariff Journal in the U. S.
THE AMERICAN WORKING PEOPLE.

Published monthly, is a welcome visitor at 100,000 Firesides. Finely printed, handsomely illustrated, ably edited—has no rival! $1.50 per year, sent on trial 3 months for 25 cents.

IRON WORLD PUB. CO., Pittsburgh, Pa.

25 THE IRON WORLD is the Largest and most Valuable Metal Price Current in the world. $4.00 per year. Sent on trial one month for 25 cents. All the State Geologists are Contributors. IRON WORLD PUB'G CO., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Trine Immersion
TRACED
TO THE APOSTLES.

Being a collection of historical quotations from modern and ancient authors, proving that a THREE-FOLD Immersion was the only method of baptizing ever practiced by the Apostles and their immediate successors. The author, after proving Trine Immersion to have been the prevailing practice, in baptism, the first 1500 years of the Christian era, commences with the fifth century, and traces a Three-fold Immersion, to within 38 years of the apostle John's death, and then proves it to have been the Apostolic method of baptizing, while Single Immersion was invented not less than 326 years after the death of Christ.

Put up in a neat pamphlet form, with good paper cover, and will be sent, post-paid, on the following terms: One copy, 25 cts; Five copies, $1.10; Ten copies, $2.00.

Address, J. H. MOORE,
Urbana, Champaign co., Ill.

Oct. 22.

SALEM COLLEGE.

The Fall term of Salem College will open for the reception of any number of students from all parts on the 4th of September, 1872. Ample accommodations and thorough instruction will be given all students who connect themselves with this College. Good board can be had in good families at $2.50 to $3.00 per week or students can board themselves in clubs at $1.25 to $1.50 per week as numbers have done with the consent of the faculty. Special care will be given students who are far from home.

For Catalogues, Scholarships and full particulars address

SALEM COLLEGE,
July 22, '72. Bourbon, Ind.

WANTED BOOK Agents FOR THE GREAT INDUSTRIES
OF THE UNITED STATES;

AN HISTORICAL SUMMARY OF THE ORIGIN, GROWTH AND PERFECTION OF THE GREAT INDUSTRIAL ARTS OF THIS COUNTRY.

1300 PAGES and 500 ENGRAVINGS.
Written by 20 Eminent Authors, including

JOHN B. GOUGH, LEON CASE, EDWARD HOWLAND, JOS. B. LYMAN, REV. E. EDWIN HALL, HORACE GREELEY, PHILIP RIPLEY, ALBERT BRISBANE, F. B. PERKINS, ETC.

This work is a complete history of all branches of industry, processes of manufacture, etc., in all ages. It is a complete encyclopedia of arts and manufactures, and is the most entertaining and valuable work of information on subjects of general interest ever offered to the public. It is adapted to the wants of the Merchant, Manufacturer, Mechanic, Farmer, Student and Inventor, and sells to both old and young of all classes. The book is sold by agents, who are making large sales in all parts of the country. It is offered at the low price of $3.50, and is the cheapest book ever sold by subscription No family should be without a copy. We want agents in every town in the United States, and no agent can fail to do well with this book. Our terms are liberal. We give our agents the exclusive right of territory. One of our agents sold 133 copies in eight days, another sold 368 in two weeks. Our agent in Hartford sold 307 in one week. Specimens of the work sent to agents on receipt of stamp. For circulars and terms to agents address the publishers.

J. B. BURR & HYDE, Hartford, Conn., Chicago, Ill., or Cincinnati, Ohio.

Menno Simon's
COMPLETE WORKS.

In English, translated from the original Dutch or Holland, giving the whole of the great Reformers writings on the subject of Baptism. Price in full sheep $4.50; by mail $5.14.

Address, JOHN F. FUNK & BRO.
Elkhart, Ind.

New Hymn Books, English.
TURKEY MOROCCO.

One copy, postpaid,	$1.00
Per Dozen,	11.25

PLAIN ARABESQUE.

One Copy, post-paid,	75
Per Dozen, "	8.50

Ger'n & English, Plain Sheep.

One Copy, post-paid,	$1.00
Per Dozen	11.25
Arabesque Plain,	1.00
Turkey Morocco,	1.25
Single German, post-paid	50
Per Dozen,	5.00

TRACTS.

"ANXIOUS BENCH RELIGION EXAMINIED," BY ELDER J. S. FLORY. A SYNOPSIS OF CONTENTS. An address to the reader: The peculiarities that attend this type of religion. The feelings there experienced not imaginary but real. The key that unlocks the wonderful mystery: The causes by which feelings are excited. How the momentary feelings called "Experimental religion" are brought about, and then concludes by giving that form of doctrine as taught by Jesus Christ and recorded by his faithful witnesses.

COUNTERFEIT DETECTER
or
BAPTISM—MUCH IN LITTLE.

This work is now ready for distribution, and the importance of the subject will speak for it a large demand. It is a short treatise on baptism in tract form intended for general distribution, and is set forth in such a plain and logical manner that a wayfaring man though a fool, cannot err therein. Either of the above tracts sent postpaid on the following terms: Two copies, 10 cts, 10 copies 40 cents, 25 copies 70 cents, 50 copies $1.00, 100 copies $1.70.

1870 1872

DR. FAHRNEY'S
Blood Cleanser or Panacea.

A tonic and purge, for Blood Diseases. Great reputation. Many testimonials. Many ministering brethren use and recommend it. Ask or send for the "Health Messenger." Use only the "Panacea" prepared at Chicago, Ills., and by

Dr. P. Fahrney's Brothers & Co.,
Aug. 3-pd. Waynesboro, Franklin Co., Pa.

Trine Immersion.

A discussion on Trine Immersion, by letter between Elder B. F. Moomaw and Dr. J. J. Jackson, to which is annexed a Treatise on the Lord's Supper, and on the necessity, character and evidences of the new birth, also a dialogue on the doctrine of non-resistance, by Elder B. F. Moomaw. Single copy 50 cents.

$5 to $20 per day! Agents wanted! All classes of working people, of either sex, young or old, make more money at work for us in their spare moments, or all the time, than at anything else. Particulars free. Address G. Stinson & Co., Portland, Maine. sep. 17.

HUNTINGDON & BROAD TOP RAIL ROAD

Winter Arrangement.

On and after Tuesday, Oct. 4, 1872, Passenger trains will arrive and depart as follows:

Trains from Huntingdon South. Trains from Mt. Dall's moving North.

MAIL. A. M.	ACCOM P. M.	STATIONS.	MAIL. P. M.	ACCOM A. M.
*le*8 00	LE5 50	Huntingdon,	AR3 20	AR9 00
8 08	5 57	Long Siding	3 12	8 48
8 24	6 10	McConnelstown	2 56	8 37
8 30	6 17	Pleasant Grove	2 50	8 30
8 45	6 30	Marklesburg	2 37	8 17
9 00	6 44	Coffee Run	2 23	8 01
9 07	6 52	Rough & Ready	2 15	7 58
9 20	7 05	Cove	2 01	7 40
9 24	7 10	Fishers Summit	1 57	7 35
9 44 ar 9 54	7 30	Saxton	1 37	le 7 15
10 10		Riddlesburg	1 19
10 17		Hopewell	1 12
10 34		Piper's Run	12 56
10 52		Tatesville	12 38
11 05		Bloody Run	12 24
*r*11 10		Mount Dallas	12 20

JOHN M'KILLIPS, Supt

SHOUP'S RUN BRANCH.

LE10 00	LE7 40	Saxton.	AR1 30	AR7 10
10 15	7 55	Coalmont.	1 15	6 55
10 20	8 00	Crawford.	1 10	6 50
AR10 30	AR8 10	Dudley	LE1 00	LE6 40
Bro'd Top City from Dudley 2 miles by stage.

Time of Penna. R. R. Trains at Huntingdon.

EASTWARD.			WESTWARD.
Hb'g Ac.	9 24	A. M	Cin. Ex.	2 19 A. M.
Mail	3 30	P. M	Pc'f Ex.	7 45 "
Cin. Ex.	6 55	"	Mail	5 40 P. M.
Phil. Ex	11 15	"	W. Pass.	11 52 A. M.

The Weekly Pilgrim.

Published by J. B. Brumbaugh, & Co.

Edited by H. B. & Geo. Brumbaugh.

CORRESPONDING EDITORS.

D. P. Sayler, Double Pipe Creek, Md.

Leonard Furry, New Enterprise, Pa.

The Pilgrim is a Christian Periodical, devoted to religion and moral reform. It will advocate in the spirit of love and liberty, the principles of true Christianity, labor for the promotion of peace among the people of God, for the encouragement of the saints and for the conversion of sinners, avoiding those things which tend toward disunion or sectional feelings.

TERMS.

Single copy, Book paper,	$1.50
Eleven copies, [eleventh for Agt.]	$15.00

Any number above that at the same rate.

Address.

H. B. BRUMBAUGH.
James Creek,
Huntingdon county Pa.

Narkin Pilgrim.

"REMOVE NOT THE ANCIENT LANDMARKS WHICH OUR FATHERS HAVE SET."

VOL. 3. JAMES CREEK, PENNSYLVANIA, NOVEMBER 26, 1872. NO. 48

POETRY.

THE OMNIPRESENCE OF GOD.

SELECTED BY CHARLOTTE MASTERS.

The Lord, the high and holy one,
Is present everywhere;
Go to the regions of the sun
And thou wilt find him there.

Go to the secret ocean caves,
Where man hath never trod,
And there beneath the flashing waves,
Will be thy maker, God.

The lofty mount and lowly vale,
The lofty forest trees;
The rocks that battle with the gale,
The ever rolling seas.

All nature speaks of Him who made
The land, and sea, and sky;
The fruits that fall the leaves that fade,
The flowers that bloom and die.

All tell the omnipresent Lord,
The God of boundless night;
In every age and clime adored,
Whose dwelling is the light.

A WORD OF KINDNESS.

SELECTED BY MAGGIE MILLER.

How softly on the bruised heart
A word of kindness falls,
And to the dry and parched soul
The moist'ning tear-drop calls!
O! if they knew who walked the earth,
'Mid sorrow, grief and pain,
The power a word of kindness hath,
'Twere paradise again.

The weakest and the poorest may
The simple pittance give,
And bid delight to withered hearts
Return again and live.
O! what is life if love be lost—
If man's unkind to man?
Or what the heaven that wait's beyond
The brief and mortal span?

As the stars upon the tranquil sea
In minute glory shine,
So words of kindness in the heart
Reflect the source divine.
O! then the kind, who'er thou art,
Give unto those that needeth,
And it shall brighten all thy life,
And sweeten even death.

A GOOD RULE.

'Tis well to walk with a cheerful heart
Wherever our fortunes call,
With a friendly glance, an open hand,
And a gentle word for all.

Since life is a thorny and difficult path,
Where toil is the portion of man,
We all should endeavor, while passing along,
To make it as smooth as we can.

ORIGINAL ESSAYS.

RAINBOWS.

BY D. B. HENTZER.

Who has not seen the rainbow spanning the nether part of the heavens, and gleaming forth in all the beauty and brightness of its variegated colors? It is only to be seen painted upon a cloud, and you need but to look up at the cloudy sky, after a storm and shower, to observe it. But how came it? and what does it mean? Well, you can read its history and design by referring to the ninth chapter of Genesis.

The rainbow is the symbol of the covenant that God made with Noah that He would not again destroy mankind with the element of water. The rainbow is also a type of our blessed Jesus who is the Fathers witness to all people. As the Lord made a covenant with Noah concerning the destruction of the world, so also He makes a covenant with every Christian believer concerning the salvation of the soul. Now, gentle reader what is the sign of the covenant? Let me whisper, It is Jesus. But when do we see this sign; when do we see Jesus, the Rainbow of the new covenant? Christian, you can tell, When the sinner's conscience is dark with clouds; when he remembers his past sins; when he feels his heart harrowed with the pangs of a prodigal, worthless life; when he halts in his sinful race after nothing, and catches charming glimpses of the light of the Cross, and the beautiful armor of the disciples of Jesus, on the one hand, and on the other, the darkness, the vengeance, the threatening, the indescribable horror of "the second death," and feels himself sinking down, down, deeper and deeper, into the abominable "bottomless pit;" when he thinks of the fiendish, miserable, hateful, soul-devouring partner he shall have down there, and mourneth and lamenteth in the deep sorrow of the heart, then—then—like a ray of supernal light, Jesus Christ, the blessed, dearest Friend, is revealed to him as the covenant Rainbow, displaying in marvelous grandeur, all the glorious hues of the Divine character, the glory of heaven," the beauty of holiness;" and this betokens peace and goodwill. O who cannot love Jesus, precious Saviour?

To the believer, when trials, temptations, sorrows, and sufferings surround him, it is cheering soul-stirring, sweet to behold the person of our Lord Jesus Christ—to see Him weeping, bleeding, living, rising, and pleading for us. God's Rainbow is hung over the clouds of our sins, our sorrows, and our woes, to prophesy our deliverance.

Nor does a cloud alone give a rainbow: there must be the crystal drops to reflect the light of the sun, as those well know who have studied Natural Philosophy. Yes, crystal drops. So our sorrows must not only threaten, but must really fall upon us. Remember, there had been no Jesus for us, if God's vengeance upon transgression had been merely a threatning cloud: that vengeance must needs inflict punishment somewhere, and it did fall in terrible, burning drops upon the Immaculate Surety—"the Prince of Peace." Blessed, adorable Prince!

Until there is a real anguish in the sinner's conscience, there is no Jesus for him; until his past life presents itself in all its prodigality, and exceeding sinfulness, and becomes utterly grievous, he cannot see Jesus—the Rainbow is not seen, unless the storm, with its lightning flash and falling shower is seen also.

There must also be a sun; for clouds and drops of rain make not rainbow unless the sun shines. Beloved Christian disciple, our God is as a sun to us; He always shines; but we do not always see Him—clouds hide His face, His radient countenance. But no matter what clouds may be threatening, or what drops may be falling, if He does but shine upon our hearts, there will be a rainbow at once. It is said that the shower is over when we see the rainbow. The clouds of our trouble will surely remove when Christ, our Rainbow comes; when we look upon Him our sins vanish, and our doubts and fears are allayed. The storm may toss the trees of the forest, and roll the billows high, but when Jesus walks the waters of the sea, how profound the calm. Thus, when our souls are storm beaten, in the midst of our trials, may we look for our Rainbow, whose "Peace, be still," will dispel the clouds, and bring the sweet calm of the soul. Come, ever-loving, ever-loved Jesus, our Peace and Salvation, Waynesborough Pa.

Selected for the Pilgrim.

THE BEAUTIES OF HEAVEN

Transporting theme! What pen can portray it? What tongue describe the beauties of that Heavenly land? There is the beautiful city of our God, whose foundations are of precious stones, whose gates are of pearl, and whose streets are of pure gold, as it were transparent glass. There is the pure river of water of life clear as crystal, proceeding out of the throne of God, and on either side of it is the tree of life, which yieldeth its fruit every month. This beautiful city needeth not the light of the sun, neither of the moon to shine in it, for the glory of God doth lighten it, and the Lamb is the light thereof. The inhabitants of that beautiful land never say, I am sick; for there is known no sorrow, no sighing, neither pain, nor anguish. There all tears are wiped away, and the rays of the Sun of Righteousness forever warm and gladden their hearts. Oh! beautiful country! Delightful land! Can we ever reach that beautiful land of rest? Shall we overcome and inhabit that sweet home of rest?

Where no storms ever beat on the glittering straud,
While the years of eternity roll.

He that overcometh will I make a pillar in the temple of my God, and he shall go no more out, he shall be clothed in white raiment, and golden harps shall be given unto him, and palms of victory, and he shall inherit all things and join that innumerable company that shall come from the East, the West, the North and the South in that song of praise unto Him that hath loved us, and washed us from our sins in His own blood, to Him be glory forever and ever. O! come, let us heed the admonition of the holy and just One, that we may have a right to the tree of life and enter through the gates in to the city.

MAGGIE MILLER.

Somerset, Pa.

MY LANTERN.—NO. 3.

There are many, many very strange things occur these days, but they are largely of those that are generally termed "under surface events." By this mode of expression is understood, things beyond general observation. The wise man said, "of making many books there is no end," but if all these under surface things were written out, the seeming exaggeration of the apostle John when he says; "even the world itself could not contain the books that should be written," taken in its most literal sense would not be an over estimate. But they are not written, and many of them never come to the surface, hence I sometimes turn "my lantern" down among these hidden things and it is really astonishing what revelations are made.

Not long since while traveling on one of the principal railroad routes, in a crowded car, I noticed two young men seemingly of the No. 1. grade, but as they were drawing the attention of the passengers, I thought I might as well turn my lantern that way and see of what kind of stuff they were composed, and soon found that their business was, for the time being, observation and comment. Their first subject was a plain but neatly dressed old mother who sat on the opposite seat. "Her bonnet is the "old style" her dress is outlandish, her shoes No. 10," and many other similar comments were made in regard to this old mother's apparel, but within those garments was a soul purified by the refiner's fire, hence the scorner's contempt touched it not, but through a mother's love and a Savior's redemption, it breathed out the saintly prayer, "Father forgive them, they know not what they do," and then put her hand into her basket.

"See, says one, she is getting her dinner."

"No, no, she intends to get to work—see, there it comes."

But when it came out it proved to be a well worn Bible, her well of salvation, and when they saw how eagerly she drank from the living water, it went home to them and their sport lost interest, so they gave her up for a new subject which was soon presented in the person of a brother who got aboard at the last station. All the seats were full except one in front of these moral sharks, which was left vacant from choice as none of the passengers wished to be the subject of their comment.

The brother was one of those who are not ashamed to honor the "old landmarks" not only in the principles of the doctrine of Christ, but also by observing that "order" in outward appearance that is a characteristic of the Brethren, hence his peculiarities were made the subject of many comments, and so loudly too, that they could be distinctly heard by the one whom they thought they were persecuting, "but he minded none of those things."

"Now, John, do look, how do you like that style of coat?"

"O, I suppose if we were living in the revolutionary times we would think it nice enough, he has been sleeping since 1775 and has just lately been awakened, but what do you think of the hat?",

"The hat, why that is an emblem of peace, he is an advocate of the peace principles and believes if a man would strike him on one cheek, it would be his duty to turn the other for another slap."

"Would it not be good fun to give him a little dab just to try his faith?"

"Oh, do, do."

"But what would I do if he would turn the other?"

The train stops and the brother gets off. It is now 4 o'clock P. M., and they wish to go to the village of D——yet that night, which is some 4 miles distant, and the road that leads there passes right by this brother's house. They start on the way, but soon, soon the black clouds commence heaping up in the West, then comes the wind thundering along, followed by showers of snow so terrible that they were compelled to seek shelter. Just before them, by the road side, stands a beautiful farm house."

"See yonder John, there is a house that looks like living, let us call and see if we cannot get lodging."

"I am agreed because I am nearly frozen and cannot stand this storm much longer."

(They go and knock at the door and the brother comes to welcome them in, but they do not recognize him.

"Good evening friend,—we started for the town of D——but were overtaken by this storm and are nearly frozen, will you be so kind as to take us in for the night?"

"Oh, yes, come in, come in gentlemen."

He takes them in his house, gives them a supper, the best he has, a good bed, and does all in his power to make them comfortable.

In the morning they feel very grateful and think that they were very fortunate in doing so good a man at a time in which they so much needed a friendly shelter, but the brother recognized them as the same men that had so disrespectfully treated him in the cars, and as he had now turned for them the other cheek, he wished to impart unto them a lesson which might be for their future benefit. Just before they left he says: "I believe I met you gentlemen before."

"You must be mistaken as we are entire strangers in these parts and only arrived on the yesterday evening's train."

"That may be so, but do you not remember the man that sat in front of you, about whose appearance you had so much sport?"

"You do not mean to say that you are the man?"

"I am the man. In the cars you smote me on the one cheek, I have now turned, for you, the other, what do you think of it?"

"O, my dear sir, we humbly beg your pardon, we now see that we done very foolishly and hope you will be so kind as to forgive us?"

"You were forgiven by me at the time, but remember there is another whom you have offended. May He forgive you as freely as I have done, and after this make it a rule to treat all with respect, as we know not how soon we may be in want of a friend, and a friend in need is a friend indeed."

That brother lived in "the light" and there was no need of "my lantern" in his house as there was no darkness there.

TELL IT NOT IN GATH.

Tell it not in Gath, publish it not in the streets of Askelon; lest the daughters of the Philistines rejoice, lest the daughters of the uncircumcised triumph. 2 Sam. 1:20.

David the servant of God, is the author of this text. Gath and Askelon were both cities of the Philistines. At Gath, Goliath the great giant had his home, Sam. 17:4, and here the uncircumcised idolatrous Philistines dwelled. Askelon, also, was inhabited by the idolatrous Philistines, and is described by Dr. Richardson as "one of the proudest Sects of the Philistines." It was with this people, that Saul, the first king of Israel, fought, when he and his three sons were killed, and all his house died, 1 Chron. 10:6. And although Saul died for sinning against the Lord, in not keeping his word, and also for asking counsel of one that had a familiar spirit, yet David, the man after God's own heart, after his lamentation over Saul and Jonathan, and saying, "The beauty of Israel is slain upon thy high places;" how are the mighty fallen!" in the anguish of his soul, says, "Tell it not in Gath, publish it not in the streets of Askelon; lest the daughters of the Philistines rejoice, lest the daughters of the uncircumcised triumph.

Now dear brethren and sisters, was the above written for the generations that have long since passed away, or is it left for our own instruction? I answer, "That word is unto us which are alive this day," Tell it not in Gath, &c. We, my brethren and sisters are not engaged in warfare with Philistines, or Amalekites, but our warfare is against satan and sin, our own carnal nature and at times "against spiritual wickedness dwelling in high places," and "to bring every thought unto the obedience of Christ. In this warfare it frequently happens that some one or another in the camp, like Saul, transgresseth against the Lord, and keepeth not his word. It may be the least assuming member or it may be an officer in the camp, so it may also be said, "The beauty of Israel is slain," or "how are the mighty fallen." Now if this is the case my dear brother and sister, how do you do? Do you "tell it in Gath, and publish it in the streets of Askelon?" If so, the daughters of the uncircumcised will rejoice as much as they did in David's day, and is it not helping them to triumph over us? What a pity it is, that whenever something occurs in the Church, when even of a minor character, that the world must know it. When this is the case, it is generally a violation of law; "If thy brother trespass against thee tell him his fault between thee and him alone, "Tell it not in Gath." Could we not bring about a reformation in this matter, at least to such an extent, that those ugly things would not be spread so much through the length and breadth of the land? How can this be stopped? Simply by not telling it in Gath, nor anywhere else. I must here say that I with others have felt sorry to see some articles in our papers, which, in my humble opinion, did very little good but considerable harm, our papers are not only read by members and their children, but by people of other denominations, and also non-professors, and amongst the two latter we have enemies, who bring up all the evils and wrongs they can find in the Church, and thereby, not only oppose the truth, but hinder the cause of Christ.

The first I notice is Brother J. Crosswhite's article where he sets forth his own case and standing and also Bro. D. B. Klepper's. This I think should not have been told in Gath, as it makes neither of them any better, and thousands of dear brethren knew nothing of their mishap. Again a brother or sister, (I think a brother), wrote under the heading Order and Signs, "A Lover of Order." In all that the brother has said concerning order, I agree with him that it is one of Heaven's first laws, but must we not feel sorry that there shall be a church in our Brotherhood, that has such disorder in her counsels, and that such must be published in Gath, &c.? Our order loving brother had better labored in love with the officers of his Church to get order established and should he have failed, there is a way for such things. Paul instructed Timothy "to set in order the things that are wanting, and if the Elders or officers at home do not attend to the wants of the church, we, as others, and they must set in order what is wanting, and if it should be, order. Still later a brother wrote under the heading "My Lantern," I hope the brother means it well, but he has first published in Gath, or through the brotherhood and also some amongst the world. First, his brethren's sins going with them to the house of God, and secondly, the weakness of his ministering brethren. There is a saying which is middling old and good. "Our best friends are those, who tell us of our faults and show us how to correct them." This would be the better way. To write such articles has a tendency to destroy love and confidence, but when in love, we tell one another's faults or sins, it looks as if we sought each other's salvation, and especially to make use of such measures with those who are to preach the gospel, it has a tendency to discourage and weaken the weak. Much better if you have a light in your lantern to let it shine, and tell the brethren where they are wrong, and get them right. They will love you more than if you tell it in Gath, or in the streets of Askelon, for these uncircumcised may rejoice, and perhaps say, when they read such things, what ignorant people these are, we have heard much about them, now see how they hold their counsels, and how their meetings are held. Thus they may rejoice, think of this dear brethren.

In conclusion, I will say in love to you dear PILGRIM, you have made your weekly visits, to our family now nearly three years (first not so often). Oft was I glad to meet and have intercourse with you, still wish you to come. You have a good motto, "Remove not the ancient landmarks which our father's have set." Try your best to carry this out faithfully, and you will not tell in Gath, or publish in the streets of Askelon, anything that will injure the blessed cause of Christ. May God bless all with wisdom, to understand his will, and give us grace to do the same. Amen. MOSES MILLER.

Mechanicsburg, Pa.

Evil communications corrupt good manners.

SHALL I COME WITH A ROD?

We have the spirit exercised in two different forms in the Church, and they are both positively good. The one is the embodiment of love, as manifested in the life and character of the beloved disciple John, while the other strongly characterized the great apostle Paul. The one always comes in the spirit of meekness and says: "Tell it not in Gath," while the other firmly plants his foot on the line of judgment, and virtually says: "toe the mark or I will come with the rod."

Our esteemed (we say esteemed, because he always tells us when he thinks we are in fault), Bro. Miller thinks we have published things that should not have been told in Gath nor published in the streets of Askelon, and he probably is right, but it should be remembered that the PILGRIM principally circulates in Jesusalem, the Holy City, and that our labors must be directed to where we can accomplish the greater amount of good. Paul saw that the Corinthian Church was becoming polluted and heard it reported that there was fornication among them, and the strong inference is that he meant to inform them that if they repented of this, their shame, he would come to them in the spirit of meekness, if not, he would come with a rod.

It was not the disposition of the apostles to cover up the sins of the Church, but lay its corruptions bare so that Gath and Askelon might learn that if they ever wished to live in Jerusalem they would be to put away their sins.

Bro. Miller is right, there are many things that should not be published, especially all personalities, but we do not think that the authors of "Order" and "My Lantern" intended to be personal or that either cases were exactly real. This is a mode of reaching general cases and in order to reach the bottom the worst points in all are taken so that when together, it makes a pretty bad case. We know that the authors meant it for good and if they were mistaken, we hope those who think so will bear with them and us, especially when we inform them that we reject many, and to others we have written personally to have them modify their contributions. We sometimes submit our judgment in publishing and at times use it in rejecting that we should not, but in these things, both our readers and contributors should exercise forbearance, and we ask all, when writing, to think how their productions would sound in Gath, or how it would do to have them published in Askelon.

Pride and vanity are the purveyors of trouble and danger; proud persons are neither safe nor happy.

PREPARE TO MEET THY GOD.

When we take into consideration what gave rise to these solemn and emphatic words of the Lord, we think it unquestionably should cause every sinner to tremble, and every unconverted heart to be pierced through as with an arrow.

Reflect seriously, my dear friends, you, especially, who from time to time slight the kind invitations of the Lord, reject the offer of His mercy and fight against your God in the rebellious course you pursued. Yes, my dear brethren and sisters, also let it be a warning and a watchword to us, that we may strive to meet our God reconciled.

If we take these words into consideration with the subject with which they are connected, they appear as a challenge of the Lord God Almighty to reprobate sinners. After executing this divine wrath in vain against idolitrous and rebellious Israel from time to time, he appeals to the remnant in plaintive language and says, "And ye were as a firebrand plucked out of the burning." So barely had they escaped His divine judgments. O, how many are in this condition! Dangers beset you on every side, you are on the threshold of eternity, and if a stranger to God, you stand upon a slippery rock where fiery billows roll below, any moment liable to slide down, down to the regions of eternal misery, pain and woe. Yet for all this, saith the Lord, you have not returned to me, therefore you must now prepare to meet or confront me in judgment. Awful declaration! Make ready, muster your courage, prepare and arm your allies to stand in the battle in the day of the Lord.

I appeal to you my dear friends who delight in sin and folly, and in consequence, delight in opposing God whom you soon must meet, you certainly occupy dangerous ground, your condition is an awful one if you die in it. What will be the consequence? Are you prepared to meet Him in anger? Is your prince, the devil, whom you serve, able to stand in the battle in the day of the Lord when He Himself shall be thrust into the bottomless pit? Can you think for a moment to make your escape from an Omnipotent hand in order to avoid being consumed with the fire of wrath? Do you think that the Lord will make void his word, "The wicked shall be turned into hell with all the nations that forget God?" Therefore my dear friends make that preparation now lest tomorrow should be too late. Meet Him you must, but you may meet him in peace by making the necessary preparation in time. That time is to day. To-day the voice of love and mercy calls. To-day, to day sinner, the drawings of the Father and the woings of the Spirit say, "Come." Yes, come, and I will meet you in peace.

FAIENDLY MONITOR.

LOVEST THOU ME?

Dear Brethren.—I embrace the present to drop a few lines for the PILGRIM. In the issue of October the 1st page 318, I saw an article written on the above subject by J. M. W—as to what Christ meant when he said to Peter, "Lovest thou me more than these?" As he gave his views I also wish to give mine our views being somewhat different. I do not believe that Christ wished to know whether Peter loved him more than the fish, neither do I believe that He wished to know whether he loved him more than he loved his fellow-disciples, but I do believe that Christ wished to know whether Peter loved him more than the other disciples loved him. "Peter said yea, Lord, thou knowest that I love thee," and he said to him "Feed my lambs", and when he had asked him the third time, Peter was grieved and said unto him "Lord thou knowest all things, thou knowest that I love thee" he said, "Feed my sheep," thus giving him to understand that if he had a stronger regard for Christ than the others, he was to manifest that love by feeding the others the truth, and soon after this we see Peter standing up in the midst of the disciples and teaching them, or feeding them the scriptures. And again, on the day of Pentecost we find Peter standing up with the eleven and speaking to the people, feeding them with the bread of life, until about three thousand souls were filled. Thus we see that as Peter loved more than the others, he was also foremost in the good work of distributing the words of life. These are my views on this subject, and I think if we would all read the 21st chapter of John's Gospel carefully we might all come to the same conclusion. Those that can read German translation will be convinced at once, as it makes it very plain.

D. B. Wineman.

Upper Strasburg, Pa.

It is a terrible thing for one man to speak evil of another, and I think it is worse to think it. If you speak it, the man has time and opportunity to defend himself, but he cannot trace the thought. It is neither heroic nor manly to permit in yourselves judgments which nobody can reverse.

PROMISES OF SCRIPTURE PRAYER.

No. 1.

BY P. MOLEY.

The promises of scripture are given not only for our encouragement and consolation, but are the most powerful motives of prayer and exertion, and as the scriptures are a great storehouse filled with the most precious promises, which are made our own by application through prayer, &c. I will try in my weakness to illustrate somewhat, to bring to my own mind, as well as others, the great importance of the subject under consideration. To the Patriarch Jacob, God made through the vision the precious promise, "behold I am with thee, and will keep thee in all places whither thou goest, and will bring thee again into this land." When the time arrived for the fulfillment of the promise, Jacob finding himself in a great strait, "was greatly afraid and distressed." He now makes application by prayer to God, entreating him and pleading for the fulfillment of his promise to him, and his "wrestling until the breaking of day" was not in vain, for he came off "more than conqueror through him that loved him," Gen. 28th and 32nd chaps., "faithful is he that promised." God's promise of assistance to Joshua, teaches us the use we should make of his promises as encouragements to exert ourselves, making his word our constant study and only rule of action. Joshua was a man in whom was "the spirit," he had the promise of success, Josh. 1 : 5-&c., yet availed himself of every advantage which the use of means could give. He sent spies, disciplined his forces, but, though using means, he did not depend upon them. Before attacking the enemies of God and his church, he solemnly renewed the dedication of himself and his people to God, by the observance of circumcision and the passover, chap. 5; his courage was supported by prayer, and God signally blessed it, by the "standing still of the sun and moon, until the people had avenged themselves upon their enemies," chap. 10 : 12-14 The great subject of the book of Joshua, is God's fulfillment of his promise to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, that their posterity should possess the land of Canaan, their difficulties and sinfulness were great, yet, to the praise of God's grace. Joshua again says, "not one thing hath failed of all the good things which the Lord your God promised you," chap. 21 : 45, and 23 : 14. In a time of great drought, God had said, "I will send rain upon the earth,' yet Elijah must pray, and with great earnestness and perseverance too, for what God had promised, 1 Kings 18 : 1-42-44. David makes God's promise to establish his house a motive to plead with God to do as he had said, 2 Sam. 16-25; When Daniel knew the seventy years captivity was expiring, then he set his face to seek by prayer its promised accomplishment. Dan. 9 : 2-3, &c. When our Lord had promised the gift of the holy spirit, the disciples continued in prayer and supplication till the fulfillment of the great promise. Acts 1 : 4-14, and 2 : 1-2., &c.

Promises made to individuals may often be applied generally, thus the application to the Hebrew christians which St. Paul has made of God's promises to Joshua, "I will not fail thee, nor forsake thee." Heb. 13 : 5; Josh. 1 : 5; is very important, as showing that God's promises to particular persons are recorded in scripture for the encouragement of God's people in every age, to prevent, however, the misapplication of any promises of scripture to ourselves, St. Paul, says, "Examine yourselves, whether ye be in the faith, &c., whether you bear the character to which the particular promise is made, do we wish to be remembered with the favor which God bears to his people, "Seek that poor, humble and contrite spirit with which the high and lofty one that inhabiteth eternity hath promised to dwell. Isa 57 : 15. The scriptures represent God as delighting in mercy, not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance, Micah 7 : 18-20; 2 Pet. 3, 9; 1 Tim. 2 : 4. They speak of God's promises as exceeding great and precious; and the grandeur of the hopes which they set before us should fill our hearts with gratitude, and inspire the greatest earnestness after the attainment of that degree of holiness of which it is their special object to make us partakers. Psa. 84; Math. 11 : 28-30; 1 Cor. 7 : 1; 2 Pet. 1 : 4; Heb. 1 : 14-16; Rev. 3 : 20-21.

Welsh Run, Pa.

LONGEVITY OF MINISTERS AMONG THE BRETHREN.

[This was intended for the Pilgrim Almanac, but came too late, hence we insert it in the PILGRIM as an item of information too valuable to be lost. Eds.]

I have before me the names of 62 deceased ministers, whose deaths have been reported through the Visitor, PILGRIM and Companion One died before the age of 30; 6 between 30 and 40; 9 between 40 and 50; 10 between 50 and 60; 16 between 60 and 70: 16 between 70 and 80, and 6 between 80 and 90; one half died between 60 and 80; only three lived past the age of 85, while 7 died before the age of 40, and one at the age of 28, while the oldest died in his 89th year.

The average age of the 62 ministers was 61 years, 2 months and 16 days.

19 died in Pa., 13 in Ohio, 8 in Ind., 6 in Va., 8 in Ill., 5 in Md., 3 in Iowa, 2 in Mo., and 1 in Tenn. The oldest minister died in Va., and the youngest died in Pa.

16 died in 1871, 11 in 1872; 1 in 1866, 11 in 1865, 1 in 1864, 8 in 1867, 6 in 1868, 6 in 1869 and 2 in 1870. J. H. MOORE.

DISPLAY AT CHURCH.

The best bred people of every Christian country but our own avoid all personal display when engaged in worship and prayer. Our churches on the contrary are made a place for exhibition of fine apparel and other costly and flaunting compliances with fashion, by those who boast of superior wealth and manners.

We shall leave our gewgawed devotees to reconcile humiliation in worship with vanity of dress. That is a problem which we confess we have neither the right nor the capacity to solve. How far fine clothes may affect the personal piety of the devotee we do not pretend even to conjecture; but we have a decided opinion in regard to their influence upon the religion of others. The fact is, that our churches are so flattering with birds of fine feathers that no sorry fowl will venture in. It is impossible for poverty in rags and patches, or even in decent but humble costume, to take its seat, if it should be so fortunate as to find a place, by the side of wealth in brocade and broad cloth. The poor are so awed by the pretension of superior dress and "the proud man's costume," that they naturally avoid too close a proximity to them.

The church being the only place on this side of the grave destined for the rich and the poor to meet together in equal prostration before God, it certainly should always be kept free for this common humiliation and brotherhood. It is so in the most of the churches of Europe, where, the beggar in rags and wretchedness and the wealthiest and most eminent, whose appropriate sobriety of dress leaves them without mark of external distinction, kneel down together, equalized by a common humiliation before the only Superior Being. The adaption of a more simple attire for churches on the part of the rich in this country would have the effect, certainly not of diminishing their own personal piety, but probably of increasing the disposition for religious observance on the part of the poor.—Harpers' Bazar.

AN ADDRESS

BY THE

United States Centennial Commission.

To the People of the United States:

The Congress of the United States has enacted that the completion of the One Hundredth Year of American Independence shall be celebrated by an International Exhibition of the Arts, Manufactures and Products of the soil and mine, to be held at Philadelphia, in 1876, and has appointed a Commission, consisting of representatives from each State and Territory, to conduct the celebration.

Originating under the auspices of the National Legislature, controlled by a National Commission, and designed as it is to "commemorate the first Century of our existence, by an Exhibition of the Natural resources of the Country and their development, and of our progress in those Arts which benefit mankind, in comparison with those of older Nations," it is to the people at large that the Commission look for the aid which is necessary to make the Centennial Celebration the grandest anniversary the world has ever seen.

That the completion of the first century of our existence should be marked by some imposing demonstration is, we believe, the patriotic wish of the people of the whole country. The Congress of the United States has wisely decided that the Birthday of the Great Republic can be most fittingly celebrated by the universal collection and display of all the trophies of its progress. It is designed to bring together, within a building covering fifty acres, not only the varied productions of our mines and of the soil, but types of all the intellectual triumphs of our citizens, specimens of everything that America can furnish, whether from the brains or the hands of her children, and thus make evident to the world the advancement of which a self governed people is capable.

In this "Celebration" all nations will be invited to participate, its character being International. Europe will display her arts and manufactures, India her curious fabrics, while newly opened China and Japan will lay bare the treasures which for centuries their ingenious people have been perfecting. Each land will compete in generous rivalry for the palm of superior excellence.

To this grand gathering every zone will contribute its fruits and cereals. No mineral shall be wanting; for what the East lacks the West will supply. Under one roof will the South display in rich luxuriance her growing cotton, and the North in miniature, the ceaseless machinery of her mills converting that cotton into cloth. Each section of the globe will send its best offerings to this exhibition, and each State of the Union, as a member of one United body politic, will show to her sister States and to the world, how much she can add to the greatness of the nation of which she is a harmonious part.

To make the Centennial Celebration such a success as the patriotism and the pride of every American demands will require the co-operation of the people of the whole country. The United States Centennial Commission has received no Government aid, such as England extended to her World's Fair, and France to her Universal Exposition, but the labor and responsibility imposed upon the Commission is as great as in either of those undertakings. It is estimated that ten millions of dollars will be required, and this sum Congress has provided shall be raised by stock subscription and that the people shall have the opportunity of subscribing in proportion to the population of their respective States and Territories.

The Commission looks to the unfailing patriotism of the people of every section, to see that each contributes its share to the expenses, and receives its share of the benefits of an enterprise in which all are so deeply interested. It would further earnestly urge the formation in each State and Territory of a centennial organization, which shall in time see that county associations are formed, so that when the nations are gathered together in 1876 each Commonwealth can view with pride the contributions she has made to the national glory.

Confidently relying on the zeal and patriotism ever displayed by our people in every national undertaking, we pledge and prophecy, that the Centennial Celebration will worthily show how greatness, wealth and intelligence, can be fostered by such institutions as those which have for one hundred years blessed the people of the United States.

JOSEPH R. HAWLEY, President.
LEWIS WAIN SMITH, Temporary Secretary.

Youth's Department.

THE COUNSEL OF A FRIEND.

SELECTED BY KATE BRENIZER.

Young people all, attention give,
While I address you in God's name;
You who in sin and folly live
Come hear the counsel of of a friend.

Youth like the Spring, will soon be gone,
By fleeting time or conquering death;
Your morning sun may set at noon,
And leave you ever in the dark.

Your sparkling eyes and blooming cheeks
Must wither like the blasted rose;
The coffin, earth, and winding sheet,
Will soon your active limbs enclose.

Ye heedless ones that wildly stroll,
The grave will soon become your bed;
Where silence reigns and vapors roll
In solemn darkness round your head.

Your soul will land in darker realms,
Where vengeance reigns and billows roar
There damned you'll be in burning flames
When thousand, thousand years are o'er.

Sunk in the shades of endless night,
To groan and howl in ceaseless pain;
And never more behold the light,
And never, never rise again.

Ye blooming youth, this is the state
Of all who do free grace refuse;
And soon with you 'twill be too late,
The way of life in Christ to choose.

"THIS, THAT AND THE OTHER."

Dear little readers of the PILGRIM:—It has been a long time since I had a friendly chat with you, but I have not forgotten you. I will now tell you of a few incidents I met with lately concerning children.

I have lately been traveling some and have seen and talked with some of you face to face, I always take notice of the little ones. I one day strolled along through the streets of the city of Cincinati, Ohio. It is a very large city. I noticed a great many children in the streets, some were ragged and dirty, some little boys would swear, and I seen two little fellows walking along acting like some "men boys" with a piece of dirty looking cigar in the mouth. Their appearance seemed to whisper to me "getting ready for the penitentiary." I met a good many "bnot-black" boys lounging around about the public corners and public houses. They carry a little box strapped on by a strap across the shoulder in which they carry blacking-brushes and blacking, and when they see a person coming along whose boots they think need blacking, they cry out "Want me to shine your boots? will make a good shine for a dime," and such like entreaties. If they get a customer, which they often do, down goes the box on the stone pavement and the man sets his foot on top and they soon make it shine, then the other, then he gives a dime and goes on. Then I seen the neatly dressed servant boys carrying bundles for ladies from stores to their homes, and a great many boys and girls going to and from school, and I went by the "Home for the Homeless," there I seen hundreds of children, the boys in one yard and the girls in another, and a very fine large house for them to live in. I had to think how thankful those children who have fathers and mothers should be, when we see here so many that have no father or mother or home, only that in that great city. I also seen little boys on the corners or wherever there were fruit stands, turning a sheet iron drum over a fire roasting chestnuts that were in the drum, and the women that stood near by was selling chestnuts, grapes, apples, peaches, pears candies and such like to all that chose to buy. And I seen many little boys selling newspapers on the streets and many others engaged in different ways. I think little boys and girls that live in the country should never want to live in a crowded city where free birds are not heard, where flowers do not bloom so beautiful as in the country, and where the air is not so pure. The country, yes, in the beautiful country is the place to play, to work, to grow up and be happy and praise God.

In traveling one evening through Missouri in the cars, we stopped at a station a few minutes and there was a boy came in the car where I was and hid himself. After the cars started the conductor came along, he soon discovered this boy and rather roughly jerked him out into the floor and asked for his ticket, said he had none, told him to pay his fare, he said he had no money, and made some excuses, but the conductor would hear none of them, so he put him out the door into the next car and on through to the baggage car where he left him until the next station when he hustled him out and the last I seen of him he was standing leaning against the depot with a little bundle under his arm. Now this boy was no doubt a bad boy, his trying to ride by hiding was about as bad as stealing, and I had to think I fear so it will be with many that try to get along through this world by hiding their sins and deceiving men and not rendering to God the service due Him. The time will come when the searching eye of God will see us, and He who is the great "Conductor" will bring us all forth and then if we have no "ticket" no "title to mansions in the skies" He will not let us ride on the heavenly car to Heaven, but we will be put out into "outer darkness.

But I hope my dear young readers what you do you will do honestly, not like that boy, try to deceive. Remember Jesus is ever ready to give you a free pass, but you must get it in a legal way, and as time wafts you on you will sooner or later, take the last train for eternity, and we hope, have a passport signed and sealed in the blood of Jesus so that you may go on joyfully to the glorious city of the New Jerusalem, and there meet with fathers, mothers, brothers and sisters that have reached their heavenly home. J. S. FLORY.

Orchard View, W. Va.

BONNIE CHRISTIE.

Two boys were in a school-room alone together, when some fire-works, contrary to the teacher's express prohibition, exploded. The one boy denied it. The other, Bonnie Christie, would neither admit nor deny it, and was severely flogged for his obstinacy.

When the boys got alone again,—"Why didn't you deny it?" said the real delinquent.

"Because there were only we two, and one of us must then have lied," said Bonnie.

"Then why not say I did it?'

"Because you said you didn't and I would spare the liar."

The boys heart melted. Bonnie's moral gallantry subdued him.

When school resumed, the young rogue marched up to the teacher's desk, and said, "I can't bear to be a liar, sir; I let off the squibbs," and burst into tears. The teacher's eye glistened on the self accuser, and the unmerited punishment he had inflicted on his schoolmate smote upon his conscience. Before the whole school, hand in hand with the culprit, he walked to where Christie sat, and said aloud, with some emotion, "Bonnie, Bonnie, lad, he and I beg your pardon; we are both to blame!"

The school was hushed, as schools are apt to be when anything noble is being done; so still, they might almost have heard Bonnie's big-boy tear drop on his book; and when, for want of something else to say, he gently cried, "Master, forever!" the glorious shout of the scholars filled the old man's eyes with something behind his spectacles, which made him wipe them before he resumed his chair.—The Dayspring.

CHEERFUL PEOPLE.—God bless the cheerful people—man, woman or child, old or young, illiterate or educated, handsome or homely. Over and above every other social train stands cheerfulness. What the sun is to nature—what God is to the stricken heart which knows how to lean upon him—are cheerful persons in the house and by the wayside. They go unobtrusively, unconsciously about their silent mission, brightening up society around them, with the happiness beaming from their faces. We love to sit near them; we love the nature of their eye, the tone of their voice. Little children find them out, oh! so quickly, amid the densest crowd, and passing by the knitted brow and compressed lip, glide near, and lay a confiding little hand on their knee, lift their clear young eyes to those loving faces.

CORRESPONDENCE

A Reporter is wanted from every Church in the brotherhood to send us Church news, Obituaries, Announcements or anything that will be of general interest. To insure insertion, the writers name must accompany each communication. Our invitation is not personal but general—please respond to our call.

ANSWER TO QUERY IN PILGRIM NO. 44.

"Did Adam die a temporal death when he partook of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil? If not, was temporal death pronounced against him after his transgression? Such is the query of Bro. Zeigler.

We remark, by way of presenting a few ideas upon the subject, that Adam did not certainly die a temporal or natural death at the time he partook of the forbidden fruit, for he lived many years after that and then did die because that that would have had a tendency to give him immortality was denied him, namely the virtues of the the "tree of life." Adam's body was made of the "dust" of the earth, and we do not learn that that body or tenement of clay had yet received the stamp of immortality but there in the midst of the garden stood "tree of life" that he had the privilege to eat of, and in it were the virtues of everlasting life as we learn by what the Lord said as a reason why he turned him out of the garden and placed a barrier around the tree of life. The Lord did not, in a special manner, promise temporal death against him but that followed as a consequence, because mortal must tend to mortality and corruption is the end of the tenement of clay unless by the power of God it be changed to an incorruptable body. Had Adam remained obedient, he might have received and eat of the tree of life, and by the good pleasure of God lived forever both spiritually and temporally, but when he was denied the very thing that giveth life and immortality he must "surely die" just as the body must die now when air is denied it. Dust he was, and to be denied the fruits of the tree of life, to dust he must surely return. Now it is appointed unto man "once to die," but Christ who is "the life" has bro't immortality to light through the Gospel, and what was lost in Adam is regained in Christ, either really, prospectively or in promise. The critic may ask how did Adam die the same "day" in which he transgressed. Day means a period of time, and how long a period of time was meant by God when He said "in the day," we don't pretend to say. Whether two hours, or a longer time was meant is of no material difference when we remember that when they had eaten of that tree they did die in a very important sense, for by the transgression they sinned, and by sin, that close relation that existed between God and man was severed, that chord of love that united man so intimately to his Creator, that he could walk with God, talk face to face with Him and have a glorious existence in the image and likeness of God so that he had no fear, that chord, we say, was broken just as soon as he transgressed, and fear, shame and disgrace followed. As the branch cut from the parent stock and cast out of the vineyard must wither and die, so death must follow in the wake of Adam's life when he was separated in consequence of sin from his Creator and cast forth from the "Garden." But through the love and mercy of God in sending His Son into the world, that broken link has been cemented by the blood of Christ, and the world is brought "back to God," and it availeth for every one that sinneth provided they seek "life and immortality."

I do not know if I have thrown any light on the subject, but one thing I do know "what I have written I have written" in love with a hope for a blessed immortality with my brother who propounded the query.

J. S. FLORY.

Orchard View, W. Va.

PHILADELPHIA, PA., Nov. 18, 1872.

To my Dear Children, and members of Union District, Ind., and all others that would wish to hear from me. I will inform you that I am well at this time and have been, and I hope this may find you all enjoying the same blessing of God.

I am at present with our beloved brother Jacob Spanogle, and kind family. My friend J. P. Brumbaugh, of Coffee Run, Huntingdon Co., Pa., is also with me. I arrived in Philadelphia on the morning of the 13th inst., called with our much beloved brother Christian Custer and kind family, and on the same day at two o'clock, p. m., we left for Germantown, where we found our much esteemed brother Davis Younce and kind sister and two children, one a little daughter only eight years of age, who, when she saw me coming, came running to meet me on the street. It vividly caused my mind to run back to Plymouth, my native home, to my dear children and grand children there, that will be so happy to meet me when I arrive home. On the 14th, we went to see the old stone church in Germantown, it being one of the first churches built by the Brethren in the United States. It is about one hundred years old, close by lies some of our old church fathers that first formed the Church organization in America. Here lies our old and well known brother Alexander Mack born 1712, died 1803. O, how solemn did I feel. I felt like kneeling by the side of the grave and praying that I might hold out with united fidelity as did our old brother till I die.

On the evening of the 14th, after visiting the members, we held a meeting in the old meetinghouse in Germantown. On the morning of the 15th, friend Brumbaugh returned to Philadelphia, I remained in Germantown, until the morning of the 16th, when I too, took leave for Philadelphia, had meeting there on the 17th at half past 10 o'clock, also in the evening had good meetings and very good attention, finding all the members very kind and hospitable. Amongst those we found our old Brother, John Fox, who opened the meeting by reading the 56th Psalm, and saying that he expected that would be his last time that he would meet them there, that his race was about run, he being 87 years of age. From the evening meeting, we went home with Bro. Isaiah Harley, deacon in the church, and found a very kind and hospitable family, and on the 18th we visited bro. Silas Thomas and his son John. We were so kindly received and well cared for by all the brothers and sisters in the City that we were loath to leave them. We shall not soon forget them. This evening we will stay with Bro. Jacob Spanogle, and on the morning of the 19th, we expect to leave for the Lower Cumberland Church, thence to McVeytown, Mifflin Co., Pa., and remain from the 23d until the 29th, thence to James Creek, Huntingdon county, Pa., for the 30th, thence to Coffee Run, same county.

My best love and respects to all the Brethren and sisters.

JOHN KNISLEY.

Per J. P. Brumbaugh.

Editor Pilgrim:—As you solicit correspondence and some of my friends wish to hear from me through the medium of your columns I drop you the following; On the morning of the 24th of Oct., in company with Bro J. G. Sonberger I started en route for the Perry Congregation, Juniata Co. Pa. In Altoona we parted, he went to his old home and I went on my mission. Arrived at Perryville at 11: A. M. and met friend Abram Rohrer and set out for his home in a buggy, and though it was raining all the time I enjoyed the trip as it was rendered pleasant by conversation on various topics Arrived at my destination and met kind friends and was cared for kindly This was the eve of the first appointment, but because of rain there was no meeting but on Saturday at 10 A. M. we began meeting at the Bealtown S. H. and continued there with one exception until Thursday evening the 31st. Began at East Waterford on the evening of the 1st Nov. and continued there till Sunday night and closed the meeting here. Was conveyed by kind friends to Johnstown (Walnut P. O.) where we began meeting on Monday evening, and continued there and at Pine Grove S.H. till Sunday evening the 10th during which time I tried to preach 26 times, married one couple, and visited a few sick folks. I may say I met many kind friends whom I hope I may not soon forget for their great love and kindness toward me during my stay among them. I only had to regret one thing, and that was I could not take them by the hand and call them brethren. Yet I pray God to nourish the figtree once more so it bears fruit to the glory of His great name. I left for home on the 14th at 3:30 A. M. and arrived at Father's at 4:30 A. M., on the 12th, well, for which I thank our God. Found all well save mother and our esteemed sister Sarah Fargason who is suffering from dropsy, and has been for sometime. She still does not seem to be any better, but rather worse. If this is worthy, insert over the signature of your Bro. in love.

Oakland, Pa, J. P. HERRIC.

PYRMONT, IND. November 12th 1872.

Bros. Brumbaugh.—By your permission I will give you a little church news We had a Lovefeast on the 23d of October. The congregation was quite large and good order prevailed during the meeting, at least it was so in the house. Two were received into the church by baptism. On the 6th of Nov. we held an election for two speakers, when the lot fell upon the following brethren: John Ulery and Joseph Wagoner. There was also a choice for a deacon which resulted in the choice of David Wagoner.

ISAAC CRIPE.

Dear Brethren of the Pilgrim.—As I am a reader of your paper and read news from most all parts, but ours, I will also give a little from here. Our Communion in Elkhart Valley District about four miles South-east of Elkhart town Elkhart Co., is pleasant. It was on the evening of the 16th of Oct. We had a pleasant meeting although there were not as many members as there are at some other places. There was very good order in the house, but a little more confusion among the young men on the outside, than there should be at such places. The ministers present were Moses Hess, Daniel Shively, Samuel Lear, and John Metzger. Geo. Puterbaugh was our Elder but is now gone away and we have only one minister, Gabriel Frome. We would like very much if some minister would move in amongst us. P. H. Kurtz.

PLYMOUTH, IND., Nov. 18th, 1872.

Dear Father. We learn through the PILGRIM that you are in good health and enjoying yourself among the brethren, and hope you may continue to do so until you return. We are all well, also our brethren and neighbors with the exception of a few, but since you left us some have passed away and are now gone the way of all earth Among those are brethren Henry Livenhouse and our much beloved minister John Hoover, who was buried on yesterday. This was a sad and solemn stroke to us all (see obituaries). We would liked to have sent for you but not being certain where to find you, we concluded to let you enjoy your visit. We need your labors now but dear father rest assured that we will do all we can for the good cause, and hope you will also labor faithfully where ever you go, and return whenever it suits you. We will not have our meetings until you come home. We now close by sending our love to you and all who may read this. Pray for us. ADAM APPLEMAN.

FREEDOM, TENN., Nov. 9th 1672.

Dear Pilgrim.—I will again drop a few items for your columns. Our Communion at Limestone was held on Saturday before the fourth Sunday of September. We had a very good meeting, but not as large as usual on account of other meetings in the neighborhood, by other denominations.

The Communion at Pleasant Valley was held on the third Saturday and Sunday of September. I was not there on Saturday, as I attended the funeral of Peter Deihl (see obituary) but was informed that there was one received into the church on Saturday. The attendance was large on Saturday eve and on Sunday. The Brethren generally had interesting meeting and good order in this county this fall. I still love to read the PILGRIM and hope its welcome visits will be continued.

H. M. SHEFFY.

MARRIED.

METZGAR—HOOVER.—By the undersigned, at the residence of the bride's parents, November 14, 1872, David Metzgar to Miss Sarah Hoover, both of Blair co., Pa.

FURRY—SNOWBERGER.—On the same day, by the same, at the residence of the bride's parents, C. S. Furry to Catharine Snowberger, both of Bedford Co., Pa. S. A. MOORE.

DIED.

DEIHL.—In the Pleasant Valley Church Washington Co., Tenn., Oct. the 11th 1872, at his father's residence, Peter, son of Bro. David and sister Elizabeth Deihl, aged 27 years. Funeral services by Eld. F. W. Dove, from Heb. 9th chap. last verse.

The above died of consumption and was followed to his grave by a large concourse of people. When he was about 16 years of age he wished to become a member of the Church, but it was thought that he was too young and told to read the Bible more that he might become better informed in regard to the duties belonging to the christian life. He then commenced putting it off from time to time until sickness laid him low, and died short of being a member of the Church, though he left an evidence of the forgiveness of his sins. He leaves behind him a father and mother and six brothers and two sisters, all members of the Church except the two youngest brothers, hope they will take timely warning and cast their lot with the people of God, while it is yet called to-day.

Parents who read this will take instruction so that when their children wish to join the Church they will not keep them back but encourage them. If they are told that they are too young, it may be that before they want to come they will be too old or too late. HENRY M. SHEFFY.

LIVENHOUSE.—In the Union District, Marshall co., Ind., Nov. 15, 1872, Bro. Henry Livenhouse, aged 54 years, Occasion improved by the writer, from St. John 11: 25, 26. A. A.

HOOVER.—Fell asleep in the Lord in the Union District, Marshall co., Ind., Nov. 15, 1872, our much esteemed Bro. John Hoover, aged 50 years, 4 mo. and 1 day.

He leaves a loving wife and 3 children and one grandchild to mourn his loss, but they need not mourn as those who have no hope, for he expressed a willingness to go home. He was annointed in the name of the Lord. He was a faithful minister in the second degree for 16 years, and discharged his duty faithfully until death. The widow has lost a good husband, the children a kind father, the neighbors a good citizen and the church a worthy speaker. Funeral services from 1 Thess. 4: 13 verse to end of chap. by Elders David Rupel and John Barnhart to a large concourse of people. ADAM APPELMAN.

The Weekly Pilgrim.

JAMES CREEK, PA., Nov. 26th, 1872.

☞ How to send money.—All sums over $1.50, should be sent either in a check, draft or postal order. If neither of these can be obtained, have the letter registered.

☞ When Money is sent, always send with it the name and address of those who paid it. Write the names and post office as plainly as possible.

☞ Make all checks and and drafts payable to H. B. Brumbaugh, and the postal orders make payable at Huntingdon.

☞ If any of our agents have been overlooked in receiving no prospectus, or any wish to become agents, let us know and we will send one, also sample copy of the Pilgrim Almanac.

☞ Every subscriber for 1873, gets a Pilgrim Almanac Free.

QUERY AND ANSWER.

Brethren Editors:—Will you or some one else give an explanation on the following parable; "Again the kingdom is like unto a treasure hid in a field, the which when a man hath found, he hideth, and for joy thereof goeth and selleth all that he hath, and buyeth that field" Math., 13: 44th. What was the treasure? what the field? By whom was it found? Who bought it and what was given to purchase it? Please answer through the Pilgrim.

Isaac Cripe

As there is an answer desired, and the parable being short, yet large in importance, we will give our views and then if any have others to give or differ with us it will be open for consideration.

First. The field represents the true Church of Christ, the expression "a field." signifying that there are other fields which have no treasures in them, from which we draw the inference that there are churches in which this treasure cannot be found.

Second. The treasure signifies the grace of God or our redemption and salvation, purchased first by Jesus Christ at the cost of suffering the contradiction and abuse of sinners and finally the ignominious death of the Cross. Through that purchase the field (Church) has been established in the world and in it placed the great treasure (Salvation) and is now offered to us on the best of terms, "Without money and without price." By becoming obedient children to "Our Father" whose good pleasure it is to bestow to us all his goods.

Third. "A man," represents the sinner, who when he comes to himself, finds that he is poor, blind, naked and miserable. In this condition he seeks after wealth that he may become rich that he may be able to buy clothes to hide his nakedness and thus alleviate his misery. This wealth he finds alone in Jesus as the giver. But he died in the act of purchase, put it in the field (the Church) and willed it to us through chosen administers, the Apostles and their successors. When he finds that this great wealth is in the Church, he, for joy, hideth it, i. e. he does not blaze it abroad but "goeth and selleth all that he hath." renounceth his former possessions, because there is no "treasure" there, and goeth and buyeth the field, complies with the conditions as given by Jesus, laid down in his will. Thus he becomes a subject of the new Kingdom, Church or field and an heir to all its wealth which will be so abundantly great that our every capacity to receive and enjoy it will be filled, even to overflowing. May we all be so unspeakably happy as to become possessors of that field, for in it is the well of salvation.

To Agents.—Some of our agents ask, "Shall we take names without the money?" We answer yes; take all you can get that you know or think will pay as soon as they can. We wish our agents to make it a point to get the names as soon as possible and send them to us so that we can have them backed and ready for the New Year. The money can be gathered afterwards or when it suits the subscriber to pay. Please make an effort, brethren and sisters, and we feel assured that our list will be largely increased for 1873.

Who is to do the Dunning?—Several of our agents asks the above question and also wishes to know who is to lose that of those who will not pay? We think there should be no dunning needed especially among brethren, as none should be so unreasonable as to read a religious paper, or any other kind, a year and then refuse to pay for it. We would be ashamed to own such brethren, as no man can be honest and refuse to pay his honest debts. We would advise our agents not to trust such as are known to be doubtful, or such as you would not trust yourself, but as a rule you can take every poor brother or sister that promises to pay as they seldom fail. As to who is to sustain the loss of non paying subscribers, we will bear our good share of the loss, but will submit it to the agents. Do the best you can for us and we will be satisfied.

The Pilgrim Almanac is now published and a copy before us We think our readers will all be highly pleased with it as it is certainly the neatest Almanac ever put out by the brotherhood, at least, we think so. They will be ready for distribution in a short time when our agents will receive a copy as a sample. In soliciting subscribers, please take it along so that all may see it as we feel assured it will give satisfaction. Old subscribers will please remember that they will get no Almanac until their subscriptions are renewed for 1873. Please have your names sent in at once.

A veteran.—The New York Observer, having completed its fiftieth year as the leader of the Religious Newspaper Press, is now preparing for its thousands of subscribers a New Year's Gift in the shape of a Jubilee Year-Book, which will be embellished with several appropriate illustrations. The Observer was launched in 1823, and for fifty years has sailed in an undeviating course, without once changing its motto or striking its colors. Few papers can present such a successful history; and while there are plenty of good papers published, there are few that we can recommend as strongly as the Observer for all the purposes of a Family Newspaper. Large, comprehensive and well-defined, it can not fail to pay those who take it four-fold for their outlay. All subscribers get the Jubilee Year-Book, gratis. $3 a year. Sidney E. Morse & Co, 37 Park Row, New York.

CONTENTS OF PILGRIM No. 48.

Poetry, The "Omnipresence of God"; "A word of kindness"; "A good Rule".

Essays; "Rainbows", by D. B. Mentzer; "The beauties of Heaven", Selected by Maggie Miller; "My Lantern", by A lover of the cause; Tell it not in Gath", by Eld. Moses Miller; "Prepare to meet thy God," by Friendly Monitor; „Lovest thou me"? by D. B. Wineman, "Promises of Scripture Prayer," by D. Negly; Longevity of Ministers among the Brethren", by J. H. Moore; and Display at Church", and "An Address," Selected.

Youth's Department; "This, That and the Other", by Eld. J. S Flory; "The Counsel of a Friend." "Bonnie Christie" and "Cheerful People", Selected. In addition to all this, we give a full page of correspondence from the different parts of the brotherhood, which is always interesting, and our own productions which we shall not praise. Think of it brethren and sisters, this much in one number and during the year, fifty times as much, all for the small sum of $1.50. Who will be willing to do without this immense amount of religious information for the sake of $1.50?

Brethren and sisters, you cannot spend that amount of money to a better purpose, especially when you get a Pilgrim Almanac Free. Send in your names at once and have yourselves and family supplied with good reading for 1873.

The Impenitent Dead.—Through the thoughtfulness of some unknown friend we have had sent us a copy of "The State of the Impenitent Dead." We have, as yet, had only time to make a beginning by way of examination and find it to be all-sorbing in interest. The subject is one of momentous importance and the kind donor can feel assured that the favor is highly appreciated and that the book will receive a careful reading, when we may have something more to say about it.

New Subscribers are commencing to come in and things generally are looking quite promising. Old subscribers are renewing their subscriptions for 1873 saying that they can not do with out the Pilgrim. That is right, the sooner you renew your subscriptions the more you will accommodate us.

D. B. Mentzer, Yes.

Isaac Cripe, All right.

D. Bock, You will find your credit in No. 47.

Henry M. Sherfy, The Nos. you wish were sent the other time you ordered them—must have been miscarried—can not replace them again as we have none on hands except 36 which we send you.

Preaching.—Eld. John Knisley is expected to preach in the James Creek Church, on Saturday evening Nov. 30th, also on Sabbath, a. m., and on the evening of the 31st in the Coffee Run School House.

[Announcement.]

JOHN E. POTTER & CO., Phila'a.

Have in press and will shortly publish

"Potter's Complete Bible Encyclopedia;" a Universal Dictionary of Biblical Ecclesiastical and Historical Information, from the earliest times to the present day. By Rev. William Blackwood, D. D., LL. D., author of "Blackwood's Comprehensive Aids to the Study of the Holy Bible," etc, etc., with valuable contributions by other eminent divines. Comprised in about 2000 Brevier pages, quarto, with nearly 3000 illustrative engravings.

Phrenological Journal.—By special arrangement, we send the Phrenological Journal, price $3.00, and Weekly Pilgrim together for $3.50. Every person wishing to read the best journal published for general information should order it a year through us.

Beware of Green Wall Papers.

A physician in Western Masachusetts recently had a lady patient who, for several weeks, had been suffering from nausea, general prostration, and other symptoms of slow poisoning. Failing to discover the cause of the symptoms, says the Hartford Courant, as a last resort the doctor requested her to move from her chamber, the walls of which were covered with paper of a very light shade of green, so light, indeed, that in the evening it could scarcely be distinguished from white. After leaving the room the symptoms immediately disappeared, and the patient rapidly recovered. A sample of the paper was forwarded for analysis to the State chemist at Hartford (Mr. Joseph Hall, of the High School), and was found to contain a large quantity of arsenic. Mr. Hall obtained the poison in the various forms of metallic arsenic, yellow tersulphite, silver arsenite and arsenious acid or common white arsenic. He estimates that every square foot of this innocent-looking paper contained an amount of the poison equivalent to five grains of arsenious acid, or double the fatal dose for an adult person. This, in the moist warm weather of last July and August, was amply sufficient to keep the air of a room constantly impregnated with the poison, and any person occupying such a room would be as certainly poisoned as though the arsenic had been taken into the stomach.

A general conference of Jews is in session in Berlin. The delegates of Roumania have laid before it the condition of their people in the principalities. They propose to petition the Roumanian Chamber for full civil and political privileges, and state that the proposition of emigrating en masse to America has been abandoned.

GOOD BOOKS.

A large number of our patrons are receiving our books as noticed below, as premiums, and express themselves highly pleased with them. Others who are not agents, have enquired whether we keep them for sale. We have now made arrangements with Mr. Wells to furnish any of their publications post paid at publishers prices. Orders for books must be accompanied with the cash, and plain directions for sending them.

Wayer's Works for the Young. Comprising "Hopes and Helps for the Young of both Sexes," $3.00.

Life at Home; or, The Family and its Members. A work which should be found in every family. $1.50. Extra gilt, $2.00.

Hand-book for Home Improvement: comprising "How to Write," "How to Talk," How to Behave," and "How to do Business," in one vol. 2.25.

Man and Woman: Considered in their Relations to each Other and to the World. 12mo, Fancy cloth, Price $1.00.

The Right Word in the Right Place. A New Pocket Dictionary and Reference Book. Cloth, 75cts.

The Emphatic, Diaglott; or The New Testament in Greek and English. Containing the Original Greek Text of the New Testament, with an Interlineary Word for-word English Translation. Price, $4.00; extra fine binding, $5.00.

Oratory—Sacred and Secular; or, the Extemporaneous Speaker. Price $1.50.

Conversion of St. Paul. 12mo. fine edition, $1. Plain edition, 75 cents.

Hopes and Helps for the Young of both sexes, Relating to the Formation of Character. Choice of Avocation, Health, Conversation, Social Affection Courtship and Marriage. Muslin, $1.50.

Man, in Genesis and in Geology; or, the Biblical Account of Man's Creation, tested by Scientific Theories of his Origin and Antiquity. One vol. 12mo, $1.00.

How to read Character, illus. Price,	$1.25
Combe's Moral Philosophy,	1.75
Constitution of Man. Combe,	1.75
Education. By Spurzheim,	1.50
Memory—How to Improve it,	1.50
Mental Science, Lectures on,	1.50
Self-Culture and Perfection,	1.50
Combe's Physiology, Illus.	1.75
Food and Diet. By Pereira,	1.75
Natural Laws of Man,	.75
Hereditary Descent,	1.50
Combe on Infancy,	1.50
Sober and Temperate Life,	.50
Children in Health—Disease,	1.75
The Science of Human Life,	3.50
Fruit Culture for the Million,	1.00
Saving and Wasting,	1.50
Ways of Life—Right Way,	1.00
Footprints of Life,	1.25
Conversion of St. Paul,	1.00

TUNE BOOK.

The Brethren's Tune and Hymn Book, is a compilation of Sacred Music adapted to all the hymns in the Brethren's New Hymn Book. It contains over 350 pages, printed on good paper and neatly bound. We will send it to any address, post paid at $1.25 per copy.

25 Ablest Tariff Journal in the U. S.
THE AMERICAN WORKING PEOPLE

Published monthly, is a welcome visitor at 100,000 Firesides. Finely printed, handsomely illustrated, ably edited—has no rival! $1.50 per year, sent on trial 3 months for 25 cents.

IRON WORLD PUB. CO., Pittsburgh, Pa.

25 THE IRON WORLD is the Largest and most Valuable Metal Price Current in the world. $4.00 per year. Sent on trial one month for 25 cents. All the State Geologists are Contributors. IRON WORLD PUB'G CO., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Trine Immersion

TRACED

TO THE APOSTLES.

Being a collection of historical quotations from modern and ancient authors, proving that a THREE-FOLD Immersion was the only method of baptizing ever practiced by the Apostles and their immediate successors. The author, after proving Trine Immersion to have been the prevailing practice, in baptism, the first 1500 years of the Christian era, commences with the fifth century, and traces a Three-fold Immersion, to within 33 years of the apostle John's death, and then proves it to have been the Apostolic method of baptizing, while Single Immersion was invented not less than 326 years after the death of Christ.

Put up in a neat pamphlet form, with good paper cover, and will be sent, postpaid, on the following terms: One copy, 25 cts; Five copies, $1.10; Ten copies, $2.00.

Address, J. H MOORE,
Urbana, Champaign co., Ill.

Oct. 22.

SALEM COLLEGE.

The Winter term of Salem College will open for the reception of any number of students from all parts on the 11th of Dec., 1872. Ample accommodations and thorough instruction will be given all students who connect themselves with this College. Good board can be had in good families at $2.50 to $3.00 per week or students can board themselves in clubs at $1.25 to $1.50 per week as numbers have done with the consent of the faculty. Special care will be given students who are far from home.

For Catalogues, Scholarships and full particulars address

SALEM COLLEGE,
July 22, '72. Bourbon, Ind.

WANTED BOOK Agents FOR THE GREAT INDUSTRIES

OF THE UNITED STATES;

AN HISTORICAL SUMMARY OF THE ORIGIN, GROWTH AND PERFECTION OF THE CHIEF INDUSTRIAL ARTS OF THIS COUNTRY.

1300 PAGES and 500 ENGRAVINGS.

Written by 20 Eminent Authors, including John B. Gough, Leon Case, Edward Rowland, Jos. B Lyman, Rev. E. Edwin Hall, Horace Greely, Philip Ripley, Albert Brisbane, F. B. Perkins, etc.

This work is a complete history of all branches of industry, processes of manufacture, etc., in all ages. It is a complete encyclopedia of arts and manufactures, and is the most entertaining and valuable work of information on subjects of general interest ever offered to the public. It is adapted to the wants of the Merchant, Manufacturer, Mechanic, Farmer, Student and Inventor, and sells to both old and young of all classes. The book is sold by agents, who are making large sales in all parts of the country. It is offered at the low price of $3.50, and is the cheapest book ever sold by subscription No family should be without a copy. We want agents in every town in the United States, and no agent can fail to do well with this book. Our terms are liberal. We give our agents the exclusive right of territory. One of our agents sold 133 copies in eight days, another sold 368 in two weeks. Our agent in Hartford sold 317 in one week. Specimens of the work sent to agents on receipt of stamp. For circulars and terms to agents address the publishers.

J. B. BURR & HYDE, Hartford, Conn., Chicago, Ill., or Cincinnati, Ohio.

Menno Simon's COMPLETE WORKS.

In English, translated from the original Dutch or Holland, giving the whole of the great Reformers writings on the subject of Baptism. Price in full sheep $4.50; by mail $5.14.

Address, JOHN F. FUNK & BRO.
Elkhart, Ind.

New Hymn Books, English.

TURKEY MOROCCO.

One copy, postpaid,	$1.00
Per Dozen,	11.25

PLAIN ARABESQE.

One Copy, post-paid,	75
Per Dozen, "	8.50

Ger'n & English, Plain Sheep.

One Copy, post-paid,	$1.00
Per Dozen	11.25
Arabesque Plain,	1.00
Turkey Morocco,	1.25
Single German, post paid	.50
Per Dozen,	5.50

TRACTS.

"ANXIOUS BENCH RELIGION EXAMINIED," BY ELDER J. S. FLORY. A SYNOPSIS OF CONTEETS. An address to the reader: The peculiarities that attend this type of religion. The feelings there experienced not imaginary but real. The key that unlocks the wonderful mystery. The causes by which feelings are excited. How the momentary feelings called "Experiment al religion" are brought about, and then concludes by giving that form of doctrine as taught by Jesus Christ and recorded by his faithful witnesses.

COUNTERFEIT DETECTER
or
BAPTISM—MUCH IN LITTLE.

This work is now ready for distribution, and the importance of the subject will speak for it a large demand. It is a short treatise on baptism in tract form intended for general distribution, and is set forth in such a plain and logical manner that a wayfaring man though a fool, cannot err therein. Either of the above tracts sent postpaid on the following terms: Two copies, 10 cts, 10 copies 40 cents, 25 copies 70 cents, 50 copies $1.00, 100 copies $1.50.

1870 1872

DR. FAHRNEY'S

Blood Cleanser or Panacea.

A tonic and purge, for Blood Diseases. Great reputation. Many testimonials. Many ministering brethren use and recommend it. Ask or send for the "Health Messenger." Use only the "Panacea" prepared at Chicago, Ills., and by

Dr. P. Fahrney's Brothers & Co.,

Aug. 3-pd. Waynesboro, Franklin Co., Pa.

Trine Immersion.

A discussion on Trine Immersion, by letter between Elder B. F. Moomaw and Dr. J. J. Jackson, to which is annexed a Treatise on the Lord's Supper, and on the necessity, character and evidences of the new birth, also a dialogue on the doctrine of non-resistance, by Elder B. F. Moomaw. Single copy 50 cents.

$5 to $20 per day! Agents wanted! All classes of working people, of either sex, young or old, make more money at work for us in their spare moments, or all the time, than at anything else. Particulars free. Address G. Stinson & Co., Portland, Maine. sep. 17.

HUNTINGDON & BROAD TOP RAIL ROAD

Winter Arrangement.

On and after Tuesday, Oct. 4, 1872, Passenger trains will arrive and depart as follows:

Trains from Huntingdon South. Trains from Mt. Dal's moving North.

MAIL. A. M.	ACCOM P. M.	STATIONS.	MAIL. P. M	ACCOM A. M.
*le*8 00	LE5 50	Huntingdon,	AR3 20	AR9 00
8 08	5 57	Long Siding	3 12	8 :3
8 24	6 10	McConnelstown	2 56	8 37
8 30	6 17	Pleasant Grove	2 50	8 30
8 45	6 30	Marklesburg	2 37	8 17
9 00	6 44	Coffee Run	2 23	8 01
9 07	6 52	Rough & Ready	2 15	7 53
9 20	7 05	Cove	2 01	7 40
9 24	7 10	Fishers Summit	1 57	7 35
9 44	*ar*7 30	Saxton	1 37	le 7 15
9 54
10 10		Riddlesburg	1 19
10 17		Hopewell	1 12
10 34		Piper's Run	12 56
10 52		Tatesville	12 38
11 05		Bloody Run	12 24
*r*11 10		Mount Dallas	12 20

JOHN M'KILLIPS, Supt

SHOUP'S RUN BRANCH.

LE10 00	LE7 40	Saxton.	ARI 30	AR7 10
10 15	7 55	Coalmont.	1 15	6 55
10 20	8 00	Crawford.	1 10	6 50
AR10 20	AR8 10	Dudley	LE1 00	LE6 40

Bro'd Top City from Dudley 2 miles by stage.

Time of Penna. R. R. Trains at Huntingdon.

EASTWARD.			WESTWARD.
Hb'g Ac.	9 24	A. M	Cin. Ex.	2 19	A. M.
Mail	3 30	P. M	Pc'f Ex.	7 45	"
Cin. Ex.	6 55	"	Mail	5 40	P. M.
Phil. Ex	11 15	"	W. Pass.	11 52	A. M.

The Weekly Pilgrim.

Published by J. B. Brumbaugh, & Co.

Edited by H. B. & Geo. Brumbaugh.

CORRESPONDING EDITORS.

D. P. Sayler, Double Pipe Creek, Md.

Leonard Furry, New Enterprise, Pa.

The Pilgrim is a Christian Periodical, devoted to religion and moral reform. It will advocate in the spirit of love and liberty, the principles of true Christianity, labor for the promotion of peace among the people of God, for the encouragement of the saints and for the conversion of sinners, avoiding those things which tend toward disunion or sectional feelings.

TERMS.

Single copy, Book paper,	$1.50
Eleven copies, [eleventh for Agt.]	$15.00

Any number above that at the same rate,

Address.

H. B. BRUMBAUGH.
James Creek,
Huntingdon county Pa.

The Watchman

"REMOVE NOT THE ANCIENT LANDMARKS WHICH OUR FATHERS HAVE SET."

VOL. 3. JAMES CREEK, PENNSYLVANIA, DECEMBER 5, 1872. NO. 49

THE FIRST SABBATH.

BY MRS. M. J. HILL.

God's works were ended—first the golden light
Leaped from His word, and smiled before
Its Maker. Day, our time for thought and hope,
And healthful toil, with its young morn, it's noon
And tranquil close, and Night, with stilly hours,
And rest for weary heart, and weary limb,
Began!
Then the blue air uprose—the sky
Spread out its azure wings—the pure white cloud
Floated in dreaminess along, and caught
The soft-distilling rains and dews, and hid
Them in its lovely bosom.

Again God spake—the waters heard—and wave
By wave sped onward to the main afar,
The sea, the vast illimitable sea,
With blue waves rolling in their new-found might—
Began its august anthem to its God. The earth,
With hill and dale, and mount sublime appeared;
The senseless dust grew beautiful with soft
And tender grass; the violets blue eyes
Were opened; then the lily raised her brow
Of spotless purity, and the young rose
Blushed as the vernal breezes kissed her cheek;
The sturdy oak stretched out its arms to heaven,
While at its feet the humbler fruit tree bowed
Its burdened branches to the verdant sod.

Once more God spake—and in the rosy East
The great rejoicing sun arose, and sent
His golden armies to the earth's green shore
To vanquish Night's dark legions—then he plunged
With his fresh bounding heart upon his path
Of fire across the heaven's so blue. No eye
Created watched him as he rode the heights
Of burning noon, nor marked how gloriously
He sank to rest, while purple living clouds
With gold and crimson wings attended him.
The full orbed moon arose in the calm East,
Meeting halfway his setting beams, then star
By star came twinkling into glorious life,
Together singing in their far blue homes;
With song of triumph, Venus placed the first
Bright brilliant 'mid the gathering darkness
Of Night's raven hair; Arcturus donned his rones
Of shining splendor; belted Orion
Lit up with princely pride his azure halls;
The Pleiades rejoiced in sisterhood
Unbroken—a family in Heaven!
That starry night the first—upon the broad,
Green earth, no sleeper slept—upon the sea,
No white sail glimmered, as its mad waves leaped
To reach the morn, or hold her shadow fair
In pure and glad embrace—one moon in heaven,
Ten thousand in the sea!

The morning dawned; and in the waters glad
All finny tribes were sporting; in the trees,
The thrush and linnet warbled, and the lark
Dissolved itself in heaven's own blue; then
On the summer hills the cattle sported; in
The grass the serpent coiled its glittering folds;
And in the wood the lion roared for joy!

Once more Jehovah spake—and from the dust
Man started into high and noble life,
With unbeclouded mind and pure of heart,
And health in every vein—the image of
His Maker! Last of all Jehovah's works,
From Adam's sleeping side, O! what a soft
And breathing vision sprang to gentle life—
Bright waves of sunny hair—meek eyes of blue—
Fair brow of spotless purity—and cheek
Of healthful hue; they two were one—wandering
With hand in hand through Eden's lovely haunts.

God's works were ended—heaven and earth, and all
Their shining hosts—the seventh morning dawned;
God rested from his works and sanctified
And blessed the seventh day. O, lovely dawn!
Soft balmy winds stole musically through
The trees, and rocked upon their wings unseen
The dewy flowers. Birds of sweetest note
Awakened in their leafy homes, and sang,
They too, from softest, gentlest slumber then
Arose, and worshipped God, their Maker kind;
How pure and free their love and praise. Forth 'mid
The clustering vines they went. The lion knelt
To woo her hands caress. The sportive lamb
Played round her path, to win her smile,
O, day
Of perfect beauty, sinless praise, that first
Pure Sabbath day, how beautiful, how bright!
Could these, our eyes, have seen its holy light,
Our hearts have felt its perfect love!

ORIGINAL ESSAYS.

THE POSITION OF WISDOM.

Wisdom is too high for a fool.—Prov. 24:7.

What is too high for a fool? why wisdom, and what is wisdom? the mind at once inquires. Let us hear what God says in regard to what it is and where it may be found—its position—its height, &c, then we may decide whether it is within our reach and thus know ourselves. Thus saith the Lord, "Multitude of years teach wisdom." This definition, however, is limited by a number of others, which will lead us to the truth that wisdom is not always with age. If he had given no further definition than all old men and women would be wise, and all the young would be foolish, old age would then be the position and because of youth, fools would be excusable and thus not fools—an absurdity.

But thus saith the Lord "Jobs' words were with wisdom." If they are too high for us, i. e. if we do not understand them by reason of any cause except that of which God is the author, then wisdom is too high for us and we are fools, and our way is right, only in our "own eyes."

Again, thus saith the Lord of wisdom, "The merchandise of it is better than the merchandise of silver, and the gain thereof than fine gold." "She is more precious than rubies, and all the things thou canst desire are not to be compared unto her." The merchandise of silver, the ownership of fine gold in large quantities, of rubies and many other things we could desire are worthy high positions, but we understand God to mean that wisdom is a position which is above them all, not that these things must first be reached and afterwards wisdom in the same direction only higher. No, not by any manner of means, but wisdom occupies a position in another direction, though riches and honor are in her left hand, but they are true riches and lasting honors.

Again the Lord saith "With him that hath understanding wisdom is found," and one of the simplest and plainest definitions that God gives of the word understanding, is this; "Be ye not as the horse or as the mule which have no understanding." We can not say that these animals have no knowledge, because like the ass, they know their "master's crib." The dumb brute is commanded because he knows that which he should, "But my people doth not consider." They stubbornly and defiantly pursue their own course, they remain in darkness, They are unwilling to come or to be driven in the light, and in this condition wisdom is beyond their reach, it is too high for them, and they are fools.

But again thus saith the Lord, "With the lowly is wisdom." Oh, no, how can it be a "high thing" when it is found with the lowly? Here we must again apply to God for help. He saith "Let no man deceive himself. If any man among you seemeth to be wise in this world, let him become a fool that he may be wise, for the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God: for it is written He taketh the wise in their own craftiness, and again the Lord knoweth the thoughts of the wise that they are vain." But unless we have a conception of the meaning of these words, i. e. the spirit of God which is in them, we fail to receive any assistance from them. That meaning or spirit then is the thing desired. What is it? The Savior says, "I am meek and lowly in heart." He is, therefore the full definition of the word "lowly" as He is also, of the word "wisdom," and He is therefore, notwithstanding His "lowliness," too high for a fool. And again, that meaning is this—If there came a man among us who thinks he is wise because he thinks he is lowly, that man is a fool, wisdom is too high for him, and God tells him to come to a knowledge of the truth and believe that he is highminded and foolish, because he will then believe as God does. But if he persists in proclaiming to himself and to his fellows and thus to God, that he is lowly and wise, then God will take him in his "own craftiness" and will surprise him by showing him that he was vain and foolish.

Furthermore, the Lord saith "The price of wisdom is above rubies." Now the price of rubies is very high, they cannot be bought except with much worth—except at a high price but the price of wisdom is higher, so much higher that a fool cannot reach it. Thus he is not able to get wisdom because it is too high for him and he perishes for want of it.

But again the Lord saith "Wisdom is the principal thing." In that one word, namely—wisdom, or rather the spirit that is in the word, He centralizes all that is truly worthy—all that is excellent. Therefore the spirit of meekness, gentleness, peace, mercy and love or the spirit of Christ which embraces all wisdom is too high for a fool." In all His transactions Christ has proved wisdom to be the "principal thing." But while He set in order, before the eyes of all men, the position, the elements and the boundaries of wisdom, He has also defined the position, elements and boundaries of foolishness. Everything that is opposed to wisdom is foolishness. If it be true, and it is true that wisdom occupies the principal, the highest and the best position, then foolishness fills the most inferior, the most degraded or lowest and the worst place. While engaged in His important mission the Savior says to those who are inconsistant—unwise, foolish; "Ye fools and blind, for whether is greater the gift, or the altar that sanctifieth the gift?" Those misguided, blind, foolish pharisees thought the gift was greater than the altar that sanctified it. The development in their minds of the true relation between the altar and the gift was their elevation from the position of fools to that from which they could reach wisdom—if they would. Thus the blessed Savior put down a ladder as it were into a deep dark pit upon which the inmates (fools), may ascend from their foolishness unto wisdom, if they will(?) But to those who are stubborn and determined to remain fools, He calls to-day by His spirit, "O, Jerusalem, Jerusalem which kil est the prophets and stonest them that are sent unto thee; how often would I have gathered thy children together as a hen doth gather her brood under her wings and ye would not!" How lamentable it is that men will not choose wisdom and be saved! It is so because they are fools and "wisdom is too high" for them. Therefore let all see well to the foundation upon which they have built, or upon which they are building, for the "floods" will come, and the "winds" will blow and "beat" upon every "house," that is, upon every spiritual house, and every one that is not founded upon that spiritual rock—Christ will fall, and great will be the fall of it. J. B. GARVER.

PROMISES OF GOD.

To perform the mercy promised to our fathers, and to remember his holy covenant. —Luke 1;72.

I will in the first place notice God's faithfulness to His promises, "While the earth remaineth, seed-time and harvest, cold and heat, Summer and Winter and day and night shall not cease."—Gen. 8; 22. Compare also Genesis 28; 15, with Genesis 48; 15-16. But the faithfulness of God is particularly seen in the provision made for the fulfillment of His great promise, Genesis 3; 15. Trace this in raising up Seth after Abel, and again in Enos, Enoch, Noah, Abraham, and particularly observing how God most helped His church when it most needed help. In this period of the history of the church, the whole plan of redemption seems frequently to have depended upon a single life; yet after four thousand years of peril, in the fullness of time, how was the promise fulfilled? In a manner which it had not entered into the heart of man to conceive, Psalms 105 8 &c., Luke 1; 72 73, 1 Cor. 2; 9. So God's great promise in due time of the Messiah, seems to have greatly inspired, encouraged and strengthened the faith and hope of the patriarchs, prophets and saints of old. See Job 19; 25, John 8; 56, Heb. 11; 26, 1 Peter 1 10, &c. In full view of which promise the prophet David says, "Although my house be not so with God, yet he hath made with me an everlasting covenant, ordered in all things and sure, for this is all my salvation, and all my desire."—2 Sam. 23; 5. The above is a remarkable prophecy respecting the promised Messiah, and by comparing it with others as with Isaiah 53; 2 30, 12; 34, it will be found that the sure mercies of David, refer to our Savior. It is to be observed that David knew that God had confirmed to raise up out of his family Christ, whose throne should be established forever, and we may presume from the declaration he elsewhere makes of his confident expectations of a future state of happiness, Psa. 17; 15, "As for me I will behold thy face in righteousness; I shall be satisfied when I awake with thy likeness," that the assurance of everlasting salvation which God had given him as one of those who believed in the promised Savior, was his great support under the disappointments of life, and in the immediate prospect of death. "to perform the mercy promised to our fathers." This Scripture is part of Zacharias' prophecy, at the rising of that bright star, John, the harbinger and forerunner of Christ. These are some of the first words he spake after God had loosed his tongue which for a time was struck dumb for his unbelief. His tongue is now at liberty to proclaim to all the world the unspeakable riches of mercy through Jesus Christ in a song of praise, in which observe, the mercy celebrated, redemption by Christ, the description of Christ, the faithfulness of God in our redemption, the benefit of being so redeemed by Christ and the exact accomplishment of all the promises made to the fathers in sending Christ, the mercy promised, into the world.

"To perform the mercy promised." What mercy soever the love of God engaged him to promise, the faithfulness of God stands engaged for its performance. Jesus Christ, the mercy of mercies, was graciously promised and faithfully performed by God to his people. Christ is the mercy because all the mercy of God to sinners is dispensed and conveyed thro' Him to them. John 1 16, Eph. 4; 7, Col. 2; 3. Christ is the medium of all divine communications, the channel of grace. Through him are both the flow of mercy from God to us, and the returns of praise from us to God, vain therefore are all expectations out of Christ.

D. NEELY.

Welsh Run, Pa.

PASSOVER OF THE LAW—PASSOVER OF THE GOSPEL.

Editors of Pilgrim:—For some time I have been silent on the subject of the passovers, which seems to be a matter of wonder with many of the readers of the PILGRIM; in consequence of the subject having been brought suddenly to the notice of your worthy readers, in a review made upon an article written by me, by Elder H. C. F. of the River Brethren persuasion, which article we replied to at the time, inviting him to a Scriptural investigation of the subject, for the benefit of inquiring souls after truth. Failing to meet us upon the issue of the question, and since learning from him the reason why he declined to talk over the subject thro' the press, for the benefit of the public with us, we courteously, with a deep sense of respect, leave him as a competitor for the present, having a profound regard for him as a God fearing man. We ask his brethren and our brethren, and all others who desire a knowledge of the truth, as it is in Jesus, a candid and unbiased reading of what we may have to say on the above subjects, as deduced from divine testimony. We are constrained by inquirers on the subject to present what may be said on the subject from the Bible, and Testament; and show what the order of God's arrangements are, for the believer in Jesus to be observed in the house of God, by the people of God. We shall try to view the same from a divine standpoint by simple deduction that all may understand, and know what it is. The passover, and feast, as brought to our notice, in Exodus 12 chapter, is what will claim our attention first. The word passover, means a passing over. The Lord passing over the land of Egypt, and passing over the houses of the children of Isral, first to destroy the first-born of every family of the Egyptians; and second, to spare and not destroy. The first, because of disobedience; and second, because of obedience. The Israelites, to secure the advantage of the passover, were required to kill a lamb or kid; and take the blood of it; with a bunch of hysop dipped in the blood, sprinkle it on the lintel, and sideposts of the doors of their houses, or (tents). Every family regarding this edict of the Lord's commandment, had the promise, and did enjoy mercy at the hands of the Lord, and they who did not, the death of a member, or the first-born of the family, was claimed as a victim, for violation, or neglect.

The feast of the passover, means a feast connected with the passover, which consisted of seven days eating of unleavened bread. Exodus 12: 15-18.

The passover feast, or ordinance, was the institution perpetuated in their generation.

Now to bring it clearly before the mind, in the order of God's appointment, as commanded by Moses and Aaron, in the scripture above referred to, which was to be perpetuated in their generation or until a new order by another priesthood, should be introduced, which was not to be after the Aaronic, but after the order of Melchisedec. This is the order of the commandment. "This month shall be to you the beginning of months, the first month of the year Abib. The tenth day of this month, take a lamb, (or kid), without spot or blemish, a male of the first year; and keep it up until the 14th day of the same month; and the whole congregation of Israel shall kill it in the evening, and take a bunch of hysop, and dip it in the blood, and strike the lintel and two side posts wherein you shall eat it. And shall eat the flesh in that night, roast with fire and unleavened bread, and bitter herbs. Eat it not raw, or sodden at all with water; but roast with fire, his head with his legs, and with the appurtinances thereof. Eat it with your loins girded, shoes on your feet, and staff in hand; eat it in haste, it is the Lord's passover." The feast of the passover, or unleavened bread; commencing with or near the time of eating the passover, or lamb, to continue to the 21st of the same month." All Israel were to observe this in their generation.

Now we have before us the commandments, which command and institution is the type of the antetype, the Gospel passover. Let us here observe, that as for the Jewish rites and ceremonies, they did not make "the comer thereunto perfect." Heb. 10th chap. "But in those sacrifices, there was a remembrance again, made of sin every year." Then said he (Jesus) "Lo I come to do thy will O God. He taketh away the first that he may establish the second, by which will, we are sanctified, through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ, once for all."

To be Continued,

On account of being a little behind time we have dated this week's issue several days ahead. No. 50 and the last for this volume will be issued December the 12th.

PRAYER.

Prayer is said to be manna to the soul of a Christian, and that it is doubtful, whether a man can be a Christian that does not pray. If these things are so, why is it that we have so many professed Christians that pray not? They cannot say that they do not need any thing, for no one will believe such a declaration, as all know better, and a prayerless professor will not say so for his own conscience will smite him, for the untruth. Neither can he say God will not hearth in This no humble expected. Christ will admit for they know better. The smaller and more simple we feel the nearer God will we come. We dare not say that we are not commanded to pray. Some things are not done because they are not plainly written or commanded, but not so with prayer, for it is repeatedly written as every Bible reader knows. "Watch and pray that ye enter not into temptation," is written by three of the Evangelists.

Prayerless professor, what is thy excuse? I cannot! who told you so? Do you suppose God would ask you to do a thing that He knew you could not do? "If I could pray as such and such a one can pray, I would freely pray." Yes, and as long as you try to imitate other's prayers you will never get to be a successful praying character, from the fact that his wants may not always be yours and hence the prayer would not be appropriate.

My dear Christian reader, it is not always the polished well worded prayer that has the force attached to it. How far would the poor publican have been left behind the eloquent Pharisee had he been under the necesity to follow that prayer. I cannot imagine, but notice—he spoke just the sentiments of his heart, "Lord be merciful to me a sinner" In this simple sentence there was virtue enough to call the attention of the great God of all prayer, and had, connected with it, a justifying merit of which the other was lacking in some measure. Take courage, if you can give but one sentence of a heartfelt expression, it has more bearing than ten thousand well polished lipped sentences. If you say you know not what to pray for hear the Savior, "Pray for them that despitefully use you and persecute you" Math. 5:44, Luke 6:12. And if you have no enemies then hear the Savior again, "Pray the Lord of the harvest that he will send forth laborers into his harvest" Math. 9:38. This is always in place. And again take Pauls prayer, "I pray to God, that ye do no evil" And James, "Confess your faults one to another, and pray for one another," James 5:16. You start out on some of these suggestions and you will find enough to pray for. But remember the rule, "Use no vain repetitions as the heathen do", Math. 6:7.

Another important matter connected with prayer is that we have a forgiving heart, "And when ye stand praying, forgive, if ye have aught against any; that your Father also which is in heaven may forgive your trespasses." Mark 11:25.

Now for encouragement in our prayers, "Therefore I say unto you, what things soever ye desire when ye pray, believe that ye will receive them, and ye shall have them." Mark 11:24. If you want to know when to pray hear Paul, "Pray without ceasing" 1 Thess. 5:17 and as to where, see Paul to 1 Tim. 2:8 "Pray every where." There is nothing plainer in the Scriptures laid down than prayer, and nothing among professors of Christianity more generally neglected. Again I ask why is it so? Echo answers why?

C. G. Linr.

For the Pilgrim.

BLESSING CHILDREN.

I wish to simply call the attention of your readers, to a circumstance that transpired recently in one of the churches of London, England, over which a certain Rev. C. Vosey presided. It is a matter that will be spoken of as well as written about by many. The question will be as to its propriety. The service is called "Dedication and Benediction of children in lieu of baptism."

The parents of the child who presented it to the pastor for its "dedication and benediction" must have been of a class who had not much faith in that mode of baptism, and yet thought they were under obligation to do something in a religious way for their child, even when it could not be counseled with respect to its future spiritual welfare. I have no doubt they were Bible readers, and read the circumstance of our Savior blessing little children, and hence they made a similar demand upon their pastor, who did not deny them. Who will say that he done wrong in thus gratifying them when he had such an illustrious precedent. The form of words used upon the occasion were, "The father and mother of this child now present desire us to join them in giving thanks to the Lord and Giver of life for His precious gift to them, for all His mercy in supporting them under their anxieties, and for granting a happy issue out of much pain and sorrow. They have brought this child unto the congregation of those who love the Lord and trust Him, that we may with one accord, make our prayers on his behalf, that he may grow up in health of mind, body and estate, and be a blessing to his family, to his country, and to the world at large.

By this our solemn service we would, as it were, dedicate and consecrate this infant, soul and body, to the service of God," following the address, he takes the child in his arms, made a prayer of a similar import to the address just made. Whether he expects this child shall be baptized after it arrives to the age of discretion, I cannot gather from the record of the circumstance.

I again ask, is there anything wrong in the case? It is certainly worthy to be considered. I do not commit myself to its support. yet I have not the least doubt, that at some future time, our Annual Meeting will be called to consider the subject, hence I think it prudent that our members should be posted as to what is going on in the world. Paul tells us to "prove all things and hold fast to that which is good."

It is well known that we annoint the sick of our church when requested to do so, yet all are not annointed before death because they failed to apply, as it is certainly a means of preparation for death, and should not be neglected, and yet it is left optional with members.

I introduce this last subject because I think it is nearly parallel to the matter I have presented for the consideration of the Church, and close by asking the question, how should we act? If Christian parents would ask us to bless their children formally, should we say it is not the practice of our church, though a truth, and would that be satisfactory to the parents, to ourselves or to God?

E. Slifer.

GENERAL INTELLIGENCE.

New Hampshire was startled by another earthquake last week—the 18th. Buildings were violently shaken.

The Boston Fire—The area of the burnt district of the late Boston fire is now correctly estimated at sixty-five acres, and the loss sustained $100 000.

THE MAN AND THE BISHOP.

For the following, we are indebted to the Advent Christian Times, and is to the point. It is not only Catholic Bishops that live a double life, but many others, if not professedly, practically live out this double system. Some to screen the man try to throw all the blame on the flesh, but it should be remembered that the flesh is the machine while the man is the motive power.

"A Bishop of the infallible church swore roundly at his servant, who offended him, when the servant mildly asked—

"Does a Bishop swear?"

"I did not swear as a Bishop, but as a man," said the prelate.

"Yes, yes," replied the servant, "but when the devil gets the man for swearing, where will the Bishop go?"

Trying times: Conflagrations yesterday in Boston, Brooklyn, St. Louis, and Jacksonville, Ill.—Destructive gale on Lake Superior—calamitous hurricane in Northern Europe—earthquake shocks in New Hampshire—the horse disease and the poultry plague all over the country—murders, suicides and criminal outrage almost every where—premature wintery weather—to say nothing of newspaper "contempts at court;" what is the world coming to? and where on eathr is safety, comfort and security to be found? It would seem that the age in which we live is the ordeal era of our humanity's power of patience and endurance.—Chicago Journal, Nov. 19.

A bill for the suppression of religious corporations has been introduced in the Italian Chamber of Deputies. In Germany the Ecclestastical Rights bill, prohibiting the issue of decrees of excommunication, has been submitted to the Diet. It declares that any clergyman who shall by name threaten with punishment or decree or proclaim as punishable, a subject of Prussia shall be liable to a fine of 5000 thalers, or two years' imprisonment, and indigible to the office for a term of five years. Thus the power of the Papacy is wasted by its former supporters.

Open Communion.—The New York Observer is rejoicing over a few Baptist lay members who have expressed themselves in favor of "Open Communion." How strange it is for a certain class of people to desire this little bit of hypocritical charity. "Whatsoever is not of faith is sin." Why murder the conscience for the sake of that deceptive charity which has for its purpose and end, personal aggrandizement? Who would be benefitted by Open Communion or who would be made the better by it? If men wish to be charitable let them labor for the good of the soul, and not for the upbuilding of Babylon. "All this will I give you if you will fall down and worship me," or eat at my tables.

AN UNFORTUNATE YOUNG LADY.

Young ladies, pause in offering the tempting wine cup to young men at social gatherings. In our own beautiful city a short time since, a lovely and accomplished young lady committed an act, thoughtlessly it is true, but it has cost her much and bitter suffering, for she, perhaps has blighted for life the ambition of a young man, destroyed the fond hopes of an anxious mother and loving sister,—all for what? For the gratification of a momentary whim, for, (must we say?) vanity! Her case is simply this: She had placed her affections upon a young man, worthy to possess all her loveliness, in everything save one. They were engaged. He had once been addicted to drinking to a great extent. Over a year ago he quit, and has not touched a drop since. A few days ago, the two, met at a social party; wine was handed around, and he refused repeatedly, but at last a friend, with two glasses on a waiter, met them, and handed the fatal drug. She said laughingly, "I am a little tired, a little wine would help me." He said, "Drink it then; but no, she would not unless he drank with her; he expressed his fears, but she said, "Oh, this little won't hurt you, please drink with me." He drank; and no sooner had the dormant taste been aroused than all the power of alcohol, at once took possession of his self-control, and he was helpless to cope with the power which rushed upon him, and ere the party dispersed he was "full," could scarcely escort her to her home. When preparing to bid him good night at her door, a dread of the coming evil, "cast its shadow before her," and with tears in her eyes she implored him, made him promise, time and again, that he would go straight home and not drink any more. He promised, fully determined to keep his promise sacred; but no sooner had he left her than he was overpowered by the death dealing appetite. He drank that night, and for three days remained drunk, and was finally taken home by his friends in an insensible condition.

His mother and sister, who had learned to love his affianced regarded her as the appointed angel to save the son and brother from ruin. In her were centered all their hopes of salvation, and their happiness. But alas! with her own hand she dealt the death blow to the happiness of all four. We have conversed with all parties, and find that the mother and sister no longer love her—how could they?—though she did it thoughtlessly. He loves her devotedly yet, and speaks of her as the cause of his fall with sorrow, but not with censure. And her sorrow, her feelings cannot be described; her self-blame, her desponding hope, the estrangement of his mother and sister, whom she had known from childhood, and whom she was fast learning to love as mother and sister, and with little hope of ever being again reconciled. He is now raving in all the horrors of delirium tremens, and every agonizing cry of his pierces the hearts of mother, sister and affianced.

This is no fancy picture; we know all the parties well, and have just left the young man's bedside, where force had to be used to control him, till the proper remedies could affect him.

Take warning, young women; hand not the fatal bowl to any, even if you are not his, or he your chosen one. Sin ever follows, and oh! the agony of hopes blasted is worse than death itself.—Nashville Temperance Herald.

WHOSOEVER WILL.

Why is the longing for full and rich experience in the divine life so often unrealized? Is it not because so many look to themselves and their own efforts for attainment, and forget that it comes by the abounding grace of Christ, that whosoever will may take freely? These two words are a passport to all the privileges of salvation. For you, but not for me, is this blessing, says the fearful and unbelieving soul. But Christ contradicts this with His plain, unqualified declaration. Supposing a fountain was opened in the great desert, would the traveler, parched with thirst, pass it by because he was not by name invited to partake? Would not the fountain itself be an invitation to every thirsty soul? Here is Christ the fountain of all grace, open to the approach of every living soul, from whom we may all receive, and grace for grace, and yet we hesitate to partake. Ah, there is more involved in that second little word, than most are willing to perceive. The trouble is in the will. We voluntarily hold back; we neglect, delay, fail to reach out our hand. What causes this reluctance, this hesitation? Unbelief; what else could restrain us from accepting such royal generosity? We do not believe the fulness, the value, the efficacy of Christ's salvation, or our absolute need of it. If we did we should run eagerly to the fountain and drink and drink again, to our utmost satisfaction.

Dear friends, who are looking at the higher life, as some grand glorious gift beyond your attainment, let us say, it is for you, if you will have it. We need not here repeat the gospel invitations: we cannot find words to express its exceeding richness and blessing: we weep when we think of the loss to every faint-hearted disciple; we are pained when we see so many such. But what can we do? You must choose, accept or refuse the blessing, each for himself. God has furnished the needed grace for its attainment, and made it accessible to every one. Whosoever will, receives, and is forever and supremely blest. Alas! Jesus said of some in his own day, "Ye will not." He would repeat it were he here: "Ye will not come to me that ye might have life."—General Baptist Herald

THE HORSE DISEASE.

The first noticeable symptoms will be flow of tears from the eyes, a watery discharge from the nose and general languor. Next a cough, which becoming more frequent, will soon occur in paroxysms. In the commencement the membrane of the of the nose will be found pale, or of a leaden color, and those of the eyes presenting a yellowish or reddened appearance. Many cases ushered in with a chill. All this is soon succeeded by a general feverish condition, manifested by heat of the mouth, membranes of the eyes and nose reddened, pulse frequent, though soft and easily compressed, respiration quickened, and some immediately laborious. At this stage the bowels may be sluggish, urinary organs inactive, and the discharge from the nose often assuming a yellowish or greenish appearance. The disease usually runs its course within ten days, and with proper treatment few if any cases ought to prove fatal. Those that do so are usually complicated with other diseases, as bronchitis or pneumonia.

SUGGESTIONS OF A CANADIAN PHYSICIAN.

The origin of the disease is attributed to various causes. Canadian veterinary surgeons say that it was brought about by atmospheric influence, but go no further than this vague statement. In the opinion of these men, only a change in the weather can arrest the spread of the disease, a cool clear atmosphere in their judgment, being likely to cause a favorable change. Dr. Elliot veterinary surgeon of St. Catharines, Canada, has written a letter in which he makes the following suggestions

He first advises that stables be well ventilated, the horses blanketed, and chloride of lime sprinkled through the stable every morning. The nostrils should be sponged out two or three times a day, if the mucus adheres thereto. The food should consist of bran with a little oats, and a moderate quantity of hay. If the bowels are costive a half pint of raw linseed oil may be given; but it is probable that the mash will cause sufficient relaxation.

Prescription No 2 (given below) should be administered every morning and evening. If the throat should be sore—which can be ascertained by the pressure of the hand upon the larynx—about two table-spoonsful of prescription No. 1 (also given below) should be rubbed in. So long as the disease is confined to the larynx there is very little danger, but should it descend to the lungs—which will be indicated by continued standing up of the animal, cold extremities and laborred breathing—a half-pound of mustard should be mixed with two ounces of turpentine and water to the consistency of thick cream, and the mixture rubbed well in behind the forelegs or over the region of the lungs. The legs should be bandaged, if cold. If the pulse should be over fifty-five per minute, fifteen drops of Fleming's tincture of aconite should be given every two hours; and if the breathing still continues labored and the pulse grow more rapid, apply the mustard again, and give one and a half drachms of calomel for two mornings.

The following are the prescriptions referred to:

Prescriptions No. 1. Linseed oil, 1½ oz; turpentine, 1½ oz; liquor ammonia fort, 1 oz, Mix all together in a four-ounce bottle and apply to the throat, if you think it necessary.

Prescription No. 2. Nitrate potash, 1½ oz.; tartarized antimony, 1½ oz; digitals, ½ oz. Pulverize all together and make twelve powders, give one morning and night. P. S. If they are not very bad you might omit the last ingredient, namely, digitals.

Treasurer's Report of Annual Meeting Held on the Farm of Uyrus Hoover. May 21, 22, and 23, 1872.

CONTRIBUTIONS:
N. Eastern District of O.		$1724 50
N. Western " " "		1112 00
SALES—Muslin		340 87
Rope		52 84
Hides and tallow		33 01
Lumber		22 72
Corn		19 26
Butter		12 67
Sundries		2 50
Total		$3320 30
DISBURSEMENTS:
Muslin	$590 00
Rope	145 09
Lumber	98 00
Nails	6 16
Thread	10 00
Brick & Castings	16 00
Beef	572 20
Hay (900lbs)	90 00
Bread	341 36
Butter (1221 lbs)	244 20
Applebutter (80 gal).	40 00
Coffee (225 lbs)	53 00
Sugar (375 lbs)	45 00
Rice (102 lbs.)	10 20
Tea (6 lbs)	9 00
Pepper	2 25
Milk	5 62
Hay (4 ton)	40 00
Pasture	15 00
Corn (120 bus.)	60 00
Boarding of hands	52 50
Labor	119 70
Fuel	10 00
Total		$2585 40
Balance on hand		$734 90
Proportion of Surplus due N. E. District of Ohio.		$445 78
Due N. western Dist. of O.		289 12
Total		$734 90

GEORGE IRVIN, Treasurer.
E. L. YODER, Clerk.

Coworkers in Christ, be content to sow little seeds for him; be patient to wait a long time for their growing; be strong to endure much opposition; be hopeful, expecting divine fruitage. These are the chief lessons of the parables of the seed and the sower.

Youth's Department.

FOR THE YOUNG.

The following selections we give, this week, for the special benefit of our young readers, and we know you will be pleased with them, they are so full, so beautiful. The first is part of the oft repeated prayer, "Now I lay me down," and breathes forth that all confiding trust that may be implanted in the minds of children, but the other, "The Drunkards Daughter," O, how different! "Out in the gloomy night sadly I roam." Think of it, dear children, it is the wail of a motherless child, and the daughter of a father that is worse than dead. Think how sad would be your condition had you no kind mother to care for you, no pleasant home, no warm bed, no clothes, no one even to care for you in sickness, and like poor Bessie, should you die, no one would cry. Will you not pity the thousands of poor Bessies whose plaintive cry today is: "Father's a drunkard and mother is dead." Yes, pity and pray for them as you know not how soon some of you may be thrown on the charities of a cold world, not we hope, through the unfaithfulness of a drunken father, but death may take from you that kind father and ever dear mother, then might the time come that none would cry, even if poor Bessie was to die.

You no doubt think that this would be a sad lot. It truly would, and we hope none of you may ever learn it by experience, but if you should, there is still a Father that careth for you. That Father is Jesus, who said: "Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not, for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven." Learn to love Him for He careth for you. Perhaps if little Bessie had placed the confidence in that Father that she did in the temperance men, she would not have suffered for bread, as He feedeth the ravens, and surely He would not forget a little Bessie whose father is a drunkard and whose mother is dead. When you lie down, lift your little hearts to God and if you cannot say much or all, think of the little child and that God knows all the rest. None of you are too young or small to pray. When we say pray, we mean the same as to say, ask, and where is the little boy or girl that does not ask papa and mamma for what they want?

NOW I LAY ME DOWN TO SLEEP.

There are two little poems, descriptive of a child saying this prayer, that are among the tenderest in our language. We combine into one the best of both:

Golden head, so slowly bending,
Little feet so white and bare,
Dewy eyes, half shut, half opened,
Lisping out her evening prayer.

"Now I lay,"—repeat it darling—
"Lay me," lisped the tiny lips
Of my darling, kneeling, bending
O'er the folded finger tips.

"Down to sleep,"—"To sleep," she murmured,
And the curly head bent low;
"I pray the Lord,"—I gently nodded,
"You can say it all I know."

"Pray the Lord."—the sound came faintly,
Fainter still—"My soul to keep;"
Then the tired head fairly nodded,
And the child was fast asleep.

But the dewy eyes half opened
When I clasped her to my breast,
And the dear voice softly whispered,
"Mamma, God knows all the rest."

O, the rapture, sweet unbroken,
Of the soul who wrote that prayer!
Children's mystic voices floating
Up to Heaven, record it there.

If of all that has been written,
I could choose what might be mine,
It should be that child's petition,
Rising to the throne divine.

—Washington Reporter.

THE DRUNKARD'S DAUGHTER.

"Out in the gloomy night, sadly I roam,
I have no mother dear, no pleasant home;
No one cares for me, no one would cry
Even if poor little Bessie should die.
Weary and tired I've been wandering all day,
Asking for work, but I'm too small, they say;
Out on the damp ground I must now lay my head;
Father's a drunkard and mother is dead.

We were so happy till father drank rum,
Then all our sorrow and trouble began;
Mother grew pale, and wept every day
Baby and I were too hungry to play;
Slowly they faded till one summer night
Found their dead faces all silent and white;
Then with big tears slowly dropping I said,
Father's a drunkard and mother is dead.

O! if the temperance men only could find
Poor, wretched father, and talk very kind;
If they would stop him from drinking, then
I should be so very happy again.
Is it too late, temperance men? Please try.
Or poor little Bessie must soon starve and die.
All the day long I've been begging for bread
Father's a drunkard and mother is dead."

TO YOUNG PILGRIMS.

A word for those who are young in the service of the Lord, who in their youth are trying to bear the cross. Have you ever felt to lay it down? Does it seem a burden to you almost too much for you to bear? Strive to bear it faithfully, as only those who faithfully bear the cross may hope to wear the crown.

What precious promises God has given us if we do all He has required of us. Are they not worth striving for, promises that the whole world cannot give to us? What great sufferings our Savior had to endure upon the rugged cross for you and I! How can we ever repay that debt of love we owe to Him? We owe Him our service, let us never be ashamed of our lovely Jesus. Let not the world stand between us and our God; stand firm as a rock, leave the world say what it will. If we were of the world the world would love us, but we are not, therefore it hateth us. If we were to gain the whole world and lose our own soul what would it profit us? Let us set our affections upon things above, lay up our treasures in heaven where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt. The things of this world are perishable, therefore let us put on the whole armor of God. Without it we cannot obtain the heirship which is so much desired by all of us. Let us be modest in our apparel, —be separate from the world. We are all soldiers under one Captain, therefore we should be known as such by our uniformity of dress where'er we go. Let us show to the world that we are not ashamed of our Savior, then He will not be ashamed to own us when our days are numbered. The world will not love us any the less for our consistency, they expect it of us and will be astonished to see us waver in our profession. Is it not so young pilgrims?

Let us ever be true to that loving Friend who will be our safe guard through every dangerous way, and then when the night of death shall come, He will be our light through the valley of death and land us safely on fair Canaan's happy shore. What a glorious thought!

Let us try to bear the cross in our youth,
And be faithful to its cause 'till we die;
And with cheerful heart let us move
Then we shall wear a starry crown by and by.

A YOUNG PILGRIM.

CORRESPONDENCE

A Reporter is wanted from every Church in the brotherhood to send us Church news, Obituaries, Announcements or anything that will be of general interest. To insure insertion, the writers name must accompany each communication. Our invitation is not personal but general—please respond to our call.

TASSIMONG, IND., Nov. 11, '72.

Dear Brethren:—If you will send me "prospectus" and an "Almanac" for 1873, I will be found trying to get a few subscribers for the PILGRIM, although I can promise nothing great, as this is rather a poor place to get subscribers to a religious paper. If it was political, or Masonic, or if it savored of popular religion I could promise much more, but as it is something new tending to good, it is not likely to take with the world as well as if it was something new tending to evil.

Truly the devil has been at work in this part of the country. He has instituted all kinds of sects and societies, secret and otherwise. He hath led many into the way that seemeth unto men to be right, but the end of which is death, while those that sound the Gospel in its purity have been few, and the spark which was left without being fanned into a flame, has been blown out with the devil's wind of doctrine.

When we read the PILGRIM and hear of so many meetings and refreshing seasons, Oh, how we wish the time of refreshing would come unto us. We are but four members in all this part of the country, and have had no meeting for just about one year. I would say to those brethren and sisters that know about us, do you not think of us when you are enjoying yourselves with the people of God? Oh yes, we think you do, and we also think and hope you pray for us too. Pray the Lord that he will send laborers into the vineyard, for indeed the harvest is great, but the laborers are very few, in fact not any in this part of God's heritage.

Atheism, Scepticism, and Deism are the prevailing elements here. But how can it be otherwise when they never see the light? It is said that professors of religion are the great cause of so much Scepticism, &c., and I partly believe it. One man will come along and set forth a doctrine proven by Scripture, goes his way and all is well until a second comes along, when he will refute the first doctrine by scripture and establish another, third, fourth and so on even down to Spiritualism, (I would not know what to number it), each respectively refuted and established by the Scriptures. Is it any wonder that scepticism prevails in such a profusion of issues? Is there a remedy? Ministers answer for yourselves.

Could write much more but for brevity sake will close, by asking an interest in the prayers of all the children of God. More anon.

J. B. LAIR.

Dear Pilgrim.;—As there has not yet any Church news appeared in your columns from the Cedar Creek Congregation, I take the liberty of giving some which you may publish if you think proper.

Last spring a year ago, three members came here and last spring six more came, which were brethren Jesse Studebaker, Peter Struble and the writer and families. Bro. Studebaker is in the second degree as a speaker, and Bro. Struble in the first. The Church was organized last August. Two were added to the church by baptism. We had a Lovefeast on the 19th and 20th of October. The ministers present from abroad were Isaac Hershey of Neosho Falls, Woodson Co. Kan., Isaac Studebaker, Carlston Miami Co. Ohio. Bro. Studebaker remained here some three weeks and spoke different times to the people. We hope the brethren will remember us, as we are small in number. Yours in Gospel love. NEWTON D. HADSELL.

Centerville, Anderson Co. Kansas.

A PROPOSITION

TO THE MIDDLE DISTRICT OF PA.

Dear brethren and sisters in the Lord:—I intend to make a proposition to you in the fear of the Lord. Let us show to the world that we have the mind of Christ, "that all men might be saved." I always had something of a missionary spirit, from the fact that one of the first commands is to teach all nations, and when complied with on our part, the promise follows, "I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world," and if not, evidently no promise. My faith is altogether in the promises of God, and the command invariably precedes the promise. These are my reasons for making this proposition, to make another effort in that direction for the benefit of the people, and as I think, the duty of the church, to be considered by my brethren and sisters in the Lord, in order that each church of the Middle District of Pa., introduce it at their council, so that the delegates will be prepared to report at the District Meeting, the conclusion of each individual church concerning the matter. I hope my brethren and sisters will seriously consider the matter, look to the recompense of reward and not to purse only. The proposition will be so easy that it is out of the question to injure any one, so if we can remove the spirit of prejudice against the missionary cause, and have a little more of the spirit of Christ in place of it, I think we will succeed in the plan. The command is "teach all nations," and we cannot remove it, and unless we are all willing to do something towards it, I am assure the command will stand against us, as I am of the promise that follows when complied with.

My dear brethren and sisters, we are all looking for the promise, so let us be careful lest we come short of it. Thank God for the happy promises. Do not forget the command preceding every promise, therefore "let us walk in the light as he is in the light, and we will have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Christ will cleanse us from all sin." May God bless every means of spreading the Gospel of Christ.

Now my proposal alluded to, is to buy a house for worship in the City of Altoona, or buy a lot and build. I think there is more prospect of success in town than in the vicinity if we had a house for worship. The greater part of the city is made up of the working class of men. There are about 12 members living in the city now, and a great many brethren's children. It is evident now that Altoona will be and remain to be the main place for manufacturing stock for the roads, so it will require thousands of hands. Those members living in town now are very anxious and willing too, according to capital, to have a house. Now there is a house for sale built by the United Brethren, a plain substantial house. We have the use of it until sold, by furnishing stoves. I think the man that owns the house proposes to sell at cost, and would like to sell to the Brethren. There is not style enough about it for fashionable churches, therefore he offers the house to the Brethren to use until sold. We have meeting in it every four weeks. However if my brethren and sisters will agree with my plan, a committee will be appointed by the District Meeting to investigate the hous , and see and decide what will be best to do, whether to buy the house, or buy a lot and build one. My plan is to appoint the preachers as agents, in each church to collect 50 cents to each member of each church. I think if we can raise 50 cents for each member in the District we will be able to secure a place for worship. We may have some who cannot pay 50 cents, but think where we have one of them, we have two that can pay one dollar to make up for them.

Be it understood, if the plan is adopted, that the conveyance is to be made to the Brethren of the Middle District of Pa., so that all will have an interest in the house. I think the risk is small and the benefit may be great, at least we can do our duty, and Paul says "Your labor is not in vain in the Lord."

GRABILL MYERS.

UNION DISTRICT, IND., Nov. 21st, 1872.

Dear Editors, and brethren and sisters in the Lord, inasmuch as we love to read church news, we think it our duty to give an occasional report of the progress of Christianity in this part of God's moral vineyard. At present the church is in good progress, all seem strong in the faith of our Lord and Master. At this time your humble servant and young brother in the cause of our Master is somewhat depressed in mind and feels a sadness of heart, being only a few days previous bereaved of our dear father and brother John Hoover, who departed this life Nov. 15th 1872, leaving we the family to mourn the loss of a dear father and brother, who was ever willing to aid and comfort us while here. But we hope our great loss is his eternal gain in the mansions of unending happiness.

The church, indeed, mourns the loss of one of her fathers, who for many years has labored earnestly for the salvation of souls and the upbuilding of Zion. We feel like sheep without a shepherd in the absence of father, and grandfather (Eld. John Knisely) who has been absent so long from us, on a mission of love in the West and far East. This dear brethren is the motive that prompts me to write to you, that I might inform grandfather to immediately return to us. Bro. Adam Appleman rec'd a letter from Brethren Jesse Calvert and James Quinter, stating that they would be with us, Thursday evening Dec. 5 th and hold a series of meetings until Dec 12th 1872, and we the brethren and sisters will inform our brother of the change of time of meeting by the brethren from a distance, for if possible, we want him to come home, and be with us at our series of meetings, for in his absence, one seat is vacant and that too of a father to the church, and the absence of a father from a family can only be supplied by his presence again.

We feel to bless God that if we live in Christ, and die in Christ, we shall all meet again to part no more on Canaan's bright and happy shore. Brethren it makes my heart to rejoice in the God of our salvation for the glorious promises that are made to the meek and humble followers of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. I am young in the cause of my Master, but with such a plain guide as the word of God and His spirit in our hearts we feel strong in the cause of our Savior. I must confess, that since I learned to know God and do his will those moments have been the happiest of my life. I once was a soldier for the flag of our country but now I am a soldier under the banner of King Jesus, fully determined to fight the good fight run the race that is set before me. Brethren and sisters pray more, preach more, and write more for the cause of our Lord and Master and the winning of many souls to God.

Our sabbath school closed for the coming winter and we feel to thank God for so glorious an institution, whereby we can teach the youth of our land the precepts and examples set forth by our Saviour. May the blessings of God and the Communion of the Holy Spirit be with all the true followers of Jesus, is the wishes of your unworthy brother.

WILLIAM G. COOK.

Dear Pilgrim:—The brethren and sisters of the Blackriver Church held a Communion Oct. 9th. Assembled for worship at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at 3 in the afternoon, and at the usual time in the evening. Had quite a pleasant feast, as there was very good order manifested by those present.

The ministers present, outside of our district, were brethren Jacob Garver, H. Worst and Geo. Worst of Wayne Co., D. Workman from Ashland Co. C Wise and J. McMullen of Richland Co. The church here is increasing slowly in number, but we trust we are striving to grow in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. We have had four additions since the first of July, one a young woman, and her brother, a youth of sixteen years, and one an old gray-headed father of nearly 88 years, and one a sick man, who was carried into the water and immersed only about five days previous to his death. This surely should deeply impress the minds of those who are yet out of the ark of safety to prepare while in health for the solemn hour of death.

MARY HOOVER.

Chatham, Ohio.

JAMES CREEK, PA., November 30th '72.

Respected brethren and sisters, this informs you that I am still well, and thankful to God for it, also tender my thanks to all for kindness shown to me where-ever I have been even by the young and especially, the members children. May the Lord bless them all.

I will now give my reasons for not visiting all those that I promised. I had sent appointments from Philada. to Lower Cumberland Church, thence to McVeytown, Mifflin Co., Pa., and from there to James Creek and Coffee Run, thinking at James Creek to inform the brethren at Hopewell, and from there through the Cove, stopping at Clover Creek, and also at Hollidaysburg, with Bro. John H. Stiller, Blair Co., and I had also promised Bro. David Hilderbrand to visit their Church, but as I got to McVeytown, on the 27th of this month I saw the sad news in the PILGRIM of the death of my dear and much esteemed son inlaw, who was appointed to the ministry the same day I was and labored faithfully with me for near 16 years. O, dear brethren and sisters you cannot think how it affected me, I could hardly believe it, but I received a letter from my dear children the next day wishing me to come home, saying they needed my labor there, as our dear brother had died, and Bro. James Quinter and Jesse Calvert would be at our church on the 5th of December, and they wished me to be home. So I hope our dear members will not think hard of me not visiting them as I promised.

On the morning of the 3d, I expect to start for home, but how sad it will appear to return to my brethren and sisters and no more have the pleasure of meeting my co-laborer, but there to see the vacant seat, the bereaved widow and children, and the lonely grave. Not only does the dear brother lie there, but also an affectionate companion, and many more that I hope to meet in that Heavenly home where we will part no more.

I had intended to remain in Pa. until about the 22d of December, but now I shall return to my dear church again, if the Lord will, after eight weeks absence. Dear members, pray for me, and I hope I shall never forget the kindness shown to me by the members in Pa., and if we meet no more on earth, I hope we will meet in Heaven. When I get home, and after our meeting, I will give a more general report of my visit through Pa. and how I found things at home.

Yours in the bonds of Gospel love.

JOHN KNISLEY.

MONEY LIST.

James Guthrie,	$1. 25
Wm. Mallory,	1. 70
E. P. L. Dow,	2. 00
Samuel Lutz,	4 25
Pilot Grove,	5. 00
Samuel Weaver,	3. 50
Maria E. Probst,	1. 25
J. H. Foglesonger,	1. 25
Jno. M. Murray,	1. 50
Rebecca Shaw,	1. 25
J. D. Rosenberger.	5. 00
Eld. Geo Wolf,	8. 00
Lizzie Coble,	2. 50
S. A. Moore,	5. 00
Mary Price,	1. 25
Jacob Weaver,	1. 50
D. D. Shively,	5. 75
S. M. Shuck,	1. 25
J. H. Garman,	2. 00

The Weekly Pilgrim.

JAMES OREEK, PA., Dec. 5th, 1872.

☞ How to send money.—All sums over $1.50, should be sent either in a check, draft or postal order. If neither of these can be obtained, have the letter registered.

☞ When Money is sent, always send with it the name and address of those who paid it. Write the names and post office at plainly as possible.

☞ Make all checks and and drafts payable to H. B. Brumbaugh, and the postal orders make payable at Huntingdon.

☞ If any of our agents have been overlooked in receiving no prospectus, or any wish to become agents, let us know and we will send one, also sample copy of the Pilgrim Almanac.

☞ Every subscriber for 1873, gets a Pilgrim Almanac Free.

MORE INTERESTING.

We are glad to learn that the general impression among our readers is that the Pilgrim is rapidly growing in interest. Why is this? It is because our readers are helping us by contributing to our columns, and our increased circulation. Of late, we have been greatly encouraged in receiving so much interesting correspondence and other matter for publication. Continue in the good work brethren and sisters, the days are now growing short and the evenings long, improve the time in writing for the good of the Church, the encouragement of the saint and for the conversion of the sinner. All be interested in the great work, and we will send to your homes a Pilgrim burthened with the "Good news" of the kingdom of Jesus.

Private Letters.—A large number of our friends have written to us requesting information in regard to how much the poor are to pay, whether we expect all cash, what percentage we give, &c. These have all been answered through the Pilgrim, and therefore we will be excused in not writing private letters. Fearing some of them should have been overlooked, we will answer them again.

First. To the really poor we send the Pilgrim for anything they are able to give from 50 cents up to $1.50.

2d. All those that can well pay cash, we expect them to do so. Such as cannot do this, let them pay it as soon as they can, but should not put it off after they are once prepared to pay it.

3d. The eleventh name gets a free copy. All amounts above that 10 per cent. This we give in books or money, whichever is preferred.

—Renew your subscription at once and get the Pilgrim Almanac free.

A Larger Paper Wanted.—There is still a call for a larger paper similar to the one spoken of some time ago. One of our agents says that for the enlarged paper at $2 00 a year he could twice double, the number of subscribers and do it with less effort than it takes to get his list at present size and price. If all our agents could give us such favorable reports, 1873 would find us greatly enlarged, but for the present we can make no change as we are not sure it would be appreciated, however, during the coming year, we will be glad to have the subject considered and if sufficiently encouraged, we shall not hesitate to make the change. There are many items of general interest in our religious exchanges which we would be pleased to notice, but at present size, it would not be prudent.

The Pilgrim Almanac is sent out this week, to all of our agents, and to those that received prospectus' except those on the single list. They will be furnished as soon as they renew their subscription and we get our new books in order. If any will be so kind as to act agent for us and let us know, we will send them one immediately.

Poor List.—We have commenced a poor list headed with 50 cents. Another brother sends us a large list of names and directs that all his percentage over his subscription shall go for the poor list. Now brethren and sisters who will be on this list of honor We will report once a month. How much shall we have for January 1st. 1873?

Addressing Machine.—We have now received a new and improved Addressing Machine which we expect to use in addressing the next volume of the Pilgrim therefore we ask our agents to send in their lists as soon as possible that we may have the names set up and get things in working order.

More Agents.—All who wish to become agents for us and have no prospectus and Almanac, send to us immediately and they will be sent by return mail, free of charge. Every single subscriber could send us a new subscriber by trying a little. Try it brethren and sisters.

Thos. E. Coffman: We can send you a very pretty Turkey Morocco, gilt edge Hymn book, with clasp, for $1.25. This is the best published by the Church.

Bro. J. H. Garman says:—Our Communion Meeting went off very pleasantly, commencing on the 25th and closing on the 28th of October. Had a very good meeting. Three were added by baptism and two by letter. The members generally seemed to enjoy the meeting very well, and all seemed to take fresh courage. Indeed we think we had the best meeting we ever had.

Original History, May 2d, 1719, was contributed by C. Bomberger for the Pilgrim Almanac, but was too late for insertion, therefore it will appear in the Pilgrim for 1873. It is quite an interesting paper containing many facts concerning the Church's history.

Meetings.—The Brethren of Union Church, Marshall Co., Ind., intend commencing a series of meetings on the 5th of December. Brother Quinter and Calvert are expected to be there.

Proposed Visit.—Eld. Grabill Myers, will visit, God willing, the brethren of the Coventry Church, Chester Co., Pa., on the 7th of January and remain one week.

A Supplement.—It will be noticed that at the head of the title page of the Almanac that it is a "Supplement to the Weekly Pilgrim," therefore no postage on it to subscribers.

Sister M. A. M., of "Our Home," New York. Your favors are received, accept thanks. You owe us nothing more for present volume.

Jonas Price: We do not remember of receiving pay twice, but it is altogether probable that you are right. The Tune Book is sent.

Jno. R. Miller: The name of Henry Hoke was received, is on the list and has been sent with the pack. The trouble must be at their office.

S. M. Pretzman: The other tracts are now sent to you for sister Myers. Have not got her address.

J. B. Wolf: Your Pilgrim is paid to Sept. 1st. Due us on present volume, 35 cents. Your name is booked for 1873.

Daniel Bock: All right.

Only one $1.50 for the Pilgrim a year and a first class Almanac given free to every subscriber.

DIED.

RINEHART.—On November 18, Margaret, daughter of friend John and sister Mary Rinehart, aged 8 years, 9 months and 27 days. Funeral services by Elder J. F. Rohrer and writer. D. F. Good.

BOLLINGER.—In the Blackriver Congregation, Medina Co. Ohio, Oct. 26, 1872, Emanuel Orin, twin son of Bro. Gideon and sister Lydia Bollinger, aged 2 years, 11 months and 3 days. Funeral services improved by Brethren S. Gerver and J. Rittenhouse.

"So fades the lovely blooming flower,
Frail smiling solace of an hour;
So soon our transient comforts fly,
And pleasure only blooms to die.

WUNER.—Also in the same Congregation, Nov. 16th, '72, Bro Jeremiah D. Wuner, aged 35 yrs, 11 mos. and 7 days. Funeral services by Brethren S. Garver, J. Rittenhouse and S. Bollinger, from Rev. 14: 13.

This brother, like many others, while in health, put off making any preparations for death, and when lying upon a sick bed he became deeply impressed with the great need of making peace with his God, he therefore sent for the brethren and made an earnest request to be baptized for the remission of sin. He was carried into the water and immersed, which he bore with much composure, although he was so weak that he was entirely unable to help himself. After he was taken back to the house and his raiment changed, he requested the brethren and sisters to sing and pray with him, as that was all his comfort now. This was only about five days previous to his death. He leaves a wife and three little children to mourn their loss which we hope is his great gain. Mary Hoover.

FESLER.—Fell asleep, in the Lower Fall Creek Church, Madison co., Ind., on the 14th of November, 1872, brother Peter Fesler, aged 66 years, 11 months and 12 days. Funeral services by the Brethren from Rev. 14: 13.

Our old brother was born in Lebanon co., Pa., November 23, 1805, and emigrated in early life to Rockingham co., Va., where he was married to a sister of Eld. Geo. Hoover, and moved from thence to where he died, being a member of the Church for 35 years, 16 years he served faithfully as a deacon. He raised six children, five of whom are members of the same church that he was, three of them deacons and one a minister. Thus the old fathers are falling and leaving the cares of the Church in other hands but if all are like the the brother we have just lost, leaving their footprints on the sands of time, their counsels and precepts in the hearts of those they have left behind, their influence will be felt long after their bodies have mouldered back to dust, for we can truthfully call our deceased brother one of the fathers, he having been in front in counsel, in caring for the poor, in attending to all the pecuniary affairs of the church and in exhorting youthful members in the duties they owe to the Church and to God.

Visitor and Companion please copy.
Martin J. McClure.

HARSHBERGER.—In the Raccoon Creek Church, Montgomery co., Ind., October 4th, 1872, brother Samuel Harshberger, aged about 70 years.

He moved from Bottetourt county, Virginia some years since, to to this county, and soon after became a member of the Church of the Brethren. He was afterwards elected to the office of deacon in the Church, in which office he served very acceptably to all. For several years he has been in the decline of health. Funeral preached on the 13th of October by brother H. D. Davy, to a large congregation of relatives and friends.

CLICK.—In the same District, Montgomery Co., Ind., Oct. 10, 1872, brother John Click, aged 57 years and 15 days.

He was a minister in the Church and very zealous in the good cause, and was well respected by his friends and neighbors. Funeral preached by brethren H. D. Davy and R. H. Miller, to a large number of relations and friends.

Mathias Frantz.

Visitor and Companion please copy.

ANGLE.—At Welsh Run, Pa., October 12th, 1872, sister Eleanora Angle, aged 71 years, 5 months and 28 days.

She died with a good hope of eternal life, Funeral services by David Long and others. She was annointed with oil in the name of the Lord, by Elders Christian Keefer and Geo. Bricker. Wm. Angle.

Companion please copy.

AMERIOAN NICKEL.

In the arts, nickel is rapidly growing into favor as a substitute for silver in plating steel, iron and other metals. Its commercial demand is rapidly increasing, and as it is much cheaper than silver, it will undoubtedly be adopted in the manufacture of many articles as a substitute for that more precious metal. One mine, the Mine La Motte tract, Missouri, was worked from 1850 to 1855. The ore was the sulphuret, associated with lead and copper. About $100 000 was realized from the croppings of the vein. Croppings of nickel ore are found also in Madison, Iron and Wayne counties, Mo. The refined metal is worth $3 per pound. For small coins, it is very useful. The principal supply is at present derived from a single mine in Lancaster county, Pa. It has been worked for seventeen years, and developed to a depth of 200 feet. The length of this lode is between two and three thousand feet, and it produces from four hundred to six hundred tuns per month, employing in the working of the mine a force of 175 men.

CALIFORNIA does everything on the biggest sort of a scale. A bee hive in the rocks in Los Angeles county is reported, and is said to be 160 feet deep, entrance 30 feet wide and 17 feet deep; it contains several tuns of honey. In fact the sweet liquid runs, on warm days, in a small stream from the hive, from which the settlers supply themselves.

CELERY, as an article of dish, is highly recommended for nervousness. A correspondent says he has known persons cured of nervousness, whose hands shook like aspen leaves. He recommended the daily use of it at meal times.

GOOD BOOKS.

Wayer's Works for the Young. Comprising "Hopes and Helps for the Young of both Sexes," $8.00.

Life at Home; or, The Family and its Members. A work which should be found in every family. $1.50. Extra gilt, $2.00.

Hand book for Home Improvement; comprising "How to Write," "How to Talk," How to Behave," and "How to do Business," in one vol. 2.25.

Men and Woman: Considered in their Relations to each Other and to the World. 12mo, Fancy cloth, Price $1.00.

The Right Word in the Right Place. A New Pocket Dictionary and Reference Book. Cloth, 75cts.

Hopes and Helps for the Young of both sexes, Relating to the Formation of Character, Choice of Avocation, Health, Conversation, Social Affection Courtship and Marriage. Muslin, $1.50.

The Emphatic, Diaglott; or The New Testament in Greek and English. Containing the Original Greek Text of the New Testament, with an Interlineary Word for-word English Translation. Price, $4.00; extra fine Binding, $5.00.

Oratory—Sacred and Secular; or, the Extemporaneous Speaker. Price $1.50.

Conversion of St. Paul. 12mo. fine edition, $1. Plain edition, 75 cents.

Man, in Genesis and in Geology; or, the Biblical Account of Man's Creation, tested by Scientific Theories of his Origin and Antiquity. One vol. 12mo, $1.00.

How to read Character, illus. Price, $1.25

Combe's Moral Philosophy,	1.75
Constitution of Man. Combe,	1.75
Education. By Spurzheim.	1.50
Memory—How to Improve it,	1.50
Mental Science, Lectures on,	1.50
Self-Culture and Perfection,	1.50
Combe's Physiology, Illus.	1.75
Food and Diet. By Pereira,	1.75
Natural Laws of Man,	.75
Hereditary Descent,	1.50
Combe on Infancy,	1.50
Sober and Temperate Life,	.50
Children in Health—Disease,	1.75
The Science of Human Life,	3.50
Fruit Culture for the Million,	1.00
Saving nod Wasting,	1.50
Ways of Life—Right Way,	1.00
Footprints of Life,	1.25
Conversion of St. Paul,	1.00

Trine Immersion.

A discussion on Trine Immersion, by letter between Elder B. F. Moomaw and Dr. J. J. Jackson, to which is annexed a Treatise on the Lord's Supper, and on the necessity, character and evidences of the new birth, also a dialogue on the doctrine of non-resistance, by Elder B. F. Moomaw. Single copy 50 cents.

TUNE BOOK.

The Brethren's Tune and Hymn Book, is a compilation of Sacred Music adapted to all the hymns in the Brethren's New Hymn Book. It contains over 350 pages, printed on good paper and neatly bound. We will send it to any address, post paid at $1.25 per copy.

New Hymn Books, English.

TURKEY MOROCCO.

One copy, postpaid, - -	$1.00
Per Dozen, - - - -	11.25

PLAIN ARABESQUE.

One Copy, post-paid, - - -	75
Per Dozen, " - - -	8.50

Ger'n & English, Plain Sheep.

One Copy, post-paid, - -	$1.00
Per Dozen - - - -	11.25
Arabesque Plain, - -	1.00
Turkey Morocco, - - -	1.25
Single German, post paid -	50
Per Dozen, - - - - -	5.50

Trine Immersion

TRACED

TO THE APOSTLES.

Being a collection of historical quotations from modern and ancient authors, proving that a THREE-FOLD Immersion was the only method of baptizing ever practiced by the Apostles and their immediate successors. The author, after proving Trine Immersion to have been the prevailing practice, in baptism, the first 1500 years of the Christian era, commences with the fifth century, and traces a Three-fold Immersion, to within 33 years of the apostle John's death, and then proves it to have been the Apostolic method of baptizing, while Single Immersion was invented not less than 326 years after the death of Christ.

Put up in a neat pamphlet form, with good paper cover, and will be sent, post-paid, on the following terms: One copy, 25 cts; Five copies, $1.10; Ten copies, $2.00.

Address, J. H MOORE,
Urbana, Champaign co., Ill.

Oct. 22.

SALEM COLLEGE.

The Winter term of Salem College will open for the reception of any number of students from all parts on the 11th of Dec., 1872. Ample accommodations and thorough instruction will be given all students who connect themselves with this College. Good board can be had in good families at $2.50 to $3.00 per week or students can board themselves in clubs at $1.25 to $1.50 per week as numbers have done with the consent of the faculty. Special care will be given students who are far from home.

For Catalogues, Scholarships and full particulars address

SALEM COLLEGE,
July 22, '72. Bourbon, Ind.

WANTED BOOK Agents FOR THE GREAT INDUSTRIES

OF THE UNITED STATES;

AN HISTORICAL SUMMARY OF THE ORIGIN, GROWTH AND PERFECTION OF THE CHIEF INDUSTRIAL ARTS OF THIS COUNTRY.

1300 PAGES and 500 ENGRAVINGS.

Written by 20 Eminent Authors, including John B. Gough, Leon Case, Edward Rowland, Jos. B. Lyman, Rev. E. Edwin Hall, Horace Greely, Philip Ripley, Albert Brisbane, F. B. Perkins, etc.

This work is a complete history of all branches of industry, processes of manufacture, etc, in all ages. It is a complete encyclopedia of arts and manufactures, and is the most entertaining and valuable work of information on subjects of general interest ever offered to the public. It is adapted to the wants of the Merchant, Manufacturer, Mechanic, Farmer, Student and Inventor, and sells to both old and young of all classes. The book is sold by agents, who are making large sales in all parts of the country. It is offered at the low price of $3.50, and is the cheapest book ever sold by subscription No family should be without a copy. We want agents in every town in the United States, and no agent can fail to do well with this book. Our terms are liberal. We give our agents the exclusive right of territory. One of our agents sold 133 copies in eight days, another sold 368 in two weeks. Our agent in Hartford sold 397 in one week. Specimens of the work sent to agents on receipt of stamp. For circulars and terms to agents address the publishers.

J. B. BURR & HYDE, Hartford, Conn., Chicago, Ill., or Cincinnati, Ohio.

Menno Simon's COMPLETE WORKS.

In English, translated from the original Dutch or Holland, giving the whole of the great Reformers writings on the subject of Baptism. Price in full sheep $4.50; by mail $5.14.

Address, JOHN F. FUNK & BRO.
Elkhart, Ind.

TRACTS.

"ANXIOUS BENCH RELIGION EXAMINED," BY ELDER J. S. FLORY. A SYNOPSIS OF CONTENTS. An address to the reader: The peculiarities that attend this type of religion. The feelings there experienced not imaginary but real. The key that unlocks the wonderful mystery. The causes by which feelings are excited. How the momentary feelings called "Experimental religion" are brought about, and then concludes by giving that form of doctrine as taught by Jesus Christ and recorded by his faithful witnesses.

COUNTERFEIT DETECTER
or
BAPTISM—MUCH IN LITTLE.

This work is now ready for distribution, and the importance of the subject will speak for it a large demand. It is a short treatise on baptism in tract form intended for general distribution, and is set forth in such a plain and logical manner that a wayfaring man though a fool, cannot err therein. Either of the above tracts sent postpaid on the following terms: Two copies, 10 cts, 10 copies 40 cents, 25 copies 70 cents, 50 copies $1.00, 100 copies $1.50.

1870 1872

DR. FAHRNEY'S

Blood Cleanser or Panacea.

A tonic and purge, for Blood Diseases. Great reputation. Many testimonials. Many ministering brethren use and recommend it. Ask or send for the "Health Messenger." Use only the "Panacea" prepared at Chicago, Ills., and by

Dr. P. Fahrney's Brothers & Co.,

Aug. 3-pd. Waynesboro, Franklin Co., Pa.

25 Ablest Tariff Journal in the U. S.
THE AMERICAN WORKING PEOPLE

Published monthly, is a welcome visitor at 100.000 Firesides. Finely printed, handsomely illustrated, ably edited—has no rival! $1.50 per year, sent on trial 3 months for 25 cents.

IRON WORLD PUB. CO., Pittsburgh, Pa.

25 THE IRON WORLD is the Largest and most Valuable Metal Price Current in the world. $4.00 per year. Sent on trial one month for 25 cents. All the State Geologists are Contributors. IRON WORLD PUB'G CO., Pittsburgh, Pa.

$5 to $20 per day! Agents wanted! All classes of working people, of either sex, young or old, make more money at work for us in their spare moments or all the time than at anything else. Particulars free. Address G. Stinson & Co., Portland, Maine.

HUNTINGDON & BROAD TOP RAIL ROAD

Winter Arrangement.

On and after Tuesday, Oct. 4, 1872, Passenger trains will arrive and depart as follows:

Trains from Huntingdon South.				Trains from Mt. Dal's moving North.
MAIL. A. M.	ACCOM P. M.	STATIONS.		MAIL. P. M	ACCOM A. M.
*le*8 00	LE5 50	Huntingdon,	AR	3 20	AR9 00
8 08	5 57	Long Siding		3 12	8 48
8 24	6 10	McConnelstown		2 56	8 37
8 30	6 17	Pleasant Grove		2 50	8 30
8 45	6 30	Markleshurg		2 37	8 17
9 00	6 44	Coffee Run		2 23	8 01
9 07	6 52	Rough & Ready		2 15	7 53
9 20	7 05	Cove		2 01	7 40
9 24	7 10	Fishers Summit		1 57	7 35
9 44 ar	7 30	Saxton	dep	1 37	le 7 15
9 54
10 10		Riddlesburg		1 19
10 17		Hopewell		1 12
10 34		Piper's Run		12 56
10 52		Tatesville		12 38
11 05		Bloody Run		12 24
*r*11 10		Mount Dallas		12 20

JOHN M'KILLIPS, Supt

SHOUP'S RUN BRANCH.

LE10 00	LE7 40	Saxton.	AR	1 30	AR7 10
10 15	7 55	Coalmont.		1 15	6 55
10 20	8 00	Crawford.		1 10	6 50
AR10 30	AR8 10	Dudley	LE	1 00	LE6 40

Bro'd Top City from Dudley 2 miles by stage.

Time of Penna. R. R. Trains at Huntingdon.

EASTWARD.			WESTWARD.
Hbg Ac.	9 24	A M	Cin. Ex.	2 19	A. M.
Mail	3 30	P. M	Pc'f Ex.	7 45	"
Cin. Ex.	6 55	"	Mail	5 40	P. M.
Phil. Ex	11 15	"	W. Pass.	11 52	A. M.

The Weekly Pilgrim.

Published by J. B. Brumbaugh, & Co.

Edited by H. B. & Geo. Brumbaugh.

CORRESPONDING EDITORS.

D. P. Sayler, Double Pipe Creek, Md.

Leonard Furry, New Enterprise, Pa.

The Pilgrim is a Christian Periodical, devoted to religion and moral reform. It will advocate in the spirit of love and liberty, the principles of true Christianity, labor for the promotion of peace among the people of God, for the encouragement of the saints and for the conversion of sinners, avoiding those things which tend toward disunion or sectional feelings.

TERMS.

Single copy, Book paper,	$1.50
Eleven copies, [eleventh for Agt.]	$15.00

Any number above that at the same rate,

Address.

H. B. BRUMBAUGH.
James Creek,
Huntingdon county Pa.

Weekly Pilgrim.

"REMOVE NOT THE ANCIENT LANDMARKS WHICH OUR FATHERS HAVE SET."

VOL. 3. JAMES CREEK, PENNSYLVANIA, DECEMBER 12, 1872. NO. 50

THE MASTER'S CALL.

They tell me a solemn story, but it is not said to me.
For in its sweet unfolding my Savior's love
I see.
They say that at any moment the Lord of life may come.
To lift me from this cloud land into the light of home.

They say I have no warning—I may not even hear
The rustling of His garments as He softly draweth near;
Suddenly, in a moment, upon my ear may fall
The summons to leave our homestead, to answer the Master's call.

Perhaps He may come in the noontide of some bright and sunny day,
When, with dear ones all around me, my life seems bright and gay.
Pleasant must be the pathway, easy the shining road,
Up from this dimmer sunlight into the light of God.

Perhaps He will come in the stillness of the mild and quiet night,
When the earth is calmly sleeping 'neath
the moon'beams silvery light;
When the stars are softly shining o'er the slumbering land and sea,
Perhaps in the holy stillness the Master will come for me.

I think I would rather hear it, that voice so low and sweet,
Calling me out of the shadows, my Blessed
Lord to meet,
Up through the glowing splendors of a starry, earthly night,
To "see the King in His beauty," in a land of purer light.

—Parish Visitor.

FINISH THY WORK.

Finish thy work; the time is short,
The sun is in the West;
The night is coming on; 'till then
Think not of rest.

Yes, finish all thy work, then rest:
'Till then, rest never;
The rest prepared for thee by God
Is rest forever.

Finish thy work, then wipe thy brow,
Ungird thee from thy toil;
Take breath, and from each weary limb
Shake off the soil.

Finish thy work, then rest in peace,
Life's battle fought and won!
And so to thee, thy Master's voice
Shall say, Well done!

Finish thy work, then take thy harp,
Give praise to God above;
Sing a new song of endless joy
And Heavenly love.

Give thanks to Him who held thee up
In all thy path below,
Who made thee faithful 'till the end,
And crowns thy brow.

—Selected.

ORIGINAL ESSAYS.

HOLY SPIRIT—WHEN RECEIVED.

BY ELD. J. S. FLORY.

In touching upon the subject of the Holy Spirit—when received, we are aware that there are a difference of opinion in the minds of some. Our motive is simply to advance a few ideas and a word of caution to our dear brethren and sisters, hoping we all may be guided by the influence of that Holy Spirit that should cause us to "all speak the same thing" for in union there is strength, in harmony pleasure, and in love unfeigned there is power.

Jumping at conclusions relative to the principles of religion, has caused an incalculable amount of mischief in the religious world. For instance the taking of abstract ideas or sayings advanced by Christ or His Apostles, touching certain individual cases and using them as though they were absolute doctrines of the Gospel plan of salvation. We cannot be too careful how we come to conclusions upon such important matters. The whole tenor of God's plan of salvation must be kept in view and God's word be held inviolate though it be to the overthrow of feelings or former convictions.

The New Testament order of God's grace teaches conclusively no gift of the Holy Ghost, proper, before the remission of sins, and no remission of sins before baptism. This truly logical fact should settle the matter forever, and does with the humble writer. Upon the same principle or hypothesis of reasoning that is used to show that Peter on the day of Pentecost had no allusion to water baptism, or Christ did not mean "born" of literal water, we can reason away water baptism altogether. Peter said, repent and be baptized [illegible] and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost. He did not say repent and ye shall be baptized and shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost. In the latter saying there would have been some ground for supposing Peter had an allusion above, to the spiritual baptism, but as he says and "be baptized" it is evident he had reference to that ordinance that Christ had commanded them to attend to and then God would grant the promise as the word shall implies he would. It is clear Peter meant just what he said—that they were to repent of their sins and with faith believing in God and his promises, go on and submit themselves to be baptized by the Apostles as Jesus had commanded they should, and then ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost.

A proper understanding of the range, office and powers of the Holy Spirit will enable us to have a more harmonious view of the question. We remark, the spirit may be fitly represented as a star that "giveth light, that lighteth every man." Without this light it is impossible to live spiritually. Without it the sinner would be forever groping in darkness therefore it is needful that the spirit's influence operate upon the unregenerate, even in the beginning, in the "drawings of the Father." And thus as a light shining in darkness the Spirit is at work and continues, if not intercepted, to give life and light to the soul that was "dead in trespasses and sins." Not only is the Spirit at work but Jesus is knocking at the heart. The love of the Father and merits of Christ are brought to view by that light which shineth more and more in the soul causing the individual to be led to God, or toward God, who at the promised point—that of obedience—meets him, and there it is Christ's merits centre and there the glorious star in all its fulness not only sheds its refulgent light into the soul but enters within the temple and the whole "building" is lit up with the "glory of God." God is there in the Holy Spirit to "commune with thee of all things whatsoever he has commanded." The Kingdom of Heaven is set up "within." Being born of water and the spirit "old things have passed away" and all things have "become new" and as an adopted child in the family of God they live in a new life and breath the breath of that new life which is "hid in Christ." This glorious consumation and divine recreation completed, follows "being born again," "be baptized;" "being buried with Christ in baptism;" being planted together in the likeness of his death" and arising "in the likeness of his resurrection."

Naturally speaking, by way of illustration, we know the child from its earliest embryo state until its birth has life to some extent, but does not live a separate or distinct life, breathe the breath of that life to which it is tending, nor is it a recognized child of the family until it is born. So the soul into which the "seed" the word of God has fallen and the light and influence of the Spirit causes to vegitate and germinate, has life to some extent, but not until regeneration has its fulfillment and a soul is born, not of corruptible seed but of incorruptible seed the word of God," "born of water and the Spirit," into the family of God, can it breathe the breath of that new life and live a separate life surrounded by a divine atmosphere.

To suppose there must be a visible or outward token accompanying every one who receives the Holy Spirit has about the same authority to bolster it up as that every "Apostle" or true convert now must have the power to work miracles. In olden times God did upon several occasions give evidence of his presence by objective signs, but does not, in the gospel, teach that now when we draw nigh to him he will draw nigh to us in a great visible light, sound, or "burning bush." On the day of Pentecost an objective sign accompanied the descent of the Holy Spirit by a "sound like a mighty rushing wind," but in these days we have unscriptural sounds after the order of "rushing winds of doctrine" which we are commanded to go not after. God's evidences are in the "still small voice" rather than in the whirlwinds or earthquake commotions. There ARE unmistakable evidences that follow the reception the Holy Spirit, such as never claiming the reception of the same, independent of God's promises, and a cheerful willingness to be obedient to all the requirements of Jesus and the "least commandment," a separating from the world and such an entire consecration of the whole person to God as to be a pattern of practical Christianity. We now have the written word by which we may know whether we have passed from death to life, which in connection with our experience and conscientious convictions will give us the best of evidence that "God worketh in us to will and to do," without those "peculiar feelings" which are not in themselves a sure test, because it is a fact we generally feel as we believe! Whether right or wrong, all the same.

It is said Christ's blood was shed "for the remission of sins."

Does not every professor believe that? Certainly.

It is also said "Be baptized for the remission of sins."

Does every professor believe that? Hardly.

And yet given in the same words and by the same authority, and we must believe the one if we believe the other. And then it is settled that the reception of the Holy Spirit follows baptism in water, being a fit subject; for surely no one will argue the reception of the Holy Spirit is before the remission of sins!

As God is willing to accept of the atonement made by Christ, unto the remission of "the sin of the world," so he is willing, likewise, to grant pardon unto all by the remission of our sins through the merits of Christ, upon condition we believe, repent and are baptized when we shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit, and say truly, "by grace are we saved."

NEW YEAR.

REFLECTIONS OF THE PAST, AND PREPARATIONS FOR THE FUTURE.

Time passeth, O, how swiftly! Again my brethren, sisters and friends, readers of the PILGRIM, are we at the eve of another year, teaching us that time flieth as the shadow over the meadow when the clouds are driven by a fierce wind. How appropriate the expression "Man is like to vanity; his days are as a shadow that passeth away." Is it not but just to duly reflect upon the vicissitude of life and the condition of our own individual self, the relationship in which we stand toward our God, in whose hand our life is here, and in whose power, according to justice, it is to assign our future eternal destiny as our individual work shall be in this life? O let our faces be turned unto the Lord God in gratitude and thanksgiving for the manifestation of his abounding goodness toward in sparing our unprofitable lives, for the blessings lavished on us for the sustenance and support of our lives temporally, for we acknowledge God to be the author and dispenser of every blessing for the maintenance of man and beast. "Thou preservest them all and the hosts of heaven worshipeth thee, in whose hand is the soul of every living thing, and the breath of all mankind." "O Lord thou preservest man and beast". "He hath left not himself without witness, in that he did good, and gave us rain from heaven, and fruitful seasons, filling our hearts with food and gladness" He hath filled our storehouses with corn, and our granaries with wheat. Withheld epidemics and general pestilence, and blessed our country with a general good. He hath enlightened the nations by the liberal distribution of the blessed Bible, and augmented the facility of reading it through the strenuous efforts and labors of the board of education in the establishing of schools for the civilization of the heathen nations. Caused the hearts of our dear brethren and ministers of the Gospel to be more zealously engaged to spread the unalloyed truth where it never had been preached before, and under God's blessing, many have renounced the unfruitful works of darkness, and joined in with the Church of the living God—the pillar and ground of truth. These things are brought about by the overruling Providence of God, who can sway the heart of man to carry out his designs though they know Him not.

A special reminiscence of God's Providence at this time, at the close of another revolution of time, my dear readers, is indispensibly necessary to call forth in our hearts adoration, glory, honor, praises, thanksgiving and holy gratitude toward Him who has loved us and redeemed us thro' the blood of His Son, Jesus Christ our Savior.

Though man has been favored with many blessings, and many were made glad to realize them; yet were they not exempt from trial and visitations in order to remind the unwary and forgetful of their duty, warn the the sinner of his wickedness, and to chastise the rebellious of their presumptuous ungodly course they pursue in showing them the utter inability of man to avoid death and subsequent judgment, if precious time is trifled away in fighting against God. Yes, many a fireside, which in the year now nearly past, was one moment joyous and in the height of merriment, the next moment wrapt up in lamentation and mourning by the loss of all they possessed, or what the cause of deeper anguish, the death of a father, a mother, a son, a daughter, a relation, a friend or dear, loving associate, casting gloom and distress on the bereft when the solemn truth of Job 34: 20 is realized; "In a moment shall they die, and the people shall be troubled at midnight and pass away; and the mighty shall be taken away without hand." How forcibly was this truth verified in this year in so many meeting with an untimely end, we mean not dying by the course of nature. Reflect for a moment, dear readers, O how many! Can we call to mind the vicissitudes of accidents by which man met an untimely grave? Let us try. Fire, the terrible destroyer, has consumed some to ashes, others burned to a crisp, hardly recognizable. Water, the most powerful element, has swallowed up in the depths of the sea by shipwreck or fire, and others met equal death by floods and inundations caused by tremendous rain, melting of snow, and waterspouts Dreadful storms and tornadoes have visited different sections and destroyed many lives. Convulsions of the earth, such as volcanic eruptions casting forth burning lava, in addition to earthquakes, the rolling to and fro of the earth caused whole cities to tumble down to the burying of their inhabitants in ruin, besides famine, with its associate, pestilence, sweeping thousands to eternity. And what shall I more say? Space would not permit me to notice the thousands killed on the Railroads, murders on the highway, self destruction and manslaughter which strikes terror to the soul to think of it. Yet amidst all these scenes, we see man living as secure and unconcerned about his eternal destiny, as though he were designed to live here forever. But let us come nearer home. Doth not God call from out of our midst, even by the course of nature, every day one here, another there, infants, young, middle aged, old and hoary-headed sires, yea, fathers and mothers in Israel to their long home? How many can we recollect, of our associates in this year which had to pay the debt of nature, and we are still here? Fathers and mothers saw their children buried, brother and sister their brother and sister, children their father and mother, husband his wife and the wife her husband, causing gloom and anguish, sorrow and deep mourning, and sad bereavement over their heretofore happy and joyous family. Can we sympathize with them? Do we try to comfort them? Have we wept with them when they were weeping? Did we help to bear their burden? We know what is past but we know not what is in the future. Let us each one ask these solemn questions for our own individual benefit, and profit thereby:

Am I to die the coming year? If so, have I an evidence from the Scriptures that I am prepared? How did I spend the passing year? Have I devoted myself to the service of God? Did I make any progress in my Christian journey? Did I through my deportment of life and holy conversation, cause any to embrace the faith once delivered to the saints? Is the service of God my chief delight? Did I do my duty in watchfulness and prayer to God night and day, for myself, for all saints, for sinners, and for all conditions of mankind according to the will of God? Am I free from the service of sin? If we lack in any of these things, let us amend speedily and commence the year in the service of God. Let the watchword be "Prepare to meet thy God."

LEONARD FUHRY.

PASSOVER OF THE LAW—PASSOVER OF THE GOSPEL.

Now to the second, or passover of the Gospel. After two days was the feast of the passover, and of unleavened bread, and the chief priests and the scribes sought how they might take him by craft and put him to death." Mark 11: 1. Again the 12th ver. "And the first day of unleavened bread, when they killed the passover; his disciples said unto him, where wilt thou, that we go and prepare, that thou mayest eat, the passover." Refer, also to Matthew 26th chap. Luke 22d, and John 13th. "And he sent Peter, and John saying, go and prepare us the passover, that we may eat, and they said, unto him, where wilt that we prepare, and he said, behold when ye are entered into the city, there shall meet you a man bearing a pitcher of water; follow him into the house, where he entereth in; and ye shall say unto the good man of the house, the master saith unto thee, Where is the guest chamber, where I shall eat the passover with my disciples? And he will shew you a large upper room, furnished; there make ready." In the passages just quoted, we notice several facts of particular note. First, two passovers, distinctly mentioned, or referred to, and the terms used to express are so analogous, that a large mass of persons have presumed they refer to one, and the same thing. The first day of the feast, referred to, by the Evangelists, Matthew, Mark and Luke, according to proper chronology signifies just one day, or twenty-four hours before the time of the Jews passover. This evidenced, by the fact that the Evangelist, John 13: 1, says, "Before the feast of the passover," 2 ver. and supper being ended." Also John 13: 28, states, that when they led "Jesus from Caiaphas, unto the hall of Judgement, and it was early; and they themselves went not into the Judgment hall lest they should be defiled, but that they might eat the passover. Pilate, then went out and said unto them, "what accusation bring you against the man, &c." This took place after he washed the feet of his disciples, eat the supper, gave the Communion after he was betrayed; led to Annes the high priest, and still the Jews passover was in the advance. We would here observe, that we notice that the passover remained valid, until the death of the testator, which took place about the time all the lambs of Israel were weltering in their blood, when Jesus said "it is finished," and bowed his head, and gave up the Ghost. The beginning of the gospel took place with John the Baptist, Mark 1 chap. and finished by the proclamation upon the cross, "it is finished." The Law and the Gospel interloped here for a period of about three years. But as soon as the testator died, upon the cross, the law and the ceremonies ceased to be valid, or of force; and the gospel or will became in force. The type ceased, and the antetype became the power of God unto salvation. While the Jewish passover, continued to the time of the death of Jesus, the Gospel passover is to be perpetuated to the end of time.

Now we will note in order, the characters of the passover that Peter and John went and did prepare as directed by Jesus himself. The man that bore a pitcher of water shewed the place, "furnished and prepared a large upper room." There they should make ready. By the words furnish and prepared, we understand the things got together, necessary for the occasion. The person, in all probability, who got the things together was the man bearing a pitcher of water, who was a disciple of Jesus and previously instructed to the occasion. In the evening, when he came with the twelve Apostles, to introduce this new or antetype order, he found occasion to use water, basin, towel, a meal, (supper) bread and wine, which surely must have been among the things furnished or prepared by the disciple, bearing a pitcher of water, and gotten ready for use by Peter and John. Supper being ended, (or in readiness. "He riseth from Supper, and laid aside his garment, and took a towel and girded himself." By this we infer to set down to a meal made ready by Peter and John, a full meal, and he rose up from the same. He could not have eaten the meal before rising up, or he would have rose up, from the table or board. This idea is further confirmed by the fact of Jesus washing their feet before the Communion of bread and wine, and yet eating between the washing of feet and the Communion, which was the supper referred to, because three Evangelists testify that "as they did eat, Jesus took bread and blessed and brake it, and gave to them, and said: take, eat; this is my body &c. Now for further testimony and particulars of the institution of the Lord's appointment, let the reader refer again to John 13, Luke 22; Mark 14 and Matthew 26 chap. and in substance we have this; He rose from supper, laid aside his garments washed their feet; sat down again; talked with them; commenced eating the meal or supper; made manifest the traitor, by giving the sop; took bread and gave thanks and break it, and said; "take, eat, this is my body," broken for you, and in like manner also, the cup, saying, "this cup is the new testament in my blood, as oft as you eat of this bread and drink of this cup, you do show the Lord's death till he come."

The reader and inquirer can plainly discover the difference; and object of the two institutions, and as being distinctly seperate, yet following each other, and Jesus, in introducing this passover in the new economy of grace, practically, never eat during the time of his ministration, the Jews passover, but gave the new by theory and practice to be perpetuated to the end of time. D. F. Good.

LOOKING FOR THE LANDMARKS.

Brethren Editors of the Pilgrim: Your title is a very excellent one, one that should be much coveted by every lover of truth, but the query may come up, what do we understand by the word pilgrim? Well, I will try to give my humble opinion about it. It is the very motto that follows the heading of the paper: "Remove not the ancient landmarks which our fathers have set." This we hope is the mind of all our dear pilgrim brethren and sisters. But it is argued that we live in a progressive age. Well, be it so in a certain measure, but we fear the progression is too much of a worldly nature, as the writer of "My Lantern" has it in noticing some of the things he has seen in his travels as a pilgrim, which may not be so pleasing to some. If it is done to reproach and to belittle one another, that would not be right, but if it is done as the Apostle Paul directs his son Timothy, 2d Tim. 4; 2, then let it go on and preach with all might and power, in season and out of season, but with all long suffering and doctrine to keep to the "landmarks of our fathers," for we are sorry to say it and much more sorry to see it, that there is not that distinguishing difference between the Kingdom of Christ and that of the world as the landmarks formerly indicated. There is not the self denial, not the transforming, not letting the light shine as it should to expel darkness by showing to the world, good works by precept and example in our dealings and the things we delight in, such as costly houses and then to furnish them about equal with the world's, horses to delight the eye and satisfy the pride of life, also fine finished carriages, which cost much more than is really necessary for convenience, comfort or service, with many other things that might be named, but we will now turn to our bodies, which the Apostle says is the temple of the Holy Ghost, 1 Cor. 6; 19. When I was a boy some 40 or 50 years ago, the "landmarks" were so plain to be seen that we could pretty well tell who were brethren by their appearance and dress, but how is it now? May I have the privilege to answer? I am often made to feel sad and mortified when traveling where I am a stranger by face, that I cannot discern in many cases, between those that are brethren and those that are not, and just for the want of the uniform. Here some will call me a critic, or too particular. Let us hear Paul on the subject, Gal. 6; 17. Now we do not think that the Apostle only had reference, in reasoning with the Gallatians, to the marks and stripes that were made on his body by cruel scourgings by wicked men, but we believe that he was known as a pilgrim and stranger by his appearance, separate and apart from the world, which we claim should be more of a distinguishing trait in our day and time, not that we claim that religion or Christianity consists only in outward appearance, no, no, it must be directed by the mind to the heart, and by the Word of God, when rightly seated there, it will yield forth the peaceful fruits of the spirit, which is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance, against such there is no law." Gal. 5; 22-23. We now close our remarks, dear pilgrims, by a solemn appeal to you, do not remove "the ancient landmarks."

J. P. Lerew.

Latimore, Pa.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Continued from 397th page.

NOTES OF TRAVEL.

J. S. FLORY.

Early on the morning of the 15th of Nov., took the train at the Falls of Kanawha, and after a few hours ride arrived at St. Albans, at the mouth of Coal river, set out for Bro. P. A. Fisher's, his little son having come on the way to meet me. The day was cold and windy. In good time we arrived at Bro Fishers, in Putman county where we were well entertained by that kind family until next morning, when Bro. Fisher and daughter accompanied me on my way to Lincoln Co. The day was snowy and stormy, at 11 o'clock had meeting at Sand Fork school-house, also at night. Next day, Sunday 17th, meeting at the same place, and at night at J. M. Dinges, next day at Sugar Tree school-house, and at night at G. Davis' on Turkey Creek, Putman Co. Next day at 11 o'clock meeting at Mt. Moriah, and at 3 o'clock at Mrs. S. Alford's where two were baptized in the icy waters. Meeting next day at Elizabeth church and the following day (Thursday), meeting at Island Creek, Kanawha Co., at 11 o'clock, and at night at Upper Falls of Coal, in this neighborhood had two applicants for baptism. Early next morning set out for St. Albans where Bro. Perry met me and took me to his home on the Kanawha, meeting at night at Pese Valley S. H., also next day at 11 o'clock and at night in the Baptist meeting house, next day, Sunday, at 11 o'clock and at night at Lion S. H.,—three more expressed a wish to unite with the Church. Next day meeting at Robson's S. H., after which two precious souls, citizens of Charleston were baptized, meeting at night in the city. Next day at 2 o'clock P. M., took the train and arrived at home late at night the same evening; found all well, thanks to the Giver of all good, was gone 13 days, attended 18 meetings, there were 8 converts that expressed a desire to unite with the Church, with a good prospect of more soon. To one and all that were so good and kind as to favor me in all needful ways, I hereby acknowledge my most sincere thanks and pray the Lord will abundantly bless them for their love and kindness. And to the dear members I would say, be of good cheer, persevere in the good cause and many others around you will soon get tired of sin and the glare of "popular" religion and seek to be saved upon the terms of the Gospel. To you that have just been initiated into the Church some of whom are yet young, we would say you have made a good confession of faith and willingly covenanted with God your Heavenly Father to consecrate yourselves wholly to your blessed Savior, and in and through His love you hope, no doubt, to gain the immortal crown of glory, oh, then watch and pray lest ye enter into temptation, and may you have grace sufficient to successfully encounter every conflict in life. Acquit yourselves as valiant soldiers of the cross until the victory is won and we all meet to part no more.

Dear Brethren.:—I am happy to inform you that I am succeeding finely in getting subscribers to the ever welcome Pilgrim. The members here think they could not do without it and think it is getting more interesting every number. Please send me another Almanac (It is sent.) They give good satisfaction, all that see them are highly pleased and are quite anxious to get them. Send them along as soon as possible.

We are still laboring for the prosperity of Zion, and the good cause is moving slowly forward. We look upon the Pilgrim as a great help in keeping the Church alive and up to duty. "My last ra" is doing a good work as we can already see the difference behind the desk. Such hints if given in the spirit of love are in season, and may be the means of working a reformation in some of our customs which are not in harmony with the teachings of Christ and the Apostles nor according to the "ancient landmarks." Brethren when we go to preach, let us feel the great responsibility resting upon us and that precious souls are at stake. Let us go about the work in earnest and not try to shun the great work laid upon us.

The weather at times has been extremely cold with some snow. The horse disease is among us and but few are to be seen on the roads and in consequence, our congregations are smaller than usual as none can attend except those in walking distance. On last Sabbath there was not a single horse to be seen at the church. Hoping that the Lord will abundantly bless you in your responsible position and that the Pilgrim may gain many new pilgrim homes for 1873; I remain yours in Christ. D. T.

"UNCLE DAVIT'S" LETTER.

We give the following extract from the Telescope for the instruction of our readers. He manifests quite a lovely disposition. He sees some things he don't like but don't condemn the paper on that account, and if his articles are not published, he still takes it right along.

"Ven I saihs dat I ish no grate scholar, vy, it ish chusht so; but ven I sees dings don't go rite, I chusht feels as if I musht speck my mint rite out, and I can say dat I hav bin dinking on dis subject for years pasht, but vas afraid to write, so I vaits, and vaits, put nobody saish de dings vot I vants said, so I must chust speck myself.

I hash took ant red de Teleschope for more as schwantich yore, and I likes to take it; but I sees so many biecces in it I don't like. Some of de breachers is all de time writing about gitten more pay, and it chust looks as if de mempers of de church had called dem breachers to breach pekaus dey are always scholting at de mempers. Now Mishter Editor, if you bleas, I will give you my mint about dis ding of de breacher always telling de mempers dey musht pay de breacher better, and if ye don't, den dey say "Ve vill chust stop a breachen, and go into de stohr, or someding dat vill pay, and de shaeps and de lambs may chust go."

I dinks dish all ish rong, and de more dey dish ting, vy, de more dey don't get pait. But now I vill say dat if de Mashter calls the breacher to breach, He ish de employer, and I dink He will pay etra breacher vot trushts in Hime. Ish it not said, 'Lo I am with you alvay?' Ant wot for? Not chust to look on, but to help to breach in Sphirit ant mit power; and den de mempers dey feels goot, and sinners feel dat de Lord ish dare, and so de peoples all say: 'Now dish ish a good breacher, ve musht give him all hish pay.' Dat ish vot de Savior meen by peing mit de breacher.

But chusht now I remember dat one off our goode bishops—dat one vot says he ish de longest bishop—weil he rites biecces on de breachers, and he saihs dat day musht stay in de call. And so all de breachers say. But den, ven de mempers don't come up mit de pay, vy, den de call ish no more. If de breacher ish called, he musht breach, pay or no pay, until de Lord gift him clear. And if de breacher does right and de mempers are stingy, den dey are not chusht right; but de Mashter vill call dem up for dat.

Now I musht close, for my biece ish more dan de editor vill brint, and I expect it vill go vere de rich man's krums went,—under de table. But den I vill not git mat, but vill take de Teleschope right on, and vill rite agin, if de breachers don't giff up writen such big dry biecces about gitten more salry." — Religious Telescope.

WORK OF THE SPIRIT

The mightiest forces in the universe are silent forces. Who ever heard the budding of an oak? Who was ever deafened by the falling of the dew? Who was ever stunned by a solar eclipse? So it is with the august phenomenon of a change of heart. So far as we know, it is the most radical change man can experience. It is a revolutionary change. Still a change of heart is not an unnatural change. It is not necessarily even destructive of self possession. God employs in it an instrument exquisitely adjusted to the mind of man: as an intelligent and free being. Truth may act in it with an equipoise of forces as tranquil as that of gravitation in the orbit of the stars.

No, it is not of necessity a tumult tuous experience to which God calls us when he invites us to be saved. By what emblem have the Scriptures expressed the person of the Holy Ghost? Is it an eagle? "And John bare record, saying, I saw the Spirit descending like a dove." "Come," is the select language of inspiration; "Come and I will give you"—what? a shock, the rack, a swoon? No; I will give you "rest." "Come, and ye shall find"—what? struggle, terror, torture? No; ye shall find—"peace". "Come ye"—come who? "Let him that is athirst come. And whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely".— Dr. A. Phelps

PRAYER.

Prayer does not consist in empty compliments to God, or fulsome eulogies to the Almighty. Many who ought to know better, seem to think so. They spend half the time devoted to public prayer in complimenting the Divine Being,—telling him how grand, sublime and glorious he is in his perfections. Instead of confession in excession, supplication and giving of thanks, there arises as a stench in the nostrils of the Almighty, a round of fulsome eulogies from sinners. Instead of praying for the people and to God they pray at the people, and from God.

Prayer does not consist in exhortation. Some people's prayers consist of these two parts: First, heavy and turbid compliments to God. Second, vapid, verbose exhortations to the people. The people are invited to prayer and instead of hearing and uniting in sending up the voice of supplication, their ears are berated with hortatory exclamations and appeals. We have heard preachers spend one half the five minutes some of them devote to prayer in this kind of exercise. It is not prayer. Don't know what to call it. Thousands of hungry hearts turn away from such altars, empty and dissatisfied. "Ye ask and receive not, because ye ask amiss."— N. O. Advocate.

GENERAL INTELLIGENCE.

THE REV. Spurgeon is said to be seriously ill.

THE OLDEST Methodist Church in the United States is situated on Fourth below Vine, and is now 103 years old.

ELD. JOHN KNISLEY says that while in Germantown Pa., he saw a little stool in the church there over 100 years old.

The lady members of the First Baptist church in Nashville, Tenn., have agreed that they will dispense with all finery on Sunday—wearing no jewels but consistency, and hereafter appear at church in plain calico dresses.

The census of 1870 reports 72,459 church organizations in our land, and 63,082 edifices, capable of seating 21,665,062 persons, and valued at $354,483,581. This includes all religious—Christian and heathen, Jew, Gentile, and Mormon, Protestant and Papal.

ON SATURDAY Nov. 30th, a terrible glycerine explosion occurred near Scrubgrass and along the Alleghany Valley railroad. Two men were blown to atoms and the inhabitants within ten miles around felt the shock as if an earthquake had occurred. There was not enough of the unfortunate men found to fill a cigar box, so terrible was the explosion.

THE BAPTISTS of the United States attribute their success over that of their brethren of England, to "Close Communion." In England, in 1801 there was one Baptist to every 240 of the population. In 1871, there was one to every 120 or nearly six times as many as there was in 1801. In 1871, there was 1,189,101, Baptists in the United States or thirteen times as many as in 1801.

WE ARE informed that a French scientist has discovered a process by which he can extract all the blood from a person, then introduce into the pores of the body a substance to preserve it, lay it away an indefinite length of time, then again introduce living blood, and cause life to return. He first experimented on animals, and then on men. Hearing of two communists to be executed, he applied to the authorities for them, to experiment upon which was granted, and in the presence of the best scientific men of France, he extracted their blood from them, laid them away for six months, and then, in the presence of the same men, he tested his resurrective discovery. The first proved a failure, attributed to a disease of the heart, but the second was brought to life and is now a living witness of the wonderful scientific discovery.

Youth's Department.

PRAYER.

Little children, when the evening
 Falleth with its quiet shade
Over tree top, sky and steeple,—
 Ere your little heads are laid
On your pillows for repose,
 'Neath the Father's mighty care,
Bow the head and bend the knee
 Low to Him in fervent prayer.

Little children, when the morning
 Poureth o'er the eastern hills
Its bright flood of blessed sunshine,
 Making glad the fields and rills,—
Ere you leave your quiet chambers,
 Pause and kneel, and humbly pray
To the God who has preserved you
 To behold another day.

Little children, when temptation
 Cometh with its giant power,
Pray to God, dear little children,
 In that dark and bitter hour:
He will then disarm the Tempter,
 Turn from you his poisoned dart,
And with grace and strength triumphant
 Make his throne within your heart.

Little children, when stern Sorrow
 Lays on you its heavy hand,
Veiling all the world in darkness;
 Veiling, too, the better land,—
Go to Jesus, little children:
 He will soothe and he will bless,
Will revive your drooping spirits,
 Whisper peace and happiness.

Little children, when the summons
 Calls you from these scenes away,
Ask him to receive your spirits,
 Pray, dear little children, pray,—
Pray that through the great Redeemer
 You may rise to life and light,
And, glad hallelujahs singing,
 Dwell forever in his sight.

ONE TALK MORE.

One talk more and 1872 will be gone! Is it possible that time has been passing so rapidly? It seems only a short time since we entered 1872 full of intentions and these were to do good. We thought of many things we would have to say for the benefit and encouragement of our young PILGRIM readers, of the many interesting talks we would have for your instruction but how short the time appears and how swiftly it has passed away! When we think of what we might have done we feel as if we did not do our duty, but when we look over the "Youth's Department" and see the many pages of useful reading that we have given for 1872 we are still encouraged and hope that our labor has not been altogether in vain in the Lord, and that many of our young readers have been persuaded to take heed to their ways and turn to the Lord before the "evil days come." But the past is past and we cannot make that any better; now so we will look to the future. This is the last visit that the PILGRIM will make to your homes for 1872, but our past visits have been so kindly received that we are made to hope that you all will invite us back again for 1873. Many have already said, "Come back again, we have learned to love you and would be quite lonely without your welcome visits." One mother writes that as soon as the PILGRIM comes, her two little girls throw down their work and will not take it up again until the PILGRIM is thoroughly examined and that she would not do without it if it cost $5.00. Every mail comes with invitations for the "welcome PILGRIM" to come back again, so that we hope before the 1st of January, 1873 arrives, not only all our dear young readers will invite it to return again, but many others homes that have never enjoyed its friendly visits may be made happy during 1873 by reading its pages.

We shall now take our leave of you for 1872 without making any rash promises for the future, but we assure you that we love you and are interested in your welfare, and whatever shall be suggested that we may think will be for your lasting happiness, we will give. Learn to do well, love and obey your parents, love Jesus, your best friend, and God will bless you.

CHRISTMAS AGAIN.

December 25th will soon be here and all of our little boys and girls know that to be the date of Christmas. And probably all of you are thinking about Christmas presents, some of you perhaps are thinking of what you shall get, but we trust that many of you are also thinking of what you will give. Those of you who have rich parents, no doubt, will receive many nice things, but we would have you remember that there are many little boys and girls whose parents are poor, and will not be able to give their children nice Christmas presents and these are the very ones that need them most. Will not our young readers remember such and out of your abundance, help to gladden their hearts and thus make a happy Christmas to all? In doing this you should consider what may be most useful to them and at the same time afford them enjoyment. Candy toys may please their taste and rot their teeth but will in no way, make them any better. If we were to advise, we would say, get them some good clothing, good and useful books or indeed a very nice and useful present would be to have the PILGRIM sent to them a year. This would not only afford enjoyment for one, but to all of the children of the family and also to their Papas and Mammas. Many poor families would be so glad to have a PILGRIM visit them every week. How would it do, dear little brothers and sisters, if you would do with less toys and candies and send $1.25 for our poor list to send the PILGRIM as a Christmas gift to some poor family who would so much enjoy it? Try it. If you have not got the money, ask papa for it and we know he will give it for so good a purpose. How many names will we see on our poor list for No. 1 of 1873. If you prefer, you can send the name of the one that is to receive it, and it will be noted on the list just the same.

We will now close by telling you of the great "Christmas Gift" given to the world over eighteen hundred years ago. When the whole world was full of sin, when all were sinners and none to pity, none to love and none to save God, our heavenly Father, sent his dear Son in to the world to pity, love and save us. In the Bible you can read how the child was born in Bethlehem, cradled in a manger, and all that he did and suffered for us. That child was Jesus the Savior of the world, was born, according to our time, on the 25th of December and for that reason, the day is called Christmas. This was the greatest gift ever given to the world, because, by his coming into the world we may all be saved from our sins and after we die if we have loved and obeyed Jesus, go to heaven, that happy place, where we shall all meet and ever be happy in the presence of Jesus our best friend. May you all be good children and receive a full share of that greatest of all Christmas gifts, the forgiveness of your sins and the gift of the Holy Spirit. And now, to one and all, a happy Christmas, a prosperous New Year and may God bless you all.

FIVE STEPS TO THE GALLOWS.

A man had committed murder, was tried, found guilty, and condemned to be hanged. A few days before his execution, he drew upon the wall of his prison a gallows with five steps leading up to it.

On the first step he wrote disobedience to parents.

On the second, Sabbath breaking.

On the third step, Gambling and Drunkenness.

On the fourth step, Murder.

The fifth step was the platform on which the gallows stood.

This poor fellow doubtless wrote the history of many a wasted and lost life.

"No doubt of it," says Captain Hunter. "Thousands and tens of thousands are ruined every year in a similar way. I believe that drunkenness ruins more than anything else. That was one of the steps to the gallows which this prisoner had painted and it made me think of a question and answer which we once heard:

"What's whiskey bringing?" inquired a large dealer in that article.

"Bringing men to the gallows, and women and children to want," was the reply of a by stander."

Pretty good answer, that, though not exactly the one that was wanted. If there is a more wasteful practice in the world than liquor drinking we don't know what it is. It wastes the grain of which it is made; it wastes the mind and body of the drinker; it wastes the property of himself and family, and his neighborhood; and, finally, wastes and ruins his soul. There is no economy in it in any way or shape.

CORRESPONDENCE

A Reporter is wanted from every Church in the brotherhood to send us Church news, Obituaries, Any occurrences or anything that will be of general interest. To insure insertion, the writers name must accompany each communication. Our invitation is not personal but general—please respond to our call.

Dear Pilgrim:—I believe I am the only one that writes for your columns from this county and I have become negligent. I will give some account of a Communion meeting that was held on the 20th of July 10 miles west of us. I had a desire to be there when I first heard of it, so the time drew near and on the 19th I started. Took the train at Staunton, and arrived at Goshen at 6 in the evening, from there I walked to my old mother-in-law's, sister Elizabeth Roadcap's, which was about one mile from the station. When I came to the house I spoke to a little grand-son of hers, and the first he said was, 'Gramma is sick." This was the first we knew of her being sick, I went in and found her in bed worn out by old age, I had hoped she would be able to attend the meeting as she had not been at a meeting of this kind for a long time, this being the first one that has ever been held in that neighborhood, and her age would not admit of her going far from home for some years. I remained with them that night, and in the morning I told her I had hoped she would be able to attend the meeting. She said she had hoped so to, but now she could not go, so after some other conversation with her I started for the place of meeting which was about three miles distant. While I was walking alone I wondered who the ministering brethren would be, I knew of one or two but I hoped there would be more. When I arrived at the place I found Bro. Martin Garber there already, he and Bro. Samuel Judy, at whose house the meeting was held, was busily engaged in making preparations, I joined in with them, but was not there long until brethren Solomon Garber and Jacob Thomas from Rockingham Co., and Bro. Samuel Driver from our Co., arrived, and a little while after brethren Levi Garber and Joseph Cline from our county came in, so we had a strong and able corps of laborers. At the appointed time we repaired to the barn where the services were held in daytime, and at night at the house—had a tolerable good congregation and good attention. After the first services one was added to our number by baptism. We then went to the house, the tables were set on a porch in front of the house, about 10 communed, and better order and attention I never saw on such an occasion, and I for one enjoyed myself very much, and I think the members all enjoyed the meeting. Next day, Sunday, preaching in the barn again, good congregation and good attention. After preaching I started back to my mother in-laws again, arrived there in the evening and found her no better. Next morning before I left she told me she longed for the time when she could leave this troublesome world but said she was willing to wait until the Lord saw fit to take her, so I bid her good by for the last time, as I thought, and so it was, and started for the depot, took the train and arrived home safe in the evening. In a few days my wife went out to see her mother, and in a few days after she arrived, she died, at the advanced age of 90 years, and was buried by the side of her husband who died some years ago, there to rest until the trump of God will raise all nations from their dusty beds.

S. J. GARBER.

New Hope, Va.

Dear Pilgrim:—As you are pursuing your journey onward, and, I trust upward as fast as onward, you are surely aware that all the saving power you possess inheres primarily in the Word of God.

Your name, like every other material or immaterial thing consists of the elements which compose it. And like every other conceivable or imaginable object, it may be subjected to an infinite number of varied analyzations, or rather I should say other things may be submitted to as many different manipulations as the PILGRIM is, and any one of them searched through as the PILGRIM is and has been, would be transmitted into as many different apparently real forms as the PILGRIM is. For example—The sea is truly said to be made up of the drops of water which compose it, and by critical scientific analysis other real component parts of it are very distinctly developed. And a still more thorough or minute investigation may prove the first simple appearance of it a deception discovering and establishing facts that cannot be comprehended by the common mind, but a still further attempt to lay hands on the cause of the wonders already beheld will be excess, and prove that which is false. It is just as inconvenient and as much detrimental to true happiness to know or do too much of a good thing as it is to know or do too little of it.—"Be not righteous over much, neither make thyself over wise; why shouldst thou destroy thyself?" Beethoven gave his sense of hearing to gratify his appetite for music. Another gave his sight to gratify his desire to know how it was did. Burns and Byron gave their lives for literary fame.

Newton gave his life for astronomical knowledge. Others while trying to "pierce the eternal secret through with a mortal eye" proved to themselves that space was matter and matter was space, dying with the belief that delusion was truth.

J. B. GARVER.

Shirleysburg, Pa.

For remainder of Correspondence see Page 394.

The Weekly Pilgrim.

JAMES CREEK, PA., Dec. 5th, 1872.

☞ How to send money.—All sums over $1.50, should be sent either in a check, draft or postal order. If neither of these can be obtained, have the letter registered.

☞ When Money is sent, always send with it the name and address of those who paid it. Write the names and post office as plainly as possible.

☞ Make all checks and mail drafts payable to H. B. Brumbaugh, and the postal orders make payable at Huntingdon.

☞ If any of our agents have been overlooked in receiving no prospectus, or any wish to become agents, let us know and we will send one, also sample copy of the Pilgrim Almanac.

☞ Every subscriber for 1873, gets a Pilgrim Almanac Free.

OUR VALEDICTORY.

The time has come, yes the time is here! How soon, how very soon! Only twelve months ago and we were taking our leave of 1871 and preparing to enter 1872. By the blessing of an all-wise Providence we were permitted to enter it, to survive its wintry blasts, its opening floods, its fierce thunders and burning suns, its later rains and biting frosts, its pestilences and contagious maladies and thousands of other dangers that might have befallen us, and numbered us among the nations of the dead, but through them all, we have safely passed and are again penning our valedictory for the dying year.

The now closing year was one of lights and shadows, clouds and sunshine. Its beginning was paved with many doubts and fears made doubly so by the over-abundance of vain and uninspired prophets who were eloquent in their empty predictions, but the heavens fell not, neither were we as a nation, called upon to suffer for want of bread. It is true, that, in the first part of the year, the clouds of adversity and disappointment rose in all their blackness and hung heavily around prosperities sky, but He who numbereth the hairs of our head, and is mindful of the little sparrows, saw our condition and blessed our store until every doubting Thomas was laid with his mouth in the dust.

Brethren and sisters, will the salt preserve? Yea, verily, God is mindful of his children and for the few righteous He will spare the City. From the Atlantic to the Pacific, our storehouses are full, if not of wheat they are over filled with corn, and prosperity, such as was seldom witnessed by the American people, reigns from shore to shore.

Not only are we blessed around our fireside and in our storehouses, but we enjoy social and religious liberties of which no other people can boast. The political sky too, in the opening of the year, was hedged around with many dark and threatning clouds, but they also have vanished away and we seem now, to entering another epoch of national prosperity. All these unmerited favors and blessings are attributable to some cause. Can we divine that cause? Was it not said of old; Righteousness exalteth a nation but sin is a reproach to any people? Let us take heed to our ways. Joshua stayed the sun and the shadow of the dial was made to go backward, but the Sun of Righteousness is going forward. It has left its eastern skies in worse than heathen darkness, its course being filled with infidelity, bloodshed, pestilences and famine. Empires have been shaken from center to center, kingdoms have fallen, great cities have been laid in ashes and finally, famine like the voracious wolf has claimed its victims by thousands and tens of thousands. All these things should be ensamples to us, and humble us under the mighty hand of God least similar judgments befall us. "Suppose ye that they were sinners above all other men? I tell you, nay; but except we repent we shall all likewise perish." Already, we have felt the power of the devastating hand in our own blessed land. The gates of heaven have been opened and poured its torrents down, causing want and destruction all along its course. The fiery element, like a destroying army has swept over Western fields leaving want, sorrow and death in its rear, also large cities, during the year, have been consumed to ashes. All these are omens predicting no good and should be, to us as fingers boards pointing to our inevitable destiny, unless we turn our feet to the testimonies of the Lord and exalt our nation in righteousness.

But as our position is a responsible one, and we are now taking our leave of the year almost run, the question presents itself forcibly to us: What have we done? What kind of an influence, have we exerted over our readers and how much have we accomplished for the cause of pure and undefiled religion in the world during the year 1872? We have thought of it often and think of it now, but can we tell, but this we know we were engaged in the work with our whole soul. We had the best interests of the Church and the salvation of souls at heart, and from our altar we prayed the daily blessings of God to rest upon our labors. We also have the happy assurance that many saints and pilgrims to the haven of eternal rest, have prayed for the success of our work and labor. We also have had the pleasure of learning that precious souls, through the PILGRIM's visits, have accepted the true light and been converted to God. These things summed up, make us believe that we have been laboring in the cause of Jesus and that it has been accompanied with the blessing of God. Early in life we dedicated ourselves to the work of the Lord and have ever cherished an abiding love for the principles of the Church, and stood ourselves in defence of the "Ancient landmarks which our fathers have set." They are of old and are so plainly set forth in the inspired chart that a "wayfaring man though a fool cannot err therein."

We have now visited your homes weekly during 1872, and many of them since we started on our pilgrimage, but the limit of our invitation expires with this number, and of course, will not return unless invited back again, which we kindly hope you will all do as we believe that we can do you good. Brethren and sisters, think a moment, for the last year we have given you, around your fireside, at least, 150 sermons. We have also kept you informed in regard to the progress and welfare of the Church, of many of the saints who have gone to their reward, and much other interesting reading all for the small sum of $1.50. For 1873 we hope still to do better, and therefore believe none of you can afford to do without the PILGRIM for 1873, no matter how many other good papers you may have to read.

For the coming volume, we have every reason to believe that there will be a decided improvement in the general character of the PILGRIM, as we have the promise of a number of new contributors and also some very excellent articles on hand for the next volume. There will be an improvement in appearance which will be noticed in No. 1st for January 1873. In addition to all this, we are sending to every subscriber for 1873, the Pilgrim Almanac giving all the information contained in a first class family Almanac, also the "Centennial Almanac" for 1873 with short biographies of the two Macks, Elds. Geo. Miller, Abraham Cumpacker, John Rothrock, Daniel Bollinger, Joseph Emmert, George Hoke, John Shoemaker and John Fiery; a short history of the "Brethren;" place of holding the Annual and District Meetings, and a "Ministerial Record," giving the names and address (giving the county to each address) of about one thousand of our ministers. They are now on hands and every subscriber for 1873 will receive a copy free as soon as the name is entered on our books.

We now kindly invite you all to renew your subscriptions for 1873 at once, so that all, if possible, can commence with the beginning of the year. To those who have stood by us and aided us in the past, we tender our heartfelt thanks, to those who will invite us back no more, we give a kind farewell, and for those who are renewing their subscription and giving us so many words of cheer and encouragement we feel to thank God and take courage. May you all abide to realize a happy Christmas and enter the New Year with renewed zeal in the Master's cause.

OUR PROSPECTS FOR 1873.

Those of our friends who are especially interested in our work will doubtless be anxious to know what our prospects are, and we feel glad that we can report so encouragingly. Up to this time, and at so early a date, our prospects were never so good. For the last two weeks, subscribers have been coming in quite rapidly, the highest number in one day being 93 and the largest list 64. This looks as if there are still a great many brethren and sisters who wish to gratify their "curiosity" by hearing (in their own language) "what the ever welcome PILGRIM will have to say." Our good cotemporary must have quite a rejoicing in receiving the returning wanderers home again, and more than this, it is said: "And so they will all think by and by"—by and by—dear me, where will the PILGRIM go then? Excuse our irony, as we hear these things so frequently that they are becoming a source of amusement and we take them in the best spirit imaginable. Brethren and sisters, do you see which way things are turning? A few years ago we started the PILGRIM with several score of subscribers. Since then, our number has been gradually going up and spreading out, and before another year is ended, by the blessing of God, in whom we put our chief trust, we expect to embrace every State and Territory in the Union. For 1872 our list was increased a little over one third. What 1873 may do for us God only knows, but our prayer is that we may be delivered from that spirit which endeavors to build up its own interests by pulling his brothers down. We all profess to be laboring for the cause of Jesus and the upbuilding of Zion, and we hope we are. If so, why not assist each other in the great work before us? Brethren, let us cast these things behind us and with a united force move forward, bringing to bear against the enemies camp the artillery of God's Word, and we can make even devils to tremble. To you dear brethren and sisters we would say, encourage every means of grace. Stand by and pray for the faithful harbingers of the cross, and the brethren of the press. We need your sympathies, your words of cheer, your prayers and your united aid. Disappoint us not, but send in your names by the tens, by the scores and by the hundreds. Come and go with us, we are espoused to Jesus and will do you good. Many have increased their list fifty per cent, and think they can still do more yet. Friends of the PILGRIM, make an effort, much depends on this. Ask every brother you meet to take the PILGRIM. Those that are poor and honest, if they have not got the money now, send us their names and we will give them time to earn it. We have all faith in our poor. If they promise, it will come. For 1872 some wrote to us to send them the PILGRIM and they would pay for it in May, others in September and still others said "sometime before the year is up." They, in almost every case, were punctual, and to-day we received two letters containing pay for 1872 and 73 together. Not only to-day have we received such letters, but it occurs frequently. This shows that our brethren and sisters are actuated by a principle and that we can trust them.

We offer you every inducement that kind, confiding and Christian hearts can suggest, therefore open your door for us and we will visit you weekly during 1873, if it is our Father's will, bringing with us such words of cheer, consolation and comfort as may be given us by God through the instrumentality of our brethren and sisters.

MISCELLANEOUS.

JOHN K. SHIVELY. Right.

J. C. CRIPE. Your wish is granted.

JOHN DELL. The PILGRIM will be continued.

LEVI H.—Due us. $1.25. PILGRIM will continue—all right.

ADDISON BAKER. We will get the book for you if we can.

BENJAMIN BOWMAN. Your PILGRIM is now paid to No. 20, 1873.

HENRY M. SHERFY. We cannot supply those missing Nos.—all gone.

W. B. S.: Your production is accepted, more of the same kind will be thankfully received.

JOHN ZUCK. J. A. S's PILGRIM is marked paid to No. 16, 1873. If D. B. has paid longer than to the end of the year it has been overlooked, he will know.

A SERIES of Meetings will commence in the Lewistown Congregation on the 2d of January, to which the brethren and sisters are invited, especially ministers.

ALMANACS. With this number we send our Almanacs to all the old subscribers that have renewed up to date of mailing, others coming in will be supplied in their order.

MARTIN JOHNSON: Your name for 1872 is not yet marked paid, but if you paid it to Bro. Sears it is likely we will get it soon. Your name is booked for 1873.

BOOKS.—Those who have ordered books will be accommodated as soon as we get a supply on hands. We are out of Tune Books but have ordered, and will send them as soon as they arrive.

CROWDED OUT. A large amount of correspondence, also obituaries and other interesting matter—will appear in No. 1 and following Nos., which we think will be the most interesting ever published by us.

S. BROADHERST. You gave two offices, one Nappa, Cal and the other Napa City. Are they different offices and in what county? Please inform and oblige. Neither of them are in our P. O. Directory, AGENTS.—There are a large number of persons applying for the agency of whom we have no knowledge. Our brethren should not pay their money to such agents as they think are not responsible, better enclose it and send it directly to us at once.

SPECIMEN COPIES of this issue we intend to send to some who have never saw or read the PILGRIM. If any who may receive it are pleased with it, we will be pleased if they will show it to others and try and get us a few names. If you wish an Almanac and prospectus for this purpose, we will send them immediately free of charge by letting us know.

NO. 1 for 1873, we expect to issue as near the beginning of the year as possible. Our hands have labored faithfully and now wish a little respite. Sisters Clarke and Miller wish to go home a short time, and we all feel as if we would like to have a short vacation, but we are on time and expect to have our number increased in a few days by receiving Bro. F. M. Snyder into the PILGRIM family, so that we hope to be out in good time and continue as regular as possible. Those who intend to renew their subscriptions and wish to accommodate us will please renew at once so that we can have the names booked before we send out No. 1.

PRESENTS. Sometime ago we offered the PILGRIM for $1. 25 to such as would feel like sending it to a friend as a present. Quite a number are accepting our offer. Today we received a list that had four marked on it as presents for some freinds whom it is thought will be benefited by reading it. Those receiving the PILGRIM without sending for it can feel assured that it is or will be paid for as we send to none except those who order it, except specimen copies and for those we expect nothing. How many more wish to make a valuable gift to some friend or friends for 1873? The offer still stands open.

ANNOUNCEMENT. In No. 1, of 1873 we will commence the following interesting papers: "A Dialogue Between Gamaliel and Nicodemus," illustrating the history of John the Baptist and Christ embracing 30 pages of MS. by J. H. Moore.

A Series of occasional letters to be called "Our Antietum Letters." The subject of the first letter is "Christian Work." The second will be an historic sketch of the "Antietam Church" &c., by "Monitor." We also have "A New Year's Dissertion" by Eld. G. G. Lint, with the promise of more. "An early history of the Brethren in the East," from the German by Eld. C. Bonberger.

We have quite a number of other interesting papers in our contribution box, but all those named we expect to commence in No. 1 of 1873. All who wish to read these very interesting papers should see that their names are sent in as early as possible.

MARRIED.

TETWILER—STAYER.—By the undersigned, at the residence of the bride's parents, October the 27th, 1872, Calvin Tetwiler to Miss Catharine Stayer, both of Bedford county, Pa.

HENRY CLAPPER.

STEMM—GORDON.—On the 14th of August, 1872, by Eld. John Shank, Rev. J. Stemm and Mary Gordon, both of Washington co., Md.

HAUSE—BINKLY.—On the 31st of October, 1872, by the same, Abraham Hause and Ida Binkly, both of Washington co., Md.

HAUSE—BONARD.—On the 14th of Nov. 1872, by the same, Wm. Hause and Nancy Ellen Bonard, both of Washington county, Md.

JOHN SHANK.

HESTAND—SUMMERS.—On the 21st day of Nov. by the undersigned at his residence, brother Samuel Hestand and Miss Clementine Summers, both of Columbiana co., Ohio. J. C.

SUMMERS—CONSOR.—On the evening of Nov. 21st, by the undersigned at his residence, Mr. Galen W. Summers and Miss Jennie Consor, both of Columbiana co., Ohio. JOHN A. CLEMENT.

DIED.

GEHR.—On December 3d, in Ringgold, Washington co., Md., Charles H. only son and child of Bro. John and sister Katie Gehr, aged 4 yrs. 10 mo. and 5 days. Funeral text, Rev. 22: 12.

Yes he is gone. Your little Charley is gone, never again will you behold his little form on this side of eternity. God saw fit to remove your only child. How hard it seems, almost too much for you to bear. But 'tis God who hath bereft you, His ways are not our ways as we saw to day where they laid Charley away beneath the cold, damp ground hidden from our view. Surely we were made to sympathize with you, don't wish him back. The icy hand of death came and took your little one so young and tender and is now in eternity, the coffin encloses its form, to-day we saw him and for the last, till we all shall meet above. You were loathe to part with him, you could hardly realize that it was so. He is gone. Yes; before the heart had learned in waywardness to stray, he is unspotted from the sins of this world. His little spirit is at rest. God recalled his own. He was too lovely to be left here on earth. He is Jesus' little lamb, gone where there is no seperation of friends no tears shed, no farewells given but all is calm, serene and peaceful. Prepare to meet your little Charley.

Dearest Charley, he has left you,
Here thy loss you deeply feel;
But 'twas God that hath bereft you,
He can all your sorrows heal.

M. E. G.

LEE.—In the Winamac District, North Bend, Stark co., Ind., Sept. 26, 1872, Martha, wife of friend John Lee, aged 43 years, 6 mos. and 13 days.

She leaves a husband and 2 children, a son and a daughter, to mourn their loss. She was not sick long, leaving a little infant only 5 days old. Funeral served by the writer from Job. 14: 10, to a large concourse of friends and members. This was the most affected congregation I ever saw, as was manifested by the tears streaming down over their friendly faces. May the power of God still be felt in the hearts of the children of men. Just one week after, to the hour, being the 3d of October, we were called again to attend the funeral of the little babe that was left motherless which was done according to request from Luke 15: 16. J. Y. BENNITT.

SNYDER.—In Logan co., Ohio, brother Geo. L. son of John and Barbara Snyder, on the morning of Oct. 26th, aged 26 years, 10 months and 18 days.

He is the third that has died out of Father's family, two of whom were members of the church of the brethren, the other an infant son. Brother George bore his sickness with Christian fortitude. Was willing to go when called. He possessed a lively hope of the blessed immortality; he talked very consoling to the family, and just a few hours before he died he was heard to say, "There is a calm and sweet repose for all they who love the Lord. He leaves an affectionate wife and one child (infant), and many dear relatives and friends to mourn his loss. Occasion improved by the brethren from the words: "I am in a straight betwixt two having a desire to depart and be with the Lord, nevertheless to abide in the flesh will be more needful for you."

F. M. SNYDER.

MONEY LIST.

Geo. L. Shult,	.50
Levi Brumbaugh,	1.25
George Hann,	1.50
Adam Brashaw,	1.25
Emanuel Slifer,	1.50
Geo. W. Jones,	12.15
James Y. Bennitt,	1.50
John K. Shively,	1.00
John Ulery,	1.50
Margaret Beardorf,	1.50
John Clapper,	8.75
Abraham Garber,	1.50
Jesse Cramer,	1.50
Samuel Teeter,	1.50
Moses Miller,	33.00
John Dell,	1.25
Leonard Furry,	20.00
Stephen Broadhurst,	5.00
Jacob P. Lerew,	3.00
Benjamin Bowman,	1.50
Mrs. Lydia Snavely,	1.50
John Shank,	4.00
Abraham Baum,	3.00
D. Troxel,	1.50
Joseph Railsey,	2.75
J. S. Newcomer,	.50
Jacob Holsapple,	2.25
B. F. Durst,	6.00
John Forney,	4.50
Humphrey Talhelm,	1.00
Sol. Blickenstaff,	1.50
A. P. Miller,	3.00
Jacob Eigenbrode,	1.50
John Lutz, Sr.,	1.50
F. C. Garst,	1.50
Altoona, Iowa,	5.35
Jeremiah Hollinger,	2.25
J. S. Flory,	10.00
M. K. & H. Garber,	5.50
A. H. Cassell,	1.50
D D Sizer,	1.25
John Price,	1.50
Joel H. Flora,	5.75
Wm. A. Aldridge,	1.25

MISCELLANEOUS.

John Bunyan was once asked a question about heaven, which he could not answer, because the matter was not revealed in the Scriptures, and he thereupon advised the inquirer to live a holy life and go and see.

The Supreme court of Massachusetts has decided that railroad companies have no right to collect fares on Sunday trains, as it is a violation of law to run trains on that day.

The Utah Indians have made satisfactory arrangements with the government and are to occupy a reservation of 750,000 acres in Utah which will be stocked to give them a start in civilized life. They number 3,000.

The place of Industry where the great Exposition of Vienna will be held is 3,000 feet long by 82 wide intersecting by 32 transepts, each 247 feet long by 50 wide. The industrial productions of all nations will be represented. Gen. Van Buren has been appointed Commissioner for the United States.

The Union Pacific railroad is constructing at Omaha, the largest snow plow in the world. It will weigh fifty tons and be operated by three of the heaviest engines on the road. But even such ponderous machinery is often of no avail against the soft-falling flakes when God opens the treasures of the snow.

GOOD BOOKS.

A large number of our patrons are receiving our books as noticed below, as premiums, and express themselves highly pleased with them. Others who are not agents, have enquired whether we keep them for sale. We have now made arrangements with Mr. Wells to furnish any of their publications post paid at publishers prices. Orders for books must be accompanied with the cash, and plain directions for sending them.

Weaver's Works for the Young. Comprising, "Hopes and Helps for the Young of both Sexes." $3.00.

Life at Home, or, The Family and its Members. A work which should be found in every family. $1.50. Extra gilt, $2.00.

Hand-book for Home Improvement: comprising "How to Write," "How to Talk," How to Behave," and "How to do Business," in one vol. 2 25.

Man and Woman: Considered in their Relations to each Other and to the World. 12mo, Fancy cloth, Price $1.00.

The Right Word in the Right Place. A New Pocket Dictionary and Reference Book. Cloth, 75 cts.

Hopes and Helps for the Young of both sexes, Relating to the Formation of Character, Choice of Avocation, Health, Conversation, Social Affection Courtship and Marriage. Muslin, $1.50.

The Emphatic Diaglott; or The New Testament in Greek and English. Containing the Original Greek Text of the New Testament, with an Interlineary Word for word English Translation. Price, $4.00; extra fine binding, $5.00.

Oratory—Sacred and Secular; or, the Extemporaneous Speaker. Price $1.50.

Conversion of St. Paul. 12mo, fine edition, $1. Plain edition, 75 cents.

Man, in Genesis and in Geology; or, the Biblical Account of Man's Creation, tested by Scientific Theories of his Origin and Antiquity. One vol. 12mo, $1.00.

How to read Character, illus.	Price, $1 25
Combe's Moral Philosophy,	1.75
Constitution of Man. Combe,	1.75
Education. By Spurzheim,	1.50
Memory. How to Improve it,	1.50
Mental Science, Lectures on,	1.50
Self-culture and Perfection,	1.50
Combe's Physiology, Illus.	1.75
Food and Diet. By Pereira,	1.75
Natural Laws of Man,	.75
Hereditary Descent,	1.50
Combe on Infancy,	1.50
Sober and Temperate Life,	.50
Children in Health—Disease,	1.75
The Science of Human Life,	3.50
Fruit Culture for the Million,	1.00
Saving and Wasting,	1.50
Ways of Life—Right Way,	1.00
Footprints of Life,	1.25
Conversion of St Paul,	1.00

Trine Immersion.

A discussion on Trine Immersion, by letter between Elder B. F. Moomaw and Dr. J. J. Jackson, to which is annexed a Treatise on the Lord's Supper, and on the necessity, character and evidences of the new birth, also a dialogue on the doctrine of non resistance, by Elder B. F. Moomaw. Single copy 50 cents.

TUNE BOOK.

The Brethren's Tune and Hymn Book, is a compilation of Sacred Music adapted to all the hymns in the Brethren's New Hymn Book. It contains over 350 pages, printed on good paper and neatly bound. We will send it to any address, post paid at $1.25 per copy.

New Hymn Books, English.

TURKEY MOROCCO.

One copy, postpaid,	$1 00
Per Dozen,	11.25

PLAIN ARABESQUE.

One Copy, post-paid,	75
Per Dozen, "	8.50

Ger'n & English, Plain Sheep.

One Copy, post-paid,	$1.00
Per Dozen	11.25
Arabesque Plain,	1 00
Turkey Morocco,	1.25
Single German, post paid	50
Per Dozen,	5.50

Trine Immersion

TRACED

TO THE APOSTLES.

Being a collection of historical quotations from modern and ancient authors, proving that a THREE-FOLD Immersion was the only method of baptizing ever practiced by the Apostles and their immediate successors. The author, after proving Trine Immersion to have been the prevailing practice, in baptism, the first 1500 years of the Christian era, commences with the fifth century, and traces a Three-fold Immersion, to within 33 years of the apostle John's death, and then proves it to have been the Apostolic method of baptizing, while Single Immersion was invented not less than 320 years after the death of Christ.

Put up in a neat pamphlet form, with good paper cover, and will be sent, post-paid, on the following terms: One copy, 25 cts; Five copies, $1.10; Ten copies, $2.00.

Address, J. H. MOORE,
Urbana, Champaign co., Ill.

Oct. 22.

SALEM COLLEGE.

The Winter term of Salem College will open for the reception of any number of students from all parts on the 11th of Dec., 1872. Ample accommodations and thorough instruction will be given all students who connect themselves with this College. Good board can be had in good families at $2.50 to $3.00 per week or students can board themselves in clubs at $1.25 to $1.50 per week as members have done with the consent of the faculty. Special care will be given students who are far from home.

For Catalogue, Scholarships and full particulars address

SALEM COLLEGE,
July 22, '72. Bourbon, Ind.

WANTED BOOK Agents FOR THE GREAT INDUSTRIES OF THE UNITED STATES:

AN HISTORICAL SUMMARY OF THE ORIGIN, GROWTH AND PERFECTION OF THE CHIEF INDUSTRIAL ARTS OF THIS COUNTRY.

1300 PAGES and 500 ENGRAVINGS.

Written by 20 Eminent Authors, including John B. Gough, Leon Case, Edward Howland, Jos. B. Lyman, Rev. E. Edwin Hall, Horace Greely, Philip Ripley, Albert Brisbane, F. B. Perkins, etc.

This work is a complete history of all branches of industry, processes of manufacture, etc., in all ages. It is a complete encyclopedia of arts and manufactures, and is the most entertaining and valuable work of information on subjects of general interest ever offered to the public. It is adapted to the wants of the Merchant, Manufacturer, Mechanic, Farmer, Student and Inventor, and sells to both old and young of all classes. The book is sold by agents, who are making large sales in all parts of the country. It is offered at the low price of $3.50, and is the cheapest book ever sold by subscription. No family should be without a copy. We want agents in every town in the United States, and no agent can fail to do well with this book. Our terms are liberal. We give our agents the exclusive right of territory. One of our agents sold 133 copies in eight days, another sold 368 in two weeks. Our agent in Hartford sold 397 in one week. Specimens of the work sent to agents on receipt of stamp. For circulars and terms to agents address the publishers.

J. B. BURR & HYDE. Hartford, Conn., Chicago, Ill., or Cincinnati, Ohio.

Menno Simon's

COMPLETE WORKS.

In English, translated from the original Dutch or Holland, giving the whole of the great Reformers writings on the subject of Baptism. Price in full sheep $4.50; by mail $5.14.

Address, JOHN F. FUNK & BRO.
Elkhart, Ind.

6 CHROMOS

"CARLO IN MISCHIEF," "GOOD MORNING," "SPRING FLOWERS," "SUMMER FLOWERS," "AWAKE" and "ASLEEP."

With the ECLECTIC WEEKLY and WEEKLY CHRISTIAN AT WORK (Consolidated), for $3.00.

Two of these Chromos are the size of "Wide Awake and Fast Asleep;" the others a meashat smaller.

Subscribers furnished AT ONCE with their Chromos.

AGENTS

can make better terms with us than with any other publishers.

Address H. W. ADAMS, 27 Beekman Street, N.Y.

TRACTS.

"ANXIOUS BENCH RELIGION EXAMINED," BY ELDER J. S. FLORY. A SYNOPSIS OF CONTENTS. An address to the reader; The peculiarities that attend this type of religion. The feelings there experienced not imaginary but real. The key that unlocks the wonderful mystery. The causes by which feelings are excited. How the momentary feelings called "Experimental religion" are brought about, and then concludes by giving that form of doctrine as taught by Jesus Christ and recorded by his faithful witnesses.

COUNTERFEIT DETECTER

or

BAPTISM—MUCH IN LITTLE.

This work is now ready for distribution, and the importance of the subject will speak for it a large demand. It is a short treatise on baptism in tract form intended for general distribution, and is set forth in such a plain and logical manner that a wayfaring man though a fool, cannot err therein. Either of the above tracts sent post paid on the following terms: Two copies, 10 cts, 10 copies 40 cents, 25 copies 70 cents, 50 copies $1.00, 100 copies $1.50

1870 1872

DR. FAHRNEY'S

Blood Cleanser or Panacea.

A tonic and purge, for Blood Diseases. Great reputation. Many testimonials. Many ministering brethren use and recommend it. Ask or send for the "Health Messenger." Use only the "Panacea" prepared at Chicago, Ills., and by

Dr. P. Fahrney's Brothers & Co.,
Aug. 3-pd. Waynesboro, Franklin Co., Pa.

25 Ablest Tariff Journal in the U. S.

THE AMERICAN WORKING PEOPLE

Published monthly, is a welcome visitor at 100,000 Firesides. Finely printed, handsomely illustrated, ably edited—has no rival! $1.50 per year, sent on trial 3 months for 25 cents.

IRON WORLD PUB. CO., Pittsburgh, Pa.

25 THE IRON WORLD is the Largest and most Valuable Metal Price Current in the world. $4.00 per year. Sent on trial one month for 25 cents. All the State Geologists are Contributors. IRON WORLD PUB'G CO., Pittsburgh, Pa.

$5 to $20 per day! Agents wanted! All classes of working people, of either sex, young or old, make more money at work for us in their spare moments or all the time than at anything else. Particulars free. Address G. Stinson & Co., Portland, Maine.

HUNTINGDON & BROAD TOP RAIL ROAD

Winter Arrangement.

On and after Tuesday, Oct. 4. 1872, Passenger trains will arrive and depart as follows:

Trains from Huntingdon South. Trains from Mt. Dall's moving North.

MAIL. A. M.	ACCOM P. M.	STATIONS.	MAIL. P. M.	ACCOM A. M.
LE8 00	LE5 50	Huntingdon,	AR3 20	AR9 00
8 08	5 57	Long Siding	3 12	8 13
8 21	6 10	McConnelstown	2 56	8 37
8 30	6 17	Pleasant Grove	2 50	3 26
8 45	6 30	Marklesburg	2 37	8 17
9 00	6 44	Coffee Run	2 23	8 01
9 07	6 52	Rough & Ready	2 15	7 53
9 20	7 05	Cove	2 01	7 40
9 24	7 10	Fishers Summit	1 57	7 35
9 44 / 9 54	AR7 30	Saxton	1 37	LE7 15
10 10		Riddlesburg	1 19
10 17		Hopewell	1 12
10 34		Piper's Run	12 56
10 52		Tatesville	12 33
11 05		Bloody Run	12 24
AR11 10		Mount Dallas	12 20

JOHN M'KILLIPS, Supt

SHOUP'S RUN BRANCH.

LE10 00	LE7 40	Saxton,	AR1 30	AR7 10
10 15	7 55	Coalmont,	1 15	6 55
10 20	8 00	Crawford,	1 10	6 50
AR10 30	AR8 10	Dudley	LE1 00	LE6 40

Bro'd Top City from Dudley 2 miles by stage.

Time of Penna. R. R. Trains at Huntingdon.

EASTWARD.		WESTWARD.
Hb'g Ac.	9 24 A M	Cin. Ex.	2 19 A. M.
Mail	3 30 P. M	Pc'f Ex.	7 45 "
Cin. Ex.	6 55 "	Mail	5 40 P. M.
Phil. Ex	11 15 "	W. Pass.	11 52 A. M.

The Weekly Pilgrim.

Published by J. B. Brumbaugh, & Co.

Edited by H. B. & Geo. Brumbaugh.

CORRESPONDING EDITORS.

D. P. Sayler, Double Pipe Creek, Md.

Leonard Furry, New Enterprise, Pa.

The Pilgrim is a Christian Periodical, devoted to religion and moral reform. It will advocate in the spirit of love and liberty, the principles of true Christianity, labor for the promotion of peace among the people of God, for the encouragement of the saints and for the conversion of sinners, avoiding those things which tend toward disunion or sectional feelings.

TERMS.

Single copy, Book paper,	$1.50
Eleven copies, [eleventh for Agt.]	$15.00

Any number above that at the same rate,

Address,

H. B. BRUMBAUGH,
James Creek,
Huntingdon county Pa.

DO NOT REMOVE THIS BOOK FROM THE LIBRARY